Texas Relief Offices Will Open Aug. 1

Will Accept Applications For Work On WPA Projects

AUSTIN, July 21—Texas relief commission offices will open in the various counties by August 1 to receive applications of persons to be considered for Works Progress Administration jobs, Adam R. Johnson, director of the Texas relief commission, has announced.

Upon the request of Works Progress Administration officials, the Texas relief commission has agreed to undertake the task of determining the needs of persons who apply for WPA employment, Johnson said. Expense of this service will be paid from federal funds.

In addition to performing this service for WPA, the Texas relief commission will continue to sponsor surplus commodity distribution contingent upon the continued cooperation of counties in employing approved case workers. It was explained. Applications for WPA employment or for surplus commodities will be filed and cleared through the same office.

Eligibility for WPA employment or for receipt of surplus commodities is determined upon a basis of need, Johnson explained. Although it is no longer required that a job applicant be a former relief client, present need must be definitely established.

Not To Give Jobs

Responsibility and authority of the Texas relief commission extends only to the acceptance of clients' applications, and does not encompass assignment of individuals to jobs. Texas relief commission employees examine eligibility status of applicants and refer those persons found eligible to WPA.

Johnson pointed out that certification to WPA does not necessarily mean a job is awaiting the person certified as the quota assigned to WPA offices. Unless this surplus is absorbed by private industry in the various localities of the state, these persons must remain jobless, he declared.

"For the Texas relief commission to perform the service of intake and referral for WPA, and to continue sponsoring the distribution of surplus commodities, we must continue to receive the cooperation of the various counties and cities," Johnson stated. "We anticipate this cooperation, however, as our work consists of making surplus commodities available to the needy and of making WPA jobs a possibility for many of the unemployed workers."

B'Spring Girl Death Victim

Woes Fatal To Mary Lee Clendening; Burial Near Waco

An extended illness resulted fatally Monday for Mary Lee Clendening, 18-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carley Clendening. The girl succumbed at the family residence, 107 North Benton street, at 3:50 p. m.

In failing health for some time, the girl had been taken to Dallas for treatment twice this year. She spent some time at a sanatorium there in June, then was returned to her home.

She was born February 17, 1918, at Rosebud, Texas. Her father has been associated with the Cooperative Gin and Supply company here for the past ten years.

Survivors, besides the parents, are three sisters, Margaret, Jewel and Mildred Clendening; one brother, Carl Clendening, and a half-brother, Gordon Hickman, all of Big Spring. The maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. A. Clendening of Bruceville, Tex., who were here when death came, and several uncles and aunts in East Texas also survive.

The body was sent by train Tuesday to Waco, and funeral services will be held in the Bethany cemetery, 15 miles from that city, at 2:30 Wednesday afternoon. Burial was said at the Bethany funeral chapel Tuesday morning by Rev. H. C. Goodman.

CHURCH DECORATING WORK IS UNDER WAY

Painting work in the redecoration of the Catholic church building was started Tuesday by Johnson brothers, contractors awarded the job. Painters started on the job after scaffolding was erected Monday.

The work is to be completed in two weeks. The ceiling will be painted white, the walls cream and the base material. Contract on work and material was awarded last Thursday to Johnson Brothers on a bid of $220.

School Dist. Votes $8500 Bond Issue

Knott-Highway Proposal Is Approved By A Count Of 80 To 69

Propertied voters of the Knott-Highway consolidated school district Monday approved the issuance of bonds totaling $8,500 for improvements by a vote of 80 for and 69 against.

The margin of 11 votes was sufficient for the immediate launching of a program designed to have the building and equipment of the new school district in readiness for the opening of school.

H. F. Rallick, formal head of the Highway school and superintendent of the consolidated district, said Monday that if the issue carried little time would be lost in effecting changes called for under the bond issue.

The issue will be divided as follows: Moving old buildings, $2,500; repair, $750; library and fixtures, $1,000; pipe water to school, $750; purchase of site, $300; furniture and fixtures, $500; auditorium and gymnasium, $2,500; and incidental expenses, $300.

The buildings will be moved to a site purchased from P. E. Little, one mile east of East Knott and two miles east of the present site of the Knott building.

Passage of the issue, said Rallick, would enable the district to have a four year standard high school and would make it possible for pupils to obtain their high school education at home.

ANOTHER SLAYING IS CHARGED UP TO THE BLACK LEGION

DETROIT, July 21. (AP)—Prosecutor Duncan McCrea announced today that Dayton Dean, confessed "trigger man" in the Black Legion slaying, May 12, of Charles Pools, had told of a new killing in which members of the terrorist organization shot a negro to death "just for the hell of it" on May 25, near Pinckney, Mich.

REACH AGREEMENT ON LOCARNO PARLEY

LONDON, July 21. (AP)—A formal agreement on the three-power Locarno parley, beginning Thursday, was reached today in a conference between Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and the French and Belgian ambassadors.

Authoritative observers expected the talks to be confined to arrangements for a later five-power conference.

GARLINGTON WILL MAKE RADIO SPEECH

J. S. Garlington, seeking reelection to the county judgeship of Howard county, will deliver a radio talk in behalf of his candidacy over the Midland station Thursday evening, he has announced.

He will be heard over station KRLH from 7:45 to 8 p. m.

State's Heat Wave Broken

Heavy Loss Reported At Centennial Exposition At Dallas

(By The Associated Press) The worst wind and thunderstorms in years slashed through Central-Northwest Texas last night, strewn a thickly populated region with wrecked property amounting to hundreds of thousands of dollars. No lives were reported lost.

The wind velocity whipped to 65 miles an hour out of the northeast and rain drenched a hundred-mile strip across the area. Thousands of trees were uprooted in Dallas, Gainesville and other cities.

Workers were busy today repairing damage estimated at $100,000 to the Centennial central exposition at Dallas.

Heat Wave Broken Effects of the storm were felt far into West Texas, and east to the Louisiana state line. The heat wave in North Texas was definitely broken by the wind and rain, temperatures falling as much as 25 degrees over the area.

Centennial officials at Dallas reported that the Cavalcade of Texas stage and scenery were ruined and would require three days for repairs. To flag alone on the exposition grounds, damage was set at $5,000. Two-thirds of the expensive silk flags were saved before the wind whipped them to shreds.

Hundreds of persons at the fair sought shelter as the gale-like winds swept through the exposition. Lights on the midway went out. Several persons were taken to hospital for minor injuries.

Twister In Reagan Co. Added to the beat Monday that scorched crops in West Texas was damage from a small twister that hit the Big Lake Oil Company property near Texas in Reagan county. A hard half hour rain accompanied the twister which destroyed a wooden derrick on the lease and left the camp without electric power last night, forcing all wells to shut down.

Water damage was feared to the lease unless the power lines on the lease were repaired and electric service resumed soon. The company's garage was also damaged by the cyclonic winds which came from the northwest.

The derrick destroyed was at the No. 10 well where the tank battery house, near No. 10 well, was damaged.

Big Spring experienced more seasonable summer weather Tuesday, after two days of near-record temperatures. Monday's top, registered at 2 p. m., was 106, slightly under Sunday's three-year maximum of 107.

East Texas disturbances were felt in windstorm that blew briefly here at mid-afternoon Monday, sending the mercury on a sharp 15-degree drop. The reading at 4 o'clock was 90 degrees, compared with 105 an hour earlier.

The airport thermometer stood at 88 at noon Tuesday, as against a 95 reading at the same hour Monday.

Club Is Told Of Centennial

Frontier Celebration At Ft. Worth Described For Rotarians

Attractions at the Frontier Centennial in Fort Worth, newest contribution to Texas' 100th birthday celebrations, were described by two speakers at Tuesday's luncheon session of the Big Spring Rotary club.

W. T. Strang, Jr., who attended the formal dedication of the exhibit Monday, described the all-West Texas resources exhibit sponsored by the West Texas chamber of commerce. The display, he said, depicts in forceful fashion the vast production and potentialities of the West Texas territory. The exhibit was arranged by cooperating member towns, under direction of WTCC headquarters.

Joe Gledhill told Rotarians of the show offered at the Frontier celebration. He outlined the pageant revue presented at the Casa Manana, world's largest outdoor cafe theatre, and the dramatic rodeo presentation given at the Last Frontier. Other shows are Jumbo, Billy Rose's famed spectacle and the Pioneer Palace.

Strang was chairman of the day's program. Visiting Rotarians were Randy Henderson of Abilene and H. G. Barnes of Midland. Local visitors were Bob Schermerhorn and Gover Cunningham, Jr.

Busk Richardson, Arthur Woodall and L. W. Croft went to Midland on business Tuesday morning.

REPRESENTED

Although he has not included Big Spring in his current campaign itinerary, Gov. Jas. V. Allred (above) will have a leading West Texas supporter appearing here tonight. Jas. P. Stinson, Abilene attorney, will make an address for Allred at the courthouse lawn tonight, beginning at 8:30.

Abilene Man To Talk Here For Allred

Jas. P. Stinson To Make Campaign Address Tonight At 8:30

While Governor Jas. V. Allred himself is in Galveston tonight, speaking to a South Texas crowd in behalf of his candidacy for reelection, one of his staunch West Texas supporters, Jas. P. Stinson of Abilene, will bring a message for Allred to Big Spring and Howard county voters.

Stinson will speak on the courthouse lawn tonight. The talk begins at 8:30.

Widely known attorney and political figure in West Texas, Stinson is democratic chairman of Taylor county. He presided for an all-West Texas Allred rally when the governor spoke there on July 13. He will outline the governor's platform in the talk here.

Jas. T. Brooks, local attorney and leader of Howard county Allred forces, will preside for tonight's session. He has sent out invitations to representatives of neighboring counties and Allred supporters in Big Spring are invited to hear the Abilene man's talk.

OPENING DATE FOR GLASSCOCK SCHOOLS WILL BE SET SOON

GARDEN CITY, July 21. (Sp.) N. P. Taylor, superintendent, said that dates for the opening of Glasscock county schools would be set by the board in its meeting the first week of August. It was considered probable that the schools will open Sept. 7. Minor repair and reconditioning work has been effected on the buildings during the summer.

Radio Broadcasting Revenue For Last Year Totals Over 86 Million

WASHINGTON, July 21.—Total net revenue of broadcast stations for 1935 amounted to $86,492,653, it was revealed today by Director William L. Austin, bureau of the census, department of commerce, in a United States summary report of the broadcasting industry.

This report is a part of the current census of business. It includes eight national and regional networks and 561 stations, and covers all broadcast stations and networks which sold time during 1935, except three small stations which failed to submit schedules of their 1935 operations.

Revenue from the sale of radio time was divided as follows: national and regional networks, $30,787,867; national and regional spot advertising (non-network), $18,205,500; local advertising, $28,074,476. Thus, almost one-half (49.9 per cent) of all radio time sales, when measured in terms of revenue, were made through radio networks. Of this, $27,216,035, or 65.5 per cent was available to them to cover cost of programs, wire, and other network facilities. The balance was paid to broadcast stations for the use of station facilities in broadcasting network programs.

Broadcast stations sold $36,679,676 worth of time and received $12,521,222 from networks as payment for carrying network commercial

Lease Closed For Operation Of Meat Plant

Directors Ready To Seek Memberships In Marketing Association

Contract for a two-year lease on the Samuel Greer feeding pens and abattoir east of Big Spring was effected Monday following a meeting of directors of the Howard County Marketing association.

The association, chartered July 15, will be devoted primarily to the processing of meat for local consumption.

Directors took steps Monday toward securing memberships in sufficient number to warrant the operation of a plant.

O'Daniel Is Treasurer E. T. O'Daniel, Coahoma, was elected temporary treasurer of the organization. J. W. Allen had previously been selected as president of the board of directors.

As many memberships as can be obtained will be sought by the association, but operation will be started as soon as 100 are secured. Memberships, it was announced, will be offered at $25 each. Several have indicated that they would take more than one membership. Directors said they were hopeful a large number of farmers, stockmen and merchants would take memberships.

$10,000 Investment The Greer properties were erected on the Texas & Pacific siding near the stock pens east of here more than a year ago at a cost in excess of $10,000. They contain four large feeding pens, a spacious feeding barn, a slaughter house and cooling unit and a caretaker's cottage.

On the board of directors are J. W. Allen, T. W. Ashley, Grady Acuff, Otis Chalk, S. B. Cooksey of Big Spring, E. T. O'Daniel of Coahoma and Samuel Greer of Garden City.

Delay Action In Court Case

Allred Not To Consider Appointing Judge Until Next Week

Action by the governor in the affray case against County Judge J. S. Garlington which was dismissed by the judge in his own court on the court's motion last week cannot be expected before next week, County Attorney Wilburn Barcus said today.

The governor, in a telephone conversation with Barcus, said he would not be back in his office until after the first primary and would make no statement regarding the case until he had had an opportunity to examine the records. Barcus had requested that a special judge be appointed to hear the case, holding that the judge was disqualified to sit in his own case. The judge was of the opinion that the action in the case.

School Conference Slated For Friday

Parents Of First-Year Pupils Asked To Meet Teachers

Parents of all children who will enter Big Spring schools this fall for the first time—including mothers and fathers of six-year-olds who will enter the first grade—have been called to meet with school authorities Friday to discuss procedure incident to class enrollment.

The conference will be held at the high school, beginning at 2:30 p. m. Friday. Supt. W. C. Blankenship has mailed out notices of the meeting to all parents, and is urging that all those who will have a child in school for the first time this year attend the meeting.

Purpose of the session, first of its kind ever held here, will be to complete all work preliminary to pupils enrollment and avoid confusion and delay on the opening day of school, Blankenship said. The superintendent said he believed the earlier understanding between parent and teacher would be of benefit to both. It is not necessary that the children be present at the Friday conference.

"Through these conferences between school officials, teachers and parents," said Blankenship in explaining the meeting, "teachers will have in advance all necessary information on the pupils who will be in their rooms for the first time. We believe that this will avoid confusion and misunderstanding during the rush of school opening, and permit the new pupils to get a better start in their classes."

Also at the meeting a general discussion of the summer health round-up, sponsored by the Parent-Teacher associations, will be held. That program will be outlined by school officials and health authorities.

TOMORROW LAST DAY TO CAST ABSENTEE VOTES IN PRIMARY

With one more day remaining in which to cast absentee ballots by person and two days for absentee voting by mail, 281 such ballots were on file with the county clerk Tuesday noon.

Those who wish to appear at the clerk's office and cast an absentee ballot must do so before 5 p. m. Wednesday. Absentee votes in the mail will be accepted through Thursday.

It appeared that the total would amount to well more than 300 but would probably fall short of the 377 record established in 1934 prior to the first democratic primary.

ORDER GRANTED ON PAVING OF HIGHWAY

Permission to start surfacing work Wednesday on the remaining six and a half mile gap between the pavement in northern Howard and the Dawson county line has been granted contractors by S. C. Dougherty, resident highway engineer.

However, it seemed likely that actual operations would not get underway before Thursday since approval as asphalt must be received. Otherwise, everything is in readiness for surfacing the five-mile strip in Howard and mile and a half strip in Martin county. The base has been compacted and bladed.

Peasants And Workers Aid Civil Forces

Fighting Continues At Several Points; Government Claims Victories

VERA, Spain, July 21. (AP)—Three thousand victorious rebels from Pamplona, proceeding by machine-gunning war planes, seized the ancient Basque provinces of Guipuzcoa and Navarre tonight, with many loyal defenders reported slain.

The insurgents poured into San Sebastian, site of the United States summer embassy, after planes raked the streets with machine gun fire.

MADRID, July 21. (AP)—Armed masses of peasants and workers, concentrated in columns, thrust toward rebel strongholds today while thousands of civil militiamen formed a steel circle around Madrid.

followed earlier encounters at Vera, 12 miles distant. Loyal masses marched on Valladolid and Zaragoza, which the government acknowledged were principal rebel centers. Other columns moved on Burgos and Toledo.

Leader Is Killed Everywhere, the government insisted, peasants and loyal workers were aiding the rebels.

Death in a Portuguese airplane accident, of General Jose Sanjurjo, would be the rebel leader, was declared to be a vital blow to rebel hopes. Madrid women were among the patrolling militia.

In an official radio broadcast, civil guards in Zaragoza, one of two sections which the government admitted still was troublesome, were ordered to give up their arms to advancing peasants.

Zaragoza is in northern Spain. Indications that the government might be gaining the upper hand in southern Spain were seen at Hendaia, in the fact that a radio station at Seville was broadcasting government orders. The station for two days has been the chief source of rebel news from Spain proper.

(A British dispatch from Madrid said the government had announced the rebellion "completely crushed." However, there were reports in France of grave events for the leftist government, both in southern Spain and in Barcelona, on the

Freight Rate Cuts Sought

WASHINGTON, July 21. (AP)—Government officials today moved to obtain inter-system railway freight rate reductions on feed shipments from southern states to the northwest drought area. They acted as crop-saving temperatures complicated plans for a federal grain-purchase program, delaying any immediate announcement.

In the freight fare field, chief consideration was given a proposed agreement between southern and western lines on reduced rates for transporting cotton seed cake and cotton seed meal to fatten livestock held on farms.

Inter-system rates were suggested by Jesse W. Tapp, chairman of the agricultural department's drought committee, and Francis R. Wilcox, president of the federal surplus commodity corporation, in conversations with traffic executives of the Western Carriers' association.

MRS OBIE Bristol and Mrs. Ritz, who played in a golf tournament at Ruidoso, N. M., last week, expect a large number of New Mexico golfers to be here next year for the annual Big Spring Women's Invitation golf tournament.

A 17-year-old Indiana girl, one of the best golfers in the country, promised she would enter the meet here, according to Mrs. Ritz. "Willie" took first flight honors at Ruidoso. Mrs. Bristol made the championship flight but lost to the New Mexico champion in the first round.

YOUNG BASEBALL players will welcome the opportunity offered by the Springfield, Mo., baseball club of the Western Association. The Cardinals, in an effort to find new talent, will offer boys the opportunity of playing before highly competent baseball scouts. The school opens August 4.

COSDEN OILERS got their guarantee of $50 for playing two games at Hobbs Sunday. Attendance at baseball games in Hobbs has dropped off a great deal within the past few weeks, probably due to a gambling element around the park.

DESPITE the fact that several teams have withdrawn, Pro Charles Akoy will continue the operation of the Murry golf league. He first thought of abandoning the league and starting other contests.

LOWLY NATIONAL LOOP TEAMS SHOW IMPROVEMENT

Red Raiders, Hornets Mark Up Junior League Softball Victories

BEES MAKE WONDERFUL RECOVERY

NEW YORK, July 21—Interest in the National League pennant race does not stop with the torrid battle for first place being waged between the St. Louis Cardinals and the Chicago Cubs. The remarkable improvement of clubs like the Cincinnati Reds and the Boston Bees cannot be overlooked.

The Bees have made a remarkable recovery from the form they showed in the race last year. They have already won more games this season than they did in the entire 1935 campaign. Not only that, but Manager Bill McKechnie's charges have been moving along at close to a 500 clip, and that is not to be sneezed at by a team which a year ago was firmly entrenched in the cellar and was destined to set a new modern record for games lost in a single season. In 1935 the Bees won only 38 games. Now McKechnie is going around predicting they'll win twice as many this year.

The genial keeper of the Bees has set the first division as his goal this year. His self-appointed task is anything but impossible the way his team has been hustling of late. The boys have been overcoming leads, and bearing down so hard in crucial spots that their opponents have been forced to give ground. Their starting pitchers have been nothing to boast about—but the relief corps has not failed.

Jordan's Bingles Help It took the Bees two games before mid-season to get the number of wins the Braves of 1935 turned in. Outside of the first two weeks of the present campaign the Boston club has played better than 500 ball. They dropped eight of their first 11 games but won 35 of the next 68 played.

Baxter Jordan's consistent batting has been one of the factors responsible for the Bees' newfound success. The lanky first baseman is right up with the league leaders in grinding out hits and boasts an average of about .350. The timely hitting and steady fielding of Joe Coscart has given impetus to the team's spurt. The addition of Ray Mueller, rushed from Knoxville, to the catching staff has proved a big help.

Rabbit Warstler has helped fill in the shortstop hole created when Bill Urbanski brushed his finger. The enforced rest won't do Bill any harm—he can stand a little vacation. Meanwhile, Warstler looked good against Cincinnati. Ben Cantwell's steady relief work has won a number of games for the Bees.

Keeps Betting Eye They say the last thing a real hitter loses is his batting eye. There must be something to this for old Riggs Stephenson, former slugging outfielder of the Chicago Cubs, is still pounding the cover off the ball in the Southern association. If it were not for the fact that he had had slowed up in the field "Old Hon" would very likely still be wielding his big bat in the majors.

Riggs is playing-manager of the Birmingham Barons now and boasts an average of close to .360. This, mind you, despite a very poor start due to an early season illness. Since he has regained his health he has made life miserable for Southern association pitchers. Bunting in cleanup position, he has

Labmen Swamp Shell's Red Raiders, 20-1

Chemists Are Ready For Crucial Game With Settles Wednesday

By HANK HART Ernie Richardson's Cosden Chemists ended all preliminary work for their "crucial" battle with the Settles Roadrunners by swamping the Shell Red Raiders, 20-1, on the Mundy diamond Monday night.

While his mates were coming through with their best "Sunday punches," punishing Burkhardt and his successor, Smylie, throughout the contest, Roscoe Van Zandt experienced no trouble with any of the Shell hitters except Heustis who homered in the third for the only Raider run and tripled three innings later. Van set the Raiders down with six hits.

The Chemist flinger led his team's batting parade by garnering four licks. All of the Labmen came up with at least one blow except Pap Payne and Bill Phillips, while Groseclose and H. Swatzy had three each.

Best scoring efforts of the Cosdenites came in the fifth stanza when four hits, three walks and a brace of errors accounted for eight runs.

TOWNS AND HARDIN ARE TEAM ACES

Frank Frisch Has Trouble With Redbirds

NEW YORK, July 21 (AP)—A pair of world record barrier hoppers from the south, one of whom made the Olympic record without winning an Olympic title in 1932, are odds-on favorites to carry the stars and stripes first places in the 110-meter high and 400-meter low hurdles races at Berlin.

Only an accident, apparently, can prevent Forrest (Spec) Towns, the University of Georgia track captain-elect for 1937, or Glen (Stat) Hardin, formerly of Louisiana State, from winning their Olympic State.

Hardin, who established the world mark of 56.6 seconds over the 400-meter low hurdles in Sweden two summer ago, placed second to Robert M. N. Tisdall of Ireland in the 1933 Olympic games. But Tisdall's time of 1:12.2 seconds was disallowed as a record because he kicked over the last hurdle and Hardin's second-place time of 55 flat went into the books as the Olympic standard.

The Louisiana, a college freshman in 1932, since then bettered his Olympic mark by 1.4 seconds and he ran 51.4 in the American final tryouts this year, beating both his own Olympic record and the U. S. mark he held jointly with Morgan Taylor. Hardin, who falls from Greenwood, Miss., is one of the nation's best flat-racing quarter milers, too.

Towns, a lanky Georgian from Atlanta, has bettered the accepted world record for the 110-meter high sticks with the time of 14.1 seconds, three-tenths under the Olympic mark established in 1932 by George Saling, the University of Iowa track captain, who was killed later in a Missouri automobile crash. Saling was timed at 14.1 in the semifinals before winning the Olympic title over such better knowns as Percy Beard, who was second, and Jack Keller, fourth, in a 14.6 finale.

Towns has run the barriers four times in 14.1 and both he and his Georgia coach, Weems Baskin, believe he can do it in 13.9 if conditions are right. One of the Georgian's 14.1 races was run into a four-mile headwind.

The world listed record is 14.2 seconds made by Percy Board in Norway two years ago.

the passer, faking a run or kick, losses from five yards back of the scrimmage line. The pro league permits passes from any point behind the line of scrimmage. Utilization of this permission enabled the Bears to capitalize on the skill of Bronko Nagurski and Jack Manly. Howell could not do this in the all-star games.

When Nagurski and Manders could not fake a plunge and pass, the Bears' attack was abortive. The Lions will not be handicapped. The all-stars, consequently, must go on the spot view of the line for a run, and plunges. It promises to be a real game and I don't want to miss it.

My only suggestion, and I hope that no matter who will be named in the national poll as coaches of the college boys and that they will not be taken notice is that those players who have been developed under one system of play will be permitted to continue in that style. It is a good idea, I believe, to divide the players according to the Notre Dame system, the Warner system, and the Warner system with emphasis on power and reverses with only the man behind center doing the spinning.

Last year, for instance, we attempted to teach Reginald, of Michigan, how to handle the spin plays of the Notre Dame style, and he had had no previous experience. I believe that the offensive strength of this year's university team rests in the number of men from the same school.

Minnesota, Stanford, Princeton, Columbia and that enter into the State are familiar with the single and double wing back play. Notre Dame, Alabama, Villanova, Fordham, St. Mary's, Purdue play the backfield shift. Two definite styles of attack can be developed. This will help the colleges. It will handicap the Lions who must learn how to defend against both.

This game already has been the best of the series. Already it has become a national mile post in football. Regardless of whether the professional or the college boys win, the Detroit team is probably the most versatile in the National Professional League. The Lions have fast open field runners, good passers, fine kickers, and a punch through the line. Most important, Detroit throws its passes from the fundamental formation of utility football. By this I mean, that

Summer Round-Up Receives Enthusiastic Response Here

Meeting Friday to Review Work And Hear Talks On Benefits Derived From Project

Leaders of the Parent-Teachers Association Summer Roundup are more than pleased with the response received from Big Spring parents in their efforts to conduct this beneficial campaign.

The ultimate goal of the campaign is to educate parents to the necessity of periodic examinations for school children and to send to the entering grade of school, a class of children as free from remediable defects as is possible.

This work was inaugurated in 1925 by the National Congress of Parents and Teachers. It is not at all together new in Big Spring, the East Ward association attempting to carry on the examinations last year. It was unable to complete the work due to lack of cooperation. This is the first attempt to work as a unit here.

In order to become a standard association this work must be carried on and completed, according to national educational requirements. Registered associations are classified in two groups, standard and superior. Upon the completion of the work a certificate is awarded which has been signed by the U. S.

RELIEVES NASAL DISTRESS CAUSED BY HAY-FEVER

At a meeting to be held Friday, Mrs. Smith will give a talk and report on the roundup. Superintendent Blankenship will address the group on the subject of enrollment, and Dr. M. H. Bennett will give the benefits of this movement from a medical standpoint.

As this is a movement for the betterment of the future citizens the public has been asked to attend the Friday meeting to better acquaint themselves with the work being done by this organization.

Mrs. Barnett Leads Program Of Auxiliary

Mrs. W. C. Barnett was program leader Monday when the Presbyterian auxiliary held the Home Mission program at the church. The devotional was "Christ and His Church First." This was followed by a prayer and a hymn, "Work for the Night is Coming."

A song, "Something for Jesus" followed the talks. A questionnaire was held which was very interesting.

The King's Daughters of which Mrs. H. G. Foches is chairman was responsible for the program. Attending the meeting were: Mrs. G. D. Lee, Mrs. L. G. Talley, Mrs. H. W. Caylor, Mrs. D. F. McConnell, Mrs. N. J. Allison, Mrs. S. L. Baker, Mrs. R. C. Strain, Mrs. D. A. Koons, Mrs. G. W. Gilmore, Jr., Mrs. T. S. Curtis, Mrs. W. C. Barnett, Mrs. R. W. Watkins, Mrs. W. F. Cushing, Mrs. Hal Farley, Mrs. Ruby Stanley and Mrs. A. A. Porter.

Revival Meeting Opens With Picnic, Singing

An all-day meeting started the East Fourth street Church of Christ revival Monday morning. After the morning service, a picnic lunch was spread at the city park. Many out of town people attended.

Following the lunch short talks were made by many of the members and visitors. An hour of singing preceded these. At the evening service Evangelist J. Frank Copeland addressed the group using as his subject, "The Great Commandment," giving the Bible definition of love.

Miss Philips Joins Party in Maryland

Miss Audrey Philips, teacher in Big Spring schools, who has been studying this summer at T. C. Crocheted Beret

By RUTH ORR Pattern No. 303

Whatever did we do before berets came into being? Nothing seems more comfortable for driving or golf or school or any wear, as a protection for the hair. It is so easy to pack into your vacation bag, too. In short, for a knock-about head-covering, a beret is the answer.

Here's one that you can crocheted yourself and enjoy doing it. It is made of mercerized knitting and crocheted cotton, so that it will be very easy on your purse and the directions cover any head size you need. The pattern envelope contains complete, easy-to-understand illustrated directions, with diagrams to aid you; also what crocheted hook and what material and how much you will need.

To obtain this pattern, send for No. 303 and enclose 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to cover service and postage. Address Big Spring Herald, Needlework Dept., P. O. Box 200, Station D, New York, N. Y. (Copyright, 1936, the Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Central Circle Meets Monday At Douglass Home

The members of the Central circle of the First Baptist church met Monday morning at the home of Mrs. W. R. Douglass for a business meeting. Mrs. H. C. Burrus, chairman of the circle, presided and gave the devotional. Monthly business was discussed. Mrs. K. S. Beckett introduced the book which the circle will begin a study on next month. It is "Vanguard of the Race."

Visitors were Mrs. Roy Lay, Mrs. L. N. Mayfield, and Mrs. H. H. Padgett. Members attending were Mrs. D. E. Bryant, Mrs. M. R. Gordon, Mrs. W. E. Cloyes, Mrs. K. S. Beckett, Mrs. F. F. Cary, Mrs. W. R. Douglass, Mrs. Charles Nozanna, Mrs. J. N. Cain, Mrs. H. C. Burrus, Mrs. J. C. Douglass and Miss Myrtle Stamps.

Pioneer Families Hold Reunion At Clifton Sunday

Several families from Big Spring and Knott attended a reunion Sunday in Clifton for descendants of four pioneer Brazos county families.

An all-day picnic was held at Clifton, agreed on as the central point for members of the Castle, Sample, Harris and Drummond families. It was voted to make the reunion an annual affair.

Attending from Big Spring and Knott were Mrs. J. D. Castle, Earl Castle, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Castle and son, T. J. Lee Castle, Mr. and Mrs. F. O. Shortes and children, James, Darrell, Johnnie and Nina V., Mrs. James Campbell and children, Dorothy and Castle-Berry, Mrs. Harvey Dunagan and daughter, Janice, and Ben Sample.

BIG GAINS SHOWN IN SALES OF NEW AND USED AUTOMOBILES

Oldsmobile retail sales for the first ten days of July totaled 5,945 units which represents a gain of more than 40% in comparison to the same period a year ago, according to D. E. Ralston, vice president and general sales manager of Oldsmobile.

"From January 1 to July 10 Oldsmobile dealers have delivered 116,784 new Oldsmobiles to retail purchasers. This is a gain of 29% over the same period last year which was the previous record year in Oldsmobile's history. During this same period, January 1 to July 10, more new Oldsmobiles have been sold than during the first nine months of 1935," Ralston stated.

FLINT, Mich., July 21—Bulck dealers throughout the country sold more used cars in the last ten days of June than in any ten day period so far this year, W. F. Hufstader, General Sales Manager, has announced.

A total of 12,304 used cars, having an aggregate value of $4,023,820 were sold between June 20 and June 30. This compares with only 4,326 used cars in a similar period a year ago and exceeds the entire sales of used cars in June 1935. Used car sales for all of June this year totaled 28,574 units, worth approximately $11,549,900. This compares with a nation wide used car stock-on-hand figure as of July 1 of 25,030 units, which means that Buick dealers made a complete turn-over of the June used car stock in 27 days, and during the month reduced the national used car inventory by 1,600 units.

This Makes Laxative Pleasant to Take

People who know Peen-a-mint don't have to "talk themselves" into taking a laxative when they know they need it. They like Peen-a-mint's delightful chocolate sum-laxative. For just as soon as you start chewing Peen-a-mint, its stomach-soothing mint brings a clean, fresh taste to the mouth. As you chew out the laxative ingredient which is absolutely tasteless, the flow of digestive juices is increased. The laxative is mixed with them and carried into the system gently. Peen-a-mint doesn't grip, nauseate or cause spasms, and it is non-habit-forming. It passes through the stomach and into the bowels so effectively that your action is wonderfully easy and thorough. Try the pleasant, refreshing Peen-a-mint way the next time you need a laxative. Doctors prescribe its laxative ingredient for both children and adults. Sold on money-back guarantee. Generous Family Size packages 10c and 25c.

Closely Contested Races To Mark Primary

Outcome Of Many May Be Doubtful Until Last Count

County Poll Saturday May Total More Than 5,000; 94 Candidates' Names On Long Ballot

In recent annals of Howard county politics, there has not been the equal of the approaching first democratic primary from the standpoint of closely contested races, or races in which the outcome was so much in doubt.

Candidates and political observers alike are tensed for the opening of the polls at 8 a. m. Saturday in 15 voting boxes to which 4,500 to 5,000 people will march during the day. Increased voting strength, especially in the four town boxes where the result is always much harder to predict than in the 11 rural precincts, has muddled the political situation, but not nearly so much as the most exciting race in more than ten years, that of county judge.

May Be Record Vote

Absentee voting, which ends in person Wednesday and by mail Thursday, has so far fallen behind the record established two years ago for the first primary; nevertheless, it has indicated a strong vote may come out of the approximately 5,000 potential voters, record number for Howard county.

Thus, by the time the polls close at 7 p. m. Saturday, it is probable that another all-time high for votes cast will have been established. Voters will be faced by another long and confusing ballot and with the task of choosing 34 names from a total of 94 candidates from governor to county commissioner. For strictly county races there are only 82 names submitted for 16 offices.

Local Unopposed Candidates

Cecil C. Collings for district attorney, John F. Wolcott for tax assessor and collector, and J. W. Carpenter for public weigher of precinct No. 1.

Two-Candidate Races

At least four races will be definitely decided Saturday since no more than two candidates are listed in the battle for county attorney, sheriff, county clerk, and justice of peace.

For the position of county attorney, the choice lies between Walton Morrison and Wilburn Barcus, both young attorneys. For clerk, George Mims and R. L. Warren are the candidates. Jess Slaughter and Frank House aspire to the sheriff's office for a two-year term, and J. H. Hefley and Joe Faucett oppose each other for justice of peace.

Candidate for Commissioner in Precinct 4

I believe in a Democratic form of Government and I believe I am qualified to help work out any internal complications that may arise in the commissioners courts.

I will cooperate with the county commissioners and the county judge at all times for the welfare of all the people all the time.

I have had considerable road construction experience. I recognize the importance of other vital matters pertaining to finance. I am running on my own merits and not on the other fellows' demerits.

I believe in justice, equality and special privilege to none. I believe in using home labor when available before employing outsiders.

I will serve you to the best of my ability in a business like manner. Your vote and influence will be appreciated on July 26, 1936.

Thank You, W. L. POE.

TO THE VOTERS OF HOWARD COUNTY

I have made a strenuous effort to see each and every one of you and solicit your support in my campaign for County Judge. I realize that I have missed some of you, and by this means I am soliciting you for your support and influence. I pledge each and all of you that if elected, I will be fair and impartial in all my judicial actions and that I will cooperate to the fullest extent with the commissioners whom you may elect and with each and every officer to the end that everything may be done for the best interest of Howard County; I further pledge that I will strive to keep the tax rate as low as possible, commensurate with a progressive administration, keeping in mind the Federal program of the conservation of the soil, building of permanent lateral roads, and assistance to those who are in need.

MOST DISTRICT OFFICES TO BE FILLED WITHOUT CONTEST

Metcalfe, Nelson, Collings Unopposed; Mahon Expected To Win Handily

Many Ballots Thrown Out For Defects

Improper Marking Means A Lost Vote; Procedure Is Given

One fourth of the ballots cast in elections of the state have some defect in marking, according to a statement of several election officials. Many of the ballots are thrown out because of improper marking.

Here is the statement which tells of the wrong and right ways to mark a ballot:

"The surprisingly large number of persons who do not know how to mark a ballot, is, no doubt, partly due to the large number of persons who have, within the last few years, moved here from other states where a different system of marking the ballot is permitted.

"Some voters mark a ballot by simply placing a check mark while others place an X before the name of the candidates for whom they wish to vote, leaving the rest of the names on the ballot. Under the law a ballot marked in either of these ways can not be counted.

No Sample Ballots

"The law provides that a voter shall draw a line through the names of the persons he does not want to vote for or erase the name, leaving the name of the one he desires to vote for unmarked. In other words if there were six candidates in a race you would draw a straight line through five names and the name not marked out would be the person you intended to vote for. This ought to be clear. Yet, as stated, a great many of the people place a check mark or an X by one name, intending to vote for that person, but under the law that vote could not be counted.

"Neither is it lawful to bring a sample ballot to the polls and strike or check the official ballot from the sample ballot. Such a vote will not be counted.

"It is not permissible for an election judge to assist a voter, unless that voter can speak the English language and can advise the election judge in English the persons for whom he intends to vote.

"A common error made by many voters is for them to draw a line through the name of the candidate that he intends to vote for and to leave the remaining names on the ballot unmarked. If there are only two candidates for that office, then the vote is counted for the person whose name is not marked out—contrary to the wish of that voter, or, if there are more than one candidate the vote is not counted at all.

"It is not permissible nor proper for a voter to sign his name to the ballot."

Simoon Toribio, Filipino veteran high jumper who tied for second in the 1928 Olympic games and tied for first in the 1932 games, will be at Berlin with the Filipino team.

Sweden's interest in the Olympic games dates from 1900, when a Swedish runner placed third in the marathon. His name was Fast.

Appeals Court

In the 11th supreme judicial (Eastland) district, W. P. Leslie is without opposition in asking re-election as chief justice; and Clyde Grissom has no opponent for associate justice. Leslie is a veteran member of the court, and Grissom is asking his first elective term after being appointed to the court more than a year ago.

G. H. Nelson also has the ticket to himself for the 20th state senatorial post. Nelson, Taboka man, was elected to the office last September, in a special election to fill a vacancy caused by the death of Arthur P. Duggan. He was first in a field of five candidates, holding a lead of more than 2,000 over his nearest opponent. Nelson thus is asking for his first full term.

Candidates in the district besides Howard are Bailey, Lamb, Hale, Floyd, Motley, Cottle, Cochran, Hockley, Lubbock, Crosby, Dickens, King, Yoakum, Terry, Lynn, Garza, Kent, Stonewall, Gaines, Dawson, Borden, Andrews and Martin.

Nelson's district roughly covers the same territory as Mahon's congressional district, which takes in the counties of Howard, Bailey, Lamb, Hale, Cochran, Hockley, Floyd, Lubbock, Crosby, Dickens, King, Yoakum, Terry, Lynn, Garza, Kent, Stonewall, Haskell, Gaines, Dawson, Borden, Scurry, Mitchell, Andrews and Martin.

Mahon Seen An Easy Winner

Although Mahon has an opponent, most observers agree that he will have little difficulty in winning by a handsome vote. Mahon proved himself an able campaigner in 1934, taking a wide lead in the first primary and coming through in the run-off by a majority of almost two to one over Clark M. Mullican of Lubbock, his opponent in the second primary.

Mahon, asking his second term in congress, has done but little formal campaign speech-making, but has toured all counties of the district, contacting voters. His opponent, Speck of Lubbock, has made few appearances in this end of the district. His platform planks include advocacy of the Townsend $200-per-month pension plan.

The other district office affecting Howard county is that of district attorney of the 70th judicial district, and Cecil Collings of Big Spring, asking a second term, has no opponent. Collings was top man in the first primary of 1934, then for first in the 1932 games, will be at Berlin with the Filipino team.

Sweden's interest in the Olympic games dates from 1900, when a Swedish runner placed third in the marathon. His name was Fast.

Election Extra To Be Issued Saturday Night, With Report On All Democratic Contests

Under rules of the Election Bureau, with which this paper must comply in order to retain its membership, the Herald is not permitted to give out returns on the state races other than through its news columns. Results on county races will be put on a bulletin board at the courthouse.

Since the entire facilities of The Herald office will be tied up in the gathering of local and district returns, and since the entire personnel will be occupied throughout the night in furnishing Herald readers the most prompt and complete election reports possible, the public is asked not to call the newspaper office for returns. The paper is not permitted to give out reports on state races.

Cooperation of the public in not making requests for such information, either by telephone or in person, is respectfully asked. To give full coverage to its readers, The Herald must mobilize its full resources Saturday night for gathering and publishing returns—a tremendous task and one involving heavy expense, but one which The Herald is glad to attempt in order to serve its readers.

The regular Sunday morning edition of The Herald will carry complete returns on all county boxes, the latest available count on district races, and a full report on state contests. The edition will not go to press until after the last returns are sent over the Texas Election Bureau wire, assuring Herald readers the latest report on major races.

Dick Hatch, Kermit, visited with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Hatch, here Sunday.

TO THE VOTERS OF HOWARD COUNTY

I believe in a Democratic form of Government and I believe I am qualified to help work out any internal complications that may arise in the commissioners courts.

I will cooperate with the county commissioners and the county judge at all times for the welfare of all the people all the time.

I have had considerable road construction experience. I recognize the importance of other vital matters pertaining to finance. I am running on my own merits and not on the other fellows' demerits.

I believe in justice, equality and special privilege to none. I believe in using home labor when available before employing outsiders.

I will serve you to the best of my ability in a business like manner. Your vote and influence will be appreciated on July 26, 1936.

Thank You, W. L. POE.

Bulletin Board At Courthouse To Show Returns

County returns on all political races on the first democratic primary will be posted Saturday evening on a huge bulletin board on the east side of the courthouse. Returns by precincts will be posted by W. L. McCullister as soon as they are received by the clerk's office. McCullister has been in charge of the board for several seasons. As in years past, a large crowd is expected to congregate around the bulletin board to see how their candidates ran.

Local Liquor Stores, Banks To Be Closed

State Law Requires Package Stores To Shut Doors Saturday

Saturday, election day, will be a business day as usual for most lines of trade; and an even busier one for some firms directly connected with the handling and reporting of election returns—but it's a holiday for at least two groups. Texas banks observe the democratic primary vote days as holidays, and Big Spring's two banks, the First National and the State National, will be closed. All of the county's liquor stores will be closed Saturday. That closing is in compliance with terms of the state's new liquor statute, which provides that package stores must be closed on election days. The attorney-general's office has ruled that package stores must close for the democratic primaries. Since the liquor stores regularly are closed on Sundays, they will not be open for business from 12 o'clock Friday night until Monday at 7 a. m. Sale of beer also is prohibited on election days. It was announced from the district offices of the Texas liquor control board; and all establishments handling the beverages were advised that sales are not legal until 5 p. m. Saturday. The law concerning package stores reads: "No sale or delivery of liquor shall be made on or from the premises of the holder of any permit (except upon the prescription of a duly licensed physician) (a) Between 12 o'clock p. m. and 1 o'clock a. m. on any day of election; (b) On which an election is being held, either state or national in the district in which the precinct is located."

Texans Who Have Become 21 Since Feb. 1 May Vote

AUSTIN, July 21. (UP)—Atty-Gen. William McCraw ruled yesterday that persons who have become 21 since February 1 may vote in the primary Saturday regardless of whether they were able to obtain exemption certificates before February 1. For a time it appeared that many persons just past 21 would not be permitted to vote because they were unable to procure exemption certificates before February 1. Tax collectors refused them certificates under an old interpretation of the statutes to the effect that a person

Allred Hits At Promises Of Opponents

Are Trying To Confuse Aged With 'Magic Money' Talk, He Says

SAN ANTONIO, July 21.—Political "bubble blowers" are trying to confuse aged needy Texans with promises of magic money, Governor James V. Allred charged here last night. "It would be a laughable spectacle to see my opponents running around shouting promises of magic money if it weren't for the fact they are trying to make political capital out of the sufferings of their fellow men," the governor said. "You have heard from my opponents how we are about to witness a show of economic hokus pokus. They say everyone past 60 or 65 years of age—they change the age figure too often for me to keep up with them—will get $15 a month from the federal government and $15 a month from the state government. "Now just think a minute and you'll see the resemblance between their promises and the carnival man's ballyhoo. "In the first place, the federal law requires that assistance payments be restricted to needy persons. There is no way in which every man and woman, rich or poor alike, could get $15 from the federal government. "In the second place, it would cost the taxpayers of Texas around $60,000,000 a year to pay $15 a month pensions to all the elder citizens of the state. There would be no chance of getting federal money under such a system. "I believe the folks who need old age assistance prefer the present average of $10 from the state and $10 from the federal government to $15 worth of candidates' promises which it would be little short of a miracle for anyone ever to cash. "Let's look further at these promises of political magic. The promoters say they love the poor old man and poor old woman and want them to have old age pensions. "All right. They propose to go about proving their love by paying $15 a month to everybody. On the one hand, here is a bedridden old man who needs money for medicine and groceries. He's the kind of fellow who gets the greatest benefit from our old age assistance law. But these opponents of mine want to pay $15 a month also to the rich man down the street, the fellow who can afford to retire and was not entitled to vote unless he was 21 before the first day of February before the election. In cities of 10,000 or more, the attorney-general held, the voter who has become of age since February 1 may obtain his exemption certificate any time before he offers to vote. In cities of less than 10,000 he may vote without an exemption certificate and is required only to make an affidavit of his age if his right to vote is challenged. McCraw ruled.

get all the nice things of life the rest of his days. "Under their plans, John D. Rockefeller, if he lived in Texas and their proposals—by some miracle—were effected, would get $15 a month right along with the most needy Texan. "And the bedridden old fellow who can't even buy medicine would have to pay part of his pension back to the state, in taxes on the necessities of life, to provide a pension for Mr. Rockefeller."

Requirements For Casting Ballot Given

Qualifications Of Voters As Listed By Law Cited By Chairman

People who expect to vote in the democratic primary Saturday are reminded by Grover B. Cunningham, county democratic executive committee chairman, that there are certain qualifications and requirements that must be met before they are eligible to cast ballots.

Five classes of people are barred from voting under any circumstances, by state election law. These are: persons under twenty-one years of age; idiots and lunatics; all persons convicted of any felony, unless they have been restored to full citizenship, and all soldiers, marines and seamen employed in the service of the army or navy of the United States.

All persons subject to none of the foregoing disqualifications are qualified electors and are eligible to vote if they have paid their poll taxes, are citizens of the United States, have resided in Texas one year preceding the date of election, and have resided in the county or district in which they wish to vote for at least six months prior to the election.

Voters eligible for exemption from payment of poll taxes are of three classes: those becoming twenty-one years of age after the first day of January of the year which poll tax was levied (for example, a person becoming 21 after January 1, 1935, is eligible to vote in this month's primary); every person over sixty years of age; and people who are blind, deaf or dumb, or permanently disabled. Voters over sixty years of age must present an exemption certificate which was issued on or before January 31, 1935, to be eligible to vote, according to a ruling by the attorney general.

Gains Cited For Industries Under State Supervision

HOUSTON, July 21. (Sp.)—Business upturn in the six great Texas industries regulated by the Texas railroad commission were cited last night by Chairman Ernest O. Thompson in a speech asking re-election for a second term as railroad commissioner.

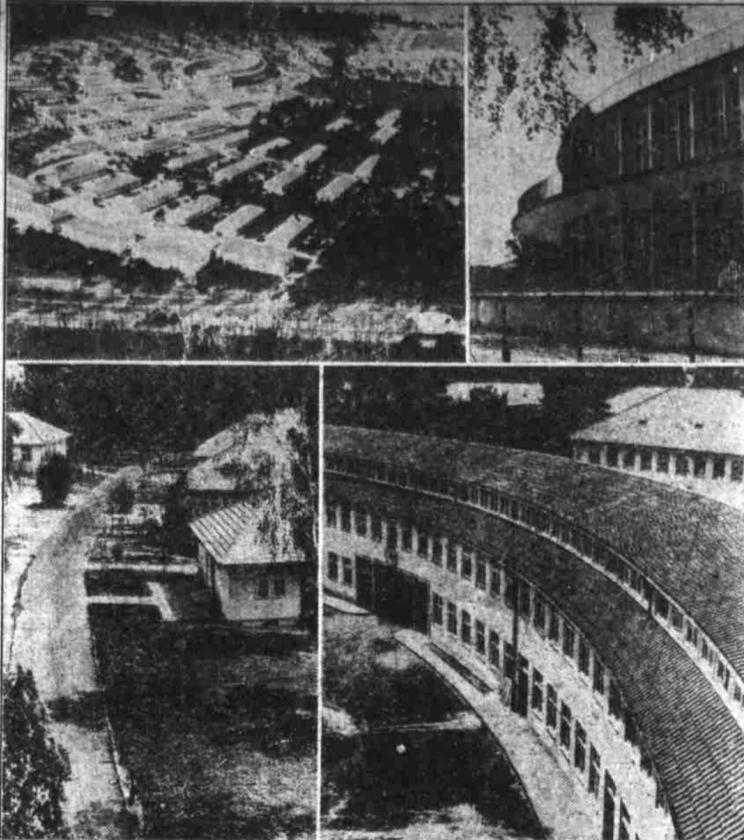

During his administration as chairman, the commissioner said, substantial gains have been made in the positions of the oil producing, gas producing, railroads, buses, trucks and gas utility industries.

Regulation by the commission of the six industries affects, directly or indirectly, said Thompson, the pocketbooks of almost every citizen in the state.

Citing as successes of administering regulatory laws, he declared: "Overproduction and waste of oil has been effectively stopped and the oil industry brought to the most stable basis in years, while at the same time Texas gasoline consumers enjoy the lowest prices in the world."

"Gas wastage has been stopped, farmers saved millions of dollars yearly by reduction in freight rates on cotton, grain, livestock and feed; and the motor carrier laws so well enforced that fatalities resulting from accidents in which regulated trucks and buses figured last year were reduced to half a dozen persons."

60,000 Due To Hear Landon Acceptance

Kansas Statehouse Lawn To Be Scene Of Ceremonies Wednesday

TOPEKA, Kas., July 21 (UP)—The night of July 23, in this Kansas capital town of 65,000 persons, a man not quite 49 years old, with iron-gray hair and pleasant smile will be informed officially that he is the republican party's candidate for president.

The ceremony will begin at 8 o'clock on the south lawn of the state house, which is situated in the center of the town. On an improvised rostrum built above the state house steps will sit Gov. Alfred Mossman Landon, and a hundred or so of the country's leading republican leaders.

Former President Herbert Hoover is expected to be there. Men high in their party will watch the Sunflower state executive receive his formal notification.

On the green-covered state house lawn will be seated thousands of people. A loud speaking system will carry the ceremonies several blocks so those who are unable to get close enough to see will be able to hear the notification ceremony.

State House 65 Years Old
The Kansas state house is 65 years old, one of the oldest state capitols in the middle west. It is of yellowed sandstone. Many additions have been built to the original structure. The building and grounds occupy six normal city blocks, two north and south and three east and west.

Oak, spruce and poplar trees spread over the green-carpeted duct of establishments will be made. A reduction in the number of state liquor stores also was forecast.

Joseph F. Merritt, chief liquor inspector for the Detroit district, announced last week that there are still 2,000 blind pigs in Detroit and that the city is being flooded with poisonous moonshine since repeal.

(Submitted by the local WCTU.)

The study paths almost give the impression of a college campus. Flower beds are planted on the south lawn on each side of a large walk used for an automobile drive.

To the average eastern visitor, Topeka is just another Kansas town. The size of the town usually surprises many because it has one main street, Kansas avenue, and a town with one main street usually is set down as small. The town contains several buildings of seven stories. The Santa Fe railroad building is eight stories high and occupies an entire city block. The new, modernistic, air-cooled federal reserve bank building is 30 stories.

In addition to being a railroad center for eastern Kansas, Topeka has several large insurance companies located here. There are two large packing firms, several large milling companies and numerous livestock dealers.

There are two daily newspapers, one published by Sen. Arthur Capper, the other by Henry J. Allen, former governor and former senator. Located in Topeka is Washburn college, one of the largest sectarian schools in Kansas, and the state's college for negroes, which draws several hundred colored students annually.

An influx of visitors, greater than the population of the town, is expected July 23. Estimates vary as to the possible number. There were from 25,000 to 35,000 in Topeka to hear Charles Curtis informed of his nomination, and civic officials believe from 60,000 to 75,000 will arrive for the ceremony.

They will arrive by train, plane and motor car. One railroad is running several special trains between Topeka and Kansas City, Mo., that day. The two towns are 70 miles apart. Topeka will be unable to accommodate all visitors that night. Many are making arrangements to go to Kansas City, Mo.

Distinguished guests will be welcomed by a committee headed by Senator Capper. Serving with him will be Judge George T. McDermott of the state supreme court, Judge Richard J. Hopkins of the United States district court, Thomas Amory Lee, Henry J. Allen and Clyde Miller.

Many noted visitors are expected to be present. In addition to the notification committee of 53 members, a representative from each state and territory, named by the republican national convention, will be present.

Approximately 100 Indians from five reservations will assemble to hear Landon notified and several outstanding chiefs from Indian tribes over the country also will come here.

Alf Watson, Australian Olympic hurdler, 29, has been competing for 14 years.

Expect 60,000 Visitors
An influx of visitors, greater than the population of the town, is expected July 23. Estimates vary as to the possible number. There were from 25,000 to 35,000 in Topeka to hear Charles Curtis informed of his nomination, and civic officials believe from 60,000 to 75,000 will arrive for the ceremony.

Democrat Precinct Conventions Are Slated Saturday

Democratic precinct conventions will be held on election day, July 25, at the polling places in the respective voting boxes for the purpose of electing delegates to the Howard county democratic convention, according to Grover B. Cunningham, chairman of the Howard county democratic executive committee. The precinct chairman in charge of elections will preside over community meetings.

No specified hour has been set for the precinct conventions, but each precinct will set its own time for the meeting to suit its own convenience, and the precinct chairman in each community will announce the exact hour of the convention in due time.

Delegates selected from the respective precincts will assemble in Big Spring for the county convention to be held Saturday, August 1, in the county courthouse, to elect delegates to the state democratic convention. The state democratic meeting will be held September 8 after the second primary, but the place for the convention has not yet been selected.

M'Donald Opposes Opening Bay To Oil Exploration

LONGVIEW, July 21.—The stability of the oil industry, which says more taxes than any other in Texas, is threatened by the action of the state land office in throwing open the submerged lands of Galveston bay to development at this time, said William H. McDonald of Eastland, candidate for state land commissioner, here today.

"The wells of the East Texas field, capable of spouting hundreds and thousands of barrels a day, are throttled down to an allowable of 22 barrels in order to prevent a flood of over production and the other fields of the state are held down for the same reason—yet the land office takes a step that may mean the discovery of another huge field, for men who are well informed concede the likelihood of great stores of oil in Galveston bay."

"But to bring this oil to the surface now can be expected to produce a sharp rise in the price of crude oil, slow down or even stop drilling in other fields, throw many men out of work and hamstring business in general. Such an injury to the oil industry, with its 140,000 workers, would be felt by every taxpayer in the state."

LIQUOR CANNOT STAND THE LIGHT OF TRUTH

Liquor law enforcement in Michigan will be taken from the liquor control commission and given to the state police, to take the problem "out of politics," Gov. Frank D. Fitzgerald announced last week in Lansing.

This is similar to action taken in Texas recently when the "Texas rangers" launched a statewide cleanup campaign.

The governor said his action was aimed not only at political control but sought also to remedy conditions so bad that they might bring a return of prohibition, and to cut down increasing expenditures by the commission and other state branches.

"Unless there is a radical departure from the present system, prohibition will return. Conditions in some of the modern wayside holes-in-the-wall where liquor and beer are sold waste make old-time saloonkeepers turn over in their graves. These dives are worse than the old-fashioned saloon. The manner in which boys and girls of 'teen age have been permitted to drink and carouse in evil surroundings is a disgrace," the governor said.

"Scores Political Setup"

The state police are to be given charge of enforcement because they are not in politics. Present inspectors get their jobs through political pull. As soon as they go to work some of them think they become big politicians. Under such conditions they cannot enforce the law and they spend more time making friends and votes for themselves or their political sponsors than in enforcing."

It was believed that a change in the hours in which intoxicants may be sold is in the offing, and that more rigid regulations for the con-

Life is more precious than pennies

Shocked by the death of so many people—bewildered by the scores stricken—America awoke two years ago to the realization that a new menace threatened the health of our Nation.

Here, in a land where modern science has wrought so many wonders—where citizens boasted of a higher standard of living comfort than any other nation—men, women and children were suffering intense agony and dying of amebic dysentery caused by faulty plumbing.

Doctors, nurses and hospital attendants worked ceaselessly to relieve the suffering, to save lives and to prevent the spread of this insidious malady. But their work means little today and those precious lives were lost in vain, if we neglect our solemn duty to remove forever the real cause of such a tragedy.

Health Authorities agree that the immediate cause of this epidemic and the contributing cause of much sickness can be traced to faulty, improperly installed plumbing. They are waging a vigorous campaign to warn the public of the danger that may result from trusting the important matter of plumbing installations and repairs to the uncertain hands of a "handyman."

Millions of dollars are spent by municipalities to insure fresh, pure, filtered water delivered in mains right in front of your home. What happens to this pure water inside your home depends upon your plumbing. Improperly installed fixtures, faulty piping and cross-connections can contaminate or pollute water which may cause sickness and even death. And life is more precious than the pennies you might save using untrained men.

Health Authorities will tell you that it is unwise to trust the plumbing in your home to incompetent hands. Guard against danger by insisting that your plumbing must be inspected, installed or repaired only by the men best qualified by training and experience to protect your health—the Master Plumbers. Their work is so important that states and cities have laws not only regulating the installation of plumbing, but setting a standard for the Plumber himself.

In many states, Master Plumbers are examined as to their qualifications, licensed and registered. Most of the sanitary laws protecting public health and insuring the highest standard of professional skill have been passed through the insistence of the Master Plumbers themselves.

More than ever, "the Plumber protects the health of the Nation."

The Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DEWE FEARSON and ROBERT R. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—There is an interesting inside story behind the sudden yarn about spies in the navy. That is why the state department and even the naval higher-ups are not going to do much about it.

Of course, there are one or two in the navy who really believe in the spy-honeycomb. Chief among them is Admiral Joseph M. Reeves, bearded ex-commander of the fleet.

About one year ago Reeves' son was killed in an air crash, and there was muttering that the crash was caused by sabotage.

Ever since then Reeves has seen spies everywhere. He even issued an order prohibiting any officer or enlisted man on any ship from taking a camera aboard.

It is a significant fact that when Reeves returned to the East Coast (he is now with the navy general board in Washington) the spy scare cropped out here.

But that isn't the whole story. In the first place, the navy had known about former Lieutenant Commander John S. Farnsworth for some time, but never had worried about him.

The most confidential thing Farnsworth is alleged to have sold was an out of date manual on ship maneuvering. And it is significant that this took place in May, one year ago, and the navy knew about it at the time.

Farnsworth also had tried to hire himself out as naval observer to various newspapers, and this was what proved his undoing.

A few weeks ago, a couple of newspapermen, working in cooperation with spy-minded navyites and G-Boys J. Edgar Hoover, decided to pump up the story. They had Farnsworth shadowed, but apparently got nothing damaging.

When the story broke, spy-minded Capt. W. D. Fuleston, chief of naval intelligence, refused to give out information to other newspapers until 5:30 a. m., explaining that the navy had to give first break to "the exclusive author."

White House pests for some reason have escaped the locusts this year, although maddening droves have settled over the suburbs of Washington.

Other pests also, including Japanese beetles, red spiders, and mealy bugs, usually exasperatingly present around the White House, have been absent.

Tactful Hostess: Mrs. Alf Landon, wife of the republican presidential candidate, may be shy and self-effacing when it comes to politics, but to members of the Kansas legislature she is tops as a tactful hostess.

The governor had a luncheon conference for some of the boys, and being rugged trenchermen, they kidded Landon about the scantiness of his noon-day meal.

"What would you like to have?" he asked. T-bone steak was the unanimous verdict. And a few days later they were asked around to the executive mansion again.

The steaks were plentiful, large, and luscious. Legislators pitched in with gusto. But as all steak lovers know, the best part of a T-bone is right down next to the bone, and the best way to get at it is to pick up the bone.

Noticing their hesitancy and the longing eyes they cast at their bones, she quietly picked up her bone and took a bite. With an almost audible whoop the guests followed suit, afterwards paid tribute to Mrs. Landon's tact.

John L. Lewis and Bill Green, heads of the two great rival labor factions, use widely different methods of dealing with the press.

The other day, Lewis remarked to newsmen that the United Mine Workers might suspend Green. He has been a member of the Mine Workers all his life, and on that basis is in the A. F. of L.

Later Bill Green held his press conference, was asked what union he planned to join if the miners put him out.

beach, they will toss you in the hoosegow if you go in swimming without the top of your bathing suit. . . . But in City Hall Park, which is smack in the middle of town, anyone wearing more than a pair of trunks is considered over dressed.

TEXAS PIONEER SEES LONGHORN HERD AND WEEPS

DALLAS, July 21. (UP)—Col. Jack M. Potter, Texas-born trail blazer, wept when he saw a herd of Texas "longhorn" cattle on display at the Texas Centennial exposition.

Potter blazed the Potter and Bacon trail from Albany, Tex., to Cheyenne, Wyo. 54 years ago. He is a member of the New Mexico commission which will stage the 40th anniversary of that state's history in 1940.

School System Scored: WINNIPEG (UP)—Dr. Fred Engelhardt of the University of Minnesota, addressing the Manitoba school teachers association, indirectly admits the present educational tendency in the United States is just that quite a few students want. He said the tendency is to throw everything old overboard without finding anything new to replace it.

THE GRIND OF THE CAMPAIGN

Two of the candidates for governor are campaigning on a one speech per day schedule, another speaks twice daily, another speaks three times, and the fifth is setting the torrid pace with five speeches a day, two in the morning, two in the afternoon and one at night.

Texas has over 500 incorporated cities and towns and a five-speeches-a-day campaigner would have to maintain that pace for about four months in order to reach all of them. If he limited himself to one speech in each county, two busy months of travel would be necessary for him to cover the state.

In Missouri a move is under way to have the primary election in the fall, when cooler weather would make the campaign less tiring for candidates and voters alike. There is no good reason why Texas should hold its primary in July, and there are several excellent reasons for a change.

One of the reasons for the July date, when the primary election law was passed, was that the farmer was presumed to have more leisure in the early part of the summer and thus would not have to let his work interfere with his politics.

NEW YORK—Ray Henderson reported just before he sailed for London the other night that a Texas girl had discovered an error in George Bernard Shaw's "Saint Joan." For more than 12 years the printed text had placed the scene before the raising of the siege of Orleans as May 29, 1429.

She cited the error after attending a performance of the play starring Katherine Cornell. (Note: As Shaw's contracts insist that his stage producers follow to the last comma the published version of his plays, Miss Cornell faithfully copied the date indicated.)

"Yes," Shaw replied, "of course it should be April. The English cleared out on May 8th. Many thanks for pointing out the blunder; but why did you wait 12 years? I am instructing the printers to correct."

Going from wags to witches (honest, that one just slipped out) there is the case of that old crone who lives in a hut not far from Brooklyn bridge—on the Brooklyn side. Her daughter is a modishly dressed, femme, fairly comely, who rushes up to nice elderly men with outstretched hands and a big cheery smile.

Sometimes the nice elderly gentlemen refuse the bait, but that's all right with her. She merely apologizes for having taken an identity and ambles around a convenient corner.

Often it does work—you know, that big cheery smile—and, while the victim can't recall the young woman, he is afraid that if he refuses he will offend or unduly embarrass someone he knows.

The answer is that the lass isn't the daughter of the old crone at all. She is one of half a dozen young belles employed to bring home the bank notes. And they play fair with her, turning in a percentage of every "loan" acquired from the nice elderly gentlemen.

Corey Ford is one of the few fiction writers who really understands the scientific theory of fly and bait casting. . . . He would rather whip a mountain stream for steel-head trout than anything you can name. . . . If an award were to be made for New York's best dressed artist, Russell Patterson would win it. . . . MURDER TONIGHT

BY LAURENCE W. MEYNELL

Chapter Nine
LUMSDALE'S VERSION

Lumsdale was a northerner, man, truculent by nature, subservient to none; he stood his ground and from his green eyes gave back cold, scrutinizing glance for glance, as good as his got.

"What's your name?" Hylton asked.

"Andrew Lumsdale."

"What do you know about this?"

"Nothing."

Hylton smiled sweetly. "Come, Mr. Lumsdale," he said, "you must be able to help us a bit. What was your job here?"

"Servant to the old man. Did everything as you may say."

"How long have you been here?"

"Six years."

"Mr. Burdett had no other servants all that time?"

"None."

"Did you get on with him well?"

"If he gave me the rough side of his tongue he got as good back, and that's how it was."

"Quite an amiable household apparently?"

"You can call it that if you've a mind. I've been in better places, and worse."

"What were you before you came here?"

"Stud groom to Lord Menningham for twelve years."

"Why did you leave there?"

"Because I wanted to. I'm a free man."

"You speak your mind pretty bluntly, Mr. Lumsdale, don't you?"

"Always have done."

"Perhaps you'll be equally outspoken about what happened on Monday?"

"Why not?"

"Were you here all day?"

"No, Monday's my half day off. Old Burdett came back about twelve, or a bit after, and said he wouldn't want any lunch."

"Was that unusual?"

"No. Three days in the week he wouldn't have anything 'eat from breakfast till night, for fear of spending money."

"Um. Go on."

"I was doing a bit of chopping outside, when I'd finished that I had my bit of food in the kitchen about one. Two o'clock I looked in there to ask if he wanted anything."

"What was Mr. Burdett doing then?"

"He set in that chair, same as he usually did, looking at some papers. He said he didn't want anything, so I got off."

"Did you notice anything unusual about him in any way—did he look ill or nervous or anything?"

"When he first came in he was a bit puffed, but that was because he had been hurrying back to see if his money was all right."

"What did you do when you left?"

"Caught the 2:40 bus into Morechester, the conductor'll tell you the same, I know him to nod to."

"I'm quite content with what you tell me, Mr. Lumsdale, for the moment," Hylton said gently.

"Ay, for the moment; but I thought you might like to know whom to go to when you get ferretting about after. The 2:40 bus to Morechester I caught, always do on a Monday."

"And at Morechester?"

"Went to the pictures. I mostly do that on a Monday too. The big place in the Square."

"A good program?"

"Ah've seen worse."

"And after the pictures—what time were they over?"

"I came out about half past five and then I went straight to the Crown."

"And how long did you stay at the Crown?"

"I played billiards there for best part of two hours. Jimmy Pratt, 'marker will tell you the same. Then I had a bit of bread and cheese and some beer and started to walk home."

"Leaving there, when?"

"Between half past seven and a quarter 'till I daresay, though I didn't notice particular."

"And then?"

"Then I walked all the way back here like I usually do. Just after nine it was when I got back."

"And you let yourself in?"

"What with? Told man never let anyone have a key but himself. And there was always only one way to come in, and that was the front, everything else was kept as tight shut as the Bank of England. And the front door was always on a chain. I couldn't let myself in any more than you could. I rang once or twice, and I thought it was funny that Burdett did any good because old Burdett had ears like a cat. Then I banged on the door a bit and nothing happened. Ten minutes I must have been ringing and banging, and I went round to the back; all shutters up and made fast and locked it was, just like it should be. I put my fist through the coal house window and undid the catch and I was inside in a couple of minutes."

Inspector Kingsley Hylton was watching his man keenly. "Go on," he said quietly.

"I thought I better come and see if the old boy was all right, so I came here—this was the only room he ever used bar his bedroom—and there he was lying over the table with his head bashed in and this club thing on the floor."

"Dead?"

"Dead as a door nail."

"Was there much blood about?"

"Well, you can see most of it now, these stains dried up here."

"Was it dry then?"

"No. Well, not as dry as it is now anyway. Thick like."

"What did you do then?"

"I was a bit put about at first. Then I saw the safe open—"

"Where's that?"

"I'll show you that in a minute if you like, sir," Sergeant White put in.

"Righto. Carry on, Lumsdale."

"I saw the safe open, and I thought by gum the old devil's copped it at last; someone's got the money. I went over to the wall there and looked in the safe—it's locked again now, the police are afraid I'll steal it. I reckon—just out of curiosity. There seemed to be a tidy bit of money still in it. I let that be just as it was and I went and fetched Sergeant White here."

"Why didn't you telephone to him?"

Lumsdale actually laughed, a thin, sarcastic sound. "What with? You didn't catch old Burdett paying to have telephones put in Enderton Court."

"What time did you get to Sergeant White's?"

"Round about half past nine, or a quarter to ten I suppose."

"Um. Do you know of anybody who had any grudge against Mr. Burdett, Lumsdale?"

"Scores on 'em. They all hated him in the village because he never spent anything."

"But you don't know of any quarrel with anyone actually?"

"I can't say as I do."

"What about this safe?"

"It's over here, Inspector," Sergeant White said, "let into the wall by the fireplace. Papered to look like the rest of the wall, see? It was open when I got here with Lumsdale."

"Um. Well, we can see inside that tomorrow, no doubt, if we want to. I'd like to look over the rest of the house."

"For an appreciable moment Lumsdale was silent then he answered, "What, now, Mister?"

"Yes. Why not?"

Lumsdale shrugged his shoulders. "Well, I don't mind, if you don't," he said.

"Why should I mind?"

Lumsdale looked doggedly away. "Some folks might," he said.

Kingsley Hylton's tiger-like curiosity, which was always peering up and down the inadequate cage of his mind, was instantly aroused.

"You interest me immensely, Lumsdale," he said. "You don't mean to tell me that you are afraid of ghosts?"

Andrew Lumsdale turned and faced him squarely.

"I'll tell you this much, Mister," he answered quietly, "and you can get all the rest of it if you've a mind to, but there's rooms in this house I wouldn't sleep in, not if you doubled my money."

A queer alliance fell on the three men for a moment and a puff of wind from the dark house playfully touched a corner of the white sheet that covered the thing on the table.

Kingsley Hylton was intrigued. "Come on," he said, "fetch one of those lamps, Sergeant, and we'll all have a look round."

Politicians Look Around, See Victory

They All Persist in Tallying Chickens Even Before Eggs Laid

By BYRON PRICE
(Chief of AP Bureau, Washington)

Long before the nation-wide campaign gets well under way, the prognosticators are busy informing the public who will win. It is possible to read daily that Chairman Wholis has announced the glorious and overwhelming triumph of his candidate, or that Senator Whatist has conducted a survey and finds his state safe for the ticket beyond the peradventure of a doubt. Some political managers even are hauling out the adding machines, and counting with great exactitude the chickens from eggs not yet laid.

The reasons for this strange performance are something of a mystery. Perhaps the best explanation is that the practice of long-range political forecasting persists because no one has stopped to consider under present-day conditions. In by-gone times, there probably was a psychological advantage in claiming everything in sight. On many occasions, too, it probably was possible to get a rather definite line on the result, well in advance.

It is a disputed point how far either of these possibilities applies in these days of rapidly changing public opinion and widespread independent voting.

Damage Of Over-Confidence

The theory of the extravagant political claim is, of course, that it helps the morale of party workers, throws fear into the ranks of the enemy and encourages doubters to leap for the bandwagon. But does it?

If party workers took the premarture claims of their leaders seriously at all, wouldn't the result be over-confidence, leading to a slackening of effort?

Conversely, it may be disputed whether such claims damage the political opposition. Certainly there have been cases where the reverse was true—where too much arrogance on one side has angered and stimulated the other side, and has aroused a more desperate resistance.

So far as the bandwagon is concerned, the strength of its pull in national elections nowadays is open to serious question. Each reader can calculate for himself how many voters there are among his personal acquaintances who will be impelled on election day entirely by a desire to be on the winning side.

Such a desire may be a strong factor in some situations, but it is difficult to visualize it, of practical terms, as turning the tide for or against any national ticket.

Conditions Prevent Forecast

In the campaign of 1936 all sorts of cross-currents are at work. It would be a miracle if, four months before the election, anyone could assess accurately the relative strength of these many factors.

Involved in President Roosevelt's candidacy for reelection there are certain fixed quantities. He has a record, known to the country, and he must stand on that record. Still even about him there remains the cloak of a continuing speculation as to what new policies, if any, he will project into the campaign.

In large measure, Governor Landon still has to make the acquaintance of the American people. He is destined to be much better known, and to make a far more definite impression one way or the other, before election day.

The strength of the right-wing Democratic defection led by Al Smith and others still is to be measured. The independent movement headed by the Lemke-Coughlin coalition has not yet perfected its organization or projected its campaign plans.

And all of this, in the midst of changing currents of depression and recovery, and in a year when many politicians believe that independent voting may reach a new high.

Who knows? Who could possibly know?

"White Collar" Gold Miner

OHIO, Cal. (UP)—E. E. DeSnell, 78, claims to be the only "white collar" gold miner in the business. Aside from having lost an Alaska gold fortune that forced him to return to mining, DeSnell now refuses to divest himself of a white collar as he pans for gold in the Butte Creek canyon near here.

Columbia Man Heads Faculty For Guidance Conference At Tech

DR. BEN D. WOOD
LUBBOCK, July 21.—Dr. Ben D. Wood of Columbia university heads the faculty of the guidance conference, first of its kind in Texas, to be held at Texas Technological college July 27, 28 and 29. Dr. Wood is executive secretary of cooperative test service of the American Council of Education, and is the author of several books on guidance.

Verl A. Teeter, chief probation officer of the municipal juvenile court at Tulsa, Okla.; Dr. W. W. Kemmerer, Houston; Dr. Walter V. Kaulfers, Leland Stanford university; and L. A. Wood, state superintendent of education, will be included in the list of speakers.

The purpose of the conference, according to Dean J. M. Gordon, chairman, is to give aid to superintendents, teachers, school board members, civic club leaders, Parent-Teacher members, and serious minded citizens whose job it is to guide students during their school life as well as prepare them for worthwhile vocations later.

Because invitations have been extended to Parent-Teacher members, men's and women's civic clubs, and school board members, special sessions have been designated for them. On Monday afternoon, the opening session, Parent-Teacher members and club women will be special guests. Schoolboard members unable to attend the opening session are especially invited to attend the session Tuesday evening, which will probably be held in the lawn at the back of the administration building, when Dr. Wood and Mr. Teeter will both address the conference. Superintendent K. E. Oberholzer of Lubbock city schools will preside over this meeting.

Between 1,500 and 1,800 are expected to attend the conference.

Chesterfield Wins... for tobacco properly aged. You can't make a good cigarette out of new tobacco... it's something like putting new wine in old bottles. It might look all right, but it certainly wouldn't taste right. Ageing improves tobacco just like it does wine. Chesterfield tobaccos are aged for three years... it makes them mellow, mild and fragrant... it makes them win.
