He proposed that this $3,200,000,000 loss in Federal income be made up by higher corporation taxes.

In his state-of-the-union message which he personally delivered, Mr. Truman thus laid the groundwork for another tax battle with the Republican-controlled Congress on the second day of its 1948 session.

Speaking to a joint session in the House chamber, the President said the "cost of living" tax credit he proposed would mean a $160 tax cut in 1948 for a man and wife with

An institution whose original cost approximates five and three-quarter million dollars is no small addition to a city even many times the size of Big Spring. Its construction will mean much to the economic level of the community for the next years, and of course its general operation through future years will mean a great deal more.

Community spirit being what it is, the "battle" for the West Texas VA hospital was an intensive one, and there were towns which voiced misgivings when Big Spring was officially designated as the site. Since that date, there have been many rumors—some of them originating elsewhere-that a change would be made in the location.

But through it all, there has been a group of civic leaders banded together through the chamber of commerce which continually worked to "sew up" the hospital designation, and whose members had confidence throughout, that the important project would materialize.

The campaign to get the hospital goes back nearly five years when Big Spring first offered a site for the project. The chamber of commerce must be given great credit for the time, effort, enthusiasm, patience and real sweat that went into the submission and effectuating of the city's proposal. Public officials played a large hand, too, and there was much help from various business and individual sources.

Rep. George Mahon, in congress, was of untold assistance to this city after the designation was made, in ironing out planning problems that arose; although in fairness to Mahon it must be recorded that he was strictly neutral as long as different cities in his district competed for the designation.

In the final analysis, it was a long and rigorous campaign, and the city should congratulate its chamber of commerce for successful accomplishment. Every citizen has the right to be proud of the materialization of an important project.

Our job, of course, is just beginning. Every citizen, every civic group, every business institution will have a great responsibility in helping meet the problems that are bound to arise with the coming of the hospital.

First of all, there will be a large group of construction people here. These people have to be adequately housed, their children have to be provided school facilities, they have to be extended every possible accommodation and courtesy that it is in our power to offer. Our town is suffering some growing pains, will undoubtedly face more stress and strain in absorbing this new project. Thoughtful planning must be the watchword in meeting these emergencies.

Later will come the time when the men who sacrificed in the wars will be our "guests". They will have families with them. They will have many personal problems, will need many attentions and many courtesies that fall outside the scope of the hospital staff itself. This town can establish itself as an ideal place for such an institution, or it can fall short on a job it

'Little Assembly' Is U. N. Hope

The United Nations' "little assembly"-the iron-lung devised by the democracies to try to keep the breath of life in the veto-paralyzed peace organization-began its permanent sittings at Lake Success Monday, determined and possibly hopeful.

The "little assembly" is the interim committee of the general assembly, and theoretically it comprises all 57 members of the U. N. Actually, of course, Soviet Russia and five of her satellites -Czechoslovakia, Poland, Yugoslavia, White Russia and the Soviet Ukraine-refused to have anything to do with it, and Russia warned that it might lead to grave consequences.

The democracies established this "little assembly" as a backstop for the all-powerful security council which had been rendered impotent through the use of the veto power by the Soviet Union. Each of the Big Five powers-the United States. China, Britain, France and Russia-have the veto right in the council, and when it is invoked it stymies action-

Russia used the veto 22 times on vital issues, after which the United States sponsored the creation of the "little assembly" which at least can determine the wishes of the vast majority of the U. N. membership because the veto is inoperative in the assembly. Russia opposed this project fiercely.

The establishment of the "little assembly" was an act of neardesperation. While this body represents all the nations excepting the Russian bloc, it can only formulate views and has no authority to enforce them. However, it can determine world opinion apart from the Russian bloc which is anti-democracy on virtually everything. That democratic world opinion can be a mighty force.

The Russian bloc was urged to join the "little assembly" from the start, but refused. Despite this U. S. Chief Delegate Warren R. Austin said at yesterday's meeting: "It is our hope that the states which are not here today will soon join us."

That's a pious wish, but we can't advise you to bet that it will come true. Still, if the split continues between the Russian bloc and the democracies the "little assembly" may be the source of a tremendous development-the formation of a new league of nations which would comprise the democratic nations of the world.

That would be an unhappy solution, but it would be far better than a United Nations which is hopelessly split into two blocs constantly at loggerheads. We should like to see "one world" in operation, but if we must have two worlds, it's better that we recognize the necessity and get the democracies organized so that they won't be shot like sitting ducks by aggressive communism.

So the task of the "little assembly" may turn out to be to keep the U. N. alive until a new league comprising the democracies can come into being.

ABC On Military Training Plan

(Editor's note: This is the secand of three stories on compulsory military training which may be a hot issue in the 1948 Congress.)

WASHINGTON, &-Here's the plan now before Congress for compulsory military training of youths 18 to 20.

They'd get six months training in a camp or on a ship. Then they'd have to take more training in school, the National Guard, or some other way. This plan has the blessing of the Army and the American Legion. Both want compulsory military training started now. . It follows the ideas of the special civilian commission which President Truman last year appointed to look into a training plan. It can't become law unless both houses of Congress okay it.

Neither has acted yet. Perhaps neither will this year. And, if Congress passes a training plan, it may diffen from the one outlined here. But this is the only plan talked about. If this plan became law, here's how it would work: Cost-at least $2,000,000,000 a year. Number trained—about 900,000 youths yearly.

Organization-these youths would not be part of the armed forces of the Army or Navy. They'd be members of a new organization called the National Security Training Corps.

Start-The program would start within about a year after Congress made it a law. It would take that long to get the whole thing started.

Running it-the policies and standards would be set up by a three-man commission called the National Security Training commission, appointed by the President.

Handling it-The Army and Navy would train the youths in camps or on ships. But, as noted, the youths would not be in the armed services and could not be used by them for service inside or outside the United States ex-

In case of a national emergency and then only by special act of Congress.

Checks-The commission would have investigators to check on the way the Army and Navy were handling the training.

Advice-The commission would eil.

get advice on the moral, religious and educational sides of the program from a special advisory The board, with 10 to 25 members, mostly civilian, would be appointed by the President. It would meet from time to time. Drafting-Draft boards would induct the youths for training. The boards would be under a new agency called the selective training system. Registering for draft-As soon as the law was passed, all youths between 17 and 20 would have to register but only those 18 to 20 could be drafted. Thereafter, each youth would have to register upon reaching 17. Who'd get military training?-All youths, physically fit, between 18 and 20.

Conscientious objectors and the physically unfit-The commission would have to work out some kind of training for them,

For example: A youth unfit for military drill might be able to do clerical work; a conscientious objector might be trained in first-aid work. Deferments-An 18-year | old * who was in high school could get deferred until he had finished or reached 20, whichever was first. And there would be deferments for extreme hardship cases. No youth who was serving, or had served honorably, in the armed forces could be drafted. Pay-$30 a month for each

The people we want to meet most are the Chinese family beneath us. Every evening smells from the mysterious East filter up from the gas stove below, redolent odors that fill our apartment with the wonderful fragrance of a faroff land that knew fine cooking when the epicurean French still were chewing raw meat in Gallic forests. I can close my eyes and sniff Hong Kong and Shanghai again, and the memory of egg rolls, delicate soups and strange crunchy vegetables overpowers me.

Reds Fight Friendship Action

BOLOGNA, Italy. - (By Wireless) - When I left the United States I promised various editors in cities which had contributed to the Friendship Train that I would give them a careful report on the distribution of the food and whether the people of France and Italy fully realized that it came from the American people. So far, I can conacientiously say that the overall reaction has been excellent and the food is being distributed efficiently.

However, there was one development in Paris which indicates the difficulty of getting American aid identified for what it is-American. It was agreed by American Church and relief groups in France that after the first Friendship Train ran to Marseilles, at least one American would ride on each of the nine subsequent friendship trains to other French cities, in order to stage appropriate ceremonies with the local mayors and the French press explaining how the food had been collected and how it truly came from the American people. Geoffrey Parsons, editor of the Paris edition of the New York Herald Tribune, did a fine job of this on the first train and Henry Cassidy of the National Broadcasting company together with Harry Hill, President of the American Club in Paris, agreed to get either an American newsman or an American businessman to accompany each train. The American relief agencies also agreed to send a man on ahead to each town, in order to organize appropriate receptions and to give the story of the Friendship Train to local newspapers. In addition, relief agencies agreed to print a booklet with pictures of the food being distributed in order further to impress the French people with the way the food was being used and where it had come from.

Following my departure for Italy, however, Donald Lowery, head of the Y. M. C. A. in Paris, called a meeting of American Church and relief groups and urged that what he called dropped. He proposed that the food be distributed on schedule, but without the previously agreed upon program to identify it with the American givers. With the exception of one American agency-the joint Jewish distribution committee - the relief groups agreed with him. It was voted to cut out the so-called Pearson publicity.

Hearing of this action, the American embassy discreetly intervened. Officially, the embassy has nothing to do with the Friendship food though unofficially its staff has been of tremendous help. Now, upon urging of the embassy, the previsouly planned ceremonies for each Friendship Train have been reinstated. INEPT PUBLIC RELATIONS The New York Herald Tribune's William Attwood has just published an interesting report from Arsoli, Italy, entitled "No one knows who sent the foods." In it he tells how, thanks to American ald, 2,000 people in one Italian village are eating better and are warmer than at any time since the war but the local mayor is a communist and he tells the people that the American food which he distributes is from Stalin, while the people think the food distributed by the Church groups is from the vatican. Nobody gives any credit to the United States.

Since last July, Italy has received 200 shiploads of gift food from the United States and Ambassador James C. Dunn has religiously met many of these ships in order to impress upon the people the fact that the food comes from the United States-However, it is Attwood's conclusion that they still realize this only vaguely and that, in the smaller towns at least, the Vatican and Stalin are still getting the major credit.

Part of this misunderstanding is due to the fact that the U.S. wheat is turned over to the Italian government for distribution, which is probably the only machinery possible for bulk handling, but part is due also to the nickle-nursing of Congressman John Taber and his G. O. P colleagues who cut the heart out of the state department's propa ganda program. And finally it's due to some of the most inept public relations imaginable.

For instance, when the United States recently turned over to Italy 22 Italian warships given the United Sates by terms of the peace treaty, it was big news back in the United Sates but got scant notice in the Italian press because no one took the trouble to dig up the names of the vessels or the fascinating back-ground relating to them. Later, John Secondari, then editor of the Rome American, managed to unearth the fact that the Conte Grande, one of Italy's prize passenger vessels, actually had been allocated to Brazil and that the U. S. government paid $60,000,-000 to Brazil to get the ship back and give it to Italy. The Italian people, however, knew nothing about this. No one in the American government took the trouble to inform them. ITALIANS PRINT POSTERS

One hundred and fifty big trucks, draped with Italian and American flags, left the Rome railroad station during my last day in Rome to drive slowly up to the historic Campidoglio. In the trucks were bags of flour, some marked with greetings from Fort Worth, some with greetings from Buffale, N. Y., Richmond, Va. and from Jackson county, Missouri - President Truman's home - and from scores of other cities and towns in the U. S-

On the sides of the trucks were big posters, showing a picture of the Friendship Train in the United States with a message in the Italian language. We had these posters especially printed in the United States and even brought along brushes, varnish, paste and adhesive tape to guarantee their use. However, the Italians went our brushes, varnish, paste and adhesive tape one better and printed some excellent posters of their own. The trucks had been loaded from the first Friendship Train arriving at Naples and Rome and the long line of them parading through the city attracted throngs in the streets.

PIRATES DEMAND RANSOM FOR SIX WEALTHY CHINESE THEY KIDNAPPED

HONG KONG, Jan. 7. (AP)- Pirates who looted the Dutch steamer Van Heutz and kidnaped six of its wealthy Chinese passengers Dec. 14 yesterday demanded 100,000 Hong Kong dollars ($50,-

The demands were reported by the newspaper Wah Kiu Man Po, which said Swatow relatives of the kidnaped men received identical ransom notes, signed Ling Ling. It added that Ling Ling presumably is the leader of the pirate band, supposedly based at nearby Bias Bay, near where the Van Heutz was looted.

The vessel was making its first trip without anti-piracy guards, since the threat of piracy was considered practically passed. The pirates took charge of the ship four hours out of Hong Kong on the way to Swatow, held it nearly 15 hours and leisurely robbed the 1,600 passengers of cash and jewelry amounting to ap-

Fully approved by the board for vocational rehabilitation and for training of veterans under the GI bill of rights, the school also is a member of the national council of business schools.
