SMOKE COLUMNS REACH INTO SKY OVER REFINERY Firefighters are allowing the blaze to burn itself out

Refinery Fire Allowed To Burn Itself Out

WHITING, Ind. (AP)—The big fire at the Standard Oil Co. (Indiana) refinery burned into its third day today, but only two large storage tanks were gushing flames and smoke.

A company official said the multimillion dollar blaze was well in hand, and the "burning out" of unburned fuels in the blackened 10-acre section was in line with safety policy.

Thus, no volatile fluids would remain as a hazard when rehabilitation of the scarred area begins.

Life in adjacent Whiting got back to near normal, although some 500 families awaited the results of a check for explosive sewer gases before they could receive permission to return to their homes.

Many were permitted to go into the nine square evacuated area for clothing.

The company opened a claims office in its administration and engineering building near the fire scene.

Scores of residents visited the office to inquire about compensation for damage or injuries.

Already fire loss is estimated by Standard Oil at 10 million dollars. Two persons have died and 45 have been injured, three seriously.

Dog-tired fire-fighters continued to make progress against the flames—now confined to two storage tanks—as big clouds of dark gray smoke billowed into the illuminated sky through the night.

They had brought the fire under control at noon yesterday, 30 hours after a tremendous explosion of undetermined cause.

Some 950 families evacuated from large areas near the refinery Saturday were kept away from their homes again last night. National Guardsmen patrolled the danger area.

Standard Oil Chairman Robert E. Wilson said it is hoped that most of the refinery will be back in operation in about two weeks.

Meanwhile, he said that the company, despite heavy fire loss, has sufficient gasoline and other products to meet demands in the Midwest.

Wilson reported the damage to the refinery alone would exceed 10 million dollars, all but one million of which is covered by insurance.

The figure will run some higher when losses outside the plant are tabulated, but the oil company disagreed sharply with Red Cross estimates from Washington that the over-all damage would amount to 100 million dollars.

The fire began Saturday after an explosion in a new 26-story hydroformer, used to convert low-octane into high-octane.

The first explosion was followed by a series of smaller ones as the white-hot flames spread to tanks of crude and fuel oils.

Mrs. Landy Quizzed In House Probe

WASHINGTON (AP)—Mrs. Deborah Landy, whose former Communist activities cost her son a naval reserve commission, was questioned in a closed session today by the House Un-American Activities Committee.

Mrs. Landy, a Bradley Beach, N. J. widow, is the mother of 21-year-old Eugene Landy who was graduated as an honor student this month from the Merchant Marine Academy at Kings Point, N. H.

The Navy denied him a commission but now has a special three-man board reconsidering his case.

Mrs. Landy was subpoenaed to appear. She had no lawyer with her.

"My lawyer said I could do very well by myself," she told reporters before the hearing began.

She said she had no statement to make, that her lawyer would do that later and added: "He thinks I talk too much."

She said she had consulted several attorneys, including Joseph A. Rauh Jr., national chairman of Americans for Democratic Action.

Mrs. Landy said her son was supposed to sail on an oil tanker for the second time last Saturday and she assumed he had done so.

CHINA GHOSTS GET NO FOOD ON HOLIDAY

TAIPEI, Formosa, (AP)—The city government of this capital of Nationalist China is cracking down on ghosts—the annual Ghost Festival, that is.

The festival is celebrated on the 15th day of the 7th moon of the lunar calendar, Sept. 1 this year.

For the Chinese, it's the day when the spirits of the dead come to visit with living relatives. The living usually provide a big banquet for the spirits.

The relatives eat the banquet themselves if the ghosts leave it untouched—which is the custom of ghosts.

The city government has told the populace the extravagance of such festivals is not in keeping with wartime austerity. It has banned the soliciting of funds for idols before whom feasts are placed, incense burned and firecrackers fired.

Big Spring Quartet Held On Charges Of Transporting Dope

DEL RIO, (SC)—A Big Spring quartet was taken into custody here early Sunday and have been turned over to U.S. Customs officials on charges of possessing and transporting marijuana.

Elmo Rainbolt, chief of the U.S. Border Patrol in the Del Rio sector, reported today.

Three men and a 15-year-old boy were apprehended in a pickup which Rainbolt said contained the marijuana, as well as a quantity of pornographic pictures and 11 vials of a sex stimulant.

The Border Patrol officer identified the men as Octaviano Tellez, 20; Froyland Lopez, 24; and George Mancho, 21, all of Big Spring. The pickup was owned by Tellez.

Rainbolt said the contraband and vehicle were transferred to the Customs Service. He reported a half pound of marijuana, mostly heads and seed of marijuana plants, and the other items were found in a door panel.

Judge To Hear 9 Guilty Pleas

Nine defendants announced this morning they would plead guilty to criminal indictments against them, and Judge Charlie Sullivan excused a district court jury panel until 1:30 p.m.

Bond was ordered forfeited in the case of B. H. Smith of Coahoma, who is charged with defrauding with worthless checks. Smith failed to appear in court and District Attorney Gulford Jones said at bondsmen were unable to locate the defendant.

The case of Luke Cathey, charged with second offense drunken driving, was postponed until Wednesday morning after Cathey's attorney filed a motion for continuance.

One other defendant, James Smith, announced he would plead guilty to charges against him. Smith is one of three Dallas Negroes charged with the burglary of Zales Jewelry last April 1. The other two, Faniel Washington and A. J. Moore, announced that they would plead guilty.

Others who indicated they would plead guilty, and the charges against them are Robert Lee Gray, second offense DWI; Frank Horton, forgery; Troy James, burglary (two indictments); E. F. Russell, (second offense DWI); Ruth Livingsood, forgery; and Sylvia Bea Colwell, forgery.

Webb Escapees Are Captured

Three men who escaped from the Webb Air Force Base stockade Sunday evening were apprehended during pre-dawn hours today at Coahoma.

They are George E. Pattee and Tommy N. Oakes, sailors, and Leonard Galico, a Marine. All three were in the stockade on a charge of being absent from their posts without leave.

The three broke out of the stockade between 7:45 and 8 p.m. Sunday by knocking out the back door of the building, Webb officials said. Method of breaking out the door was not released.

Air Police immediately informed the Big Spring police force, and a city-wide search for the escapees began. About 1 a.m. an attendant at a Fourth and Birdwell service station reported three men hitch-hiking east on Highway 80.

Capt. C. L. Rogers of the Big Spring force and Air Police traced the escapees to Coahoma, where they were apprehended. All were back in the stockade within six hours after they broke out.

Police here had just arrested Oakes and Pattee last Friday. They were hitch-hiking through town that time from a Naval base in California. Galico was an AWOL transient when arrested in this area recently.

Icardi Indicted For Perjury In Holohan Case

NOT ENOUGH MONEY

Gulf Weather Ship Out Of The Picture

WASHINGTON (AP)—A weather ship for the Gulf of Mexico doesn't appear to be in the picture in the near future.

Several senators and representatives from Gulf Coast states introduced bills early this year calling for a weather station in the Gulf to provide more complete weather information.

However, Congress gave the Weather Bureau only $96,000 which the bureau said would be required to finance necessary equipment and place operators on such a ship.

The catch is that there is no ship. Testimony during congressional hearings on the matter indicate it would cost two to three million dollars to build and operate a weather ship and that two or three such vessels would be required for a year round operation.

Since Congress did not vote funds for any such vessels, the Weather Bureau at present is unable to make any progress.

A Weather Bureau spokesman said, however, that studies are under way in the area to determine possible ways and means for financing such a ship.

Possibilities, he said, include some cooperative financing by states involved and industries in the area.

If some method of providing a ship is evolved, he said, the Bureau will proceed with plans to install and man the necessary equipment.

Sen. Long (D-La.) and other congressmen from coast states have said they will push plans next year for establishment of a station in the Gulf.

The bureau spokesman said it recognizes the desirability of having such a station but on the other hand, he said, there is a possibility that the necessary two or three million dollars could be utilized better in some other way.

He pointed out that the Weather Bureau constantly is improving its service in the Gulf area through increased flights over the Gulf and through more frequent reports from ships. In addition it has a program to establish many radar stations in coastal areas to scan the horizon for rains, squalls and storms.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The all-clear was sounded today for the entire east coast and probably for Bermuda as far as Hurricane Edith is concerned.

The Atlantic storm has made its predicted turn to a north-northeasterly course and will keep its 80 to 85 mile winds over the open sea, said Gordon Dunn, chief storm forecaster here.

The entire East Coast is in the clear now, and the island of Bermuda probably will not experience hurricane winds, Dunn reported.

"There is a wide open path for the hurricane to swing around to the northeast and keep going over water, a menace only to shipping."

The tropical storm maintained a forward pace of only eight miles an hour but was expected to pick up forward speed late today or tonight.

A 5 a.m. EST advisory said the storm's center "should pass to the east of Bermuda late this afternoon or tonight."

Top winds in squalls were estimated at 80-85 miles per hour. The storm was placed about 160 miles south-southeast of Bermuda and about 1,000 miles east of Daytona Beach, Fla. Its speed was estimated at about eight miles an hour and movement was in a north-northeasterly direction.

This storm packs hurricane force winds for 75 miles northeast and east of the center with gale winds extending some 150 miles in an eastern semicircle and 80 miles in a western semicircle.

"Movement for the next 6 to 12 hours is expected to be toward the north-northeast or northeast at about 8 m.p.h. with some increase in forward speed likely thereafter," the advisory stated.

Edith was further east than the most eastern point in the United States and weathermen pointed out that even if it headed straight north it would not hit the mainland.

The Weather Bureau reported at 5 a.m. EST: "Movement for the next 6 to 12 hours is expected to be towards the north-northeast or northeast at about 8 m.p.h. with some increase in forward speed likely thereafter. The center should pass to the east of Bermuda late this afternoon or tonight."

Charges Come Out Of Slaying In World War II

WASHINGTON (AP)—Former Army Lt. Aldo L. Icardi was indicted today on eight charges of falsely denying any part in the cloak and dagger World War II slaying of Maj. William Holohan.

The indictment was returned by a federal grand jury which has been investigating the Holohan slaying for several weeks.

The indictment alleges that Icardi of Pittsburgh, Pa., gave false testimony in eight instances when he testified before a House Armed Services subcommittee in March, 1953.

Holohan was slain in northern Italy in 1944 while leading a group which parachuted behind Axis lines. Icardi and Carl Lo Dolce of Rochester, N. Y., were members of the secret mission.

Icardi, who was second in command to Holohan, and Lo Dolce were tried in absentia by an Italian court and convicted of slaying Holohan. They could not be extradited, however, to serve the sentences—life for Icardi and 23 years for Lo Dolce.

Fourteen persons were flown here from Italy to testify before the grand jury in its investigation of the sensational Holohan case. They included Michael Stern, an American writer who first broke the story of the slaying, and the police lieutenant who dragged Holohan's body from Lake Orta in June 1950.

Discovery of the body had led to charges by Italian authorities that Holohan was murdered by American companions on the mission.

Witnesses at the trial in Italy testified a dispute arose between Holohan and Icardi on the distribution of Army weapons to underground partisans. The account was that Holohan objected to possibly supplying ammunition to Communists while Icardi favored equipping the partisans.

Some of the witnesses accused Icardi of plotting the death of Holohan in order to obtain gold which the major had brought into the area.

The House subcommittee reported in July, 1953, that it found sufficient evidence for an indictment against the Americans, but said there was no legal way in which a prosecution could be conducted in this country.

One of the perjury charges alleged Icardi swore falsely when he denied any knowledge of poison being placed in soup given to Holohan on the night of Dec. 6, 1944.

When he testified before the subcommittee, Icardi was asked whether Lo Dolce "either drew straws or tossed a coin as to who was going to kill Holohan," Icardi replied "No, sir."

AT SENATE PROBE

Security 'Risk' Tells How Her Case Was Shunted By Army

WASHINGTON (AP)—A young Detroit woman told senators today she has tried for almost 18 months to clear her name of security risk charges, but has been unable to get government action on her case.

Mrs. Eleanor V. Waxer, a self-composed brunette, said she has suffered "extreme mental concern" and "financial hardship" as the affair has dragged on without any hearing or decision.

She read to the Senate Civil Service subcommittee numerous letters she had written to government agencies as her case was bounced around between Ft. Knox, Ky., a regional Civil Service Commission office at Cincinnati, and Washington.

She said the latest letter she received, dated Aug. 15 this year, was from the Army's security division in Washington, and said her case was being processed "with the highest priority."

It said the Army regretted she had suffered "certain inconveniences."

Mrs. Waxer was the opening witness as the subcommittee resumed its investigation of the workings of the government's employee security system.

Chairman Johnston (D-SC) said the cases of Mrs. Waxer and her husband, Sanford Waxer, were two of 11 the subcommittee planned to review in public hearings at this time.

Mrs. Waxer related that she is a native of Detroit, married Sanford Waxer there in 1952, and followed him to Ft. Knox where he was stationed after entering the Army in June, 1953.

She said she took a Civil Service examination, and was given a job as a clerk-stenographer at Ft. Knox in September, 1953. She worked in the weapons department of the armored school there.

On March 4, 1954, she received a suspension notice under the 1953 security order issued by President Eisenhower.

But on March 16 she was offered another job in a non-sensitive position at the fort. However, after conferring with CSC officials, she said she decided to take leave without pay because she felt that would expedite a settlement of her security case and clear her name. She got a job at Louisville in private industry.

Meanwhile, her 27-year-old husband was given a less than honorable discharge from the Army on grounds he was friendly with known Communist party members and sympathizers before he was drafted in June 1953.

When Waxer demanded a bill of particulars, the Army accused him among other things of getting a character reference from Dr. Alfred H. Kelly, head of the history department at Wayne University, Detroit. Waxer had studied under Kelly at the school.

The professor declared that he had investigated the AYD unit on the Wayne campus, recognized it as a Communist outfit, and recommended that it be banned. He was backed up in this account by Dr. Arthur Neef, vice president of the university.

Waxer, still fighting his case with the Army, is slated to go before an Army hearing board in Detroit Sept. 6.

Vote Asked On 'Unit System'

Petition to call an election to determine whether Howard County shall abandon the "unit system" of road maintenance and construction was received by the commissioners court this morning.

No action was taken. Judge R. H. Weaver said the petition will be turned over to the county attorney for a ruling on whether it is mandatory that the election be called. The document also will be examined to determine if it is signed by the required number of voters.

The petition was submitted to the commissioners by Connie Prather, Charles Staggs, Alden Ryan, Lloyd Murphy and Frank Hull.

They said it contained around 700 names.

The unit system was adopted by Howard County voters shortly after the Texas Legislature passed the "Optional County Road Law of 1947." Under the system, county roads are maintained and constructed on a county-wide basis, without regard to precinct lines.

Under the old system, each county commissioner operated his own "road department" independent of the others.

Nixon Lists 5 Blocks To Peace

BOSTON, Mass. (AP)—Vice President Nixon said today there are five roadblocks in the path of peace and only Soviet leaders have the power to remove them.

He told the Veterans of Foreign Wars the roadblocks are:

1. "The unnatural division of Germany which is caused by the Soviet refusal to agree to free elections."

2. "The armaments race and the fear of surprise atomic attack which will continue until Soviet leaders agree to an adequate inspection system."

3. "The Iron Curtain of barbed wire, land mines and machine guns which they have erected through the middle of Europe."

4. "The colonial status of the Communist satellite states of Eastern Europe."

5. "The network of Moscow-directed Communist subversion and espionage which extends into every free country of the world."

"Then we learned just this (Sunday) morning that the Russians can't make it."

The trio appeared tired after visiting 8 ranches in 3 days and hurried to their hotel rooms here for some rest before departure this morning for Washington.

Police Win In 25-Mile Chase

Police chased a car 25 miles early Sunday morning before they could stop the operator, who they said will be charged with driving while intoxicated, second offense.

Officers attempted to stop the car at the north city limits as it was headed toward Snyder, but the driver refused to stop. A patrol car gave immediate chase.

According to police records, the driver of the car hit 100 miles per hour in an attempt to outdistance the patrol car. However the vehicle was stopped, and the four occupants were apprehended about 1:25 a.m. Sunday.

The three people in the car besides the driver were charged with aiding and abetting the driver in committing the alleged felony offense. They spent the rest of the night in the Big Spring jail and were released on $25 bond each Sunday.

The driver was turned over to county officials, and charge is pending. It was reported. All of the car occupants were from Snyder, police said.

LAMESA — C. W. Tarter, superintendent of the Lamesa Public School System, said Monday that vacancies in the faculty were reduced to three as new names were added to the teacher roll.

He said that the system was in better shape faculty-wise than it had been in several years and this could probably be attributed to good crop prospects and oil activities here.

Two new science teachers have been added to the faculty of Lamesa High School recently. They are C. J. Coppenger, College Station, and a graduate of A&M College, will teach biology and chemistry, and James Barnett, Brownfield, a graduate of Texas Tech, will instruct general science and biology.

Jack McFarren, Whitharral, a graduate of Wayland College at Plainview, has been added to the faculty at junior high school where he will teach the seventh grade and act as assistant coach.

T. E. Price, Pecos, will take over the sixth grade. He is a graduate of East Texas State College.

Woman Treated Following Wreck

Mrs. Chester Arthur Flynt, 2104 Runnels, received first aid treatment at Malone and Hogan Hospital shortly after noon Sunday as a result of injuries sustained in an accident.

She was a passenger in a car driven by her husband, police said. The Flynt car was in collision with another vehicle operated by Winborn D. Broughton, 1601 E. 16th. The accident occurred in the 1300 block of Johnson.

Mrs. Flynt was taken to the hospital in a Nalley ambulance. Police records show that she suffered a back injury, but she was not detained at the hospital after treatment.

Another accident was reported to police during pre-dawn hours Sunday, and there was a third about 4:45 p.m. Saturday. Officers said a near-collision Saturday evening on the Air Base road resulted in a fight.

A woman in a car stopped to pick up her son, police said, and another car nearly struck the parked car. The second car stopped, words were exchanged, and the woman's son grabbed a shovel and started chasing one of the men in the second car. Police were called to break up the fracas.

The Sunday morning accident, at 2:10 a.m., occurred at Fourth and Gregg. Drivers were Lt. Ralph Lee Sutton, Webb AFB, and Billie Hopper Vaughn, 106 W. 23rd. The Saturday accident occurred at the intersection of 21st Street and Main. Margaret Sims Darrow, 1702 State, and A. F. Gilliland, 1010 E. 12th, were the drivers.

Concession Stands Hit By Burglars

Two concession stands at the Steer Park were burglarized Saturday evening, police said.

B. C. Stevens, concessionaire, reported that between 15 and 20 cold drinks were taken from one stand, and that some food was taken from the other. The window was ripped from one stand and entry was made through the roof to the other.

Officers theorize that the burglaries were committed by children. An attempt was made to get into the pillow stand, but it failed, officers said.

James Patterson, 408 N. Aylford, reported that fender skirts and a hood ornament were stolen from his automobile sometime Sunday morning while the vehicle was parked in front of his house.

H. A. Rogers, 406 State, told officers that a hub cap was taken from his car while it was parked in the 400 block of Main late Saturday night.

A man successfully robbed a cigarette machine right in front of the employees at Tarbox Motor Company this morning, police reported.

He walked into the building, pulled out a key, and opened the machine. He took an estimated $15 in quarters, locked the machine and left.

It was then learned that he did not represent the dispensing company, and the theft of money was reported to police. He was headed east in a 1949 Ford after leaving the motor company, employees said.

New Students For High School Asked To Register Soon

Pupils who did not pre-register last spring for enrollment in Big Spring Senior high school are requested to do so at the earliest time this week.

Those who were in school last spring and pre-registered do not need to report until the morning of Sept. 6. No schedules will be issued until after the general assembly on Sept. 6, the first day of school, said Roy Worley, principal.

He reiterated, however, that it is important for new pupils to register this week in order to secure satisfactory schedules.

910 Workers Placed Here In August

A total of 910 placements were made in August by the Texas Employment Commission, according to Leon Kinney, manager.

The non-agricultural part of this total was 203 while 707 of them were agricultural placements. In the non-agriculture group, 63 were females, 42 were veterans and 14 were handicapped workers.

The TEC monthly report also showed that 285 unemployment claims were filed and there were 160 new applications for work.

Kinney also announced that he has an opening for a supply officer. Applicants must have four years experience in warehouse operation. Two of these years must have been in a supervisory capacity. The salary is $300 per month, Kinney said.

'First Bale' Award Is Being Raised

Buchanan said that he has 16 committee workers contacting the various businessmen and merchants in Big Spring in an attempt to raise cash for a donation to Adkins. The project is being sponsored by the Chamber.

Electrical Board's Exam Ruling To Be Appealed Tonight

A Joint meeting of the Big Spring City Commission and the City Board of Electrical Examiners will be held at 7:30 p.m. today.

The meeting was called last week after Johnny Hickson, apprentice electrician with D&H Electric Company, charged the board with unfair grading of an examination he took for a journeyman's electrical license.

According to the city electrical code, individuals have a right of appeal on board examinations to the City Commission. Hickson claimed he did not get credit for all his right answers on the test he took.

Hickson's paper will be compared with two other examinations which were taken at the same time. Commissioners said they have heard Hickson's side of the story and now wish to discuss the situation with the board.

MRS. LAWRENCE G. BARBER (Photo by B&J)

Miss Douglas Is Wed To Lt. Barber

Before a background of palms in combination with white gladioli and candelabra, formal wedding rites united Doris Ellene Douglas of Belle, W. Va., and Lt. Lawrence G. Barber of Charleston, W. Va., Saturday evening at the Webb Air Force Base chapel.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Douglas and Dr. and Mrs. Maxfield Barber, both of the West Virginia addresses.

Chaplain Charles J. Fix read the vows for a double ring ceremony. Lt. Carl O. Bonelli, organist, played the wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of rosepoint lace over satin. The fitted bodice had a scoop neckline, and the full skirt swept into a cello train. Her veil of silk illusion was attached to a small lace cap and her flowers were white carnations formed into a crescent.

Pink and white carnations were carried by Janet Sue Douglas, who attended her sister as maid of honor. Lt. George Neal was best man, and guests were seated by Lt. Glenn Blake and Lt. Thomas Jax.

The bride is a senior student at the University of West Virginia and will resume her studies there this fall. She is a member of Delta Gamma Sorority. The bridegroom is a graduate of that university and a member of Kappa Alpha Fraternity.

In lieu of a reception, a luncheon was given for the bridal party preceding the marriage ceremony. The parents of the bridegroom were hosts for the affair.

Life Gets Easier In Alaska; Still Exciting

This is the third and last in the series of articles written by Mrs. Gene Hill describing her life in Fairbanks, Alaska. Mrs. Hill is the former Gene Hill, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Stinson of Green Valley community. Her sister, Mrs. Frank Whitaker, lives in Yonkers, N. Y.

I am afraid I wasn't too appreciative of Alaska and all its sights at first. After a few months of our crowded quarters, we bought a house trailer, a very nice one. How nice to have two beds! AN ICE BOX! And a nice little butane range! No more would I have to light the little Coleman stove, and run shrieking out into the smelt night thinking the whole place was going to burn down!

After I had taken several hair raising trips into the outdoors, Gene patiently explained that the stove was supposed to flare up when first lighted. But I was always on the defensive, and every meal I cooked was always a battle won for me.

With the buying of the trailer, I acquired a stove that I respected as a friend. So much so, that I decided to initiate it by cooking a giant batch of yeast doughnuts. . . my first. Like the old woman whose pot would not stop boiling the doughnuts rose, and rose and ROSE. . . until the house was full of them. I fried the blasted things way into the night. . . they were everywhere. . . I have not made a yeast doughnut since, and in our house the word doughnut is never said above a whisper.

Shortly after we bought the trailer, my husband was made foreman for Morrison-Knudsen Co., who had the job of paving the highway from Fairbanks to Big Delta. So hitching our little mobile home on to our pickup, we sallied forth to park for awhile by the Tanana River. This parking place was near the buffalo preserve which includes the little settlement of Big Delta.

The buffalo ranging here are from the old American bison which used to roam our western plains in the United States, but these have adopted the Arctic new look. Their winter coats are amazingly heavy, and they seem to survive the fifty and sixty below zero weather as well, if not better than the moose. The Big Delta herd is noted for its albino, which I had the pleasure of seeing.

On the day that I was informally introduced to the herd, I was lying quietly, minding my own business, sun-bathing, for it was a lovely seventy-five or eighty degree summer day. For no reason I suddenly became uneasy and raised upon one elbow to see what I could see. . . and brother! I got an eye-ful. . . yes. . . an eye-ful of a big bull buffalo not more than ten feet away, with the rest of the entire herd a few paces behind. I broke the record for the hundred yard dash. I left the scene so suddenly that the poor buffalo mistook me for some horrible apparition, and fled, bellowing, and with tails held at an unbecoming half-mast. I sat down on a clump of damp muskgrass and laughed heartily at the whole amusing situation.

Perhaps I'd better make it clear that the land here is covered with a spongy mass composed of certain plant life and decaying vegetation; it holds water as well as any sponge, and if there is anything more difficult to walk through I have yet to see it. My introduction to muskgrass came one day in the form of an invitation to fish for pike at a little lake four miles from the job site. The stories had it that if you dangled a plug a foot above the water, the fish practically fought over it. Being a Texan, I'm used to a tall story, but the more my husband thought about it, the more determined he became to see it. Driven our two daughters, ages seven and three, and all the wrong kind of fishing gear we could find, we set out for Quartz Lake. The bearer of the glad tidings had failed to tell us that the trail to the lake, at that time was through some of the worst muskgrass in the territory. What a trip! Since we had to walk in, we had gone scarcely a mile before our feet were wet and soggy, and the mosquitoes found us much to their liking. Every little twig snapping caused me to jump, expecting a fiery charge from a bull moose, and the sun beat down. What we took for high firm ground, turned out to be clumps of muskgrass, and our jeans were wet up to the knees.

And then we saw the lake. It was beautiful, with the untouched look all lakes were meant to have. Once we were there, we forgot the weary hike, and after resting under a tall white birch, we got down to the fishing. While the fish refused to fight over your line, they did bite in quantity, and we could have come out with a boat load if we had cared to. Like all good things, the day came to an end and we started on our weary trek back to camp. We had accomplished our mission and had 2,000 mosquito bites, four great northern pike and half a dozen "charley horses" to prove it.

One morning we arose to notice the forest around us was a riot of color. . . In dia n Summer! How beautiful. . . red, yellow and gold against the background of dark green spruce! We no longer had sunlight day and night; instead, we

HOLLYWOOD BEAUTY

The Hair And Eyebrows Can Help Appearance

By LYDIA LANE
HOLLYWOOD—When I first met Sally Forrest she was a dancer at MGM and not nearly as attractive as she is now.

"What have you done to make yourself so much prettier?" I asked, over cocktails at the new glamorous Beverly Hilton Hotel.

"Well, for one thing my hair was too long, too thick and too curly. Sally confided. "My friends were always telling me I should do something about it but I thought it looked very feminine and ignored their advice."

"Then I had to cut it when I made 'News Is Made At Night' at United Artists and I received so many compliments that even I was won over. Even if the long bob comes back it won't make any difference to me," said the convert.

"A makeup man suggested I use a marcel iron to straighten my hair and it has certainly made it more manageable. Everyone thinks curly hair is so wonderful," Sally commented, "but often you can't control it."

"Whether you wear your hair long or short," she continued, "I'm for all the brushing you can give it. There is nothing like it to stimulate circulation and give your hair a healthy luster. I think this is something we all know; we just don't do it. I have my operator at the salon I go to brush my hair for almost a half hour before she starts my hair."

"If my head and feet feel good, I feel good all over," Sally said. "I love foot massages. The end of every nerve in your body is in the soles of your feet and I find nothing as relaxing as a zone therapy treatment. I highly recommend these to anyone who needs to release tension."

"You mean all you did to become more glamorous was to change your hair?" I asked, returning to my original question.

"No," she admitted. "Another big change was my eyebrows. They were too thick and heavy. I haven't changed the arch but I have plucking every other hair, thinning them considerably and softening them with oil."

"How about your complexion? Weren't you having some trouble with it when I saw you last?" I asked.

"That's right," Sally recalled. "I didn't know what was causing it at the time, then I discovered I was allergic to certain creams and lotions. I'm using non-allergic cosmetics now and haven't had any trouble with my skin since," she announced happily.

HOW'S YOUR HAIR?
You'll be on the way toward more beauty when you put into practice the valuable tips you'll find in leaflet M-37, "Brushing Your Way To Beauty." Sheen, softness and luster will be the words to describe your hair. Added, at no extra cost, tips on selecting the right hairdo and "Do's" and "Don'ts" for beautiful hair. had a few hours of darkness. The fire weed had long since gone to seed and the white fuzzy seeds, like dandelions, were everywhere.

The snowshoe rabbits were gradually turning white. . . the bears were fat, having gorged themselves on the thousands of spawning salmon, the many types of berries and the camps' garbage dumps. Sleek fat moose with their large antlers, soon to become some hunter's trophy, came down to the lake's edge to seek out the lily pad roots of which they are so fond. We had to face it, winter wasn't long off. After watching a great V of wild geese group and re-group high above us for their flight south, we hooked up our trailer and moved back into Fairbanks.

A Bible Thought For Today

But I am poor and needy; yet the LORD thinketh upon me: thou art my help and my deliverer; make no tarrying, O my GOD. (Psalms 40:17)

Editorial

Careful—You Could Be A Statistic

When a car skidded out of control at 45 m.p.h. on La Brea Avenue in Los Angeles this week one young man of 10 was killed instantly and his companion, the driver, 18, went to the hospital in critical condition.

On the body of the dead boy police found a card which read:

"Sing while you drive. At 45 miles per hour, sing 'Highways Are Happy Ways.' At 65 miles, sing 'Nearer, My God, to Thee.' At 85 miles, sing 'Lord I'm Coming Home.'"

It never has seemed a good policy to jest at death.

The Association of Casualty and Surety Companies, the boys who pick up the checks at many a gory traffic scene, estimates for the coming Labor Day weekend the lowest death toll since 1950. The figure is 410 for the period starting at 6 p.m. Friday, September 2, and ending at midnight on the following Monday.

The association's optimistic estimate is based on the "Slow Down and Live" traffic safety campaign. In addition to the 410 who will die, over 22,000 drivers and passengers, plus some 3,200 pedestrians, are feared likely to suffer personal injuries. The association says at least one out of four drivers or pedestrians involved in a fatal accident will have been drinking alcohol immediately before the accident.

It will be the nation's third three-day holiday this year. The "Slow Down and Live" campaign, the association says, has produced a slight but significant reduction in fatalities, and if the spirit of the campaign is generally observed it hopes the figure 410 won't be exceeded.

Excessive speed, according to the estimate, will claim 135 people. Another 65 will die because someone is driving on the wrong side of the road. Reckless driving will claim 42, failure to yield right of way 30, and falling asleep at the wheel 29. The remaining 100 will include 35 pedestrians who attempt to cross the street between intersections, 10 who stepped into the street from behind parked cars and 55 from miscellaneous actions of drivers and pedestrians.

Well, there it is, folks. Name your pizen.

Payoff On Quality, Not Potentials

Many jet planes have broken the sound barrier on numerous occasions, but it remained for Colonel Horace A. Hanes in a North American F100C Super Sabre Jet fighter to do it under test conditions acceptable to the National Aeronautics Association.

Colonel Hanes' faster-than-sound flight took place over Southern California last Saturday. At an altitude of 35,000 feet he piloted his fighter at a speed better than 800 m.p.h., duly certified by NAA. He ran off and left the sound of his own plane at that altitude, since the speed of sound at 35,000 feet is only 663 m.p.h.

Colonel Hanes will get his recognition formally at the National Aircraft Show in Philadelphia September 3-5, in the form of the coveted Thompson trophy.

But also in Philadelphia ahead of time for the show, General Nathan F. Twining, Air chief of staff, declared "the Soviets are ahead of us" in their rate of progress at developing advanced military aircraft. He was careful to hedge by adding that "this is not to say that Soviet air power now surpasses our own. It does not."

But he said the challenge from Russia must be met "with startling progress of our own." For "if we should be forced into a no other war, our unquestioned ability to outproduce any nation will be of small value. The decision in that war would depend on the quality of the weapons that we would have when the war began."

For all his cautious hedging it is apparent the Air chief of staff clearly wants all and sundry, including the "new look" manipulators in the Pentagon, to understand that in comparison with Russia's air potential we have nothing to write home about. Gen. Matthew Ridgway was much blunter in his strictures on the cutbacks in the Army.

The Japs made mincemeat of our outmoded P-40s with their "filmy" little planes. The Russian MIGs over Korea revealed glaring weaknesses in our first-line jets. What Gen. Twining is saying, in so many words, is that we'd better not let that happen again, or there'll be no "again" for us.

Top Boxoffice And Unknown

HOLLYWOOD — One of the town's top boxoffice stars is an underwater press agent from Florida who is personally unknown even on his home lot, Universal-International.

Ricou Browning is his name and he's only been in two pictures but the boxoffice profit is in the millions. The first movie was "Creature from the Black Lagoon" and the second was "The Revenge of the Creature."

He's in town now making "The Creature Walks Among Us" and, as you probably have guessed, Ricou is the creature.

The casts all have been different in the three pictures, a fact which convinces the studio the creature himself is the boxoffice attraction.

The first two in the series were made for around $750,000 and each grossed four millions around the world. This town is peopled with Oscar winners who would like to have that kind of boxoffice return.

In the pictures Ricou plays the gill man, one of the most horrendous movie monsters since the days of Lon Chaney Sr.

Although he earns his living by frightening movie fans out of their wits, Ricou is a mild-mannered young man, just about the last person anyone would take for the dreadful creature he depicts.

A creation of U-I's horror factory-Hollywood's most famous—the gill man is set apart from the normal citizen by huge web feet, big scales over most of his body, and a face even a mother octopus couldn't learn to love.

Ricou does most of his screen emoting underwater—usually fathomless bathing spas frequented by crumby maidens, all in bikinis. So far the screen monster has chased Julie Adams and Lori Nelson and in the third picture his target will be shapely Leigh Snowden.

Until the debut of the creature, Ricou was an expert skin diver and assistant publicity director for Silver Springs, Florida. He is undoubtedly one of the world's best underwater swimmers.

Married and the father of two children, Ricou enjoys his screen success but it doesn't take it seriously.

One studio wag already has suggested that there would be a gill woman knitting little web-footed booties for the inevitable "Son of the Creature."

Last Of Electrics Out To Pasture

NEW YORK —The big city's traffic jams and fast spreading suburbia today have claimed another victim.

The last of its electrically driven pickup and delivery trucks has been retired by the Railway Express Agency. Figuratively, it joins the last of the company's horses, put out to pasture in 1933.

From now on the gasoline motor reigns alone in the company's service—until and unless the atom pushes it out in turn.

The electric had a 45-year span with the express company. Thousands of them, with their solid rubber tires, once moved through the streets of 20 or more cities from Boston to San Francisco, from Miami, Fla., to Portland, Ore. In their heyday 199 operated in Chicago, 174 in Philadelphia. Finally only New Yorkers saw them—and mercifully didn't hear them.

In World War II the electrics returned for a last fling of glory. They glided along thumping their noses at the gasoline shortage and unadorned with ration stickers on their windshields. For a while in the post-war era the company still found them economical.

A company spokesman says: "They are practical now only in certain conditions, like New York's concentrated garment district where they can do a whole day's work in a small area, with stops mainly for loading, with the batteries turned off."

"But for long hauls around today's sprawling cities they're uneconomical. They can't make fast getaways from traffic jams. The constant starting and idling runs their batteries down too fast.

Batteries aren't cheap. They cost around $2,000 per vehicle, require elaborate equipment for recharging, and have to be recharged almost nightly.

"Our modern spread-out cities with more business in the suburbs calls for our vehicles to cover 20 or more miles a trip. The electrics just are too slow, get stuck in more jams, and run down their juice too fast."

The last one, just retired here, entered express service in 1931 at Boston. It made its last runs in New York during a record heat wave. It was an earlier torrid spell that saw the arrival here of electrics in force—and they were hailed as an agent of mercy in an era of horse-drawn trucks.

In 1911's torrid July, runs an account of the era, "1,200 horses dropped dead in the streets of New York, and in addition, thousands were broken."

And now the last electric to be used, by the express agency at least, has disappeared as the atomic age arrives. This time electricity is bowling to gasoline. Over in Geneva the talk was all of fission and fusion.

Today Is Test Of Geneva Meeting

WASHINGTON — Today the United States and Russia faced the first test on whether the pleasantries they exchanged at Geneva five weeks ago mean anything.

They are meeting officially, for the first time since Geneva, in a United Nations subcommittee to discuss disarmament. Britain, France and Canada are sitting in with them.

If only a little is accomplished, in the way of concessions or agreements, it will look like much because nothing much is expected.

A much more important meeting, and a bigger test of both sides' good intentions, comes Oct. 27 at Geneva when the Big Four foreign ministers get together to go over more problems than just disarmament.

The United States and Russia have discussed disarmament many times before—but never in the strangely pleasant atmosphere that prevails now—and both sides have made some concessions.

Russia made its biggest concession last May when it agreed to the idea of letting foreign inspectors stay in Russia and check on Russian disarmament—ever reached.

This was an extremely limited kind of inspection the Russians agreed to. The inspectors could not roam Russia. They'd be restricted to major rail centers, harbors and airfields. The United States had insisted on a much wider kind of inspection.

At Geneva President Eisenhower went the Soviets one better by proposing that each side let the other keep a check by aerial inspection. Eisenhower got a lot of mileage out of his proposal, propaganda-wise.

The Russians were caught flat-footed and to this day have neither accepted Eisenhower's plan, rejected it, nor come up with some other plan of their own.

It is possible the Russians will provide a sensation in the U.N. subcommittee meeting by some offer that would match or outdo Eisenhower's. If they have such an intention, they've kept it quiet.

If they accept Eisenhower's aerial inspection plan, it is the President who may wind up embarrassed for the U.S. Senate would have to approve both a disarmament and inspection plan.

The Senate might not go for the aerial check idea. The Russians, since they don't have to answer to their people, are in a better position to offer a plan which they can make stick.

Nothing done at the subcommittee meeting is final anyway. That meeting, while it can be useful, is like a scouting expedition into the thinking of the Big Four.

All the representatives at the subcommittee meeting can do is report back to their governments—for any approval to be given—or what the other side has offered.

It's Not Pity, It's Practicality

NEW YORK —It is hard to get some employers to hire handicapped people. Often when they do, they have a feeling they are doing the handicapped a favor.

Joe Heller is a different kind of employer. He prefers to hire blind people because he has found they do a better job than workers who can see.

"And I mean they do a better job in every way," said Heller, who operates a $2,000,000-a-year wholesale toy manufacturing firm in Chicago. Only 2 per cent of his employees have normal vision. Ninety-six per cent are totally blind, the other 2 per cent partially blind.

Heller's original interest in the blind was sentimental.

"When I was a boy of 7," he recalled, "my best friend fell into a trough of lime while playing on the site of a construction project. His eyes were burned out."

"I was very close to him. In those days there wasn't so much known about how to help the blind adjust themselves to their condition. My friend grew up and died, but he never learned to adjust himself. He was never able to work. He was afraid to try to get around by himself."

"It hurt me over the years to see him so helpless."

In 1949 Heller, who had been active in the toy field, decided to go into business for himself. With two partners he founded the Skill-Craft Corp., which markets "Handy Andy" juvenile tool sets.

The idea came to him that perhaps some of the routine factory tasks could be performed by the blind, that in this way he could save some of them from the dreary loneliness of his dead childhood friend. He went to the Chicago Lighthouse for the Blind for help in setting up a training program.

The program worked out better than anyone's expectations. The blind proved amazingly able to perform any task assigned to them.

Today Heller has a reservoir of 500 skilled blind workers to draw on, employs from 100 to 150, depending on seasonal fluctuations in the toy industry. He avoids any sentiment in discussing them. He is a hardheaded realist, credits their efficiency largely for the fact his business has grown from $300,000 to $2,000,000 annually in six years, now is the top producer in the field.

Some of the blind do office work. Some assemble and pack the tool kits. When the firm added a line of chemistry sets, microscopes and juvenile mechanical drawing kits, the blind learned the necessary new skills quickly and easily.

"In all sincerity," said Heller, "I would stack them up against the best group of sighted people. Our people would do their jobs better—and get them done faster. They develop a marvelous sense of touch that compensates for their loss of sight."

Do they have any other advantages? "Many," said Heller crisply. "They don't argue or quibble or loaf on the job. If they get paid on a Friday, they don't go on a spree till the next Wednesday."

"There is little absenteeism. A blind man has to be really sick before he'll miss work. Once we have trained a blind worker we've never had to let one go—not a single one—because he let down on the job."

"They are happier working than many people who can see. We have music for them, and often they break out singing."

"They are also more careful. Our safety record is perfect. We have never had an accident."

The blind are paid during a four-week training period. They then receive the same wage scale—up to $2 an hour—as workers in other Chicago toy factories, plus extra money if their output is above the average.

"I can come from all walks of life," said Heller. "One of our superintendents was the personnel director of a large corporation before he lost his sight. Another was a contractor."

"About 35 per cent of our blind are women. They do as well as the men—and some things better. But they're all good."

All his blind employees come to work and go home by themselves. A few have Seeing Eye dogs. But most pride themselves on the fact they can get along with nothing but a white cane.

An example of their ability to grow on a job: A group of six workers who packed 800 sets of toys in a given period when they first started on the job three years ago can now pack 4,000 sets in the same time—a production increase of 500 per cent.

"More employers ought to go to the nearest agency for the blind," said Heller, "and really find out for themselves what the blind can do. They'll find them to be, man for man, a greater asset than many of the people they have on their payroll now."

Around The Rim

Suggested Ways Of Curing Insomnia

In my time, I've heard any number of remedies for insomnia—some of which I've tried and none of which has worked. For me, that is,

When sleep won't come, there's nothing I can do to induce it. As a result, I've developed infinite patience in waiting out the sand man.

If all else fails for me, however, I can always be sure of dropping off to slumber 30 minutes before I am supposed to get up.

Some of the gentry who like to burn a candle at the feet of Morpheus say counting sheep is a favorite way of dropping off to sleep. It might work for them. For me, I get nothing but woolly quadrupeds who eat too much grass and "baa" all night.

Others suggest that I place a pillow under each arm and leg on the theory that relaxation would be so complete that sleep would arrive any moment. That would never work for me because, most of the time, I rest on my side.

It's been suggested that I could hurry along the sleep bug by lying in a supine position and raising one hand or both directly above me. Such a prescription is based on the theory that the arms would grow tired, in time, and the fatigue would spread through the remainder of the body.

One party insists the way he stages his winning battle for sleep is through relaxation of various parts of the body, starting with the head, then the mouth, nose, ears and etc. He says the method works for him long before he gets to his toes.

Some people drink hot milk before retiring. Others get a bit woozy with a cup of spirits but I've known any number who insist they couldn't get their "shut-eye" before guzzling at least one cup of coffee, of all things.

Long hikes before bedtime are recommended by some. Ball players rarely sleep before getting around their biggest meal of the day, strange as that might seem.

If all else fails for you, I suggest you read this twice.

Ike's Firm Admonition To Russia

WASHINGTON — Soviet Russia has been given a graceful but firm warning that "peaceful coexistence" does not mean acceptance by the United States of the "status quo" in the world. It does not mean "stagnation" but an opportunity for the peoples of the countries living under the yoke of Red tyranny to gain some day their liberation.

The astonishing thing is not what the President said in his speech to the American Bar Association but the fact that he said anything at this time which so clearly delineates American foreign policy in what might be called the post-Geneva mood of sweetness and light.

It may be that Mr. Eisenhower, who lunched recently with Secretary of State Dulles, has become aware of the hardening of the Communist tactics in preparation for the foreign ministers conference at Geneva in October. It may be that the President is feeling the criticism which has been emerging from some quarters in this country and abroad about his fraternizations at Geneva last month.

These may have been discouraging to the peoples in the satellite countries who fear that America may have abandoned her interest in their liberation.

The President says candidly that Soviet Russia on one side and the United States and her Allies on the other each claim that peace is being sought. Each side, he adds, identifies it with "a deep-seated hunger of man and the final judgment on them—and it may be years in coming—will depend as much on the march of progress within their borders, and on their proved capacity to help others advance, as on the tranquility of their relations with foreign countries."

Here is a challenge to the Soviets to give freedom to the people within their own borders. The United States does not intend to abandon its moral position. The President says peace can be established "only if we stand uncompromisingly for principle." He then proceeds to outline certain basic principles:

"... There can be no true peace which involves acceptance of a status quo in which we find injustice to many nations, repressions of human beings on a gigantic scale, and with constructive effort paralyzed in many areas by fear."

"The spirit of Geneva, if it is to provide a healthy atmosphere for the pursuit of peace, if it is to be genuine and not spurious, must inspire all to a correction of injustices, an observance of human rights and an end to subversion organized on a world-wide scale...

"Geneva spells for America, not stagnation, then, but opportunity—opportunity for our own people and for people everywhere to realize their just aspirations."

"Eagerness to avoid war—if I think no deeper than this single desire—we can produce outright or implicit agreement that injustices and wrongs of the present shall be participated in the future. We must not participate in any such false agreement. Thereby, we would outrage our own conscience. In the eyes of those who suffer injustice, we would become partners with their oppressors. In the judgment of history, we would have sold out our freedom of men for the portage of a false peace. Moreover, we would assure future conflict!"

These are strong and courageous words and, since they are said by the man who as President of the United States commands today worldwide respect and attention, the Voice of America broadcast the speech around the globe. It can be of transcendent importance behind the Iron Curtain as well as in the so-called "neutralist countries." Indeed Mr. Eisenhower made a special point in his address of the important part which countries with newly won independence can play in assuring freedom in the world.

Too often the leaders of those countries belie their own professions of morality by seeming to take a neutral stand as between capitalism and immorality, on the one hand, and freedom and human liberty, on the other.

No more eloquent words have been spoken since World War II ended by any man in public life in the various countries of the world than those uttered by President Eisenhower when he concluded his speech to the American Bar Association this week about the global situation, as he said:

"We must be firm but friendly. We must be tolerant but not complacent. We must be quick to understand another's viewpoint, honestly assumed. But we must never agree to injustice for the weak, for the unfortunate, for the underprivileged, well knowing that if we accept destruction of the principle of justice for all, we cannot longer claim justice for ourselves as a matter of right."

How To Give Atomic Energy A Bad Name

Has anyone else in the audience ever drunk a "commemorative cocktail." It is a potion concocted by a bartender not averse to publicity who hopes to immortalize both himself and some important national or international event?

If so, these hapless souls must have read with as much distress as I the dispatch out of Geneva telling of the invention of an atom-for-peace cocktail to commemorate the great atomic conference just concluded in the Swiss metropolis.

Merely reading the recipe inflicted me with a slight feeling of mal de mer, and I clung to my desk until the giddiness subsided. It consists of a half-jigger of blue curacao, whatever that is, and a jigger of brandy, topped by champagne.

"The drink looks like a miniature 'swimming pool' atomic reactor, even to a bluish glow in its depths," says the dispatch. "Two of these and you feel at peace with the world."

That last statement I don't even question—probably because the toposot would be dead, the victim of a fall-out which he never even knew had hit him.

This is the sort of thing that could give atomic energy a bad name and send an international pack of Carrie Nations demanding war, doing more damage with ax and crowbar than a hydrogen bomb. If the atom is to remake the world, it had best get busy before this cocktail ruins the works beyond repair.

In the matter of commemorative cocktails, I speak from experience, and the experience cured me once and for all.

When H. M., Queen Elizabeth II was still a princess and about to be married to Prince Philip, all of England was drinking a commemorative cocktail called "The Wedding Bell." Merciful memory has blotted from my mind its dubious ingredients, but I drank one—repeated one—in company with some patriotic British friends.

I wish I could honestly say at this point that everything went blank and I remember nothing. The trouble is I remember everything, including being so violently ill that I made a few touching death-bed statements on a par with Camille's and a new will.

However, Harley Street saved me, although for the next six months I could not bear the smell of anything stronger than tap water or the sound of a bell. It was also touch and go for several days whether I could retain the friendship of my English acquaintances who were prone to regard my performance an anti-British and as a reflection on their beloved Princess.

I was finally let off by pleading a democratic liver unaccustomed to royal drams. But it was a near thing, and on the day of the wedding, I was barely able to totter into Westminster Abbey and record the scene in immortal prose.

The experience taught me one thing: To eschew commemorative cocktails as the devil does holy water and to take my ginger ale straight. If I can have my druthers, I'd druther perish by the atom than the atomic cocktail. It is bound to be quicker and less painful.

TRUMAN CHARGES IKE Under Domination Of 'Big Business'

MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich. (AP)—Harry S. Truman fired the first salvo of a three-day Michigan Democratic conference yesterday by accusing the Republican administration of falling "100 per cent under the domination of big business."

Truman, scheduled for a speech here tonight, told a news conference that this domination "started in Michigan."

The former President said he did not want to discuss personalities, and he did not mention by name Secretary of Defense Wilson, former General Motors president, and other Michigan businessmen in the Eisenhower administration.

Commenting on Democratic chances in 1956, Truman said it was not inevitable that Republicans would win if President Eisenhower is nominated.

"I think the man who will win the election is the one who has the best platform," he said.

He reaffirmed his support of Adlai Stevenson and at the same time made it clear that he himself would not be a candidate.

He denied that he was embarking on another "give-'em-hell" campaign.

"I never gave anybody hell," he said. "I tell the truth and if they think that's hell, that's too bad."

Truman steered clear of any comment on Michigan's Democratic Gov. G. Mennen Williams' recent remark that Eisenhower is an old man who might die in office.

Asked whether he thought Eisenhower was too old to run, he said: "I don't know anything about that. You would have to consult his doctor."

Six More Killed In Fighting Along Disputed Gaza Strip

CAIRO, Egypt (AP)—Six more persons died in new Egyptian-Israeli fighting along the Gaza Strip yesterday, straining still further the already creaking Palestine armistice.

Egyptian authorities said the shooting brought the total dead in incidents during the past week in the Egyptian-held coastal area of Palestine to seven Egyptians and 13 Israelis.

Each side blamed the other for the continuance of bloodshed.

An Egyptian army communique said the Israelis fired on five Egyptian outposts east of Gaza city, and the Egyptians returned the fire. The communique said four Egyptians were killed, while the wounded included six Egyptians and "many Israeli soldiers."

In Jerusalem, the Israeli government claimed (1) an Egyptian attack on an Israeli patrol near the village of Berri in which two Israelis were wounded; (2) the mining of two Israeli army cars near Berri, killing two Israeli soldiers and wounding three; and (3) another Egyptian attack on a patrol near the village of Kussufim.

U. N. Command Agrees To Cut In Inspection Teams

PANMUNJOM, Korea (AP)—The United Nations Command agreed today to a cut in the controversial truce inspection teams in Korea.

Going even further, the UNC asked an end to the inspection setup as the only solution to "Communist obstructions and frustrations."

Violent demonstrations by South Koreans opposing the presence of the teams has resulted in injury to 44 U.S. soldiers and more than 100 Koreans. Communist Czechs and Poles make up half of each team. South Korean officials have consistently accused them of being Red spies.

Maj. Gen. Harlan C. Parks, senior Allied member of the joint Military Armistice Commission, agreed to the reduction plan at a commission meeting today.

Parks said the Allies consider reduction of the four-nation machinery "a temporary measure only."

Stolen Property Evidence Enters Murder Case

KINGMAN, Ariz. (AP)—Property which police say was stolen from the home of a city official in Palm Springs, Calif., today figured in the questioning of a couple charged with his death.

Police Chief August G. Kettman of Palm Springs said that Robert Kenneth Miers, 50, a bakery employe from Baldwin Park, near Los Angeles, and his 28-year-old wife Elizabeth have changed their stories under questioning about the death of Donald E. Graham, 60.

Graham, a building inspector, was found dead Friday at his home in the fashionable California resort town. Deputy Coroner Robert Drak said the victim had been beaten severely on the head and was suffocated by his own blood.

Sheriff Frank Porter of Mohave County said Miers first told him he punched Graham in the face and wrestled with him because the widower made advances toward Mrs. Miers.

"They sought to explain what the tussle and struggle and beatings were all about," Kettman said after questioning the pair. "But they can't explain the subsequent theft of the property."

Women's and men's clothing, a watch, a diamond ring, some books of "green stamps" and a vacuum cleaner were taken from Graham's home, the chief said. Porter said Miers earlier admitted taking $30 and $1 bills from Graham's wallet. The man had $50.32 and his wife $180.52 when they were arrested.

Berserk Gunman Shot In Escape Try

DETROIT (AP)—A berserk gunman who held 200 policemen at bay in a four-hour siege was shot to death last night as he broke from a flaming tear-gas-filled house firing a shotgun.

Ten policemen, crouched in the shadows of the next-door house, fired 40 shots at the man. He had dropped from a rear window to make his desperate bid to break through police lines.

Police identified him as Charles Luther Rollins, 44, Leoma, Tenn. Papers found on him gave his occupation as farmer and cabinet maker.

Two police officers were wounded in the battle watched by a crowd of 5,000 in a northwest Detroit residential district.

Senior Inspector Walter Wyrod's right hand was mangled by shotgun.

Patrolman Anthony Oberdinski, 29, was shot in the arm.

Rollins had holed up in the home of Bernard Smith, who was vacationing with his family in Tennessee. Neighbors said he was an uncle of Smith and had lived with him for a time last June.

Smith, a gun collector, had 11 weapons, including a machine gun, in the house.

Police poured 40 tear gas bombs into the story-and-a-half frame building but failed to flush Rollins. Exploding gas bombs were believed to have touched off an attic fire that burned for the last hour of the siege.

Union Leader Tells Value Of Political Action

DALLAS (AP)—Morris Akin of the CIO Oil, Atomic and Chemical Workers said yesterday political action is at least equal to collective bargaining in producing financial benefits to workers.

Akin addressed about 130 delegates to the final session of the three-day Dallas United Labor Assembly on the SMU campus.

Akin said raising the federal minimum wage law from 75 cents to $1 an hour will put almost two billion dollars extra in the pockets of workers each year. Akin said the minimum wage was raised as the result of political action.

He said the increase would put more money in workers' pockets each year than all the added benefits gained by collective bargaining this year.

Akin added: "If as much money had been put into political action last year to push through a tax cut as was spent on collective bargaining, the tax cut would have passed, putting about four billion dollars more each year into the pockets of the American workers."

He said collective bargaining has been the main aim of organized labor, but said, "those examples show what political action can do and why it is about equally important in gaining benefits for the worker."

The final speaker was Jerry Holleman, executive secretary of the Texas State Federation of Labor. Holleman predicted that "once again the hucksters will tell the people of all the 'horrible' things that will happen if a governor and Legislature friendly to labor are elected next year."

The Austin AFL executive said, "unfortunately there are people in Dallas and Texas who are terrified at having a governor and Legislature that are friendly to labor and who truly represent the people."

"They forget that union membership is a personal thing and no governor can keep a man from joining a union if he wants to or force a man to join one if he doesn't want to."

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

Simon Kenton dressed like an Indian.

A 16-year-old Virginia youth made a mistake and ran away because of fear that he would be punished. As it turned out, his fear was needless.

The youth was Simon Kenton, and he was destined to become famed as a pioneer of Kentucky and Ohio. At the time of his flight, however, he was without any thought of being a hero. He supposed that he was being hunted, and that he would have to face the charge of murder if captured.

The trouble had come from a quarrel with William Leachman. The two were rivals for the love of the same girl, and she had decided in favor of Leachman. Horrified Kenton felt that he had been wronged, and waited until he could fight his "enemy" in a lonely spot. At the end of the struggle, Leachman lay motionless on the ground.

"I have killed him!" Kenton exclaimed. Heading northwestward, he made his way through the wilderness. Without a rifle to use in shooting game, he felt at a loss. Here and there he found berries, and he dug for roots. When he came to a spring, he drank greedily.

The roots and berries failed to keep him from growing hungry. At length he reached a cleared field, and went to the cabin of the owner to ask for work.

"You can hoe the corn," said the pioneer farmer.

Three days later a stranger appeared at the opposite side of the cornfield. Fearing that the man was an officer of the law, Kenton went on with his flight.

Near Fort Pitt, Kenton joined two woodsmen in a plan to make a western trip. Together they built a flatboat, and with traps and other supplies floated down the Ohio River.

Kenton stayed in the lower valley of the Ohio River, and dressed in the manner of an Indian. Years passed before a visitor told him that Leachman had recovered after the fight, without any lasting marks of injury.

Tomorrow: More About Kenton.

Personality First

Dear Miss Brandow: My legs are too large for my figure, which otherwise is good. Boys will whistle at me until they spot my legs and then they just turn their heads. Diets don't help. I lose weight other places. Do you know of any solution?

Try wearing dresses! We both know the popularity of shorts lies in the fact that they gain masculine attention. — And the less a woman wears, the more men will look. Some contend shorts are cooler and easier to work in. In most cases, this just isn't true.

A woman who must depend solely upon taking off her clothes for popularity is a pretty shallow person.

Quit worrying about your legs.

Put a crisp pretty dress over them and rely on your personality. If a skirt is an impenetrable wall between you and popularity, you're after the wrong kind of friends.

Attend a formal dance. Watch the various couples for a few minutes, and you'll discover it is quite easy to tell which girls are in the habit of wearing shorts.

They can put on a dress at will but they cannot put on the grace and poise that habitual dress-wearers yield. Their walking and sitting hints of a certain awkwardness that is not present in the girl who practices grace and femininity, and incorporates them into the whole of her life.

"Ready to Steady" is a free booklet you may obtain by writing Miss Brandow in care of The Herald and enclosing a 3 cent stamp.)

3 El Paso Children Die In Shell Blast

ELPASO, Tex. (AP)—Three small children lost their lives last night in what one official called "one of the worst disasters the city has ever seen" when a 90 mm. shell exploded over a picnic fire.

Ten others were injured, one critically.

Asst. Fire Chief W. E. Wood said, "There was food, toys, chairs and clothing scattered all over the place. This is one of the worst disasters the city has ever suffered."

"One boy was blown right out of his shoes."

The explosion ripped through an apartment house yard, killing 4-year-old Velma Morales instantly. George Valdez, 6, was dead on arrival at the El Paso General Hospital and Ricardo Julian, 10, died a short time later at the hospital.

Tiny Hector Ramirez, 4, is in critical condition. Both his legs were amputated.

One of the first to arrive on the scene, Raymundo Santos, a scoutmaster, said it was "one of the most horrible things I've ever seen."

Police said Santos helped carry the bodies out and administered first aid.

Most of the injured suffered either shrapnel wounds or serious flash burns.

Police said Carlos Valdez, father of George Valdez, told them he had built the fire in the yard and the children were roasting corn when the blast occurred.

Valdez told police the shell had been lying around for some time and that everybody thought it was a dud. He said he thought the shell might have been picked up when the family had a picnic a couple of months ago near the Casner range of Ft. Bliss.

The other injured: David Marcia, 6; Irma Morales, 6, sister of Velma; Juan Ortiz, 7; Fernando Ramirez, 6; Amado Rivera, 22, a passer-by who suffered shrapnel in the back; Carlos Valdez, 10; Roberto Robson, 7; Luis Ljuan, 6; and Mrs. Thomasa Marcial, 43.

Big Four, Canada Envoys Meet For Arms Parley

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Delegates from the Big Four and Canada gathered today for a new round of disarmament talks. The meetings provide the first major test of the improvement in relations between the West and Russia since the Geneva summit conference.

The five-power subcommittee of the Geneva summit conference. The five-power subcommittee of the U.N. Disarmament Commission was called to meet this afternoon at U.N. headquarters to expand and discuss proposals made at Geneva.

Chief among new ideas advanced at Geneva was President Eisenhower's proposal that the United States and Russia exchange blueprints of their military establishments and allow each other to inspect these installations from the air. The Russians have been cool to the suggestion, although Soviet Premier Bulganin later took pains to emphasize his government had not rejected it.

A U.S. spokesman said before the opening session that while his government felt the general atmosphere since Geneva added a hopeful element to the new negotiations, quick agreement was not anticipated.
