Small Towns Are Worth Saving

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article was taken from the Amarillo Daily News, February 28 edition. This article was a letter to the editor and his view on the good of small towns.

A sad thing is happening in the Panhandle of Texas. Many of its small rural communities and towns are dying. Not long ago, the small community was revered and respected. People looked upon small towns as places of opportunity and promise. Now they are considered dull and obsolete.

I like a small town. Most of what I know about life and people I learned in a small town. I learned that in a small town everyone has a responsibility to see that the town functions - time, money and interest are required by every citizen.

Even though I weighed 160 pounds and was an average athlete there was a place for me on the football team, basketball team and the track team. I was needed to fillout the cast in the junior/senior play. There was an opportunity given to me to compete in the speech contest. There was room for me and any other student who was willing to make the effort. It was provided in a small town school.

My family has status and position in a small town - so does every other family in town. Each family is known for how hard it works, where it goes to church and how its members behave.

Our local doctor, teacher, preacher, carpenter, farmer and banker not only served the family, they also played "42" in our home or in their home on weekends. When I was a child growing up, these people were our close friends and we cared a great deal for one another. They were all members of a small town.

There is little crime in a small town (everyone knows who did it), not much hunger in a small town (people share what they have) and not much failure in the local school (the classes are small enough that the teachers get around to each student everyday).

Are small towns without value, obsolete, financially inefficient and dull? Should they be required to close down because their population is too small? Maybe we should look again. Maybe the "quality of life" is not in the number of restaurants, theaters and other amusements a city can offer. Maybe "quality of life" is found in the quality of relationships people have with one another. It could be found in the opportunities a town affords its citizens. Quality is knowing that I am somebody who everybody in town knows. It's the feeling of responsibility that I have toward my community.

Smalltowns provide an environment for all of this.

Should we allow big government, big business and social planners to squeeze us into density, high population areas? It makes it much easier to control us and to make big profits off of us. How high is the "quality of life" in a metropolplex?

It seems to me we should say, "Mr. Lawmaker, if you want to stay in office, make laws that support smalltowns, not laws that require them to die."

"Mr. Big Businessman, if you want to stay in business, see that your business serves the people in small towns; they are not to be ignored."

"Mr. Citizen, while your community has responsibilities to you, you also have responsibilities to your community. If you want to serve you, you must also serve it."

I hope small towns survive, because I would like to grow old in a smalltown.

County Historical Commission Schedules Open Meeting

An open meeting of the County Historical Commission is called by the chairman for March 13 at 9:30 in the Motley County Courthouse. County Commissioners, Barbara Jameson, Gary Lancaster, LaVoc Thacker, Lucretia Campbell, Opal Pipkin, Eugene Watson, Grace Campbell and Chairman Marisue Potts. Those not wishing to be an active member of this commission should contact the judge before this meeting.

A special invitation to attend this meeting is hereby given to the members of the museum committee: Charley Johnson, Glenn Woodruff, Hazel Donovan, Wynona Gilbreath, Josephine Hamilton, Eleanor Traweck, Magdalena Carlson, Frances Guerrero, Judy Cooper, Otho Calloway, John Stevens, Ed D. BBB Warns Against Chain Letter Fraud

The BBB of the South Plains advises consumers to exercise CAUTION in getting involved with a new pyramid scheme entitled 24 Hour Madness Dash for Cash. From the number of phone calls received by the BBB, Postal Inspector and police, it is evident that an "epidemic" of this quasi chain letter has hit the South Plains. In this particular version, participants use money orders as the basis of exchange. Local businesses selling money orders report a great volume of business due to this activity. Based on previous experience with this type of scam, the person at the top of the ladder (the one who started it) gets all the cash and there comes a time when those involved reach what is termed "the saturation point" (this happens when there are no more people to ask to participate). It is mathematically impossible for everyone to make a lot of money with this kind of get-rich-quick scheme.

The U.S. Postal Service states that as long as the mail service is not used for ANY part of the promotion, it would not be considered a chain letter; however the P.O. is extremely interested in knowing if the mails are used in this scheme. If people's names and addresses show up as participants on a letter, they can be tracked down by the Postal authorities if an investigation is started.

County Big Tree Contest In Progress

Nominations for the biggest trees in Motley County are being sought by Motley County Historical Commission. Deadline for the contest is May 1, 1989. The county winners may qualify for State Champion of the Texas Forest Service.

Although the dimensions of five species, Mesquite, Cottonwood, Elm, Hackberry, and Pecan, are sought, the nominations need not stop with those in particular. Information on any exceptionally large tree, unusual type for this area, or tree with an interesting history will be accepted.

Winning trees will be a part of the 1990 Arbor Day ceremony with the possibility of a local tour of winners.

In 1987 and 1988 Homer Hughes of Roaring Springs held the title for the biggest Bigelow Oak which was located in Dickens County. It measured 83 inches in circumference, 40 feet tall, and with a crown spread of 44 feet. So it is possible to have state winners from this region, but first, one must get out and measure those trees!

Entry blanks included the method of measuring may be picked up at the Motley County Library or the Motley County Tribune office.

signed up and 15 were needed to hold the classes. Only 8 attended the first three classes.

Senior Citizens Report

by Iris Blevins

This has been a busy week for the Senior Citizens and Monday the bus went to Floydada with ten people riding. The Variety Store, the Studio and The Cleaners caught everyone of us. Daisy visited a sister in the hospital and the others visited friends in the home.

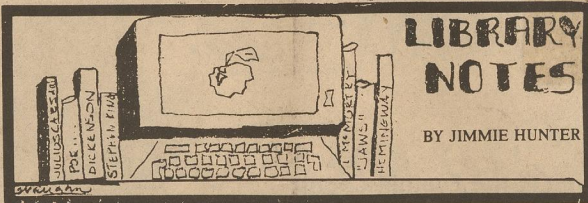

Tuesday was our regular luncheon day and we had thirty people sign the register. We had a table full of the best food. We had four visitors and sent one lunch out. Table grace was given by Minister Roy Eason.

We thank Earlyne for bringing the papers and pamphlets of the Heart Association by for our group.

We thank Carol King Green for the huge couch that she gave to the center and we now have it sitting in the center. We invite you to have lunch with us when you are here on luncheon day.

The bus made its regular run to Plainview with ten people riding on Thursday. It was a nice day for shopping and everyone did their share of that.

Friday, Norabell and Bill opened the doors to the Senior Citizens Building at 2:00 p.m. for our regular visitation and game evening and we had twelve people to come play 84. I can't think of a nicer way to use your spare time with your friends, and you are always welcome.

There was a smile on all our faces Tuesday morning, February 28th, when we saw Kala Minkley had come to the Library to see her friends, Chantry Meyer, Shea Rose, Derrick Cruse, Skylar Clifton, Courtney Hayes, Cole Grundy, Brittany Donaldson, Zack Daniel, JoBeth Campbell, Sherri Thomas, Justin Moore, Rachael Smith, and attend Library School. Kala was one of the first children to sign up for Library School when we started meeting, and was always present with a smile on her face and ready to participate in any activity until they moved away. It's always good to visit with former friends. The children enjoyed learning some new songs with Lola Pohl and Winifred Lee, and seeing two Walt Disney Films, In Dutch and The Fox And The Hound: a Lesson in Caution. They finished the paper cup wind sock that Winifred Lee had brought with colored suckers to match the streamers. If anyone hung them outside, I am afraid they blew right out of the country in the high winds we had last week.

The next best thing to seeing old friends, is making new ones. We were all delighted with Gil Casados of Corrales, N.M., who walked into the Library Friday morning, and quietly looked at the mural while we finished what we were doing. When I asked, "Did you come in to see our mural?" he replied, "Not really, my wife was raised here and she and our children got to visit last year, but I was called away on a business trip and have never gotten to visit Matador." His wife is the former Melba Webb, daughter of Buck and Nellie Webb, and when we had called her from Alabama the night before, she had suggested that instead of coming through Amarillo as he usually did, he might come to Matador. I believe he had come through Spur and Roaring Springs, that he had heard Melba and her family talk about so much. I took him to the Court House and left him talking with Lucretia and Roberta while I talked with Judge Whitaker. When I returned, he had notes to his family, written by Lucretia Campbell and Justice of the Peace Gertrude Smith. Mrs. Campbell loaned us the key to the Jail House Museum and he was delighted to tour the building where Melba's uncle, Ray Webb, had been the jailer. When we returned to the library, Earline Vaughn remembered that Nell Berryman was Ray's daughter, so Gil called her and the last time we saw him he was headed to City Hall for a visit. I am sure he returned to Albuquerque with warm memories of all the friendly people he met in Matador.

Thank you, thank you, thank you to Beverly Vinson for keeping the library all day Friday while I was in Lubbock and Bessie had the flu.

Daisy Smith for the donation of books. Mrs. Lipharm for the copies of Reader's Digest.

Glenn Woodruff for back issues of many magazines.

Monte Louder for taking all the books off three double-faced shelves.

Billy and Dean Osborn, Jim Meador and Bill Smallwood for moving the emptied shelves about two feet forward.

Jimmy Smith for helping move those same shelves two inches to the North, after I noticed they were out of line with the two front shelves.

Barbara B. Jameson, Joan Patton, and Earline Vaughn for the interesting display of candle holders that replaced the airplane models of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Boehme and double that for Wilda Dixon who completed our Annual Report and Application for membership in West Texas Library System and to Mrs. Joyce Archer who puts us out of the Sesquicentennial Cookbook selling business and paid a Lifetime Membership to Friends of the Library!

Roaring Springs Senior Citizens Report

The Roaring Springs Senior Citizens met on Thursday, March 2 with nineteen present.

In the absence of the President, Mr. Bethard, who took his wife, Eugenia for a Dr. appointment in Lubbock, Vice President, Ossie Lee Brown presided. She presented a $45 check donation, from the Roaring Springs 4-H Club, who share the use of the building for monthly meetings.

We sang Happy Birthday to Eva Mitchell. Hattie Marshall also had a March birthday, but she is in a nursing home in Lubbock. Then our theme song, "The More We Get Together" was sung before J.D. Mitchell led a prayer of thanks. A bountiful noon lunch was enjoyed by all.

After which, Ossie Lee called the meeting to order for old business and new business.

Motion was made by Odessa Mullins that we hold a pancake supper, Saturday, April 15 and invite everybody in the county to come see us, beginning at 5:30 p.m. A donation of $3 per plate was suggested. Motion was seconded by Beth Hinson. Motion passed. Proceeds to be used to pay city, electricity and propane bills.

Mrs. Brown presented a program on SPAG and the things available to Senior Citizens through it. The bus is available to Roaring Springs Citizens every Wednesday and Monday if you have a Dr. appointment in Lubbock. The bus usually goes to Crosbyton on Wednesday. The driver, Mary Ann, will take your prescriptions and get them filled either time. You may send by her for other things needed. The bus is also available to take you to pay your monthly bills and get groceries. Call 347-2219 in Matador or Ora Stoncifer, 348-7944, if possible two days before you want service.

READER'S COLUMN

The Way It Was

by Emmett Jenkins

During the days of the great Depression, from about 1931 to 1937, times were about as hard as they could get, without people starving.

1934 was a complete crop failure. The farmers had no income whatever from the fields. They did not raise enough feed for the chickens.

People were desperate for money. Chicken stealing got to be so common and on such a large scale, that the Legislature passed a law, making chicken stealing a Penitentiary offense. I knew of one man who went to the Pen, for breaking that law.

Bank robbing was on the increase and one didn't know where they would hit, next.

That was in the days of Clyde Barrow and Bonnie Parker.

A man by the name of Luke Trammell was one of the desperados of the time. It was said there was some connection to Bonnie and Clyde.

I don't know why Luke came to this part of the country.

I was working in the old City Barber Shop at that time. Henry Pipkin was the J.P. and it seems like the Barber Shop was the meeting place for all the lawmen. They had information that Trammell was in the vicinity.

The long time lawman Ed Russell, the local sheriff, Ed Skinner, Johnny Koonsman from Dickens County, The Sheriff from Floyd County and Texas Rangers were in the group that congregated in the Barber Shop.

We knew something was up but did not know what it was at that time.

After awhile they all headed East, where they met up with the Cottle County Sheriff, A.A. Payne, and officers from other areas.

They met Luke, this side of Paducah, coming west and the Chase was on. Luke was driving a V8 Ford, which was one of the fastest cars on the road, at that time. (That was what Bonnie and Clyde always stole and drove).

Ed Russell, with his son, John, driving, were leading the chase. There was a lot of shooting, but they were out of range. Mr. Russell kept telling John to "move up" and get closer, getting in range, the Russell car caught a bullet through the radiator. After the loss of the coolant, the car got too hot to run, and they were out of the chase. The other officers took over.

Trammell seeing that he was being overtaken. He veered south and crashed through a five wire fence, about a mile east of the Tongue River bridge. He took out about fifty yards of the fence as he went through. In a mile or so he came to rough country, and slowed the car enough so he could step out and turned the car loose, down a hill. It came to rest, spanning a ten foot gully, wheels up, he headed south and found a Swenson Line Camp. He stole a car and got away. He was later caught somewhere down state.

After going out, and looking at the car, I could not understand what the car hit, that made it land across that gully, but seeing was believing.

That created a lot of excitement and made us forget our empty pockets and worn out shoes.

The Bullet hole was close to the top of the radiator on the passenger side of the Russell Dodge a foot higher and it could have been a fatal shot.

In later years, Mr. Russell visited often in the Barber Shop. He took great pleasure in telling his experiences. I wish I could remember all that he said.

One story he told was about an old time cowhand and Matador Wagon Boss, John Smith.

John's wife, Minnie, was a very religious person. John was a man who was prone to swearing. Mrs. Smith had been talking to John and wanting him to mend his ways. Finally, he promised to do better.

John had brought a new Model T Ford, one day he was trying to crank the Ford. He cranked and cranked until he was hot, tired and out of sorts. He threw his hat to the ground and "cussed a blue streak."

About that time his wife came up. She said, "now John, you know what you promised me." I know Minnie, but that was before we got this d--- Jinty.

In the early days, Ed Russell was a cook for the Matador Wagon.

A.A. Payne, longtime sheriff of Cottle County was an outstanding officer of his day. He was a big man.

One day he got word that a wanted man was headed for Paducah. Somehow, Payne stopped him and stepped up the car. The man saw his Sheriff Badge, and went for his gun. Payne reached and grabbed the man, gun and all, dragged him out of the car and to jail.

At another time, a notorious bootlegger, made threats in public that he was going to kill Payne, on sight, of course Payne was informed and was ready. They met in the clerks office in the courthouse and Payne beat him to the draw.

In the old days there was a lot of interest in elections, especially in the sheriff's race.

In the twenties the largest crowd of the year, was in town on Election night.

Ed Russell was Sheriff from 1910 to 1922. There was a lot of opposition to him. Not because he was not a good officer, but because he had held the office too long.

In 1922 Claud Warren became his opponent and in July Primary Election, he won.

In 1924, the Russell backers prevailed on Mr. Russell to run again. The race created friction in the county. Two factions, the Russells and the anti-Russells. Neighbors would not speak to neighbors. There were fist fights and arguments.

On election night, Mr. Warren appointed extra deputies to keep the peace.

Even the town was divided. The Russell supporters on the south end of the town and the Warren supporters on the north. The street that runs between the courthouse and post office, running east and west, was the dividing line.

Each had their own election blackboards to keep up with the returns from each precinct, as they came in.

One blackboard was located about where the old Rans Moore grocery store was and the one on the north was located where the old Sheats Hardware was.

It was a hot July night, but many men were wearing coats, primarily to hide the guns.

One prominent man in the community and a Russell supporter showed up on the north side. I never did know exactly what he did but he created a disturbance of some kind. One of the appointed deputies whacked him over the head and took him to jail.

It was said, had there been a shot fired, there might have been a dozen men killed.

Claud Warren won the election but it took years for the enmity and hard feelings to die down, between the two factions.

This signifies the vast difference in attitudes toward politics then and the way people feel today.

That was "The way it was."

NEW GOLF SEASON

Hole-In-One

On Sunday, February 26, James Moss had a hole-in-one on No. 3. Witnessing the play were Frances, Laverne and Frank Price. It was James' first hole-in-one and quite a thrill. Weather was real cold at the start of play, but warmed up.

Golf Luncheon

Thursday, March 2 the Ladies Golf Association met at The Dream Cafe in Roaring Springs for the opening of the golfing season. LaVoe presided at the business meeting. Dues were paid and play sheets were handed out. These were compiled by Joyce Smith on her new computer. She is really having fun with this machine - with programming sent from Lubbock by Hoyle Moss - and even a bridge hand from a friend in New York. And she is going to do our tournaments throughout the season. Thanks Joyce!

Enjoying the lunch were LaVoe Thacker, Louise Barton, Geneva Wilson, Leona Terry, Vida Elkins, Frances Moss, Loys Campbell, Dorothy Day and Olivia Barton. Six members played golf, Loys, Dorothy and Olivia didn't play.

Through March, play will start at 1:00 p.m. on Thursdays, weather permitting.

Babe Zaharis Tournament is scheduled for Sunday, April 23, weather permitting. All money is donated to American Cancer Society.

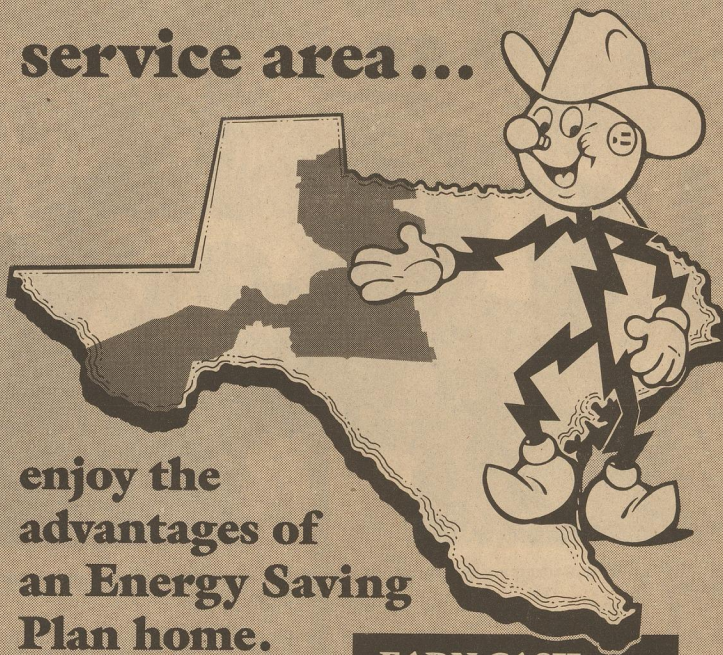

Judy Barber has thoroughly cleaned the kitchen at the club house, it looks good, and ready for someone to prepare and serve meals to the golfers.

Dudley Barber has worked all winter, planting trees on the course, building and improving cart roads, pipes put in to drain water in special places.

New golf carts for Geneva, a red one, and Louise, a blue one. Rumor that one of the guys has also bought one.

Praise The Lord!

El Progreso Club Entertains Gentlemen and Guests

El Progreso Club met Thursday evening, February 16, in the First United Methodist church for their annual Gentlemen's evening. As the guests entered the foyer of the church they were greeted by a large poster showing a santo teasing in their minds as to what the program would be. The group gathered in the sanctuary to enjoy music on the organ by Mrs. Frank (Lola) Pohl. Club President, Mrs. Joe (Loys) Campbell welcomed all and asked Furman Vinson to invoke the blessing.

After a delightful buffet meal in the Fellowship hall of the church, the club president thanked the food committee composed of Mrs. Bill (Judine) McCaghren, Mrs. Dale (JoEtta) Bumgardner and Mrs. Bob (Nell) Clem; also the decoration committee, Mrs. Furman (Beverly) Vinson, Mrs. J.E. (Marge) Edwards and Mrs. Frank (Lola) Pohl. She also welcomed out-of-town guests, Mr. and Mrs. Gary Weaks of Silverton, Mr. Harry Hamilton of Lubbock, Mr. Tom Edwards and Mr. and Mrs. Steve Stevens of Dallas. Mrs. Campbell presented Mrs. Douglas (Lila) Meador who was leader for the evening. Mrs. Meador, using the caption heading in the program book "In 1970, there were no women working as saint-makers. Twelve years later four women were referring to themselves as santeras and were placing their creations in competition with the men", introduced Dr. Joanne Darsey Stevens stating, "the program would be unique, interesting, entertaining and informative, given by a multi-talented young woman who lives in Dallas, but was born and reared in Matador."

Mrs. Meador told of the prominent school activities and scholastic endeavors Dr. Stevens had attained relating her University experience, graduating from Texas Tech with a B.S. in English and history. She taught school in Midland for six years, married Steve Stevens while there, later moving to San Angelo where she taught for seven years. While there she attended Angelo State and received her Master of Arts degree with her thesis titled: "Fort Concho: Guardian of the Conchos from 1867 to 1874." Ten years ago they moved to Dallas and continues in the League as a Retainer. She began studying for her doctorate at the University of Texas in North Dallas and wrote her dissertation on "Santos by 20th Century Santeras: A Continuation of a Traditional Art Form," receiving her Doctor of Philosophy degree in History of Art.

The group adjourned to the church sanctuary where slides were shown in conjunction with the most informative talk on the santos. Dr. Stevens first defined "santo" stating it refers to the representation of saints and holy personages whenever they are carved wooden statues or painted wooden panels. The panels usually were of hand-hewn pine and specifically known as "retablos." The sculptures were usually carved of soft cottonwood roots and were known as "bultos." The materials were locally found in the area of northern New Mexico and southern Colorado. The creators of these works were known as "santeras" which means an image or saint maker. These men held a highly respected position within their communities.

The reason this artform developed stems from the days of the conquistadores when the Spanish expeditions ventured into the North American continent. The Spanish Crown wanted not only the wealth of the area but also to protect her possessions from invasion by other countries. The Crown sent families, missionaries and soldiers to establish colonies. Among their possessions were sacred images in the form of illustrated books and Bible, paintings and santuary. Art had long been important in conveying the ideas of Catholicism. By the 18th century the Spanish began losing interest in New Mexico for various reasons. Supplies arrived at irregular intervals and were never enough to satisfy the needs of the colonists. This was desperately needed by the devout Franciscans and this is where the earliest of the santo were made, out of necessity.

The subject matter for santero art was determined by the saints of the Franciscans. The crucifix of St. Anthony and the young St. Joseph were favorites while the virgin Mary is represented in the santero art with Our Lady of Sorrows and Our Lady of Guadalupe being those most seen. The first artworks created in New Mexico, other than peices by Native Americans, were large paintings on tanned deer, elk and buffalo hides.

The high point of the art of New Mexican imagemaking is referred to as the Classical Period encompassing the works crafted between 1820 and 1860. One figure enjoyed was Saint Isidore the Farmer (San Ysidro Labrador), patron of farmers, protector against drought and hope for abundant crops.

Each santero had his own characteristic artform giving individuality to each one that carved. After Americans came to New Mexico in 1846 and the boost in trade over the Santa Fe trail increased, the market for locally designed santos diminished. Cheap prints, Currier and Ives engravings and lithographs were imported and soon took the place of locally handcrafted works of art. For several more years the santeras continued to work in their rural areas as the newer churches needed religious artworks.

The most recent revival came in the 1970's when native New Mexicans began to carve the figures and to paint the panels representing holy images of their faith and their heritage. Nothing has been as great a departure from tradition as the entrance of women into the realm of santero art. To show the recognition and acceptance women have attained, one of the current santeras won the grand prize at the Spanish Market in Santa Fe in 1985.

Mrs. Campbell thanked Dr. Stevens and presented her a beautifully decorated basket made by Mrs. E.A. (Dorothy) Day as a token of the club's appreciation for her informative and interesting program.
