Steer-Bobcat Game Ends In Scoreless Tie

Aggies Take Measure Of Texas 7 to 6

Domingue Scores Touchdown, Kicks For Deciding Point

By BILL PARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer
COLLEGE STATION, Nov. 27.—"Frenchy" Domingue, a maroon-clad youngster who learned his high school football at Port Arthur and is showing his college wares at Texas A&M, went on a wild running rampage here yesterday to beat the University of Texas 7-6. It was the 38th annual game between the two schools and never has historic Kyle field housed a more superb offensive contest which left an estimated crowd of 30,000 more exhausted from excitement.

Whirlwind's Return
This Domingue boy, whose first name is Clifford and who started the current season like a whirlwind but faded down to a tame breeze, pulled the old comeback act Thursday afternoon to lead his A&M mates on a 60-yard drive that terminated with Domingue carrying the ball the final three yards for a touchdown. He then kicked from placement for the seventh point that was the difference between victory and a tie for the Aggies.

Yes a tie, for Texas offered a rival to this Domingue. He was the blazing, charging Ernest Koy, fullback, who plowed through the "red line of Aggeland" for touch-down yardage in the first period eventually drive across the Aggies' goal stripe for a touchdown. Blanton missed placement kick.

Six down after the first period the fighting Aggies started and they drove and drove like the crushing of a thunderbolt with Domingue the chief ball lugger. And up the field they soared, five, ten, fifteen and on for sixty yards and a touchdown. That tied the count. It was a cool Domingue who patted Spencer on the back as Spencer prepared to hold the snap-back. It was perfect, Spencer placed the ball on the ground, the Texas line men charged hard, but the alert foot of Domingue was quick and struck with accuracy for a goal and the winning point.

Plenty Scraping
That was the football game. It was a hard old battle the remaining minutes. A battle in which Ernest Koy, Harrison Stafford, Captain Baumgartner and other Texas players fought a gallant and desperate fight but a losing one.

Domingue played only a part of the last half, but while in there he kept the Longhorns deep in their territory with his slashing off-tackle and brilliant end runs. Texas, desperate to score, allowed Koy to pass from his own goal line late in the fourth period, but even this daring bid proved only another of many thrills for the fans. After their touchdown in the first period, the Longhorns' only other scoring possibility was a drive to the Aggies' thirty-yard line where it was halted when Malone intercepted one of Koy's passes.

Captain Carl Moulden, Charlie Malone and Davis played sterling football. Davis in particular, who ran most of Domingue's interference and should share in much of the glory.

The victory gave A&M third place in the Southwest conference race.

Bell Offers New Service

Subscribers May Obtain Teletypewriter Connections

A new communication service is made available today by The American Telephone and Telegraph Company and its associated companies in the Bell system of which the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company is one. This new service consists in the establishment and operation of central switching machines for teletypewriter connections that typewrite electrically over wire to a distant teletypewriter.

Any subscriber to this service may obtain connection with the teletypewriter of any other subscriber to the service within the same city or in a distant city and this will permit immediate transmission of letters, typewritten statements or other information between the two subscribers. In effect the methods used are interconnection of the instruments, the same as they now employ in the telephone systems.

The present teletypewriter service of the Bell System is furnished only in connection with private wires which are not connected to central switching points. This private wire service, now widely used for inter-office communication, will be continued as heretofore. The new switching service to teletypewriter exchanges is now possible because of developments in apparatus and operation. These permit intercommunication by teletypewriter on a nation-wide basis just as the development of telephone switchboards made possible the inter-connection of telephone instruments.

The new teletypewriter service will thus have the flexibility that characterizes the regular telephone service of the Bell Companies. The establishment of the switching offices similar to telephone exchanges enables subscribers to the new service to call and receive call or long distance telephone conversations. While their teletypewriter lines are connected they may send or receive typed messages as desired.

Soon after the American Telephone and Telegraph Company was organized to develop long distance service it became apparent that the telephone wire system could be adapted to provide circuits to concerns needing private wire facilities.

Jack Ellis Opens New Tire Business

Jack Ellis, who has been in the tire business here several years, announced Friday that he would formally open a new business, as dealer in the Seiberling tire, Saturday at 209 West Third street. Decision to take the Seiberling dealership in this territory was reached, said Mr. Ellis, after a careful investigation of different lines. He invited his many friends and former customers to visit him in his new store.

W. B. and Tom Currie and Gene Moon recently bagged two deer, a nine point and a ten-point buck, in the Llano section. They were previously convicted but won a new trial.

Rev. Spann Is Club Speaker

Substitution Of 'Horsepower For Horse Sense Won't Work'

Members of the Kiwanis club heard an interesting and inspiring address by Rev. J. Richard Spann, pastor of the First Methodist church, a former member of the Abilene Kiwanis club, at their weekly luncheon Friday noon at the Crawford hotel.

Declaring that the things that build cities are the things that go to make worthwhile men, Rev. Spann pointed out that "horsepower" cannot be substituted for "horse sense" nor can "cunning" be substituted for character in men or cities.

The Kiwanis club became the first service organization in the city to announce that every member had given to the Community Chest fund.

J. L. Webb was in charge of the program. Guests introduced were Mrs. J. R. Dillard, Hal Ainsworth, Dr. Spann and E. V. Spence.

Singing of "America, the Beautiful," "The Eyes of Texas" and "Builder," a Kiwanis song, was led by Dr. C. W. Deets with Miss Katherine Sangster at the piano.

Program chairman for December were appointed, as follows: Loy Acuff, December 3; George Gentry, December 10; Day Correll, December 17. President G. R. Porter named all "J's"—the Jones, Jacks, Johns, Jims and James of the club as a program committee to arrange the Christmas week meeting. It was suggested that a Christmas tree be held.

A committee composed of Bernard Fisher, Jess Slaughter, Loy Acuff and Garland Woodward was named to draft resolutions of sympathy to the children of O. D. Dyer, a Kiwanis who with his wife was killed in an automobile accident the morning of November 21.

The final meeting of the year will be in charge of President Porter, who will retire from that post at that time.

Ralph and Lewis Rix, both born and reared in Big Spring, were also "brought up" in the furniture business, associated with their father Harvey L. Rix, and also their uncles, Wallace and Jed, now of Lubbock.

Lions Induct Two Members

Ritz To Give Performance For Benefit Of Toy Campaign

W. M. Paul and E. W. Potter were conducted into the Lions club today as new members at the regular meeting of the club at the Settles Hotel.

A musical program in charge of H. S. Fay and featuring the two new members, entertained the members and their guests during the luncheon hour.

The committee in charge of collecting the toys to be repaired for the poor children for Christmas reported that in cooperation with the Ritz Theatre a show would be put on the morning of Saturday, December 5, and any boy or girl in town would be admitted to show by bringing one toy to the theatre and depositing it in the box that will be placed there by the Lions club.

Dr. T. F. Willet, of Bloomington, Ill., was the guest of Dr. C. C. Carter.

Scout To Help Collect Toys

The Boy Scouts of the city, in following out plans made by the local Scout officials this week will cooperate with the Lions club and the city firemen in collecting and repairing the toys to be given away Christmas.

The scouts according to local officials will collect toys and repair them at the workshop of the Texas Furniture Company which has been donated to them for the work. The toys after being repaired will be stored at the Salvation Army headquarters until time to be distributed. The collection of the toys by the boys will begin tomorrow morning, it was indicated.

Crisis May Develop In Manchuria

Bombing Of Chinchow Regarded Most Grave Complication

LONDON, Nov. 27. (AP)—An exchange telegraph message from Tokyo today said that Japanese airplanes had bombed Chinchow, Manchuria. This was in retaliation for an attack on Japanese forces leaving Mukden to reconnoiter this morning.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27. (AP)—Reports of the Chinchow bombing were regarded as the gravest development in the Manchurian situation by the State Department. Chinchow is the chief connecting point of China with Manchuria. If the Japanese occupy it they could prevent communication and traffic from Manchuria with the central government.

TOKYO, Nov. 27. (AP)—The government announced today that the Chinese proposal to withdraw troops from Chinchow thereby creating a neutral zone was acceptable. It had been previously reported that Premier Wakatsuki of the cabinet would resign if the army attacked Chinchow. The army disregarded the cabinet's attempt at a moderate policy.

PARIS, Nov. 27. (AP)—Aristide Briand told Alfred San, Chinese league representative that Japan had definitely promised not to attack Chinchow. Chinese officials had previously expressed a loss of confidence in the league's ability to settle the dispute and aid that if it became necessary China would begin increasing her military strength.

MUKDEN, Nov. 27. (AP)—Considerable Japanese reinforcement started south today by railway. Their destination was not announced but it was believed to be Chinchow.

Grandi Sails For Homeland

Expresses Hope For Better Relations Between Nations

NEW YORK, Nov. 27 (AP)—Dino Grandi, Italian foreign minister, and party planned to sail for home today at 3 p. m. Grandi has been the guest of President Hoover, with whom he discussed the disarmament problem. He visited here, Washington, Baltimore and Philadelphia. Last night on the radio he expressed the hope that next Thanksgiving day would see better international relations, peace and the settlement of the disarmament question.

Prominent Dallas Man Suspected Of Bank Robberies

American Airways Ships Carry 41,881 Passengers In Year

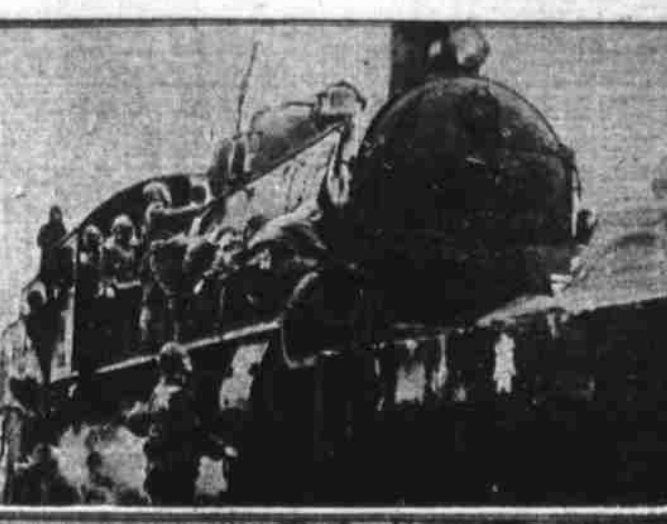

Flying at an average speed of two miles a minute over the snow fields and mountains of Alaska and over the plains, mountains and deserts of the United States, transports of American Airways have, since the first of the year, flown 6,376,555 miles, a distance equivalent to more than 256 trips around the world at the equator. On their flights the planes carried 41,881 passengers and 1,220,278 pounds of mail to the seventy-two cities served directly by the company in the United States and the northern territory.

The southern division contributed 813 passengers and 31,576 pounds of mail in 213,255 miles of flight during the month of October, the system flying a total of 971,115 miles during the month and carrying 96,457 pounds of mail and 4,127 passengers.

Santa Claus Will Assist With Christmas Season Opening And Window Unveiling Ceremonies

The Herald received its first letter from Santa Claus this morning. It was in answer to a wire sent to him in Northland inviting him to be here for the Christmas season Opening and Window Unveiling ceremonies to be held here Dec. 3, next Thursday evening, at 7:30 p. m. His letter is as follows: The Big Spring Herald Big Spring, Texas Dear Friends:

Was very happy to get your wire and invitation to attend your big celebration on Dec. 3. I am very sorry that I will be unable to get there on that date. I have so very much work to do between now and Christmas.

Due to conditions many mammas and papas will be unable to help me this year by giving presents to their children so my work has more than doubled. The first day of August I tripped my working force in my top shops and we are now working at top speed. We have thousands of toys made now and I think we will have enough made up to go around.

I have been looking over my Big Spring list this morning and see that a few little boys and girls there haven't been helping their mothers like the should. Tell them I won't forget them if they will start now to doing better. Thank you very much for your invitation and I know that you will have a big time at the Opening. I will try to get to Big Spring before Christmas but do not know just when or for sure yet. Tell all my friends there hello and that I will sure be there Christmas Eve.

Your friend, SANTA CLAUS. While it is disappointing that Santa will be unable to be here, more plans are being made to take the place of his visit and will be announced in the near future.

Eight more firms have been added to the ever increasing list of stores entering the Opening and Contest, swelling the total number to 31. They are Hokus Pokus, Handy-Andy, Wilson and Clare, United Dry Goods, Linck's, Wolcott Motor Company, Home Bakery, Dudley's and J. D. Biles.

If any firm that hasn't entered already will call 728 and enter the name it will be announced in the Herald.

W. J. Norrell To Be Banquet Speaker

program at the annual banquet of the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce, to be held during the second week in December, will be W. J. Norrell, publicity manager of the Magnolia Petroleum company and formerly manager of the Dallas Chamber of Commerce.

Everything Except Score Is Displayed

Dennis Ends High School Career With Great Performance

From the banks of the Concho yesterday came a fighting team of Bobcats who battled the Big Spring Steers with a fury never seen before on the local gridiron in a game that saw everything in the football category except scoring, as the two eleven fought to a scoreless tie in their annual Thanksgiving day battle.

Featuring the powerful plunging George Delker and the elusive and nifty-plunging Harrison on the offensive and Schumard on the defense the visitors started a first period drive that twice was stopped within the Steer 20-yard line, and once within the ten yard mark, and turned back by the educated toe of Tack Dennis who put on one of the greatest exhibitions of punting ever witnessed in a Texas high school game.

Bobcats Go
It was all San Angelo, as the men of Harry Taylor took possession of the oval on their own 42 yard line early in the first period and with Delker plowing the line and Harrison slipping off tackle and around ends carried the ball down to the eighteen yard stripe of the Bobcats where a fumble by Harrison was recovered by the locals.

Dennis drove the invader back with a long punt only to have the drive start all over again. But it ended on the nine-yard line where a wonderful goal line defense by the home crew took the ball away from the Cats. The field general of the matter so he sent the Purple and Gold 50 yards down the field to recover one of his long boots. This time the Cats failed to go and were forced to kick. Dennis again elected to punt, and this time drove Harrison back to his 5-yard line to recover the oval. He was downed by Hoppes.

In two punts Tack sent the ball from his own nine yard line to the visitor's five yard stripe. Harrison punted out but Tack came right back with a well placed 45-yard punt which went out of bounds on the Bobcat 9-yard mark. The period closed with the Conchoans on another drive toward the Steer goal. The two teams were even Stephen in the matter of hogging the play in the four periods with the visitors taking the first and third quarters while the home boys got away with the second and fourth.

All the thrills that a holiday crowd could ask for were provided by the two eleven as they battled for a score throughout the four chukkers. The field general of the two teams opened up with all they had in a desperate effort to cross the pay-off line and cop the honors of the day, but the stubborn defense offered by the boys when their goal line was threatened was beautiful to see and was successful in turning back all scoring threats.

What A Fuster
They will tell you down on the Concho this morning that they saw the greatest punter in the state of Texas sending the oval back down the field yesterday afternoon. They will agree with you that Tack Dennis has no peer in district 4 when it comes to shooting those peas to his receivers.

One Angelo fan said, "Big Spring will admit anything in the world about the fighting qualities of the Bobcats for in Tack Dennis they have a whole football team to brag about. The real score was not Big Spring 0, San Angelo 0, but Dennis 0, San Angelo 0." That statement is, of course, extravagant, but a tribute to Tack, nevertheless.

In his final game of high school competition Dennis played a brand of ball that will never be forgotten by Steers fans and that stamped him as the outstanding back of the Interscholastic League.

Don't forget, though that there were ten other Steers out there who fought a valiant fight and without whom the contest would not have ended in a scoreless tie. Cook, in for Forrester at end, played a whale of a game and dealt the Klitons misery as they tried to pick up yardage around his position.

Harris in his final game played the game of his life and twice came near breaking loose after he had received a pass from Dennis. Cobern, Captain Flowers, and in fact every man whose name you see in the lineup, gave his all to turn back the Taylormen and chalk up a counter, but the Bobcat defense would not permit.

San Angelo will ring today with praises of that number 73, Schumard, at end for the Bobcats. Starting his second game of the year this boy was a demon on the defense and was equally as good on the offense. His play during the afternoon practically clinched an end berth on the mythical all-district eleven. What is more important to the Angelo fans is that the boy will be back for two more years and the Steer machines for the next two seasons will find this fighting Cat harrying their efforts to score through his tenacious defense.

The Americanized Bible

ONE OF THE most interesting events of the fall is the publication, by the University of Chicago press, of the new "American translation" of the Bible.

For years a group of scholars at the university has worked on a plan to render the Bible in a modern idiom, free of all archaic forms of speech. Now their job has been finished. It is an excellent job, and there are certain passages—especially the 18th and 19th chapters of the gospel of John, where Christ's trial before Pilate is described—that take on a new clarity and a new interest.

But in the main, one lays down this "Americanized" Bible with a new feeling of admiration for the men who rendered the familiar King James version, centuries ago. They were absolute masters of English, and they dotted their work with phrases and sentences that cannot be improved on, any more than "King Lear" could be improved by being rendered into Broadwayese.

And that is a point we too often forget. When we count up the great master-works of English literature we speak of Shakespeare's plays, Milton's poems and so on—and forget that the King James Bible (either in the Authorized or Revised Editions) considered purely as literature, is a heritage that can never lose its value as long as any men anywhere on earth read and speak English.

Consider, for example, the famous quotation from Paul's epistle to the Corinthians—"For now we see as through a glass, darkly." Something is lost when that becomes "For now we are looking at a dim reflection in a mirror," even though the meaning may become a shade more clear.

Not does the line in Revelation—"And I looked, and behold a pale horse; and his name that sat on him was Death, and Hell followed with him"—retain its original bite when it becomes "And there I saw a horse the color of ashes, and his rider's name was Death, and Hades followed him."

Then there is the thunderous line from Jude—"Wandering stars, to whom is reserved the blackness of darkness forever"; its force ebbs out, somehow, when it reads, "Wandering stars, doomed forever to utter darkness."

The new version, to be sure, has been done skillfully and reverently. In the matter of clarity there is a distinct and valuable gain. But the mightiest lines of the old version cannot be improved upon.

OPINIONS OF OTHERS

'Behind the Scenes' In A Failure

Philadelphia Record: HEAVY and increasing losses have crippled the country's biggest theatrical combination. The Shubert, Hammerstein Corporation, owning, controlling or operating seventy leading houses valued in excess of 20 million dollars, has accepted a receivership as the only refuge from complete ruin.

Superficially, and in part actually, this is one of the remotest effects of the general depression. But it is also the outcome of special conditions; it is a result which affords a valuable lesson, a weighty warning.

Cunning can cheat the laws of man. But there is no way to evade the ultimate laws of Nature—or of economics. He who defies the laws of Nature pays in health, in life. Schemes which disregard or override the basic principles of economics cannot prevail. Soon or late, they react against those who attempt them.

This theater corporation had an operating loss of $1,230,000 for the year ending June 30, 1930, and of $1,670,000 for the ensuing year. Why? Because of sharp decline in theater attendance, drastic losses of revenues, says the statement.

But why did this enterprise do as others have done—curtail expenses, shorten bills to ride out the storm? How was it able to save only $160,000 a year by reducing salaries and personnel?

The answer is: Its management was not free. It was bound by iron-clad contracts with combines of workers which dictated and enforced their own terms.

This insupportable pressure came from the union of stagehands—scene shifters, property men, electricians and so on—and the union of musicians. It enforced iron rules for the employment of stagehands and musicians, without regard to the needs of the business or its capacity to pay.

So many men must be kept on duty as scene shifters and furniture movers, whether the production was big or small. Trivial tasks were divided and specialized to such a degree that the staffs were always overworked. Musicians must be paid whether a run was long or short, whether the house was crowded or closed and dark.

Business might fluctuate, productions might fail, income might dwindle or vanish—but the payroll requirements were inescapable.

The record has seen figures which justify the estimate that rational, businesslike procedure in these matters, adjusting itself to the drastic changes in conditions, would have prevented most of the $1,000,000 loss of this corporation during the last two years.

Who suffers? The investors, to be sure. But what of the workers whose inflexible demands crippled the enterprise? How much have they gained by wrecking their source of livelihood?

It is reassuring for all Americans, for labor as well as capital, that this is not the prevailing spirit. The economic crisis will be short-lived. Just the degree that employers and workers deal reasonably with each other and shun the pursuit of fatally uneconomic policies.

HOW'S your HEALTH

Edited by Dr. Jago Goldstein, Academy of Medicine

A Medico-Legal Question

An interesting situation has arisen in London where the law and medicine are at odds.

The issue is as follows: A schoolmistress was run down by a motorcycle, and while an ambulance attendant who was not a physician was bandaging her wounds an automobile was driven through the onlookers.

The injured woman was hurt a second time and died two hours later at a hospital.

The driver of the automobile was arrested and was subsequently tried for manslaughter.

A jury acquitted the defendant, maintaining that the accident was in part due to the negligence of the ambulance men who allowed the patient to remain in the street where she was struck down.

The learned judge added his little by stating that "it was wrong practice to bandage people in the middle of the road."

As might be expected a good deal of indignation was aroused by this decision, reported to the Journal of the American Medical Association by a London correspondent.

Because, in our cities particularly, the clanging of ambulances rushing to scenes of accidents is all too familiar, the circumstances stirred considerable discussion in this country.

Apart from the merits of the decision as to the guiltiness of the auto-driver, it is the consensus of medical opinion that until the extent of injury suffered by a person is established it is wisest not to move him.

This is a fundamental rule in first aid, modified only by extraordinary circumstances. Do not, unless imperative, move a patient whose injuries are unknown to you. It is in the violation of this rule that a simple fracture may be converted into a compound fracture, and persons suffering from head or spine injuries have their conditions aggravated by injudicious handling.

A Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER

WASHINGTON — It hardly could be expected that a co-author of a world-wide pact to outlaw war and the winner of the Nobel peace prize would remain silent with an impending crisis such as there is at the moment in Manchuria.

Frank Billings Kellogg has spoken. And his advice is if other methods fail to bring about peace between Japan and China, then world opinion should be mobilized in a demand for peace.

The unsettled conditions now prevailing in the Far East must be a cause of real concern to this friendly, nervous, little man who, while he was secretary of state, was a leading figure in the consummation of the Kellogg-Briand peace treaty.

Frank B. Kellogg is that way. He feels deeply about those things in which he is interested. Once he was laying a wreath on the tomb of France's unknown Soldier in Paris. The wreath was much larger than himself, but he insisted on handling it personally.

After a hard struggle he suc-

LADY with a PAST

BY HARRIET HENRY

SYNOPSIS: After an evening of dancing in Paris, Venice Muir returns to her hotel where she and her mother are staying, to find her mother dead. She is told by Doctor Hawks that Mrs. Muir's cold abruptly turned to pneumonia, which strained a weak heart muscle. In a daze of shock Venice attends the funeral and tries to become readjusted to living. She has come to Paris to gain the polish and experience needed to make her a social success in New York. Her shyness and lack of vivacity have always made her unpopular, although she is both lovely and rich. Now she has no incentive to go on alone. Her mother has told her to have a good time, and not to mourn her when she dies. But Venice finds nothing to interest her. She moves to a smaller hotel and tries to decide what she is going to do.

Chapter 17 VENICE IN SEARCH OF MYSTERY

"The Louis-L'Grand was a small hotel in the Rue Rouget de Lisle located in placing it on the tomb. Then, quite unexpectedly, he dropped to his knees and prayed in silence for a few moments.

Froud Of Part He Played

Although he refused to take credit for the part he played, he was nevertheless tremendously proud of his part in its making. And no one is more vitally concerned in seeing it accomplish its purpose than he.

From the beginning he has heard his treaty referred to by some persons as nothing but a scrap of paper. More recently he has heard a United States senator refer to it as the "Kellogg piffle pact."

Small wonder, then that he should now come out with the statement that "the nations of the world should publicly acknowledge their own obligations and demand that the obligations of other signatories (to the treaty) should be fulfilled."

It is another Kellogg move for world amity, and one which promises again to link his name inseparably with the peace movement of his time.

U. S. Holds Key

It would be interesting to know what would have happened if the United States had proceeded in the Manchurian crisis alone by invoking the Kellogg pact instead of co-operating with the League of Nations.

It might have resulted in a waste of effort—two parallel movements to preserve peace with confusion being the final outcome. Then too, probably the Kellogg-Briand pact lacked the machinery which the League of Nations has.

But it hardly can be doubted now that the United States holds the key to peace in the Far East. And Uncle Sam may yet find it necessary to return to the old-fashioned methods of diplomacy.

an abortive street between the Rue de Rivoli and the Rue Mon-Thabor. Venice's room faced the great square of the Hotel Continental and she would stand in the long window and watch the comings and goings of the mortals in their rooms across the narrow way. If she went out on the small balcony outside her window, no more really than a wide sill, she could see the hurry and bustle of the Rue de Rivoli.

Cables arrived from Uncle Livingston, Mrs. Spalding and Aunt Laura. They were all laden with sympathy and advice to sail for home immediately. Letters came from Lola and Nolly, written while the Muirs were still on the ocean. The former's communications never bore a date.

"Dearest Venice," "Jerry and I are engaged. We're going to be married next month, June nineteenth. Can't you come back to be a bridesmaid? It's all very exciting and everyone is giving parties for us. The Schuylers have a knock-out last night. Rudy Vallee to play and what have you. I'm mad about Jerry and he is about me and I can't imagine why some people shake their heads and talk about the drabness of life."

"Did you catch yourself any promising males on the Acquaintance?" "Much Love,"

"LOLA," She took a lengthy walk along the Seine and her senses, for the first time since her mother's death, absorbed impressions; the caressing kind spring air; the sharp squawk of a French horn; small boats plying through the grey Seine; women washing clothes close to the water's edge, red flannel, blue denim, mud, white cotton; the patient fishers on the left bank.

She loved Paris and hated the thought of going home. Crossing the place de la Concorde she felt a genuine thrill at its great sweep as though it was actually something of her own. That was it. Paris belonged to whomever walked her streets.

Tomorrow she must go to the Cunard office and engage her passage home. Mrs. Muir's letter written to cousin Alicia Poe at Antibes had been returned that morning with no such address scribbled across its envelope in French. Venice had no friends or ties of any sort here. There was no reason for lingering on. Doctor Hawks had dropped from her ken as so many people who are kindness itself in the face of trouble but become invisible when the trouble passes.

Sitting in her bed room that evening Venice's mind went toward the future with the first clarity it had registered in the past week. Back to New York again with that ever-present struggle to make herself attractive in the social whirlpool. It was what her mother would have wanted. Going to parties again, awkward and shy. Roland Wainwright, that dazzling young man, ignoring her with casual indifference, like the shrug of a shoulder. And Drake Farrelly who was a real person, kind because he

if they decide to do it. "Do tell me where you go and what you see. And don't forget to report the snips you capture! Write me soon."

"From your loving," "NOLLY."

Venice felt warmed, and happier than she had since the night of her mother's death. Dear Nolly. Her letter took Venice out of the dull rut in which her mind was going back and forth and lifted her to the human contacts from which she had recently seemed quite apart. Ernest Price, she sounded like a grave young man. Could he overlook Nolly's infirmity? If he only would. And here was Nolly loving him and suffering a hurt and uncertainty that most girls could never experience. An operation! It would be wonderful if it were a success. But death, Venice from out her depressed state was caught with a tremendous fear for Nolly.

She was careful not to communicate this dread in the long letter which she immediately sat down to write. It was an enthusiastic epistle of encouragement and assurance; as to an operation. Then she went on to tell her own details of the last week. Her tears fell as she wrote. There was nothing harsh and bitter about her crying now. Just the gentle easing of grief in retrospect. Afterwards cropping the letter in a box across the street she felt a new lifting of her unhappiness. It was like a wound that had been opened and drained of its poison. Still sore but quite free of its inflammation and throbs.

"Dear God, she prayed, help me to go home a mysterious and interesting woman. Please, dear God. She lay awake half the night planning how to work out this tremendous problem. Dawn brought no relief.

She eyed the extravagant roses on the wall-paper with dreary pessimism. Suddenly a picture of Ann Duryea blurred the overgrown flowers with their unnatural purple blue. She sat with her slim legs crossed high, dark, apathetic, not really clever or amusing. Men crowding about her were insistent in their efforts to gain her attention. They liked her because they were not quite sure what had gone on in her past. I'm better looking, thought Venice with miserable resentment. If only every one didn't know I'd always lived discreetly with my mother. And any one who likes my appearance at all grows discouraged when he talks to me. I'm so flat with my dull repartee and self-consciousness and conventional background.

Suddenly she clasped her hands with eager intensity. Her face went alight. Why shouldn't I stay over here six months and return with a manufactured past? I could hint at this and that. My reserved conversation would only appear a signpost to hidden depths. I might actually try to do things here that I'd never done before. I will. I will. I'll show Roland Wainwright. I'll make him long to discover what he overlooked. I'll make Drake Farrelly think me the most desirable girl he's ever met, not just a bundle of black velvet sitting neglected on some stairs. I'll show everybody, the girls that thought I was a dud, the men that never noticed me one way or another, the men that tried to be polite and thought they deserved a medal for their pains.

She went to bed tremendously excited. Dear God, she prayed, help me to go home a mysterious and interesting woman. Please, dear God. She lay awake half the night planning how to work out this tremendous problem. Dawn brought no relief.

CityR. M. Hudson Brings Copy of First
Newspaper Published Here; Presents
It To Museum

R. M. Hudson, printer of the first newspaper published in Big Spring, passed through the city Wednesday evening enroute to his home in Los Angeles, California. He paid the Herald a visit.

He brought with him several copies of the Big Spring Pantagraph, including the first issue which came out Feb. 16, 1883, also a photograph of First street between Main and Scurry. He presented these issues and the photograph to the West Texas Memorial Museum, so that any citizen of the town would have access to them whenever he pleased.

Mr. Hudson arrived in this city in December 1883—forty-nine years ago. Dr. Tolson, of the Colorado Copper, sent him to promote the Big Spring Pantagraph.

At that time Big Spring was a remote, freight and passenger station point of the T. & P., and claimed a population of 1500. It had nine couples attached to it for judicial purposes, their whole total population being less than half of that of Big Spring. There were then in town 11 saloons and an ice house supplied with ice from the north. Water was piped to the railroad shops from the Big Spring. From this pipe the water carriers filled their wagons and sold it to the residents at 25 cents a barrel.

History of Pantagraph
Mr. Hudson's first office was located in the rear of the lot occupied now by Gully's Cafe. He printed the paper; T. G. Andrews, young county attorney edited it. It was the only paper between Colorado and El Paso. Mr. Andrews later sold his interest to Mr. Hudson and another lawyer, Geo. W. Walcott, and they celebrated their first anniversary with an eight page edition with no illustrations.

Mr. Hudson then bought out his partner and ran the paper alone until 1886 when he sold it to R. W. Walker, brother of Andy Walker, who ran it until it ceased to make money. Mr. Ervin had entered the field by that time with his Enterprise and when the Pantagraph faded from the picture, the Enterprise took over its volume number. Later the Enterprise succumbed to the competition of the Herald.

The old Pantagraph equipment was sold to W. F. Kellis, editor of the Sterling City News-Record, who is using some of it today.

Mr. Hudson, after leaving Big Spring, went east and published the Irving Index, near Dallas, for ten years. Then he went west again, to Pueblo, Colo., Salt Lake City, Azusa, Calif. He is now living in Los Angeles, an active and hearty old man, who recalls his days in the rip-roaring frontier town of Big Spring almost fifty years ago with a great deal of affection.

The largest advertisements in the first number of the Big Spring Pantagraph were inserted by the Saloons, the Nip and Tuck and the Crystal Palace. A small one-inch ad says: "Call at Fisher's Store for anything you want in general merchandise." Another small ad is the card of I. D. Edkins, justice of the peace and notary public.

Local Items
Three columns of local news contain everything from ads and fillers to real news items. Some of them follow:

Our town has been booming again during the past week. On yesterday we counted ten wagons on one street; six of them, however, are for sale at Seay and Heyn's.

Gretton station 21 miles west on the T. P. has had its name changed to Marienfield. (This is now Stanton.)

Let's have a cow case at once. During last week a herd of 19 buffaloes watered near Odessa. Sixty miles of the best road in Northwest Texas lies between Big Spring and San Angelo (this town's name once ended in an 's') and it is said that San Angelo merchants are contemplating making Big Spring their shipping point.

Bresie Bros. and Murphy are now fitted up with a full stock, are doing a good business and wish it distinctly understood that they are live merchants and will not be undersold.

First Anniversary
By the time the Pantagraph celebrated its first anniversary the names on the ads had changed. A big one on the first page announced "Headquarters for everything at Joseph Fishers (apparently) Will had not arrived." Wm. Cameron and Co. had a branch yard here then and advertised it. Parks, the Jeweler was spread up and down an inside page. Local news was scarce; the paper resembled a magazine more than present-day newspapers.

There are two later issues. That for Nov. 10, 1884, contained an ad inserted by J. C. Matthews, proprietor of a Livery and Feed stable on Clinton street (where is that?). The issue of Jan. 17, 1885 announced the Panhandle Land and Live Stock Co., of which the Earl of Aylesford, is president. In that number is a small card inserted by D. W. McIntyre, M. D., and an advertisement for Theodore Jones, dealer in furniture and undertakers goods. Joe Fisher had become J. & W. Fisher. I. D. Edkins was proprietor of the Belvidere Chop House and McKinnon and Coffey ran the Cowboy's Home with meals 35 cents. J. M. Walker was still running the Crystal Palace Saloon.

News items of that issue mention that Mrs. R. B. Zinn had been quite sick for the past ten days; and that A. G. Denmark had been on the sick list.

Mrs. C. S. Diltz, Hostess
To Three-Four Members

Mrs. C. S. Diltz was hostess to the members of the Three-Four Bridge Club with a very enjoyable party Wednesday afternoon.

An orchid and yellow color scheme prevailed in the fall flowers, the tallies, which were chrysanthemums and in the refreshments.

Mrs. Carter made high score and received an orchid and yellow bouquet. Mrs. Talley, Mrs. Hamlett and Mrs. Bolinger were high at their respective tables and each received a bud vase filled with lovely rosebuds.

The guests and members were: Meses, Jake Bishop, O. R. Bollinger, Elmo Wasson, W. T. Strang, Jr., C. C. Carter, V. W. Watson, I. H. Elmsitt, Harry Lester, C. S. Diltz, Wallace Ford, Adams Talley, J. H. Kirkpatrick.

Mrs. Ford will be the next hostess.

Give Lovely
Turkey Party

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Henry were host and hostess for a delightful evening party Wednesday evening honoring Mrs. Frank Gould, of Little Rock, Ark., who is looking after a sick mother while her husband is stationed here. Mrs. Gould is spending the Thanksgiving holidays with her husband.

Turkeys furnished the decorations in various clever ways. A large turkey flanked by corn stalks and natural autumn leaves made a unique centerpiece for the table. Candles burned in turkey candle holders.

The wall decorations were also turkeys, so were the tallies. A profusion of chrysanthemums decorated the house.

Mrs. Gould made high score and received a cookie jar. Mr. Flewelen made men's high and received a necktie holder. Cut prizes for the tables were small novelty China turkeys with a flock of three small ones; these were won by Mrs. Mary, Mrs. and Mrs. Frank Gould.

The guests were Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Mary, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gould, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Kennedy, Mr. and Mrs. V. H. Flewelen, Mrs. C. P. Woodley, Miss Portia Davis and W. M. Paul.

BRIDGE PARTY TUESDAY
The West Ward P.T.A. will give a bridge benefit Tuesday afternoon at the Crawford Hotel, announce the president, Mrs. Bernard Fisher. There will be many prizes and the school quilt will be given away.

Patented Process Insures Perfect Roast for Every Pound of Hills Bros. Coffee

Roasting, as much as blend, is responsible for the fine flavor of coffee. In fact, ordinary bulk-roasting methods often fail to give the blend "a break." That's because bulk methods don't always insure an even roast. Hills Bros. invented and patented a process that overcomes this undesirable feature. It is called Controlled Roasting, for control is the principle of the process.

As the accuracy of the hour-glass depends upon an even, continuous flow... a little at a time... so a perfect roast is procured for Hills Bros. Coffee by this patented process that roasts evenly, continuously... a little at a time. The speed of the coffee through the roasters is controlled. The temperature is controlled. These two things insure unvarying flavor—for the blend is never under-roasted nor over-roasted.

Remember that Hills Bros. Coffee can't go stale. It is packed in vacuum cans. Air, which destroys the flavor of coffee, is removed and kept out of these cans. Ordinary, "air-tight" cans won't keep coffee fresh. But Hills Bros. Coffee is always fresh. Order some today. Ask for it by name, and look for the Arab trade-mark on the can.

Kilkare Bridge Members
Meet With Mrs. Slaughter

Mrs. Tom Slaughter entertained the members of the Kilkare Bridge Club with a lovely Thanksgiving party, Wednesday. The bridge accessories all partook of the holiday season.

Miss Jone McAllister and Mrs. Chas. Davis were tea guests. Mrs. Nunnally made high score and received a powder jar filled with bath salts. Mrs. Wilkinson made second high and received a dainty picture and a guest towel.

The two tables of players were Mrs. W. A. Glimmer, Mae Battle, Chas. Koberg, J. S. Nunnally, Bart Wilkinson, O. H. McAllister and Tom Coffee.

This And That By Mark

Let's not have any argument about what happened down in Angieland yesterday.

We never saw so much football with so little scoring as we did yesterday as the Steers and Bobcats staged their annual battle before the usual large Thanksgiving day crowd. In fact if there is anything a team could do without scoring that was not done yesterday we don't particularly care about saying it. We saw lots of football during the time we were sitting up there in the ice house trying to keep warm and at the same time record the play of the two teams.

Blondy Cross failed to arrive for the first quarter, which is just as well, for he has enough to talk about anyhow. Those Kittens played football folks and save for the wonderful punting of Dennis would have crossed that old goal line and we would have been talking about how the score could have been prevented instead of wondering now how we might have scored.

A dozen touchdowns have been made by the barber shop coaches and the drug store experts this morning, but none were made yesterday aft and that, dear readers, is what counts in the percentage column.

Coach Bristow pulled the best one of the day when he told Blondy Cross that Delker plunging the line yesterday reminded him of a duck hunter in high grass. People that boy really plowed that Steer forward wall. Without doubt he is the outstanding line plunger of the district.

Harrison looked so much better than when we saw him perform the last time we could hardly realize it was the same boy out there juggling the hide. He is a fast, snaky runner and once past the line of scrimmage we agree with Blondy that he would be plenty hard to catch. Incidentally we are glad we did not have to watch some of the Steers try to run the fleet-footed Bobcat down yesterday.

Never have we seen a crowd and two teams pep up as that gang did yesterday when it was erroneously announced that the Bulldogs had a 7-point lead over the Mustangs. Coach Bristow sent word in to his boys that the Midlanders were ahead and instructed the bearer of the message not to let the Bobcats know anything about the matter. From the way both clubs snapped in the game we are of the opinion that the big news was passed to every man on the field.

We hear that Coach Hennig aged ten years during the fray in Midland yesterday where the Doggies came near chewing his Mustangs up in little pieces. The Pups lost the ball early in the first period.

The McCamey Badgers climbed out of the cellar yesterday as they pounded the Colorado Wolves to win 40-6. This leaves the lowly Coloradoans in undisputed possession of the cellar position. The boys have been in there hustling all season tho and we are for them.

The old dope bucket was picked up and hurled all over the plains yesterday and the Amarillo Sandies trounced the Lubbock Westerners 25-2. What a celebration they had in Pampa last night. The three way tie resulting from the victory of the Sandies is going to be settled in a business-like manner starting Monday when the Lubbock and Pampa elevens renew their battle in the elimination process. We can't see as how the final winner of the district will be in much condition for the bi-district play.

Folks now that the title in our own district is settled let's get busy and try to help the Mustangs carry the banner of district 4 to victory over the Oil Belt winner which will be decided this afternoon when the Abilene Eagles and the Cisco Lobos wage their yearly battle. We would like to see the pep squads of every school in the district and the Midland and San Angelo high school bands in Abilene next week when the Mustangs and the Eagles take the gridiron. We are taking for granted the Eagles will win this year. Let's go down there and show them that in addition to having some great ball clubs out here we have the finest bunch of sports to be found in the state. The Mustangs have marched to victory as champions should and this department is for them strong when they battle the Oil Belt winners for the right to advance into the semi-finals of the state play.

This little matter of all-district teams is going to be a tough one to settle but to give the fans something to get their feet wet and announce our selections along with that of the other scribes in Sunday's Herald, we have had so much advice and so many suggestions that we would have to have a team of 40 members to use the all-district men we have heard about.

In addition to picking an all-district eleven we are engaged in placing the outstanding man of the district on the all-state eleven. And along that line let us inform you that Blondy Cross is now converted to the opinion Dennis is an all-state man. Blondy opines that Tack is the outstanding man of the district and entirely worthy of all-state consideration. "Any team can use a man who can punt like Dennis," Blondy said.

What the Bobcats did in the first quarter the Steers did in the last. The yardage gained in the first period was 115 to 15 in favor of the visitors and the figures were exactly reversed in the final chukker. Dennis and Coburn ripped the Bobcat forward wall to pieces as they juggled the oval to the visitors' five yard stripe only to lose it on downs. Harrison punted out but the Bobcats were on the march again. A second stand by the Taylormen and the Steers received the ball on the Angelo 22 yard line with only time for one play.

Staking his all on one last shot a score Schwarzenbach called for a place kick with Dennis doing the booting. The line failed to hold and the kick was blocked and recovered by Angelo as the gun sounded and the Steers and Cats for the second consecutive year left the field with a tie score as the result of their Turkey Day play.

"I'll stand by it!"

"I'll stand by tobacco . . . in good times, in hard times . . . all kind of times . . . it helps a whole lot!"

"I GREW up with tobacco. Mostly I smoke cigarettes now—but I've smoked plenty of cigars, and pipes, too. And I never got anything but good from tobacco in any form—pipe, cigar, or cigarette—and that goes for every smoker I ever heard about.

"Why, I remember as a boy, way back, how the old folks in the fall used to pick and cure tobacco from a little patch they'd raised, and save out the best for their own smoking. And my father fought all through the war, and lived to be ninety.

"He'd certainly appreciate what we get today, though. Just think about these CHESTERFIELDS of mine—fine tobaccos from all over the world, and cured and blended just so; you couldn't get anything purer or milder. Cleanest factories you ever saw, too—never a hand touching the cigarettes . . . everything up to date.

"A big improvement over the old ways . . . reckon that's why I like CHESTERFIELDS so much. I notice most of my friends get a lot of pleasure out of them, too."

"But what I started out to say was, you can always depend on tobacco, no matter how things are going. Probably there was never anything in the world that meant so much to so many people, and cost so little, as tobacco—whatever way they smoke it.

"Yes, sir—I'll stand up for tobacco as long as I can strike a match!"

*NOTE. In the sections where tobacco grows and where people know tobacco, Chesterfield is usually the largest-selling cigarette.
