The Lusitania

On May 7th, 1915, the Cunard ocean liner "Lusitania", bound for Liverpool from New York, was torpedoed by a German submarine off the coast of Ireland. The reaction in America had much to do with this country's entry into the war against Germany two years later.

It was based on the British claim the ship wasn't carrying munitions, which only recently we have learned was not true.

Though the German Government took out a newspaper advertisement in many U.S. papers warning Americans not to travel on ships bound for England, these were widely disregarded. Eleven hundred and fifty people perished in the sinking.

Such sinkings were commonplace by American and other submarines in World War II.

May 8th

If it's true that all wars are futile, in the long term, a good case can now be made for that claim regarding World War II, which came to an end in Europe on May 8th, 1945.

Naziism was conceived as the worst of the world's threats at the time of the outbreak of the second world conflict. Communism, it now seems, was even more of a long-term threat.

England righteously went to war when Hitler attempted to exact revenge for an admittedly unfair 1919 treaty, and to conquer Poland. But what resulted was that the British, then a major power, were bled white, and left a second class power. Poland wasn't saved. The Communists took it all at the end of the war. They had taken half of it, in league with Hitler, in 1939.

Hitler, of course, was ruined and eliminated in the process, and Germany divided. Hitler would have disappeared from the scene in any event, in time, and there is today strong evidence that the mass executions of Jews, begun in 1942-43 could have been avoided had not German leaders saw defeat ahead of them. Hitler's attitude, according to respected historian David Irving, was that the Jews had helped align the world against Germany and that he would take them down with him (and Germany) in the descent into catastrophe.

This is, of course, conjecture and atrocities against Jews had begun much earlier, though not on such a scale as when the spectre of defeat began to appear on the German horizon. And in any event, the treatment of Jews by Hitler makes any such discussion of theories somewhat meaningless to those murdered, dispossessed and discriminated against.

Whatever the real truth, the end of the war in Europe on May 8th, 1945, marked the ascendancy of Communism as a world power, the end of the Nazi threat and Jewish persecutions, and reduction of England to second-class power status. Hitler's fatal mistake was, it's now clear, implementing his criminal obsession to persecute Jews. Had he avoided that, the world might have looked with some sympathy on his effort to liquidate the Communist threat--which Germany and Japan, had they coordinated, could probably have achieved in 1941.

Deadline Corn Crop

The Federal Crop Insurance Corporation (FCIC) announced today that farmers in Dallas, Sherman, Hansford, Ochiltree, Hartley, Moore and Hutchinson Counties have until April 30 to apply for all-risk insurance on their 1979 grain sorghum crops.

According to Ben A. Jordan, Jr., Regional Director, a number of significant improvements have been made in the insurance coverage for 1979 crops, including a substantial increase in the amount of protection offered on grain sorghum.

The FCIC program is designed to provide protection against natural hazards such as drought, insects, hail, disease and excessive moisture. Coverage extends from the time a crop is seeded until it is harvested.

The program is administered through the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Locally, information can be obtained from the County Federal Crop Insurance Office, 1416 West 8th, Amarillo, Telephone: 806/376-2268.

Garden Tips

Millions of Americans are now busy preparing gardens. Pictures in seed catalogues have mouths watering. To produce something akin to the pictures, here are a few tips.

The most common mistake of the spring gardener is planting too much, especially if the gardener is without a tiller. Remember that in hot June and July days, weeding will be a regular requirement. Plant a garden small enough to maintain easily.

Plant the vegetables which do best in your locality. They require less work and produce more gratifying results. Much hard work will produce disappointing results if soil and climate are not well suited to the seed or plant.

A drop of mineral oil in the first corn silk will prevent corn worms. Planting onions with carrots will protect the carrots. Dusting or spraying tomatoes is often necessary to prevent brown rot. Cabbage needs a bit of snuff in the core or a commercial preparation to keep out the worms, in its early, formative stage. Peas should be planted early in the deep South and beans, to be their best, should be picked while small and tender.

If one enjoys the assistance of a power tiller, make all rows just wide enough for the tiller. For a small garden, a two or three horsepower tiller is power enough. It won't require as much strength, and energy, as a five-horsepower model.

Finally, a sensible procedure is to plant one's favorite crop in several plantings, to assure a fresh supply over a period of time. Or one can swap back and forth with neighbors planting at different times. Both systems provide some protection against crop failure. Good eating!

STAMPS AND STORIES

By Stanley James

Who is there who has not experienced the excitement of a circus, with its prancing horses, caged animals, lion tamer, trapeze acts, bareback riders and calliope music? And its clowns? Especially the clowns!

The circus began thousands of years ago in Rome, and didn't arrive in America until 1793. The first circus performance in America was attended by no less a dignitary than George Washington, himself.

As America grew, tent circuses became more popular. There was hardly a town in the nation that wasn't visited by a tent show of some size. At one point, it took more than a hundred oversize rail cars to transport "The Greatest Show on Earth."

But the advent of television and the urbanization of America gradually began to tell on the circus. Crowds began to fall off. More and more people stayed home to watch their favorite TV shows. The cost of operations became exorbitant, and many of the smaller circuses were forced to fold their tents and go out of business.

On May 2, 1966, the Postal Service issued a five-cent stamp, bearing the portrait of a clown, in honor of the American circus. It was first placed on sale in Delavan, Wisc., where many circus greats of the past are buried.

Tony and Rex Shapley report a burglary 3 miles West of Gruver. Approximately $6,000.00 worth of welding equipment, tools, and saddles was taken. Also, Roy Deeds, reports loss of identical equipment, tools, gasoline, batteries, etc., on his place South of Bernstein. Approximately $1200.00 worth of goods was stolen from Deeds place. Worley Smith reports a lost butane tank, tools, and welding equipment valued at approximately $1200.00.

The Sheriff's Dept. has increased their patrols at night, in order to stop the thefts. Sheriff McFarlin reports that all of the towns in the area are reporting the same type of thefts in their rural areas, as we are having here.

WASHINGTON NOTES

ON WHOLESALE PRICES

Wholesale prices rose another 1 percent in March to produce the largest quarterly increase in four years. The March rise followed increases of 1 percent in February and 1.3 percent in January, the Labor Department said.

KAHN ON DECONTROL

The additional money that Americans may have to pay for gasoline and home heating oil after domestic oil prices are decontrolled could be offset by savings in other areas, Alfred E. Kahn, the government's chief inflation fighter said.

CHANGES REJECTED

The administration has rejected proposed changes to the Panama Canal Treaty and asked congressmen to stop making "inaccurate attacks" on Panama's government.

WEAPON BAN TALKS

The United States and the Soviet Union have ended another round of talks on banning the development, production and stockpiling of chemical weapons, the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency said.

AGREE TO COMPLY

The Council on Wage and Price Stability has announced that 447 of the nation's largest industrial companies have agreed to comply with President Carter's voluntary anti-inflation program. The council did not release the names of the remaining 53 companies in the top 500 that have not made a formal commitment.

MORE REFUGEES

Attorney General Griffin B. Bell has announced he is permitting the admission of 65,000 Indochinese and Soviet Union refugees into the United States under his authority to bypass immigration quotas in cases of unusual need.

PRODUCTION UP

Production by the nation's factories rebounded in March from winter-depressed levels to post a 0.9 percent gain for the first quarter of 1979, the Federal Reserve Board said.

go all the way to "organic farming," but many producers will cut back their dependence to the chemical sauce they've relied on to grow corn.

With legume hay crops in the rotation, this works out real well, notes Duane.

SPENDING UP

The Commerce Department reported that consumer spending rose 1.0 percent last month, the largest gain of 1979 and a signal the economy is continuing to grow rapidly.

The Days Of May

Is there a month when exuberance of spirit is more likely to turn one's head than May? By June the days are often too hot. In May, however, except in the deep South, the warmth and sunshine of blue-sky days are a tonic which stirs the mind at the onset of a new greening.

May also means the end of school for millions. It's the month many summer holidays are planned. It's a month when many travel to faraway places, especially Europe, which can be uncomfortable in March and April.

May is also the last good month to plant summer gardens. Even in more northerly states, planting must often be completed by mid May if fresh garden vegetables are to be enjoyed in July and August.

There are many who believe late spring is the year's most delightful season. Nature and the world around is fresh and newly colored, and the promise of summer is everywhere.

If June is the month of marriage, it might be as a result, in former times, of a surge of romantic nostalgia in May. Do you feel it?

ON POPULATION

The Population Reference Bureau, a Washington-based non-profit organization specializing in population research, said that if current trends continue, the 15 so-called "Sun Belt" states will nearly double their population by the end of the century and account for more than 40 percent of the U.S. population.

Forage Crops "Harvest" Solar Energy Best

Farming is really a sunshine-collecting business. Water and plant food are important but sunlight is much the most important ingredient in crop production. And forages are nature's most effective solar energy collectors, says Duane Stamps, Sperry New Holland dealer at New Holland-Perryton.

Duane points out farming was operated on current solar energy supplies in the form of harvested crops until about 100 years ago. The energy supplies in the form of harvested crops

Duane points out farming was operated on current solar energy supplies in the form of harvested crops until about 100 years ago. The energy was in the form of crops fed to horses and mules that powered the farms. Then we started using the sun's energy that was stored a long time ago, first in the form of coal, then oil and gas.

There's not much chance of every going back to animal-powered agriculture, says Duane. First of all, we can't because we wouldn't have the horses. Second, we don't need to because there is enough oil to fuel tractors if we're careful not to waste. We can work out farming methods to minimize fuel energy purchases.

Hay crops harvested as hay take less energy than silage in most systems. Corn or sorghum harvested as silage beats grain in terms of energy recovered from the crop. In terms of the ratio of energy/1 and use and crop produced, the winners are forages.

A return to livestock farming on land that's best used that way saves very large amounts of energy. Alfalfa as a protein maker saves the energy used in non-protein nitrogen and other protein supplements. More important, it puts a lot of nitrogen into the soil for the next crop. This saves large amounts of natural gas you'd otherwise need to produce fertilizer nitrogen.

And alfalfa, which yields a cash return similar to or higher than grain most years, doesn't require tillage very often. That saves a lot of tractor fuel.

Take it all together, farmers' costs of the imports purchased, including energy, are heading us back to a "balanced" agriculture that makes best use of legumes and livestock manure to produce the non-legume grain crops we also need. Not many farmers are expected to

Energy Crisis Boosts Hay

Hay has always been a good thing but high-cost energy makes it look even better, claims Duane

Stamps of New Holland-Perryton, Sperry New Holland dealer at Perryton, Texas. He points out you can harvest and store your alfalfa crop with far less horsepower if you make hay as compared to silage. Baling an acre of alfalfa only takes a fraction of the energy you'd need to operate a chopper for the same crop handled as silage. The energy used to operate conveyors at storage compares very favorably, with the power needed to operate a blower at a tower silo, adds Duane.

He emphasizes silage or haylage may be much the best choices for alfalfa in a streak of rainy weather in first cutting. Sometimes this will let you save a good crop you could otherwise lose.

However, today's mower-conditioners do a better job of mowing and conditioning so you can get the crop off and cured in less time. When the weather is with you, there's no match for hay in energy cost per ton of crop drymatter harvested, Duane points out. Today's machines let you make better use of limited spells of good haying weather.

Higher machine capacity in tons of hay baled per hour makes it easier to snatch the crop ahead of the next rain. Mechanized handling makes it easy to clear large tonnages from large fields quickly and with minimum labor.

The top 2 sorghum hybrids on the High Plains are both from Pioneer.

Even in a rough sorghum year like 1978, farmers all over the High Plains brought in good yields with 8501 and 8451 from Pioneer. Both of these hybrids have outstanding qualities that make them ideal for High Plains growing conditions. Talk to your Pioneer dealer soon about one . . . or both of these hybrids for your place.

High Yielding Greenbug Tolerant

Greenbug tolerance without sacrificing yield! Even in marginal conditions this outstanding hybrid makes a good stand. Extremely good early-season vigor coupled with outstanding stress tolerance makes 8451 the kind of sorghum you'd choose even if it weren't tolerant to greenbugs. In side-by-side yield comparisons over a three-year period, 8451 has proven its performance potential by out-yielding later maturing hybrids by almost 350 lbs. per acre. If you need greenbug tolerance, but don't want to give up yield, plant 8451 from Pioneer.

8501

Drought tolerance with high yield potential. In 56 tests over the last three years 8501 has shown a yield advantage of 339 pounds per acre over competitive varieties. A strong stalk and root system give 8501 excellent standability and add to its exceptional drought tolerance. 8501 has good tolerance to smut and MDMV. Very uniform head height, excellent head exertion and beautiful, bronze grain help make its field appearance outstanding.

Good Neighbor Awards Ceremonies Planned

AMARILLO--the Fifth Good Neighbor Awards ceremonies will be held in conjunction with the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce Annual Banquet Monday night, (April 30) in the Amarillo Convention Center. A reception at 6:00 PM will precede dinner at 7.

Initiated in 1975 the Good Neighbor Awards recognize the Man and Woman of the Year who have contributed time and effort to regionally beneficial projects.

"The epitome of the friendship between all Panhandle Chambers of Commerce, these awards are presented at the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce Annual Banquet. Annually we dedicate the banquet to the continuing friendship between the Golden Spread communities. Monday night leaders from throughout the area will join the Chamber in honoring the 1979 Man and Woman of the Year," according to Gene Edwards, 1979 Chamber of Commerce President.

Award recipients are from outside of Amarillo but within the Texas Panhandle.

The 1979 award recipients will join civic leaders such as Margaret Harper of Canyon and Fritz Thompson of Borger, the first recipients of the awards in 1975. Mrs. Harper was recognized as founder of the production "TEXAS" in Palo Duro Canyon, while Thompson's work for the Sanford Dam project creating Lake Meredith and his work as a state representative were recognized.

In 1976 it was Clint Fromby of Hereford and Mrs. Jo Randel of Panhandle. Fromby was recognized for his long list of civic activities including local, state and national commitments. Mrs. Randel was cited as founder and director of the Square House Museum in Panhandle among her other activities in state historical circles.

Pampa woman, Mrs. Clotilde Thompson was recognized in 1977 for her work on the Gray County Historical Society and her work as curator of the White Deer Land Museum. That same year J. W. Buchanan, Dumas, was named Man of the Year for his work in water and soil conservation and his terms as a representative to the Texas Legislature.

Last year Mrs. Charles R. (Lou) Cooley of Borger and A. L. Black of Friona were named the Good Neighbors of the Year. Mrs. Cooley was a founder of the B & PW Children's Home and the Borger Fine Arts Festival. She was also involved in regional banking business. Black was recognized for his activities in various official capacities with the soil and water conservation and cattle feeder organizations.

Guest speaker for the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce annual banquet will be Charles F. Barber, chairman of the board of directors for ASARCO, Inc.

(Amarillo's copper refinery).

Reservations may be made with the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce, 301 S. Polk, 79101. Tickets are $7.50 and include the reception and dinner. Entrance for the reception and dinner will be through the north doors.

Agriculture News

Layton Barton
Co. Extension Agent (Agri.)

Many Hansford County residents are now making preparations for their home gardens. One problem which faces them is weed control.

Weed control in the home garden depends on garden size, kinds of vegetables being grown, and types of weeds, says Layton Barton, County Agent.

Weeds (any unwanted plants) compete with vegetables for soil moisture and nutrients. They have extensive root systems and flourish under a variety of conditions.

Effective control of weeds depends on how they spread, says Barton. Crabgrass and other annual weeds survive by seeds. Perennial weeds such as bermudagrass and johnsongrass survive both by seeds and underground plant parts.

Seeds are transmitted by wind, water or animals. They may also reach the garden in improperly prepared compost, manure or other organic matter added to the soil.

Barton notes that some weed seeds remain viable in the soil for years. They and underground storage parts contain food reserves to support weed seedlings until they emerge and are exposed to sunlight.

Herbicides or chemical weed killers are the least desirable home garden weed control, contends Barton. While they are a necessity in commercial crop production to reduce labor and achieve maximum yield, there are not enough chemicals with a wide enough margin of error to be used safely and successfully in home gardens. Also, most herbicides are effective on specific weeds in specific crops and most gardens contain a variety of vegetables. Furthermore, herbicides are expensive; a gallon can cost $70 or more.

Barton thinks the best method is "hoeicide," or using a sharp hoe. Most gardens are small enough to be weeded with a hoe or by hand pulling. This is most effective when done regularly and when weeds are small.

Mulching makes weed control easier, points out Barton. A three-inch mulch layer (after it settles) controls annual weeds from seed and preventing many weed seedlings from reaching light. Also, those that do push through are easier to pull.

Several types of mulches can be used. Grass clippings work well but make sure they do not include weed seeds. Paper can also be used effectively. Black plastic is effective except against nutgrass which readily penetrates it. Clear plastic is ineffective since it allows light to reach soil.

Planning garden crops so as to avoid excessive space between plants also helps control weeds, adds Barton. Open areas readily become infested with weeds.

Good management, prior planning and a little hard work all add up to an effective weed control program. The fewer the weeds, the better the yield.

Stamp Collecting Relatively Inexpensive

"Soaring prices and inflation may discourage some pastimes but Americans have found that stamp collecting is still relatively inexpensive," the Postmaster said today.

The most popular hobby in the world, stamp collecting, has attracted more than 20 million collectors in the United States alone, the Postmaster said today.

He added that the number of stamp collectors of all ages has been growing faster than the population, and pointed out that national postal sales to collectors have grown four-fold in the 1970's.

"The fascination of the American public with stamps and postal products has never been keener," the Postmaster said, pointing to national postal philatelic sales which now approach $100 million annually.

"A prospective stamp collector can get started with the fun and educational rewards of stamp collecting by making one trip to his local post office, station or branch. Philatelic starter aids available there include a miniature encyclopedia about the world of philately, mint sets of recent commemorative and special stamp issues, and topical collecting kits on a variety of subjects. It's that easy," he said.

The Postmaster's comments were made in conjunction with a two-week "What's Philately?" nationwide program now under way at local postal outlets.

Drowning Time

A precaution swimmers should observe is to try to swim in groups, especially in the oceans. This offers any swimmer in distress immediate help and it also affords protection from sharks and other dangerous fish. Sharks are quite often very close to ocean swimmers, despite notions to the contrary, and if this is doubted try fishing for them from the surf.

It's also shocking to read of those unable to swim going out in boats without life preservers--and many drown in this way every year. Others underestimate currents or their ability or distance. Such mistakes are often paid for with life itself, as we saw recently in Miami.
