A Marxist Turns Realist

Post-war planners should not miss Arthur Koestler's article in a recent New York Times Magazine. They need not accept what he says merely because he has said it. But the views which he expresses do have weight because of their source.

Koestler, a "leftist intellectual," has changed his mind about why the United Nations are fighting and what the now occupied countries want after the war.

Like others of his school, he had thought that we were fighting for a generality known as "democracy" and against a generality known as "fascism." He had regarded this as a struggle for a new world that would be "liberal" in the Marx-Engel sense of that many-faceted adjective.

Says he now: "The nearer victory comes in sight, the clearer the character of the war reveals itself as what the Tories always said it was—a war for national survival, a war in defense of certain conservative 19th century ideals, and not what I and my friends of the Left said it was—a revolutionary civil war in Europe on the Spanish pattern."

Mr. Koestler is grieved about this. Already the barrage of dead cats has begun flying in his direction, the belittling charges that he is just a "tired Liberal," a defeatist. But in any event he is not a renegade. He just faces what he believes, sorrowfully, are facts.

Another way of looking at the situation is that we really are fighting for democracy—not the intangible generality, but the specific benefits. After looking over the alternatives, we have reassured ourselves that, with all its faults, we prefer this capitalistic system to Marxism.

We are fighting for our countries. Even the Russians now concede that their magnificent struggle is for Russia, and not for the Red version of totalitarianism. The Germans are fighting for a greater Reich, not for the principles of Nazism.

Yet when we of the United Nations win, we shall have enabled democracy and its child, the system of individual enterprise, to survive for a while longer.

And why not? Democracy promises us what we want. The school of liberalism to which Mr. Koestler belonged would have given us what it thought to be best for us. We prefer democracy.

Response to a Plea

On Friday Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Sullivan, who lost five sons simultaneously when the cruiser Juneau sank, visited the Phelps-Dodge war plant in Elizabeth, N. J., and pleaded for increased production.

On Tuesday almost a third of the first day shift walked out, and was followed by a sixth of the second day shift, in protest because 100 girls were not receiving "equal pay for equal work." The union contract called for arbitration of disputes, which had not yet been attempted.

Thus did these war workers, many of them deferred from a draft that promises to take fathers of dependent children, show appreciation of the Sullivan family's sacrifices for democracy.

Rent Gouging

The Office of Price Administration speaks bitter words about rent gouging in the Vallejo, Calif., area, which is described as "a direct affront to our naval heroes."

Supporting data indicates that some landlords have been pretty grasping. One naval officer, his wife and child were charged $420 a month for room and meals. An ensign back from submarine duty had to pay $52 a month for a make-shift one-room shack sharing a community back-yard toilet.

Rent fixing undoubtedly has worked hardship on many landlords. But these, and their like, won't get much sympathy when the OPA cracks down.

The Show'll Go On

Youth's Broken Leg Fails To Prevent Entry In Show

It'll take something else besides plaster cast and gasoline rationing to keep Hansford County youths from parading the primes of their herds tomorrow in Spearman at the live stock show.

At least, that's the way L. W. Rosenbaum, Jr. feels about tomorrow's show. And he will be hobbling on one leg and a crutch to be there.

In spite of a broken leg, he will be on hand to exhibit the choicest of his milk-fed lambs. Furthermore, he plans to enter his lambs at Amarillo during the stock show.

He broke his leg a month ago when his saddle slipped while he was rounding up stock. He will enter five lambs in tomorrow's show.

Other Hansford County youths will be present to exhibit their best hogs, lambs and beef cattle. However, it looked as if gasoline rationing would stop the show for awhile, Joe Hatton, county agent, said.

It wasn't until two months ago that agricultural authorities decided to have the show. Although the show will be affected by rationing, the number of entries has not been affected. In fact, they have increased, Hatton said.

It'll take something else beside gasoline and fire rationing to ration the stock show, he said.

Eyeing the stock show tomorrow will be winners of other years. Ernest Wilmeth and C. P. Archer, who topped high honors with their Hereford cattle in '38 and '39, will leave the ranches for a peek at the prime.

In 1940 and '41, Billie Joe Thorne capped the blue ribbon on his beef. Last year, Max Clawson won first with his prize winning cattle.

Manpower Plagues Congress

The Senate military affairs committee again postponed today a showdown vote on a bill to halt induction of farm workers into the armed services as selective service officials joined the War Department in opposition to the measure.

The committee voted to hear testimony from Col. Lewis B. Sanders, selective service expert, at an afternoon session after Sanders presented a statement asserting that passage of the bill would not solve farm labor shortages.

"The committee decided to hear Colonel Sanders, and examine him, at a session starting at 2 p.m." Chairman Reynolds (D), North Carolina, said "and agreed to vote at 4 p.m."

Immediately after the announcement, the committee called Rep. Wadsworth (D), New York, for testimony in support of legislation to provide for total mobilization of the nation's manpower and woman power.

Reynolds depicted Congress as about evenly divided on the compulsory use of manpower, but Senate supporters of the plan counted heavily on War Department pressure.

Wadsworth, co-sponsor of the war service act, and Grenville Clark, New York lawyer and head of the citizens committee for a National War Service Act were called to explain its operation. Clark was one of the founders of the Plattsburg training camp system the interests to import Argentine beef. This would be a hard lick after the boys have loaded up on breeding stock at high prices, but there will be a strong effort made in congress in the near future to have the restrictions removed so that Argentine beef can come in free as a "win-the-war" move.

PHILIP D. BROCKUS, who received his wings recently at Aloe Field, Victoria, Texas, as a second lieutenant in the Army Air Corps, and who was immediately transferred to Richmond, Va.

Improved FARM BUILDINGS
PAY DIVIDENDS IN PRODUCTION

We never new a farmer who made a go of raising chickens, calves, hogs, sheep, beef or grain that wasn't earthly wise to such 2 and 2 facts as that:

... roomy, warm, dry brooder houses, well ventilated and properly insulated start well-fed and watered chicks on the high road to a long, profitable life.

... sunny-front laying houses, with new-type windows that let the peppy rays through on vitamin-fed pullets free of draft, wet feet and stale air. Produce profitable eggs by the case, not just expensive cases of the sniffles.

... farrowing done in a warm, dry, tightly partitioned and solidly floored pen easy to clean and sanitize gets the litter over the hump of the first few vital weeks.

For years we've been reminding farmers of the building improvement service we were equipped and well trained to render, according to their needs.

We, The Women

By RUTH MILLET
People who belittle the girls in khaki and navy blue and what they are trying to do by saying "Oh, they just want to get into uniform and show off," evidently haven't talked to any WAACS, WAVES, or SPARS about the matter.

The girls are not in the service for the sake of the uniform. Women may go for uniforms worn by men—but they have to learn to like wearing them themselves.

An officer in the SPARS says that she and all the uniformed women she knows had a hard time getting used to uniforms. It was something they had to learn.

"At first," she says, "our confidence in ourselves took a terrible nosedive when we found ourselves working in strange, new military clothes."

"But in time we learned how to be comfortable and at ease in uniforms, and now we are no longer conscious of them at all. That didn't come, however, until we had mastered our new jobs. It is like beginners at skiing or riding, who put on the correct clothes for the sport. They seldom look happy or comfortable in them until they have learned to ski or ride."

Furthermore, this officer makes no bones about the fact that women do miss the pretty, colorful clothes they have given up. Clothes have mattered to them for so long that getting into uniforms isn't accomplished without a few backward glances toward alluring shop windows.

So I, for one, am convinced that persons who say the girls relieve uniformed desk men for actual combat service just so they can strut in uniforms don't know what they are talking about.

Today On The Home Front

One of the problems war has dumped into the lap of industry is feeding workers.

This is really an old problem but sharpened and highlighted by the need to push production at top speed by keeping workers healthy and on the job.

Almost everywhere in midwestern war plants we visited recently from Pittsburgh to Chicago, top executives and production managers were talking about this problem.

In some plants the feeding job obviously was being done well. In others—many others—it had hardly advanced past the talking stage.

Often there were ample eating arrangements for the office help, but not for the men and women of the shops.

For example: In one plant employing 25,000 workers, only 2,000 of them could be fed.

The other 23,000 either brought their lunch, went to a nearby restaurant, did without, or filled up on candy and soda pop sold from wagons that went through the departments at intervals.

The management, asked why provisions hadn't been made to feed the other 23,000, replied that if the workers ate in the war plant, neighborhood restaurants would suffer and thus have ill-will toward the company.

This was the consensus we obtained from talking to management men:

"We should like to be able to do a good feeding job for the workers."

"We know that the workers who eat the right kind of food in pleasant clean surroundings can relax, digest their food, feel more inclined to do a good job."

"We can't calculate the benefits in dollars and cents ahead of time. But we know that a well-fed, healthy worker is the one who stays on the job, doesn't suffer fatigue as quickly as the underfed, has a more friendly attitude toward the company."

But many management men

CAKE WITHOUT BUTTER

Simple and easy to prepare—high in nutritious food values

With new wartime food shortages popping up almost every day, it's often a challenge to a woman's ingenuity to keep up the family morale with a delicious, appetizing cake now and then. If it's the butter shortage that is puzzling you, here's a new cake recipe that calls for none at all. Delicious, too, with a good combination of food values. Your Mixmaster can give it a velvet-smooth consistency without the usual arm-work, or it can be made by hand if you haven't one.

INGREDIENTS: 1½ cups sifted cake flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt, 6 egg whites, 1½ cups sugar, 6 egg yolks, ½ cup orange juice, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1 tablespoon grated orange rind.

METHOD: Sift together, three times, flour and baking powder. Add salt to egg whites, beat at No. 8 speed until stiff enough to stand in points. Beat in ¾ cup of the sugar gradually, continuing to beat until stiff. Beat egg yolks in another bowl at No. 8 speed until thick. Gradually beat in remaining ½ cup sugar. Add orange and lemon juice and rind. Fold in flour mixture a small amount at a time on No. 1 speed. Then fold in beaten egg whites. Pour into a large ungreased tube pan. Bake in a slow oven (325°F) for about one hour. Invert on a rack until cold. Remove from pan. Makes a 10-inch tube cake.

seemed puzzled by this problem: Suppose they did set up ample feeding arrangements? Should they be handled by the company on a profit or cost basis, or would it be better to let an outsider operate the cafeterias and make a profit for himself while relieving the company of responsibility?

One executive said: "If we set up restaurants and didn't make a penny on them, it would still be good business for us since we would benefit by the improved morale and health of the workers and their continued production."

"I have found, from inquiring around, that if an outsider is permitted to operate a plant restaurant at a profit to himself, the employees may resent it."

Louisiana Senator Claims Allred's Nomination Is 'Trifling With Judiciary'

—Terming the president's nomination of former Governor James V. Allred of Texas to be a judge of the fifth circuit court of appeals as "political on again off again trifling with the judiciary," Senator Overton (D-La.) opposed his confirmation at a senate judiciary committee hearing today.

Allred arrived at the committee room shortly before the hearing began and encountered just inside the door the two senators leading the opposition to his nomination, Senator Ellender (D-La.) and Overton. They shook hands and exchanged greetings and then posed for photographers.

Senator Connally (D-Tex.) came in the room a moment later and Allred greeted him. The former Texas governor and more recently judge of the southern district of Texas sat in a chair behind Connally. Sitting beside Allred was one of his principal supporters, Charles Francis, Houston attorney.

Before Overton began reading a statement in opposition to Allred, Connally commented that there had never been any question raised as to the character of Allred.

Overton told the committee he believed Allred resigned from the bench to run against W. Lee O'Daniel for the United States senate with the "prior knowledge and approbation, if not at the instance of the president."

"It was openly and frequently charged during the Texas senatorial campaign that if Judge Allred should be defeated, he had been assured by the present administration of another appointment on the federal bench, or that he would otherwise be taken care of," Overton said.

"I confess that it is for this committee and subsequently for the senate to determine whether the inferences to be deduced from these facts are such as to make the confirmation of the Allred nomination repugnant to our sense of proprieties, our concept of judicial integrity and contrary to the independence and dignity of our courts of law and justice," he stated.

Fires Ravaging Texas Forests

One hundred forty five fires ravaging East Texas' pine forests today prompted the Texas forestry service to appeal to Gov. Coke R. Stevenson for help.

W. E. White, chief of the service, drafted a call for immediate assistance for the 75 foresters now fighting the spreading balazes. It was expected to reach the governor in a few hours.

NLRB Orders Carbon Worker Re-Instated

The regional office of the National Labor Relations Board has directed the Columbian Carbon Company of Pampa, Texas, to cease certain unfair labor practices and to reinstate an employe allegedly discharged because of union membership and activity.

The decision, disclosed yesterday, resulted from a complaint filed against the company by Oil Workers International Union, local No. 463.

The company was ordered to re-employ R. T. Glosson who had been discharged in October, 1941.

Why John Doe Couldn't Pay

Dear Friend:

In reply to request to send check, I wish to inform you that the present condition of my bank account makes it a most impossible. My shattered financial condition is due to Federal laws, state laws, county laws, city laws, corporation law, liquor law, mother-in-laws, brother-in-laws, sister-in-laws, and outlaws.

Through these laws I am compelled to pay a business tax, amusement tax, school tax, and excise tax. I am required to get a business license, car license, operator's license, truck license, not to mention a marriage license and a dog license.

I am also required to contribute to every society and organization which the genius of man is capable of bringing to life: to women's relief, unemployed relief, and the gold digger's relief. Also to every hospital and charitable institution in the city, including the Salvation Army, Community Chest, Red Cross, Purple Cross, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A.

For my own safety I am required to carry health insurance, life insurance, fire insurance, property insurance, liability insurance, burglar insurance, accident insurance, business insurance, earthquake insurance, tornado insurance, unemployment compensation insurance, and old age insurance.

My business is so governed that it is no easy matter to find out who owns it. I am inspected, expected, suspected, disrespected, trijected, dijected, examined, re-examined, informed, required, summoned, fined, commanded, and compelled until I provide an inexhaustible supply of money for every known need, desire, or hope of the human race.

Simply because I refuse to donate to something or other, I am boycotted, talked about, lied about, held up, held down, and robbed until I am almost ruined.

I can tell you honestly that except for a miracle that has happened, I could not enclose this check. The wolf that comes to many doors, nowadays, just had pups in my kitchen. I sold them and here is the money.

Very truly yours,
 JOHN DOE.

He would empower the government to take over operation of a war plant where it was found that failure of either management or labor to adhere to war labor board findings might cause either stoppage or interruption in production. As soon as the dispute was settled, the plant would revert to private management.

Reviewing The War

BY GLENN BABB

The most encouraging comment on the China situation in weeks comes from General Chennault. The commander of the American Air Forces in China, who has been fighting the Japanese longer than any other American general says things out there appear more hopeful. The judgment of this veteran airman, whose record proves his profound knowledge of the enemy and of the means to accomplish his destruction, commands the utmost respect.

Chennault dates the turn for the better for the Casablanca conference. That dramatic war council and its sequels have produced encouraging promises of greater aid to China.

President Roosevelt said after his return from Casablanca that "There are many roads which lead right to Tokyo; we shall neglect none of them." Chennault's airman are operating along the road on which forces of the United States are closest to the enemy capital. It is likely that they will be the first to deliver those punishing blows of which the Doolittle raid was a foretaste.

The improvement of which General Chennault is confident probably will be limited to the reinforcement of his own command. This may mean more fighters or more bombers or both.

It may mean the addition of heavy bombers capable of carrying bomb loads from bases in central China to the industrial centers of southern and western Japan.

Or first emphasis may be placed on fighter and fighter-bomber types which will deny air superiority over China battlefields to the Japanese and so greatly bolster China's defense in the next few critical months against Japan's efforts to knock her out of the war. In the near future the latter type of aid probably will be the more valuable.

General Chennault believes that the quality of the Japanese air force is deteriorating. This agrees with other opinions which have come out of the fighting in the South and Southwest Pacific theaters. There is much evidence that the Japanese are running into a shortage of well trained airmen.

Now that the veterans who swept the oriental skies clear of opposition in the first few months are gone, victims of the heavy toll taken by the Americans and Australians in the Solomons and around New Guinea, replacements of like quality are not available.

Last week-end's attempted raid on Assam bases of the American Ferry Service is an example of the odds the fresh Japanese pilots face when sent on missions against the Americans. Of some 40 enemy planes only 9 are known to have escaped. Odds like that can break the morale of the most fanatical, fatalistic soldiery.

After their first discovery in 1568, the Solomon Islands remained unvisited by Europeans for two hundred years.

Helped With Registration

The following students, together with the faculty members of the Spearman Schools, deserve much credit for the splendid manner in which they handled the registration for War Ration Book II: Veima Ruth Fox, Winifred Hoskins, Sada Ruth Hoskins, Cella Patterson, Estelle Terry, Virginia Green, Dickie Kiker, Pearl Robertson, Barbara Daily, Rosanne Porter, Marjorie Riggs, Margaret Hull, Pat Becker and Jean Hill. The twenty-seven registrars registered 1689 people, and no one had to wait to be registered. Rita Roach and Dickie Kiker worked approximately two days for the Red Cross during the registration period. Our students are eager to volunteer their services for any work that will further the war effort.

Strickland Sells Agency To Mitts

F. E. Mitts, who was employed by the Spearman Hardware for the past 11 years, Monday assumed his new position as owner of Phillips wholesale and retail agencies here.

Recently, he bought the concern from C. M. Strickland, who will leave about March 15 for a farm nine miles west of Coleman. Strickland, before selling his interest, has managed the retail side of the business for the past five years.

He assumed the wholesale business 17 months ago. Under Mitts, Jess Womble will be in charge of the wholesale. Elzie Morton has been selected to handle the retail portion of the business.

Mitts came to Spearman in 1923, and worked with the Spearman Hardware.

"I want to thank every one for their business," Strickland said Monday. "I have enjoyed working with the Spearman folks and being here." He came to Spearman in 1932.

A number of books have been left at the Public Library in Spearman to be added to the Victory Book campaign, which closes this week.

A concentrated drive will be made by the public school this week which will climax the three weeks campaign for books for the fighting servicemen.

Anyone owning books or games in good condition are asked to contact the High School or Public Library. The books and games will be called for by a representative from either the library or high school.

Any games or books that are used by soldiers in camp should be included with the drive. Past editions are popular also, according to Mrs. George Reeb, librarian.

Demand For Food Most Urgent

Never has there been a greater demand upon the American farmer and ranchers than there is right now for food production. Produce everything you can in agricultural products and livestock.

Surplus products are being used up rapidly and Hansford County has been asked by President Roosevelt and Secretary of Agriculture Wickard to cooperate in the "Food for Freedom" program in 1943.

Hansford County is making continued progress in meeting the government's request—and 4-H Club boys are doing their part. Every animal fed to maturity by a 4-H Club boy will be a Slap at a Jap.

Soldier Nephew of Sanford Woman Tells Of Spending New Year's Day in Holy Land Midst Biblical Scenes

Editor's Note: The following interesting trip into Holy Land, has been written by Sgt. Charles Rosenbaum, who is a nephew of Mrs. Nelson McKinney of Sanford. He was stationed in the Middle East during the story is told, in part, from his letter.

Last New Year's Eve I celebrated on a troop train headed for camp. This New Year's Eve I celebrated in Jerusalem.

My trip to the pyramids doesn't compare to my trip to the Holy Land. I believe it is the one in the world that everyone would make—and it was the last I would have made.

I made the trip by train, crossing the desert at night. The interesting thing during the night that interested me was my first view of the Mediterranean, which I reached rolling in, from a small railway station.

All the way into Jerusalem even-mountain was terraced from top to bottom. Villages were built dozens of feet upon the sides of the mountains, and my head out of the window every foot of the way.

When we stepped off the train in Jerusalem an Arab asked, "Are you the group of 19 Americans?" I said, "Yes." "I am from the CA," he said, showing us his identification, "follow me."—we went off.

Our first stop was the Wailing Wall. The Jews were lined along the wall reading from books aloud at the same time dancing or singing back and forth stiff-legged. It was the queerest sight I saw. A British policeman guard came over and asked us what we thought of it—it was just to drive him nuts. He said this was the place all our wars start and the place where Bethlehem Steel, American Rubber, and other big businesses began—he blamed everything on the Wailing Wall.

From the Wailing Wall, Nick led us to Old City Wall, which we climbed for a view of the Old City, that looked like nothing more than a pile of rock. The wall still bore the marks of arrows and spears which dated from the Crusaders' time. We looked through the narrow slots they used to shoot arrows through—you could imagine seeing the enemy creeping up the hill toward you and he wouldn't have a chance. Nick pointed out Mt. Olive, Mt. Scopus, the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, Mosque of Didna Omar, and a dozen other things that we were to see. I knocked a stone from the wall for a souvenir and we left.

The Russian Excavations were something to see but nothing more. It was kept by four Russian nuns who left Russia for religious reasons. They had a good collection of gold pictures and a piece of the first city wall. I swiped a candle for a souvenir.

After lunch we had Turkish coffee on the balcony of the hotel while Nick went after our seven-seater taxi.

Mt. Olive
We climbed behind our Arab driver who was in his native dress and fifteen minutes later we were looking at Jerusalem from atop Mt. Olive. The Valley Jordan lay almost opposite from Jerusalem and it looked deep and blue, the Dead Sea was barely visible.

On top of Mt. Olive we visited the Chapel of the Ascension, where we saw the spot Christ ascended to Heaven and the footprint he left in the rock. I paid a girl ten mills for an olive branch from the mountain for a souvenir.

Bethlehem, Church of Nativity
Our small caravan sailed down Mt. Olive, back through Jerusalem and out toward Bethlehem. We made two stops on the way, one at the Well of the Wise Men, the other at Rachel's Tomb.

The one thing to see in Bethlehem is the Church of Nativity where Jesus was born. You enter the church through a very small entrance, but so to keep animals out. On the inside you find just a cold, dark, empty, and ugly church, nothing of interest except a gray headed old man hands you a candle and you descend into the caves under the church smoked black by a million candles. A silver Star of Bethlehem marks the spot where Christ was born, on one side of the cave, and on the other a doll laying in a manger represents the place where Jesus was laid. In the cave I met the Father of the church who was born in Texas.

By another entrance we left the cave and came up into a beautiful modern Catholic church. The procession had just begun and Nick motioned for us to fall in. I knew nothing about the Catholic religion but I did the best I could in the things that followed. I kept the candle given me for a souvenir.

We next visited the Temple of the Virgin Mary which was the cave in which Mary hid with Jesus before they fled to Egypt. From there I got a rock from the ceiling.

The Second Day
Nick arrived a little late the next morning, explaining it with some of his philosophy, which sounded like Confucious... a hangover for short.

We went first back into the old city to see the Mosque of Sidna Omar which is open to the Christians only certain hours in the morning, because the Moslems pray there in the afternoon. The Mosque of Sidna Omar is sacred to the Christians because it rests on the site of Solomon's Temple and is built over the rock on which Isaac was going to sacrifice his son, giving the Mosque the name of "Dome Rock." To enter the greatest monument of the Moslems we had to put on slippers, normally you have to remove your shoes. I swiped another candle.

Solomon's Stables were really something to see because they are practically underground. There are huge stables which housed 1,000 horses.

The rest of the morning we saw the Church of St. Anne and the Pool of Bethesda, where Christ healed the sick. The pool is now fifteen feet underground because Jerusalem was built upon Jerusalem.

Garden of Gethsemane
By small convoy we went to the Church of All Nations in the Garden of Gethsemane. The Priest at the church, from Rhode Island, showed us around, but I can't remember all he told us. But by special request and since we were Yankees he took out a big key and opened the iron gates to us, into the Garden of Gethsemane, and we walked among the two thousand year old Olive trees... there I got a twig of Olive.

The Valley of Jordan
We began winding our way through the mountains down to the Valley of Jordan thirteen hundred feet below sea level, the lowest place on earth. As we dropped into the valley we had to swallow to relieve the pressure on our ears. We passed out of the mountains, through country comparable to the Bad Lands of Dakota and then out into the Valley of Jordan.

On one side of us was the Dead Sea, the other Jericho. We headed for Jericho bound for the Allenby Bridge across the River Jordan. Old Jericho was a disappointment, it was nothing but a mound of earth and rock and there were no remains of the walls of Jericho. At the foot of the mounds was Elisha's Fountain now used as Jericho's waterworks, Nick insisted that we wash our hands in Elisha's Fountain, so we did.

Thirteen hundred feet below sea level we stood at the shore of the Dead Sea, and we could feel the pressure on our ears. Nick wanted us to go swimming and we almost had to fight him to talk him out of it... he couldn't understand how we could go home and say we hadn't swam in the Dead Sea. I tasted it, that was enough.

We watched the sun set from the Valley Jordan, climbed in our cars, raced up through the Bad Lands, the mountains and watched the sun set again on Jerusalem.

We talked Nick into letting us celebrate New Year's Eve alone. It was a Happy New Year... too bad the MP's had to break it up.

Our Last Tour
Nick took us first to the Church of Dormition, built where the Virgin Mary died. Next he led us up an alley to the room of the Last Supper. We had to remove our shoes for it was a Moslem worshipping place, because David's and Solomon's tombs were there, draped behind bars, with cloth bearing Arabic writing.

We had reached the last of the tour... a walk up the Via Dolorosa or The Way of the Cross to the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, the Tomb of Christ.

The Church of the Holy Sepulchre belongs to six Christian denominations but the key to it is in a Moslem's hand because the Christians can't agree. In the church you see where the cross stood, carvings on the wall done by the Crusaders, but the most impressive of all is a statue of the Virgin Mary draped with thousands of dollars worth of jewelry. The Tomb of Christ was closed for repairs.

Our trip to the church ended in a bad way because Nick and the priest got in an argument over some certificates Nick wanted for us, and almost fought.

Several Catholics in our group got mad so our relations with Nick had to end... I think he gave us the best tour in the Holy Land.

cluding grand championship. This year L. W. has 40 Rambouillet ewes in his own flock and is feeding all of their lambs. He plans to show the 5 best lambs at the Hansford County Show and the Amarillo Show.

Buster Kirk Helps Salvage Four Warhawks

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 24 (AP)—Staff Sergeant Buster W. Kirk was in a group of men in the Army Air Forces Service Group which successfully salvaged four P-40 Warhawks which were landed in the South Pacific, the War Department reported today. The planes had been forced out of gas and had been forced to land on this particular island. The crews were safe, so the salvage job was ordered to recover the valuable plane parts so they could be replaced in remote areas of the Pacific.

The picked crew went to the island on a small steamboat, loaded with equipment and guns. They discovered the planes on a jungle-covered 900-foot plateau almost directly off the beach. Natives, fascinated by their first sight of a plane of any kind, helped in the salvage work just to get a short ride in the jeep.

Two of the planes landed in good shape, but the others were damaged severely. Wings, fuselages, motors, guns, radios and other parts were loaded on the beach and carried to the beach.

There they were transferred to the steamer by ramp lighter, although light parts were carried through the heavy seas in native outrigger canoes. The loading took 3 days.

By Jan. 19, the ship was back at its home port with the planes and a load of lumber picked up along the way.

(Note: Buster Kirk is the son of Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Kirk of north Hutchinson County and is known to hundreds of Hansford county residents.)

Leather Shortage May Cut Output Of Cheap Shoes

By ANN FRANCE WILSON
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, March 7.—From the way things are shaping up, it would seem that there may be fewer inexpensive shoes on the market now that rationing has come.

Tin Tents Snowbound

Right after the three-pairs-a-year order was issued, a new type of shoe advertising began. Higher-priced booteries advised the public that it would be wise to buy shoes that cost more but would wear longer. This worried WPB, which "froze" production to the types of shoes formerly manufactured. The ruling would have been effective if applied to the pre-rationing rate of production. But WPB also cut the allocation of leather in half. So it seems logical that the manufacturer who turned out 100,000 pairs of shoes last year, half of them expensive and half inexpensive, will concentrate on the higher-priced line for his 50,000 pairs in 1943. This is likely, anyway, unless the WPB orders him to spread his production, proportionately, among the types of shoes he made last year.

Odds And Ends
Speaking of shoes, OPA doesn't agree with officials who fear that shoe standards will suffer because of leather-allocation cuts. OPA says it still has control over shoe prices, and if shoes don't measure up, prices will be slashed. . . . WPB will double the amount of wool available for civilian clothing. That will restore wool to peacetime levels. And since there are fewer civilians now, the men and women in emufl will come off better than before. It's another blow at clothes-hoarders. . . . A foreign correspondent recently returned from London wearing the shortest socks that WPB officials had even seen. Sight of the anklets started them thinking. And now there's talk that American socks may be similarly cut down to save wool, cotton and rubber for garters.

Vegetable Ceilings
With rationing of canned fruits and vegetables imminent, prices of fresh vegetables are expected to soar. Thus far OPA has set ceilings only on white potatoes and onions. But other garden produce will certainly be put under a ceiling before long, together with most other foodstuffs not yet under price control.

Wilbanks Sells 50 Miniature Car Tags Before March 1

It looks as if the change in the size of the car tags this year is producing a change in the car owners hurry to purchase according to H. L. Wilbanks, tax collector.

Unlike other years when car owner put off buying a car license until the April 1 deadline, this year already 50 have been sold. The 50 car tags were sold before March 1.

J. H. Davis purchased the first "junior" sized license tag in Hansford County this year. He was issued a car tag Feb. 1, the opening day of the license sales.

Car owners may begin attaching the miniature tags on last year's license plate. Attaching the '43 car license became legal Monday.

Car owners will still put off until March 31, Wilbanks said, in spite of the present advance buying of the license. License will be issued from the sheriff's office in the courthouse.

The first U. S. Marines were recruited at Philadelphia's historic Tun Tavern during the Revolution.

Monty Cotter joined the Spearman 4-H Club in 1942 and chose as his first project the feeding of beef calves on a commercial basis.

His entry in the county show this year is a tuppy Hereford. The calf was put on grain feed in September and was not weaned from its mother until a few days ago.

Edward Greer Dies Suddenly In Spearman

Edward Greer, 65, father of Mrs. D. W. Hart, died suddenly of heart failure Wednesday, Feb. 24, at 1:30 p. m. at the home of his daughter in Spearman.

Mr. Greer, who had made his home with Mr. and Mrs. Hart for almost a year, had made many friends during the short time he had been in Spearman.

Early Wednesday morning he complained of feeling dizzy and decided to remain in bed. Mr. Hart, manager of the Spearman Equity, came home for lunch and talked a few minutes with Mr. Greer, finding him apparently feeling better and expecting to get up. A few minutes later Mrs. Hart found him dead.

Funeral services were held Friday afternoon at Blue Mound Cemetery, Okla., near Booker Texas, near where Mr. Greer formerly lived. Rev. S. R. McClung, Baptist pastor at Perryton, was in charge of the services, and Wilson Funeral Home in charge of the burial services.

Survivors include a son, M. W. Greer of Camp Carson, Colo., three daughters, Mrs. Ray Springer, Kermit, Texas; Mrs. D. W. Hart, Spearman, and Mrs. Oscar

District Court To Open April 5

Spring term of the 84th District Court will open in Spearman April 5 for what appears to be a light session.

Names of the jurors selected for court duty during the term will be released next week, Hoskins said. No criminal cases will be filed on the court docket until the grand jury has returned indictment. Grand jury will meet during the first week of the court.

Jack Allen, district judge, will preside. Court reporter for the 84th District Court is Bert Dummitt of Borger.

We, The Women

By RUTH MILLETT

Food rationing is putting women back into the kitchen—whether they like it or not. That goes for the working wife as well as the stay-at-home.

Gone are the days when a woman could stop by the delicatessen or grocery on her way home from the office or a bridge game, pick up the makings of a meal and have it on the table hot and fairly appetizing in half an hour.

Precious ration coupons are going to make meal-planning a real necessity. They are also going to make quick meals more difficult.

And since so little can be bought by the point system many more women are going to have to spend their summers canning. If they work outside the home, that just means that Saturday and Sunday will have to be spent in the kitchen, putting up fruits and vegetables for the winter months.

Once more the kitchen is going to become the most important room in the house.

HORSE-AND BUGGY LIFE

So put up some new curtains, pull out a rocking chair for the man of the house, start giving the kids good cooking lessons—and get set for life as it was lived back in the horse-and-buggy days.

Men couldn't have sent us to the kitchen—hard as many of them have tried. But rationing can—and will—do it overnight.

Big Post-War Question: How Will World Be Fed?

Capitol Writer Discusses Work Of Rehabilitation

Big Point Is How Much Money Solons Will Appropriate

BY PETER EDSON
The Berger Daily Herald Washington Correspondent

President Roosevelt's indication that an exploratory United Nations conference on post-war food supplies might be held some time this spring points up consideration of how this critical problem of feeding Europe is to be handled this time.

Relief for Europe cost the United States $2.3 billion after the last war. The $300 million was private funds—Red Cross, Quakers, Near East Relief and the like. The $2 billion was government money, and the U. S. contribution represented approximately 85 per cent of all the relief handed out, the remaining 15 per cent coming from Great Britain and other countries.

Theoretically, this $2 billion worth of food relief was sold. The ex-enemy countries had to pay cash and did buy about $500 million worth of surplus American wheat for which farmers had been paid $2 a bushel by act of Congress.

Liberated countries and the allied nations that needed relief got food on credit and that added about $1.4 billion to the war debts which were never collected, so in the long run that post-war relief was pretty much of a gift.

Pantry of Democracy
The total shipment of foods to Europe after World War I were 87 million tons, three-fourths of it cereals and sugar. Up to Jan. 1, 1943, Lend-Lease shipments of food to United Nations countries have reached 4.6 million tons or nearly two-thirds of the first post-war relief load. Less than a fourth of the Lend-Lease shipments have been grains and sugar, the bulk being meats, dairy products, fruits—in short, vitamins. There you have the principal difference, aside from quantity, between feeding Europe after the last war and feeding the world after this one.

This chart shows the most popular canned foods and the amount of points allowed for each item. (NEA Telephoto).

Heavy wartime drains on U. S. food supplies, making this country the pantry as well as the arsenal of democracy, mean simply that when this war is over, the United States will not have the food surpluses she had in 1918-19 and lead to a conclusion that feeding Europe after this war is a job for the United Nations as a whole.

Although the United States has set up an ambitious organization to distribute food in its Office of Foreign Relief and Rehabilitation under ex-Gov. Herbert H. Lehman of New York, the job of producing all this food will require the combined resources of all nations on earth, and it is to marshal these resources that the Roosevelt exploratory conference will presumably be called. First steps toward the formation of a United Nations relief and rehabilitation distribution program have already been taken through the U. S. Department of State and the Lehman organization.

Before the United States got into the war, the British and representatives of 10 countries overrun by the Nazis formed in London an Inter-Allied Bureau on Post-War Requirements. Its chairman is Sir Frederick Leith-Ross and the organization has become known as the Leith-Ross Committee.

Political Danger
China and the United States were not included in the Leith-Ross Committee, and any set-up which counts out those two countries simply won't count. Also the Leith-Ross Committee has no authority to do anything about production of food or relief and rehabilitation—it merely collects statistics on the need.

It is in the execution of any United Nations program for world relief and rehabilitation that political danger lies. The refugee governments seated in London represent only people who got out of Europe ahead of the Nazis. It is entirely possible that the people who had to stay home and take it will have something to say about their government when this war is over, and the refugee governments may or may not in every case be the ruling faction.

If, however, the food, the relief and the rehabilitation of the United States or the United Nations are dished out through these refugee governments, their meager action in disbursing relief from outside sources will give them power to save their own interests.

The question is whether to insist that all American relief and rehabilitation be ladled out by American field service men in post-war Europe where they may have a voice in shaping the future of these countries, or whether this problem can be handled by international relief agencies—the first step, perhaps, toward the creation of an international police force which might maintain order in this post-war world. Let the isolationists chew on that one for awhile.

When the American expeditionary forces moved into North Africa, it was at first thought that it would be necessary to ship in large quantities of food for the native population, which had presumably been bled white and starved blue by Nazi and Vichy domination and demand for all available war supplies.

Much to the surprise of American representatives of the State Department, Board of Economic Warfare, U. S. Commercial Co. and Lend-Lease Administration, when they began to explore and get a better line on the resources of the North African colonies, it was found that the farmers of the region had considerable quantities of wheat hidden away on their farms. The African farmers had held back this wheat from the Nazi purchasing agents because there was nothing in the native stores for the farmers to buy.

To remedy this situation some bright boys, who will probably forever remain unidentified, thought up an idea. Instead of shipping in shipload after shipload of wheat for the native bakers, it was proposed to ship in a relatively small quantity of merchandise to stock the native stores.

Farmers would then bring their wheat into town, sell it for cash and use the cash to buy the goods on shopkeepers' shelves, providing merchant with cash to buy more goods to sell to farmers who would bring in more wheat, and so on. In other words, normal trade would begin to function again.

Permanent Relief Objective
This one simple little lesson is spelled out here in detail because it is a perfect example of the basic problem which faces OFRRO, the alphabet abbreviation for the Office of Foreign Relief and Rehabilitation Operations set up in the State Department under the direction of ex-Gov. Herbert H. Lehman of New York.

The general assumption has probably been that the "relief" end of the business—feeding starving Europe after the war is over—would be the principal business which OFRRO would do. That is important and it comes first, but since Governor Lehman has been active in organizing his staff, studying the problems ahead of him and making a start in field operations, one fact becomes clearer every day:

The "rehabilitation" end of post-war relief is destined to become more important and in the long run may be more humanitarian than the mere giving away of food to the hungry in the name of Uncle Sam and sweet charity.

Perhaps no one will begrudge one nickel spent on food for Europe's undernourished millions.

But rehabilitation, going far beyond temporary relief, is something else again. When you pick a bum out of the gutter and fill his belly with hot soup, give him a bath and a shave and buy him a new suit of clothes, you can't expect him to be a new man the instant you turn him loose. He must be given a job as well, and that is rehabilitation. You rehabilitate the bum so that you don't have to keep on buying him meal tickets.

How Much and How Far?
The big question ahead for OFRRO is how much money Congress will be willing to appropriate for foreign rehabilitation. Just now, Governor Lehman's operations are financed by other people's money—the President's emergency funds and Lend-Lease appropriations. Department of Agriculture's Marketing Administration and similar agencies do the buying on OFRRO orders. Eventually, OFRRO will do its own distributing.

How far OFRRO goes in distributing rehabilitation depends upon its appropriation. Relief may encompass food, clothing, medicine, temporary shelter. Rehabilitation might mean more permanent shelter, seed, fertilizer, draft animals, new dairy stock and livestock herds, new stock for the empty shelves, new machinery and raw materials for them to chew up.

Once the war is ended, Governor Lehman's first big job will be to convince Congress that this rehabilitation is to be administered on a business-like basis with some show of return more tangible than the extension of credit and the building up of war debts which will never be repaid. He will have to make a case that rehabilitation is cheaper and more lasting than mere relief. Let OFRRO get the name of an international WPA, passing out leaf-raking projects and free food all over the world, and it is sunk.

Max Clawson

Max Clawson is entering the beef division at the local show and at the Amarillo Fat Stock Stock Show for the third consecutive year. Although he is a young 4-H'er, Max is a veteran feeder.

In 1941, he fitted two calves for show, winning reserve championship and fourth place at the county show and placing 19th in the junior division at the Amarillo Fat Stock Show. In 1942, Max fed one calf and won the grand champion honors at the county show.

This year he is feeding two steers, these calves having been grown from his own herd of registered Hereford cows.

Carl Craig Hutchison

Carl Craig has been in 4-H Club work for three years, feeding beef calves each year.

In 1941, his show calf placed fourth in the county show. In 1942, Craig won second in the county show and sixteenth in the Junior class at the Amarillo Fat Stock Show. In 1942, he was judged to be County Livestock Champion, qualifying for a gold medal. He is the youngest member to ever win this award in Hansford county.

Craig's calf to be entered in the 1943 show is out of a Dutch Hereford cow bred to a registered Hereford bull from the Wilmeth herd.

Farm Security To Launch New Cattle Program

To prevent the slaughter of good milk cows and potential dairy producing animals, the Farm Security Administration announces the inauguration of a new program in Texas, designed to maintain essential dairy production levels in the State.

Details of the plan, called the Dairy Animal Conservation Program, were received here by Arthur R. Turner, county supervisor for the FSA, from Jesse B. Gilmer, regional director at Amarillo, Texas.

Under the plan Turner has authority to purchase milk cows, heifers, and heifer calves from farmers who plan to liquidate their herds or surplus parts of their herds. These animals will be resold to farmers who have the facilities to keep them in essential production.

"This new war-time function," said Mr. Turner, "provides for the government purchase of dairy animals from farmers, who because of inadequate supplies of feed, labor or other facilities, have been sending their animals to slaughter. The government is not competing with commercial buyers, but is trying to keep dairy animals on local farms by reselling them to farmers in the vicinity who do have the facilities to care for them."

The supervisor explained that in the event local dairymen or farmers can not take on the additional animals, they will be sold to individuals in other parts of the state. He said only healthy dairy cows or potential producing animals will be saved from slaughter.

Dairymen or farmers in this area who may be compelled to market surplus animals or those individuals who wish to purchase surplus animals are asked to contact the FSA supervisor at his office in the courthouse at Spearman.

Lions Pour It On Women For Ladies Program

The Lion's Club Banquet and program Tuesday night, Feb. 23 were dedicated to the ladies. President Clay Gibner had charge of the program and introduced the guests and speakers.

Various members read wise and humorous observations concerning the women. And to each of these the ladies had an equally wise and humorous response.

The banquet was well-prepared and served and enjoyed by everyone in spite of the constant collection of fines by Tailtwister J. E. Eldridge.

Lion P. A. Lyon's talk on "The Modern Woman" was very cynical but strongly approved by the men. "Marriage as an Institution" by Lion D. Misner followed the same line of thought. Ensign P. A. Lyon, a guest, presented in an able and flowery manner, "A Bachelor's iViewpoint of Marriage," which was the typical viewpoint of a confirmed bachelor. President Gibner requested several members to read descriptions of women from a number of well-known books.

Judge A. F. Barkley referred to Webster's dictionary; R. L. McClellan from a cook book; Dude Hart from a check book and Lion J. H. Thomas from Fairy Tales. The ladies appeared skeptical of the authority of the definitions.

"Resolved that the Women should have charge of the Family Purse" was the subject of a debate between Elma Gunn, affirmative and Joe Hatton, negative.

The climax of the evening's entertainment was a love scene skit, "Strange People from Strange Lands," directed by D. D. Moore, J. B. Cooke was presented as Lionel Barrymore and Freeman Barkley as Greta Garbo. This drama was well-directed and well acted and received great applause.

Tailtwister Eldridge ended the program with a toast to the ladies. Fifty-two members and their ladies enjoyed this highly entertaining and pleasant evening.

Power Manager Warns Boys Of Flying Of Kites

A soaring kite dives into a power line. A small boy climbs a pole to untangle it. Suddenly there is a flash and a limp little body hurtles to the ground.

Dozen of times each year this tragedy is enacted in communities throughout the land. Dozens of little children annually lose their lives or suffer painful injuries in accidents involving kites and wires, either through lack of knowledge of the hazards involved or because of a youthful disregard of danger.

It is to prevent occurrences of this kind from happening here that the local power company annually publishes warnings in the newspapers and schools. This year the company again asks the cooperation of parents in calling the following safety rules to the attention of their children:

1. Don't use fine wire or metallic string.
2. Don't use wet string or fly kites in damp weather.
3. Don't use metal kite sticks.
4. Don't climb poles to get kites caught in wires.
5. Don't poke sticks at tangled kites or attempt to pull them down by their tails.
6. Always fly kites in open fields, clear away from power lines and busy highways.

"Both fine wire and the tinselled string sold for gift wrapping are conductors of electricity and so is string that is wet," cautions A. L. Schnell, Community Public a short circuit that will interrupt power service. Children should use only dry cotton string in flying their kites and they should avoid the use of metal or wire in making them.

"If a kite becomes tangled in electric lines, it is best to call the light company office and let one of our men take it down. In climbing a pole to get a kite a child may come in contact with a live wire or in attempting to pull it down by its tail or poke it loose with a stick, he may cause two wires to come together causing a service interruption."

Congressman May Revive Free Seeds

Don't look in the mailbox now, but free seeds such as congressmen used to mail your father 20 years ago may be on the way back to grow in Victory gardens.

As a quick step to encourage family gardens when every pound of food is important, Chairman Smith (D), South Carolina, of the Senate agriculture committee today made plans to discuss free seeds with Secretary Wickard. "I think it would do some real good," he said in an interview. "We need anything that will be in more food, and it wouldn't be nearly as much as lots of practically useless things the administration has done."

Should the free distribution be revived, Smith said the seeds should go to residents of towns as well as farmers.

Under the system in effect until 1924, five-sixths of the seeds, bulbs, trees, shrubs, vines, cuttings and plants bought by the Agriculture Department under special section of its appropriation bill were allotted to senators' representatives for distributing to their constituents—being sent in franked envelopes and paid for by the department sent the one-sixth in response to individual requests.

Hansford Leads State In Wheat Yield For '42

Hansford County in 1942 produced more wheat per acre than any county in Texas, according to a report issued by the Texas Wheat Improvement Association.

The report listed Hansford County as producing 25.3 bushels per acre in the 1942 wheat harvest. Ochiltree County was leading Texas county in wheat yield. In 1942, Ochiltree County harvested 4,605,497 bushels total production of wheat.

Hansford County was second with 4,211,000 bushels. Deaf Smith County listed as third in total production with 4,211,000 bushels by the bulletin.
