charges were pending reportedly out of Palapinto County against Herrin. Mrs. Barbara Herrin, was charged with two counts of theft by check on information filed in Jack County. Mrs. Herrin was also jailed and bond was set at $500.00 on each of the two alleged charges against her.

Range Management Meeting Increase In Persons On Larger Farms

LUBBOCK—One well-planned, controlled fire can effect several forms of range improvement, but the land manager must first be knowledgeable of fire's effects on each type of land to be burned.

Dr. Henry A. Wright of the range and wildlife management faculty at Texas Tech University has compiled data on the effects of fire on several different types of land in West Texas and on when and how to burn, as well as why.

"The main reasons for use of fire in grasslands include increasing yields and enhancing the taste of coarse grasses, amplifying availability of forage, controlling shrubs and cool season grasses, killing cactus and weeds, removing dead woody material and improving wildlife habitat," Wright said.

On the shortgrass prairie of the High Plains fire has few beneficial uses. Usually the grasses do not benefit from fire, he said, although they tolerate it during wet seasons. If rain is below normal, the grasses can be severely harmed for two or three years.

During a relatively wet season, when soil moisture is high, controlled fire on the shortgrass prairie can be an economical means of cleaning up woody debris and killing prickly pear less than two feet tall. Fire will also control small cedar trees.

Contrary to popular theory, fire does not add nitrogen to the soil. Nitrogen and sulphur in the grass are lost in the atmosphere during a burn, Wright said. Phosphorus, potassium, calcium and other minerals, though, are returned to the soil in the ashes, providing some fertilization.

Nitrate content of the soil increases by an indirect effect of the fire, though. After a burn the soil temperature is usually raised an average of 10 degrees Fahrenheit, permitting a tenfold increase of bacteria populations, which can break down more organic matter in the soil and add to its nitrate content.

Fire has several uses on the mixed prairie of the Rolling Plains. Most beneficial is the increase in both herbage yield and taste of the prevalent coarse grasses, such as tobosagrass. Fire also rids the rangeland of litter often accumulated from these grasses.

Annual broomweed, which can be toxic to cattle, particularly calves, is also controlled by burning. Removal of dead honey mesquite and killing of young honey mesquite trees can be accomplished by controlled fire. About 50 to 70 percent of all cactus species will die two years after a burn, Wright said.

In the Edwards Plateau region fire removes chained debris and dead piles of ash juniper and kills young cedar trees. Wright said the combination of dozing and burning allowed one rancher east of Abilene to increase his carrying capacity from one cow per 50 acres to one cow per 15 to 20 acres.

Fire is used in the mesquite and brush country of the Rio Grande Plains to burn sprayed mesquite and increase forage yields. Although it does increase carrying capacity and makes livestock handling easier, fire can destroy much of the brush cover, which results in depletion of wildlife numbers by as much as 50 percent.

Fire can be extremely harmful to rangeland if used during or after drought seasons of if set under the wrong weather conditions. Relative humidity, soil moisture, air temperature, wind speed and wind direction all need to be within certain levels for each type of rangeland to be burned, Wright stressed. And, if only a portion of a pasture is burned, animals will overgraze that area, which demands a recovery time of as much as seven to eight years.

Experience is the best teacher when using controlled fire, Wright commented, and no one should be in charge of burning a pasture with less than two seasons of burning experience.

The Tech professor reviewed uses of prescribed burning in these areas at the annual meeting of the Texas Section of the Society for Range Management held this month in San Angelo.

WASHINGTON—While total farm population is declining, more people are living on the larger farms which produce the bulk of the nation's food and fiber, according to a study released today by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Although the total farm population declined during the 1970-75 study, the number of people living on farms with annual sales greater than $40,000 increased by 76 percent, said demographer Vera J. Banks of the department's Economics, Statistics, and Cooperatives Service (ESCS).

A substantial but undetermined part of this increase was associated with inflation of farm product prices during the period. The farms with over $40,000 in sales account for about 80 percent of total U.S. farm receipts but only 24 percent of the U.S. farm population.

Banks said in 1975 farms with under $2,500 in annual sales contained a third of the U.S. farm population, or about 2.8 million. This compares with 3.6 million in 1970. Operators of these farms usually earn most of their money income from off-farm sources.

In 1975, two-thirds of the total U.S. farm population lived on livestock and cash-grain farms. Single free copies of the report, "Farm Population Trends and Farm Characteristics" (RDRR-3), are available from ESCS Publications, 0054-S. U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250. SOIL CONSERVATION NEWS

The Ringneck pheasant is fast becoming recognized as an important and valuable game bird for recreation in the Texas High Plains.

Everyone recognizes the value of the Ringneck pheasant as a game bird. During the recently completed hunting season he provided many hours of recreation to hunters while adding a boost to the local economy either in the form of increased trade, or in fees associated with the hunting season.

There are several land management practices that can and should be used to improve pheasant habitat. Farmers are encouraged to apply such practices as proper use of crop residues, stubble mulching, minimum tillage farming, protecting waterway vegetation and playa lake vegetation. These practices will enhance pheasant habitat and protect the land from wind and water erosion.

The first pheasants in Texas were thought to have moved in from neighboring states and were restricted to the northern most counties and along major water courses, but as irrigation developed and farming intensified over much of the panhandle the conditions necessary for pheasants began to appear and they spread to most irrigated areas.

Interested landowners, sportsmen, and others helped to establish pheasants through releases and the present population is a result of these releases and irrigation developments which has made this area habitable for pheasants.

The pheasants attachment to land is most apparent when it comes to his daily menu. Like his domestic cousin the barnyard chicken, he is a seed eater. Domestic grains are the mainstay of his diet, and he simply does not thrive in areas where grain is not readily available, throughout most of the year.

In addition to a food supply which is available throughout the year, pheasants also require several types of cover. Nesting cover and winter cover are the most critical. Winter cover needs to be dense enough to provide protection from high winds, cold, snow, and ice. Nesting cover needs to be tall enough to conceal eggs and the hen when she is incubating the eggs.

Pheasants will roam widely to fulfill their many life needs; however if adequate food and cover are available throughout the year they will spend most of their time on a square mile or less.

The Soil Conservation Service in Spearman is available to offer assistance to anyone who like to improve pheasant populations on their farm or ranch.

Salts Collection On Display

Salt adds zest to food, and Frances Stump's salts collection adds distinction to Hansford County Library's display case this month.

Salt has been one of the world's essential resources throughout history. Through the ages, special containers made of various materials have been devised to hold table salt. These salt containers have been known as salt cellars, standing salt, trencher salt, salt dip, and the modern shaker.

Mrs. Stump's collection consists of small dishes known as salts or salt cellars. Her salts are made of china, pressed glass, cut glass, pottery, ceramic, wood, silver, clay, Belleek, and inlay with copper wire. They originated from countries such as Germany, China, England, Ireland, Japan, France, Austria, and Nippon.

Mrs. Stump's interest in salts stems from her childhood days when she watched her mother hand paint salts.

Goldie Hawn Stars With Chevy Chase In Comedy-Thriller "Foul Play"

"I'm not a comedienne. I'm not naturally funny. I need to play off situations. That's why the role of Gloria feels so right to me," Goldie Hawn said about her newest role in the comedy-thriller "Foul Play," in which she stars opposite Chevy Chase.

"In the film I'm an innocent victim of circumstances and someone is trying to kill me. But I don't know who. Is it the albino? Or the dwarf? Or the scarface man?" Goldie continues. "No one will believe me except this handsome young San Francisco police detective, who is played by Chevy Chase. Naturally a romance develops between us in the film because this is a real movie-movie. There are thrills, and shocks, and lots of laughs. But it's Chevy, Burgess Meredith, Dudley Moore, Rachel Roberts and Marilyn Sokol who have the really funny things to do. I just react to them and the situations, which are very strange, believe me."

Even though she has been absent from the screen for two years to give birth to a son, Oliver, and to spend time with him and her husband, singer Bill Hudson, Goldie Hawn has made 9 films since she left TV's "Laugh-In," on which her giggling and mispronunciations charmed viewers and established her in the beloved line of blonde, innocent, but sexy comediennes.

"I can't deny that it worked for me, the dumb-blond routine. Lots of people who have a talent that works want to be somebody different, but I didn't feel that way. I never feared the ding-a-ling image. But there was no growth in that character, and I was growing personally. Actually that character was not so much stupid as child-like, and that's the real connection to what I really am. She had a sort of innocent spontaneity. She was naive, glibbe. I'm like her only in small ways."

"That character was an accident. I was hired to be a dancer, but I was given some lines to read. I had no experience reading cue cards and I just got completely mixed up, and read the wrong words. I started giggling. I was nervous, and that was my reaction—laughter, instead of terror and tears. Well, they figured then and there that confusion was my bag. And the character I did on "Laugh-In" was born at that moment. The audience response was so good they told me, "Don't change it. Don't ever change it."

But when Goldie Hawn left television, she consciously set out to change her image, or at least develop one that would allow her to grow. She was still cute and bubbly, but the innocence and naivete could no longer be mistaken for dumbness. She also proved she was a capable serious actress winning an Academy Award for her first film "Cactus Flower" and critical raves for "Shampoo" and "Sugarland Express."

"I've given Goldie Hawn and her world a lot of thought," said the not-so-dumb blonde. "I wasn't always as secure as I am now. I had to get very introspective, see, to find out how to keep my feet on the ground. You get to be a star, and suddenly you're a commodity. I've tried to keep myself from becoming that. Commodities don't grow, people do."

"Also when you get to be a star, you almost believe you don't deserve it all, and the guilt starts. Well, I discovered that's just another name for a big lack of self-respect. Because if you work hard, which I do, you do deserve some of the good things. Sometimes you give and give, and the public just takes and takes. They can be very fickle, too. You get to feeling utterly drained, and you become selfish. You're terrified of giving any more because you're afraid you haven't got it to give. But if you know yourself, respect yourself, you can keep giving freely, on and on. You replenish yourself."

Planning and preparation is moving into high gear this week for Hansford County's participation in the American Agriculture Movement's National Tractorcade to Washington, D. C. Points of origin are located all across the central part of the nation, on the major east-west Interstate highways, with the assembly point for this area being Amarillo, from which the caravan of tractors and support vehicles will depart Monday morning Jan. 13. The travel time is estimated to be 16 days, with two Sundays set aside for rest and renewal.

At present, there are six tractors committed to the Tractorcade from Hansford County, together with support vehicles to service the tractors with fuel, supplies, and repairs, and a camper trailer to provide sleeping accommodations for some of the group, although another one is needed, according to planners. It is estimated that the cost for each tractor making the historic trip will be $2,000.

A local AAM "activist," in a statement to this newspaper, said, "Everyone in a farming community is well aware that agricultural prices have been disastrously low in recent years, and that this has worked a hardship on farmers, on businessmen who sell to farmers, and on the entire economy, since agriculture is by far the largest consumer of goods and services in the nation."

"The American Agriculture Movement came into existence a year ago in response to the grave problems this situation poses, and was successful in obtaining some relief in some areas—for example, a higher target price for wheat—already largely wiped out by the 10% inflation rate—easing of credit, and an expanded Federal crop insurance program. I would point out, that prices are still well below cost of production in most sectors of agriculture, so the battle will continue until a farmer can be in a solid enough financial position that he can support his family, finance his own operation out of earnings, instead of constant and increasing borrowing, and absorb the risks inherent in his business without the need for Federal disaster or insurance programs."

"To this end, the Tractorcade will proceed to Washington, D. C. in a determined effort to convince the National Legislature that the problem still exists and requires firm action, and to point out that the present farm law provides for setting loan levels for storable commodities at 90% of parity, which will have the stop-gap effect of raising both the floor and the ceiling prices of these commodities, while long-term legislation is developed to deal with the chronic "boom-bust" nature of agriculture."

He continued, "The supporters of AAM who have been able and willing to travel and work for agriculture through this movement are mindful that many local businessmen and other people have backed these efforts with their money, and we are very appreciative of this help. We are continuing to ask for such help only because we ourselves are determined to continue to "put our money where our mouth is," so to speak. It is certain that anything that is accomplished for agriculture will benefit virtually everyone in this area. We are also asking people to assist in any other way they can, whether to provide a tractor (a driver can be found), or to drive a tractor (a tractor will be found); to come to where the tractorcade is anytime after the trip commences in order to give part-time relief to tractor or vehicle drivers; or to help provide many of the small items needed—check with the AAM Office.

As for financial help, special AAM Tractorcade accounts have been set up at the local banks in Spearman and Gruver, and anyone wishing to can deposit directly into these accounts any time prior to or during the Tractorcade—or they can bring it to the local AAM OFFICES.

Likewise, anyone who can come to Washington after the Tractorcade arrives there, to help carry the word to Congress and the Administration, is urged to make this known to your local AAM office—as soon as possible."

This newspaper will carry additional reports as the Tractorcade progresses.

THEN and NOW

THEN: In 1880 a typist operated the typewriter keys with her fingers, and on some models returned the carriage by stepping on a foot pedal. By 1900, the hand return carriage lever had become established.

NOW: When today's typist moves on to the next line, she doesn't even have to use her fingers. If she has a Model 60 IBM electronic typewriter, it can sense the end of a line and return the carrier automatically, without interrupting typing. An electronic memory enables this typewriter to store sentences or short letters and type them with a single touch by the typist.

Some say it's good luck for a firefly to fly into the house.

Cattle Feeding Profits Slim In 1979

COLLEGE STATION--Despite higher prices for fed cattle, the cattle feeding business may well be in for a squeeze in 1979 due to increasing costs. These costs are in the form of high feeder cattle prices.

"While there will be good feed supplies at generally favorable costs, people in the cattle feeding business will be faced with higher prices for the cattle they will be putting into their feedlots," reports Dr. Ed Uvacek, livestock marketing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

According to the Texas A&M University System specialist, high feeder prices are a result of two things--massive liquidation of the cattle herd since 1975 which has brought on a dwindling supply of feeder cattle, and inspiration from spring and summer profits in cattle feeding.

Looking at feeder prices, Uvacek points out that Choice yearling steers at Amarillo will average in the upper-$50s. This rise, however, will depend upon supplies of competing meats and consumer demand, notes Uvacek.

"All this means that profit margins for cattle feeders will be slim during 1979," points out the specialist. "In fact there may well be losses times."

According to Chinese legend, Emperor Shen Nung drank the first cup of tea when leaves from a wild tea bush accidentally fell into his boiling drinking water.

Raw Materials Seminar Set For Weekend

The general public is invited to attend and participate in a very highly crucial and "thought provoking" seminar, conference and rally conducted by N.O.R.M., National Organization for Raw Materials, Inc., to be held at the Amarillo Hilton Airport Inn, Amarillo, Texas, Friday and Saturday, January 12, 13, 1979. Sessions begin at 9:00 a.m. sharp.

A modest registration fee of $10 covers all of the sessions. The Rally on Friday evening begins at 7:00 sharp and is free and open to the public. However, persons registered for the conference and seminars will have priority reserved seating for the Rally.

Crucial topics to be discussed by featured speakers include: Beginning at 9:00 a.m. Friday, Mr. Bob Soleta, National Gasohol Administrator will discuss the vast potential GASOHOL offers as an alternative energy, its impact on agriculture, and massive opportunities for new employment. GASOHOL could offer your community a new basic industry. Soleta invited Chamber of Commerce representatives to hear his message and get in on the ground floor, as well as farmers and cooperative personnel.

Also on Friday morning, William Comer, Rosebush, Michigan will discuss Family Equity Trusts. How to protect yourself against Probate and Inheritance Taxes. Are you sure your heirs will inherit the estate you have planned for them? Can you afford to die?

Friday afternoon sessions include: Charles Walters, Jr., economist and Editor, Acres U.S.A. and author of Unforgiven. Walters will prove there has to be Parity Exchange between microbe and food; between soil and plant; between farm and city; between city and city; and nation and nation; and that to discount from "parity" at any level contains the seeds of destruction for not only agriculture, but the nation as well. Walters will also refute and expose one of the enduring myths among farmers concerning production advice by the experts.

Mr. Vince Rossiter, president, Bank of Hartington, Hartington, Nebraska will update his "Turn Around Point Index" based upon the underpayment for farm and raw material production reflects on the liquidity position of our nation's financial institutions and why everyone from the consumer to business and industry must constantly borrow more money. He also goes into detail as to how low farm prices has caused our inflation, our energy crisis, and monetary crisis that exists today.

Mr. Ray Dykeman, economist, banker, Hartington, Nebraska will discuss the International Monetary Crisis - and the relationship of the U.S. dollar to the total world economic and monetary situation. He will also discuss gold, domestic problems, and their relationship to world conditions, as well as what to do about it.

The Friday evening rally starting at 7:00 sharp will feature: Mr. Gerald McCatheran, farmer, Hereford, Texas. McCatheran is a leader of the American Agriculture Movement and will discuss the AAM Tractorcade to Washington, D.C., as well as other AAM plans for the coming year.

Arnold E. Paulson, president N.O.R.M., will go into detail explaining "Parity" - what it is, how it must function, and why "mainstreet merchants and consumers should be leading the fight for parity rather than farmers. Paulson says, the consumer and business have a greater stake in "parity prices" than the producers themselves.

Paulson will also explain the N.O.R.M. three point program, a N.O.R.M. proposed Economic Stability Act that can stop inflation, restore economic balance and stability to the economy, restore monetary solvency, enable the governments to operate on balanced budgets, maintain full employment and eliminate the necessity for the vast majority of our national welfare programs. Paulson says the N.O.R.M. program will open world trade such as we have never seen it before, and both sides of every transaction will be able to balance their trade payments.

Paulson says that both the Carter Energy and Inflation programs are destined to failure and will eventually lead us to run away inflation. Paulson will explain why the programs will fail and the consequences. N.O.R.M., says Paulson, has a very simple solution to our national and world problems, but unfortunately if enacted would expose economics as nothing more than a Science of Failures, and exploitation.

Saturday morning will be devoted to the N.O.R.M. Board of Directors meeting. There will be some panel discussion group sessions for the visitors and guests. Saturday afternoon will be devoted to Panel Discussion Groups, questions, answers, and the opportunity for the membership and public to participate in the discussion. The Saturday evening session is yet to be announced.

N.O.R.M., The National Organization for Raw Materials, Inc. is national in scope, with members in about 36 states. N.O.R.M. was chartered in San Antonio, Texas and is registered with the U.S. Internal Revenue Service for the purpose of: Economic Research, Education, Public Information, and Legislation.

Couple Wed In New Braunfels

The New Braunfels Presbyterian Church was the scene of the Saturday evening wedding at 7:00 p.m., December 30, when Camille Baggerly and Marc Williamson exchanged nuptial vows. The Reverend W.C. Jones III officiated at the double ring ceremony. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max Baggerly, Spearman, and the groom is the son of Dr. and Mrs. B.L. Williamson of San Marcos.

The Church was decorated with wicker baskets of white gladiolus, white stock and spider mums and red roses with greenery, illuminated by candelabra holding lighted white tapers on either side of the altar. Pews were marked with hurricane lamps accented with bows.

The organist, Mrs. Joanne Lemmon, played appropriate organ music preceding the ceremony. She also accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Tom Tickner as they sang "Starting Her, Starting Now" and "Whither Thou Goest." At the close of the ceremony following the Lord's Prayer, the "Wedding Prayer" was sung. After the bride was escorted to the altar by her father to the traditional wedding march, the congregation joined in singing "Joyful Joyful We Adore Thee." The recessional was "Praise The Lord, Ye Heavens Adore Him."

Karen Baggerly, sister of the bride, Lubbock, was the honor attendant. Mrs. Chuck Kershner, Lubbock, Miss Bobbie Baggerly, Guyton, Okla. and Miss Diane Brehem, New Braunfels, were bridesmaids. All wore gowns of burgandy guiana and they carried a single white rose. Shana Baggerly carried a rose. Shana Baggerly, niece of the bride, served as flower girl and her dress was of burgandy trimmed with ecru lace. She carried a basket of rose petals. Chris Mag was ring bearer.

Mike Williamson of Houston was his brother's best man. Groomsman were Mike Moy, John Willoughby, Peter Garza, Tim Kingsburg, all of New Braunfels. They were attired in deep rose tuxedos worn with ecru shirts. Ushers were Steve Baggerly, brother of the bride, Weldon Preiss and Gary Blythe.

The bride chose a formal gown of ivory satin designed by Priscilla of Boston. The dress was fashioned with a Queen Anne neckline, long straight sleeves and a high-low waistline. The entire bodice was of re-embroidered alencon lace on English net over satin. The sleeves had re-embroidered alencon lace medallions and fourteen self-covered button cuffs. The skirt which flowed into a chapel length train, was plain except for a few large lace medallions and the hemline was accented with scalloped re-embroidered lace. Her bridal bouquet was of burgandy roses, stephanotis and baby's breath. Her jewelry was a diamond lavalier belonging to her late maternal grandmother.

The brides mother wore a formal length gown of deep rose quiana and the groom's mother chose a mauve quiana gown. Both mother's wore white orchid corsages.

A reception followed at the Faust Hotel Registering guests was Mrs. Curtis Ramsey. Serving in the houseparty were Mrs. Tim Kingsburg, Mrs. Mike Moy, Mrs. Pete Garza, Ms. Marilyn Maxwell. A Candlelight satin cloth draped the table where the three-tiered bridal cake topped with fresh flowers was served with punch. The central focus of the groom's table was the cheese wheel. Another table held finger sandwiches, hors d'oeuvres, coffee and champagne.

Pre-nuptial courtesies included a bridal shower in the home of Mrs. Thomas Etter of Spearman on November 25 and a tea and Christmas ornament shower in New Braunfels on December 2 with Mrs. Glyn Goff and Mrs. Jim Brooks serving as hostesses.

Dr. and Mrs. Williamson's home in San Marcos was the setting for a tea honoring the bride on Dec. 3. They also hosted a rehearsal dinner at the Smokehouse on Friday evening December 29 with guests being members of the wedding party, family and close friends of Camille and Marc. A dinner party in honor of the couple was given in the home of Mr. and Mrs. B.J. Hageman on December 2 in San Marcos. Mr. and Mrs. Glen Tribes of Fredericksburg hosted an afternoon tea in their home honoring the couple on December 17. Bobbie Lewis and Karen Baggerly hosted the bridesmaids luncheon at the Gourmet Inn in New Braunfels the day of the wedding.

Some people believed that wearing quartz stones would help them secure public favor.

Chevy Chase: From TV Satirist To Goldie Hawn's Leading Man In "Foul Play"

There is a theory that children who are given unusual names grow up to be different and talented because they had to fight the derision and scorn from their playmates whose names were on the order of Tom, Dick or Harry. When you have a name like Chevy Chase, you either become a Maryland suburb to Washington, D.C., or you have the drive and talent to become a satirist on television's "Saturday Night Live" and prattal your way into national prominence. Being one of the newest and brightest stars to come out of television, Chevy Chase is currently trying to conquer other areas of the entertainment industry. He makes his motion picture starring debut opposite Goldie Hawn in the comedy-thriller "Foul Play."

"Everyone kept saying that I looked like I could be a leading man type so I decided to give it a try," says Chevy Chase, who is tall, handsome and possesses a dimple in his chin, which women claim is very sexy. "I wanted to see if I could do it, and it's turned out to be fun. Better than summer camp. Goldie has been terrific to work with. Actually, I'm a writer, and I'm able to envisage something and articulate it on paper. Acting itself means very little to me. It's not creative enough. You're simply a pawn of whoever wrote your material. I don't like being put in a position of playing somebody I'm not. Acting is fun only when I can use it to express an opinion. Still, making love to Goldie Hawn in "Foul Play" had its rewards, and if I have to be an actor to get to do that, I'll be an actor.

"Technically, I learned a great deal. I had to learn not to always go for the laugh. I mean I had a full character to worry about over a whole script. That's different than sketch acting. I love to mug and I couldn't. Still the experience was invaluable. I cannot tell you how much I came to admire someone like Goldie who was able to bring truth and energy to the moment take after take. It always amazed me, and she was such a great help to me. I couldn't have done it without her. And she's fun."

Chevy Chase was born in New York, and he was originally named Cornelius Crane Chase. However, for some whimsical reason no one quite seems to remember his parents changed his name to Chevy.

While attending Bard College in upstate New York, he and some other students fiddled with audio and video tapes. They were into satirizing television. For several years after graduation, Chevy was involved with the group in writing and performing experimental theater in Manhattan's East Village. Then known as Channel One, it eventually evolved into the movie "The Groove Tube."

"Over the years I made a very poor living," remembers Chevy, who right now is making a very good living. "So many people come out of college totally unable to cope with the reality of having to work your brains off to stay alive. It took me years to learn the weight of responsibility. I worked as a tennis pro, mail truck driver, motorcycle messenger, telephone service answerer, bartender, waiter and a piano player in clubs. I did sound effects for commercials, and finally I began writing for television."

One night while waiting in line to see the movie "Monty Python and the Holy Grail," Chevy met the producer of "Saturday Night Live," and he talked his way into a job on that show.

The leek is the national emblem of the Welsh.
