Issue No. 1

A Second Glance

By Leon Watson

When George Washington, Thomas Jefferson and other leaders helped form this nation they often prayed to the one and only Living God for help and guidance. The nation was founded and grew strong on "Freedom of Religion".

The U.S. is now under the complete domination of the Council Foreign Relations, (CFR), which is composed of more than 1,700 members selected from the elite of big government, big banking, big business, big communications media, and big tax-free foundations. They are in key policy-making positions of the U.S. government.

To become a member of the CFR there are several vows a person must take.

One is a vow to the Luciferian Doctrine. In other words - a vow to Satan. All these men may not believe in the vow or worship Satan, but they take the vow.

Chairman of the CFR is David Rockefeller, who is also Chairman of the Chase Manhattan Bank. In 1973, Rockefeller hired Zbigniew Brzezinski to set up the

by Elvin Dick

What I said in the February 15 issue was right, Khomeini was put into power with the help of the Reds (Avalanche Journal 2-24). Observing very closely all along, the Liberal controlled press showed not one sign of this being so.

Instead, they printed story after story implying a glorified hero, deliverer, holy man and such returning in triumph.

To top this off, Carter lied to America when he said the only thing Russia is doing was activity in propoganda. The above article states differently, that 50,000 Red Iranians help put Ayatollah in power. Also that there are about 27 million of his Moslem followers. Supposedly, he wants to push the Red elitism aside. Don't bet on it!

Carter gave not one hint to America that Khomeini had the backing of some 50,000 Reds. Well, all he would have had to do was read the editorials for a hint as I even did, which revealed two red general spies the Shah exposed in his army; the Shah knew terrorists were trained by Arafat's PLO, Algeria, Red Libya and Cuba; French intelligence knew Khomeini's top aid, Ghotbadah, was a Red.

Now don't tell me Carter's intelligence sourced did not know. The Shah alone told him of his evidences on Khomeini of being Red backed.

Carter sought to keep silent, play it down as he is and has been doing in other Red conquests so as not to arouse Americans to what is going on. Senator Kemp (R-NY) termed Carter's Trilateral Commission, whose ultimate goals are the same as the CFR.

A founding member of the Trilateral Commission is Jimmy Carter. Which accounts for the fact that CFR-Trilat control of the Carter Administration is greater than that over any previous administration. When he became president, Carter appointed Rockefeller's man, Brzezinski, as his National Security Advisor.

So what can we look for in the near future? We can look for a truckers' strike that will bring this nation to its knees; we can look for our monetary system to be completely done away with.

There is nothing that a conspiracy fears more than exposure. So I'll keep writing about it. Help alert others by telling your friends, neighbors, members of civic and patriotic clubs and your Congressman and Senators.

Remember on what principles this nation was founded and pray to the same God our founders did. There is no limit to the amount of good a man can do if he doesn't care who gets the credit.

actions as, "accomodation to Soviet provocation." "During one pro-Soviet coup after another in South Yemen, Afghanistan, Ethiopia and elsewhere the administration remains strangely silent." (Avalanche Journal 4-19)

"American officials, who asked not to be identified, informed the Shah that only his temporary departure abroad would quell the violent protests." (A-J, 1-10)

Another lie of Mr. Carter's proven: (Sept. 13, 1976) he said, "I believe in maximum openness in government. My government is your government. And whenever it is wrapped in secrecy, and the people are excluded from the process of making decisions, that's when we make our serious mistakes in foreign affairs."

Where was the openness and lack of secrecy when he slipped the knife into free China's back when everyone in Congress had left for the Christmas-New Year Holidays?

Don't forget Carter's right hand man, Andrew Young, saying we ought to make Khomeini a saint (A-J, 2-9).

In analysis, Carter helped the Reds take over Iran in his inaction, weak show of support, telling the Shah to leave and the keeping down of American opinion against Khomeini by giving us no warning of Red insurgency.

Are these actions of a liberal president and liberal press not toward the defeat of free men?

Khee, the deposed South Vietnam leader now living in the U.S., said the Shah's

HOSPITAL MEETING -- Dr. Emil Villafranca, (left) hospital administrator from Callahan General Hospital in Baird, Texas, met with local officials Tuesday in the Commissioners Courtroom to discuss possible ways of reopening the local hospital. New ideas were exchanged and the doctor promised to investigate into grants and funds which might help get the Motley General Hospital reopened.

Hospital Future Discussed At Special Meeting

By Leon Watson

With hopes of finding a way for Motley General Hospital to be reopened, members of the Hospital District Board and County Commissioners Court met Tuesday with hospital administrator Dr. Emil Villafranca of Baird, to discuss possible ways of bringing extensive medical facilities back to the county.

Dr. Villafranca, who with his company has helped at least two other counties with closed facilities obtain working hospitals, said he had two doctors willing at this time to come to Matador if the hospital was open. By leasing the hospital, the company would operate strictly on revenue taken in at the hospital. The staffing would come from the ranks

Little Olympics April 7th

The second annual Motley County Little Olympics sponsored by the Eternas Junior Study Club will be held April 7 at the Motley County school football field in Matador.

This track meet is for children from ages 3 through 12 years of age. There will be four divisions with prizes for the first five places. Trophies will be given to high point person in each division.

Each child can enter as many events in his or her division as they wish for only $1.50. Pre-registration is permitted, but not necessary.

of local people.

The doctor stated they would need help from county or Hospital District in the way of a loan to operate during the first critical nine months of the lease; at the end of which time he said the company should be able to repay the loan.

This, however, proved to be the catch for the plan which first appeared to be the "fairytale" answer to the hospital problem.

While the Hospital District receives $56,000 annually through taxes, its outstanding bills from previous attempts to run the hospital will leave it in financial despair for the next several months.

The doctor was told, regrettably, he couldn't be given support at this time, but County Judge Billy Whitaker said he would begin investigating leads on possible grants which might be used to help in the reopening. The Hospital District Board members also encouraged the doctor to continue his efforts to obtain funds or information on grants.

Those present at the meeting agreed, with the future of Motley County in mind, every avenue of the plan must be explored.

Dr. Villafranca toured the local hospital earlier this week and was confident his company, if given the opportunity, could develop a sound hospital, with good doctors, lab and emergency room, open 24 hours daily, seven days a week in Matador.

Brooks, who is free on $3,000 bond, will have a pre-trial hearing on Monday April 16.

El Progreso Program Is Presented by Mrs. Hamilton

The El Progreso Club met March 8, 1979 in the home of Mrs. Carl King with Mrs. Frank Price, President, presiding. The usual business was carried out with the president reminding everyone of the Santa Rosa District Convention on March 17 in the First United Methodist Church in Seymour. Also, anyone with wigs or wigheads, no longer in use, can be taken to convention to be used by women at M.D. Anderson hospital who have undergone chemotherapy. Mrs. Robert Darsey was elected delegate to the convention and Miss Rachel Patton was welcomed into the club as a new member.

Mrs. J.L. Woodruff was leader for the day and used the quote from the yearbook to open the program-- "Books remain our only messengers from the longer past, and looking into the longer future"--Daniel Boorstein. She then presented Mrs. John Hamilton who reviewed the book "How Should We Then Live" written by Francis A. Schaeffer.

Mrs. Hamilton told her audience that this book was not for entertainment but one of a study of history in the realms of philosophy, theology and sociology. It took the author forth years of intense study and research to write this book. It begins with ancient Greece and Rome. There is a flow of culture and history which is rooted in the thoughts of the people. They have presuppositions and they live by them more than they realize. By presuppositions we mean the way a person looks at life.

To understand where we are in today's world in our intellectual ideas and in our cultural and political lives, three lines in history must be traced--philosophic, scientific and religious. Philosophic seeks intellectual answers to the basic questions of life; scientific, with two parts: the make-up of the physical universe and the practical applications of what it discovers in technology; and religious views also determine the direction of their lives and society.

The author begins with Roman civilization as the direct ancestor of the modern western world. Much of Roman thought was influenced by Greek thinking, especially after Greece came under Roman rule in 146 B.C. The Greeks and later the Romans tried to build society upon their gods, but the gods weren't big enough because they were finite, limited.

A culture or an individual with a weak base can stand only when the pressure on it isn't too great. Culture and freedom of people are fragile. Without a sufficient base, when pressures come only time is needed before there is a collapse.

With the breakdown of Roman order and the invasion came a time of social, political and intellectual turmoil. The Middle Ages proper, which the author dates from 500-1400 says the pendulum swings back and forth between utter disregard of the command to live modestly, caring for the poor, orphaned and widowed and a razor-sharp application of these same injunctions--the early monastic level to have no money. Charlemagne, who became king of the Franks in 768 saw that the church became a more general cultural force. The birth pangs of the Middle Ages were characterized by an awakened cultural and intellectual life and an awakened piety. European thought was divided into two lines; humanistic element and Bible-based teaching. During the time of Thomas Aquinas, a Dominican, the authority of the church took precedence of teaching the Bible. The way was open, through the works of John Wycliffe and John Huss, for two movements which were to have their influence down to our own day: humanistic and the scriptural Christianity.

According to the author the Reformation of the northern part of Europe and Renaissance of southern Europe overlapped historically and while they dealt with the same basic questions, they gave completely different answers. He also states on "OUR SOCIETY"--due to the growth of humanism which has become the basic thought form of modern people through art, music, drama, theology and the mass media--values died. As the more Christian-dominated consensus awakened the majority of people adopted the tow values of personal peace and affluence.

Two effects of our loss of meaning in values are degeneracy and the elite. Many cannot see this.

Society cannot stand chaos. Some group or some person will fill the vacuum. An elite will offer us arbitrary absolutes, and who will stand in its way. Will the silent majority help? The author believes that most of the silent majority, young and old, will sustain the loss of liberties without raising their voices as long as their own life-styles are not threatened.

The marks of Ancient Rome scar us: degeneracy, decadence, depravity, a love of violence for violence's sake. The situation is plain. If we look we see it. If we see it, are we concerned?

For the inspirational thought Mrs. D.E. Pitts gave a "Food for Thought"--I believe people are as they think. The choices we make in the next decade will mold irrevocably the direction of our culture and the lives of our children--Frances A. Schaeffer.

Refreshments of several cakes, coffee, tea, nuts and mints were served to those mentioned and Mrs. W.N. Pipkin, W.E. Lucas, Bill McCaghren, Harold Campbell, Bill Pallmeyer, L.B. Campbell, Ralph Stapleton, Joe Campbell, Furman Vinson, E.A. Day, W.F. Jacobs, C.D. Garrison, R.E. Campbell and Miss Mary Keith.

Dorcas Circle Has Mission Study

The Baptist Women's Dorcas Circle continued a study of home missions at regular meetings on Tuesday afternoons this month. Emphasis was placed on the Annie Armstrong Easter Offering for Home Missions, with a goal of $550 for the local First Baptist Church.

The group met March 6 at the home of Mrs. Bill Dunning with Mrs. Stuart Dixon leading the Royal Service program. Theme was "Dare to Ask for Bold Witnessing."

Others on the program were Mesdames J.D. Craven, Eddie Russell, and Dunning. Mrs. Russell read the calendar of prayer for missionaries having birthdays on that date. Also present were Miss Rachel Patton and Mesdames Bill McCaghren, J.L. Woodruff, Douglas Meador, Audrey Price and C.D. Garrison. Mrs. Dunning led the group in discussing "Volunteers in Home Missions" March 13 when the women met in the home of Mrs. Garrison. Program participants were Mesdames Garrison, Dixon and Price, stressing commitment, concern and volunteer action. Types of volunteer work extend from construction to recreation; from music to literacy and from office secretary to youth activities.

County Agent Says

By Bill Pallmeyer

LOVEGRASS PASTURE MANAGEMENT

Some ranchers like lovegrass pastures and some don't. The viewpoint depends on the individual's experience with lovegrass, as results obtained from lovegrass pastures are highly dependent on the level of management.

Grazing management is a key factor in satisfactory production from lovegrass. Intense grazing during periods of lush growth usually results in good beef production and satisfied cattle producers. Light grazing during these periods results in low production and dissatisfied producers.

Lovegrass forage becomes low in digestibility and unpalatable to livestock as it gets older and taller. Pastures allowed to accumulate large amounts of excess forage (as in the case of light grazing) become undesirable to livestock, and forage digestibility and protein levels decrease along with livestock production.

Lovegrass pastures have periods when they are naturally low quality just like any other grass. Periods when there is little or no growth, like winter or mid-summer will be periods of low quality grazing and corresponding low livestock performance.

During the periods of active growth in the spring and fall, lovegrass can be extremely productive and livestock performance high. Intense grazing during growth periods keeps the forage young and tender, and the new growth is high in protein and digestibility. Livestock performance on this type of forage is good, therefore grazing management makes the difference.

Lovegrass has one natural advantage over many other warm-season grasses. It starts growth several weeks earlier than bermudagrasses and make weeks earlier than native grasses. This factor is often overlooked and can be valuable to an individual whose cattle are calving in late winter. The earlier the growth from lovegrass pasture can provide needed nutrition to get these cattle back into a breeding cycle.

Lovegrass pastures also provide green growth later in the fall than most other warm season pastures. Temperatures usually have to fall to freezing levels to stop growth of lovegrasses; light frosts will have little effect on the green forage it produces.

Green grazing available from lovegrass pastures both early and late in the growing season point out its value as a "transition" pasture. Lovegrass pastures can furnish good grazing in the fall prior to winter pasture and in the spring prior to summer pasture. It helps to keep the nutritional level of livestock high during normal low periods.

Another key to lovegrass management is the proper use of fertilizer. An application of the proper fertilizer should be applied in late winter or early spring before growth starts, with the best way to find out what the plants need being a soil test. Most of the time the crop also needs to be topped with nitrogen during the summer, especially if production has been high.

Ranchers who like lovegrass pastures have been following these management practices, and many of those who don't like lovegrass haven't. Several species of lovegrass are available, Weeping lovegrass, Ermelo lovegrass, Morpa lovegrass, Renner lovegrass, and Sand lovegrass. Each will do the job if managed properly, with the preference depending on the individual.

Farm Roundup

SELECT PEACH ROOTSTOCK FOR INSURANCE

Successful home peach plantings begin with selection of the right rootstock.

The right rootstock is one that is resistant to root knot nematodes and compatible with the variety to be grown. Root knot nematodes are a serious problem for homeowners raising either peaches or plums. Once these small worms begin to feed on plant roots, plant tissue forms a gall or swelling around the nematode, with the gall being visible to the eye.

Nematodes interfere with normal uptake of nutrients from the soil to plant foliage which is essential to be continued health and development of the tree, therefore Texas homeowners should insist on a nematode-resistant peach rootstock such as Nema-guard for their home orchard. Such a rootstock can be grown in an area infested with root knot nematodes, yet remains free from infestation.

Most peach varieties are now available on Nema-guard rootstock.

PESTICIDE TRAINING

Farmers and ranchers are finding that to buy certain farm chemicals a certificate is needed, especially RESTRICTED use pesticides.

Training meetings were held in 1977 for non-commercial applicators, enabling them to become certified and eligible to purchase these restricted pesticides.

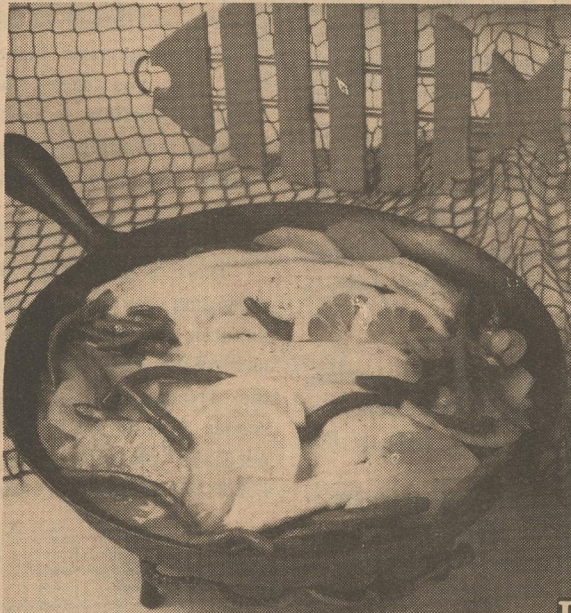

As there are two ways a person can become certified, Extension Agent Bill Pallmeyer urges those who are not certified to obtain certification this year.

If enough people request a training meeting, one will be held, so those desiring a meeting should contact the agent. For those who wish to study at home, material that may be studied and submitted is also available.

For additional information, contact Pallmeyer.

THEN and NOW

A lot more progress than many people realize has been made in energy conservation in the last few years.

THEN: Back in 1973, truck and bus manufacturers and users were interested in saving energy. By having fuel conserving devices installed on new large trucks and buses, they saved 39 million gallons.

NOW: Over the past five years, the trucking industry's voluntary efforts have managed to save over 1.7 billion gallons of fuel, thanks to a variety of new conservation devices and methods. This, the Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Association points out, also saves money and so helps fight inflation.
