COUNTY AGENTS INFORMATION ON NEW PROGRAMS

Since there is a large number on the waiting list wanting terracing and contour lines run the Assistant County Agent requests that all parties wanting lines run furnish the level man plenty of help in running lines. Two men are needed for each level man. On some farms two levels are used making four men helpers necessary. It is necessary that one man carry the target and one put up the dirt mounds on the terrace line if any speed is expected.

Please have these helpers ready when the level man arrives at the farm.

Due to the large demand for terraces and contour lines at the present it will be necessary that terracing demonstrations be held at various places over the county in order that more be instructed in the use of the farm level. The County owns 8 levels and with more farmers familiarizing themselves with their use a large volume of lines may be run. It is urgent that these demonstrations be attended in order that the terracing work may be speeded up.

Notice announcements of demonstrations dates in the paper.

Emil Knutson is putting up a terrace job in a big way in the Oslo community. More than seventy miles of terrace lines have been run for Mr. Knutson's farm by the Ass't county agent and his crew. These lines covered about 1,400 acres of cultivated land. Mr. Knutson states that this is just a starter for him and that more lines will be run as soon as the terracing crew can spare the time. Mr. Knutson had terraces thrown up on about 500 acres before the last rain and no water ran off of the field. The terraces are being built on each 8 inch vertical fall and 27 feet wide.

ALVINO RICHARDSON IN RACE FOR OFFICE SHERIFF-COLLECTOR

Alvino (Skeet) Richardson, for 6 years Sheriff of Hansford county, from 1923 to 1929 inclusive has authorized the Spearman Reporter to carry his announcement as a candidate for Sheriff, Tax Assessor and collector of Hansford county subject to the action of the Democratic primaries July 25.

Mr. Richardson says that he believes most of the citizens of this county are familiar with his record when he served them before. And only pledges to live up to the past record. He believes he can serve the citizens of Hansford County to good advantage if they see fit to place him in the office he seeks. He calls the attention of the voters to the fact that he lost the race for sheriff in 1928 only by a few votes, and has not asked for public office for more than 8 years. He wants this office now and is asking his friends and the voters of Hansford county to give him their support.

THE PEOPLE OF MY HOME TOWN

If we could reproduce the glorious scenes that have taken place in the past in the surrounding country where my home-town now stands, we would undoubtedly see some very interesting sights.

Wild beasts once roamed in large herds on these plains, free and unafraid of the molesting race of mankind; they ruled here the chains of civilization had not yet reached them. Their reign came to an end, however, when the Indians invaded the land, and became the ruler; the plains belonged to him. But the possessions of this great country, in which my home-town is situated, soon escaped the Indian's hands also; he was driven from the plains by the invading white man, by the bold, defiant white man, who soon dominated this—Unknown West.

The pioneer made his home in this wild, uncivilized country; he struggled and died to make a firm foundation for a growing

Group Of Five Hundred Attend Annual Services For The Senior Class At High School Sunday

The thirty-one Seniors who during their work in secondary education joined with nearly 500 other residents of Spearman in hearing Rev. Ellis Hill deliver a stirring and inspiring message at the annual baccalaureate services held at the high school auditorium Sunday, May 17. The invocation, scripture and benediction was spoken by Rev. W. A. Hitchcock.

Music was provided by mass singing of the congregation and special numbers by the girl's choral club of the high school under the direction of Mrs. A. F. Loftin. The musical selections included "Come Thou Almighty God" by congregation, "Sweet Is Thy Mercy" Choral club, "Abide With Me" congregation, "My Task, Doris Kirk."

In the baccalaureate sermon Rev. Hill emphasized the necessity for standards intelligently evaluated and chosen as basis for living in the present modern age. He gave much appreciated and helpful advice to the young folk who start their journeys in life, either for further education, or in individual tasks at home and abroad.

For the service the stage of the auditorium was decorated with baskets and bowls of flowers tastefully arranged.

MAX BOYER IN RACE FOR REPRESENTATIVE

Max W. Boyer, candidate for State Representative from the 124th District writes that he is waging an active campaign throughout the district. Mr. Boyer, who has served as County Attorney at Perryton for over five years is not a novice at meeting the voters. Although just thirty years of age, he has proven his ability in public office and now steps voluntarily aside from his present field to seek further service in legislative fields. It is thought by his many friends in his home county that he could hold his present public office as long as he desired without opposition.

However, County Attorney Boyer does not believe that any office belongs to the individual and that all public offices are trusts created by and for the people. Frank in all discussions and making a campaign on the issues alone, Boyer is fair to all opposition and never believes in enjoining anything into a campaign that does not bring there.

A dollar is something the average business man enjoys more in anticipation than in realization. It is the price of a day's work for some men and the price of a drink for others.

Article Written By Mrs. Lester Boykin For Program at Dalhart, Texas

It has just come to light that a battle of words sometimes called an argument except when women engaged in it, broke out suddenly at the annual district meeting of the Methodist women's missionary societies, held last Tuesday in Dalhart, when a naive paper by Mrs. Lester Boykin of Spearman, on the subject, 'Woman's Contribution to Civic Betterment', struck a magic keynote that is said to have fired the peaceful somnolent audience to wild cheers and discordant tumult, such as rarely can be heard.

And we are told that the districts presiding elder, C. W. Hines who was present, heartily concurred from the floor of the meeting with the sentiments expressed and urged that wide publicity be given to them by newspaper and by radio, if possible, for the edification of the general public.

Special significance, it is reported attaches to Mrs. Boykin's humorous effort as a timely reply to recent tirades from certain metropolitan pulpits, not particularly complimentary to the fair sex as voters and civic leaders.

An ancient Canterbury quotation provided the proper shock stimulus to stir her listeners to attention at the very start.

'Where is the man who has the power and skill To stem the torrent of a woman's will? For if she will, she will, you may depend on't.

And, if she won't, she won't; so there's an end on't.'

'Woman has been blamed for practically every evil from the time Eve discovered her taste for apples. History always finds 'a woman in the case' to excuse the mistakes of man!'

After hearty applause had subsided a little, further outbursts of the speaker's poignant wit greatly added to the mirth and hilarity of the moment.

Mrs. Boykin said: 'In return, woman has smiled, accepted the burdens laid on her by the men-folk, and blithely gone right ahead with her very detailed life and work. 'The hand that rocks the cradle rules the world' is as true today as it ever was, though in this modern age few of us mothers have time to rock the cradle; but modern training rules allow 'Mf. Baby' to bump himself about in his small bed and put himself to sleep.

'Among the burdens laid upon women's shoulders is the accusation that, having won suffrage and equal rights, we have missed our privileges in allowing the prohibition amendment to be repealed.

Let it be remembered that the prohibition amendment is the 18th and suffrage the 19th! Women by earnest effort through education, taught their children the evils of the liquor traffic and raised up a generation of men that passed the amendment. Many of you remember the parades and rallies with children in floats, singing 'Texas Going Dry' in local option fights. Everyone who is honest will admit that the 18th amendment was not enforced because many people did not want it so. If our government had exercised its power against the boot-legalizer as it has suppressed the kidnapper and gangster, the prohibition story would be very different.

The task before us now is to work as our mothers and grandmothers worked to raise our children into manhood and womanhood to fight the battles of Right.

Every woman in America should be compelled to read the story of Ma Barker as told in a recent issue of the American magazine.

Citizenship is not a subject for adults only. It has its roots and foundation back on the neighborhood playground, where back-yard justice swiftly is dealt out by judges that wear kitchen aprons.

As to the ballot it is woman's duty to exercise that right, for as surely as white is white every denizen of the so-called underworld scratches her ticket and we, who strive for the right must at least 'kill' those votes so that the fight may not be lopsided from the start.

And all of us believe in the inalienable rights, proclaimed in our famous Declaration of Independence . . . that every man has a right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. To be added is our desire to spread the gospel of Jesus Christ to all peoples.

The task would be far too great, if we rest upon our own powers but with the assurance that constant help and guidance of our heavenly Father is ours for the asking we shall press forward to the goal confidently.

'Got any bridges you say are uncrossable? Got any mountains you can't tunnel through? We specialize in the wholly impossible, Doing what nobody ever could do.

civilization. We are proud of those brave-hearted pioneers, who But those golden illusions soon fade into the long lane of memories, the abyss of time swallows the bright visions that were once everyday happenings in real life. Now they are only intangible. We hold them in our minds with the fervid recollections and splendor the past portrays to us. Our past have given to us by their immortal achievements, the splendid heritage that is our's today.

Morse, the name of my home town, is not a large town; it is very young, but the spirit, the kindness that belongs to the peoples of my home-town, has been developed in the hearts and minds of our ancestors long before the beginning of our great nation. The brotherly love and devotion that has so long been a determining factor in the lives of the hardy pioneer has been kindled and instilled in the hearts and minds of their devoted descendants my friends and neighbors; it is a privilege to be one of them!

The peoples of my home-town are like the plains that they live on—free, genial, true. Their characters are as noble as those of our illustrious ancestors who came across the seas from Europe to establish this great nation. We cherish the memory of our forefathers an try to emulate their examples.

There is a great deal of difference between a town and a home town. As much difference as there is between a house and a home. My home-town is very small, but size does not enter into the makings of a home-town. It is not the buildings nor the houses that crowd its landscapes, nor the number of railways nor the highways or the airports, it is not the large office buildings, stores, nor factories, not the skyscrapers that adorn its horizon, it is not the vast number of natural resources that are available—all of these elements go into the making of a big city, but they are not essential in the making of a home-town. It takes people to make a home-town; people with perseverance and determination with superlative characters and gracious attitudes, red-blooded men and women to make a town a home-town.

We are happy, the peoples of my home-town and we shall remain as such; we have our troubles surely, but no corner of this earth is a Utopia. All of us must have sorrows and troubles and disappointments; they are inevitable. But these sorrows and troubles do not daunt the progressive spirit nor the ambitions of the peoples of my home-town. They are efficient and ready for any crisis.

THE JOYS OF GOLFING

Watching Hayden Hensley, Bill Hutton and Lloyd Campbell finish the ninth hole made one think of the joys of golfing:

- 1. A perpetual grouch (on the golf course)
2. Continual week end battles with the wife for coming home late to Saturday and Sunday dinners.
3. Sand in your eyes, nose and throat.
4. The startling discovery that all your friends are crooked.
5. An acquaintance with a disgusting race of savages, known as Caddies who answer all questions with 'Out of bounds'.
6. Athlete's foot.
7. A foul vocabulary that excludes you from all forms of respective society.

the flowering of the planting of the past. Our fathers before us were of the same sterling quality of mankind that is embedded deep in the hearts and souls of the peoples of Morse. And the glorious rowk that our forefathers have so successfully and gallantly done shines out brightly as a challenge to keep our achievements on the same high level that they have kept theirs on. The peoples of my home town are grateful that we can call the builders of Morse our friends and our neighbors. How thankful we are that we can call our town a real home-town, and that we can share in the blessings that only a home-town can bestow.

International Sunday School Lesson

By DR. J. E. NUNN

Topic:—Building For Future.
Lesson:—Luke 20: 1-17.
Read the lesson in the audience of the temple as he said into his disciples:—

Greeks for the first time heard the Heavenly Voice, and afar saw the conquest of Satan through himself uplifted. Then for the last time the Lord of the Temple left the Temple of the Lord. As they went forth out of the sacred courts the disciples spoke to Jesus about the splendor of the Temple. But he calmly predicted its utter overthrow. When they reached the crest or shoulder of Mount Olivet the little company sat down there lay Jerusalem with its splendid Temple before them, flashing perhaps in the rays of the sun less from curiosity than from desire to enter into sympathy with his agitated feelings, the disciples wished to know more about the prophecy of destruction. So Jesus delivered to them the wonderful sermon on the Last Things, in which he first pictured the overthrow of the nation and then sketched the end of the age. With its last words the little company moved on in the twilight once more to the village of Bethany.

Hypocrisy Denounced

"Beware of the Scribes, who desire to walk in long robes and love salutations in the market-places, and chief seats in the synagogues, and chief places at feasts. The sanctimonious Scribes just now so vehemently attacking Christ, were no models and Jesus said so in everybody's hearing. They like to wear long robes that show conspicuously the blue fringe distinguishing them. When they go to the market places they are disappointed if they do not receive the most deferential salutations. When they go to the synagogues they expect to be seated directly in front of the reading desk. When they attend a feast they want to be placed in the middle of the reclining couch by the table. Instead of protecting widows left with competence and providing for those that dependent they actually rob them of their property and their rights. Their long prayers are mere and sheerest pretense. Their studied formality only deepens and intensifies these condemnation. The scribes were the professional teachers of the day, the trained expositors of the law. Most of them were Pharisees. They were of all men the most bitter enemies of Christ; they were jealous of his power; they were angered at his claims; and finally they had been goaded to desperation by their humiliating defeat at his hands. Upon these men Jesus pronounced the most stern condemnation. His words are recorded at length by Matthew.

Introduction

On the Temple at Jerusalem on the day of Crucifixion week occurred the last conflict between Jesus and the ecclesiastics, who un-against him and did their utmost to compass his destruction. Leaving the Temple For The Last Time spoke of it with pride Jesus predicted its utter overthrow so that not one stone should be left upon another in the sacred structure. Later in the day the disciples asked Jesus when the prediction would be fulfilled, and what signs would precede its fulfillment. Then he delivered his great discourse, The Last Things, on the destruction of Jerusalem and the end of the world. He began with a warning against false christ who would arise and prophesy the end. Then he calmed the terror they would feel upon hearing of wars and tumults thinking the end of the nation and of the world was at hand. Within forty years Jerusalem fell before Titus and the Temple was completely destroyed.
The rupture between Christ and nation was now consummated. The eight words of the pharisaic Pharisaic hypocrisy.

Self Control
But take heed to yourselves lest haply your hearts be overcharged with surfeiting and drunkenness and the cares of this life, and that day come on you suddenly as a snare. As Weymshut translates 'But take heed to yourselves lest your souls be weighted down with self indulgence and drunkenness or the anxieties of this life, and that they come upon you, suddenly like a falling trap; for it will come on all the dwellers on the face of the whole earth. Take care of your heart out of which are the issues of life. Do not overload and suffocate your moral nature by gratifying physical appetite. Think of the suddenness of the Lord's coming which will surprise many as if caught in a secreted snare.'
Keep yourself in personal and in perpetual readiness.

CLASS PROPHECY

I, Ruth Buchanan, inherited a large sum of money from my rich uncle in the spring of 1936. I immediately made plans to tour the United States, something I had always wanted to do.

I first drove to Oklahoma City and there I learned that the opera houses, radio station, newspapers, and theatres were all enthusiastic over the coming of the world's most famous comedian and imitator, who was Ralph Blodgett in person. I secured an interview with Ralph's manager, Joe E. Brown. He told me that Ralph had danced and went through the motions of the Rumba perfectly. In that city there was a Socialistic meeting in progress. Naturally I went to investigate and found the leader none other than Rose Files who had been the last of the admirer woman of the last Emperor of Russia to unite her name with Japan.

Next day I drove to Tulsa where I encountered Leota Harbort and her to converse with her before I left, she fined me $100 for speeding—just what I needed. At the chief of police I learned that Leota was ordered an A-1 steno.

As I approached the village of Pine Ridge I was attracted to a man running through the street being pursued by his wife who was carrying a rolling pin in her hand. I couldn't imagine why she was pursuing the woman to be Helen Jenkins. I knew at once that Oliver Leverton, and I mistook her. It seemed that they were still chasing Oliver.

As I heard the voice of "pop-corn" people I discovered the occasion was Clyde Maize, the man who was Maybelle's assistant. She said that she worked more than 100 hours a week.

As I drifted westward and northwest into Desert Valley, California, I came upon a construction camp constructing a canal from that large lake in the desert to the ocean. The constructor, engineer, doctor cook and barber all in one Sam Archer.

In Reno Carl Gover was known as the State's soundest capitalist and shrewdest lawyer. He was pleading a case for Geraldine Boland and Geraldine was suing for a divorce from Clark Gable.

In Los Angeles I heard Wylie Yates was teaching shorthand in the University of California. I at once secured an interview with him. He told me his life's story which was stranger than fiction. It seems he had been teaching for twenty one years—he must have begun teaching before he stopped going to school in Spearman High school.

In San Francisco I was told that Verna Lawrence was Dean of an Old Woman's Home, thus it seems she never married. Miss Lawrence told me of the condition in the home. I noticed one woman particular who was very childish. If I remember correctly she bore a faint resemblance to Ruby England.

Prize-fighting was then the king of sports. As the World's Heavyweight contender was going to fight Joe Lewis in K. C. for the championship, I naturally went. Much to my amazement I found the contender I talked to was A. J. Curtis. After a few rounds I found out that fighting did not bring in enough do so he told me that he peddled cosmetics and manicured ladies nails for "extra cash".

I stopped at the airport in K. C. to get a glimpse of the Queen of the South.

Princeton University, N. J. R. Douglas was found at the airport.

CLASS HISTORY

In New Jersey I attended a lecture on Athens. The orator was none other than Ruby Flint.

Later in the city of New York I noticed an opera house which the people were going into in mobs. I went closer and found that they were going to see the world's most famous acrobatic dancer. Our one and only Lois Blackburn was the dancer. I secured an interview with Lois and she told me that Alma Johnson was on the stage singing. She told me her success was due to sleeping sickness.

Before I left New York I went to see a museum, while there I picked up a newspaper and a picture of Dwight Hutchison the Laborer, seeking a respectable place to establish an ice cream and coke stand.

The following day I went to Washington D. C. to hear the inauguration of the President who was an individualist. I learned that he was elected because of his wonderful theory on evolution. When the President arose I had to look twice to see if it really was Ira Pearson, and sure enough it was. I followed the recessional to the White House and discovered that the President's butler was none other than W. M. Bralley.

I drove on past cities and towns until I reached Denver, Colo., and visited a dude ranch. I found Jaunita Hall living there acting as hostess—just what she had always wanted to do (that is live on a ranch).

We all know that Mr. Reinertsen's greatest ambition was to become a doctor, and strange as it seems I found him in Yuma Ariz. He was a doctor and a great doctor. He was manager of a horse clinic in that city.

As I drifted westward and northwest into Desert Valley, California, I came upon a construction camp constructing a canal from that large lake in the desert to the ocean. The constructor, engineer, doctor cook and barber all in one Sam Archer.

In Reno Carl Gover was known as the State's soundest capitalist and shrewdest lawyer. He was pleading a case for Geraldine Boland and Geraldine was suing for a divorce from Clark Gable.

NOTICE OF WILL

State Of Texas
County Of Hansford

We, the members of the Senior Class of Spearman High school, being in full possession of all our mental faculties and having no fear of anyone before our eyes, save Prof. Finley and Supt. Bralley do hereby devise, will, and bequeath and convey our earthly possessions and all the appurtenances and hereditaments thereunto belonging, to all the persons hereinafter mentioned, to be by them held in undistributed possession in length of their mortal spans.

First, to the world at large the commodities, which we have in great abundance and which the world most sorely needs, our entire stock of common sense.

Next, to the Junior Class we will and bequeath our laughs and giggles, unsoled problems, all of Helen Jenkins unchewed gum, Blackburns absent excuses, and all her ability to argue with the teachers, and all other unclaimed properties of no value whatsoever.

To the freshmen Class we bequeath our good will and ability to preserve through all unfavorable circumstances. Our wonderful intellectual powers, which have brought us to our present enviable position, we bequeath to the Sophs and to the juniors all our indifference to criticism and our sublime self-conceit. All these qualities we feel we can get along without in the busy world into which we are about to sojourn.

All the Senior boys who were members of the Lynx football team hereby leave all their skinned shins, black eyes aching backs and football playing ability to whoever may join the Lynx.

To Martha Delon Kirk we leave all of Doris Kirk's arguments, loud talking and otherwise. To Howard Garnett we leave all of Oliver Leverton's bashfulness and stage fright.

J. R. Douglas's "Great Garbo" smile we will to Robert Satter - white to add to his attraction to the girls. To Chandler Hitchcock we leave Oscar Archer's childhood innocence. Wylie Yates conceitedness we leave to Ray Vallette Converse.

Our proficiency in phonetic spell, which has never been equalled and seldom surpassed, we bequeath to the primary grades.

To all A students in the junior sophomore, and freshmen classes we leave Sam Archer's excellent grades.

To the freshmen and sophomores, collectively and individually, we convey our power of saying the wrong thing in the right place or the right thing in the wrong place. Just how this is accomplished we are not able to say. Each individual will need to work the matter out from himself. There is no doubt that much benefit will result from the effort.

Ralph Blodgett hereby leaves his crooning ability, his great attraction for the girls his Snoopers column, and his curly hair to anyone having the qualifications to fill his place.

Ruth Buchanan here leaves her excellent talent for sarcasm thus displayed in "Fullers Fortunes" to anyone that can fill the position.

To Joe Womble we leave Dick Vernon's pool playing ability and his attraction for girls.

To Julia Wilbanks we leave all of Dwight Hutchisons blushes. We leave Rose Files and Ruby Flint's guinness to Rosa Lee Clement and Ola Smith.

To R E Sanders, Doil Howerton leaves his charming personality.

To our dear school building itself, we leave the peaceful quiet caused by our absence. To our teachers we hereby give free all inheritance tax, luxury or income tax from them it came and to them it should rightfully be returned, that other may be benefited by it as we have been.

We lack space for details but shall simply state that our arguments against final exams are of vital importance to every earnest student of education. We should like to include in this also our arguments for bigger and better holidays, louder and funnier lectures, and no higher math, and a shortened list of requirements for graduation.

This will was drawn up by Wylie Yates and Ralph Blodgett, son third.

A WORD OF APPRECIATION

In the closing moments of the student and patron participation of our school business I should like to express my sincere appreciation to all parties who have contributed in any measure to the success of the schools during the brief and passing term. I have never yet seen such splendid cooperation on the part of patrons and friends of the school. You are to be congratulated.

The P. T. A. Lions Club, Choral Club and other organizations have contributed their services in no small measure. I want you to know that I appreciate this even though I have been unable to work with you at times.

I expect to be interested and will be working with your school board at least three more months as such I shall welcome your suggestions and criticism at any time.

Sincerely
W. M. BRALLEY

Pinto is said to be the best trained horse in the Lone Star State.

Haste Chief Cause of Accidents

The chart above shows that last year 31 per cent of the deaths resulting from accidents involving mistakes by drivers were due to exceeding the speed limit; 17 per cent to driving on the wrong side of the road; 15 per cent were due to the failure of drivers to exercise caution when the right-of-way was involved; 14 per cent of the deaths were due to drivers going off the roadway; 13 per cent were due to acts of recklessness, and 10 per cent of the deaths were due to miscellaneous errors by drivers.

Statistics by the Travelers Insurance Company indicate that 9 out of every 10 accidents for which the driver is to blame result from undue haste—haste to get through the next intersection before the light flashes red, haste to pass a few cars ahead when it's impossible to do so without using the wrong side of the street or road, haste in going through an intersection when the other fellow was in the intersection first, haste while traveling on the highway.
