Roaring Springs Couple Found Slain

EDITOR'S NOTE: This article was taken in part from the LUBBOCK AVA-LANCHE JOURNAL.

City Secretary Anna Lee Wilson, 42, and her husband, Donald, 43, were found shot to death Thursday morning, November 30, in the Roaring Springs home. Justice of the Peace Gertrude Smith pronounced the couple dead at their Third Street residence shortly after 11:00 a.m. and reported Monday afternoon, December 4, that the autopsy report ruled the deaths a homicide and a suicide. Mrs. Smith said the bodies were found in the living room of the couple's home. Motley County Sheriff Alton Marshall said his office received a call about the deaths about 10:00 a.m. that morning. Deputy Sheriff, Clyde Clifton, discovered a .22-caliber rifle near the couple. Mrs. Wilson and her husband had been shot in the head. A Texas Ranger from Lubbock and investigators with the Floyd County District Attorney's Office were called to help investigate the deaths, Marshall said. Roaring Springs Mayor Eugene Watson said Mary Webb, City Councilwoman called the Wilson residence after Mrs. Wilson failed to appear for work. When no one answered, she sent Billy Green, City Water Manager, to her residence and he knocked on the door. When no one answered the door, Green checked the garage and found both vehicles at the residence but could find no sign of the Wilsons. He then telephoned the sheriff's department, Watson said.

"We're all in shock," said Roaring Springs Councilwoman Mary Webb. Donald Wilson was elected to a City Council position in 1989 and was laid off his job at Quail Pipe approximately two months ago, Mrs. Webb said. Mrs. Wilson was appointed as Roaring Springs City Secretary two years ago. "I had known him (Donald Wilson) the last year or so," Mrs. Webb said, adding that Wilson spent most of his time around city hall after being laid off. She said the Wilsons met while attending Texas Tech University. Mrs. Wilson was well-liked throughout the community, and is praised for her efforts the past two years as City Secretary.

Candidates file for County Elections

Joe E. Campbell has authorized the Motley County Tribune to announce that he has filed and is running for re-election as Motley County Treasurer, March 13, 1990. He stated, "I have been to two seminars at Texas A&M University, at College Station, during the past term of office, in order to be better educated to serve the people of Motley County, relating to the responsibilities and duties of being Treasurer." "I have served one full term as Treasurer. I want to take this opportunity to thank all of the people that have supported me in the past election, and ask for your continued support in the county election."

County Court or be transferred up to District Court. "I would appreciate your support and vote in the upcoming election." Judge David Cave of the 110th Judicial District is announcing his candidacy for District Judge for the upcoming March 13, Primary Election.

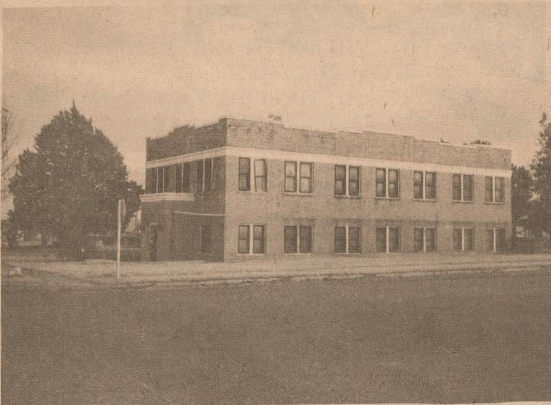

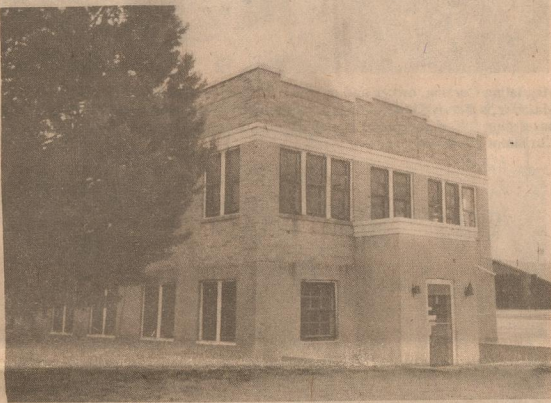

Lucretia (Estes) Campbell has announced recently her candidacy for the office of County and District Clerk for another term. She stated, "this past term has been one of continuing learning for all Clerks in the State. We were required to take sixteen hours of Seminar continuing Education, which I did this past year, and earned my Professional Certificate for this term."

"I consider it a privilege to have the opportunity to seek the office of County and District Clerk for Motley County again this coming primary election in March." "I will appreciate your vote and support in helping me win this election and hopefully I will be able to continue serving the citizens of Motley County in a fair and impartial way."

Bill Hand of Roaring Springs has authorized the Tribune to announce his intention to run for Commissioner Precinct 4 in the March 13 Primary Election. He stated, "If elected, I intend to do the job of Commissioner to the best of my ability for the people of Precinct 4. Your support and vote will be greatly appreciated."

Gertrude Smith, Justice of the Peace, has recently announced her intention to run for re-election for that position in the March 13 primary election. Fraiser Watson, Commissioner, Precinct 4, recently announced his intention to run for re-election of that position in the March 13 primary election.

ments, the Commissioners Court greatly reduced the high rendition rate and increased the low tax rate, thus receiving the same amount of money for local county expenses, but reducing the amount sent to the state treasury. The money saved under this system was sufficient to pay the interest and sinking fund on a bond issue. (There was "creative financing" even in 1920).

An election to vote on road bonds carried. As a result each commissioner was able to purchase, prorate for his precinct, heavy road machinery, and the county's first real road development began.

During his judgeship the Commissioners agreed to employ a County Agricultural agent in cooperation with Texas A&M College, a long term partnership that continues to this day, though threatened by a severe budget crunch in 88.

When the women of the county decided they required a County Home Demonstration Agent, the Commissioners balked at the added expenditure of twelve hundred dollars.

Mrs. Jack Luckett, a member of the committee, turned to Judge Glenn, and said, "Charlie, does Motley County have $1,200 in the bank?"

Judge Glenn answered, "Yes, Mrs. Luckett, we have that much."

Mrs. Luckett retorted with authority, "We want it."

And the good ladies got their Home Demonstration Agent.

Included in his duties of county judge, Glenn served as Ex-officio County School Superintendent. He was constantly on the road visiting different schools in the county, encouraging teachers, pupils, and parents to improve their schools in every

Since the Traweck Hospital was offered by the Hospital Board to a group of interested citizens as a potential museum, Glen Woodruff has promoted the idea unstintingly.

A tribute to early civic leaders of Motley County, including his grandfather Judge C.L. Glenn, has been the inspiration behind Glen Woodruff's push for a museum. "We need to honor the things they have accomplished," Woodruff said some months back on an inspection tour of the hospital building. "Surely, with some effort we can turn this building into a museum."

Besides small donations and some rather sizable amounts of money pledged, interested history buffs have offered, among other things, a blacksmith's anvil and bellows, an old timer's fiddle, a pioneer preacher's sermons, fashions from the Roaring Twenties and Dusty Thirties, a Schweitzer saddle, and cowboy paraphernalia.

Lack of interest by others, however, is beginning to take its toll as Woodruff and his steering committee decide whether or not to continue their pursuit, or admit defeat to the Hospital Board that so graciously gave them a shot at the building.

Seeking a chairman to direct those who have volunteered their time, money, and historical articles is an immediate necessity. Some have offered to clean up the building, others to paint; one to seek grants; another to furnish a room in honor of a family member. But without a coordinator, "A Boss," the idea dies.

Anyone with an interest in working on a county museum, and especially one with experience in administration, business, teaching, or directing others should contact Woodruff without delay.

Woodruff's interest in preserving the county's history stems from an appreciation of what men like his grandfather Glenn achieved down through the years.

Judge Glenn came to office during an important transitional period in the county's history. Though Motley County had always been excellent ranching country, during the 1890's farmers began to take up land and develop farms. The number of farmers had grown until they exceeded the number of ranchers. The farmers needed more and better roads to get their produce to market, desired quality schools to educate their children, and pushed for development of their communities.

Under the leadership of Judge Glenn, to get more money for such improve-

LIBRARY NOTES

BY JIMMIE HUNTER

Roy Moreno has volunteered to help anyone who doesn't know how to use our computer after school. I forgot to put that in the paper last week, but Roy has been in about 3:30 each afternoon, and when there was no one who needed his help at the computer, he has used his time to straighten the Easy book section, test the computer disks to find the ones that still work, and to file the disks in order again. It would be helpful if each of our computer users would take time to file the disks they use behind the proper heading - language arts, math, miscellaneous games, etc. If the young children or grown-ups need someone to get them started at the computer, come in after 3:30, and Roy will probably be here. Thank you, Roy.

Timmy Bowman, Clint Cooper, Brenda Gillespie, Brittany Perryman, Amanda Hurt, John Wesley Stevens, Tamara Wilson, Brittany Donaldson, Cole Grundy, Zack Daniels, Chantry Meyer, Charissa Conner, Jo Beth Campbell, Kitte and Cassie Campbell, Stachia Baxter, and Rondell Burge were present Tuesday, November 28th, to see two films from our Christmas packet, "What is Christmas" and "The Puppy's Amazing Rescue." We sang Christmas songs with Lola, played Farmer in the Dell; Head, Shoulders, Knees and Toes, with the help of Edna Ruth Green and Sarah Hurt, and Lori Campbell came in to help us with "Have You Ever Been a Fish on a Bright and Sunny Day." We certainly appreciate these mothers for their help, and thank Mrs. Bowman for bringing enough clothes hangers for everyone to hang up their coat. We missed Mrs. Lee, who was out of town, and Mrs. Beverly Darsey, who had planned to tell us a story with puppets, but was sick, and Brenda Cruse, whose father was having surgery. Mrs. Darsey will come and tell her story December 12, if all goes well. That will be the day after Christmas, and the mothers and I agreed that the one meeting would be enough for busy December.

Please come in for a closer look at the snow scene painted by Mrs. Lorene Lancaster. We certainly appreciate the Arts and Crafts Club keeping us supplied with a variety of art. Notice the lovely handcarved nativity scene from Africa that is a part of our Christmas decorations that Winifred Lee used in decorating our windows last week. I hope you will also enjoy my Amaryllis plant, a Christmas gift from my uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. John (Pat) Speer of Amarillo. It has shot up from 9 inches on November 8th to 32 inch on December 4th. It has two bloom stems and four blossoms on the one that is blooming now.

Heather Alexander from Dallas was the first to sign our Guest Book since the last accounting. The group that I was sorry to miss this time was Anita Hunter, Lisa Spear, Bob Jones, and Mary Ann Rogers from Lubbock who came by on their way home from a business trip to Paducah. Some of them own art work by Joe Taylor and were anxious to see his mural. Since Anita is my daughter, I would like to have met her associates, but Bessie Hibbets and Wilda Dixon made them welcome and gave them the grand tour of Motley County Library. One I am glad I didn't miss is Louise Johnson of Abilene, who came in to copy some papers for her mother, Mrs. Landrum, and asked how our literacy program was going. I had invited her to join our group, before I realized that she was the lady from Abilene who had written the letter telling of the joys of being a literacy tutor which we published last year. After looking at the books for sale, she volunteered to return that afternoon and sort through four boxes of books and arrange them for the book sale Friday and Saturday. She spent the whole afternoon with us, working away. We certainly appreciate guests like that! We also appreciate Michael and Gay Tibbets from Clarendon who came in Saturday and bought fifteen books from the sale tables.

I heard someone say on TV last week, "Extend your life - Volunteer." I think volunteering to help someone learn to read would be one of the most satisfying and stimulating ways to fill your time, or to crowd into the schedule that is already overflowing. If you are a competent reader, it is hard to realize how difficult it is to survive in our society, when you are not able to read street or highway signs, labels on food containers, directions on medicine bottles, or fill in an application blank for a job, or write checks, or open a bank account, or read the warning signs on highways - and that's just a few of the problems that face the 23,000,000 Americans who cannot read. If you would like to help, or if you know someone who needs help, please call 347-2488 or 347-2717 to learn more about it. LIVE LONGER - VOLUNTEER!

Recipes for Holiday Fun

Remember the excitement of the holidays of your childhood? Bright-colored ribbons and papers. The fragrances of flickering candles and fresh-cut pine. The sounds of laughter, carolers and bells. And especially the warm, delicious aromas of cinnamon, pumpkin and vanilla as pies, cakes and cookies were baked.

"Scratch baking is a special way to share the loving memories of traditional holiday celebrations with your children," says Howard Solganik, food consultant, father of two young children and spokesperson for Gold Medal flour.

Because children love to bake, the Betty Crocker Kitchens have developed this whimsical holiday cookie recipe. The tasty dough can be formed into candy canes, wreaths or other festive shapes.

Use your imagination. Then, finish your holiday table with beautiful homemade cookies you and your children made together.

For more recipes you and your children will enjoy preparing throughout the year, send for a copy of the "Alpha-Bakery Children's Cookbook." Send $1.00 (for postage and handling) to: Alpha-Bakery, Gold Medal Flour, P.O. Box 5401, Dept. 849, Minneapolis, MN 55460. (Offer expires June, 1990.)

A man had been arrested for stealing a dog. There was no concrete evidence against him, and the judge dismissed the case. But the man didn't seem to understand.

"It's all over," said the judge, "you can go."

"Thanks," said the man; "but do I have to give back the dog I stole?"

You can fool man, but you can't fool God. He knows you. Every moment, He knows where you are, what you're thinking, what you're saying, and what you're doing.

There's nowhere you can go to get away from God; nowhere to cover your sins. And some day you'll have to answer to God.

But forsake your sins and seek God on earth, and He'll forgive your sins and you'll see Him in heaven.

On December 4, 1989, Motley County P.T.O. met in the school gymnasium for a short business meeting followed by a Christmas program presented by the Kindergarten through Sixth grade classes.

Mrs. Hoyle's Kindergarten class and Mrs. Davis' first grade sang "Up on the Housetop" and "O Come Little Children", accompanied by Margaret Stanley on keyboard.

This was followed by "Must Be Santa" and "In a Manger" sung by Mrs. Thacker's second grade and Mrs. Turner's third grade. Accompanying the students on guitar was Billy Donaldson and on piano, Elaine Rissler.

Mr. Willmon's fourth grade students sang, "Silver Bells"; and Mrs. Parks' fifth graders sang "I'm Going to Lasso Santa Claus" with a special pantomime performance by Joe Mangram on guitar.

Mrs. Stephen's sixth grade concluded the program with Joseph Mohr's "Silent Night" which the students sang first in German, then in English, accompanied by Cara Franks on the piano.

After the program refreshments were served to a capacity crowd of parents, grandparents, students, and teachers.

The next P.T.O. meeting is scheduled for February 5 at 7:00 p.m. in conjunction with the opening of the P.T.O. Book Fair. The Fair will continue during school hours on February 6 and 7. President Burge requests that anyone who can help on either of those days to please contact her at 348-7961.

Exchange Program Seeks Volunteer Field Staff

The American Institute for Foreign Study Scholarship Foundation is looking for Local Coordinators to supervise foreign students in communities throughout the country. High school students from Spain, Japan, Brazil and other countries around the globe will be living with host families across the state on a program coordinated and supervised by the non-profit organization.

The Local Coordinator position provides an opportunity for flexible, part time work. Responsibilities include finding and selecting host families, serving as a liaison to schools, civic groups and local press, and organizing activities for host families and students during the program year. Training and support are provided by the national office and at regional meetings.

Local Coordinators receive financial compensation for every student placed and supervised, an opportunity to earn points for European travel, and the satisfaction of supporting a community-based movement to increase cross cultural understanding.

Anyone interested in becoming an AIFS Local Coordinator and setting up an exchange program in his or her community should call Lisa Brown at (800) 322-4678.

way possible. During his time in office, the Matador, Whiteflat, and Flomot schools added Vocational Agricultural and Home Economics teachers to their programs, helping educate young people in farm and home programs.

As a leader in civic improvement of the community, Glenn was a part of the Motley County Chamber of Commerce at Matador. He supported every program of the Chamber that worked for the improvement and growth of the county. One of the special projects he worked on was the Beautiful Yard Contest in Matador.

A booster of the Lee Highway which was to run from Washington, D.C. to the West Coast, Glenn successfully petitioned for the highway to come through Motley County.

After a six year tenure as judge, Glenn traded hats and to become Mayor of Matador. During that time the water and sewer systems were started and the Light Plant replaced with a light and power plant.

Tendering his resignation as mayor, Glenn was named Secretary of the Federal Land Bank, citing the opportunity to assist farmers in securing loans and financing of their farms at a low rate of interest was satisfying, indeed.

Though Glenn had left his native Georgia in 1895 as a middle-aged man of forty, he forged ahead in Texas as if he were a young buck. Settling his southern bride of seventeen years, Julia Braselton, and family in Whitt, Texas, Glenn bought and ran a Dry Goods Store for five years.

Then in 1900 with their eight children, the Glenns moved to Matador where he and partner Newt Gaines bought into the Matador Mercantile business with C.M. Currie. Glenn sold his interest to Jack Luckett in 1911 and moved the family to Plainview.

For seven years he operated a dairy and truck farm near Wayland College, where he was to serve as a trustee. In 1920 Mr. and Mrs. Glenn moved back to Matador and his political career began.

No matter how colorful it might have been, Judge Glenn never lived in the past. But as he lay on his death bed, pondering the current and world issues of 1938, Charlie Glenn remarked that he wished he could live to see how these present issues would resolve themselves.

"This," he said, "is a most interesting time in which to live."

Poinsettia Day Celebrated

Remember the Lord your God, for it is he who gives you power to get wealth; that he may confirm his covenant which he swore to your fathers, as it is today. Deut. 8:18

'Tis the season again. Time to bring out the holiday decorations and "deck the halls" with holly and poinsettias. The holiday season also brings Poinsettia Day, Dec. 12, to honor Dr. Joel Roberts Poinsett, the plant's namesake.

Poinsett, who was born March 2, 1799, in Charleston, S.C., introduced the plant to the United States after serving as U.S. ambassador to Mexico 1825-1829. While there, Poinsett became fascinated with the "flower of the holy night."

According to legend, it appeared at the feet of a poor Mexican boy who, having nothing for the altar on Christmas Eve, offered only his ardent prayers for the Christ child.

Although native to Mexico and some parts of Guatemala, the poinsettia now is grown in hothouses throughout the world. The actual flower of the plant is a small yellow blossom. It is the leaves, referred to as "bracts," that occur in red, white, pink and yellow forms, making them festive plants. ll

Buy a Helmet For Your Kid's Bike Safety

Bicycling continues to be an increasingly popular sport. This year, more parents than ever will be buying shiny new bikes for their youngsters.

Because of the growing number of bicycle accidents, safety specialists recommend that parents purchase a helmet for their youngster to accompany every bike.

Head injuries are the most common bicycle-related injury, causing approximately 1,300 deaths and more than 400,000 hospital visits in the United States annually.

Many of these injuries could be prevented or lessened if the rider wore an approved safety helmet. A recent study in The New England Journal of Medicine concluded that wearing a bike helmet can cut the risk of head injuries by 85 percent. The study also found that children suffered 60 percent of the head injuries, but only two percent of the injured children were wearing helmets.

"The human head is designed to absorb only so much impact," said Dr. James Wasco, medical director at the Lynn, Massachusetts-based New Medico Head Injury System. "An approved helmet can greatly reduce the severity of injury."

Children often believe that they are very skilled on a bike. However, even the most adept rider is at risk without a helmet — a hole, rock in the road or drunk driver can all cause accidents. In addition, younger children often have difficulty gauging the speed or distance of on-coming cars.

Obviously a collision with a car or object while riding a bike can cause serious injury. But head injuries can also occur from a fall off a bike in the driveway.

"Head injuries can cause lifelong disabilities," said Dr. Wasco. "Our therapists work with head-injury victims every day who require specialized treatment to overcome such disabilities as memory loss, speech problems, temper disorders and paralysis."

When buying a helmet, keep in mind that products approved by ANSI (American National Standards Institute) or Snell Memorial Foundation have been properly tested for safety standards.

Here are some additional tips for parents:

- There are plenty of sporty, comfortable helmets available. Allowing your child to pick out the style may encourage him/her to wear it.
 - Start the helmet habit with your child's first bike. Accidents happen with children of all ages.
 - Set a good example for your child — wear a helmet yourself.
 - Make sure your child always wears a helmet, even for short rides — most accidents happen close to home.
- For more information on head injury or rehabilitation, call New Medico's head injury information line, 1-800-CARE TBL.
- "A bike can be a great toy for a child," said Dr. Wasco, "but keep in mind that bikes are also moving vehicles and the rider needs proper protection."

I believe this is a very important letter on benefits for all Veterans in our areas. Help the Vets, Editor.

John R. Deptula

On May 20, 1988 the President signed into law a new Omnibus Veterans Health Care measure supported by Phil Gramm. Congress has now mandated the VA to change its regulations on outpatient care. "With his new legislation, Congress has relieved veterans seeking medical care of two major burdens," Gramm stated. "First, qualified veterans need not jump through hoops any more to receive outpatient care and second, our veterans don't need to go broke trying to reach medical care that the American people promised them," he stated.

Those veterans who have service-connected disabilities or non-service connected disabilities of 50% or more, or veterans with 30% or more disabilities who are low-income veterans will now automatically qualify for outpatient coverage. In addition, the VA will now have authority to reimburse outpatient travel expenses for veterans receiving benefits for service-related disability, vets with annual incomes of no more than pension rates, and those unable to pay the costs of transportation.

HELP FOR THE COMMON NOSEBLEED

(Lubbock) Nosebleeds - almost all of us have had one. Most often they are only a nuisance, but they can become a medical problem. "Understanding why they start can be the key to stopping them," said Marlene Whitehead, R.N., of the Employee Health Department at Methodist Hospital.

Among children and young adults, nosebleeds begin on the septum, just inside the nose. The septum is the partition separating the nasal chambers. In people at or beyond middle age, nosebleeds can begin on the septum, but they also may arise from deeper in the nose's interior. This latter form of nosebleed is much less common and more difficult to stop.

Because the nasal vessels are so fragile, they are easily damaged. A head cold or an allergy may encourage crusting within the nose, which can damage the vessels and cause spontaneous bleeding. Similarly, breathing dry air can cause injury to the vessels. The low humidity of West Texas combined with household heaters can dry the nasal passages and cause bleeding, Whitehead said.

When nosebleeds occur, sit or stand up. By remaining upright, you reduce blood pressure in the veins of your nose and discourage further bleeding. Pinch your nose and breathe through your mouth. When held for several minutes, this maneuver transmits external pressure to the bleeding point and stops the flow of blood. Ice only constricts the blood vessels on the surface of the nose and does not penetrate deeply enough to help, Whitehead said.

To prevent bleeding from the front portion of the nose, apply petroleum jelly to the nasal septum daily. Increasing the humidity of the air you breathe by using a humidifier or vaporizer can help keep your nasal membranes moist. Don't blow your nose until several hours after the bleeding has stopped. Nose-blowing increases the pressure on the vessels in your nose and can lead to another rupture and bleeding.

Nosebleeds that originate from deeper in the nose can be caused by hardened arteries or high blood pressure. Physicians can cure this problem by using methods that range from nose-packing to cauterization. In extreme cases, surgery is necessary.

Grandson Records National Award For Goat Work

Zane Willard, grandson of Nellie Lipham of Matador and the late Roy Lipham, has logged more than a winning project in becoming the first 4-H'er in Uvalde County to receive a national record book award.

Willard, a 1989 Uvalde High School graduate, is also believed to be the first national record book winner who has focused solely on Angora goats in the sheep and goat category.

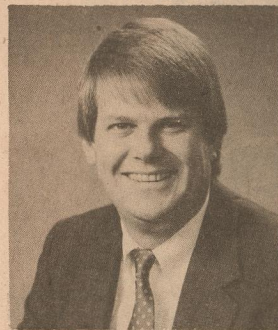

Willard's record book included a detailed inventory of his herd and equipment, expenses, income and labor, weight gains and clips.

Also listed were project goals and accomplishments, including participation in workshops, awards, other 4-H activities, and community, church and citizenship projects.

During his 4-H career, Willard served as reporter, vice president and county and district delegate; junior and teen leader for the Angora goat and shooting sports projects; youth representative for Angora goats on the livestock show committee; and chairman of several 4-H council committees and the District 13 sheep and goat committee.

He has received the sweepstakes plaque for method demonstration; bronze, silver, gold and diamond county awards; the 1987 Gold Star award; agricultural, shooting sports, sheep/goat and leadership medals; three county showmanship trophies; championship fleeces at the Sonora Wool and Mohair Show; and several stock show trophies.

Children Aren't Being Buckled Up

COLLEGE STATION - Observational surveys in 34 rural counties in Texas suggest that many young children are not being buckled up in the family car in compliance with the law. The surveys also found numerous instances of babies riding in safety seats that were actually unsafe because they were improperly installed.

Sherry Brush, project coordinator of the Rural Child Passenger Safety Education Project, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, says the survey data suggests that there is a real need for parents to become better informed about the proper use of child safety seats and that some of the old myths about seat-belt use don't die easily.

"Many parents don't seem to realize that a child safety seat is a complicated device," she said. "They are unknowingly making mistakes in the way they position the seats, putting their children at risk."

The survey in rural counties observed 4,900 children ages 4 and under and found that three out of four were not wearing restraints in cars in compliance with Texas law. The law requires that children 4 and under riding anywhere in a car must be restrained. Those from birth to 2 years of age must be in approved child safety seats; children ages 2 to 4 either must be in safety seats or wear seat belts. An offense carries fines between $25 and $50.

The surveys, performed by trained volunteers during 1989, were based on observations made at shopping malls and day care centers. Observational surveys are useful because they record actual behavior rather than rely on what people say they do, Brush said. However, these data do not represent a scientifically drawn sample of Texans, so they don't necessarily indicate statewide practices.

These rural results do roughly track similar surveys conducted in 1989 by the Texas Transportation Institute in 14 Texas cities, which found that half the children observed were not correctly restrained.

Brush said the rural surveys also point out the need for increased public awareness concerning the safety of young children riding in vehicles, a task that her Extension group is undertaking with a grant from the Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation.

"One of the most common mistakes people make is placing an infant in a child safety seat that faces forward," Brush said. "Babies must ride backwards until they can sit up by themselves."

"I'll buckle up, but I'll just hold my baby in my lap." This is one of the most dangerous assumptions. People naively think they can hold on to child if they're in an accident, Brush said.

"But in a 30 miles per hour crash, a 10-pound baby will be traveling with a force of 300 pounds, making this impossible to do," she said.

Extension is providing educational workshops, activities and programs on the correct selection and usage of child safety seats.

Brush said manufacturers are also doing a better job at labeling the areas of the seats for routing the seat belts.

Extension will conduct a follow-up survey to see what effects the educational programs have on the usage of child safety seats in rural counties next summer.

"There's a valuable end result to using safety seats," Brush said. "A child's life could be saved. Parents must look at using child safety seats as an act of love."

SWCD Has Windbreak Seedlings For Sale

by Renee Meyer

The Upper Pease Soil and Water Conservation District currently has windbreak seedlings for sale. The deadline for ordering seedlings is February 10, 1990. If you are interested in ordering trees, please contact the Upper Pease Soil and Water Conservation District located in the SCS office building, Monday - Friday from 7:00 a.m. til 4:30 p.m. or call 347-2263.

A wide variety of both conifers and hardwoods are available. Some of the trees available are: Arizona Cypress, Austrian Pine, Redcedar, Bur Oak, Catalpa, Cottonwood, Pecan, Green Ash, and Desert Willow. Also available are Wildlife seedling packets.

Brush explained that the strongest part of a baby's body is its back. Therefore, in case of an accident, the back of the infant will be caught by the safety seat rather than the weaker side (front) of the infant's body.

Another common mistake people make is threading the seat belt incorrectly through the child safety seat, Brush said.

"This can be as bad as not having your child in a safety seat at all," Brush said. "If there is an accident, the safety seat will not be secure, causing the child to be thrown forward or even out of the seat."

Those who install the safety seats incorrectly are not reading the instructions carefully, Brush said. It is actually a very difficult process that's tiring for the mother and needs lots and lots of patience, she said.

Many people don't realize that traffic accidents are the number one killer and crippler of children in America, Brush said. With 100 percent correct use, child safety seats could save about 500 lives a year and prevent 53,000 injuries. In Texas last year, 6,345 children under the age of four were injured, and 58 died as a result of automobile accidents.

Brush said motor vehicle accidents are the number one traumatic cause of epilepsy and are a major cause of brain injury and spinal cord injuries in children.

People also don't buckle up their children for the same mistakes and reasons they ignore seat belts themselves. These rationalizations include:

"I'm just going down the block." Brush says that 75 percent of all accidents occur within 25 miles of home.

"I'll avoid an accident by driving slow." Half of all accidents occur at speeds under 30 mph, and most accidents occur at speeds of under 40 mph, Brush said.

Boys Ranch Begins Annual Christmas Drive

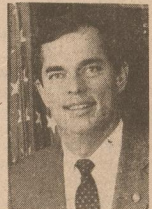

The annual drive to provide the nearly 400 young residents of Cal Farley's Boys Ranch with a new suit of clothing package has begun.

The purchase of new clothing for the boys through the Christmas Suit Fund has become a favorite way of Christmas giving among friends of the boys who contribute $50.00 for this purpose. Special discounts by Amarillo merchants and differences in clothing packages for the younger boys, the new suits will be worn by graduating seniors next spring," Mr. Hammer added.

While the boys are provided for through the Ranch's Suit fund, the youths of Girlstown, U.S.A. enjoy their annual purchase of clothing through the Coat and Shoe Fund, sponsored by the Lions Clubs of District 3-T1. Since 1969, the Lions have raised funds for the girls, a tradition which continued when Girlstown became an affiliate of Boys Ranch in 1987. This drive is under the guidance of Fund Chairman Keith Christie, whose goal is to provide for nearly 100 girls this year.

Contributions to either clothing fund may be mailed to Cal Farley's Boys Ranch and Girlstown, U.S.A., P.O. Box 1890, Amarillo, Texas 79174.

Congressman Bill Sarpalio Reports to the 13th District

SESIÓN FINALLY ENDS

WASHINGTON — When I took the oath of office eleven months ago to serve as your representative to the 101st Congress, this was a city full of uncertainty.

For the first time in eight years, someone new was about to occupy the White House. Congress itself was on the verge of making several leadership changes. The country as a whole was enjoying a period of peace and prosperity, though economists were not certain how long the prosperity part would last and some regions, ours included, had not enjoyed a strong economy for four years or more.

There was a sense throughout the capital that we were entering a new era in American history and that the decisions of the next few years would determine America's place in the 21st century. We faced some big challenges but we also had some tremendous opportunities to better our country.

Well, the first session of that 101st Congress is over and some of the uncertainty is gone as well. We have a better sense of the new administration's agenda and a feel for Congress' goals and aspirations' too. We haven't licked all our problems, to be sure, but we've gotten off to a pretty good start.

For the next couple of weeks, we'll be looking at some of the major issues the 101st Congress dealt with in its first session and how its actions may affect the 13th Congressional District.

• Drought Relief — A terrible winter freeze and spring drought posed a serious economic threat to the 13th District. We led effort to pass a disaster relief bill that kept the economy stable. Poor Agriculture Department regulations unfortunately kept funds away from some deserving producers.

• Budget/Deficit Reduction — Nothing is more frustrating than dealing with our massive budget problems. We were compelled to vote against much of the budget because it increased our deficit. Some real deficit reduction was accomplished, though, and taxes were not increased.

• Crumbling Communism — Events in Eastern Europe give us a chance to install democracy and capitalism where Marxism once reigned. This really could be one of the most historic moments of our lifetime. Congress approved funds to help fledgling democracies in Poland and Hungary get started.

• Section 89 Repeal — Tax reform of 1986 created onerous Section 89 in our tax code. The law tried to make health insurance available to more workers but incomprehensible IRS' regulations in fact caused companies to drop health plans. Congress voted to repeal this burden that was damaging our nation's businesses.

• Natural Gas Deregulation — After years of controlling the price of our gas, Congress voted to let free market determine the wellhead price of gas. Not a cure-all for energy woes, but it should help the 13th District and its abundant gas supplies.

• Gun Control — Early this session, many people thought the best way to respond to the drug crisis was to ban many types of guns. This obviously was a poor approach to a serious problem. Fortunately, House Speaker Thomas Foley is a staunch opponent of gun control, and he helped us keep the gun control bills bottled up in committee.

• Flag Protection — Some people thought this was a silly issue; I didn't. Protection of our national symbol is a reasonable goal for Congress, and it can be done without interfering with a person's right to free speech. Congress passed a law outlawing desecration of the flag. The new law now faces a court challenge. Stay tuned.

Next week, we'll take a look at some more of the issues that occupied the first session of the 101st Congress. If you have any questions or concerns in the meantime, please contact us at 1223 Longworth House Office Building, Washington, D.C. 20515.

Social Security Tips

by Mary Jane Shanes

We are often asked what is "supplemental security income"? In 1974, social security began administering nationwide, the portion of the States assistance program that made payments to elderly, disabled, and blind, under the title supplemental security income (SSI).

As SSI is a program for people in need, there are limits on the amount of countable income and resources a claimant can have to be eligible. In 1989, the income limits are $368 a month for an individual, and $553 for a couple. The resource limits are $2,000 for an individual and $3,000 for a couple.

To be eligible for SSI a person must be age 65 or over, blind, or disabled. A disabled or blind child under 18 can receive SSI payments if countable income and resources are below the limits.

You must report all income, (for example, any wages, money from investments, social security checks, pension, or help received to pay for house expenses, food, or clothing). Not all income, however, counts.

If you qualify for SSI payments, the maximum monthly federal payment for an eligible individual is $368. The maximum amount for an eligible couple is $553. You will receive less if you, your spouse, or your parents (if you are under age 18) receive any other income. Or you can get more if you live in a state that adds money to the federal payments.

There are special rules to help people who get SSI and work. If you work, you may receive an SSI check if your earnings are less than $821 a month provided you have no unearned income. A working couple can earn just under $1,191 a month and still receive an SSI check and under similar circumstances.

As stated above, there are also limits for the resources a person or a couple can have. We don't count the house where you live, some life insurance, personal articles, and usually we don't count your car. Basically, we look at money in your savings and checking accounts, investments, and property you own that isn't part of your home. If the countable resources of a person are $2,000 or less, he or she can be eligible. If the countable resources of a couple are $3,000 or less, they can be eligible for SSI payments.

There are some other rules. A person must be:

* a citizen of the U.S., a legally admitted immigrant, or a foreigner living permanently in the U.S. with the permission of the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

* a resident of the U.S. (the 50 States, the District of Columbia, and the Northern Mariana Islands.)

* apply for any other cash benefits that could be paid.

* accept vocational rehabilitation services if offered to a disabled recipient, or to accept available treatment if the person's disability is connected with drug addiction or alcoholism.

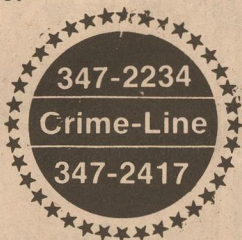

Eligibility for SSI means that you may also be eligible for food stamps, Medicaid and social services.

SSI is paid from the general funds of the U.S. Treasury, not from social security taxes.

For more information about these benefits or to file a claim call 1-800-2345-SSA.

Give thanks unto the Lord; call upon his name: make known his deeds among the people. Sing unto him, sing psalms unto him: talk ye of all his wondrous works. Glory ye in his holy name: let the heart of them rejoice that seek the Lord.
