Homecoming 1988

In 1973, 15 years ago, this year, Roaring Springs High School, Flomot High School and Matador High School consolidated to form one county school, located in Matador. Students from Roaring Springs, Flomot, Northfield and Whiteflat were and still are bussed to school. This was a big change for some students who had always just walked to school or brought by their parents. All students began to make a lot of adjustments.

The Roaring Springs and Flomot Grade schools, 1-6 continued to hold school in Flomot and Roaring Springs until 1977.

Students began making new friends and bonding together to form a love for their new school.

In 1974, the High School Students voted to re-name the school, Motley County High School, but to keep the Mascot of the Matadors and the colors of black and red. The school song stayed the same, except for replacing the word Matador with Motley, as follows.....

"Hail Motley High School

Hats off to you,
Always you'll find us,
Loyal and true,
firm and adoring,
always we'll be,
Hail to the school we love,

here's a toast to thee.....

M M M O T.....L L L E Y
M O T.....L E Y
M O T L E Y, M O T L E Y H I G H

Students continued going to school in the old Matador High School Building and construction began on a new school.

In 1975, students, faculty, and volunteers moved across the street to a new, modern building which housed high school and grade school students.

In 1984, a tornado blew through Matador and completely destroyed the school.

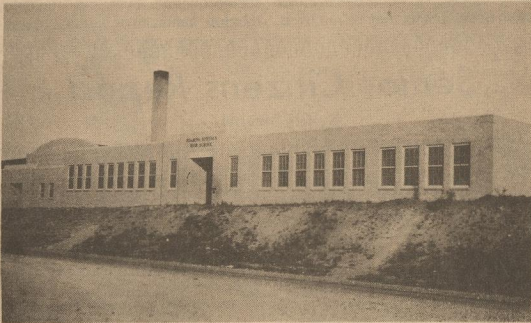

Students, again had to make new adjustments and began school in portable buildings and the old Matador grade school building.

The students of Motley County have made a lot of adjustments and changes in the last 15 years, but they have come through everything with an even deeper devotion to their school, and a closer bond to each other.

As the 15 year reunion of Motley County High School approaches and with Homecoming upon us, let's get into the spirit of Homecoming....renewing old friendships, visiting, going to the bonfire, and back our Matadors at the Football game against Crowell, Friday night, because BLACK IS BACK!

provided by the Tri County Tumblers Group, and will be held in the School Cafeteria. They plan to serve chili or tasty stuffed potatoes with a choice of 2 or 3 different toppings, a scrumptious dessert and tea or coffee. Tri-County is a newly organized group supporting and sponsoring our youth in tumbling. This supper is an effort to raise money to buy equipment. Cost is $4.00 per plate. Star of Homecoming is the football game between Matador and Crowell at the newly remodeled Burleson Field beginning at 7:30 p.m. Post game activities are open for individual reunions and gatherings.

Billie Dean's Opens In Newly Remodeled Building

A brand new look inside Billie Dean's after the November 28, 1987, Saturday morning fire. The family owned and operated restaurant is back in the spacious building with their full menu and a large spacious dining room.

The fire gutted the building, so everything is new and colored coordinated around a large "Bullfighter" picture hanging in the front dining area.

The same delicious food is served to the customers by the friendly Smith family. The original owners, Joe and Billie Dean, are still as much involved as their sons, Chip and Pat and daughter Seven, in meeting the needs of the patrons.

The Smiths invite everyone out for a meal or just a cup of coffee. Be sure and read the rules to being a coffee drinker.

Flomot Man Killed In Farm Accident

Gregoric Arevalo, 22, of Flomot, was killed in a farm accident around 4:15 Thursday afternoon, Oct. 20, west of Flomot.

He and Johnny Roys were putting a basket on a cotton stripper with a winch truck when it came in contact with an electric highline. Mr. Roys, Roger and Ruth Lee administered CPR, but were unable to revive him. Johnney Turner and Terry Sperry also helped at the scene of the accident. He was conveyed by Motley County Ambulance to Floydada where he was pronounced dead.

Mr. Arevalo and wife, who were recently married, lived in Flomot. He had been employed during the ginning season for several years at the Flomot Gin. Funeral services were held in Matamoros, Mexico where his grandparents live.

Survivors include his wife; parents and family in Brownsville and a brother in Floydada.

Eternas Club To Sponsor Kids Karnival

The Eternas Study Club is sponsoring a Halloween "Kids Karnival" Saturday, October 29th from 5:00 p.m. until 8:00 p.m. in the American Legion Building. Matadors Defeated by Bulldogs Motley County Matadors in action against Spur Bulldogs.

Motley County fell to the Spur Bulldogs last Friday night, 32-18.

The Matadors first score came in the second quarter when Jarrett Jameson covered a punt he had blocked in the endzone.

A second score also came in the second quarter when Tim Kendall scored on a one yard run, tying the score at 12-12 for halftime.

Early in the third quarter Brent Marshall scored for the Matadors, but the team was unable to hold the Bulldogs.

Burleson field will be the place to find the Matadors this coming Friday night as they meet Crowell in a Motley County homecoming showdown. Come support the Matadors as they continue their "winning tradition" on their new home field.

Motley County Gin and West Texas Gin Merge

The Motley County Gin, owned by the J.T. Martin Estate in Paducah and previously managed by Roy "Roncho" Grundy, has consolidated with the West Texas Gin, managed by Bennie Keltz, who retired this year.

The West Texas Gin is owned by Archer Daniels Midland Company of Illinois and is under the supervision of Southern Cotton Oil Division of Quanah.

The new manager for the West Texas Gin is Roy Grundy. Roy managed the Motley County Gin for 4 years. Roy is a Motley County resident and has farm and ranch land. Roy was raised in Quitaque and graduated from West Texas State in Canyon. Following graduation from college, he coached and taught school in Silverton, Flomot and Quitaque.

The CRP program as well as the weather and other reasons has cut down on the cotton production. According to Billy Wayne Dennison, of the ASCS office, the 25% acreage for CRP land in Motley County has been filled and out of 66,231.6 acres, 14,491.3 acres were put in CRP leaving 51,727.2 acres still for cotton production.

Dennison stated he did not feel the CRP was the reason for low cotton productivity this year, he felt it was a benefit for those, who were going to stop farming anyway, and the CRP payments would keep the economy up in Motley County.

This Gin merge leaves 4 gins in Motley County, West Texas Gin, Red Ball Gin, Flomot Gin and Turner's Gin.

First Baptist Youth To Sponsor Enchilada Dinner

Youth of the First Baptist Church, Matador, are sponsoring an enchilada dinner Sunday, October 30. The menu will include enchiladas, refried beans, pineapple salad, nacho chips, hot sauce (on the side) and cake. The dinner will be served in the church basement after the morning worship service.

Donations will be gratefully accepted by the youth. Proceeds will be used to help the youth go to the Ski-Bible Conference during Spring Break.

Carry-out plates are available for those unable to climb the basement steps. To order your carry-out plate, call 347-2249 by 3:00 p.m., Saturday, October 29.

Complete your homecoming weekend by being our guests.

LIBRARY NOTES

BY JIMMIE HUNTER

There's no need to hit the trail for New Mexico or Colorado to enjoy the Aspen Gold, just drive out in the country and look at the brilliant Chinaberry trees and the Salt Cedars and Cottonwoods along the riverbeds. The shelter belts have some trees that have beautiful yellow foliage now, but I'm not sure what they are.

If a golden Fall puts you in the mood to read, you might try GOLD DISCOVERIES, by R. Conrad Stein; MONEY MOUNTAIN, by Marshall Sprague; WHISPERING SANDS, stories of gold fever and the western desert, by Eric Stanley Gardiner; THE GOLDEN UNICORN, by Phyllis A. Whitney; GOLDENEYE, by Malcome MacDonald; THE GOLDEN FURY, by Marian Castle; GOLDEN HILL by Shirley Lord; THE GOLDEN NOTEBOOK, by Doris Lessing; or from the Juvenile Section, you might enjoy THE GOLDEN FLEECE, by Padraic Colum; THE GOLDEN ROOT, by William O. Steele; or GOLDEN DAFFIDILL, the story of a fifth grader with cerebral palsy who transfers from a special school to regular classroom, by Marilyn Gould. If you don't like to read, perhaps you would enjoy doing some Gold and Silver Needlepoint.

Three people have recommended MAN OF THE HOUSE by Tip O'Neil, "one of America's most colorful public figures, a master politician and a master storyteller, a man of wit and wisdom." The book was written in collaboration with William Novak, co-author of IACOCCA and MAYFLOWER MADAM. Keith Patton also recommended BLOOD AND MONEY, a true story of murder, passion, and power, by Thomas Thompson, a native Texan and author of HEARTS, RICHIE AND LOST!

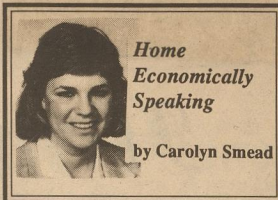

When I started this column last Saturday, I had no idea that Matador school colors, had ever been Gold and Purple, but after I received a flyer requesting all store windows to be decorated by Monday afternoon to welcome Exes and show support for our team, I called Joan Patton who had planned to change the display case Tuesday, and she enlisted Keith's help and immediately brought down the memorabilia she had already collected, and they, with the help of Earline Vaughn, arranged an eye catching exhibit of things saved by men who were former students. One of the articles is a gold and purple football sweater from 1931!

Many thanks to Betty Moore who helped to decorate our window by loaning her daughter, Kim's pom-poms, megaphone and sweater from her year as mascot for the Mighty Matadors. Thanks also to Snow Crenshaw who took time to help me get the welcome sign attached to the window. We extend an invitation to all you exes to come in and visit, enjoy our mural and even tell us which book you read as a school child that you remember best.

In my report of visitor's last week, I somehow missed Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Gonzalez, of Upland, CA. We had a delightful visit with them, while Manuel was trying to contact a cousin in Plainview, who could help him with his genealogical research into his family tree. They had organized a "cousin's reunion" for the members of Mrs. Gonzalez' family and had so much fun that they had decided to organize one for his family. One of the neat ideas they shared was to color code the family groups. All of Aunt Liza's children and their children would wear blue blouses or T-shirts, Uncle Henry's descendants would wear green, etc. They also planned games for the younger generations, who had never met before, to get acquainted. I'd like to have one for my cousins.

Evelyn Garrison, who is helping some Spanish speaking students at school to learn English, shared this story with me, Saturday. Last week they had covered their planned material and the fifth grade student with whom she was working had read the three stories which followed each of the first three lessons, and still had ten minutes of their hour of class time. Evelyn asked if the student would like to read the stories to her teacher. They went to Mrs. Parks room just as they were changing from one subject to another, and Mrs. Parks laid her work aside and sat down to listen. When the child finished her third story, all her classmates had edged around the desk to listen, and clapped enthusiastically as she closed her book. It was a thrilling moment for the student and Mrs. Garrison! Mrs. Parks and her students are to be commended for such kind encouragement to one who is a stranger in a strange land.

COMBINING CLOTH AND LEATHER PRODUCE CLEANING PROBLEMS

Clothing made with a combination of cloth and suede or leather can be very attractive - and a problem to clean. As this type of clothing has become more popular, the International Fabricare Institute has received more complaints about the results of cleaning it.

A common problem is a variation in the colorfastness of the leather and the cloth. Usually the leather and cloth parts in the garment match or are similar in color. But when it's immersed in dry cleaning solvent, part of the dye in either the cloth or the leather may be removed.

This means you wind up with a garment that looks faded in some areas.

If the manufacturer's care label instructs you to dry clean the article, this color loss is not the responsibility of the dry cleaner. You can only complain to the manufacturer.

Although garments combining fabric with suede and leather are attractive, shoppers should carefully read the care label and look for signs of quality construction and manufacture before buying.

The International Fabricare Institute has also received numerous complaints about Ultrasuede. Ultrasuede will naturally become more supple with use and care. To maintain stability in the collar, lapels, facing and pocket areas, a fusible interfacing is usually applied.

Improper adhesion of the interfacing during the manufacturing process can cause separation during drycleaning or steam finishing procedures.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service are for people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

The bus went to Lubbock Monday with a number of people riding. There were people from Roaring Springs and Matador with Doctor appointments. Others went shopping.

Thursday was a beautiful day and the bus was loaded with passengers, going shopping in Plainview, and everyone enjoyed the days activities.

Did you see our pretty flower bed? We thank Zelma for working it. The whole yard looked very pretty.

Friday evening, ten of us Senior Citizens gathered at the center to play games and visit.

Barbara's Bylines

Note: Bill Salter called this office in September to get update news on Douglas Meador and later sent this article from his newspaper, The News-Herald of Panama City, Florida, Oct. 2 issue.

WILLIAM TELLS Don't Get Hooked

Virtually everything Poor William knows about being a newspaper editor was learned the hard way - first you do it wrong, then you learn how to do it right.

But, there was a time when Poor William still sought the advice of journalism's elders, hoping to learn something without first having to pay the price of circumstance.

--Based on the experiences of older, and presumably wiser editors - how to react to a particular situation BEFORE experiencing such a situation himself.

For the most part, though, such questioning is a waste of time. It's sort of like a child pointing to the kitchen stove and asking, "What's that, Mommy?"

Mommy, of course, is going to say something about stoves being hot and not to touch them because they will "burn Baby." Just as surely as night follows day, though, Baby's going to have to actually touch a hot stove to find out how to deal with them in the future.

Journalism - and most other professions - work on exactly the same premise. And, a crusty, old newspaperman named Douglas Meador knew that in 1967 when Poor William asked him, "Mr. Meador, you've been in this business a long time. Do you have any advice you could give a person just getting started?"

Meador then was 66 and was well-known in North Texas Newspaper circles for his dry wit. As Poor William remembers it, the veteran editor thought only for a moment and then replied, "Never get hooked on the horns of a dilemma."

At the time, Poor William had not a clue as to what that meant, but certainly wasn't going to admit it or ask for clarification. Instead, the response was something like, "Gee, thanks, I really appreciate the advice."

Now, though, the meaning of Meador's cryptic comment seems pretty clear:

If you've got a problem and you spend so much time worrying about how to begin dealing with it, you'll never be able to work your way all the way through to the end and be able to get on with your life. Like a Matador, you've got to get past the horns in order to kill the bull.

Poor William only recently learned that Meador - who owned the Matador Tribune, a small weekly newspaper, for 42 years - died seven years after offering his bit of advice to a young news editor of the Floyd County Hesperian, a larger weekly paper just down the road. So, there's no way to find out for sure if the interpretation offered in this column is correct.

But, you can be sure Poor William isn't going to get hooked worrying about it. Instead, you'll soon find Meador's wisdom hanging on Poor William's office wall as a reminder of horns which have been dodged, dilemmas which have been dealt with and of a man who managed to make such an impression with one sentence that he and his words have been remembered for more than 20 years.

Senator Carriker Appointed To Economic Committee

AUSTIN -- Lieutenant Governor Bill Hobby has appointed Senator Steve Carriker to the Senate Standing Committees on Economic Development and Criminal Justice.

In announcing the appointments, Hobby said, "Senator Carriker's years of service as a member of the House of Representatives will add valuable experience and insight to the work of these committees, which deal with some of the most critical issues facing Texas today. I look forward to his contribution to these committees and to the 71st Legislature."

The appointments are for the remainder of the interim. Appointments to committees for the 71st Legislature will be made in January.

European manufacturers of textiles and textile machinery know a lot more about current and future High Plains cotton and cotton processing than they did three weeks ago. And three High Plains cotton specialists know a lot more about what Europeans expect of Texas cotton.

Three weeks ago was when a cotton breeder, a ginning engineer and a textile technologist, all from the High Plains and each recognized as a top practitioner in his field, left Lubbock to stage seminars for textile industry people in England, Germany, Switzerland, France, Belgium and Yugoslavia.

The trip, under the sponsorship of Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers, Inc. was financed in part by contributions from regional cooperatives, banks and cotton merchants.

The High Plains emissaries stressed in each country a single theme: West Texas is devoting and will continue to devote the resources necessary to develop and produce the cottons needed to meet fiber quality demands of modern textile technology. Returning to Lubbock October 19, they were agreed that their message was received and appreciated.

Each seminar was opened by cotton breeder Dr. John Gannaway of the Texas Agricultural Research and Extension Center, Lubbock, whose work is financed largely by producers through PCG's Plains Cotton Improvement Program. Gannaway stressed his concentration on breeding for the strength, maturity, fineness and length requirements of rotor spinning, plus possible changes in plant conformation to reduce foreign matter content.

He was followed on the programs by Roy Baker, Director of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's full-scale ginning laboratory north of Lubbock. Baker outlined the ginning system in use on the High Plains, the effects of the ginning process on various fiber quality factors, and reviewed ongoing research of improved harvesting and ginning practices to preserve fiber quality.

John B. Price, Assistant Director of Texas Tech University's International Center for Textile Research and Development, closed each of the seminars by detailing how fiber properties determined by high volume instruments, now used to class the entire Plains crop, can be used by spinners to discover the most economical mix of cottons for optimum performance in individual mill operations. He also discussed progress in the development of an instrument to rapidly and accurately determine fiber fineness and maturity, plus the need for a solution to the "stickiness" problem which existing instruments are unable to foretell.

Summing up the trip, Price said, "I think we left the 250 or more mill executives and research people in our audiences convinced that West Texas is taking a leadership role in meeting the needs of its cotton customers and I think we'll see positive results within a very few years."

Mr. Truitt Read

The seventh grade sponsor this year is Mr. Truitt Read. He has been teaching for 31 years; he has taught everything from Math to Drivers Ed. to Health to Coaching. Some goals that he has this year is to help the learning of the students to reach the level they are capable of reaching.

Mr. Read is married to Chelsea and they have three children. They are: Debbie, Vic, and Scott they have all graduated from high school. Mr. Read attended high school at Dumont, Tx. and at Paducah. He then attended and graduated from college at Sul Ross University.

Coach Read commented that Motley County was the 'cream of the crop' when it came to schools. The teaching situation at M.C. is better than at many other schools and there are fewer problems at Motley Co.

He stated "If people stay teaching as long as I have; I hope that it is as joyful for them as it has been for me."

Train up a child in the way he should go: and when he is old, he will not depart from it.

The Juniors took their Exit Level Teams Test on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week. To be able to graduate and receive a diploma this test must be passed. Good luck to everyone!

As the exes pass through the halls of MCHS; they will notice the work that the Juniors and Seniors put in on Sunday. The halls of the high school part and the foyer are decorated with red and black streamers. There are signs in the gym that each class in high school made. It really looks nice.

Chisum Given Endorsement By Law Officer Group

Warren Chisum, Democrat running for the 84th District House of Representatives seat, has been endorsed by the Combined Law Enforcement Associations of Texas (CLEAT). According to Ronald G. DeLord in a letter to Chisum "CLEAT believes that you are committed to seeing that the government uses its resources to aid local police and district attorneys in our war on drugs and crime. A strong local police force is the public's only safeguard."

DeLord's letter also stated: "Texas police officers need leadership in the Texas House that understands that the crime and drug problems cannot be resolved by rhetoric and media events.

Crime can only be reduced if our children are educated to damages of drugs on society, the criminal element is dealt with in a consistent manner, and the police are well-trained and respected by the public."

Although Chisum does not accept funds from political action groups, he was pleased with the endorsement. "I am very concerned about maintaining a strong law enforcement tradition in Texas. I want to work to help our officers, and I am particularly concerned about the overcrowding in our prisons and the need for new facilities," he said.

CLEAT is the largest police association in Texas with over 8,000 members.

Proposed Resolution Would Allow Random School Drug Searches

EDITORS NOTE: This article was taken from the Amarillo Globe News.

by Jason Akst
Globe-News Staff Writer

The Drug Free Schools and Communities Advisory Board adopted a resolution Thursday advocating research into the possibility of establishing random, unannounced drug dog searches in Amarillo Independent School District.

State Sen. Bill Sarpalius, D-Amarillo, Dennis Bourne, assistant 47th district attorney and special prosecutor for the Panhandle Regional Narcotics Trafficking Task Force and Michael Mosier, Texas Department of Public Safety trooper, were on hand for the monthly meeting/news conference.

Gene Morrison, board chairman, said the proposed resolution signifies a strong commitment the community and schools have for fighting the war on drugs.

The resolution is a first step, he said, noting that technical, legal, financial and administrative questions had yet to be answered before the idea became reality.

"The generally accepted format includes enforcement personnel and school administrative personnel making unannounced searches of physical plant facilities utilizing trained 'drug dogs.' If the dog 'hits' on a locker, the number of the locker is simply noted by the enforcement officer and the matter is then turned over to school administrative personnel."

"The school involves additional assistance from law enforcement and prosecutors only when deemed necessary," Morrison said.

The plan did not specifically include other Amarillo or Canyon school districts, said Morrison, a former school teacher and executive vice president for CPEX Corp. Cooperation between school systems has been good, he said.

Sarpalius lauded the measure and traced Texas' strategies on fighting substance abuse since he entered office.

Sarpalius said when he began researching the problem, the director of the Department of Human Resources showed him pictures of a nine-year-old boy who had been beaten to death with a ball peen hammer.

"I thought: 'How in the world could anybody possibly do something like this?'"

The person who did it was intoxicated with both alcohol and drugs at the time, Sarpalius said he was told.

The 13th Congressional District hopeful said when he entered the state Legislature, Texas ranked 50th nationwide in funding to substance abuse programs and had no state facilities.

Eighty percent of both child and wife abuse cases, 65 percent of murder cases, 85 percent of drownings, 60 percent of rapes and 77 percent of overall crimes in Texas are alcohol and/or drug-related, Sarpalius said.

Bourne discussed criminal justice strategies for fighting the chemical dependency war and said Potter County offers no probation to convicted drug dealers.

Social Security Tips

by Terry J. Clements

Social Security benefits can be paid to many survivors of workers who die after having worked long enough in work covered by Social Security.

These survivors include the worker's unmarried children under 18, under 19 if a full-time high school student or over 18 if disabled before reaching 22; a parent caring for a child under 16 or disabled who gets benefits; a widow or widower 60 or older, or 50 or older if severely disabled; and dependent parents 62 or older.

In addition, a surviving divorced wife or husband can generally get the same benefits as a widow or widower if the marriage to the worker lasted 10 years or more.

A lump-sum payment of $255 can be made to the worker's eligible widow or widower, or, if none, to the worker's child entitled to benefits.

It is important for survivors to apply for benefits as soon as possible after the worker's death. This is especially important for widows and widowers under 65 because benefits cannot generally be paid before the month of application.

When applying, survivors should have their own and the worker's Social Security cards or a record of the numbers, birth certificates for any eligible children, marriage certificates for any eligible children, marriage certificate, proof of the worker's death, proof of age for the widow or widowers, and Form W-2 or self-employment tax return for the past year. Parents 62 or older will need to show they were dependent on the worker for their support.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor:

Throughout the presidential campaign I have read numerous letters to the editor of the area publications. A large number of the letters have been written to take shots at one particular candidate or the other. Still others have continued the ongoing practice of attaching labels in attempts to dissuade voters from deciding on a candidate. During the Presidential Debate of October 13, I watched with the great interest as the two candidates exchanged views on issues that are important to the citizens of our nation. The rhetoric on drugs, gun control, and patriotism (or the lack of) were not of primary concern in the final debate because both candidates seem to realize that their goals are basically similar in those areas. Each has spoken their mind on their differences in philosophy in dealing with these matters.

The difference in the final debate was the absolute polarization of priorities on what each man proposes as his agenda for his term in the White House. George Bush has proposed to continue the buildup of our defense forces and not raising taxes. He stated that we need several weapons systems so that as they are bargained away, we will still have adequate protection from the threat of Soviet aggression. This is an admirable proposal except for one thing, Mr. Bush has no plan to finance his military ideas. The defense buildup of the last eight years has, indeed, put America in the lead in negotiating for arms reduction. But, it has been done by building weapons with the sole intent of destroying them in the name of peace. This has led our nation into severe economic difficulties.

Mr. Dukakis has proposed to bring some of the monies that have been funneled into the defense buildup back into Hometown, USA. He is not advocating doing away with our national defense. He is advocating a balance so that families can own homes and rear families on one income if they choose. He is advocating care for the homeless, job training for the unemployed and under employed, economic development, opportunities for college educations, and bringing some of our tax dollars back to our communities rather than simply passing them along to our nations few defense contractors.

Child care has been a big issue in this election. Mr. Bush says to let the people choose the care they desire for their families. The problem is that under the existing economic conditions throughout much of the nation, the type of care most families desire is simply not affordable. The choice is there; the means are not. Mr. Dukakis has espoused the view that the government has an obligation to help provide the best care possible for the children of working mothers. I agree.

If your view of the role of government is to buy weapons so that we can destroy them after negotiations with foreign nations, then your choice should be that of Mr. Bush. However, if you want your tax dollars to come back to your home town where they can be used for things in your community, and where everyone can benefit from the more of the money earned in the area being returned to that area, then your choice is that of Mr. Dukakis. I want to see my tax dollars come home rather than go to a small few in faraway places. If that makes me liberal, I'll wear the label with no apologies and no excuses.

Sincerely,
Robert Cox

Dearest Barbara,

Enclosed is a letter with a P.S. that I wrote to Greta Smallwood after I read my Oct. 6, 1988 Tribune. If you find it appropriate please print it.

You're doing a super job and I've wanted to hug you and tell you that in person - just make such infrequent and short trips home with the grandbaby. I never get to see dear ones like you.

You're a gem. Thank you for keeping "our" newspaper.

Love,
Jeanette Day James

Dearest Greta:

You deserve millions of gifts and standing ovations for not only holding down the County Agent fort but for being - always - one of the most special and outstanding personalities in Matador. Oh, how lucky we all have been to have had your impact on our lives and open our small town eyes to the facts that there are other countries and other experiences beyond the Motley County horizon.

How fascinated I always was to watch you knit, listen to your wonderful accent and always wanting to ask you about your life before and during the war, but afraid I might touch on something so painful and personal that for once I kept my mouth shut...for fear that your ever present glorious smile might fade.

You will never know how much you influenced me. You were a wonderful wife and still are a wonderful mother and grandmother.

Your love and wisdom and heart that seemed to know no bitterness or unforgiveness instilled aspirations in me to be at least a little like you in your unpretentious goodness.

You should know, Greta Smallwood, that you touched a self-centered, rebellious, ornery little girl and you have touched and brightened a wonderful community and I love you sincerely and dearly.

Congratulations for a standing ovation, long over-due. Your sense of humor should have earned you a fortune but you saved it and gave it to us for free.

Love,
Jeanette Day James

P.S. I too miss my precious June Keltz's articles. I know how busy she must be, but I want her to know how I was a faithful reader and how many articles she wrote hung and still hang on our refrigerator. Barbara, keep up the excellent job you are doing with the Tribune. It's my life-line to my home and people I love so much.

Dear Friend,

EDITOR'S NOTE: This letter was written by Mary Kathleen Latham, for her Grandmother, Bessie Hibbets, after the death of a friend.

Dear Friend,

I realize now how these many years have gently slipped away. Now as we look back, through the mirrors of time, we see the youth that was so clearly thee, gone from our withering, old faces.

Not a moment of life's precious seconds did we ever spend in vain. I cherish them all, and would never change a thing.

The summers we spent running through the pastures of daisies, to the winters, sitting at the fire. They will be no more on your home on earth, but every-day in your mansion in heaven.

Though you are gone from your mortal body, your spirit thrives eternally with mine. For we are as one, just as before, from now until the end of time.

As others shed their tears of pain and sorrow, I sing a song of joy. For I alone know you are now closer to us each, than ever before

So, I bid you farewell, and I greet you hello, for in my heart they are the same. Some day my spirit will be joined with yours and we will dance forever in heaven.

The Lord is my strength and my shield; my heart trusted in him, and I am helped: therefore my heart greatly rejoiceth; and with my song will I praise him.

Coy Franks Featured In Texas Farmer Stockman

Editor's Note: The Soil Conservation Service had an article on Windstrips reducing wind erosion in the September Texas Farmer-Stockman. The article features Coy Franks of the Flomot area. Following is a part of this article.

they have already more than paid for themselves three times."

Franks planted his first windstrips in 1984. On one field with standard terraces, his strips cover terraces that are 38 to 40 feet wide. The width between the terraces runs from 180 to 220 feet wide spaced 250 to 260 feet apart.

Franks grows cotton and sorghum in 30-inch rows. He prefers the close spacing so the plants can cover the soil quickly to reduce evaporation.

"I like the way the lovegrass has eliminated my terrace maintenance. Every few years, we get a flood that causes the water to go over the top of our terraces. With the grass on the terraces, all it does is mash the grass down a little; but it does not require any plowing up of terraces after the rain."

The strips also give a slight increase in crop yields. He has seen very little decrease in yields in the rows next to the grass. If there is a decrease, it is negligible, he said.

"We have also seen a big increase in quail. They are all over the place."

Franks planted the grass with a Brillion grass drill after plowing and packing the land. He has gotten excellent results. This year, he fertilized the lovegrass to increase vigor.

The land with the standard terraces is considered Highly Erodible Land, so the 30 acres of lovegrass on this land are eligible to count as set-aside acreage. The remaining 20 acres are not HEL, so he may try to harvest grass seed off the parallel terraced land.

Franks is a director of the local Motley Soil and Water Conservation District, which promotes the use of windstrips, cover crops, range improvement and other conservation measures.

He is also no-tilling cotton behind grain sorghum on a farm in Floyd County. Since he has to drive his tractor back and forth between the two farms, no-till is saving him a lot of time and fuel.

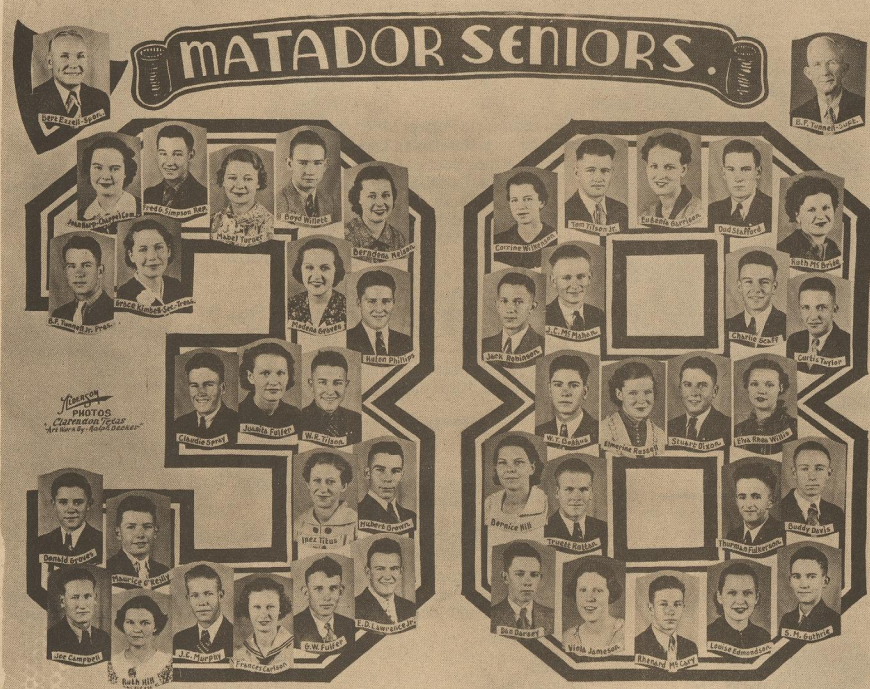

"The only problem with no-till is that sorghum is such a low income crop," Franks said. "Sorghum builds up organic matter and is good for the land. If it were more profitable, a lot more of us would be into no-till or conservation tillage."

James Gillespie, district conservationist for the USDA Soil Conservation Service at Matador, said that the Motley conservation district has about 107,000 acres of cropland left now after some 25,000 acres has gone into the Conservation Reserve Program. He estimates that in the last few years, farmers have planted windstrips on about 13,000 to 14,000 acres.

Since farmers need a conservation plan by December 1989 in order to remain eligible for USDA benefits, he thinks there will be a big increase in the use of windstrips this year, and in the next 2 years.

"Everyone who has tried windstrips likes them," Gillespie continued. "Five years from now, a lot of farmers out here will be wondering why they were not using them all the time."

Matador Class of 1938, will be celebrating their 50th Reunion this year.

Letters from Exes

In response to Frances Moss' note for Homecoming, Hazel had a Tech football schedule at the meeting of the Executive Committee of Ex-Students, Thursday, July 21, 1988 to set the date for 1988 Homecoming, and she suggested the date of Oct. 7, when Motley County was to play Paducah - and Tech was at Arkansas on Oct. 8. But that date was voted down, and the Oct. 28 date was chosen, with Tech having a home game Oct. 29, playing Texas - and Motley County plays Crowell Oct. 28.

(Sorry, Frances, I told 'em, but seems a Tech schedule wasn't enough. H.D.)

Dear Hazel,

Had planned to come this year, but having out-of-state guest that weekend. Have fun.

Tips For A Purr-Fectly Safe Halloween

There's one night each year when everyone has the chance to pretend to be something they're not. But for the Purr-tenders, adorable cats created by Hallmark Properties, disguises are an everyday affair.

The Purr-tenders learned about disguises in the Pick-A-Dilly Pet Shop, where they live. Since cats aren't selling well there, each of these unusual characters secretly dons a creative mask to become an unconventional dog, duck, mouse, bird or rabbit - in hopes of getting a home with a child.

Now the Purr-tenders have tapped their expertise at masquerading to devise Halloween safety tips for parents and children.

The Secret Is In The Costume
For the Purr-tenders and for trick-or-treaters, creating costumes is where the fun begins. Choose make-up or masks to create a favorite character. Masks should not obscure vision or restrict breathing. Likewise, hats, scarves and wigs should be secure so they won't slip over little eyes.

All costume materials should be flame-resistant. Avoid billowing skirts and sleeves that could catch fire when near candle-lit jack-o-lanterns. The length of costumes should allow easy movement, to avoid tripping. Shoes should be comfortable - high heels may seem ideal to complete an outfit, but could result in tired feet or even a twisted ankle.

Reflective tape should be a part of all costumes so that creatures don't disappear completely into the darkness. Make sure reflective tape is

SEEDS FROM THE SOWER

By Michael A. Guido
Metter, Georgia

Two little teardrops were floating down the river of life. One asked, "Who are you?"

"I'm the teardrop from a girl who loved a man and lost him," came the answer. "Who are you?"

"I'm the teardrop of the girl who got him," was the reply.

Isn't that just like life! You cry over things you don't have; but if you only knew it, you'd cry twice as much if you had them.

There are too many who are given to whining and pining. Not St. Paul. He said, "I have learned, in whatsoever state I am, therewith to be content."

How could he say that? He was God-sufficient. Have God and you have all.

Do you have God?

GFWC El Progreso Club Meets in Anson for Program on Texas Women

Arrival Announced

Thomas Chad Miller

Tom and Charla Miller of Plainview are proud to announce the arrival of a son, Thoms Chad, born Monday, October 24, 1988 at Lockney General Hospital at 4:14 p.m.

Chad weighed 8 pounds, 12 1/2 ounces and was 21 1/2 inches long.

Grandparents are Ted and Nelta Green of Matador and Betty Kemp of Roaring Springs. Great grandparents are Mrs. J.C.

Green Sr. of Matador, Mrs. Olene Edwards of Turkey and Mr. and Mrs. W.H. Dollar of Farwell.

Eleven members of GFWC El Progreso Club drove to Anson on October 13, to meet in the home of Mrs. Robert (JoAnn) Dickson, for a program on "Texas Women," given by Mrs. Dickson, after a bounteous covered dish luncheon. Decorations featured a harvest motif.

The meeting was called to order by Mrs. Joe (Loys) Campbell, president, and minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. Dale (JoEtt) Baumgardner. Mrs. Harold (Grace)

Campbell, co-hostess with Mrs. Dickson, made a report on the progress being made on the yearbooks. The president thanked the hostesses for the arrangements, and reminded the members of the fall workshop of Santa Rosa District on Oct. 15, in Paducah.

A new club song, titled "Clubwoman's Song" was introduced and learned by the members, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Frank (Lola) Pohl. The words and music were written June 1, 1988 by Dr. Ruth D. Treanor of Rossmoor Woman's Club.

Mrs. Baumgardner was program leader and presented Mrs. Dickson, who told of the many areas in which Texas women led in building community life. "Texas women put their hearts and souls into bricks and mortar and were inspired to preserve the traditions that made a town unique - to start museums and symphonies; to clean up their towns; to plant trees and shrubs and make parks; to erect monuments to local heroes." The Waco Woman's Club motto was, "If we rest, we rust."

The Texas Federation of Women's Clubs played a major role in the development of Texas communities after its organization in 1897, she said, and playing a major role in enhancing the lives of black Texans was the Texas Federation of Colored Women's Clubs, set up in 1905. Mexican-American women also were involved in similar activities in service organizations and religious groups.

Interesting was the saga of the part that Indian women played in Texas heritage. "The Plains Indian women were among Texas' earliest builders," Mrs. Dickson revealed. "They were the architects and construction workers who put together the family homes - the traditional tepee. They designed the tepee to withstand the strong prairie winds. The tepees were made of buffalo hide and could weigh as much as 300 pounds. The women working together could dismantle and pack them in as little as 30 minutes. The Indian women traveled with special work saddles and pulled the tepees behind them."

Libraries, hospitals, churches and synagogues, and schools, from kindergarten to college were other areas of development led by Texas women. "Women's clubs organized 85% of Texas libraries started before 1950. As early as 1860 the women had literacy societies to share books. From these societies emerged the free public libraries. The goal of TFWC was to have a free library in every county. In 1887 only six libraries existed. By 1907 the women's clubs had started 65 free libraries. Today, 230 of Texas' 254 counties have free public libraries.

"Women led in establishing museums and parks," Mrs. Dickson said, citing the Crosby County Pioneer Memorial Museum in Crosbyton, funded by Sarah Elizina Henson Lamar, who donated her furniture and other effects; and the park around the Alamo, paid for by Clara Driscoll when the Daughters of the Republic of Texas failed to raise money to buy the property for that purpose.

"Women were responsible for the bluebonnet's being named the state flower. The Colonial Dames of America led the debate in 1903 in the State Legislature. James Nance Garner, who would later become the Vice President of the United States, wanted the cactus to be the state flower."

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union and women's right to vote were other fields of endeavor led by women. "Cary Nation, who was the shock trooper of the temperance movement and best remembered for her tactic of going into saloons with a hatchet and smashing things, lived and worked in Texas for ten years and founded a home for wives of drunkards," Mrs. Dickson recounted.

"Until 1918, all Texans could vote - except 'idiots, imbeciles, aliens, the insane and WOMEN'" Mrs. Dickson said, noting that it took 50 years of hard work for Texas women to win the right to vote. "The first efforts were made in 1868. Eleanor Brackenridge of San Antonio set up the Texas Woman Suffrage Association in 1913 and the vote for women was finally ratified on June 28, 1919. Women in Texas first voted in 1920.

Mrs. Dickson cited other Texas women noted for outstanding achievements in literature, fashion, sports, entertainment, art and drama, and law, notable Carrie Marcus Neiman, who brought high fashion to Texas; the Olympic gold medalist and golf champion, Babe Didrickson Zaharias; Elisabeth Ney, renowned sculptor from Beavaria, who settled in Texas in 1872, and Electra Waggoner Biggs, among others. Also a Texan was Sarah T. Hughes, the federal judge who administered the oath of office to Lyndon B. Johnson aboard Air Force One after President Kennedy's assassination.

Margo Jones opened the first theater-in-the-round in the US, in Dallas; Tad Lucas was undisputed rodeo queen in America in the 1920's and 1930's; Oveta Culp Hobby organized and served as the Commanding Officer of the WACS (Woman's Army Corp) in World War II and later served in the cabinet of President Eisenhower and became publisher of the Houston Post in 1964; Henrietta King ran the famous King Ranch after her husband's death; Cornelia Adair ran the JA Ranch in the Texas Panhandle from 1885 to 1921; Bette Graham invented liquid paper to cover up typing errors...and the list goes on and on.

"True, you've come a long way, baby - BUT, Texas women, we still have a long way to go," Mrs. Dickson summarized.

A tour of the spacious (17-room) home to which Mr. and Mrs. Dickson have returned and which they share with her aunt, Mrs. Idalia Reid, was a highlight for the local clubwomen. The house, built sometime between 1905 and 1907 is filled with beautiful antique family heirlooms, and art objects from around the world, collected by Mrs. Dickson.

Mrs. A.J. Smith of Anson was a guest at the meeting, and attending from Matador were Mesdames E.A. (Dorothy) Day, Ted (Bailey) Elliott, Gene (Mary) Louder, J.E. (Marguerite) Edwards, W.D. (Vena) Lipscomb, John (Josephine) Hamilton and Douglas (Lila) Meador, in addition to Mmes. Loys Campbell, Grace Campbell, JoEtt Baumgardner and Lola Pohl.

EX School Days

by Earlyne Jameson

Homecoming is a word that relates to happiness, memories and friends. However, I have mixed emotions about the prefix EX before any word as in EX-student, EX-wife, EX-husband and even words that begin with EX such as....

EXercise.....it is something I don't make a habit of doing. I look at my bicycle that hasn't been "untracted" for days and think of my school days when this was the student's chief mode of transportation to and from school, to picnics, parties and visiting friends. We even had a Bicycle Club! We were so proud of all the accessories and pretty designs adorning those two wheels. One boy would ride his bicycle up and down steps, jump curbs and sail through the air while glued to the seat with the greatest of ease. Rather than us appreciating these professional bicycle acts that we now see on T.V., we would think of the bicycle tires he had to replace every two weeks!

EXamination.....I don't like physical, oral or written ones! A boy who sat by me in an MHS English class slept through the class and then copied from my paper when we had a written EXam. This was one of my better subjects, but I can assure you, no one copied from my Algebra papers, because I had difficulty just knowing where the brackets were placed!

EXacting....Reminds me of a teacher's spouse who made severe demands of students when staying in the MHS Study Hall, because of the teacher shortage during World War II. She was very liberal with her demerit giving. If you got ten of them within a six week period, you were EXpelled (another one of those words!) from school. I doubt if the younger generation know what a demerit is!

One afternoon, a boy with a "crier" from a doll was having fun playing with this while pretending to study. We girls were really amused with his caper and were given three demerits for unnecessary giggling. The boy, being the gallant one, admitted he was the cause of our giggling. She gave him five demerits and our three remained on our records!

EXcess.....It is always too much of the wrong thing for me. When I have the nerve to look at my reflection in the mirror, the facial creases formed by time and sun discourage me when I have seen an EX-classmate that day looking so youthful and pretty. She says she hasn't had plastic surgery, she uses Dove soap. I even try positive thinking, "My wrinkles are laugh lines," but it doesn't help my outlook. I look at my hair and think, "I should have used Suave as T.V. commercial advocates for those returning to Homecoming looking beautiful.

EXceed.....I think of a speeding ticket. This would not be used when referring to me. It certainly does when remembering one of my ex-classmates. He EXcelled in MHS, college and continues to help his fellowman. He meets with senators, representatives and other VIPs working for worthwhile causes and serves on state and national boards. Yet, when by chance I see him, he is still the same unpretentious person with whom I attended school.

I can think of a lot of other EX words I don't care for, but when attending Homecoming, I'll think of the happy days at MHS and think of words like EXciting, EXhilarating and EXultant and have a good time. Hope you do too!
