Proper-size bulbs provide better light for easier seeing. Keep all lamps supplied with the right size bulb. More eyestrain is caused by dim light from small-size bulbs used in reading and work lamps than from any other source.

Every socket in your home should be filled with the correct size bulb. If you allow empty sockets to appear in your household you cut down the efficiency of light fixtures, and invite accidents in dark areas where little-used fixtures are not kept workable.

A ready supply of extra lamp bulbs on hand keeps every lamp and light fixture in your house ready when you need them. No more interruptions occur to work or play when you have an immediate replacement for burned-out bulbs.

Our Educators Are Threatened By Fear Of Demogogic Methods

November 8, will be the start of National Education Week, which will run through November 14. The slogan for this year's observance will be "Good Schools Are Your Responsibility."

Meantime, consider the words of Hodding Carter of Greenville, Miss., editor and publisher of the Delta Times-Democrat, and a member of his local school board. Addressing the opening session of the Oklaboma Education Association Friday, Carter declared that fear in the hearts of some teachers is causing the greatest crisis in American education.

As a school board member, Carter de-clared he saw parents "almost in a sob" denounce his superintendent as a radical because he had attended teachers college at Columbia University.

He declared teachers are so frightened by public and political criticism they are "afraid to speak out" against demagoguery. Such fears are the fruits of a thing invented and brought to a high state of per-fection by the Communists, the Fascists and the Nazis-guilt by association. We have come a dangerously far way along this road in America today, when demagogic methods have created an atmos-phere of suspicion, distrust and fear.

Those who defend demagoguery seem in-capable of realizing that cuts is the very sort of atmosphere the Communists them-selves would most like to create among

The totalitarians of whatever stripecall them Fascist, Communist or Nazioperate on the theory that the end justi-fies the means. That is the exact antithesis of all the democratic principles we ever heard of, yet in the U. S. today we hear the defenders of demagoguery and strong-armed methods arguing with a straight face that "the end justifies the means."

If the only way to get rid of spies and subversives is by burning down the barn, what have we gained if the mansion of democratic liberties likewise goes up in smoke?

Our public schools are at once the cradle and the bulwark of our democratic way of life. No democracy can long prosin an atmosphere of suspicion, unsupported charges, fear and distrust. It is the responsibility of the people to see (1) that only trustworthy people be employed in the schools and (2) to see that they are unmolested by irresponsible fanatics using rumor, suspicion and fear as their

World Conquest Continues As Chief Objective Of Communism

A Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee in a 60-page survey of the strength, tactics and objectives of the Communist movement throughout the world comes up with these conclusions;

The Communists have lost heavily in membership and trade union support in Western Europe, thoug; still politically strong in Italy, France and Iceland. The Reds reached their peak in Western Europe in 1947, have since declined but still constitute a threat there and elsehwere in the world. In France and Italy the strong unist vote isn't always pro-Communist but quite often merely anti-government. For instance, the 3,000,000 Commuhist party members in the 16 countries of Western Europe attract about 13 million votes in national elections.

In Latin America membership has dropped from 330,000 in the 1944-47 period to about 200,000 today. Twelve countries there have officially "suppressed" the Communist movement and "in none is it an important electoral factor."

But since 1917 Communists have grown in strength until today they control governments of one-third of the population and one-fourth of the area of the world.

The report is interesting and in some respects encouraging, but it would be un-wise to overlook some other facts not sufone of these facts is that Russia today is the most potent military force on the face of the earth, that by human slavery and forced production methods it created a huge industrial potential where little or none existed 36 years ago, and that its spies and propagandists penetrate every part of the world, including our own, And another thing to remem-The main objective of communism remains world conquest.

Greeks, Romans Prayed To Venus

Both the Greeks and the Romans prayed to a goddess of love and beauty. The Greeks called her Aphrodite (AF-roDYtee) and the Romans spoke of her as Venus (VEE-nus)

The Greek name of this goddess has been traced to "sea foam," and it is prob-able that she was, at first, a goddess of the sea. Those Montana Vigilantes Had Good Law Enforcement System

The opinions contained in this and other articles in this column are solely these of the writers who sign them. They are not to be interpreted as necessarily reflecting the opinions of The Herald.—Editor's Note.

Thumbing back through my book of memories of such things I think that one of the nicest and most complimentary things ever said about me and to me, or either about me or to me, or at least the one that I appreciated more than any other, was one day in a Garden City cafe, while we were drinking coffee, my good friend, George Thomas, Big Spring lawyer, told me that the one thing of which he was sure was that I would never sit on a jury trying one of his clients charged with a crime.

As I took it, George meant he wouldn't want me on the jury if his client was guilty. Now George didn't mean anything against me personally. Of that I am quite stire. What he meant was, that from the standpoint of defense counsel he doesn't like my ideas of law enforcement which have been quite frequently expressed in this column and elsewhere. Personally my feeling for George is such that if he ever runs for Congress I'll support him, and if Elton Gilliland ever gets me indicted

I'll probably hunt up George PDQ. George and I just simply have different ideas, it appears, about what courts and juries should do with confirmed criminals. I have the idea that the old Montana Vigilantes had the right system, and George naturally wants to win his cases. And, as I have said, if I should be accused, and George should be my attorney, I'd certainly want him to win one case, at least,

But, the point I would make here is that the women and children of this country are entitled to a protection that can be given them only by courts and juries. Men are also entitled to some protection but they should be able to provide themselves with some measure of defense. Let's consider the women and children only at this

Let's take a case that happened only recently on U. S. Highway 80 between Midland and Stanton

It was after dark, but early in the night, A Big Spring mother and her early-teenage daughter were driving home from Midland. The daughter was curled up on the back seat of the car asleep. A man behind the mother started blinking his lights, dimmer-off-and-on, to attract mother's attention. She stepped up her speed in an effort to get away from him. Finally, after an effort or two he crowded her car off the highway an onto the shoulder of the road, skidding his car to a stop in front of her and forcing her to stop. then got out of his car and started back. on foot, toward her. Fortunately for the Big Spring woman and her daughter the road shoulders were wide, solid and dry, She quickly backed her car up and pull-ed around the man's car on the right and drove at top speed toward Stanton The man quickly got back in his car and again took up the pursuit, keeping close behind her and seeking another op portunity to crowd her off the road. A few miles west of Stanton the woman saw the lights of a place on the left side of the road. She dared, at a high rate of speed, to cut across the highway in front of the man's car and pull into that place of busi-

The man following her evidently sensed her intention to use the telephone there and call Stanton officers. He didn't know that place of business didn't have a telephone. As quickly as the woman learned that she got back in her car and again took off for Stanton hoping to find an officer

The man, in the meantime, seeking to fieb the Stanton officers he anticipated she would call undertook to get through Stanton before the officers could be alerted and stop him there. But he made a mistake. He ran the red traffic light there and just beyond that light happened to be Martin County Sheriff Dan Saunders and

figured that bird was flying away from something and so they nailed him. The woman, with a rare presence of mind to also run the red light hoping thereby to attract attention to herself. She did. Saunders and Avery spotted her about the same time she saw their car with the radio aerial, red light and official license plates. The way the man, they were still holding there, had been traveling they were sure there was something else following him down the road somewhere, and so they had waited. Sheriff Saunders rece nized the Big Spring woman and she told

Unfortunately she wasn't able to post tively identify the man with a sufficiency that would have made his conviction stand up on appeal, and besides he was ready to tell a story along the line that he thought he recognized her as a friend and certainly would have apologized when he had seen

However, he was mightly glad to spend a few days in the Stanton jail, to enter a guilty plea to a lesser offense than that with which he should have been charged and to pay a quite heavy fine in the cour of County Judge James McMorries.

But here's a point for consideration, too When Chief Deputy Sheriff A. C. Abernathy sent the man's fingerprints to the Department of Public Safety at Austin, he got a return showing an extensive criminal record and this transcript also revealed that this man, at the time he forced the Big Spring woman's car off the road, was under indictment for rape in another Texas county!

Figure that one out for yourself. "I have often wondered if under such circumstances I could kill a man," that woman told me. "Now I know that I could. If I'd had my gun with me I know now I would have left him out there beside that I don't wish that woman, or any other woman, the necessity of ever killing such a man, but I believe most of them would prefer doing that to other possibilities, especially with a young daughter to consider.

That's why I am in favor of all our good women beig armed with a good Smith & Wesson, that they well know how to use with telling effect, when they are out at night, especially on today's highways. In spite of the fact that the peace officers are doing their duty, the women and children are entitled to a protection they aren't otherwise getting, a defense they must give themselves. Unlike my good friend, George Thomas, I'm not in favor of such characters ever reaching the courtroom. The morgue appeals to me as a much better place for them even if some good woman has to send them there. I am glad to say that while the man referred to is temporarily living in Texas (under bal) on a rape charge) he isn't a native Texan but comes from a more western state.

These Days-George Sokolsky

Apathy Of Voters Is A Threat To Representative Government

Everybody these days talks about democracy, employing the word loosely to imply a myrlad of meanings. But what is called democracy can have no political implications unless the citizens go to the polls and vote for those who are to govern

It must be granted that the candidates are often such as to leave the voter without choice. Mr. X is no more attractive as a public official than Mr. Y and neither discusses any important issue. Nevertheless, the mere act of voting is inherent in citizenship, unless we are to interpret an unwillingness to vote not only as a boycott of the candidates but as a loss of faith in our form of government, One election I voted for a candidate who had no chance of winning and whose prime virtue was that he wore a beard. I went to the polls and, in effect, voted for Mr. Nobody because I could not in conscience vote for the candidates of either party.

On another occasion I did not vote at all. I was wrong. Even if one enters the polls and votes for nobody, it is sounder than to refrain from voting altogether because by going to the polls, by the physical act of attendance, one participates in government by choice which, in our political system, goes back to the Declaration of In-

Judge Learned Hand has stated the case in this fashion:

"... Indeed the apathy of the modern voter is the confusion of the modern reform-I live where that apathy seems to have attacked even the deepest ganglia; no disclosures, no scandals, can stir the voters from their inertia. Doubtless things might become uncomfortable enough to arouse them, but, given reasonable opportunity for personal favors, and a not too irksome control, they are content to abdicate their sovereignty and to be fleeced, if the shepherds will only shear them in their sleep. hat was not the presupposition of our traditional democracy, which assumed an intelligent attention and capacity in public affairs, and a will directed towards the general good ... Judge Hand lives in New York City where 8,500,000 other persons, mostly Americans, live. Granted that some of these citizens come from parts of the world where government by choice is unknown. but their numbers, in comparison with the entire population, are not large, Furthermore, in other cities where the immigrant population is much smaller, the number of citizens who vote in all elections, especially those dealing only with local offices, is comparatively small. In the present election in New York, only a fraction of the population came out to register. They permitted the election to go by de-

When the people minimize their interest in public affairs, when such a question as whether a man named Julius does or does not marry a girl called Dot rises to front page significance during a municipal campaign, the apathy of the people approaches apostasy. It opens the door to government by racketeers, for when the institutions of the people are deserted by the people, they will be seized by those who can profit by them. Thus, in city after city, corruption has almost come to be recognized as inevitable, just as during the prohibition period, such creatures as Al Capone, Dutch Schultz, and their cohorts were even regarded as essential to the maintenance of order because the police had abdicated their authority.

It would seem futile to spend billions of dollars in all parts of the world extolling the virtues of our form of government-of government by choice-if we abandon this very system by staying away from the polls, or even worse, by avoiding debate and discussion of issues because they are boresome, by refraining from the controversial. Freedom, the preservation of freedom, depends upon discussion and controversy and the hammering of public issues on the anvil of debate.

Each year, this is said. In the last presidential election, the advertising council, by constant reiteration of the subject in press and radio, somehow brought the citize to the polls. Then the interest subsided. The people want taxes down and prices down and war ended, but they would prefer not to dwell on these subjects; they revert to the joys of personal life. They leave govern-ment to professional politicians and to racketeers. That is neither democracy nor representative government. It is a retreat from Americanism.
