Philosopher

DR. JOHN ERSKINE

All culture, claims Dr. John Er skine, comes ultimately through the hands and feet, and the trouble with most education hitherto has been that it tended to develop only the head.

Dr. Erskine, author, composer, professor at Columbia University and president of the Juilliard School of Music, was discussing the benefit of the cultural hobbies fos-

"Cultural hobbies," said Dr. Er-skine, "may always develop into arts, but in any case, if pursued with emphasis on competent performance, they will not only make for happier leisure but for much better daily work.

"The Greeks were great," Dr. Erskine continued, "because they becupied themselves largely with the two main-lines of human enleavor, the arts and agriculture in the broadest sense. They spent much time in carving and dancing, making fine use of their hands and feet. They were philosophers, too, of course, but after all philosophy is only reasoning about life and its purpose, while the arts and agriculture are life itself."

The value of the Boy and Girl Scout program lies, We believes, in the fact that consciously or unconsciously its ideal approximates to that of the Greeks as expressed by Aristotle when he said that the true aim of all education is the wise use

"These organizations," Dr. Er kine declared, "fill the gap that too often exists between the sterile teaching of schools and the conduct of life. They give the young people a chance to use their hands and feet and find out for themselves the cultural hobby that heat expresses them. That most of their activities are conducted out of doors means that they are con-ducted close to the source of all existence. That has as much cultural as physical value."

Dr. Erskine made one suggestion for what he considers would be an improvement in camping programs. "Why not have them specialized," he asked, "...", the manner of the two fine orchestral camps for boys and girls at Interlaken, Mich., and in Maine. MAGNO Announces CLIMATIC CONTI

The Newest Scientific Achievement in Gasoline - . . Now in the Southwest at over 12,000 Magnolia Stations and Dealers

> JOU may have noticed how your car seems to run differently in the rain than it does on a hot summer day. You have noticed how one gasoline gives you a quick start on a cold morning while another rasps your temper. On long, fast drives in hot weather you may have noticed your car sputtering and missing. The reason for this variation in performance is that gasoline is extremely sensitive to changes in "engine heat".

At last something has been done about it. Mobilgas has CLIMATIC CONTROL! By this scientific achievement Mobilgas is preadjusted to every variation in temperature or altitude before it is placed on sale in your locality. Hot cold rain shine -from sea level to mountain peaks, it's all the same to Mobilgas.

The outstanding advantages of Climatic Control are yours in Mobilgas without extra cost . . . plus the fact that Mobilgas gives you the highest ANTI-KNOCK performance of any regular priced gasoline. Fill your tank today . . . you'll notice a great improvement!

* CLIMATIC

of Mobilgas, before it is placed on sale in your locality. It automatically adapts itself to the variations in "engine heat", caused by changes in temperature, altitude, humidity and road "pull". In the Mobilgas Research Laboratories all these changing climatic conditions have been "manufactured" in hot and cold testing-chambers. The road performance of Mobilgas is thus scientifically verified at different "engine heats".

"Specifications covering the man ufacture of Mobilgas with Climatic Control were worked out with scientific accuracy in the Mobilgas

Research Laboratories. In specially constructed 'cold' and 'hot' rooms, tests were made under temperatures as low as 20 degrees below zero and as high as 150 degrees above. The results were further checked under every conceivable climatic and driving condition in the Southwest by the Magnolia flect of test cars, including new Chevrolet Plymouth and Ford V-8 models for 1932. The tests were conclusive and Magnolia now offers Mobilgas with complete confidence that "Climatic Centrol" will meet the need of a betfer motor fuel,"

"In addition to providing Clima-Control, specifications for Mo-
