HOME TOWN TALK

By REDDY

More than a score of leading merchants of various kinds of goods will do a "boom time" business Tuesday.

This prediction is based upon their participation in "Downtown Day," being sponsored by The Herald as a special merchandising plan whereby sales will be stimulated and the public benefitted by very unusual values and prices.

After all the only way to get ahead is to scrap. So long as this community wants to get ahead it may. Those who are too easily whipped by unfavorable economic conditions throughout the nation not only hurt themselves but reduce the maximum combative power of the entire community.

From conversations with well-informed leaders of various branches of the oil industry we extract the opinion a definitely upward trend in the oil industry in this section will occur shortly, perhaps this month.

Things have hit the bottom in that business. Those who have held their breath and have almost drowned themselves in practically worthless East Texas oil are beginning to come to their senses.

We have expressed in this column a steadily weakening belief in production as a remedy for the oil crash.

However, you cannot get around cold figures on overproduction.

Promotion is a fine thing provided everybody promotes equally and equitably. But when one field promotes to the bone and another turns every well loose and drills ahead madly like they were in a Hurkbarrett of 18 or a Ranger of 19 promotion is not so good.

The price of oil, we believe, will begin to climb a little when the East Texas field is really curbed. This may not occur at once but proper control in East Texas will at least stop the downward path of the market. It can't go much farther down, at that.

When the oil industry begins climbing, payrolls spent here will turn toward their normal size.

Business District Expected To Be Thronged Tuesday By Crowds For 'Downtown Day'

All Big Spring is expected to throng the business section of the city Tuesday, which has been designated as "Downtown Day."

In addition to the inducements offered by the various stores in the way of special values, free transportation will be available to shoppers.

Between 9 and 11 the Dime Taxicab Co. (phone 77) and Maxwell and Moore Taxi (phone 481) will bring shoppers to the business district without charge. It is believed that many shoppers who live some distance from the business district will see in this service offered by these two business firms a real opportunity to secure transportation downtown to whatever store they will begin their "shopping tour."

The day has been dedicated to the buyers of Big Spring and surrounding territory.

Stores in Summer Dress

The streets will be in summer attire with warm-weather merchandise featured in the specialties, leaders and bargains generally in every department of every store in the downtown area. Plans have been laid to provide shoppers with more bargains than have ever been available in any one shopping day in the history of the city. Business conditions have made it possible for merchants to stock their stores at prices lower than at any time in recent years and the savings thus effected will be passed along to the public.

"Downtown Day" is general as "Downtown Day" Big Spring merchants have followed the example of those in other major cities of the country where similar days have been observed with great success in recent weeks, bringing about a rejuvenation of business in all lines.

It is pointed out by those at the head of the movement that cooperation of the part of the public at this time will serve to demonstrate just how very big the present-day is. With every citizen participating in "Downtown Day" a wave of prosperity that will benefit everyone all along the line will be started. It is believed by the forward-looking and public spirited individuals who have banded themselves together to provide Big Spring citizens with a real feast of bargains in seasonal merchandise right at the peak of summer need.

G. A. Hartman, director of Municipal Band, said this morning that members of the band were enthusiastic about the concert which they have graciously consented to play on the courthouse lawn at the noon hour tomorrow. Their contributions to the success of the day is in line with the whole-hearted cooperation of practically every business house in Big Spring in making "Downtown Day" a really profitable day for every shopper.

Big Spring business firms which are cooperating in the plans for "Downtown Day" are:

Austin-Jones, J. W. Fisher, Harris, Albert M. Fisher Co., United Dry Goods Store, Davenport's, Gibson and Company, O'Leary's, Robinson-Reardon's, Maurice Shoppe, Collins Bros. Drugs, Piggly Wiggly (2 stores), Hollywood Shoppe, Big Furniture and Hardware Co., Melinger's, Cunningham and Phillips, Barrow Furniture Co., Settles Coffee Shop, Wolcott Motor Co., Douglas Coffee Shop, Texas Electric Service Co., Big Spring Hardware Co., Crawford Coffee Shop, Theron Hicks, jeweler, The Fashion.

608 Citizens Signed Petition For Election; Polls Open At 8

Whether the city of Big Spring will issue bonds in the amount of $200,000 for the purpose of financing construction of a new city hall, combined with a central fire station, a municipal auditorium, and a jail, will be decided Tuesday.

The election will be held at the present fire station, corner of West Third and Scurry Streets. The polls will open at 8 o'clock and will close promptly at seven o'clock.

The election climaxes a movement instigated several weeks ago for a new municipal meeting.

The plan to erect the structure was conceived at a meeting of the board of city development. Later

Refinery Runs Drop Further

West Texas Output Down 3752 Barrels Week Ending June 3

A decrease in daily average production of 3,752 barrels to 248,459 barrels and a decline in daily average distribution of 16,342 barrels to 373,149 barrels in the Permian Basin, including Lea county, New Mexico, during the week ending June 3 resulted in a drop in crude withdrawn from storage of 13,090 barrels to 21,690 barrels daily. During the preceding week daily average crude withdrawals amounted to 37,780 barrels.

West Texas added three producers during the week but 2,914 wells produced a daily average of only 207,844 barrels, 1,093 barrels daily less than during the week ending May 27. Daily average production in Lea county, New Mexico, declined 2,659 barrels to 40,615 barrels.

Daily average pipe line runs decreased 8,616 barrels to 232,896 barrels, daily average runs to refineries within the district declined 10,078 barrels to 26,558 barrels while daily average tank car shipments increased 1,292 barrels to 12,915 barrels. This accounted for a reduction in daily average distribution of 16,342 barrels to 373,149 barrels.

Reminiscences of Big Spring Soon To Be Featured On Screen At Ritz

(By The Herald Reviewer)

The theatre was deserted save for the two of us, one confident of the effect his handiwork would create, myself openly querulous of the ability of the camera to portray the events of the past, with any degree of ability.

It was the first showing of the "Reminiscences of Big Spring," a three-reel picture soon to be presented at the Ritz Theatre, taken from sixty thousand feet of film photographed during the past twelve years in and around this city, some of the scenes having been shot by Fred Polacek, now assistant manager of the Ritz. It was at Mr. Polacek's insistence that he had something novel to show me that I was present at the first showing, at an hour when naught but gunmen, love-sick swains and theatrical men are abroad.

I had come to scoff, I stayed to enjoy. For it was a Barton out of the leaves of yesterday's reminiscences of the past.

For more than a decade it presented the incidents important to Big Spring's growth, beginning with twelve years ago and ending with the Boye Week campaign recently brought to a conclusion. It was a continuous news reel. The introduction was a one-reel picture enacted twelve years ago by local talent, among them Mrs. Hilda Hatch, Miss Vivian Johnson, and...

Baby Swallows Poison Tablets; Life Is Saved

Emergency treatment given immediately after Jane Beale, 2, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Beale, Government Heights, swallowed an undetermined number of strychnine tablets, saved the baby's life Monday.

According to the mother of the child, the poison had been placed in the kitchen cabinet, out of reach of the baby. She climbed on the cabinet, however, and found the bottle. It was not known how many of the tablets she swallowed. She was rushed to a doctor who administered an antidote. The baby will recover.

Hot Weather Nears Record

104 Degrees Maximum of Last Week; Beats Preceding Year

It was hot last week. And if the weather continues to be as blistering as during the last four days, the hottest June on record is to be expected.

The maximum temperature registered during the first fifteen days of June soared over that for the corresponding period for 1930.

Wednesday, the maximum temperature was 100, with the minimum, 68. Thursday the heat pushed the mercury up four degrees for a maximum of 104; the minimum standing at 73. Friday 104 was the maximum, with 71 the minimum. Saturday the mercury again rose to the 100 point, and the minimum did not fall below 71 during the 24 hours.

At the gauge located at the United States government experimental farm, the mercury was on a steady climb this morning. Two hours before noon it had neared the 100-degree mark.

Temperatures for Monday was 93, maximum; and 62, minimum; and for Tuesday, 93 maximum; and 67 minimum.

A year ago the 100 degree mark was not reached. On June 5, the maximum was 93 degrees, and on June 14, it was 92 degrees. That was as hot as it became during the corresponding period for last year.

The average for June, 1930, was a maximum of 90 degrees, a minimum of 67 degrees, and a mean temperature of 78 degrees.

So far this month the average temperature has been 96; the average minimum, 71.2, and the mean temperature, 84, or seven degrees above that for the entire month of June, 1930.

Clouds that threatened rain in Big Spring Sunday gave promise of temporary relief from the heat wave, but the "rain" terminated in a typical West Texas sandstorm.

The strong south wind blew for 30 minutes. The sun set clear, with only a few drops of rain having fallen.

Crops in this county were damaged by the heavy wind, and a number of farmers were starting replanting crops today.

Both Proponents and Opponents Discuss City Hall-Auditorium

Signed articles both supporting and opposing issuance of $200,000 in bonds to finance construction here of a city hall, auditorium, fire station and jail building were received Monday by The Herald on the eve of Tuesday's election, in which the issue will be decided.

E. A. Kelley, recognized in the utility industry as a sound statistician and analyst, is author of the article urging approval of the issue. Thirty-five citizens had attached their signatures to an article expressing reasons for opposing the issue.

E. A. Kelley Author of Appeal For Approval

Editor, Big Spring Herald:

The Municipal building program to come before the voters in Big Spring comprises two distinct projects—1st, an administration building, consisting of city hall, fire station, etc. for the conduct of the business activities of the city; and 2nd, an auditorium for the convenience and benefit of the public in the widest sense.

When the circumstances pertaining to the first of these are viewed in the light of actual figures, it is difficult to see how the plan could be objected to in principle. Seven hundred and eighty dollars per year is now being paid out by the city in rentals at standard rates for necessary storage and office space, and this without securing adequate convenience or insurance benefits. This would represent at 6 per cent, a capitalization of $15,000; and as an example of what that means, a thoroughly modern one story hotel and steel block of the best material, 50 x 140 feet, can be built for considerably less than that sum; so that if, for example, the city spent $12,000 for a building to house nearly these same few needs, it would mean the point of view of economy in saving money.

Again, that matter of nearly $800 annually covers only a few minor requirements for which there is no room in the present city quarters; yet it is equal to a considerable fraction of the annual carrying charge on that part of the bonds which would cover the city hall and fire station. Practically every large fraction who compared with the involved floor space—and this rental must go on perpetually and perhaps be increased until permanent quarters are built.

Insurance Reductions

But in addition to this, the erection of these buildings would immediately open the way for a reduction in fire insurance premiums, paid out each year by Big Spring citizens, of $6,000, and remember that this is the official figure of the state fire insurance department. A survey by the Southern Ice & Utility company in March, 1930, showed 2,278 houses or apartments in town apart from the Mexican and negro quarters. Practically every one of these residences is insured. Therefore, the construction of a city hall complex would lower the annual insurance bill of each Big Spring family by an average of $2.63. On the basis of a city tax rate to take care of $200,000 in bonds (twice such being charged, which is not the case) this reduction would more than cover the additional taxes upon a rendition of $1,000. Does the average rendition on Big Spring residential buildings amount to much more than that? It might be urged that a considerable proportion (it is much the smaller "half" however) of our insurance premiums covers business buildings and stocks rather than residents. Nevertheless, the operators of these industries live

WHO CAN VOTE

Persons eligible to vote in the $200,000 city bond election Tuesday, must have the following qualifications, according to V. H. Smith, city manager.

1. A 1931 poll tax receipt.
2. Must live within the city limits of Big Spring.
3. Must be owner or personal property subject to taxation.

Interpretation of the third qualification given by Mr. Smith, was that the property does not have to be on the tax rolls. Whether the property is rented or not, does not affect the status of tax owner. As examples of real and personal property, Mr. Smith mentioned real estate, diamond ring, radio, automobile, etc.

The question was placed before residents of Big Spring at a mass meeting held at the courthouse.

608 Signatures

When it was definitely decided the building was needed, petitions were circulated and in a very short time 608 signatures were affixed.

The petitioners asking that the election be called were given to the city commission, and the order of election followed.

A strong campaign has been waged by proponents of the issue. As a mass meeting held Thursday night, primary reasons why the bond issue should be passed were advanced. No opposition was offered at the mass meeting. Explanations regarding the manner in which the bond issue could be passed at this time without raising either the tax rate or the valuation, were given.

Proponents of the bond issue declare that erection of the structure at this time would do much to relieve the present unemployment situation. The contractor that is the successful bidder on the structure must pay common labor a minimum of forty cents an hour, and skilled labor, $1 an hour, and must use local labor. This is included in the contract.

Bare Majority

Two-thirds majority is not required to pass bond issues. Only a bare majority, even one vote, would pass the measure.

A heavy vote is expected. Although little outspoken opposition has developed much personal work has been done by a group of opponents, who based their opposition principally upon a plea that voting off this issue might interfere with a waterworks expansion program at some future date and that existing conditions did not warrant inclusion of a city auditorium in the plan.

Court At Gail—Three Criminal Cases, One Civil On Docket For Term Opening Monday.

Big Spring attorneys who find a heavily loaded criminal and civil docket with the opening of each term of district court, probably, if it were possible, would like to share a part of the work with Borden county.

Three criminal cases and one civil case awaited Judge Fritz R. Smith when he opened court at Gail today. Two of the criminal cases were for driving an automobile while intoxicated, the other was for theft.

In addition to the pending criminal cases, four await action by the grand jury, which was impaneled this morning.

Judge Smith usually handles the week's court in two days. He probably will finish his work there Tuesday afternoon.

Advertising Can Revive Business Says Tobacco Co.

NEW YORK, June 15.—News paper advertising, which ranks as a moulder of public opinion second only to news and editorials, can play an important part in reviving business confidence, says a statement issued today by the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co., manufacturers of Chesterfield cigarettes, in connection with the opening of an advertising campaign in 1,900 papers throughout the United States.

The company is one of the largest users of newspaper space and it believes that newspaper advertising can definitely assist in inspiring the same thinking and constructive planning which will lead us back to a sounder prosperity.

Based upon government census reports and other sources of information, the Liggett & Myers Company estimates the number of persons engaged in other occupations, to which this series pays tribute, as follows: Policemen, 133,000; druggists and pharmacists, 110,000; steel and iron workers, 293,000; stenographers and typists, 655,000; nurses, 123,546; physicians, 152,503; licensed air pilots, 15,305; telegraph operators, 78,434; theatrical and motion picture actors and other employees, 542,000; newspaper workers, 119,599; attorneys-at-law, 79,434; saleswomen in retail stores, 418,658.

Advertising Can Revive Business Says Tobacco Co.

Under the slogan "Good—they've got to be good!" each advertisement in the series deals with a different class of industrial or professional worker. Among the interesting facts and figures presented are the following: To operate the railroads of the country requires 1,215,809 men, a large proportion of whom are obligated to sacrifice many of the joys and comforts of home life. The central telephone office operators of the country, 155,000 in number, handle 65,000,000 calls every 24 hours. The 573,290 men and women in Uncle Sam's postoffices handle 76,480,000 pieces of mail matter every day. At the top of the gang more than half a million firemen are ready to rescue life and property.

Sterling Cuts Appropriations Near To Income

AUSTIN, June 15.—(INS)—Need for a special session of the legislature to fit expenditures of the state government to the state's income had been in large part obviated today by the blue pencil of Governor Ross Sterling, who slashed $2,801,600 from appropriation bills.

Added to this slash was the recent outright vote of the $1,000,000 appropriation bill to refund farmers in the pink boll worm quarantine area, and in the tick eradication zone, making a total cut in appropriations of $3,801,600. These heavy vetoes will reduce the estimated deficiency of the general revenue fund for the next biennium ending August 31, 1933, to approximately $2,123,811.

Sterling Cuts Appropriations Near To Income

The biennial appropriation for education suffered the deepest cuts, the items vetoed from the bill totaling $2,144,130. Comparatively, the slashes in the departmental bill was slight. The entire claims and accounts bill, appropriating $380,660, was vetoed, the governor tersely explaining there was not sufficient revenue to justify payment of miscellaneous claims against the state.

All items for new buildings at state colleges were lopped off. The legislature had appropriated approximately $1,000,000 for new buildings. From the eleemosynary bill came $171,850, and the departmental bill lost $22,150. A bill appropriating $75,000 for hospital improvements on the Goree and Wynne penitentiary farms was cut out. Statistical experts of the several state financial departments had estimated the state will have a deficiency of $5,935,411 at the end of the next biennium, the bulk of which was inherited from the present biennium.

GUARD STAMPS

AUSTIN, June 15.—(INS)—The Hill Printing Company of Waco, which was awarded the contract to print the cigarette tax stamps needed up to December 31, 1932, has promised not to take any chances on someone stealing the stamps. The company said it would have someone watching the printing at all times and would employ a special nightwatchman.

TROUSERS TABOO

WIMBLEDON, England, June 13 (AP)—Trousers, it appears, are not going to be the mode on Wimbledon's tennis court this summer. "There is no rule as to what women players may wear," said an official of the All-England club, "but I am sure that should anyone appear in trousers the matter would be discussed by the committee and they would not play on the center court."

On the other hand, Senorita de Alvarez, the Spanish player, wears trousers. "The Senorita will choose her own costume," an official of another club said, "but there is nothing startling about her dress, he plays in a form of divided skirt which looks exactly like an ordinary skirt."

Good—they've got to be good!

From coast to coast 1,215,809 railroad men [IN THE U. S. A.] get you "there" on time!

Engineers, conductors, brakemen, firemen, signalmen—here's an army whose praises are too seldom sung. Think what duty costs these "soldiers of peace" as husbands and fathers away from their homes. Think what their watchfulness means to your safety and comfort—and salute them!

You don't worry about them—you don't have to!

Sixty...seventy...eighty miles if needed. You don't worry—you know there is a sure hand at the throttle! And just as casually you light a CHESTERFIELD—knowing that every safeguard for its quality, purity and good taste has long since been per-fectured. CHESTERFIELDS are milder because they're made that way—from riper, milder tobacco and pure imported cigarette paper. You can smoke as many as you like and you'll like as many as you smoke! CHESTERFIELDS taste better.

Oil Tariff Would Expand Standard Texas Operations

In the event of a tariff or an embargo on imports of oil, the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, would have to build a refinery on the Gulf coast and pipe lines in Texas, R. G. Stewart, president, divulged last week in discussing the foreign situation with respect to the petroleum industry. With this in mind, the company already has purchased land in Texas on which a refinery can be built if the company is forced to do so, Mr. Stewart told the Chicago Tribune.

"If we are allowed to continue imports of oil from South America and Venezuela, the end of the company's development program as far as refineries is concerned is now near," Mr. Stewart explained. "There are however, many uncertain conditions with which the company has to contend, such as a tariff or embargo on imports, which may force it to continue this program." Replying to a question on dividend possibilities of the Indiana company, Mr. Stewart said "that if the company's earnings warrant, we will continue to pay dividends."

This interesting situation was developed incident to the disclosure by Mr. Stewart that the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, interests have purchased from Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Company, controlled by the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, Pan-American's holdings in the Irak Petroleum Co., Ltd., which has a concession of seventy-five years in the Irak oil field. The name of the purchaser was not given.

The New Jersey company already had a substantial interest in the Irak properties through the Near East Development Corporation formed in February, 1928, in Delaware as a holding company to acquire the 23 3/4 per cent interest in Irak Petroleum Company, Ltd., held by New Jersey Company, Standard Oil Company of New York, Gulf Oil Corporation, Atlantic Refining Company and Pan-American. The acquisition of Pan-American's interest gives the New Jersey company the largest interest in New East Development Company.

Pan-American disposed of its interest, according to the announcement, because the company had virtually no voice in the management of Irak Petroleum, and its interest in the latter's production amounted to but 2,900 barrels daily, which to be handled at a profit would have required an investment of around $5,000,000.

10-Year Democratic Plan To Meet Work Of Communists Urged

NEW YORK, June 15.—A call to American industrialists to consider feasibility of formulating a 10-year blooded 10-year plan of democratic idealism, to meet "the cold-blooded Communist five-year plan," was issued by James W. Gerard, chairman of the commission on industry and inquiry of the National Civic Federation.

Gerard acted on the suggestion of Matthew Woll, vice-president of the American Federation of Labor and acting president of the National Civic Federation, who in a letter to Gerard declared the time had come for American industry to map out a 10-year program in an effort to eliminate recurrence of economic depression and instability.

The former Ambassador to Germany, in a circular letter to more than 500 manufacturers, finance and labor organizations, has proposed that congress of American industry be held soon to determine how best to act upon Woll's suggestions.

The labor leaders plans, Gerard states, "may change the whole course of our national history and affect for all time the well-being of our great Nation and its people." Gerard asks industrialists to make known their attitude to the proposed program.

"Economic readjustment is as necessary as the air we breathe," Woll wrote in his letter to Gerard, "if our Nation is to perform the first essentials of nationhood."

"The great depression now upon us after two years has forced us to the conclusion that the time for action has arrived, so that the hopes of men may be translated into deeds of a character that will maintain for America that magnificent leadership in the whole field of human well-being that was asserted in 1776 and that has never been lost."

"It is important that we strive to create working machinery to promote social safety and economic stability."

"I see no sufficient gain to be derived out of anything less than a tremendous effort. I see no sufficient good to be gained through creeping with undue caution. The trials of our time do not permit long waiting."

displays of the universe are usually led to do so by an examination of the follies, cruelties and stupidities of their fellow men, and not by contemplating the empty heavens. There is more to be gained by studying a city slum than in all the books of physical science ever written.

Yet there is comfort in this, as science, nevertheless. We are not exactly rational, and the simple fact that life may have been reserved exclusively for our own little corner of the cosmos makes us feel that our bright dreams of our own importance may, after all, be justified. Science, which has told us for so many years that we are less than the dust, suddenly turns about and finds that we are very rare phenomena.

To be sure, we know it all the time—or, at any rate we suspected it. The finest minds that the earth has produced have always said so; more, they have, by their mere existence, proved it. They have told us that we do not owe our existence to accident, but that we are here miraculously, with all of creation as a check-drop for our slow climb upward. We do not really need a scientist to tell us that life is not a common or an insignificant thing in the universe. But it is comforting to have one say so, just the same.

HOW'S your HEALTH?

COLLAPSING THE LUNG

Pneumothorax is by far the most common of the surgical procedures employed in the treatment of tuberculosis of the chest. Pneumothorax, as the name implies, means air in the chest cavity. It consists of the injection of a gas into the space between the chest wall and the lung proper.

The gases ordinarily used for pneumothorax are nitrogen and more commonly, filtered air. The injection is made by inserting a hollow needle through the muscles and the pleural layer of the chest wall and pumping air into what is known as the pleural space.

This procedure has the effect of collapsing the lung. In uncomplicated cases, this operation is a simple one and without danger. In a complete pneumothorax, the lung shrinks to an astonishing degree and gathers up into a beaded mass around its roots, the bronchi.

In this condition the collapsed lung is at rest. It no longer expands and contracts under the influence of the breathing movements.

From 200 to 300 cubic centimeters of gas are injected. The gas is gradually absorbed and disappears and with the decline of pressure the lung tends to re-expand.

In order to keep the lung collapsed, it becomes necessary from time to time to refill the pleural space with new gas.

When the lung is healed, and no more gas is injected, the lung may re-expand to its normal size. It then functions normally.

In addition to being employed as a measure of treatment for the tuberculous proper, pneumothorax may also be used in the control of cases with repeated hemorrhages, or as an emergency measure in cases of severe hemorrhage where life is endangered.

Hollywood Sights

By ROBBIN SOONS
HOLLYWOOD—Movie stars, many of whom have been notably generous that way in the past, now are being asked by their employers to help train competition for themselves.

Every new comer to a studio contract list is, of course, a potential threat to the position of its established stars, just as every rookie who joins a baseball camp in the spring may (just possibly) oust a veteran by midsummer or the next year.

The diamond veterans nevertheless are called on by their bosses to help the rookies, and that is what is happening on some of the movie lots.

Couching Film Recruits
William LeBaron of Radio, for instance, recently issued orders that the company's stars as well as directors should lend attention to helping the young players working on their sets.

This studio has a large stock company of very youthful players, many of them with scarcely any experience, who can profit by pointers from Richard Dix, Durré Lee, Mary Astor, Irene Dunne, Lowell Sherman and the others.

With the general trend toward signing all prospective young talent of promise, however untrained, some of the studios have designated certain of their players as instructors. Warner's thus had Ivan Simpson, and Fox has Minna Gombel of the stake.

Many stars have carried the gratitude of lesser players through their generosity in assisting them during their first struggles with the camera.

Mad Pursuit

BY JESSIE DOUGLAS FOX

SYNOPSIS: Nora Lake's dream of happiness is blasted when her father, Julian, exhibits his own mad pursuit of the paintings left in his keeping by the painter, Nicholas Thayer, her deceased husband. As a result, her engagement to Nicholas' brother, Jonathan, is off and he wed his step-sister, Damon, whose charges of Nora's complicity in the fraud he had echoed. Young Dr. More, whose office is in her Aunt Emily's house, is sympathetic when she returns to her drab life there, Frances, her cousin, with two children abandoned by her husband, is ill in a distant sanatorium, and her crippled sister, Helene, has literary hopes so far as profitable. Nora's job helps the family budget after Fran has to stop work.

Chapter 29

A TRIP TO THE PARK

Nora was pulling the cover on her typewriter. Miss Brown stopped to ask her in a sympathetic voice what she had heard from Fran lately.

"The doctor told me if she were very careful she could live to be an old woman," Nora said, trying to pull the typewriter cover on straight. But she did not say what Fran had added, "Who wants to be careful with life?"

Martha Brown was in the bookkeeping department, a plain woman with an overcasty face. She had called Nora to the cover with efficient fingers and confided shyly, "I like to pretend my desk in my house and keep it in order all day. When I close the drawers at night and cover my typewriter I say to myself 'I'm putting the children to bed.'" She flushed painfully but Nora was not laughing at her, but regarding her gently.

They went downstairs together. Miss Brown continued to chatter, letting Nora about her mother. "She's wonderful, really. I wish you could know her. Takes an interest in everything and asks about everyone in the office when I get home. In the evening we have the pleasant time. We turn on the radio for dinner music and I tell Mama it's just as though we were having dinner in a big hotel."

They parted at the bottom of the stairs and Nora watched her darning away in and out of the crowd. Now the moment could be evaded no longer. For Nora could almost see Jon's face with its pale, clear-cut features. He seemed to be walking beside her, even though she hurried. There was no escape. She knew now that Jon was variable and weak, but the longing for Gloria Swanson practically insisted John Holes into camera acting when she took him from the stage for one of her films, and Lawrence Gray, who thrived during the musical film era, credits her with teaching him all the rudiments of the art.

Mary a "Godmother" George Fawcett has been the screen godfather of Johnny Mack Brown, criticizing his work and giving many helpful suggestions. And Charles Rogers still is grateful to Mary Pickford for her hints to him on camera technique when, at the beginning of his screen career, he played with her in "My Best Girl."

Maurice Chevalier not only "discovered" Frances Dee, the extra girl, and insisted on having her for his leading lady in "Playboy of Paris," but assisted her in the tough spots of his role.

Richard Barthelmess frequently and deliberately throws scenes the way of his supporting actors.

He looked into her passionate, rebellious face that seemed so young and soft under her hat brim. "You're not happy, are you, Nora?"

"I'll never be happy."

"What does it matter anyway? I used to think one had to be happy to get anything out of life but now I know you can do very well without it. Work and struggle and hope are left."

"And love!" she thought with a pang. But she did not say it aloud.

"I loved John Thayer," Nora said. He loved me. He's married," she ended abruptly.

Fergus knew her well enough not to offer her sympathy.

He left her at the door. Alice came tearing down the hall.

"Take us to the park, Nora," Alice cried, Dickie piping after her.

Nora bundled the children into the coats and went out, Dickie tagging at her hand, Alice skipping beside her and the dog Petie Baker leaping about.

In the park the trees were shimmering under ice, the shrubs were hooded with snow and the paths crunched under her feet. The children went mad with delight, running, falling, screaming while Nora raced beside them. A tall thin man passed them and returning to pass again, his eyes on the children. Alice raced on ahead and when Nora came up to her she heard Alice talking companionably to him.

"I'm six. How old are you?" Alice asked him.

Nora saw he was a dark fellow with a plain, likeable face. He glanced indifferently past Nora to Dickie, his eyes clinging hungrily to the child.

"Dickie," he urged, "come here!"

The little boy stood, staring, his dark eyes under their lashes lifted trustingly to the stranger. The man lifted the child in his arms and Dickie began to chuckle in his friendly way.

"Come children, it's time to go home," Nora said.

The lamps were lighted and cast long yellow streaks over the snow. He but Dickie down and watched him scamper away. He turned to Nora. He took off his hat, she saw his hair was turning gray.

"I'm their father," he said. "I've seen you before. I've haunted Dove Street, but I've never seen Frances."

Nora looked at him, hotly defiant. She detested this David Lindsay who had deserted Frances and left his children to struggle on as best they could. Perhaps he was going to try to take them away from Frances now. He blue eyes blazed at him.

"No, you've never seen Frances. You wouldn't."

Where is she?" he implored, and the sudden anguish in his face made Nora look away.

"She's in a sanatorium in the mountains."

"Tell me!" His lips twisted, his eyes implored her to go on. "Is she all right?"

Let him have it then. Nothing that he would ever suffer could make up for the days and weeks and months that Fran had gone uncomplainingly to work; for her final defeat, for her separation from her children.

She told him of Fran's cough, how at first she had laughed about it, and finally of her going away to a sanatorium in the mountains.

"She's been there two months now," Nora ended.

"God," David said to himself. "I don't wonder that you despise me. I deserve it all," he said savagely as the children ran along in front of them. "I was mad about Frances. We ran away, you know. The children came and there were debts. I used to come home doctored from the day's assignment. And I began to drink. Oh, well, you know the rest. Fran has told you."

"She told me a little."

"I lost my job and I went to New York and drifted about for a time. Then I got an assignment on another paper. I sent Fran money but the letter came back Address Unknown. But these last months I couldn't stand it. I came here and I've been hankering about trying to catch a glimpse of Fran. Then tonight I saw you start out with the children and I knew my chance had come. Now I'm going to do something."

COOKING CROQUETTES AND ROASTING COFFEE HAVE MUCH IN COMMON

Success Depends Upon the Rule—A Little at a Time

Careful cooks do not crowd too many croquettes into the hot fat because they lower the temperature and then absorb grease. Cooking a few at a time prevents this.

In roasting coffee there is similar difficulty when too much is roasted at once. It is impossible to control the heat and often, as a result, part of the batch is overdone and part underdone. This causes variation in flavor.

Hills Bros., following the rule in the croquette recipe, roast only a few pounds of coffee at a time by their patented, continuous process—Controlled Roasting. There is no variation in the roast because there is accurate control of the heat, also of the flow of coffee through the roasters. A rare, uniform flavor is developed such as no other coffee has.

Grocers everywhere sell Hills Bros. Coffee in vacuum cans that keep it fresh. Air, which destroys the flavor of coffee, is removed from the cans when they are packed, and kept out. Ordinary cans, even if air-tight, do not keep coffee fresh. Ask for Hills Bros. Coffee by name and look for the Arab—the trade-mark—on the can.

Hills Bros. Coffee, Inc., Kansas City, Missouri.

"I can't bear it," Nor cried, "it makes life too sad."

"But life is sad, Nora."

She was startled. He seemed suddenly so much older and wiser; and she knew it was because he loved Fran and saw no future for them.

"But I wouldn't give it up for anything," he told her, smiling suddenly. "It's the struggle and the pain that makes the rest beautiful."

"Beautiful?" she whispered.

Let him have it then. Nothing that he would ever suffer could make up for the days and weeks and months that Fran had gone uncomplainingly to work; for her final defeat, for her separation from her children.

She told him of Fran's cough, how at first she had laughed about it, and finally of her going away to a sanatorium in the mountains.

Banker Reviews Value Of City's Large Auditorium

Taken from the files of E. V. Spence, formerly city manager of San Angelo, the following letter, in which Charles W. Hobbs, president of the San Angelo National Bank expresses the opinion San Angelo's city auditorium has proven to be worth all that the city paid for it. It has been forwarded to The Herald:

Mr. E. V. Spence, Western Reserve Life Building, San Angelo, Texas. Dear Mr. Spence: I want to write a few words of appreciation and commendation for the important part that you had as city manager of San Angelo in securing the present city hall and auditorium, which has been the object of more admiration perhaps than any one thing that I know of that San Angelo has done, and has been the means of not only adding to the beauty, but the real estate value of the city in many ways. And in my opinion, is worth all that the city has had to pay for it, and as a matter of fact, I do not see how we could possibly have gotten along without it.

The auditorium not only provides offices for all of the city administration, but as an auditorium has been used for so many varied purposes, we have been able to hold conventions in our city that could not possibly have been accommodated without it. Theatre entertainments and attractions of the first magnitude that have paid well, and could not possibly have been accommodated were it not for this splendid structure.

I feel that you should be personally congratulated for your part in securing this splendid building.

With my very kind personal regards, I beg to remain,

Yours very truly,
CHARLES W. HOBBS,
President.

Living History
It was more like a living history than a motion picture. Part of the city demolished by fire, New Airport dedicated, cameramen photograph trip to Tulsa by air, first Spring Steer loss Armistice Day game to Sweetwater, Mustangs prominent victor, prairie Big Spring, Boy Scouts parade in high school stadium, Boy Scout Hut dedicated. It was like the headlines of a hundred newspapers save that the stories were acted instead of written.

Rail Plan Soon To Be Submitted

WASHINGTON, June 15.—The Easting four-system railroad consolidation proposal is expected by railroad representatives here to reach the Interstate Commerce Commission before July 1.

Only the "ragged edges" of the plan remain to be smoothed out, it was learned today from an authoritative source, and these are expected to yield at a meeting soon of executives of the New York Central, Pennsylvania, Baltimore and Ohio and Van Sweringen. Immediately afterward, it was said, the petition for commission approval may be expected.

Final disposition of the larger problems of the consolidation plan was announced Friday night after a meeting in New York.

Some questions, such as the final payment of the Van Sweringen stock along the south shore of Lake Erie—George F. State, arbitrator of this problem, is to report at the next meeting of the executives.

The exact form the petition will take has not been announced. There may be two. The first would ask amendment of the commission's consolidation plan announced December 9, 1924, whereby five systems were suggested—four of which were approved.

This petition would contain the outline of the four proposed systems. The other would ask formal approval of the proposed setup and outline how the roads plan to control and operate the lines.

Many lines involved already are owned or controlled by the systems which they are allotted by the consolidation. The Baltimore and Ohio owns the Chicago and Alton, the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh. It has a petition before the commission for approval of the acquisition of the Chicago and Alton road already has been authorized to control the two other lines.

The Van Sweringens control all of the principal lines assigned to the Chesapeake and Ohio-Nickel Plate except the Lehigh alley, controlled by the Pennsylvania company, and the Bessemer and Lake Erie, owned by the United States Steel Corporation.

They also control the Pittsburgh and West Virginia, which under the plan is to be controlled jointly by the four systems, along with the Lehigh and New England, Delaware and Hudson, the Monongahela and the Pittsburgh, Chartiers and Youghiogheny.

The plan dismembers the commission's proposed fifth Eastern system, known as the Wabash-Seaboard, and will affect two lines outside the plan. It takes the Chicago and Eastern Illinois from the Chicago and Northwestern system and transfers it to the Nickel Plate. The Lehigh and Hudson River would be transferred from the New Haven to the Baltimore and Ohio.

Four steel columns weighing 1,200 pounds to the foot, the largest ever fabricated in the south, recently were shipped from Birmingham to Baton Rouge for the new Louisiana state house.

BOAT RAMS CATFISH; RESULT—CATFISH STEALS

DEPRESSION A BLESSING TO YOUTH, SAYS EDUCATOR

ATLANTA, Ga., June 15. (INS).—The period of economic depression has proved a veritable gift to older people by enabling them to help the younger generation in finding its better self," according to Dr. J. R. McCain, president of Agnes Scott College here.

"Not only at Agnes Scott, but at many colleges it has been found that the depression has brought and its spoonbill was 18 inches higher grades better and more conking. It was believed to have stam study, and at evident desire been the largest spoonbill catfish to make full use of college training ever pulled out of the river here."

Lovely Nuptial Ceremony Unites Two

Miss Elizabeth Crain Married to J. R. Cravens of El Paso

Miss Elizabeth Crain was married to James R. Craven, Jr., of El Paso, Sunday morning with a lovely ring ceremony at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Crain. The Rev. W. G. Bailey pronounced the ceremony. The bride was becomingly attired in a tulle model of pink chiffon with matching accessories. She carried a bouquet of pink rosebuds and baby's breath. When she handed her bouquet to her maid of honor it was passed on to Mrs. Crain.

Miss Mildred Creath was her only attendant. She was dressed in a lovely summer gown of green organdy and wore a corsage of pink sweetpeas.

The floral decorations, as well as the colors of the gowns, carried out the bride's favorite colors of green and pink. Ferns and cut flowers were used profusely. A beautiful altar was arranged of pink roses and ferns in one corner of the living room.

Only members of the family and close friends attended the ceremony.

After the ceremony a wedding breakfast of coffee and wedding cake was served. Then the young couple left immediately for a motor trip to Clouderoft and Ruidoso. The bride's going-away costume was an attractive blue silk crepe suit with a tan lace blouse and tan accessories.

The wedding was the climax of a romance that began in Big Spring seven years ago when the groom and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Craven, made their home here.

The bride is a graduate of the Big Spring high school and attended McMurry for a year. Since then she has been employed in Mellinger's store.

The groom is the general manager of the El Paso Brick Co. The young people will make their home in El Paso.

Visit Boy Scout Camp

Council Members Find Boys Happy And Healthful In Madera Canyon

Many local members of the Buffalo Trails Council spent the week-end in Madera Canyon, in the Davis Mountains, at the Boy Scout camp enjoying the hospitality of the camp and checking up on camp conditions.

A regular old time barbecue was served to the boys and their visitors Sunday. Mr. Splitzger, of Balmorhea, furnished and supervised the barbecuing of two Brahmas beefs.

This is the first year the camp has been held in this particular spot. The invitation was extended from the Madera Valley Luncheon Club with the understanding that the site would cost nothing. After the invitation was accepted the owners made a charge of $100 for the use of it. The Madera Valley Luncheon Club members and citizens of Balmorhea paid this amount and said nothing about it until it was discovered by the Council.

The council members found the boys enjoying the camp site and making the most of its varied opportunities for hiking, swimming and other Boy Scout activities.

Pure Water Supply
The camp is located on the main stream of the Canyon. It has a plentiful supply of good running water. The valley, at this spot, is wide and well shaded with a native live oak. On both sides high cliffs rise several thousand feet. One of the ranges separates the camp from the Madera Mountain Club.

The sun is fairly hot in the middle of the day but the camp is cool at night and breezy. As is the rule in the Davis Mountains, there are frequent summer showers, which are helpful in settling the dust and keeping the location cool and pleasant. A short heavy rainstorm fell during the program that followed the dinner Sunday. Visitors and boys crowded under the mess hall tent which is made with a tarpaulin roof covering a wooden frame. The shower was soon over and created no disturbance in the camp life.

There has been the most successful, in point of numbers, of any summer camp. Instead of the 100 Boy Scouts expected, which was regarded as a generous number there were 152 at the camp the first week, during the second week there will be 100 and during the third week there will be less.

Popular Camp
Most of the boys who went up to stay for a day or two extended their stay to a week and more. The council members were unanimous in wishing some of the boy's parents could see the splendid discipline and the training which the camp offered. They would make some surprising discoveries, it was said. The boys were well behaved, said the Scout executives, A. C. and Marcus Williamson. The visitors could see for themselves how well kept the tents were.

The swimming pool provided water of several depths, commencing with a very shallow pool for the little fellows and following the canyon to some small waterfalls. Some of it was shaded by overhanging rocks. The men who went in were very enthusiastic over its possibilities, its only objection being its distance from the camp.

The Pecos Campfire Girls expect to occupy the camp when the Boy Scouts leave.

Many Advantages
The council members all expressed their surprise at the number of advantages the camp offered. Some of them had heard complaints from local boys about the place and were partly prejudiced against it. They said that it was, however, proving to be one of the most successful camps they had ever seen and that the disadvantages were small and were being taken care of as fast as they could get around to them.

Miss R. Adams And G. Guilkey Marry Sunday

Steal Surprise On Friends By Going To New Mexico

Miss Rosalind Adams and Glenn Guilkey were married Sunday afternoon in Carlsbad, New Mexico. The announcement came as a surprise to many of their friends.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Adams, of Coahoma. She was graduated from the Big Spring high school and has since made her home with her sister, Mrs. Alfred Collins. She has been employed as bookkeeper for the Collins Bros. drug stores for the last two years.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Guilkey, of Independence, Kans. He attended the University of Kansas and was in the advertising business in Independence before he came to this city. He was advertising manager for the Big Spring Weekly News, from the start of the paper until a few months ago when he joined the advertising staff of the Big Spring Daily Herald.

Mr. and Mrs. Guilkey are making their home at the Crawford hotel.

SCHUMANN-HEINK SAYS
SINGING AVERYS TROUBLE
SAN FRANCISCO.—(INS)—Young folks in the United States have no chance to sing. They should be kept singing to keep out of trouble. Thus believes Madame Schumann-Heink, who is 70 this June and still a world famous famous singer.

"Why can they not have great choruses where all may come and sing? All young people love to sing—but where can they go?" she asks.

"Teach them the great opera choruses—not jazz—that will pass. There should be a big hall where a chorus master teaches. Look at all the great movie theaters; and where do the young people go afterwards? For what—without a chorus?" The young people are not bad, but they look for excitement. Keep them busy, singing, singing. They will love it."

Madame Schumann-Heink says she will always sing.

Memorial Services Held By Brotherhood Especially Impressive

The memorial service held by the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and the Ladies Auxiliary in the First Methodist Church Sunday evening was well attended and beautifully carried out to the smallest detail.

The heart of the memorial service consisted of a reading of a special poem composed for the occasion by Miss Verena Barnes. The Rev. W. D. Bailey read the poem. On the pulpit was a large white cross studded with lights, one large light for the members of the national association who has passed away within the last year and six smaller lights for the members of the two local organizations who have died in recent years.

Brother Bailey called their names the lights, beginning with the large one, were extinguished.

The singing of the song "The Old Rugged Cross" was especially beautiful. This was the favorite of Mrs. Mary Wooster, the only member of the local groups who died during the past year. It was sung by the Methodist male quartet.

At the beginning of the program which was carried out according to the announcement, the Brotherhood and the Auxiliary marched in from the rear, headed by B. N. Ralph and Mrs. Anna Shaw carrying large baskets of flowers. The members of the program marched in from the front at the same time and took their seats on the platform.

After the benediction the song "God Be With You Till We Meet Again" was softly sung.

The flowers were distributed after the close of the meeting, among the officiating ministers.

In the captions which appeared under the Herald pictures Sunday, the names of two of the officers were mixed. They were Mrs. Esther Powell and Mrs. Annie Morgan.

Proration For Hobbs Field Is Again Favored

SANTA FE, N. M., June 15.—The general sentiment of the oil conference yesterday was that proration should be continued in the Hobbs pool, Governor Arthur S. Sweeney said today.

ceiving its full share of the daily oil market, and blamed the absence of proration in East Texas for the present market slump. He said he believes some kind of organization for delivery marketing will be developed there soon.

that there has been a reduction of ten cents a barrel in certain portions of Texas and if that should spread to New Mexico the price at Hobbs would be cut from 32 1/2 cents a barrel to 22 1/2 cents, with proportionate reduction in royalties to the state.

the Atlantic, California, the Pacific, and New Mexico has to absorb the difference in the freight or pipe line transportation rates, which is a handicap to price.

which in our case in 1935 will be $12,725 and then successively less and less as the year goes on. But remember that the recent convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce of Lubbock left not five, but fifty thousand dollars in the city.

The fear has been expressed that the existence of this bond issue might deprive us of the possibility of meeting necessities for an extension of the city water service during the next few years, in answer to which City Manager Smith has shown of the basis of figures on whose essential exactitude and conservatism—assuming a city rendition value not sinking too deeply below the present one—can be checked by anyone, that after the lapse of five years there would be no legal or financial restriction against our raising even a half million dollars for water purposes.

Here again I must speak of what I know rather than of a fiscal future concerning which I might be deceived. The immediate future of Big Spring, say for the next ten years and with a population not advancing beyond about 12,000 by that time, will not be served the best by impounding water behind dams at huge expense and with the attendant uncertainty as to whether these dams would fit in time, considering the regular occurrence of drought, but by extension of the present system of deriving water from wells driven into the Trinity sands, over new areas farther and farther to the southeast. The "apexes" or sub-surface bowls in the stratification of the rocks, which are yielding our present water supply are not the only ones. If one such well is pumped exhaustively for a year and then allowed to rest for two or three years while other wells in their turn are being pumped, it will recuperate and thus secure the city of a permanent water supply. To acquire water rights on a square mile of new territory, land a main two miles to it, and sink and equip twenty wells in the area will cost around $150,000, so that one such area could be opened each year for more than a ten successive years before a half million dollars is reached. However, that number would never be necessary with anything remotely approaching our present population. Two more successful areas, they made it plain that they had been building up this trade for ten years and that failure to raise even one train might totally ruin the whole position which they had laboriously gained. When we argued that we had a surplus production in Ranger, Fort Worth and Dallas, which was being successfully raised in and that we had taken care of a movement of six thousand cantaloupe cars in the previous year without a single delay, Mr. Somerville replied, "Yes, you got by; but we must have it so that failure is impossible." So we built a three-thousand-ton storage destroying our boilers and steam engine and scrapping an ice tank in order to make room. The cantaloupe crop fell below estimate and upon its conclusion we still had on hand a thousand tons of white ice unsuitable for any use except re-icing. Was the investment squandered, and did we defy principles of cautious economy? Quite the contrary. When the present season's cantaloupe movement began, instead of the T. & P. receiving 25 per cent of the loads reaching El Paso it was allotted 32 1/2 per cent, and the confidence engendered by our ice storage, coupled with the efficient operation of the railroad, made all the difference between revenue for the road and wages to a multitude of train crew members to come on the one hand and the destruction of both on the other.

Not First Year
Of course the enterprise did not pay for the first year; but it put is in position to enjoy the fruits of foresight and true economy in the long run, and saved the day for many and many a Big Spring railroad family.

Now this too applies accurately to the proposal of a city auditorium. When the present depression has passed, as it will, that city in any region which is the best equipped for modern demands will be the one which first emerges and starts forward; and it is perfectly common knowledge—that no city can now hope to attract and to enjoy the best or even to carry on its own affairs best—nor even to have its hotels enjoy their proper patronage—which does not possess a municipal auditorium, free to the citizens, chargeable to strangers, equipped to act as the central heart of all the community's affairs and to offer to the coming generations the business, the educational and the artistic advantages which can only be secured by those who are prepared for them. Respectfully, here, and the per capita proportion as an illustration, remains true.

It is, however, the Municipal Auditorium against which perhaps more criticism is just now being leveled, and which would seem to be less widely understood, and yet the lack of this is the one greatest obstacle remaining across the path of our city's progress in all worthwhile things. Up to the time that Big Spring attained a population of about 4,000 it possessed a theater which sufficed for most public needs; but from the disappearance of that building, a matter of many years ago, up to this present day, every advantage of music, lecture, or drama (except those enterprises which travel with their own tents) must pass us by, and every gathering of our own people or conventions of outsiders, reaching as much as 500 participants remains an impracticability. I question whether many of our people realize what a tremendous handicap this means, not only to adults but in far greater measure to the coming generation; for in consequence of this deficiency we are debared from just those things which distinguish the city and its cultural advantages from the stagnant rural town.

Comparison
I am reminded of my boyhood days in Philadelphia, which at that time already counted 300,000 inhabitants. The "Academy of Music" was then, and we can almost say still is, the one large auditorium with ample stage facilities, which permitted the production of grand opera, the performance of symphony concerts, the delivery of lectures like those of the famous Stoddard course, and the holding of great political assemblages, balls, and local public gatherings of every kind. Now, for a moment, let us turn to New York. The Metropolitan Opera House in New York assumed the functions or performed the service for all imaginable higher influences on a population which it has been the high privilege of the Academy of Music to exert for 75 years. In our own measure that is just what a publicly owned civic center can do for Big Spring in redeeming us from provincialism, developing an instinctive local patriotism and enabling us to understand each other better through public conference rather than to continue in the mutual distrust and defamations which lack of knowledge on the one hand and the practices of the demagogue on the other invariably engender.

Material Side
On the merely material side, the lucrative character of a civic auditorium, properly sized and equipped is no longer a matter of theory. Inquiries in the city's possession bring the invariable answer, that, in practice, they pay for their own upkeep through rentals derived from commercial users. But the one surpassing source of their pecuniary benefit to a town lies in their use for conventions, and here I am familiar with one which I am familiar with.

The annual convention of the Southwestern Ice Manufacturers' Association, lasting three days is usually attended by about three hundred members, 200 men and 50 ladies. Each one of the men paid a registration fee of $10, constituting a fund for a size which completely relieves the local committee from the necessity of raising any entertainment money. Apart from some small administrative and printing expenses every cent is spent in the town where the convention is held. The entertainment usually includes three banquets and luncheons, leaving two nights each day, together with hotel lodging, to be paid individually by the members. Such a convention leaves a minimum of $500 cash in its town. It is one of the little ones, yet how few of even these would suffice to place in the hands of the public, not merely interest on the building investment in an auditorium, but a sum far outweighing the annual service of the entire band issue.
