

ATHLETICS WORLD CHAMPIONS

HOME TOWN TALK

By Beddy

Hearing more and more sentiment from all over the county for calling an election to vote bonds to finance paving of No. 9, No. 1 and whatever county roads, the commissioners court decide ought to be paved.

A lot of people do not understand why No. 1 ought to be provided for. As a matter of fact the highway commission does not intend paving No. 1 before No. 9. On the other hand it intends rushing No. 9 to completion if Howard county will ever awake and provide its one-third of the necessary cash.

We must all remember that on the paving of both these roads the state and federal departments will pay a total of two-thirds of the cost—and, therefore, they have the right to have something to say about it.

The highway commission realizes, correctly, that No. 1 is the most important, the most heavily traveled highway not only in Texas but the South. It is, therefore, not willing for Howard county to provide funds for No. 9 and not do the same for No. 1 because it knows, as everybody else does, that No. 1 is Howard county already is highly inferior and in a few years will be almost too bumpy to travel over, not to speak of being too narrow already.

We believe the highway department is justified in this position. It is that body's duty to look after the interests of the entire state; for those who travel from Texarkana to El Paso as well as those who go from Comahua to Big Spring.

That is why they are not willing for us to neglect No. 1.

Another thing—two of the worst grade crossings in Texas are on No. 1 in Howard county and it is very important that they be eliminated and you can tell the world they will be as soon as we dig up our third of the cost.

When we vote bonds for both roads we can sell them when we need to. That means that we would not have to sell the bonds to get No. 1 funds until the highway commission decided to pave No. 1, which likely would be one or two years.

Those property owners who live far from No. 1 and have expressed opposition to voting bonds for it should think the thing over, we believe. The owners of property along No. 1 are entitled to road improvements, too.

And right here let us say we believe Precinct No. 4, in which there is no state highway should be given some permanent road improvements, on country roads.

The expenditure of approximately $2,500,000—much of it for labor—would have a tonic effect right now.

Move To Improve Highways Gathers Strength

Club Lends Endorsement At Luncheon

Morrison Declares Time Is Opportune To Vote On Both Roads

The first move for a county wide bond issue for the purpose of constructing Highways Nos. 1 and 9, and lateral roads, was launched Wednesday at the regular luncheon of the Business Men's Luncheon club. M. H. Morrison was the principal speaker, and Fox Stripling was chairman.

It was announced at the meeting that W. R. Ely, chairman of the state highway commission, and Gib Gilchrist, highway engineer, would be asked to come to Big Spring within the near future to confer on the proposed project.

Morrison, in speaking of the proposed county wide bond issue, declared he felt that it was the opportune time to ask Howard county voters to support the project.

"Six months ago," he declared, "I was in a meeting of representative men at the Crawford hotel regarding a bond issue, and I felt that it was not time then to support such a project. However, now I do feel it is the opportune time."

"Highway No. 9 has always been a pet project of mine. I am proud of Highway No. 1, but I long for the north and south outlet."

"I feel, for several reasons, that now is the time to put this bond issue over in Howard county. One of the reasons is that the T. & P. N. Railway and the highway to the north will be parallel, creating no further damage to the farmer."

"We have met with Chamber of Commerce directors, and have received their endorsement. I want to say, however, this is not a Chamber of Commerce project. It is not a commissioners court movement. It is not this club's idea or any other club's, but a movement for the entire population of Howard county to join in with."

According to Morrison the group met with the Commissioners' Court Wednesday morning and after a session of two hours, the commissioners declared their willingness to cooperate with the movement in every way.

Morrison insisted that the campaign for the county wide bond issue be "clear cut."

"There will be nothing covered up. Our cards must be placed upon the table. The cost of the roads must be estimated and given to the public, together with the routing and increase in the tax rate."

He urged the organizing of a body to be known as the Howard County Road Committee.

He reviewed the past efforts to obtain state aid and get authority to vote on a bond issue for construction of No. 9. He declared the highway commission had time after time refused to allow a bond issue for this highway, unless Highway No. 1 was provided for.

"I believe they are right," he declared. "We must vote bonds for the east and west, the north and south routes."

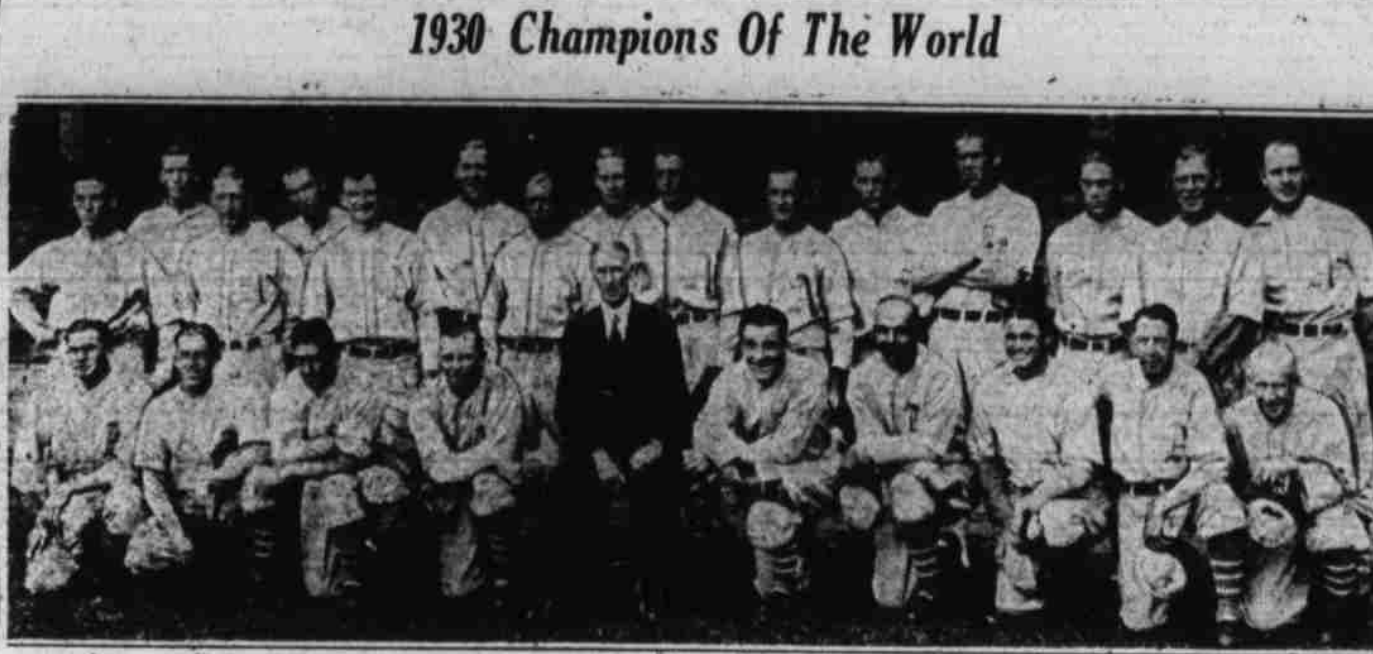

"The No. 9 highway was designated in 1917. Since then we've done nothing about it. I say to you today, as I have said to others before, if we're not going to vote bonds for construction of a highway along that designation, let's cancel it and let tender it back to them. Let them give the designation to some county that will work with them in constructing the highway."

C. T. Watson, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, in speaking of a five bond issue, declared that for three years his organization had been "holding meetings to discuss it." He declared that with the highways in their present condition, many people go out of this, their faithful trade territory, for their supplies. His belief is, he declared, that increase in trade in Howard county would pay for the highways.

He suggested the campaign be utilized and every resident of the county be given the opportunity to sign the petitions asking for the bond election.

Watson declared that Highway No. 63, running parallel with No. 1, but north of Big Spring, was now getting traffic that belonged to this route.

O. C. Bayes, Pete Johnson, George White and W. R. Sneed, county commissioners, were guests of the club, and each made short talks relative to the bond issue. White declared to his knowledge

Hoover Home From Trip Of Speech Making

By D. HAROLD OLIVER WASHINGTON, Oct. 8 (AP)—President Hoover returned to Washington today, tired but contented with receptions accorded him in the southland which culminated the most strenuous speaking tour undertaken since his inauguration.

En route to the capital from King's Mountain in the Carolinas where he made his fourth set address in six days yesterday, the president last night yielded to requests from nearly half a dozen stops of his train in one of the four states of the solid south that gave him a majority in 1928 and appeared with Mrs. Hoover on the rear platform to greet the crowds awaiting him.

At only one point, Charlotte, had a stop been scheduled—this was at the request of Representative Jonas, a republican running for re-election—but brief halts also were made at Annapolis, Salisbury, High Point and Greensboro, all in North Carolina. Crowds jammed the station at each point and applauded the president and his wife as they went to the platform of their car.

At two points in North Carolina, the president made a brief talk and at a third, Danville, Virginia, he assumed the role of humble laborer while a textile strike, in working clothes, told him of the textile strike in that city and heard the president repeat what he had said from the train earlier the day at the same point—that such troubles must be adjusted in a peaceful manner.

At Salisbury, the president heard a man shout from the crowd as his train started away: "We're for Hoover 100 per cent."

"Now that you have the habit, keep it," the president replied and the crowd joined him in laughter. Dispensing with the formality of his speaking trip, he told a large group at Charlotte that his ancestors came from that region and "after looking over the industrial development of this section, which has proved itself one of the most progressive in the United States, I wonder why they ever left it."

He thanked the people of the Carolinas for his reception, which he said had "overwhelmed" him. Thousands jammed the surrounding hillsides to hear the open air presidential address yesterday in celebration of the Sesqui-Centennial of the battle of King's Mountain in South Carolina, just below the North Carolina border.

Speaking from a platform reared in a valley beneath the hill summit on which the British and Ferguson were defeated by a small band of patriots 150 years ago, the president stressed the need for preservation of the American principle of equal opportunity for all as opposed to Bolshevism and class government.

"While we cannot permit any foreign person or agency to interfere with our operations, we are improving after undergoing a major operation Tuesday at the Big Spring hospital."

Oil Industry's Faster Step Is Described

TULSA, Okla., Oct. 8 (AP)—The oil industry has quickened step to keep pace with the requirements of automobile makers for improved motor fuels was described today by the petroleum division, American Society of Mechanical Engineers, meeting here in connection with the Seventh Annual International Petroleum Exposition.

The cracking process, which has enabled refiners to produce gasoline of superior "anti-knock" qualities, was termed the greatest forward step taken by the oil refining industry in the last 15 years.

Spurred on by an increasing demand for high quality motor fuels, further research may lead to development of additional improvements that will provide a gasoline giving a still better performance and more nearly fitting the needs of present day high compression engines, Huff said.

Stressing the importance of the development of cracking, he said the process was almost wholly responsible for increasing the average total yield of gasoline from 26.1 per cent of the amount of crude oil produced in 1919 to 46.1 per cent of the crude oil production in the first four months of 1930.

In the cracking process, oil is distilled at high temperatures under pressure. A chemical-physical change is effected in the structure of the oil, the size of the molecules being reduced and "cracked" to make gasoline. Before the advent of cracking, the refining of oil was a process of physically separating the various fractions of crude oil by distillation at atmospheric pressure.

Angelo Boy Shot Victim

SAN ANGELO, Oct. 8 (AP)—Funeral services for Vester Charles Kinchele, 11, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Kinchele, and victim of a "police man and robber" game yesterday afternoon, will be conducted here today.

Death came at 3:45 o'clock this morning, almost twelve hours after he was shot by Lefty Spires, 8, both of the children were playing with shotguns. Young Kinchele snatched his empty gun at his playmate's side and shot entered the Kinchele boy's side, lodging in the liver and lower part of the lung. He was rushed to the hospital where an operation was of no avail.

Witching Tales Told Wisconsin Court Hearing

JANESVILLE, Wis., Oct. 8 (AP)—It was a day for witches and wizards.

Rain pelted the windows of the municipal court room in which a member of the state board of medical examiners listened to charges of sorcery against Henry Dorn, 64-year-old German farmer.

His sister, Mrs. Herman Prey, here, family and neighbors whom Dorn blamed for the failure of sorcery and magic, huddled on a single bench in the little courtroom. The wind whined, and rattled the windows eerily.

They glanced uneasily at old Dorn sitting silently, his long chin resting on the handle of a cane clutched between lean knees. Occasional whispering sounded. It was almost as though they expected old Dorn suddenly to fly, astride his cane, out a window into the greyness of the day.

Harry Fox, assistant district attorney, and Walter A. Drews of the state board of medical examiners conducted the hearing. They expressed themselves today as convinced that the charges of sorcery against Dorn were without foundation.

These charges were that by the strange power witches and wizards are presumed to have, Dorn caused crows to fly, apples to rot on trees and hens to cease laying eggs. He had placed a curse on the charges, said, on growing crops; and long spells of sickness had come to the home of his sister.

In continuing the hearing today, Fox and Drews said that while satisfied that the "hex" stories were foundationless as concerned Dorn, they (Fox and Drews) were curious to hear more of the part Herman Engelhardt, a Rockford, Ill., spiritualist, may have played. They sought to determine whether Engelhardt practiced medicine without a license.

Dorn said Engelhardt "treated" him several times on an ailment. Once there was a farm house seizure, and Dorn said the spiritualist accused him of "reading black books and practicing evil ways."

Seven Local Boys Held For A Burglary

Seven Big Spring boys were being held by Mitchell county officers today, as parents were coming from school Wednesday afternoon to the aid of both the boys and the officials.

County Attorney Garrett was detaining the youths, a hearing to be held at 3 o'clock today, following their arrest last night in Colorado while a hardware store was being burglarized.

The oldest of the seven is 14 years of age. Two are 14 years old, two 13, one 12 and two 11.

According to the story they told the county attorney, they ran away from school Wednesday afternoon because they "had been whispering and the teacher was going to whip us."

They told Garrett they boarded a freight train in Big Spring, but that a brakeman put them off three miles from Colorado about dark.

As three stood watch in front and three in back, one of the group is alleged to have broken into a hardware store and filled his pockets with knives and other articles. They were arrested by policemen.

No charges had been filed at 2 o'clock this afternoon. According to Garrett he is "at a loss" what to do with the boys. Their parents have been notified.

Legion Parade Followed By Street Fights

BOSTON, Oct. 8.—City and American Legion police controlled the downtown streets today after a night of disorder by mobs of hoodlums. Overturned automobiles, ashes of scores of bonfires that had been built in downtown thoroughfares and on Boston Common, and here and there a battered head, marked the passing of the rowdies, who took advantage of the privileges extended the Legionnaires on a night of frivolity after the annual parade in connection with the national convention.

At one time it seemed that the melee in Park Square might gain the proportions of a vicious riot. Dennis J. Londu, heading a detail of federal agents, had arrested four local men for peddling liquor in the square. As he started marching his men away, the crowd, composed mostly of toughs, who ranged in age from 14 to 20, moved on him.

Fists fly. Fists began to fly and the agents had their backs to the wall when a squad of police forced their way through the crowd to rescue them. Legion police or "co-ops" held a line open while the agents and their prisoners were brought to the comparative safety of a nearby street. These four were the only arrests during the sporadic outbreaks that marked the post-parade celebration. Police who attempted to round up the detached mobs of hoodlums were hindered in making arrests by the crowds that milled through the streets all night and during the early morning.

The best authorities could do was guard the packed wooden grand stands along the parade route from flames that spread from bonfires on the street and the common.

Fire Hazard. Confetti, ticker tape, crates and boxes that had been used as seats by parade spectators made excellent fuel. Fires burned everywhere there was a few feet of vacant space. At the corner of Stuart and Tremont streets a decrepit automobile caught fire. One of its left occupants was rescued by pedestrians. One had his trousers burned. None of the automobilists was a Legionnaire. Boxes and crates that were not burned and tin cans that would not burn were hurled at passing automobiles by the toughs. Taps of the machines were dented and a torn tire in one or two crushed. Automobiles were seized and jounced un-

THE Dancing Silhouette

By ROBBIN COONS
HOLLYWOOD—Another year to prove it's the little things that count.

An actor we know, once a star,
was well on the way to regaining his old position.

One evening
entertaining a few friends at home, he intrud-
ed his new butler
that he did not wish to be disturbed. The butler, as it happened, was a foreigner, newly-
arrived and unfamiliar with picture names.

During the evening a stranger came, gave his name to the butler, and insisted his seeing the actor. The servant replied that the master was not at home, although the buzz of conversation in an adjoining room was clearly audible. The visitor left, greatly incensed.

Chapter 27
HOUSEHOLD INTRIGUE
Pulling away the shawl which enveloped her head, Thorne recognized Lucy, the housemaid.

"Stop moaning," he whispered
sharply, giving her a shake to emphasize his meaning. "Now, as the gurgles ceased, 'what are you doing prowling about the house?'"

"I ain't up to no harm," she protested, her voice hoarse from fright.
"Just on my to see—"

"Who?" she paused, getting no answer his right hand slid toward his hip pocket; he hated to threaten a woman—but Lucy caught the chill significance of the gesture.

"Don't shoot, mister!" she entered, raising both hands in supplication, and thereby releasing her hold on an envelope, until then slightly clenched in her right hand.
Thorne caught the paper as it fluttered to the floor and turned it over.
Elsa Chase's name was written in pencil on the sealed envelope.

"Where did you get this?" he demanded, and his fingers closed on her arm with no gentle grip. "I want the truth, or you go with me
to police headquarters."

Lucy winced. "I'll tell," she whispered, terrified at the mere suggestion of arrest. "Twas in Lambert's room."

"And he gave it to you?"
"No, Her eyes fell and she plucked nervously at her shawl. "Lambert wasn't there when I took the envelope from under his pillow."

"When was that?"
"Just now, she admitted. "I heard Lambert creep out of the room, oh, a long time ago."

"Did you put out the lights in the hall?"
"Ni-no," she protested, drawing
in her breath with a sucking noise.
"I hadn't promised I never would have moved out of bed tonight."

"Whom did you promise?"
"Her that wanted the note."
"Miss Elsa Chase?" with patient persistence.
"Ain't her name on it?" she inquired anxiously. "Didn't I get the right note in 'de dark?'"

"The envelope is addressed to Miss Chase," he responded. "But why were you carrying it in the opposite direction from the staircase leading to her bedroom?"

The question confused Lucy and for a second she did not reply.
"But I wasn't," she said, tears rolling down her cheeks. "I was taking it to Mrs. Winslow."

"At this hour?" skeptically.
"Is 'de God's truth?" She was pleading now, sobbing almost choking her voice. "Mrs. Winslow promised a hundred dollars if I found Lambert sneaking about. I saw him drop this letter after dinner, out I dassented try and get it till I was sure he'd gone."

"And you could not wait until morning to give it Mrs. Winslow?"
asked Thorne curiously.
"I was just going to slip it under her door," explained Lucy, gulping back another sob. "She'd a seen it
the first thing in the morning."

"Go to your room," Thorne directed. "Say nothing of what has happened. If you do, I again him approached her and she shrank away,
'I'll turn you over to Inspector Mitchell."

With an articulate sound—relief
and promise combined, Lucy fled from the room. Thorne kept behind her making certain that she returned to her own quarters. A moment later he tried Lambert's door. It opened to the touch and locating a light switch, he pressed the button. Lucy was right, the butler was not there, nor had the bed been slept in. A look in the closet showed his hat and overcoat were missing. Thorne stroked his chin thoughtfully; evidently Lambert had been in such haste that he had overlooked delivering the letter to Elsa. By such narrow margins, justice was served!

Ten minutes later Thorne approached his own room and taking a smallawl from his tool belt, he slipped it inside the key hole of his door to poke out the block of wood which had been put there to prevent any one from spying on him.
The awl shot through the hole to its full length, meeting no obstacle.

Thorne withdrew the tool and applied his eye to the keyhole—there was no light in his room—and, by the same token, there was no wood in the keyhole. He turned the knob and pushed against the door. It was still locked, apparently, for it would not open. Taking out the key, which he carried in the pocket of his trousers, he inserted it in the lock and opened the door.

It was an instant or so before Thorne entered his bedroom, first taking the precaution to slip his hand around the door jamb and turn on the lights. No one was in sight. Closing and locking the door, he looked down on the floor. Some distance away lay the wooden plug.
His smooth surface bore unmistakable scratches where some sharp instrument had been jammed into it.

With revolver cocked and ready,
he went into both closets in the room and then into the bathroom.

Lucy returned immediately, convinced that no other human being besides himself was there.

Had the unknown who pushed the wooden peg out of the keyhole done
so simply for a look into his room to see if he was there, or had the intruder, provided with a key, come inside and gone out, relocking the door? And was that intruder the remarkable dancer whose shadow he had seen for the second time silhouetted on the drawn curtain of the dormer window of the locked room in the attic?

He frowned in bewilderment as he reached around and pulled the reading lamp by the side of the bed closer to him. Then picking up the envelope he had taken from Lucy,
he examined the words: "Miss Elsa Chase carefully through his magnifying glass. Undoubtedly it was Jack Winslow's writing. So that was how he communicated with Elsa—through Lambert.

For a moment Thorne hesitated, then taking up his penknife he ran one of the blades under the flap of the heavy, linen-lined envelope and looked inside. It was empty.

The next second the room was plunged in darkness and Thorne, resting on his pillows, prepared for a long vigil—one thought uppermost in his mind. Had Lambert, true to his trust, given the contents
to Elsa, and in intentionally left the sealed envelope as a decoy, or had Lucy removed the note?

Next morning when Arnold Win-sorrow entered the dining room for breakfast, it was to find his wife prepared to sit on him, instead of the servants. She was in a far from amiable spirit.

"Arnold," her husband winced
at the severe pronouncement of his given name. "The servants are demoralized; Lucy ill in bed, Lambert absent." She put the coffee pot and cream pitcher on the dining table
at his elbow. "It is best to discharge Lambert."

Winslow's spoon rattled against the side of his cup as he stirred his coffee. "Discharge Lambert." He repeated the words mechanically.
"My dear, after all these years of faithful service! Impossible."

His wife's thin lips closed in their most obstinate lines. "You must let me be the best judge of his worth,"
she said. "Sometimes a servant can remain too long in one place, and,
picking her words with care, "I feel Lambert has outlived his usefulness
as a butler."

The steaming coffee cooled with the quantity of cream Winslow poured into it. He emptied his cup before replying, sipping it slowly.
"Do as you think best," he smiled
across at his wife. "Your judgment is always sound. Send Lambert to me when he returns." Winslow pushed aside his plate, the bacon and eggs untouched, and rose. "Did you see Thorne before he left?"

"Last night?"
"I meant this morning; Thorne spent the night here." He looked up and caught his wife's startled expression. "What is the matter?
Are you ill?"

For a second she could not get her breath to answer. "I'll be all right in a minute. A glass of sherry Arnold," and so saying she slipped back in her chair in a dead faint.

Why does Mrs. Winslow faint?

in the house the night before?

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 8 (AP)—More than 6,000 yards of rugged fairways with a woman's par of 80, is the battle ground where October 13 to 18 the 34th women's amateur golf championship will be fought.

Two six par holes, and eight requiring five strokes to equal perfect figures, mark the tough spots of the hazard ridden Los Angeles Country Club course over which Glenna Collett of Del Monte, Calif., defending champion, and four times winner, will make her stand.

The course will put a premium on a good driving game, with nine of the 18 holes 400 or more yards long. Only four par 3s are included, with the shortest of these 110 yards. The longest of the 6s reaches 530 yards.

A sparkling list of entrants, becoming a national championship, has been turned in including besides the defender, Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, Pittsburgh, three times a title holder, Mrs. Helen B. Stetson, Philadelphia, winner in 1926.

BUCKS CLASH WITH HEARD SATURDAY

Steers Set To Meet 1929 Champs

As we were saying when we suddenly surprised all gathered around us by going off on a prolonged castor oil sag, the Breckenridge Bucks, under the guidance of Silent Showell, the maker of championship teams, the heavier timber will move out of the historic village Saturday and take this West Texas metropolis a call. Perhaps it was well an act of Fate, maybe, that made us shut a couple of influenza germs from Dr. Wofford Hardy's moustache at the Eastland-Big Spring affair, and become suddenly afflicted with chills and fever over the present, past and future status of the Steers and wonder just exactly what chance they had against these co-champs of 1929, although so far they have shown nothing of championship array.

Pardue Expected To Be Able To Play Against Breckenridge

With a standing in the percent-age column of 67-20 wins and one loss—the Big Spring Steers will be fighting to increase their lead Saturday afternoon when the 1929 Co-Champions of Texas High school football circles come here for the annual conflict.

Their latest, lonely and solitary achievement in Class A was accomplished last Friday afternoon when they trimmed Mineral Wells Mountaineers 26 to 0. The doers scattered hither and yon seem to take this as a barometer of approaching storm from out of the Stephens County stronghold. Yes, no Class A team knows Mineral Wells any better than the Steers. The Steers know that the Mountaineers are not as easy as they appear to please them. The Steers despise them 12 to 6, but after it was over in a football game. If Rex Murray played in the Breckenridge game, the Bucks weren't playing such a bad team. There is no question in our mind but what Murray had no business playing, but he wasn't eligible to play against the Steers. Coach Moore and Stovall shoved him into the fray despite that. The trouble with Mineral Wells is that it can't collect its scattered power and crush through. Last year it was due to two causes, the coach and the players' non-training complex. This year it must be due to something else. Therefore, the Bucks 26 to 0 triumph over the Mountaineers wasn't so bad, considering the fact that of Beene Magness and the revised 1929 edition of Mr. Showell's mould. It is a cliché that the Bucks overshadow the Steers. But so did Eastland for that matter.

The vulnerable spot in the Steers' lineup was their inability to stop the passing affair of Flowers and Phillips. Inasmuch as these two men charged unscratched over the Maverick affair, it is only logical that the Bucks would take heed of Flowers and Phillips, Little Coats, Noel, Mims, Rogers, Kigwell, or who happens to be in the line.

HOME RUN BY FOXX DECIDES FIFTH GAME

Jimmy Foxx, first baseman of the Athletics, is shown here as he came into home plate after hitting a home run in the ninth inning of the fifth World Series game. The four-base wallop gave the A's a 2-0 victory over the Cardinals, Cochrane scoring ahead of Foxx.

Wilson Most Valuable Man In National

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 5 (AP)—Hack Wilson, slugging center fielder of the Chicago Cubs, has been voted the most valuable player of the National League by a committee of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Wilson, who smashed all National League home run records this year and dethroned Babe Ruth as the major league home run king, won the distinction after a close contest with Frankie Frisch, captain of the St. Louis Cardinals, and Bill Terry, first baseman of the New York Giants and the new National League batting champion.

The election, although made by the same committee that functioned on behalf of the National League in 1928, was unofficial inasmuch as the league last year abandoned its annual custom of picking the most valuable player and rewarding him with $1,000. However, William L. Veeck, president of the Chicago Cubs, announced that the Chicago club would give Wilson the $1,000.

Wilson, although he received only one vote for first place, had a total of 70 points, five of the eight writers picking him for second place, one for third and another fourth. Frisch received four votes for first place and a total of 64 points, while Terry was the first choice of three of the writers and had a total of 58 points.

Wilson led both leagues in home runs with a total of 56. He created a new all-time major league record for runs batted in, totaling 100, and his batting average was .336.

Cardinals, Already Ahead Of Recent National Performances In Series, Play In Philly Today

By BRIAN BELL. (Associated Press Sports Writer) PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 5.—For the first time since 1926 a sixth World Series baseball game was scheduled today, with the Athletics and Cardinals renewing hostilities at Shibe Park. There were seven games four years ago, when the Cardinals defeated the Yankees for the world's championship, and there will be seven games again if St. Louis stops Philadelphia today.

As it is the National League's best performance from their league in the last three campaigns. In 1927 the Pirates were stopped by the Yankees in four straight games and these same Cardinals had no better luck against the New York Americans in 1925. Last year the Chicago Cubs won one and lost four to the Athletics.

The Cardinals have won two games which can not be taken away from them. So win, lose or draw in the remaining game, or games, they have done better than the Pirates of 1927, the Cardinals of 1928 or the Cubs of 1929.

Jim Maloney Outpoints Big Italian Pug

By BILL KING. Associated Press Sports Writer BOSTON, Oct. 5.—The fist capabilities of Primo Carnera, heretofore either under or over estimated, were accurately gauged last night by Jimmy Maloney, Boston's favorite but unreliable heavy-weight. Giving away 65 pounds to the Italian behemoth, the Boston "fat boy" clearly outpointed him in a furious 10-round slugfest at the Boston garden.

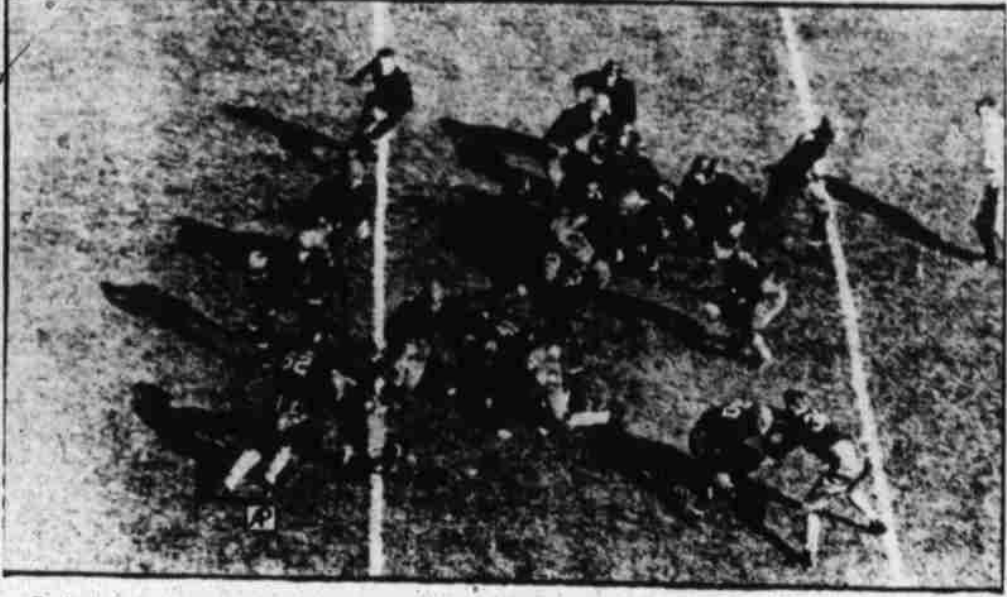

Maloney proved that Carnera does not possess a killing punch. He dished exactly 185 of the giant's blows and the only time he lost his footing was when he fell against the ropes after raising a wild "round house" right to the Italian's jaw late in the bout. The Boston battler's performance, at least to the 12,000 who witnessed the exciting setto, also indicated that it would be sound judgment to disregard the 23 consecutive victories that the "ambly eye" has piled up against carefully selected opponents since he started his American ring invasion early this year.

The Boston battler also proved that Carnera was easy to hit. Maloney scored 192 times to the head or body of his huge opponent and 90 per cent of them landed cleanly. Most of Carnera's punches were short right or left chops to the head and body, struck after his brute force had pushed his 195-pound rival against the ropes or into a corner. Maloney was on the short end of the 4-1 betting odds but he fought the greatest battle of his long ring career and his victory was honestly earned.

It is interesting, perhaps, to some, that the Steers received little credit for their victory over the Mavericks, despite the fact they should receive it all. When one of these less intelligent writers picks another team to win and his choice chogs not to win up the score, he invariably huns around in his brief case for a little credit for their victory over the Mavericks, despite the fact they should receive it all.

The Steers have played more Class A teams than any other in the remaining nine, and still are in excellent shape to cope with what Showell has for them to cope with Saturday.

Negro Admits Ice Pick-Slaying Of White Woman

GLEN MILLS, Pa., Oct. 5.—Alexander Morley Whitmore, 14-year-old negro inmate of the Glen Mills School for Boys, was held Saturday at an undisclosed place to answer the charge of slaying the 19-year-old daughter of Mrs. V. H. Roberts, a matter of the 1928 station which bodies between 60 and 70 feet. The attractive body was found dead in her bedroom last Friday with 28 stab wounds in her chest.

Williams, after his confession to Major E. H. Hickman, superintendent of the school, District Attorney William J. MacCort and county clerk, was removed to a secret place of imprisonment at MacCort's order to guard against a possible demonstration.

Revenge on Mrs. Roberts' husband, an instructor at the school, was a motive, and a plan to steal her keys so that he might obtain a bottle of shoe polish from a locked closet, were motives for the slaying, Williams' confession said.

He went to the Roberts' home when no one was there, but Mrs. Roberts' dog took an ice-pick to the chest, then saw Mrs. Roberts in her bedroom dressing. She ordered him away and he attacked her with the ice pick, he said.

Between The Wavelengths

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD (Associated Press Radio Editor) When one slips behind the scenes in broadcasting, there's lots to be heard, some that can't be recorded and some that can.

We'll sort out a few of the secrets, but others are too good to keep. So we'll tell you that.

KNOTT

KNOTT, Oct. 5.—The singing class met Sunday afternoon, with a number of visitors among them W. R. Purser, C. C. Nance, W. A. Prescott and Mr. Pittman of Big Spring. Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Covington and Mrs. Robinson and daughters of Center Point. The class is again growing in interest since new books have been received. Visitors are always welcome.

This community has had several light showers the past week delaying cotton picking and of no value to the present crop. The grade of cotton was damaged and did little good as the farmer do not sow fall grain here.

Jack Charles, the seven year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie Aihart, who fell from the back of a car in which his mother was hauling water Tuesday was still in a Big Spring hospital suffering from severe arm injuries. Not knowing that he had fallen out of the car his mother drove some distance and was met by a man on horseback bringing the boy home. He is expected to recover soon.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Carlisle entertained the following with a chicken barbecue Thursday: Mr. and Mrs. Lee Castle and son Hubby, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Phillips and children, Mr. and Mrs. Elva Phillips and daughter, Billie, Rob. Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Duke and two daughters, Eunice Mae and Maxine, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Johnson and Miss Reye Goode. They played several games and enjoyed themselves very much.

The school board and several parents met Monday evening to discuss the school problems and the board decided to postpone opening of the session two weeks more, setting the date at October 27. They issued an invitation to all parents and friends of the school to meet there next Monday and help repair the building and the seats. It is feared by the school board that the session will extend but seven months. The women will bring dinner and everyone is asked to come and enjoy the day socially and work for benefit of the school at the same time.

Former Republican Leader Succumbs

EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, Mo., Oct. 5 (AP)—Edward Livingston Morse, former member of the Republican national committee, died early today at his home here. Morse suffered a heart attack Sunday, the second within ten days. Yesterday his condition became steadily worse.

The strong influence he wielded for years in state and national republican affairs began to wane after disclosures of his connection with the distribution of an alleged "black fund" in behalf of the presidential candidacy of Frank O. Lowden which contributed to the collapse of the former Illinois governor's race for the republican nomination in 1920.

Realization

For a long time the Shellys had done without a piano although Mrs. Shelly and Tom and Mary all knew how to play. When the family had moved to West Texas from Kansas the piano had been sold and one thing and another had prevented the buying of another. Then one day Mrs. Shelly happened to glance through the classified columns of the Herald and there she found an opportunity to secure a good used piano at a sacrifice. Another family was moving from the city and could not take the piano. Now Mrs. Shelly realizes (since the piano was bought at such a moderate price) that the classified advertising columns daily offer just such opportunities as provided the piano for her family. She never misses reading the "want ads" every day.

Almost every imaginable object can be purchased through the Classified Ad Columns of The Big Spring Daily Herald, Big Spring's greatest market place.

Whether it's an object for the home, or a home itself, or a place to rent, or a used car, or an opportunity to enter business, or a chance to loan money, it will pay to keep a close watch on these busy, interesting columns that present new offerings every twenty-four hours.

EVERYDAY QUESTIONS

Answered By
Dr. S. Parkes Cadman

Questions from readers are answered by the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, Radio Minister of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America. Dr. Cadman seeks to answer inquiries that appear to be representative of the trends of thought in the many letters which he receives.

Do you think emotionalism plays a great part in religion? Yes and it should. Watch crowds on national occasions, at baseball or football matches, or when some political or military hero appears before them. You call that enthusiasm. But true religious emotionalism is a very different feeling and does not originate from outside sources, nor depend upon human objects.

On the contrary it cultivates the whole being of a man in a great and transforming adventure of faith. Religious emotionalism wrote the Bible, built the church, covered the earth with her temples and changed the course of history. The shouting and tumult die, but the love that in the hour of life in an ecstatic day still leads its holy flame and enables it to illuminate the path of peace and goodness.

Of course, emotionalism can be overdone. It is not a matter of faith. But there is no momentary danger of that just now. It is not a matter of faith. It is a matter of the heart and the mind. It is a matter of the heart and the mind. It is a matter of the heart and the mind.

Marriages today seem to be made in the wrong way. Cats and chickens are raised carefully as compared with some children who are born anyhow and just grow like Topoy.

Parentage is held lightly in our crannies, deficient and misbegotten. An intended marriage should be required by law to be publicly announced and recorded sixty days in advance of the ceremony and the prospective bride and groom should be then required to go before a judge who possessed all information about both and who would tell them fact plainly, after which they could marry or not as they chose.

Do you not think that procedure would cut down the divorce evil and benefit children?

Marriage needs closer attention, and what is more, it is getting it. No personal or social question has received more scrutiny in the last decade unless it be that of world peace. Despite some foolish proposals concerning matrimony, the attention now concentrated on it is beneficial.

But no judge could set as you indicate without assistance. The emotional life of the candidates is a vital factor in every case. Unless this has been disciplined and informed, whatever judges or even physicians may advise will not serve the purpose in view. Suppose miscast is already active when two sweethearts appear in court. Surely this disposition shows how difficult it is to legislate against a passion so dominant as love and especially against its lower forms.

Moreover, the civil ceremony should not be made too exacting or many may evade it. The state must always keep in mind the greater good for the greatest number. The divorce rate and should refuse her sanction to marriage unless the conditions she lays down are fulfilled.

The one ground for the training you rightly advocate is the home-supplying of sound moral and religious instruction. We do not want to encourage superior health certificates or any other commendable means which pin the welfare of prospective parents and children. But what about vitally children marriages? These are enforced by laws that everything else is secondary to character. The neglect of domestic life exemplified by the parents of brides and bridegrooms, parents who neglect and neglect their parents and also the distribution of that essential knowledge.

'Banker Favors Amendments Up In Nov. 4 Election

DALLAS, Texas, Oct. 7.-The proposed Constitutional Amendment, to be submitted at the November election, providing for an improved legislative procedure, and adjusting the salary and mileage of the legislators, were termed a forward step by Fred F. Florence, noted Dallas banker, Monday.

"It is no longer possible to dispose of the State's legislative business satisfactorily in the 60 day period of time allotted thereto by the Constitution of 1876," Florence said. "The remarkable growth that has occurred in this State has brought with it complicated and pressing problems that demand mature consideration by the legislature. Under our present plan, these intricate problems are necessarily hurriedly considered. This frequently results in poorly constructed legislation, or in failure to take any action to correct conditions. No legislature, in my memory has confined itself to the 60 day session. There have been regularly one or more called sessions of each Legislature for many years past. The proposed plan, calling as it does for a 30 day period to be given over to the introduction of the measures, and a 30 day period in which committee hearings will be held, and a final period devoted to the discussion and passage of the measure proposed, should produce more wholesome legislation. It would seem that this plan would obviate the necessity for special sessions, an end that is much to be desired.

"I believe that there will be an actual reduction in the number of legislative days, if these measures carry. I am informed that the Legislature has been in session an average of 137 days per term during the past fourteen years. Much of this time was taken up in organization incident to the extra sessions. The proposed 120 day term will really provide the Legislature with more working time, and, at the same time, reduce the average length of the legislative session.

"The need to increase the salaries of the Legislators to $10.00 per day during the regular session, and of course the proposal to reduce the allowance for mileage for the Legislature, in my memory has confined itself to the 60 day session. There have been appropriate ones," Mr. Florence said. Mr. Florence has just returned from an extended business trip to the north and east, during which he attended the convention of the American Bankers Association at Cleveland. Conditions in Texas, he said, are comparatively better than they are in other sections of the country.

MARKETS

NEW YORK COTTON
NEW YORK, Oct. 8. (AP)-Cotton opened barely steady and worked lower during the early trading under southern and local selling.

The latter was attributed largely to liquidation of old long accounts which may have been influenced by easier Liverpool cables, and a favorable interpretation of the weekly report of the weather bureau. New October contracts made a new low record, selling off to 99, while new December and January sold off to previous low prices, with the general list showing net declines of about 1 to 6 points at the end of the first half hour.

The market weakened before business was suspended to receive the government report. All the more active months sold back to or a shade below the previous low records for the season, with new October declining to 9.85 and March to 10.65, making net losses of about 9 to 15 points.

The government report placing the condition of the crop at 33.5, the indicated production at 34,485,000 bales and the indicated yield per acre at 154.7 pounds was above the average of recent private reports, but closely in line with the average expectation of New York Cotton Exchange members of 14,443,000 bales as indicated by the recent canvass. If anything, the figure seemed rather under the expectation of some of the early sellers, and the market showed advances when business was resumed after the usual twenty minute interval. October sold up to 10.14 and March to 10.69, or about 22 to 29 points above the low levels of the morning and 14 to 15 points net higher.

An air brake system for passenger automobiles has been invented that is operated by a driver's heel while his foot still is on the accelerator pedal.

There are about 1,000,000 teachers in the country, with nearly half that number now in schools preparing to teach.

YOU CAN'T help admiring the charm of natural beauty, any more than you can help enjoying the natural mildness of a Camel Cigarette.

Camel's mildness starts in the sun-drenched fields where the tobacco grow. Only the choicest of the golden Turkish and mellow Domestic leaves are selected for Camels. Through every step of their cure and manufacture the delicate, sun-ripe fragrance of these tobaccos is scientifically preserved. And so Camels come to you mild and delightful—not flat and flavorless.

Swing with the crowd to Camels. Learn the happy difference between true mildness and insipid flatness. Smoke without fear of throat-discomfort or after-taste—just for pleasure!
