Roosevelt's Choices Are Defeated

JOHNSTON BOWS TO 'COTTON ED'

The endorsement of President Roosevelt was no help to Gov. O. D. Johnston (left) of South Carolina, who was defeated in his campaign for that state's senatorial nomination by Sen. Ellison "Cotton Ed" Smith (right). The veteran Smith, foe of the court bill, had a lead of more than 27,000 votes.

Senatorial candidates with the personal backing of President Roosevelt were on the short ends of democratic primary returns today from South Carolina and California.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31 (CP)—While House aides said today that President Roosevelt predicted yesterday that Senator E. D. Smith of South Carolina would win the democratic senatorial nomination by 40,000 votes.

Secretary Stephen Early said that when he and Martin McIntyre, another secretary, had consulted the president this morning, the executive, with a smile, reached into a drawer of a side table and pulled out an envelope with his prediction of the outcome of the South Carolina race.

HE FOUGHT A LOSING BATTLE

Sen. William G. McAdoo rests at his home in Los Angeles after ending months of campaigning in a bitter fight for re-nomination. With him is his wife. The smile appeared before returns came in which showed McAdoo—although he had the support of President Roosevelt, trail'ing Sheridan Downey by more than 20,000 votes.

nomination in South Carolina. With returns 90 per cent complete, the veteran of 30 years service held a margin of more than 27,000 votes over the New Deal entry, Gov. Olin D. Johnston.

Despite repeated presidential aid, Sen. William Gibbs McAdoo was more than 20,000 votes behind Sheridan Downey, who made a novel pension plan an issue. Downey had 182,500 votes to 155,956 for McAdoo with 7,011 of the 12,438 precincts tabulated.

The race between Smith and Johnston was regarded by most political analysts as a direct test of New Deal strength in South Carolina. This factor was complicated, however, by the personal opposition to Johnston of Edgar A. Brown, another New Dealer, who withdrew from the contest Saturday. The two men long have been at odds in state politics, and there was speculation as to how many of Brown's followers voted for Smith.

Senator Smith was the fourth foe of the Roosevelt court bill to win re-nomination this summer. His victory was heartening to supporters of Senators George of Georgia and Tydings of Maryland, for whose defeat Mr. Roosevelt has appealed.

In California, there was no New Deal victory.

Public School Music Course Instituted

Wm. R. Dawes Named As Director Of New Work

Appointment of William R. Dawes, formerly of Lovington, N. M., as director of music in the Big Spring public schools was announced Wednesday by the board of trustees.

Dawes, a native of Big Spring, has been engaged in the teaching of public school music for the past seven years, spending most of that time in New Mexico schools. He was graduated from the Big Spring high school in 1926 and subsequently earned his B. S. degree in music education from West Texas State Teachers college at Canyon. Dawes took his M. Mus. professional degree, in voice from the University of Michigan.

A background of music was gained in the studios of his father, the late W. E. Dawes, here during his school days. He is one of three children in the family who were especially talented in music. Allice, now Mrs. Tyree Hardy of Sonora, got her degree in piano at Canyon, while Nancy Dawes is studying toward her master's degree in piano at Texas College for Women at Denton.

The course in public school music was added by the board here to meet a growing need and demand, it was stated. In addition to his regular work, Dawes will teach a limited number of voice students.

Hearing On School Budget Scheduled Next Tuesday

Annual public hearing on the budget for the Big Spring independent school district has been scheduled for next Tuesday evening, school officials announced today. The session will be held at the high school, beginning at 8 o'clock and all school patrons and taxpayers are invited to attend. Budget preparations went forward on receipt of formal notice that the state per capita apportionment for the new school year would be $22. The district has set up a tentative budget calling for expenditures of about $163,760, against $158,659 last year; with receipts being estimated at $163,728, as compared with $161,345 last year.

WAGE SECURITY STRESSED IN TALKS AT BROTHERHOOD PICNIC

If a picnic can develop a theme, the seventh annual feast of the four brotherhoods of railway transportation at the city park Tuesday turned up with a contention for high standard of wages as a requisite for best citizenship. Speakers, who addressed the gathering of more than 400 persons following a sumptuous meal, stressed the importance of a security wage as an element indispensable for real citizenship. George Mahon, Colorado congressman from the 19th district, said that national aims of peace and security could be founded upon better wages to the working man to the end that "we keep this the happiest place in the world."

Oil Seizure Becoming A 'Hot' Issue

M'Craw Says Illegal Crude Not To Be Dumped On Market

AUSTIN, Aug. 31 (CP)—A burning controversy over state confiscation of hot oil cracked on several fronts today, bringing these developments:

Attorney General William McCraw announced he would not dump all existing illegal oil production on the market.

Jerry Sadler, nominee for railroad commissioner, offered his services without pay as a special prosecutor for the Travis county district attorney "to stop oil confiscation."

Governor James V. Allred in response to questions said he was "deeply concerned over the threat of hot oil through confiscation suits to the state and to the welfare of the oil industry."

State Senator T. J. Holbrook of Galveston, and Senator Joe Hill of Henderson, members of a general investigating committee which once inquired into the process of disposing of confiscated oil met with Governor Allred and Sadler.

Renewal of the pro and con of confiscation arguments came after postponement yesterday of trial of four suits involving nearly 400,000 barrels of oil. Trial was set for Friday.

McCraw pointed to a joint agreement with the railroad commission in February 1937 whereby orders for sale of confiscated production would not be issued unless the market permitted.

Governor Allred said confiscation stopped until after the election was over and "I hope it doesn't start again."

Following his conference with the governor, Holbrook said he did not contemplate "at this time" a committee inquiry into confiscation.

Hill pointed out he had opposed the confiscation act and expressed an opinion it was invalid. He added he offered a bill at the last regular session to correct "some of the defects in the law but some of the very people who are howling now opposed passage of the corrective measure."

SLAIN MEN IDENTIFIED AS TEXAS CONVICTS

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 31 (CP)—Federal agents, state police and county detectives traced back to the crime trail of two Texas convicts shot to death by deputy sheriffs here just over five weeks after they escaped from a state prison farm in an officer's automobile. The men were identified tentatively as John Bowman and Tilgham Van Acker, trustees who fled from Wynn state prison farm at Huntsville, Tex., last July 24 in the car of Capt. R. H. Baughin. Three deputy sheriffs shot them at dawn here yesterday. The gunmen opened fire with pistols as the deputies drew up to their bus.

Their identities were learned through fingerprint classifications transmitted to the federal bureau of investigation at Washington, D. C.

Flood Waters In Rio Grande Still Rising

Workmen Kept Busy On Levees In Brownsville Sector

BROWNSVILLE, Aug. 31 (CP)—Floodwaters of the Rio Grande shot past the flood stage throughout the Upper Valley today and spillways on the Texas and Mexican sides began draining the stream in an effort to prevent damage to crops in the fertile area.

The stream was still rising at Rio Grande City and had reached a stage of 31.1 feet. The flood stage there is 21 feet.

Rising hourly in the Lower Valley, the Rio Grande here lacked but a few inches of going over the first bank. Levees hastily repaired and strengthened when flood waters from Monterrey, Mexico, where 10' drowned and many were left homeless, headed in this direction stood between Brownsville and the raging river.

At Hidalgo the river had reached 22.1, a foot above flood stage. Two floodways on the Texas side were taking water from the river at this point.

Mexican workers at Las Rusas fought to keep a weakened levee from breaking. Sandbags were piled along the water edge by 100 men who worked all night.

The weather bureau here said the high water would flood most lands between the river and the main flood levee on the American side, especially in the Middle and Upper Valley.

While workmen labored to repair two breaks in flood control levees on the American side, the Granjeno and Hackney Lake inlets in Hidalgo county, and the Rancho Viejo inlet in Cameron county were receiving water from the flooding river.

J. L. Lyle, engineer at San Benito, Texas, said the Retamal and Las Rusas inlets on the Mexican side of the international border, also had been opened.

The flooding San Juan, with the Salado, Santa Catarina, Santa Rosa, and other Mexican tributaries to the Rio Grande, poured a steady torrent of muddy flood water into the international river three miles above Rio Grande City.

FLIER INJURED AS PLANE CRACKS UP

CLEVELAND, Aug. 31 (CP)—Russ Chambers, Los Angeles speed pilot, was badly cut today when his plane crashed while he was attempting to qualify for speed events of the National Air Races, starting Saturday.

Chambers climbed out of the Monocoac-powered special Chambers racer and walked to a road to summon aid.

SPORTSMEN BACK TO SAFETY AFTER TWO DAYS IN STORM

BROWNSVILLE, Aug. 31 (CP)—Shaved and rested, eight Texas sportsmen who prayed and waited two days for death on a hurricane swept island off the Mexican coast, today prepared to resume lives some of them thought were completed.

The eight yesterday waded 11 miles to the mainland and caught a Mexican fish truck which brought them 80 miles to Brownsville. They arrived last night, bewildered and shaken by experiences suffered during the storm on their island six miles off the northeastern Mexican coast.

Warned by radio reports Saturday morning of the approaching hurricane which swept disastrous into Mexico, the men got in automobiles, abandoned their food-stuff and water, and drove 25 miles northward on the offshore sand dunes to higher ground.

There, lying face downward in the sand and in automobiles, the eight, joined by eight Mexican fishermen, rode out two days and nights of high tides and hurricane winds.

"We kept waiting for a tidal wave to wash us off the island," O. H. Roberts, Jr., of Corpus Christi, said. "When things looked the worst we held mass prayer and then we waited for death. Every man there said his bit in the mass prayer."

Hungry and thirsty, the men drank water from puddles on the island, and hoped for a rescue boat or plane to bring them food, Roberts said.

They were sighted Monday by a plane after they had made their way to Fourth Pass, 80 miles south of here. The plane dropped notes telling them to wade to shore and the truck would pick them up.

The eight were Walter Mathews, O. H. Roberts, Jr., Rayford McNabb, and Griffin Heath of Corpus Christi; Ray Phipps, Herman Richards and Vio Stewart of Brownsville, and Roy Kinney of Galveston, Tex.

Two other Texas fishermen were reported safe on another island. They are C. E. Moore and Roy Kincaid of Brownsville.

OBSERVERS SENT TO WATCH AFFAIRS IN CZECHOSLOVAKIA

French Army Commission Meets To Study Military Status As Events In Europe Grow More Troubled

By The Associated Press
Great Britain's ambassador to Nazi Germany flew to Berlin today armed with new authority, informed persons said, to reiterate vigorously the warning that Britain might not stand aside if war came to central Europe.

The envoy, Sir Neville Henderson, was said to be empowered to deliver this warning personally to Reichsfuehrer Hitler if necessary in even stronger terms than it was stated Saturday by Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer.

France's powerful army commission met with Premier Edouard Daladier to weigh possible effects of the German mobilization program.

British secret observers watched developments in the regions of Czechoslovakia where the Nazi-dominated autonomy-seeking Sudeten Germans are predominant as part of Britain's campaign to prevent an explosion that might lead to war.

Stern Message
Political circles believed Sir Neville Henderson, British ambassador to Berlin, would give Hitler a message expressing even more positively than did Sir John Simon, British chancellor of his Lanark speech last Saturday that Britain would find it difficult to stay out if war should start.

The situation in Czechoslovakia became more complicated as a result of a split in the Sudeten party itself. The radical element of the party wanted to reject a compromise government suggestion to meet the demands for autonomy, while a more conservative group, fearing war, urged that the proposal be accepted as a basis for further negotiations.

The British mission seeking to mediate the dispute was told the Sudeten "separatists," Konrad Henlein, needed more time to discuss the situation with his "political friends." The Czechs insisted that such "political friends" are to be found in Germany.

British efforts to settle the German-Czechoslovak crisis by conciliation continued. From an authoritative British quarter came a warning evidently intended for the parties chiefly concerned.

"The feeling appears to be growing in London," said an authorized spokesman, "that if any party concerned in the issues at stake should show themselves lacking in a real desire to contribute toward a settlement they must obviously, in view of those issues, be guilty of criminal folly."

Assurance that the French government would support the British mission was given.

Dixie Davis Tells Of The Payoff To Hines

'Kid Mouthpiece' Of Schultz Policy Racket Tells Specifically Of Giving Money To Tammany Chief

NEW YORK, Aug. 31 (CP)—J. Richard (Dixie) Davis, 32-year old "kid mouthpiece" of the Dutch Schultz policy racket, testified today in the conspiracy trial of Tammany District Leader James Hines that he paid Hines approximately $40,000 as political "fixer" for the mob between October, 1932, and July, 1935.

NEW YORK, Aug. 31 (CP)—J. Richard (Dixie) Davis, 32-year-old "kid mouthpiece" of the multi-million dollar Dutch Schultz policy racket, today "put the finger" directly on Tammany District Leader James J. Hines by testifying that he paid Hines $2,000 in October, 1932. The Tammany boss is on trial as the accused "political front" for the racket.

"I visited Hines' home with Schultz," the witness swore, "and later went to see Hines with Leo Rosenthal."

Rosenthal was a Hines aide at his Monogastela Democratic club. "I told Hines I heard he needed money, so I gave him $2,000."

District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey had Davis describe a series of "social" trips he took with Hines, and the witness added:

"Hines asked me for 'numbers' game money any number of times. "How many times?"

"At least 15 or 20 times, at irregular intervals, from November, 1932, to the end of 1933," Davis replied.

Davis blandly conceded, under questioning by Dewey, that he had committed perjury "many times" in the past, declaring as to one specific instance:

"I may have told the truth, but I can't recall."

Spectators laughed. Davis said he met Hines at the Tammany leader's home in October, 1932, shortly after Dutch Schultz decided to "muscle in" on the lucrative Harlem policy game.

"How often did you see Hines during the next six months after October, 1932?" Dewey asked.

"Two or three times a week. We went to restaurants, prize-fights and the racetracks together."

Davis said he had been ordered by Dutch Schultz to "develop" See DIXIE DAVIS, Page 6, Col. 2

WEDDING PRESENT

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Aug. 31 (CP)—Brought into court on a speeding charge, J. W. Schools ventured: "Judge, I don't see how I can pay much of a fine. I'm getting married tonight."

"In that case," retorted the judge, "here's a wedding gift—case dismissed."

THE SPORTS PARADE

By HANK HART

(Whiskey betting for Hart.)

If any of those guys wanna make some money off the customers at this season's Steer grid games, you can submit a bid to Edmund Notelina, school manager, before Saturday, on various concessions at the stadium.

There's a lot of trouble behind the handling of these concessions, and the school authorities probably are considering the course of wisdom in getting part of the take and getting out of the responsibility. Looks like, though, what with as many school organizations needing a bit of cash through the year for one project or another, some system might be devised to let some of these groups handle the drink-candy-cushion sales. Teachers (if they're not already overworked with duties) might be in charge. It's just an idea.

And we should be hearing from the Steer camp down Junction way about any time now. The Murphy-Brandon hopefuls should have been joined by this time by the boys who made the softball trip to Ohio. There's a Lamesa to be taken care of, and no later than September 15.

It's difficult to get rid of the notion that the Abilene Eagles will be tops again in this district. Brother Mayhew always manages to come through with an overpowering mass of material. The Sportsman's Club, at last reports, was still functioning.

Wonder if the prestige of the Western Conference would be given another boost, if the Northwestern All-Stars took the Washington pros—Baugh, et al—to a cleaning next week; and if these pros came through tonight with a victory over the All-Stars up around Chicago, which they are likely to do? Yeah, a lot of it. And they still say that Rice and TCU are the babies to speak in the Conference this year. A lot of people give the Frogs the nod, despite Lela and Correll. We may be hearing from another power in the sports world, among West Texas collegiate circles, now that Pete Siles has become athletic director at San Angelo Junior college. Siles probably will step out and develop some contending teams in the JC category. The new president of the Angelo school, by the way, isn't called "Bull" now. He's Dr. Wilson Perkins. But it was a "Bull" that he played the way to Texas a counter for good ole Texas U.

If you're hankering after some more baseball, why not try a jaunt over to Midland tonight, and catch the second go between the Midlanders and the Clovis crew, engaging in the semi-finals of the Shaughnessy playoff? You'd probably get your money's worth. Besides, when Big Spring goes into the Shaughnessy chute next season, we'll be wanting Midland to come over and help boost the gate receipts. Turn about is fair play, or something.

CORPUS, HARLINGEN TAKE FIRST GAMES

CORPUS CHRISTI, Aug. 31 (AP)—Corpus Christi and Harlingen tucked victories under their belts last night as the Shaughnessy playoff opened in the Texas Valley League.

Harlingen, playing host, downed Telf 1-0 in 11 innings, and Corpus Christi beat Refugio 14-10, at Corpus Christi. The teams switch game sites tonight.

Hitting Spree Nets 11-4 Win To Cardinals

Lubbock Beats Wink 4-3 in WT-NM Playoff Series

Midland and Lubbock jumped into the lead in the West Texas-New Mexico League play-off series Tuesday night, defeating Clovis and Wink, respectively.

While Midland Cardinals slashed out 15 hits to defeat the Clovis Pioneers at Midland 11-4, Lubbock was administering a 4-3 licking to Wink at Lubbock.

Four home runs were included in the bevy of base hits off Coburn, Pioneer pitcher. Franklin, the Cardinal twirler, even opened up his big gun for the circuit in the second and eighth.

Midland jumped off to a one run lead in the first and swelled it to four with a three run barrage in the second. Clovis got its initial run in the second, but Midland came back in the fourth and added another in the sixth to ice the game away.

The Cardinals added insult to injury with a five run rally in the eighth, including three homers, Evans and Mullinger crashing the ball out of the park with none aboard and Franklin leaning on a fence ball with two aboard for his second homer of the night.

Texarkana, Tyler Cop Victories In Eastex Playoffs

By The Associated Press
Tyler blasted first place Marshall 15-5 last night in the East Texas League Shaughnessy playoff opener, while Texarkana scored two runs in the eighth to down the Henderson Oilers 5-3.

Playing at Marshall, the Trojans belted Jack Van Orsdal, league leading righthander, off the mound in three innings.

Marshall completed the game under protest, Manager Abe Miller protesting to Umpire Mackey over what he said was failure of the Tyler manager, Red Rollings, to report two changes in the Tyler lineup to the umpire and official scorer until one Marshall player had been retired.

Marshall plays Tyler at Tyler, and Texarkana and Henderson go to Henderson, for second games tonight.

Pirates Push Ahead Toward Pennant, Taking Giants, 7-1

By BILL BONI
Associated Press Sports Writer

Will Terry, the soft-spoken hardshell from Memphis, insists the Pittsburgh Pirates aren't backing into the National League pennant. Since the Pittsburgh Pirates stretched their margin to six and a half games by scuppering Will Terry's Giants, 7-1, yesterday, the man obviously had to say something in self defense.

He may, for that matter, be speaking the truth. But it's a cinch that the Pirates, if not backing in, aren't doing much more than standing still and letting the pennant come to them.

The August 1 standings saw Pittsburgh in front by five games, the Giants second by two and a half, and the Chicago Cubs third by one over Cincinnati. Since then the Giants have crawled along at a .444 pace, the Cubs have played .533 ball and the Reds .548. Yet the Pirates, as of today, had picked up only a game and a half on the Terrymen.

The solution is simple enough. Pie Traynor's Buccaneers, who have been making the opposition walk the plank one afternoon only to go off the deep end themselves the next, have split even in the last month on 15 victories and 15 defeats.

Dick Coffman, the "experimental" starting pitcher, was slugged all over the lot yesterday, principally by Gus Suhr, and, as reported with a lame elbow so that the infield had to be juggled again.

While the Pirates were pasting the Giants to a fare-thee-well the Reds rallied twice to whip the Dodgers, 6-4 and 7-4, thus moving up five percentage points behind Terry's tottering crew and four behind the Cubs, who lost an 8-1 decision to Milwaukee Jim Turner and the Boston Bees.

Effective pitching marked the Phillies-Cardinals double-header, with Max Burtner bearing down in the pinches to edge out the Cards in the opener, 4-3, and Clyde Shoun hurling one-hit ball in a five-inning relief trick as the Cards took the nightcap, 8-7, in the tenth.

American leaguers also accounted for two handsome pieces of pitching. Spud Chandler, after being nicked for a run in the first, shut out the Detroit Tigers the rest of the way as the Yanks won their fifth straight, 3-1, and John Duncan Rigney of the White Sox held the Senators to six hits in gaining a 3-2 verdict.

The Indians outslugged the Athletics, 10-8, with the help of two home runs by Jeff Heath and another by Bruce Campbell, and the Browns drubbed the Red Sox, 9-5, for Ed Cole's first mound victory of the year.

Houston Man Named Chief Of Legion

AUSTIN, Aug. 31 (AP)—Texas members of the American Legion trekked homeward today after their "most successful" convention in history.

More than 3,100 Legionnaires, their wives and their boys participated in the four-day 20th annual convales which concluded last night.

Before adjournment, the World War veterans mixed in a spirited ballot battle which saw Vincent Chido of Houston elected state commander.

Next summer, the Legionnaires will meet in Waco. Laredo delegates withdrew their bid.

Among resolutions adopted were one commending Congressman Martin Dies of Orange for his work as chairman of the house committee investigating un-American activities and one, which some thought was a slap at W. Lee O'Daniel, democratic gubernatorial nominee, which asked the laws be changed to require poll taxes of all government officials and employees.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 30 (AP)—James J. Waters, special attorney general, told Federal Judge A. F. Murray today E. R. Ernberger, McAllen, Texas, former head of the Western Service corporation, was too ill to be brought to trial on an indictment charging use of the mails to defraud.

Waters and Charles E. Dierker, federal district attorney, visited Ernberger recently and said they found him suffering from heart disease.

Ernberger was indicted in 1934 after the collapse of the gas utility company.

New Homer Record Prospects Are Slim, Says Greenberg

NEW YORK, Aug. 31 (AP)—Hank Greenberg, the slugging Detroit first baseman, says his chances of beating Babe Ruth's old record of 60 homers in a season are slim.

Unlike a lot of players, though, he's frank to admit that he's in here trying.

The old Bronx boy was found mapping at a bowl of breakfast prunes in the restaurant of the New Yorker. Hank's parents still dwell in the Bronx, incidentally, and it is a matter of record that he would have been playing for the Yankees today if the Yanks hadn't been pretty well fixed for first basemen.

"I'd say I'm about a 10-to-1 shot to break the Babe's mark," he said, tentatively. "It's been a strain ever since they started touting me to knock 61 homers. Every time I come to bat I'm trying for one. The fans want them. The result in my batting average has slipped to about .399.

"Another factor which hurts my chances is that they're giving me more intentional passes than ever, just like they did to Ruth."

Hartay Wins Over Hagen

Sheik Takes A Decision; Tremaine And Johnson Draw

Coming back after dropping the first fall to Jack Hagen, George Hartay made it two in a row to win the feature match of the evening at the outdoor wrestling arena Tuesday evening.

Hagen's fall came as a result of a well applied Japanese crab-hold, and Hartay added "with the help of the referee." But Hartay turned into a mean body slammer and had Hagen ready to toss in the towel on the last two falls.

Sheik Mar-Allah beat Don Hill with a cradle hold, while Hill was still groggy from an airplane spin. Andy Tremaine and Gustav Johnson made it "head scissors" night and grappled to a draw in their event.

Beckworth One Of Youngest Ever To Serve In Congress

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31 (AP)—The naming of youthful Lindley Beckworth, who won the democratic nomination to congress from an East Texas district in Saturday's voting, will make him one of the youngest persons ever to serve in the national legislature.

Not since 1920 has anyone of his age, 25, been elected to the congress. Research by the house minority clerk, William Tyler Page, capitol attaché for 56 years, showed that only two other persons enjoyed equal or greater distinction.

The "baby member" of them all was William C. C. Claiborne, early Jefferson democrat, who was elected to congress when only 22 years old.

John Young Brown, a Kentucky democrat, was elected to congress in 1855 at 24.

Texas' own Senator Morris Shepard also was one of the youngest men ever to enter congress. He was 27 when sent to the house in 1892 to fill the vacancy created by the death of his father.

CARDENAS TO STATE VIEWS IN MESSAGE

Mrs. Herrick said the cash settlement was the largest in the history of the labor board.

The agreement provides for the reinstatement of 22 employes of the three companies discharged after a strike which began June 12, 1937.

Dies And Perkins Trade Words Over Deportation Case

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31 (AP)—Chairman Dies (D-Texas) of the house committee on un-American activities said today Secretary Perkins had taken the "astonishing action" of "practically dropping" deportation proceedings against Harry Bridges, west coast C. I. O. leader.

Dies, en route to Texas, telephoned his statement here after the committee received from the secretary of labor a blunt rejection of its demand that Bridges be deported because he was a communist.

"It is laughable for a member of an executive department, especially Miss Perkins, to complain that a congressman was trying to usurp the functions of a government department," Dies said. "All that I am asking as a member of congress is that she enforce the law in the Bridges case, which she has not done to this date."

Miss Perkins wrote Chairman Dies: "The fact that communists are unpopular, and I agree in this, does not justify us in placing within that category every other unpopular person, nor in deporting them without a scrupulous regard for the due process of law, the clear and certain ruling of the courts and the facts in the case."

American Composers And Modern Music Are Discussed At Sorority

Mrs. R. E. Blount and Mrs. Ann Gibson Houser, guest speakers, brought enlightening messages regarding the early American composers and the permanents of modern music to members of Beta Sigma Phi at a meeting Tuesday evening at the Settles hotel.

The first composer, William Billings, was mentioned by Mrs. Blount as a crude musician but none the less important in the development of music in early America. Lowell Mason was also an important composer of the early days but John Payne was considered the outstanding master of early forms, the speaker related.

Mrs. Blount said that America had no definite style of music but she did have two types that are definitely her own—Indian and folk lore.

In reading a comment from a New York music critic, Mrs. Houser said modern musicians would be as permanent as streamlined cars, dictators and so on and concluded the statement with the question, "Does this mean our musicians will be permanent?"

The modern music follows modern times including loud and harsh tones, but one may be reasonably sure that it will take its place in the 20th century because the composers expressed the times in their music, she assured the group.

The sorority decided to have an open meeting Sept. 13 to continue a study of music with a number of guest speakers appearing on the program.

Present were Jimmie Lou Goldman, Mary Burns, Marquerite Alderson, Ann Zarafonetti, Mrs. W. J. McAdams, Mrs. B. T. Cardwell, Jeanne Suits and the speakers.

SADLER HAS THE BIGGEST JOB

No Texas public official will step into office next January shouldered with greater responsibility than G. A. (Jerry) Sadler, the Longview attorney who won a place on the railroad commission in spite of Lee O'Daniel's preference for his opponent, the veteran C. V. Terrell.

The pressure will be on Sadler simply because of the very vital part petroleum production—and its control—play in the welfare of this great oil-producing state. And the entrance of Sadler into the commission cannot but call for some changes, whether or not there is a radical change in policy.

The Texas railroad commission's operations and policies for the past several years have been at the discretion of Terrell and Ernest Thompson. Len A. Smith, who has disagreed with them on numerous matters, has been ousted. Beginning next year, Sadler and Smith, who supported him, will have the say-so, with Thompson being the minority—and virtually helpless—member.

Sadler who has announced himself as a strict conservationist, and said he would vote with Smith when he believed Smith to be right, and with Thompson when he believed Thompson to be right. Which is all well and good; but the question arises as to whether Sadler, not yet versed in the administration of this state's oil and gas affairs, will be able to tell which of his two colleagues is following a course best designed to help the petroleum industry of the state.

There may be a change, too, in key appointments. Laton Stanberry, chief oil supervisor, and V. E. Cottingham, oil production engineer, were Terrell appointees. They have played an important part in setting up the commission's administration of oil and gas matters; and what their successors, if any, would do, must be a matter of conjecture.

It should not be assumed that there are not other engineers as capable as these two; it should not be taken for granted that Sadler will go in office with a determination to overturn and revamp every program the Thompson-Terrell combination has put into effect. He could conceivably become a valuable balance wheel on the commission, helping it administer its authority fairly and profitably to the state.

But the fact remains that Texas, generally speaking, has endorsed commission policies of the past few years, as they were handled by Thompson and Terrell; and they will be hesitant to believe that any other combination of men will do so well. The pressure will be on Sadler.

By Preston Grover

(As guest columnist for Preston Grover, Harry C. Hawkins, chief of the division of trade agreements, State Department, reviews America's 18 trade pacts and cites their benefits. In the next column, U. S. Senator Bridges will state the case against the pacts.)

By HARRY C. HAWKINS
 Chief, Division of Trade Agreements, State Department

WASHINGTON—The reciprocal trade agreement between the United States and Ecuador, signed on August 6, brought the total number of trade agreements concluded up to the present time to 18.

The United States now has trade agreements with 10 Latin-American countries, seven European nations and Canada. Agreements have been concluded with Cuba, Belgium, Haiti, Sweden, Brazil, Canada, The Netherlands, Switzerland, Honduras, Colombia, Guatemala, France, Nicaragua, Finland, Costa Rica, El Salvador, Czechoslovakia and Ecuador. Negotiations are now under way with the United Kingdom, with Canada for a new agreement, and with Turkey and Venezuela.

In its four years of operation the trade agreements program has made significant contribution toward improved economic conditions within this country as well as toward peace and world recovery.

The Trade Agreements Act provides for negotiations with foreign countries for the reciprocal removal of excessive barriers to an increased exchange of products with them. Such barriers contributed to the decline in United States exports of from $5,250,000,000 in 1929 to a little over $1,500,000,000 in 1932. The trade agreements policy recognizes that in order to be able to sell its products, a nation must stand ready to buy the products of other countries.

Export Trade Up

The act authorizes the President, in connection with a trade agreement, to proclaim reductions in United States tariffs, by not more than 50 per cent, and to agree to "bind" unchanged the existing treatment accorded to foreign products during the life of the agreement. Under the "most-favored nation" provision of the act, the United States extends the concessions which it grants to the countries which with trade agreements are concluded to all countries which do not discriminate against its trade. The effect of this is to prevent discrimination against United States exports and, by maintaining equality of treatment to practically all countries to encourage international trade and stimulate a natural flow of world trade generally.

The act was passed in 1934. Since then, our export trade has improved steadily. For the calendar year 1937 total exports from the United States showed a 107.6 per cent increase over our total exports in 1932, and even through the business recession of 1933 and 1934, exports remained one of the brighter spots in the economic picture.

Imports Down

Our imports during recent years have been strongly influenced by special factors. They spurred noticeably as a result of the droughts of 1934 and 1935 and of our increased industrial activity. But more recently they have fallen off because of normal crops and the present lower levels of business activity.

For the fiscal year 1937-1938 our total imports from all trade-agreement countries increased 26.2 per cent over the 1934 and 1935 annual average. This rate is not markedly different from the 25.5 per cent increase in imports from all non-agreement countries for the same periods.

To the United States this means foreign markets, greater domestic purchasing power, as well as advantages for consumers. To this and all other countries it also gives hope of escape from the innumerable devices which, by constituting veritable economic warfare, have been a constant feature of trade.

If the trade-agreements program can halt the spread of this economic warfare and promote cooperation looking toward economic security and stability, it will have laid the foundations of world peace—for in economic peace and order lie the hopes of political peace and order.

NEW YORK—CONGRATULATIONS TO YOU for those communications the pilots give out on all ships. These aren't letters of the sort that say, "Dear Joe, that's a nice tie you're wearing and I hope you enjoy the chicken dinner."

But they're something you remember and tell your friends about. I have several of them folded in my pocket that Miss Heavily, the stewardess, gave me on a recent flight to St. Louis. The pilot makes them out and the hostess hands them around to the passengers. And they're called "Up to the minute flight information." Here's what one of them says:

Hollywood

Sights And Sounds

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—The movies are tough on marriages, but they're just as hard on Lover's Quarrels. The screen, the old meanie, has no time to waste on its puppets' deeper emotions.

Today, for instance, I saw the sheen of romance fanned cruelly for the amusement of the masses. I saw two presumably broken young hearts tormented because the show must go on. Nobody, by the way, has ever explained to my satisfaction just WHY the show must go on, but we'll let that pass for the moment.

Priscilla Lane and Wayne Morris—you've heard?—decided weeks ago that they were not made for each other after all.

What matter? Their roles in "Brother Rat" called for love. And kisses.

They did the kiss scenes today—a case of do-or-die for dear old Warner's.

As Director William Keighley warned the pair, "This is a trouper's job for both of you and personal inclinations don't count. Just act the parts and forget everything else."

They obeyed orders. They kissed—through much of the morning, again in the afternoon after lunch. And to these eyes it looked very realistic, very tender, very touching. But it was, of course, only acting.

Said Priscilla afterward, "It just HAD to be convincing—it's a very important scene in the story."
 Said Keighley, "It WAS convincing, I think."

Mr. Morris, scowling, said something about the toughness of being in love and called for a cold drink. He didn't specify whether he was speaking in character—or out.

You can see how it is, though. How long can a good difference of opinion last when you HAVE to kiss the girl?

Where's the Profit?
 The most amazing things come to this desk. Like this bulletin from the Max Factor-
 "Spencer Tracy has Hollywood's perfect photogenic face! He alone of all movie actors and actresses has that subtle quality of complexion and feature which enables him to be photographed sharply and cleanly without the aid of makeup highlighting."

It seems—I read on breathlessly—that Betty Grable rates highest among the gals (figuring 88 per cent on Max Photogenics Chart, whatever that is) but even she can't touch Tyrone Power's 94, or Gary Cooper's 93. (Tyrone and Gary ARE beautiful, aren't they?)

But when it comes to figures (curves, not mathematical) the ladies do all right. Danielle Darrieux, and again Betty Grable, have the finest figners for the camera, just eight points short of perfect.

Modest Bette
 Bette Davis has found a role she'd like to play, but she won't even consider it. A scrip on the life of Lily Langtry, the "Jersey Lily" of the mauve decade, has caught her eye.

"It's a great opportunity," she said ruefully, "but not for me."
 And why not? "Lily Langtry was a great beauty and—well, I'm not."

And that, boys and girls, is a sample of good sense you don't often run across in these parts where every third girl thinks all she needs is a glimmer make-up to play Helen of Troy.

Chapter 22
 Ear to the Keyhole
 I looked at my watch, discovered it wanted only five minutes of ten o'clock, and made my way along the highroad and up the lane to the chalet, to find Jean-Francois already awaiting me.

He clambered down from the wall on which he had been perching and came to meet me. "Monsieur," he said eagerly, "I think the saints that you are here! So much might have happened to you!"

"Well," I said as I seated myself in turn on the wall and lit a cigarette, "quite a lot has happened to me since I saw you last, but we'll leave that for the moment. What news have you?"

"First, I made my inquiries as to this Monsieur Dunning, and, monsieur, he is no journalist!"

"I know that already," I retorted rather wearily. "Since I saw you I've learned a lot about the gentleman; but what else, Jean-Francois? Surely that isn't all?"

"No," he agreed, a trifle chaffed, "there is more, monsieur, and serious news." He paused, looking at me obliquely out of his aloof-like eyes. "Why, monsieur, he demanded, "does Monsieur Rene Geiss hate you?"

"I shrugged. "What's his latest exhibition?"

"This," said he. "This morning I visited his villa—to collect, you understand, the cigarette-case that I prudently left there last night. I had the forethought to present myself at the service entrance, and the double forethought to bring with me a third bottle of cognac; and I was therefore well received by the man. The woman, he informed me, had gone to the market. They do not suspect me, those two, for I have told them I am a student on vacation from Paris, with much money to spend but no friends."

"A useful incognito," I commented. "What did the fellow tell you?"

"Monsieur, he told me nothing, for he was harassed beyond words. The Judge d'Instruction had come to call upon M. Geiss and had accepted an invitation to remain for lunch. My acquaintance was in despair, for at once he must commence his culinary preparations; his wife was absent and could not be recalled, and the dining-room was in disorder."

"And what did you do?" I asked curiously.

He struck himself on the chest. "Me? I revealed myself as the friend in need! I would, I said take upon myself to arrange the matter. I armed myself with mop and duster permitted him to lead me to the dining-room. I listened to his footsteps retreating to the door of a salon, from whence he came voicing. I applied my ear to the keyhole and took out my notebook!"

"I whistled in admiration for his colossal nerve."

He produced a notebook and flashed a small pocket-torch upon it. "Here, monsieur, is my transcript," said he with pardonable pride, and began to read rapidly.

"A Great Joke
 "It was Monsieur Juge who was speaking. 'Rene, you are sure that you are speaking the truth? Remember that not only my professional reputation, but also, perhaps my appointment itself depends on solving this case quickly.'"

"I know that," came the voice of Monsieur Geiss, "but I can assure you, my dear friend, that it is no fault of mine. My informant was trustworthy—Lumsden had undoubtedly hidden the gun there, but I fear that your flat-footed police chief must have given the alarm too early and allowed him time to conceal it."

"That is all very well," said the judge, "but how does it assist me? Remember, Rene, that it is on your advice that I have discontinued inquiries with the girl, and concentrated, instead, on the man Lumsden. I cannot afford to make a slip in this case, and you, you must not mislead me!"

"After that there was a long silence, but at length Monsieur Geiss spoke again. 'My dear one,' he said, 'be patient, I beg, and I assure you that soon more will come to light. The young man, Lumsden, is the assassin, we are agreed on that; but he is also a pathological case. Under the strain of suspicion, of remorse, of the ever present memory of his dreadful deed, his nerve will go and one of two things will happen: either he will kill again—violent action is always a relief to tortured nerves—or he will commit suicide.'"

"Well, I'm damned!" I said wrathfully. "Pathological case indeed! But what then, Jean-Francois?"

"Then!" said the boy, and paused dramatically. "Then, monsieur, the judge says, 'I do not wish for more murders! A suicide, yes, with perhaps a signed confession—if the wretched creature was driven to it by his remorse—that would solve all difficulties; but another unsolved murder! That would write fire to my career with a vengeance!'"

"Monsieur Geiss laughed. 'But,' said he, 'who spoke of unsolved murders? When he killed first, he planned the crime with a savage cunning, such cunning that, until I set you on the right path, you did not suspect him. But when he kills again, it will be because his nerve is cracking. He will strike out blindly, ferociously, never caring how he implicates himself. Wait another two, three days, and if I am not right, I will admit to the crime myself!'"

"That, monsieur," Jean-Francois continued gravely, "was considered a great joke by the judge, who laughed immoderately, but as sounds indicated that my acquaintance was returning from the kitchen, I fled back to my cleaning and heard no more!"

"I reflected. The lad's story had the ring of truth, and I could conceive of no reason why, if he were in Geiss's pay, he should have presented me with these two undoubtedly useful bits of information; and yet the memory of the hidden revolver still lingered.

"Tell me, Jean-Francois," I said on a sudden impulse, "as you approached the chalet this morning, or as you left it did you see any one else in the lane—any stranger, I mean?"

"But yes, monsieur!" he answered eagerly. "As I came away, I passed a fellow, long, unkempt, shuffling, dust-colored, and moreover a little mad, for he muttered to himself as he walked and twisted his fingers. And moreover times he whistled a strange tune."

"Poor Noah More!" I almost gasped, for his description tallied uncannily with Dunning's picture of the creature who had delivered the last issue of the Grimoire. "What was the tune he whistled?" I asked curiously.

He pursed his lips, and suddenly heard a little lilting melody. Half unconsciously I fitted old, forgotten words to my breath. "Kind you'll hear no more of poor Noah More, for poor Noah More's, are more!"

"You know it, monsieur?" asked Jean-Francois eagerly.

"I know it all right," I told him. "You've given me just the information I wanted," and forthwith I told him the story of the hidden revolver. "I've reason to believe," I concluded, "that an individual like the one you describe is working for Monsieur Geiss, and I'd be uncommonly glad if, the next time you see him, you hang on to his coat-tails and find out what he's up to."

"Even in the darkness I could see him flush with rage. 'Monsieur, I am your man, as you know—to the death, if need be, and I shall never rest until that rat is shut in the cage he deserves. But can you not tell me a little more? Why does he seek to implicate you in the crime?'"

"Because," I answered slowly. "I'm inclined to think that he's dangerously connected with it himself. I can't tell you more at the moment. I went on, as he caught his breath, 'There's one thing I want to know. What happens here on the 30th of this month?'"

"The 30th?" said he, surprised. "But that, monsieur, is the date of the braderie! The day which marks the end of the summer season, the day on which all shops sell off their stocks at booths on the main street, the day on which the whole town is on fete and everyone a little mad!"

"I see," I said slowly. "I'm unconsciously satisfied with what you've done. There's your salary for the next couple of days. Carry on as you're doing; cling to those admirable servants of Monsieur Geiss, and hear what you can from them; don't forget to keep an eye open for that vagabond, and report to me here tomorrow night."

"As your salary, monsieur," he said enthusiastically, and next moment I heard his running footsteps disappear down the lane.

I turned up the little road in the direction of the chalet, but as I neared the gates, a familiar purr made me quicken my steps. The Hispano's engine was running, and I stood back hastily, nearly blinded by the glare of her headlights as she took the bend.

"Oh!" I said, waving an arm as she pulled up

Zeppelin Test Set Next Week

German Ship Denied Helium, Will Use Hydrogen Gas

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Aug. 31 (AP)—Germany's latest Zeppelin, the LZ-130, is to take to the air for the first time next week, lifted by hydrogen gas as was the ill-fated Hindenburg because non-inflammable helium still is unavailable to this nation.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, pioneer in Zeppelin navigation, himself is to be in command of the flight to demonstrate his unflinching belief in the soundness of dirigible principles despite the destruction by explosion of the Hindenburg at Lakehurst, N. J., May 6, 1937.

The new ship will carry a crew for training purposes only, and passengers are not to be carried until her huge bags are filled with helium.

Dr. Eckener's determination to

Albany Tourney Is Slated Sept. 9-11

ALBANY, Aug. 31—Preparations have been completed for the Albany Links club's second annual invitational golf tournament, to be held at the Albany country club September 9, 10, and 11. Five full flights, including some of the best golfers in West Texas, are expected to compete for $200 worth of prizes.

The stag barbecue and calcutta pool will be held after the qualifying round closes September 9th. The tournament starts will be at Lake DeLafosse, Saturday evening, September 10th.

There is much interest locally in the possibility of a renewal of the J. T. Hammett-Russell Crownover feud. J. T. Bohannon, Doug Jones, and Skeeter Millican are other favorites expected to enter. The Albany course is in the best shape ever for the affair.

GROUP WILL ATTEND PHILCO SALES MEET

Members of the force of Carnett's Radio Sales here will be in Lubbock tonight to attend a district meeting of Philco radio dealers, at which the "mysteries" of the new Philco automatic control models will be explained.

Attending the meeting will be W. D. Carnett, Joe Pugh, Robert Lloyd, Eddie Savage and Len James.

Carnett this week has received first models of the new Philco models, featuring an automatic tuning device claimed to be an extremely advanced step in radio development.

THREE DEATHS IN REFINERY BLAZE

ODESSA, Aug. 31 (AP)—Three refinery workers were trapped and burned to death yesterday when a butane tank explosion wrecked the Barnard Refinery, five miles northwest of here.

The dead were R. H. Brooks, 35; Glen Carlton, 20, and G. T. Scott, 20. Twelve others in the refinery scurried to safety.

E. B. Reaser, president of the company, said the loss was estimated between $30,000 and $50,000.

McAdoo

Deal issue between Downey and McAdoo, 74-year-old former secretary of the treasury. Both expressed support of the president's program, although some of their trailing opponents had indicated varying degrees of opposition.

McAdoo, however, had voiced outspoken criticism of Downey's pension proposal. So had the president. The scheme provides that all unemployed persons in the state over 50 years old would receive $50 a week in scrip. This could be used to pay taxes or buy goods from any merchant who would accept it.

The pension issue carried over into the democratic gubernatorial race. Culbert Olson, a New Dealer who expressed mild sympathy with the $30-a-week proposal, was far ahead in an eight-man field. Second was Rep. John Dockweiler, pension advocate.

Gov. Frank F. Merriam held a commanding lead for republican renomination. Ahead in the republican senatorial battle was Philip Bancroft, a militant rancher. The pension scheme was not involved in those contests.

Democrats in South Carolina, where party nomination is equivalent to election, also had a big field in the gubernatorial race. Mayor Burnet Maybank of Charleston, a Roosevelt supporter, was top man, but must enter a run-off primary against Wyndham M. Manning.

Governor Johnston's defeat by Senator Smith apparently brought no change in Mr. Roosevelt's "purge" program. The president will go into Maryland next Tuesday and Monday to campaign for Rep. David J. Lewis against Tydings. He said yesterday he did not expect to speak in New York City against Rep. John O'Connor, whose defeat he has advocated. The president said he was amused and then saddened by advertisements sponsored by Tydings headquarters, in which citizens of Maryland were called on to "defend your state against federal invasion."

Britain

Britain's full diplomatic efforts remained concentrated on engineering fresh contacts between the Prague government and the autonomy-demanding Sudeten Germans and official Britain anxiously awaited indications of the German reaction to new compromise proposals to be offered by Prague.

Meanwhile Britain maintained close contact with the trouble center through a ring of her own unidentified observers scattered through hilly Bohemia to report and interpret developments in that seething home of the Sudeten Germans.

In Budapest, Premier Bela Imred said Hungary's agreement for non-aggression pacts with the Little Entente states—Czechoslovakia, Rumania and Yugoslavia—would not be considered effective until Czechoslovakia solves her minority problems to Hungary's satisfaction.

This decision, made at a cabinet meeting last night, was interpreted in some quarters as a result of talks in Germany last week during the state visit of Admiral Nicholas Horthy, the Hungarian regent.

In Washington, it was revealed Great Britain and France are making every effort to hasten delivery of the warplane reinforcements they have ordered in the United States.

Informed persons indicated the craft would not be ready for shipment within four or five months. The German-Czech situation is receiving the closest study by President Roosevelt and state department officials. Should conflict break out in Europe before the planes are completed, the American neutrality act might prevent their shipment.

Several persons desiring to learn to swim and half a dozen wishing life saving instruction reported to W. S. Morrison, Red Cross director of that activity here, at the munny pool Tuesday afternoon.

Morrison said the instruction, free to any person, would be continued throughout the week.

Joseph F. Kennedy, United States ambassador, also conferred with Halifax.

Picnic
liability instead of an asset to the community.
Dorsey Hardeman, San Angelo, representative-elect from the 11st legislative district, carried out the idea of citizenship in scoring general indifference and making a plea for constitutional government. W. C. Blankenship, city school superintendent, outlined the aims of the schools and invited suggestions from the brotherhoods. Much of the local support to schools, he realized, comes from the brotherhood families.
H. Hinman, whose drollery kept the crowd amused throughout the program, seriously remarked that if the farmers were backbone of the nation, that labor is the strength and support of the backbone. He joined the "pillars of labor and agriculture" as fundamental sections of American society. Hinman urged brotherhood members to not only seek individual welfare, but "to look out for the other fellow's interest."
Many out of town railroad men and members of their families were on hand for the celebration. Brotherhood chairmen were prevented from attending due to the necessity of their being in Chicago to fight against a wage decrease. Several of the real "old timers" of railroading, among them I. F. McKay, were present for the picnic. The event was once more the "biggest feast" of the year.
A dance at the Settles hotel climaxed the event. This year arrangements were under the direction of W. O. Wasson, Mrs. Charles Koberg and Ed Merrill.

BORDER PATROLMEN LEAVING B'SPRING
Effective Thursday, the U. S. Border Patrol will discontinue its post here in an effort to utilize personnel in other areas.
Harold F. Steck, senior inspector, will be transferred to Pecos in the Pecos Valley and several New Mexico counties. Clyde T. Rea, Border Patrolman stationed here, will go to El Paso.
Since the first of the year, tenure of Steck and Rea in Big Spring, there have been 25 deportations.

Members of the sheriff's department Wednesday said that the Big Spring woman charged in connection with the death of A. W. Hale near Abilene six years ago was Catherine Camp.
She was charged with murder along with another woman and two men.
Taken into custody here Saturday, Catherine Camp was removed to Abilene Sunday, Deputies A. J. Merrick and Bob Wolf, who made the arrest, said. She had a misdemeanor criminal record here over the past eight years, officers said.

"If we please you, tell others: 'If we don't tell us.' That is an old time-worn expression, but it is just exactly the way we feel about it. Your visit at our station is highly appreciated and we hope that we may have your continued patronage. If there is anything about our service or our stations which is not entirely satisfactory, we would appreciate your calling it to our attention. Use the space at right."

Service check cards for the voluntary comments of Humble customers are available at all Humble Service Stations. Literally thousands of them are received by the Humble Company each year. They tell their own story of Humble Service and Humble products. . . . The names of the writers of the cards quoted in this advertisement will be furnished any interested inquirer on request.

The Humble motor fuels and motor oils you get at Humble Service Stations and dealers, as this customer points out, are outstanding. They are offered you without a single exaggerated advertising claim, because we think that you, the user, are best qualified to pass on their quality. We ask you to try them, to compare them with other gasolines and motor oils you have used, and so convince yourself, like thousands of Texans, that Humble motor fuels and motor oils are definitely second to none.

Can't be beat, a customer from West Texas writes on a service check card . . . Best in Town. Thanks, says another, from the South . . . The usual fine Humble products, comments a lady from the North . . . An East Texan writes, I know what performance means. I get best results with Humble Esso . . . And a gentleman from New York state says, Wonderful mileage with no knock and plenty of power and pep.

Try Humble products. Next time you need gasoline or motor oil —stop for service where you see the Humble sign!
