Tax Hearings Are Completed By Board Of Equalization

School District Figures Up To $8,500,000

New Construction Accounts For Gain In City's Total

Holding firm to a blanket 10 per cent increase on school valuations and steady on city assessments, the board of equalization sitting for the city and Big Spring Independent school district finished its work Saturday after three days of interviews with taxpayers.

While there was no actual completion of total tax assessments, it was estimated that the city's total might run near $8,200,000 and the school to $8,500,000 or above. The current tax year's figures were $6,080,000 for the city and $7,732,253 for the school.

New Construction

New construction, approximately $200,000 of it taxable property, accounted for the increase in city valuations. The blanket increase in school valuations, made necessary to raise additional revenues since the rate against the constitutional limit of $1, was calculated to raise assessments nearly three-quarters of a million dollars, plus new construction gains.

During the three days the board was in session, 120 persons appeared before it. Approximately 50 per cent of the number called concerning the 10 per cent increase, while the remainder were seeking other adjustments. A good portion of these were owners of new property.

The board held firm to figures established by the tax equalization survey by George H. Ehrenborg, and adjourned with the recommendation that a similar survey be made again next year due to the amount of new construction.

Neither the city or the school rate will be changed on the 1938 roll. The city rate of $1.50 may give a potential current tax revenue of $80,000 while the school rate of $1 would give promise of yielding around $85,000. The school, however, figures on about 85 per cent collection and the city on hardly that percentage.

In two special services today, the one week meeting at the First Baptist church will be climaxed by Rev. Luther Holcomb and Jack Gardner.

Special goals have been established for Sunday school and B.T.U. and extra emphasis is being placed on both morning and evening services.

The meeting, conducted by "two young men with a purpose," has been directed toward enlistment, with a special effort to help young people find their place in the church.

An outstanding feature has been the organization of a junior choir with 40 voices under the direction of Gardner. Good crowds have characterized the meeting in morning and evening services.

AMARILLO PAPER ISSUES 280-PAGE BIRTHDAY EDITION

AMARILLO, Aug. 13 (AP)—The Amarillo News-Globe will publish tomorrow morning its golden anniversary edition, a 280-page paper emphasizing western history.

The edition, which commemorates the 50th anniversary of Potter county, is the result of 14 years of planning. Publisher Gene Howe started planning the edition soon after he came to Amarillo from Kansas. Before starting actual production of the edition, Editor John McCarty took special history courses in college.

The paper details the history of the plains since the time of Coronado in the mid-sixteenth century to the present, and the colorful plains cattle industry, Indian wars, land development and industrial expansion are described in stories which required exhaustive research.

Writers included J. Frank Dobie, noted historical writer and author of "Coronado's Children"; Dr. W. P. Webb, an authority on the Texas Rangers and history; Dr. H. B. Carroll of Fortless, N. M., prominent historian; Eugene Cunningham, writer of western fiction and fact; Col. Jack Potter, a noted trail-driving son of Jack Potter, "The fighting parson of the cow country"; Mrs. Olive K. Dixon, widow of the noted Indian and buffalo hunter and guide, Billy Dixon; many persons who knew the plains before the coming of barbed wire and the iron horse.

METHODIST CHURCH AT COAHOMA WILL BEGIN REVIVAL

CIO IS FULL OF COMMUNISTS, FEDERATION OFFICIAL SAYS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13 (AP)—John P. Frey of the American Federation of Labor charged today that John L. Lewis' rival labor organization was honey-combed with members of the communist party, whose purpose he said was revolution.

Informing a house investigating committee that 280 communist party members were on C.I.O. payrolls as organizers and officials, he added "in fairness" that Lewis himself and the majority of his followers were opposed to communism.

Frey, chief of the metal trades department of the A. F. of L., peered gravely over his spectacles and waved an unlighted cigar in vigorous emphasis as he told the committee.

"It's time the public knew the truth about efforts of the communist party in the United States to carry out the purpose of Moscow and the Third International, which purpose is revolution."

For 20 years, he said, the American Federation of Labor had held communist influences in check in the American labor movement. But the communist had gained a foothold in recent years, Frey charged, through their influence in and in some cases domination of C.I.O. unions.

In addition to charging that 280 communist party members were on had been on C.I.O. payrolls, he gave the committee a list of 60 other high in the C.I.O. ranks who, he said, were communists or closely linked with communism. Among those were John Brophy, a C.I.O. director; Francis Gorman, international president of the United Textile Workers; Wyndham Mortimer, vice president of the United Automobile Workers of America, who, Frey said, was a communist official elected recently under the party name of George Baker; and Harry Bridges, chief of the maritime union of the Pacific. Frey produced in evidence what he said was a photographic copy of Bridges' party membership card.

Farmers

The calcium arsenate requirements run from four to five pounds per acre. Moreover, very few farmers in Howard county employ "dusters."

Sources of the trouble are tiny green worms, about a half to three-quarters of an inch long when mature. The leaf worms work havoc by clinging to the underside of cotton leaves while they devour the vegetation which supports them. Bollworms, amazingly like the leaf worms, appear first in the cotton bloom, work into the square and bore out of the young boll, causing it to shrivel. Just before it falls off the stalk, they migrate to another prospective boll.

This is the first year most farmers can recall serious damage from bollworms. The suddenness of their appearance is surpassed only by the territory they seem to have covered. All sections report bollworms at work. Unless stopped short by poison, they may continue at their present destructive rate for another seven days. It is hard to gauge the duration of the leaf worm threat, although some believe the worst will have been past in 10 days. The generations of leaf worms (the county generally is suffering from the second) are less pronounced than in former years. It is therefore difficult to predict when the period of greatest intensity will have been reached.

which operate in particular seasons and not for those which operate on a year-round basis but have employment peaks in certain months. The truly seasonal industries will be permitted to work their employees in excess of the maximum work-week fixed by the law without being required to pay time and one-half for overtime.

The act, which becomes effective Oct. 24, requires generally that industries in or affecting interstate commerce must pay not less than 25 cents an hour and work their employees not more than 44 hours a week.

The general wage minimum will increase automatically to 30 cents at the end of the first year and to 40 cents at the end of seven years. The work-week will decrease to 42 hours after the first year and to 40 hours after two years. However, minimum wages higher than 25 cents an hour but not more than 40 cents may be fixed immediately, in a given industry, upon recommendation of a committee appointed to study that industry.

Roosevelt could in effect endorse Lewis against Tydings without naming either, since Tydings voted "present" when the act passed the senate.

Elsewhere, the political situation seems devoid of national interest and possible thrills until the California and South Carolina primaries August 30, in which Roosevelt pressure will be a factor in senatorial contests. By implication, in a South Carolina train-stop talk, he seemed to frown on Senator Smith's candidacy, calling on his South Carolina hearers to send new delegates to Washington to help rehabilitate the south. White House disfavor for Smith has long been indicated.

ventures into the gulf in the area from Pensacola, Fla., to Brownsville, Tex., until further notice. The weather bureau said the storm, described as "small," probably was attended by hurricane winds over a very small area near its center, and shifting gales over a slightly larger area.

At noon, the weather bureau forecaster said, the center of the storm was 430 miles south of New Orleans. It was charted yesterday in the northwest section of the Caribbean sea and moved through the Yucatan channel into the central Gulf of Mexico during the night, slightly trimming its rate of movement.

In order to keep closer account of the storm's course the coast guard today sent the 2,000 ton cutter Saranac from Galveston, Texas, to the storm area. She will report her findings to the hurricane reporting service of the weather bureau.

B'Spring Hardware To Sponsor Canning Demonstrations

MISS EUGENIA FRENCH

Miss Eugenia French, well known home economist of the Ball Brothers company, will be in Big Spring Monday and Tuesday at 2 p. m., at which time she will give a free demonstration of meat, fruit and vegetable preserving at the Big Spring Hardware company.

Miss French attended Texas State College for Women where she was awarded special prizes in recognition of her home demonstration work. She also was on the special honor roll and did demonstration in food classes. Miss French, because of her special training and study in home economics, is not only perfectly prepared technically for her work but she also has a charming personality which claims her audience's attention and admiration. Having had considerable practical experience, she is able to explain all the latest and most economical methods of canning foods in glass containers in such a manner that it is easy for listeners to understand every step in the process.

The Ball Brothers company, manufacturers of quality glass jars for nearly half a century, is sending Miss French and scores of other qualified demonstrators all over the country to show housewives the United States government-approved methods of steam pressure, hot water bath, and open kettle canning. Every one in this vicinity is cordially invited to hear Miss French and ask her any questions pertaining to canning.

TWO CHARGED AFTER FIGHT IN HOTEL

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 13 (AP)—Police filed manslaughter charges today against two men, who Inspector George Riegler said, admitted taking part in a hotel-room fight that ended fatally for Walter Cyril Vibert, 46, federal housing administration executive.

The story of a girl with reddish blonde hair, who had Vibert's room after the first blow was struck and later voluntarily surrendered, cleared up the case. The girl, Miss Rose Fields, 26, of Weaverly, Calif., a typist for FEA and Vibert's fiancée, named these men as having participated in the fight.

Absentee voting for the run-off primary started the past week and the length of the ballot should be conducive to more intelligent voting. Instead of the 101 names and 34 offices on the July primary ballot, the new list contains only 20 names and 13 offices. Voters ought to be able to better inform themselves concerning candidates on a short ballot but unfortunately a smaller number will vote in the second primary.

The joining of radio station KBST with 25 others in the state is significant to Big Spring in that it gives the local unit better connections and better opportunities. In the final analysis, it means that KBST will be in a better position to be of service in its particular area.

Words of praise are due officers of this and surrounding counties for apparently smashing a cattle theft ring operating in this area. Cattle rustling was a pernicious practice in the early days of West Texas. Now with trucks and good roads in the picture, the modernized version is equally as deplorable.

It is too bad that more farmers could not attend the trench silo demonstrations conducted here last week by E. R. Eudaly, extension service expert. He gave farmers and ranchers something to think about in placing emphasis on dollars per acre instead of dollars per bale and ton. Eudaly is sold on his specialty and might store everything on the place in an underground silo but the kitchen stove. His favor may not be far fetched, for W. J. McAdams recalls storing meat in a "trench silo."

Some are interested to know how it is that the chamber of commerce voted to stage a sales crusade here, then let the matter drop out of the limelight. The answer is this: The chamber is taking great care in selecting a steering committee and in setting up the organization. The "delay" may be time well spent.

Warning Against 'Chain' Racket

Officers Saturday warned the public against participation in what they described as a slight variation of the "endless chain" racket.

They said that reports on the operation of a purported chain scheme were being investigated and that charges would be filed if the practice continued.

The "racket" as officers described it, was being worked by a person or persons who placed their names at the top of a list, then rounded up 10 others, suggesting that they in turn round up another group. A dollar was to be collected by each one, 50 cents being retained and 50 cents being passed on to the head man.

Officials said that those participating, as well as those operating the affair were legally responsible.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Martin and daughters, Mary Elizabeth and Margaret, left Saturday morning to visit Mrs. Martin's mother near Las Vegas, N. M. They also plan to visit in other New Mexico towns.

Report Given On Social Security Funds On Act's Third Birthday

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13 (AP)—The first three years of the social security act cost the federal treasury $1,232,868,998 and brought in $887,946,271 of revenue.

Roswell Magill, acting secretary of the treasury, made public today the statistics involved in operation of the law, the third anniversary of which will be Sunday.

Federal expenditures for the gigantic pension system have included $504,504,188 for grants to the states, $290,000,000 for investments in the old age reserve fund, and about $38,000,000 for administration of the law.

Revenue fell far behind expenditures because amounts nearly equal to the receipts are permanently earmarked for the old age reserve fund, leaving the state grants to be financed out of ordinary treasury funds.

The states received $350,590,010 for old age assistance, $45,810,189 for aid to dependent children, $11,828,983 for blind pensions, $5,538,383 for maternal and child health services, $5,718,953 for aid to crippled children, $2,735,562 for other child welfare services, $19,275,077 for public health work, including venereal disease control, and $90,001,847 for administering state unemployment compensation laws.

The controversial old age reserve fund—scheduled to reach $47,000,000,000 in 1950—was valued by the treasury at $1,136,463,498, but its actual investments, including reinvestments of interest receipts, amount to only $700,800,000. The difference is an appropriation credit for which the actual cash will not be received by the fund until the old age taxes intended to fill the fund are collected.

So far, 38,265,000 employees and 1,787,000 pensioners have paid in $737,526,530 of old age pension taxes.

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 13 (AP)—A charge of murder was filed here today against Mrs. Helen (Chickie) Steiger after the fatal shooting of Donald R. Sutherland in her beer parlor last night.

Mrs. Steiger was arraigned in justice of the peace court before Judge Est. Corrigan, where Detective P. F. Littlepage asserted the shooting followed an argument in the beer parlor. Littlepage said Sutherland, 26

'Chain' Tax Due Aug. 31

Final Drive For Collection Launched In This District

Final drive to collect the chain store tax in Howard and 31 other counties in this district will start this week, Raymond Hanks, in charge of the state comptrollers district office here, said Saturday.

He estimated that between 80 and 85 per cent of the concerns operating in Howard county had paid the tax, applicable to all business concerns.

Deadlines for paying the tax has been fixed for Aug. 31, Hanks disclosed. After that date, store operators going delinquent will be subject to penalties carrying a minimum fine of $25 and a maximum fine of $100, each day of operation a separate offense.

The tax applies to all stores and is for a three year period since the tax law has been in litigation since it was to take effect January 1936. Preponderance of stores in Howard county paying the tax have paid the $4.50 single store tax for the period. Other concerns have been subjected to graduated provisions of the law, depending on the number of stores operating in the state. Information on payment of the tax may be secured at Hanks' office' 408 Petroleum building.

Littlepage said an argument followed during which Sutherland was shot in the abdomen. He died in a hospital.

Old Timers Of West Texas Range Invited As Special Guests At Ritz Showings Of 'The Texans'

Their ranks are thinning, but still remaining in the West Texas country which has not altogether yielded its atmosphere of the open range are many of the men who contributed, as cowboys, trail drivers and builders of great cattle herds, to the building of West Texas. Some of them still are active in the ranching business; livestock is still their first love. Many of them had experiences on the cattle trails, or adventures on the range similar to those depicted in the film, "The Texans."

Every pioneer woman is invited to be a guest of the show. Included in the theatre's list are: Webb Christian, Bill Carpenter, Dave Rhoton, Bud Roberts, General McKinnis, Adolph Miller, Bill Miller, Bud McKinney, Bob Houghton, Bob Dorwood, Jim Keys, Bud Brown, Bob Fowell, Otis Chalk, J. W. Phillips, J. S. McKinney, L. S. McDowell, J. Joiner, Sam Joiner, W. C. Brooks, Jack Haines, R. L. Sanderson, W. R. Rigby, J. M. Chumble, C. C. Hessioning, Lee Shivers, Hardy Morgan, Tom McWhirter, Sterling Price and W. E. McGuffin.

Authentic Scenes Of The Range Depicted In New Photoplay

Reconstruction Era, Great Cattle Drives Dramatized In 'The Texans'

One of the most stirring and turbulent epochs in American history, the period of the Reconstruction, is dramatized in "The Texans," one of the outstanding photoplays of the season which plays today and Monday at the Ritz theatre. It is a "big" picture in its sweeping frontier theme, which emphasizes a part of Texas' storied development. Against the background of the mad days when a victorious North tried to rule a conquered South after the war between the states was over, "The Texans" tells the story of a proud frontier people who refused to be beaten down and battled furiously for their rights as Americans until their conquerors recognized them as equals and allowed them to live their own lives. Playing the chief roles in a tale which combines romance with historical incidents are Randolph Scott, Joan Bennett, May Robson, Walter Brennan, Robert Barrat, Robert Cummings and Harvey Stephens.

The story opens with the heart-breaking return to their native Texas of members of the disbanded Confederate armies. Brave soldiers and proud gentlemen, they are browbeaten and insulted by the rulers of the state, scalawags and carpetbaggers, who have taken advantage of the South's defeat to line their own pockets. In spite of the provocations, the handsome young soldier at the head of the group, played by Scott, counsels caution, and refuses to join in with his friends' plans to intrigue with the emperor of Mexico and detach Texas from the Union.

Scott's loyalty to the Union brings him into conflict with the owner of one of the largest ranches in the state, a beautiful spitfire of a Southern belle, Miss Bennett, who refuses to admit that "the great cause" is lost. When the leader of the carpet-bag government, Barrat, sweeps down on her and tries to confiscate her cattle, she takes Scott's advice and allows her herds to be driven to distant Abilene, Kansas, where a Northern market awaits them.

On the Cattle Trails. The trek of the fighting Southerners across Texas and Oklahoma into Kansas stands out as the most impressive sequence of the film. Pursued by relentless bands of Northern cavalry, attacked by some of the most vicious Indians ever to roam the Southwest and plagued by desert storms and prairie fires, Scott and Miss Bennett drive their caravans on toward their goal without flinching and find romance amid the turbulence of their journey. It is in these scenes that May Robson, the "grand old lady of the screen," is at her grandest, as the dauntless old Texan whose fighting pioneer spirit never weakens.

The whole sweeping theme of "The Texans" is symbolized in the climax, when the caravan reaches Abilene and the covered wagons meet the iron horse. Here is the final triumph of the Southern spirit, a spirit which in a few years turned away her conquerors and opened up the great Southwest to American expansion.

Produced by Lucien Hubbard and directed by James Hogan, the film is a masterpiece of technical skill and dramatic power. It is a story of the Reconstruction era, the great cattle drives, and the early days of the state. The film is a masterpiece of technical skill and dramatic power. It is a story of the Reconstruction era, the great cattle drives, and the early days of the state.

May Robson Has A Pioneer Role In Texas-Made Film

May Robson, "the grand old lady of Hollywood," is celebrating her fifty-fourth year in the theatre with the most picturesque role of her career in "The Texans," Paramount's epic production of the South's rebirth during the years following the War Between the States, which is at the Ritz today and Monday.

Heading the cast with Joan Bennett and Randolph Scott, Miss Robson portrays a valiant old pioneer woman who fights for her rights against carpet-bag officials and helps build a new Texas on the ruins of the old. When interviewed at her seventy-fourth birthday party on location during the filming of the picture, Miss Robson said, "I've had two roles which I like better than any others I've ever played, and they both came this year! One is 'Aunt Polly' in 'The Adventures of Tom Sawyer' and the other is 'Granna' in 'The Texans,' which is keeping me busy right now."

"Granna" is a picturesque character from whichever way you look at her. Miss Robson went on as she cut into the giant birthday cake presented to her by the members of the cast. "She represents the typical American pioneer woman who has made this country what it is today. She didn't fear anything or anybody, even Union troops, and was interested only in repairing the ruins of the war. Her type has been represented down the years by such women as Pocahontas, Dolly Madison, Nancy Hanks, Lincoln and Jane Addams, and I'm glad to be playing one of them. Maybe it's the frontier in me," she added with a wink.

Film Crew Makes Flying Field In A Week's Time

Hollywood energy turned a Texas best field into an airport in less than a week's time during the filming of "The Texans." The new epic of the Reconstruction era, which plays today and Monday at the Ritz theatre, the feat took place on the thirty-five thousand-acre La Moia Ranch in southern Texas, where Director James Hogan had taken his crew and cast of thousands to film the outdoor scenes of the picture. Hogan had two main purposes in ordering the construction of the landing-field. Since the ranch was one hundred miles from San Antonio and almost forty miles by dirt road from the nearest town, he kept a plane at hand at all times in case of emergency. Secondly, he had each day's film footage flown to San Antonio, so that it could be transhipped by air express to Hollywood without delay.

Pony Express Museum Outfits Film Setting

The general store pictured in the opening scenes of "The Texans," the Southern epic now playing at the Ritz Theatre, is as authentic a set as Hollywood has produced this year. Most of the "props" were borrowed from the Pony Express Museum at Arcadia, California, which contains some of the best trophies of the period to be found anywhere in the West. Among the quaint articles lent by the Pony Express Museum were hand-made plows, buggy whips, warming pans, pinche waist corsets, button shoes, copper kettles, crockery and a hoghead of black strap molasses. The collection was completed by a sand box for spitting which was placed next to the ancient stove. The principal character in this scene of the picture is Walter Brennan, seen recently in "The Buccaneer," who is a hardy frontiersman. Even incomparable California background for "The Texans," and so James Hogan, director of Paramount's panoramic drama, transferred to a location in the heart of the Lone Star State. Mrs. D. H. Partsch of Tuscaloosa, Ala., is a guest in the home of her sister, Mrs. Herbert Smith and family.

Pioneers Experienced Indian Raids, Cattle Stampedes, Took Part In Buffalo Hunts In Conquering Of West

Indian depredations? The dangerous stampede of cattle on the trail? The shooting of buffalo which roamed the prairies by the tens of thousands? These make for dramatic incidents in stories of the old West, and ready to appear in fiction and in photography, as something almost beyond the realm of reality.

But they are very real incidents to pioneer West Texans still living. The days of the open range and all its adventures are not so far removed.

J. W. (Bill) Carpenter

J. W. (Bill) Carpenter has doubtless spent more nights with the canopy of the heavens as a covering than he has under a man-made roof. He began sleeping out in the open when he was a boy of 10 years as he worked for father and uncle who were engaged in the cattle business in Hood county.

Dangerous Thing

He admitted that the whole procedure of the stampede was a dangerous thing for both pony and rider. Cattle were often crippled, deborned, and even lost completely from the herd.

Trail To Montana Young Carpenter had already experienced the thrills of handling good sized herds of cattle on the trail, but none compared to that long line of big beef steers that he drove to Montana for the "Lazy S" (the Slaughter) outfit.

Mr. Carpenter was asked about his experiences in driving a herd through an Indian infested country. He said, "When they asked you for beef you had better give it to them."

Uncle Bud Roberts

When it comes to trail blazers, Uncle Bud Roberts is easily classified as the very first in this part of the West. When he was born nearly 90 years ago near Georgetown, the Williamson county area was on the frontier.

Buffaloes were rapidly disappearing when Mr. Roberts arrived in the Big Spring country. But mute evidences of his having been here were everywhere.

ed on westward to Brown county which was still subject to Indian raids. The life of the small herdman was strenuous and it was no easy matter for him to keep his little herd from being swallowed by the larger herds.

G. L. (Bud) Brown

The fact that G. L. (Bud) Brown was born on the present site of Brownwood does not necessarily indicate that he is old, but it rather emphasizes the fact that the West is young and that we are only a few short years removed from frontier days.

During the days of Mr. Brown's bringing up the West was subject to Indian raids that was a continual dread of the frontier families. They never knew when a group of plains warriors might swoop down on their little habitations and carry off all their horses and incidentally take the life of anyone who might try to interfere with their plans.

They never knew when a group of plains warriors might swoop down on their little habitations and carry off all their horses and incidentally take the life of anyone who might try to interfere with their plans.

Slain By Indians

A bunch of fleeing Indians was pursued by three cowboys, one of whom was a brother of Mr. Brown, in the vicinity of the present town of Robert Lee, on Oak Creek.

They never knew when a group of plains warriors might swoop down on their little habitations and carry off all their horses and incidentally take the life of anyone who might try to interfere with their plans.

A Business

The hunting of buffaloes was a business rather than sport. Those sluggish animals of the bovine family wanted the prairies drifting south in winter and back to the plains region in summer.

H's Hand Out Plenty Of Gossipy Gossip Once They Are Captured By Alphabetical Quizzer

The H's were hard to handle in the alphabetical quest for news Saturday but once they were captured they came through with a lot of good old gossipy gossip-like where they had been, who were visiting them, places they expected to see and even things they would like to do.

HURT, MR. and MRS. HARRY and HARRY, JR.: Returned this week from Mineral Wells where they spent two weeks resting. She said they usually drove thousands of miles every summer and called it a vacation but her idea of one consisted of something like the one at Mineral Wells.

HURLEY, MRS. J. CLIFTON: Stayed at home while her husband and son, J. C. Jr., went to Kentucky and she called it a vacation because she didn't have to cook very much nor follow a daily schedule about her housework.

Washington Daybook

By Preston Grover
WASHINGTON—Nothing irritates the state department so much as the spate-and-cocktail aroma about its career service.

Naturally there are few plow-hands among the career diplomats. By the nature of their jobs they travel with "nice people." But the number of choice spots in the service is equalled by the pest holes to which the department has to send its men.

A cruise through the tropics looks well enough on travel posters but a four-year stay at a sweltering consular post like as not will fill a man's liver full of equatorial worms and his blood with malaria.

Trouble is that the tea table stories are the kind which get to congressmen, often of a rustic turn of mind. That plays havoc with appropriations for the service, even though the U. S. already has the reputation of being the most pinched penny of any major nation in financing its foreign staff.

Death By Violence
Secretary Hull recently pointed out that tropical malaria had brought down another career man, adding to the 65 who already have died or been killed on duty.

"The recent death of John J. O'Keefe, vice consul and clerk in charge of the consulate at Bucenariura, Colombia, deserves more notice than it has received," Hull wrote, "particularly in view of articles which appear in the press from time to time and which represent the foreign service as composed exclusively of persons of the be-spattered and stuffed-shirt variety."

"Vice Consul O'Keefe died of malignant malaria contracted in the performance of his duties." Within the last year Theodore Marriner, consular general, was killed at Beirut, Syria, by an enraged applicant for a passport.

Earlier still, Robert W. Imbrie was assassinated at Herena, Persia. Imbrie had had a large portion of the tougher variety of foreign service before that. He was the first representative of the U. S. to Kemal's Turkish Nationalist government at the desert city of Ankara.

Imbrie went to Ankara with his bride of a few weeks and maintained the consulate for several months in the Asian equivalent of a railroad caboose.

After his transfer to Teheran, Persia, as consular representative, Imbrie and a companion were attacked in the streets by a fanatic mob. Badly injured, he was taken to a hospital but the mob followed, broke in and hacked him to death, July 18, 1924. Four days later Mrs. Imbrie also was injured in an attack.

Texas Takes It
Indemnity was demanded for Imbrie's death. The sum of $60,000 was paid by Persia to the treasury for returning the body to the U. S.

Later, congress awarded Mrs. Imbrie $30,000 from the $110,000 as compensation for her own injuries. The state department had recommended use of the cruiser expense money to finance Persian students in the U. S. but congress declined, and the balance remains in the treasury.

Even for hardy souls the life of the foreign service officer in the tropics is a harrowing one. Walter Foot, consular general at Batavia, Java, lately hove into the department to report that during his six-year stay in the Dutch East Indies he had typhoid repeatedly, malaria at least once each year and sometimes diphtheria, amoebic and bacterial dysentery repeatedly, and no end of annoyance from vicious leeches.

But he is a stout Texan and survived while two of his aides had to be transferred or perished. But you should see the man sweat. He is a tropic waterfall.

Man About Manhattan
by GEORGE TUCKER
NEW YORK—Much to my surprise I find myself thinking about the tango again today. After that blurb last week I thought I was through with Spanish music awhile. But I just had a long talk with Eddie LeBaron, and LeBaron is synonymous with the tango in this town.

Months ago I wrote that I thought he was the best dancer in town. I meant by this that his dancing was most pleasing to the eye. He used to teach the tango but now he dances only for pleasure, and when I asked him who were the best dancers he had ever danced with he unhesitatingly named Mae Murray, Martha Raye and Ginger Rogers. These were professional names. He preferred not to name his favorite partners in the social world.

"I love the tango," he tells you, "and I always will. It is the only dance with a definite motive because it has a beginning and end."

"It's music is not the most romantic in the world—that is reserved for the Mexican waltz—but it is haunting and it is always melancholy. Have you never observed that the words to a tango are always sad?"

LeBaron was born in Mexico. After being reared in France and Italy he came back to New York and spent four years in a military school. On the coast he organized dance studios and orchestras. He makes all the Spanish-speaking pictures for Monogram, Inc. And his own tango orchestra—well, it has been at the Rainbow Room for 16 months, and Rockefeller will keep him there until 1941. Eddie thinks the tango is the

Norway In The Arctic Circle, But Gulf Stream Tempers Climate; It's A Country Of Great Scenic Beauty

By HOUSTON HARTS
 OSLA, Norway. (By Mail) — Nearly 50 per cent of the area of Norway is within the Arctic circle. That it is not as frigid as the same areas of Alaska or like areas in the same latitude as Greenland is due to two things—the benefits of the warm water of the Gulf stream, which keeps its harbors open all winter and its climate along the coast warm and temperate the whole year through; and, the fact that the earth is tilted on its axis with this part of Europe facing towards the sun so, while it has many long winter days, it also has a wonderfully warm growing season through the spring and summer.

Norway's length is about the same as the distance from El Paso to Texarkana, and is 260 miles wide at one point, though averages but 60 miles. Most of the country is a high plateau that runs down to the sea and drops off abruptly. Here its irregular coastline gives a soft, wavy, dome-like appearance of a magnificent scale and has created one of the beauty spots of the world.

Lots Of Coast Lines
 This 1,100-mile coast line has been so deeply cut by Florida that if one measured all the inlets from one end to the other he would find this country has 12,000 miles of coast. Some of the fjords go inland for 100 miles, in many cases 15 to 25 miles.

Outside these are 150,000 islands, hard rock that would not crack up before the sea. These guard the coastline and create a section of sea, where the water is as quiet as a bay.

Coastwise navigation in these placid waters is the most economical in the world. One can sail from one end of the country to the other without encountering but a few miles of open sea. There is daily service of mail, passengers and fast freight along the whole coast in both directions, and with the north coast of Russia as well. These fast motor steamers afford a fine opportunity of seeing Norway. The fare is cheap, the food is good and one can make every port and fiord.

Water Power Plentiful
 In Norway proper there is no coal, but Spitzbergen, given to Norway by the Treaty of Versailles, has great coal reserves. A part of these mines have been leased to Russia, and the mines are being worked by political prisoners. In Hammerfest it was said that there were 2,500 men working in the mines at a place called Longyear City. It might better be named "Longwinter City" for it is less than 550 miles from the North Pole and very cold.

This loss of coal is compensated in Norway by enormous water power reserve. About 15 million horsepower is available, which is more than the rest of Europe combined can generate and, with the growing use of electricity, is of constant increasing benefit. A great number of falls are found in the floors of the valleys that lead to the fjords, thus available to both railroads and the sea, where the most can be made of them. The constant source of water from the rain and melting snow has placed a water power site in almost every farmyard and before almost every village.

Every Kind Of Climate
 The Gulf Stream tempers the climate only on the coast. Hammerfest, which is 500 miles north of the Arctic Circle, is the largest city in the world above that line. It has about 3,000 people. One day this summer it was 88 there and in the winter it seldom gets below 10 degrees Fahrenheit. Oslo is colder because the Gulf Stream plays a smaller part in its climate. Snow stays on the ground all winter in Oslo. The rainfall varies, but it is plentiful. At Bergen it rains 320 days out of the year. At the North Cape the sun shines, clouds permitting, constantly from May 12 to July 29.

The valleys are fertile. In another age, great glaciers rolled down to the sea where they melted in the Gulf Stream, depositing in the valleys they crushed through layers of fertile soil which now produces bountiful yields.

Norway has few metals. It gets a little iron, some silver, copper, lead, and zinc, but production is small and subsidized. In pyrites and sulphur it has a considerable industry.

It is blessed with natural beauty more than natural wealth. It has the deepest lake in Europe, Hornidal, which is about 1,800 feet deep. It has the greatest glacier in Europe, which covers about 500 square miles, both of which are a drawing attraction to tourists, but which have not until this time been recognized as a cash asset. The tourist business in Norway started about 15 years ago. It has constantly increased. This year one has to get reservations in Norway's little hotels months in advance.

In the cities the prices are high, at high or higher than not nearly so good accommodations in cities of like size in America. But in the country, there are still plenty of bargains left. At Rafevot, besides Hornidal Lake, is a hotel where one gets room and meals for $1.25 a day. Meals mean bullion at 10 in the morning, tea at 4:30 in the afternoon and snacks at night before one goes to bed, as well as the three regular meals of the day. There is no finer setting anywhere—fishing right off the porch in the lake—mile-high peaks on either side, and the lake 18 miles long in front of you, with charming Norwegian farms coming down to the lake front wherever possible.

It's strawberry time now and it soon will be gooseberry and raspberry time, and in between will be cherry time. Fruit is cheap and plentiful and up in the mountains one is told there are many blueberries. It looks like it might be cheaper than living at home.

Farm Life The Acid Test Of Love; It's All Told In New Series To Be Inaugurated On KBST Monday

To the Missouri farm of Pat Donovan in Macon county, recently came Terry Donovan and his fiancée Deborah Kane, to make an unusual experiment.

Terrance loves Deborah. Debby loves Terry. But Old Man Depression proved too much for them. Deborah says she and Terry could be married and get along nicely if Terry would let her keep her job after marriage. But Terry wants a full-time queen in his "castle."

Has the old-fashioned notion that a man should support his wife. Matters were at a stand-still until an uncle left Terry an 80-acre farm. Here was a solution to the problem—if Terry could prove to Deborah that a city girl wouldn't "be buried alive" on a farm.

The visit to Pat Donovan's farm is an experiment to demonstrate that rural life holds more joys than are to be found on city streets. If Terry can prove his point, he may start a social revolution. But will he?

And at this point Grandma Beals of the famous radio program "Grandma Travels" enters the scene. What happens and how Grandma solves the problem for these two young people makes the fascinating, true life episode which inaugurates this amazingly popular program in this area on Station KBST at 10 o'clock Monday morning.

This program is written by Alina Ballard, author of "Broken Butterfly" and many other famous stories. Hazel Dopheide gives a brilliant performance as Grandma. The program is sponsored by Sears Roebuck and company to provide entertainment for their thousands of customers and

and a Goal ATTAINED!

In a branch of the engineering profession the great achievement is to harness the uncontrolled waters of the turbulent river, to make them do man's bidding as he wills.

In radio the great achievement toward which any ambitious station struggles is SHOWMANSHIP. There lies the key to success. Without Showmanship you have just another radio station.

Five months ago KBST keyed itself to the tempo of Showmanship, intent upon giving its listeners programs that were DIFFERENT. Just a few of those programs are listed here—programs that were far from the ordinary run of entertainment:

- 1)—As a tribute to all Mothers on MOTHER'S DAY, KBST microphones went into the homes of the oldest and youngest mothers in Big Spring—Mrs. Mary E. (Mother) Zinn and Mrs. Fred Simpson—to carry a full hour program to listeners.
- 2)—In promotion of National Air Mail Week, KBST announcers went aloft to broadcast by shortwave to their station for re-broadcast to KBST listeners, fifteen programs as the plane piloted by R. F. Schermerhorn zoomed over as many West Texas communities and towns.
- 3)—To unite the Blue and the Grey, KBST microphones on Memorial Day went into the homes of Cann Powell, GAR veteran, and W. C. Brooks, veteran of the Confederacy, to pay tribute for an hour to these survivors of the Strife of the '60s.
- 4)—Given permission to join the Columbia Broadcasting System August 3rd, thanks to the efforts of J. Y. Robb of the E. & R. Theaters, to bring to KBST listeners the full hour program, "Alexander's Ragtime Band", presented on the nationwide CBS network. KBST was one of few non-CBS stations ever to obtain permission to join that network for a special program.

There have been many more such programs—and there will be many more in the future. KBST believes that its listeners always are entitled to the best in entertainment. It has lived up to its name of being the SHOWMANSHIP Station. In addition it has, in recent months, given thorough consideration to the question of how it can better serve its listeners. It has reached a decision——and Now KBST Goes NETWORK!

Because network stations do not reach into the Big Spring area satisfactorily, particularly during daytime, it has not been possible for radio listeners in this area to have the coverage of outstanding national events as well as great nationally presented radio shows that they should have.

But that time soon will be no more. Soon, when the president delivers a message of vital importance, when a great sporting event is being enacted, this will be brought straight into your home by means of your radio.

For weeks KBST has been negotiating for network facilities — the crowning achievement in this station's brief life of less than two years. We are happy to say that that crowning achievement has been attained, that greatly improved service will be provided to our listeners.

On September 15 KBST
 Will Join
Mutual Broadcasting System
 and
Texas State Network

It is our sincere hope that you will like this new affiliation. We believe that you will. But far from being content, KBST pledges anew that it will strive always to give you even better locally-produced programs than in the past, keeping always before us the fact that we must be a SHOWMANSHIP station. You are entitled to that.
