M., Amarillo, Big Spring, El Paso, Fort Worth, Texas and Tulsa, Okla.

These allotments are from a separate portion of the public works fund from that for municipal projects.

Asked if the department intended to concentrate efforts in the East Texas field, Ickes said "the chief offenders seem to be in that pool." He said insofar as Washington is informed no suits had been filed to enforce the government from enforcing oil regulations but that there were numerous threats and rumors of threats in oil circles that suits would be filed.

Enforcement in the field will be under direction of A. D. Ryan, who left for Tyler by airplane. At the Interior Department Ryan declined to discuss the government's plan of attack upon the hot oil bootleggers. The number of men assigned to the state, their points of station and other information is being withheld. United States Attorneys have been instructed to prosecute upon evidence gathered by Ryan and his men.

Ryan will work under Louis R. Glavin, director of the division of investigation, who does not expect to visit the Texas oil field but will direct enforcement from Washington. Senator Tom Connally of Texas, author of the provision in the law under which the president issued his executive order, conferred with Glavin and urged that his agents in Texas be instructed to cooperate with the Texas Railroad Commission and the Attorney General of the state in their efforts to enforce the law regulating production of oil. Senator Connally also telegraphed C. V. Terrell.

Bread—

Insiders at the Agriculture Department will tell you behind their hands they picked a hot potato when they jumped on the bakers for profiteering in bread.

As a matter of fact our Agricultural Adjusters went off half-cocked.

That's the lowdown of the waning bread investigation.

A news service collected bread price "statistics" from some 16-odd cities. The story thus assembled hit Federal farm chiefs between the eyes over the breakfast table one morning. It shows the cost of a loaf of bread had leaped two and three cents.

Arriving at the office they plunged into action. The Department's publicity state let loose a hail against hush unwarranted gouging of the public.

Bingo! The war was on.

Henry Stude, president of the American Bakers' Association, taxed down to the Agriculture Department with blood in his eye.

"Stop this baseless innuendo," he demanded. "Show me one single case of profiteering."

Belatedly, departmental agents went out to check the situation.

Alas, they couldn't find any evidence of gouging, concerted or isolated. The Department itself had conceded rising flour prices and other costs warranted an increase of a cent and a half a loaf. Where bakers had boosted the ante by two or three cents they had increased the size of the loaf they sold.

Agricultural publicity headquarters promptly began moderating the tone of its press releases.

The top men wisely decided it would be bad business to further irritate the bakers.

Breadmakers have one problem in the biggest cities that doesn't appear in the rising commodity indexes.

That is racketeering.

Baking officials will point, among other places, to Chicago. In Caponstown bakers must pay their drivers $43 a week. A driver is able to get about $64 worth of bread a week.

All of which makes the overhead pretty steep.

What—

CHAPTER 18

MARY was glad to go home from the office early on that Monday night. The strain of heavy duties and conflicts of thoughts and problems that had seemed to multiply rapidly during the last two weeks, was fatiguing. From the moment she left the office, she relaxed her mind and body, determined that she would have a quiet, restful evening.

She sat on the upper deck of the ferry, outside, and watched the jeweled towers of the city recede into the distance against the deep twilight. Groups of girls chattered about her; men were slouched against the railing, smoking; a few girls sat in the dim corners with a hand tucked into a boy's arm, their murmuring voices broken at intervals by quick, gay laughter. A few children sat beside mothers, awed and impressed with the majesty of the world about them—not knowing why.

A few minutes—and the hurrying stream of people had flowed into the waiting train. One was fortunate to capture half of one of the hard, black leather seats. Which Mary did, only to have to relinquish it to a white-haired, parcel-laden woman who came and stood beside her. It seemed to Mary as if she always was the target for car-riding women with babies, elderly men and women and ripped passengers. Invariably, she felt obliged to offer her seat to one of these.

But the woman stopped at the first station and Mary sank into her place with a sigh of relief. The man who shared the seat looked at her as she sat down and smiled. Mary scorned his overture by opening her newspaper and becoming absorbed. She felt him watching her from the corner of his eye. He annoyed her, and remained on the train until they reached Paterson. She thought she had seen him before. No doubt, she had. Fellow commuters often become familiar strangers. He turned about as if to speak when they left the train, but Mary ignored him and hurried through the station.

Feeling a tempting confectioner's window, she stopped to buy some of Mom's favorite nougats, and caramels for the boys.

A bushel of preparation greeted her arrival at home. The dining table already was the best linen cloth and was centered with a bowl of bright button chrysanthemums. The family dinner was being served in the kitchen. Mom wore a nimbus of kid curlers and Bonnie a half-butted smock over her best "undies."

"Why the grand preparations?" Mary inquired. "Are we entertaining the mayor or someone of equal importance?"

"Are we?" Bonnie's statements were always emphatic questions, in the popular vernacular of the day. "Do hurry with your dinner, Mary, and clear up the dishes—there's a dear! Emily Bishop had invited would have afforded further protection, as the rooms became densely clouded with smoke. How different from last evening's party, Mary thought.

Bonnie liked to entertain. She was at her best then. She neither spared herself, nor those around her, nor the expense it involved. The grocery bills were almost doubled, sometimes, with Bonnie's extravagant parties. She resented economy, or any suggestion of it. Mary, therefore, humored her, paid the bills and seldom entertained.

When the last hilarious couple had gone, the last dish had been washed and put away and the house had been thrown open to air, Mom and Mary wearily climbed the stairs. While they had washed the dishes, Bonnie had donned her pajamas and was slumped into a chair—"I'm dead!" she declared. "A person never should have a thing to do before a party except to rest. Well, that the last time I'll take anyone's party for her at the last minute."

"I hope so!" was Mary's fervent thought, preparing for a hot bath, with one eye on the clock that jeered at her and pointed to three. She knew she wasn't dead; she was conscious of her aching body, to be dead.

"Did you have a good time?" she asked.

"Oh, good enough. What I want to meet that swell bunch you were with last night. What is Ramon Duchon like? Swanky name—"

"Oh, he's married. His wife is Willa Duchon, you know."

"Who cares about his wife?" Bonnie yawned. "Mary, you're an old-fashioned as a wimple. Can you imagine a real artist being serious about marriage?"

"I don't have to imagine Ramon Duchon. I know he is. He adores Willa. And he should—she is adorable. But I can't talk about them another minute, dear. I must get to sleep."

"I'm not so sleepy—just tired to death."

"But you didn't get up at six-thirty this morning, as I did."

"Good heavens, no. I wouldn't do that every morning for anything!"

What if she had to, Mary wondered, vaguely, and then was glad that Bonnie didn't have to.

Frazier came in the next day, casually. His manner was complacent.

"Sweet as ever," he told Mary, his eyes appraising her trim, blonde loveliness. "Why, my dear, I do believe you have grown more beautiful," reflecting that it was probably due to the unusual pleasure he had given her on Saturday evening. "I knew you would blossom into a gorgeous thing in the right atmosphere. I'm going to take you to dinner again tonight."

Mary smiled serenely, glad that she could be truthful. "I'm sorry, Martin, but I have another date for tonight."

"Oh, well, break it. Say you have to work. It can't be one-half as important as going with me."

"Oh, couldn't it?" her heart exulted, joyously. She said, "But I promised to go, and want to. There are lots of other days."

"Only this week. I'm going down to Florida—St. John's Park—for the races next week. May be gone for a month, dear. That's a long time to stay away from you, so I want to see you all I can this week. Tomorrow night, then?"

Consumption Of Oklahoma Beer 'Disappointing'

OKLAHOMA CITY, (UP)—For the first time since statehood, the old refrain of "draw one" resounded throughout Oklahoma.

The law required a five day protest period. That period ended at 8 a. m. Monday.

First Attempt At Being Hi-Jacker Costs Man's Life

HOUSTON, (UP)—The unclimbed body of W. N. Archie, 20, whose one belated attempt at banditry resulted in his death, was held by a local undertaking establishment.

Archie was slain by Patrolman Guy Thrash Saturday night after he held up the Mook Clothing store and was followed by Charlie Cash as he was making away with $225 loot seized in the holdup.

Cash pointed him out to Thrash, who gave pursuit. Archie attempted to enter an automobile driven by Dunbar Frazier, prominent business man who, unharmed by a shot fired by Archie, grappled with him. While Frazier fought the bandit with the assistance of Mrs. Frazier, the policeman arrived and killed him with a single shot.

The stolen money was found in Archie's pocket. A check-up at headquarters failed to reveal a previous record for the slain man.

ONE OF HISTORY'S GREATEST TRAGEDIES IS REVEALED

The tragedies of history are usually expressible in terms of things that did not happen. Publication of secret messages in the diplomatic files at Washington shows that Germany and Austria sought to make peace in January of 1918, and that their effort failed because they were unwilling to surrender to the entire American program.

Chancellor Hertling of Germany, It is recorded, told the Reichstag a fortnight after President Wilson had published his famous Fourteen Points that Germany could make peace on that program—with certain exceptions.

Germany, said the chancellor, could not agree to those points involving overseas colonies, evacuation of occupied territories and creation of a free Poland. The other points Germany could accept.

It is worth while glancing briefly at that program.

The Fourteen Points called for open peace covenants and an end of secret treaties, removal of trade barriers, freedom of the seas, disarmament, readjustment of colonial claims in the interest of the inhabitants of colonized territories, evacuation of all occupied French, Russian and Belgian territory, restoration of Alsace-Lorraine, a renunciation of Italian frontiers, autonomy for Austro-Hungarian minorities, evacuation of occupied territories in the Balkans, autonomy for minorities in Turkey, an independent Poland and the organization of a League of Nations.

Germany, then, was ready to accept most of these items—but the ones she was not ready to accept were in some ways the most important of all. At that point of time—the dawn of 1918—Germany's rulers felt it wiser to take everything on a last offensive rather than to surrender on those crucial points. Similarly, the Allied leaders preferred to go on with the war rather than to recede from their original demands.

Those decisions were a death sentence for hundreds of thousands of young men. They brought civilization measurably nearer to collapse. They paved the way for those injustices in the Versailles treaty which today are a tremendous menace to world peace and world stability.

SAFEGUARDING THE INVESTOR

A. A. Berle, Jr. a member of the Roosevelt "brain trust," outlines the current issue of the American Bankers Association Journal that investment bankers should form a sort of "committee of public safety" to scrutinize all investment banking proposals from the standpoint of public interest and to oppose all such transactions of which it did not approve.

In the same issue, a Massachusetts banker objects to the plan on the ground that while such a committee would have little trouble in passing on really high-grade issues or in rejecting issues of a frankly suspicious character, "it would have great difficulty in passing on the mass of securities be-

ECONOMIZE WITH QUALITY

The economic situation has nothing to do with your motor's need of efficient lubrication. Fortunately, you can have the best lubricant without penalty. The total cost of Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil is only one-fifth of a cent per mile, very little to pay to protect your car investment.

Conoco Germ Processed Oil is the highest grade motor oil obtainable... the paraffin base crude oil sources, the scientific skill and the most modern of refineries combine to make it so. Then the exclusive Conoco formula... Germ Process... is used to give it extra oiliness and penetrativeness no other oil has nor can have. A quart remains up in your motor and never drains away... the "Hidden Quart"... ready when you step on the starter each morning. Fill or add a quart at Red Triangle Stations.

CONOCO GERM PROCESSED (PARAFFIN BASE) MOTOR OIL. 20¢ MOTOR OIL—a good oil of high quality for its price. Made by Conoco but not Germ Processed. 30¢ a quart or 1¢ an economic emergency. 15¢ DEMAND OIL—for use when your motor wants more oil than it uses.

Coal— A bituminous coal code of sorts is now reposing on Industrial Administrator Johnson's desk. It represents about 28 per cent of the industry's production.

Hours— New York views the battle over maximum hours as NIRA's stiffest hurdle. They started something when they let the textile industry get away with a 40-hour week.

Confidence— The appointment of young Edward Stettinius helped NIRA's standing in New York. The naming of Alexander Sachs, John M. Harwood and W. W. Cumberland as assistants to General Johnson helped still more.

Codes— The bituminous coal code looks like one of the best at first glance but New Yorkers think it has a fatal defect. Mellon and Rockefeller interests were not consulted in its preparation.

Blanket— The funny part about it all is that a blanket code cannot be legally enforced. It is not authorized by the law. Everybody and his lawyer knows that.

Showers— country to Forsan, where it dwindled into a shower. Frank Ramsey, adjacent to the Ashley place, scarcely received a shower.

Hay— The textile industry is making hay while the sun still shines. The mills are running twenty-four hours a day and child labor is still going strong.

Resident Engineer To Be Stationed Here To Oversee Construction Upon Highway No. 9 With Federal Funds

Highway work, long and anxiously awaited in this county, is at last shaping up. District Highway Engineer W. French Monday informed County Judge H. R. Debenport that Mr. Savage would be sent here Wednesday from Abilene to be located here until road construction is completed.

Savage accompanied French here Monday. French told Judge Debenport that whatever part of the $20,000, 000 federal road grant to Texas was due Howard county would be spent on No. 9 north and south.

Unofficial estimates based on populations were that this county would be recipient of approximately $100,000.

Getting ready for a highway building campaign, the commissioners court Saturday awarded contract for 15,000 fence posts.

Burton Lingo and William Cameron & Co., Inc., submitting equally low bids, split the contract.

Meanwhile surveyors continue their work toward the Howard-Dawson county line on No. 9 north. The new route will follow the old until it reaches Fairview.

Continuing due north for a few hundred yards it veers to the northwest and will strike the county line 600 yards north of where a high tension power line now crosses.

The road is not absolutely straight but swings around to remain on the higher portion of country traversed.

Investigation. Linked With Crimes Hunsucker was believed by authorities to be directly linked in the deaths of Mosley and Jones, and Peabworth, with whom Hunsucker was indicted in the Olton robbery, is serving a prison sentence for the death of Bolin.

McCamant and his force of deputies were led to the outlaw's camp after a gun fight staged with them near Corona, N. M., Saturday night had led to the arrest of Doby Blankenship, believed to be a third member of the gang, at Tipton Well, seven miles from Ramon. Blankenship is being held here for further questioning by the Texas officers.

On approaching the campsite of the two men, the officers found themselves in the direct line of fire from the outlaw's guns.

Jones fell on the first exchange of shots and Hunsucker's death came soon afterwards. Stanton, seeing himself outnumbered, evaded the officers and escaped on foot.

Hunsucker's death and Stanton's arrest marked the end of a trail of blood across West Texas and eastern New Mexico which has seen the death of four peace officers and the robbing of one Texas bank and possibly a New Mexico bank.

The four officers, all killed while searching for the outlaws, were Deputy Sheriff Tom Jones of Carriozo, killed in Sunday's fight; John C. Mosley, sheriff of Swisher county, Texas, shot down in January of this year, and Harve Bolin, deputy sheriff of Hale county, Texas, fatally wounded a year ago on the Lee Peabworth ranch, 50 miles from Portales, N. M., and Joe Brown Rhome county, Texas deputy, in January when he took two men and a woman to his office for federal agents and the Railroad Commission and the Attorney General's Department, expressing belief that such co-operation and harmonious action can bring good results.

"I am striving to secure hearty co-operation between the federal authorities and the state authorities in bringing about effective and aggressive enforcement of the hot oil provision," said Senator Connally.

Swift action across new confidence in the administration's sincerity for efficiency and prepares the way for early stabilization of the oil industry, according to Russell B. Brown, counsel for the American Petroleum association of America.

A review of the East Texas oil situation compiled in New York points out that the wells operated in violation of proration have been so badly abused their paying production life is practically over.

It is estimated that 20,000,000 barrels of hot oil has been placed in storage at considerably less than the market price. This oil may not be shipped in interstate or foreign commerce, if it is possible for the government's agents to detect it.

Increased Industrial Activity With Record Drop In Business Failures Reported Over Texas For Past Week

By JOSEPH L. MYLER

United Press Staff Correspondent DALLAS (UP)—Business and industrial reporting agencies this week yielded with miscellaneous news from scores of Texas communities in telling the cheerful story of the state's return to prosperity.

Augmented payrolls, increased industrial activity, rising farm commodity prices and a record drop in business failures shared the week's spotlight with reports of new enterprises and new construction representing an aggregate investment of millions of dollars.

Reports to the Bureau of Business Research of the University of Texas indicated an increase in employment in June for the second consecutive month. Statistics from 910 reporting concerns showed on June 15 the number of workers on Texas payrolls exceeded the number reported for May 15 by 3.4 per cent. The gain over a year ago was 2.9 per cent.

The same agency disclosed there were fewer commercial failures in Texas last month than in any June since 1920. Total liabilities represented by June's 27 failures amounted to only $406,000, compared to $1,044,000 for the 56 failures in May.

The United States department of agriculture's Austin bureau presented figures which showed farm commodity prices in dizzy ascent during the period from May 15 to June 15. Wool, freed of the restraining ballast of overproduction in the past, shot upward 32.8 per cent from prices in mid-June a year ago. Oats climbed 100 per cent, wheat 87, cotton 89, barley 60. Only veal calves, hay, butterfat and eggs declined in price during the 30 days preceding June 15.

Distribution of merchandise in the Dallas wholesale and retail area registered continued gains during June, a summary of commercial and industrial reports by Dun and Bradstreet, Inc., disclosed. Industry likewise, paced by textiles, underwent further noticeable expansion, stimulated by rising commodity prices and increasing public confidence, the report stated.

Dallas bank clearings provided a statistical index corroborating the Dun and Bradstreet report. For the week ending July 12, they showed a gain of $1,955,476 over the same period a year ago, and a gain of $2,835,648 over the preceding week, according to the Dallas Clearing House Association. The week's clearings totaled $26,048,812. Dun and Bradstreet said business recovery was spreading to so-called luxury lines. The report stated: "Increases of 20 to 50 per cent in the sale of jewelry and new automobiles within the past 45 days are particularly significant, reflecting the recovery that has spread into even those lines which have been most affected by the depression."

Pacing all others in the climb upward was the textile industry in Texas, which last month recorded greater activity than in any June since 1927. More than seasonal expansion for the first six months of the year was indicated in an analysis of the industry prepared by Burt C. Blanton, Dallas consultant, industrial engineer. During June, Blanton pointed out, Texas textile mills operated at 82.6 per cent of their combined rated capacity, while in June a year ago they operated at only 50.8 per cent of capacity.

Comparative figures on total active spindle-hours showed June, 1933, was exceeded only once since 1924. In June, 1932, active spindle-hours in all Texas mills totaled 79,718,051, as compared to 39,970,474 a year ago and 61,871,540 in 1924. Only the 1927 figure, 84,342,776, was greater than for June this year.

"For the six-month period since January 1 Texas' mills showed a 35.2 per cent increase in active spindle-hours per spindle in place over the same period a year ago," Blanton said.

Virtually all of the 20-odd mills have increased employment numbers and wages.

Miscellaneous reports showed increased employment and activity in lumber mills, mounting rail traffic resulting in larger and heavier payrolls and a throng of new industrial and business enterprises, as gauged by charters granted by the state. During the past week the daily charter score as reported from Austin averaged around ten.

Unfilled orders at southern pine mills during June virtually doubled those of a year ago. The average per unit reported by the Southern Pine Mills association rose to $27,887 feet, as against 427,176 at the end of June, last year.

Reflecting the increase of rail traffic was the report of freight loadings on Texas lines of the Missouri Pacific, which rose during June to 25,747 cars from 14,674 in June, 1932.

Increasingly conspicuous in the daily news were reports of municipal bond issues, individually small in comparison to other sums in the headlines, but significant of increased public confidence.

Pirates Garner 32 Hits To Beat Brooklyn Twice

The scores were 14 to 2 and 7 to 0.

Bill Swift and Steve Swetonic not only joined in the slugging activities but pitched effective ball, each allowing seven hits. Swift's victory was his tenth of the season as compared to five defeats, while Swetonic hung up his seventh triumph in scoring the shut-out.

Brooklyn 100 000 001—3 7 2
Pittsburgh 002 030 09x—14 16 1

Reach for a Lucky for always Luckies Please!

I learned about "Toasting" from my husband

I used to think that "Toasting" was just an advertising phrase. But one day my husband explained to me what "Toasting" is—and what it does. Where he learned it all, I don't know, but I began to understand the difference in cigarettes. Now I find myself enjoying Luckies' mildness and fine taste with a new respect. But even more—since I am a woman quite sensitive to personal daintiness—and since my cigarette and my lips are so intimately related, I especially appreciate the comforting purity of "Toasting". Naturally, with me it's always "Luckies Please!"
