Fijis Given Fine, Social Probation

The Interfraternity Council Court Wednesday night found Phi Gamma Delta fraternity guilty of four charges, levied a $350 fine and placed the organization on social probation for the remainder of this semester.

Probation will not apply to intramural sports, however. The Fijis had been charged by the Office of the Dean of Student Life for having an unscheduled, unsponsored, outside the city limits party at which alcoholic beverages were served.

The Fijis had pled not guilty to all four charges on the grounds that the party was not organized by the fraternity and that it was not a "social function" as defined in the Code of Student Affairs.

In rendering the decision the court said, "It is the belief of this court that a term such as 'social function' is and has to be stated in rather general terms to cover all occurrences that this term must relate to."

In other action at the Interfraternity Council meeting in Alpha Tau Omega lodge, President Larry Strickland appointed a five-member standards committee to serve as a police force for the council. He appointed Bob Chrismer, Jim Killen, Ziggy Nicholson, Jack Andrews and Alan Murray to serve on the committee for the remainder of the semester.

Plans were also finalized for the IFC's annual Easter Egg hunt which will take place Sunday at 3 p.m. on the lawn of the Home Management House.

At Mock Trial

Vacker Found Innocent Of Murder

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following story is written in conjunction with the Pre-Law Society mock trial.

Cadet Col. Bob Vacker was found innocent of murder charges Wednesday night in the Texas Tech Pre-Law Society's mock trial.

Vacker had been accused of ordering the murder of Student Association President Roland Anderson March 23 by firing squad in the middle of Memorial Circle.

Defense attorneys, including Jack Leebrick, chief defense attorney, Lyn McClellan and Max Triplett, based their case on the testimony of Air Force officers Capt. Tony Jones and Maj. Stephen Vonpuhl.

Disagree With Policy

They connected the officers with Project Easter, a wide-scale plan to overthrow the government because of disagreement with foreign policy.

The defense used the arguments that Vacker had been trying to protect Anderson when another cadet officer involved in the coup, Winston King, took command of the guards and had them form a firing squad for the execution.

Prosecution attorneys said that charges of treason and perjury would be brought against Vonpuhl and Jones in connection with their work with Project Easter, which had been uncovered by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents earlier in the month.

Prosecuting attorneys were Elata Ely, chief attorney, Frank McLaughlin and Bruce Pope, assistant. They relied upon Vacker's alleged lover, Mozelle Hopkins, and Terry McCoy, both eye-witnesses to the execution.

Judge Reads Charges

Chris Hickey, presiding judge, in reading the charges, said "that in order to warrant a conviction of murder, the jury must be satisfied from the evidence, beyond a reasonable doubt, that the homicide was committed by the defendant at the time with the specific intent to kill."

Two witnesses were disqualified during the trial, and their testimony was stricken from the record. One of the prosecution witnesses, Jim Story, was ruled insane and incapable of rational thought at the time of his testimony by a previous court order.

A defense witness, G. W. Bailey, was provisionally disqualified because of a previous indictment SUCCESSFUL ATTORNEYS—Defense attorneys Lyn McClellan, Max Triplett and Jack Leebrick, head attorney, study their case in behalf of Cadet Col. Bob Vacker, right. Vacker was acquitted of a charge of murder in the annual Pre-Law Society mock trial Wednesday night.

Senate To Consider Instructor Evaluation

Dr. Smith To Lecture Tonight

Dr. Huston Smith, third member of the University Speakers Series, will speak tonight at 7:15 in the Tech Ballroom on "The Nature of Man—Some Recent Evidences from Science."

Dr. Smith, professor of philosophy at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, is the author of four books: "The Religions of Man," "The Purposes of Higher Education," "The Search for America," and "Condemned to Meaning."

In "The Religions of Man," Dr. Smith explored the origins, history, tenets and modern values of the world religions, including Hinduism, Buddhism, Confucianism, Taoism, Islam, Judaism and Christianity.

Dr. Smith, son of missionary parents, was born and reared in China. He is a graduate of Central College in Missouri, receiving his doctoral degree from the University of Chicago in 1945.

The Student Senate will either pass or reject a detailed plan for Course and Instructor Evaluation tonight.

The plan, which would allow students to evaluate their instructors and courses at the end of each semester and then compile these evaluations into a booklet, was brought up at the first of the spring semester but has been delayed pending further study and development of details.

Gary Rose, chairman of the Course and Instructor Evaluation Committee which instigated the plan, will give a detailed account of how the system will work, how evaluations will be made and how the booklet will be compiled.

Members To Report

Two other committee members, Ronnie Brown and Suzy Crain, will report on aspects of the system which they researched.

If the evaluation plan passes, students will have an opportunity sometime near the end of this semester to evaluate their courses and instructors on IBM cards. These evaluations will be processed and a booklet will be compiled and sold next fall.

Three students will be appointed by the executive officers to compile the booklet this summer and the Senate will allocate funds to pay these students for their work.

Will Hear Committees

The Senate will also hear six committee reports from members of the executive branch of student government. These include Bill Beuck, Southwest Conference Sportsmanship; Penny May, Academic Recruiting; Andy Wilson, Athletic Recruiting; Ernie Cowger, Board of Student Organizations; G. W. Bailey, Artists Course; and Collier Perry, Speakers Committee.

Senate committee reports include Jerry Rawls, Allocations; Mac Johnson, Senate Retreat; and Bill Beuck, Government Day.

The Senate will meet at 7 p.m. in the Biology Auditorium.

No. 9 To Sell Car Seat Belts

Bill Evans, public relations director for Men's No. 9, announced yesterday a seat belt drive would be sponsored by the dorm Saturday.

Evans said residents of Men's No. 9 would be selling metal to metal seat belts from 9 a.m. to noon and 1-5 p.m. Saturday.

Traffic-Security will block off the section of Memorial Circle in front of the Administration Building for installation of the belts. They will cost $6 each.

Dissenters Defended By Forum Speaker

"Dissenters in time of crisis perform a great service for democracy by asking questions that need to be asked and by forcing society to look at itself," Texas Tech students were told at Wednesday's Noon Forum.

Frank Simpson, teaching assistant in history, was the speaker at the forum discussion, one of a series held on alternate Wednesdays under sponsorship of Tech Union Ideas and Issues Committee.

Decrying what he called "the fetish of middle class respectability," he cited dangers inherent in a mass society in which people tend to identify themselves according to groups.

"Engulfed in organizations, we mold ourselves to fit society, rather than the other way around.

As we become more conventional, dissent becomes increasingly difficult."

Crisis also produces a "crisis mentality."

"Anti-communist paranoia tends to create a climate of opinion which makes relativistic debate impossible," he said. "Concerning the war in Viet Nam, for example, we need to debate power politics, the efficacy of a containment policy, not the morality of our position."

In concluding his talk on "Another Tired American," Simpson described himself as being "tired of self righteousness and attempts to force into limbo those people who have courage to speak out for what they believe, those who have recognized the importance of individual commitment."

Profs To Attend Meetings

Dr. Bill C. Lockhart, professor and head of the department of applied arts in Texas Tech's School of Home Economics, will head Tech delegations at two professional meetings this week, the sixth annual National Art in Home Economics Conference which opens today in Ames, Iowa, and the Western Art Association Biennial Conference April 2-7 in Houston.

Dr. Lockhart is a member of the NAHEC executive council. He has been nominated for president-elect of WAA and currently is chairman of the WAA State Information Studies Committee.

Mrs. Ethel Jane Beitler of the applied arts department, also will participate in the Ames, Iowa meeting.

At the WAA conference, Dr. Clarence E. Kincaid will serve on a research panel and will present a demonstration on use of concept machines, assisted by Richard Cheatham. Frank Kriwanek will demonstrate a program on "Ceramics in Junior High Schools," based on research he is conducting in public school art programs.

Jack Davis, chairman of Research Implementation at Junior High Level, also will participate in a series of demonstration sessions. Miss Mickey Fay Story will coordinate group demonstrations on stitchery.

Stanley Madeja, chairman of demonstration sessions, will chair a panel on New Media and will present a research paper at the Houston conference.

Approximately 1,200 art teachers and administrators from the 18 states comprising the western region are expected to attend.

The Union Executive Council is made up of the Union officers for 1966-67 including President Chris Hickey, Vice-President Beverly Barlow, Secretary Carol Best and Personnel Director Janie Kinney; Art and Design Director Jimmy Hog; George Strickland, Public Relations Council and Sherrell Andrews, first vice-chairman of Region XII.

Russell To Address Banquet

Members of Texas Tech's Phi Epsilon Kappa fraternity will hear an address by Lloyd O. Russell, chairman of the Baylor University Department of Health, Physical Education and Recreation, at the annual Founder's Day banquet Friday at 8 p.m. at La Hacienda Restaurant.

Dr. Russell, past president of the Texas Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation and current chairman of the Texas

Foundation for Health, Physical Education and Recreation, will discuss the question, "Who Are You?". Phi Epsilon Kappa is a national professional fraternity for students and teachers of health, physical education and recreation.

The banquet will honor Morley Jennings, Tech Physical Education professor and former Baylor football coach, who will retire this year. Dr. Russell played football for Jennings at Baylor.

Parking Permit Price To Increase Next Year

A $1 increase in the price of parking permits will become effective next fall, Chief Security Officer Bill Daniels said yesterday. Daniels said next year's vehicle registration fee would be $11 rather than $10. The $11 permit will allow students to park on campus during the fall, spring and summer sessions.

Daniels said the increase was made to save money on bookkeeping in the Security Dept. With the new permits the same books may be used during the summer as well as the fall and spring sessions. Money will also be saved on the purchase of parking stickers, Daniels said.

The permits now in use will expire June 1, 1966. Summer school students are required to buy new permits that are good for the summer sessions only. When the new prices go into effect, one permit will be valid for all school sessions, he said.

The same procedure will be used for students who drop out of school after the fall semester. They will receive a refund of one-half the cost of the permit, $5.50. No refund will be given for students who do not return for summer school, however.

Theater Casts New Play

By KATIE O'NEILL
Staff Writer

The University Theater opened up shop for another show Monday night with the casting of "Gallows Humor," a comedy by Jack Richardson.

A play made up of two complemented one-act plays, "Gallows Humor" takes place in the cell of a prisoner about to be hanged and in the kitchen of his executioner.

Cast as the warden is John Paul Painter with Roger Smith as Phillip, the hangman who wishes "to become something like those fellows I've been hanging in the last few months," and Dorris Jeanne Smith as his wife, Martha, the indestructible suburban housewife whom Phillip unsuccessfully tries to kill.

Lucy, brought to the prison by the state "to serve as a little humanizing morsel for those it's going to hang," will be played by Mary Anne Engram, with Jon Stevens in the role of Walter, a lawyer who went berserk in the courtroom when his client got the hiccoughs, and who then golfed his wife to death with a seven iron.

The play will be directed by Ronald Schulz, associate professor of speech, with Perry Langenstein as assistant director.

The message of "Gallows Humor" is stated by Death in a profogue: "The grave's dimensions suddenly have grown to include those who have not yet achieved the once necessary technicality of ceasing to breathe."

"Gallows Humor" is Richardson's second play and was first produced off-Broadway in 1961. Saturday Review said of him, "It has taken a long time for the American theater to come up with a playwright who can be said to be writing with a combination of philosophy, poetic insight and carnal humor reminiscent of the great French playwright, Jean Anouilh."

Tech Prof Plans Study Of Mites

By VY TOWNSEND
Staff Writer

Dr. Russell Strandtmann, professor of biology at Tech, is awaiting the approval of a research grant which will enable him to study mites in Antarctica.

He is presently the only person who has worked on the identification of mites in the antarctic region though he has not been there. Groups studying there from Russia, Argentina, Great Britain and the United States send Dr. Strandtmann specimens to identify.

The grant, if approved, will come from the National Science Foundation through the Bishop Museum in Honolulu. Strandtmann will be considered a visiting scientist there for a year beginning in September. The research in the Antarctic will be from November through February.

In 1962-1963 Strandtmann was a Fellow in Entomology at the museum and has the qualifications for working through that agency.

Five years ago the museum sent some men to investigate the possibility on insects in the Antarctic. They found mostly new species of insects and many kinds of mites.

The mites in the Antarctic are plant-eating and have no medical importance as do parasitic mites. There are five types of mites. On the continent itself only prostigmatic ones are found, but there are other varieties in surrounding islands.

Strandtmann explained the process of investigation and defined the conditions for study there. During the time the study group is there, there will be no darkness. Strandtmann said, "That must be very exciting in itself—for the sun to never set."

He and a student, not yet selected, will be the only ones collecting specimens. At the base camp there probably will be other groups studying the geology and oceanography of the area.

Christchurch, New Zealand, is the intermediary stop for the expedition. There the scientists will be completely outfitted with food, clothing and sleeping bags and flown to the base camp on the continent itself.

The Navy provides transportation for the scientists and ships to carry the equipment from Christchurch to the base camp. For exploration of the inner regions of the continent, snowmobiles and helicopters are used.

Collection of the mites is done in two ways. Strandtmann explained that a sack is carried with vials of alcohol. When mites are found, they are picked up with a wet brush and placed in the vial. The other method is funneling. Moss or algae is placed in a funnel, and a light is placed over it. As the moss dries, the mites drop through the funnel into a bottle of alcohol to remain moist. This is the simplest and quickest method, according to Strandtmann.

Mites have been found within four degrees of the South Pole.

Strandtmann said, "It is fantastic that a living thing is able to survive the winter in that region. The question is what keeps the protoplasm of the mites from crystallizing. Evidently the mites become inactive when the temperature goes below the melting point of water, and they just hibernate in the winter."

When asked the importance of these mites, Strandtmann said, "They are important only because we don't know about them because of their natural environment."

Exploring for mites in the Antarctic is important because it is a continent not yet thoroughly investigated. He placed it in the same category as mountain-climbing. "You investigate because it is there."

"Imagine a whole continent without a city; it must be fantastic to see."

The director of the Bishop Museum has an ulterior motive in collecting these mites. He is trying to find out where they come from. Strandtmann said the only way to do that is to find out what is there.

There is a possibility that they are carried by air, and nets are now placed on ships and airplanes to catch insects from the air. So far this theory has not been proved because no mites have been caught with all the other insects.

Strandtmann looks forward to the entire experience with anticipation. He said, "I'm very hopeful that the grant will be approved. I'm excited at the prospect of having the experience of doing this study."

Strandtmann has studied the life history and classification of mites since 1952. He is a recognized authority on medically important parasitic mites as well as these new species found in Antarctica.

He has written more than 35 articles concerning the scientific study of mites, one of which is the article on the mesostigmatic mite for the McGraw-Hill Encyclopedia of Science and Technology.

Strandtmann received his B.S. degree in biology at Southwest Texas State College, his M.S. degree in entomology at Texas A&M and his Ph.D. in entomology at Ohio State University. After post-graduate work at the Texas School of Medicine, he came to Tech in 1948.

Easter Egg Hunt Scheduled Sunday

Interfraternity Council and Panhellenic annual Easter Egg hunt for underprivileged children will be held Sunday at 3 p.m. on the Drane Hall Greens.

Children from Buckner's Baptist Children's Home and United Fund Day Nursery will participate.

Eggs that will be used in the hunt have been donated by Lubbock supermarkets.

Writer Will Speak

Mrs. Elizabeth Borton de Trevino, winner of the Newbery Award for her book, "I, Juan de Parefo," will be guest speaker at the annual Theta Sigma Phi Matrix Table dinner Monday.

Mrs. de Trevino, author of five books for adults, eleven juvenile books and numerous stories in national magazines, received the Newbery Award from the American Library Association for the most distinguished children's book published in 1965.

Born and reared in California, Mrs. de Trevino began her journalistic career in Boston as a music critic and general reporter for the Boston Herald. Her knowledge of Spanish quickly led to assignments in Mexico where she met her husband, Luis Trevino Gomez.

Mrs. de Trevino has written several books, all of which reflect the customs and historical events in Mexico and Spain. Her experiences as part of what she terms "a large and affectionate Mexican family" influenced her ever popular, "My Heart Lies South," based on personal relationships in a household south of the border.

It was a Book Club selection, as were two subsequent volumes, "Even As You Love" and "The Greek of Toledo." Her latest book, "The Fourth Gift," published early this year captures the bitter dedication of Mexico's guerilla fighters during the Cristero Revolt of the 1920s, a rebellion set in motion when the government ordered the churches closed.

Mrs. de Trevino now lives in Cuernavaca. She has two grown sons, Luis, an artist, and Enrique, a lawyer.

At the dinner, attended by members of collegiate and professional chapters of Theta Sigma Phi, Mrs. de Trevino will speak about her experiences as a writer.

Awards will be given during the dinner to Tech's outstanding senior woman in journalism and to the outstanding girls in journalism in each of the four Lubbock high schools.

Mrs. de Trevino will be available for autographs from 3 to 5 p.m. Monday in the West Texas Museum foyer.

Tickets for the dinner are $2.50. Reservations may be made by calling Mrs. Jerry McCarty, SH4-5405.

Weight Lifter To Appear At Noche de Conquistadores

Paul Anderson, the undisputed "World's Strongest Man," will be the special guest at the Noche de Conquistadores May 5 in Municipal Coliseum.

At Noche night the champions in various intramural sports will be decided, and trophies will be presented to the individual and team champions in the different spring intramural sports.

Trophies will also be presented to the top individual and team participants throughout the year.

Anderson began his weightlifting career when he attended Furman University. He broke every existing school lifting record and was soon breaking national and world marks. In 1956 he won three Olympic weightlifting gold medals, which included a lift of 6,270 pounds in the back lift, the most weight lifted by one person in a single attempt.

Besides weightlifting, Anderson is a certified lay preacher and has established the Paul Anderson Youth Home, Inc., whose purpose is "to help young people grow into good citizens."

Said Edsel Buchanan, director of men's intramurals, concerning Anderson, "We wanted a man not only excellent on the field of play but off as well. Paul Anderson is this kind of man."

Dodgers Sign Two Holdouts

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Pitching aces Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale wrote a happy ending to their cliff-hanger 32-day holdout Wednesday by signing with the Los Angeles Dodgers for "more than $210,000."

Dodgers General Manager E. J. Bavasi declined to disclose the exact figure. He flew into town Tuesday to try to bring the two to agreement and said they rejected his "final" offer of $210,000—$112,500 for Koufax and $97,500 for Drysdale.

But Wednesday morning, he upped the ante enough for them to sign.

NCAA 1.6 GPA Ruling Hits Snag At Bowdoin

Brunswick, Me. (I.P.)—Bowdoin College recently announced that it will continue to determine its admissions policies and financial aid programs to best serve the interests of Bowdoin students, and thus cannot comply with the new rule of the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

The NCAA regulation forbids member institutions to grant scholarship aid or athletic eligibility to so-called "student-athletes" except in accordance with a formula devised by the NCAA. This formula excludes "student-athletes" with a grade point average less than 1.6.

"Bowdoin College does not differentiate between 'student-athletes' and other students," President James S. Coles noted. "Financial aid determined on the basis of need is available to all students making normal progress toward graduation."

Malcolm E. Morrell, director of Athletics, described the NCAA action as "unbelievable" and said the new by-laws of the NCAA "could cause many of its high standard institutions to give up memberships they have held for years."

President Coles disclosed that he notified the NCAA that the Bowdoin liberal arts college for men cannot file the required certificate of compliance with the regulation. The NCAA says that member institutions failing to submit such certificates will not be eligible to enter teams or individual competitors in NCAA-sponsored events.

"All our students are admitted by our own policies and procedures and the awards of scholarship aid are determined by us on the basis of need and performance. We have no intention of altering this procedure and certainly no intention of becoming involved in the processes described in the Procedure Manual."
