Stowell Named To Court

Appointment of Dibrell Stowell to fill the unexpired term of Ed Wilkes as Tech Supreme Court associate justice was announced today by Student Body President Glen Cary. Stowell will represent the division of Agriculture.

The appointment was necessitated by the resignation of Wilkes, a January graduate. Stowell's term will expire in May.

"I have heard some excellent reports on Stowell's work at Tech, and have the utmost confidence in him," said Cary.

The agronomy senior is from Pampa. Brad Crawford is chief justice of the Court. Other associate justices are Beverly Garner, Home Economics; Gray Lewis, Business Administration; Tom Jones, Arts and Sciences, and Bill Hudson, Engineering.

Patterned after the Supreme Court of the United States, the Student Supreme Court renders opinions in cases of constitutional controversies. It advises the student Council as to the constitutionality of proposed legislation prior to its passage.

New Ruling Termed 'Unpopular' ...

The statement that "the new tow-away system for punishing campus traffic violations has caused quite a bit of comment" would probably be the understatement of the season.

As yet we have found very little comment in favor of the move. Statements have ranged from mild disturbance to out and out disgust. The most radical response to the order which we have seen came to us in a letter to the editor. It said in part, "... Some of us own pistols. . . If I see anyone bothering my car (towing or otherwise) I will blow his head off. I will not stop to ask about "zoning regulations."

Of course, this has been the most drastic response, but simmered down, cooled off, and considerably toned-down, it is representative of the general distaste which is prevalent among students concerning the new system.

There are 3,045 parking spaces on the Tech campus, according to Mr. S. E. Thomson, campus traffic officer. Last semester there were 5,569 cars registered for campus parking permits, and Mr. Thomson says that there have been more permits issued to date than at a comparable time in the fall.

Of course, all the cars are not on the campus at one time, but one attempt to find a parking space at any except the most remote area is enough to show that there aren't enough places to park.

Obviously, then, something must be done. The traffic committee has come up with one solution, and whether this solution works or not will ultimately depend upon whether the Tech student body gives it a mental okay. No law, no matter how good or bad can long stand up against the opposition of the majority of the people whom it affects.

The new ruling is unpopular—very often to the point of open distaste.

It may be necessary for the traffic committee to reevaluate their recent decision in the light of how it is being accepted by the student body.

If this is done, one of two things will happen. First the committee can try another solution more acceptable to the students. And second, it can ignore student opinion.

If the latter course is taken, we feel that the committee is committing a gross injustice to each Tech student on the campus who has an automobile and to the student body as a whole.

Letter To The Toreador

Dear Bob,

The editors and staff of The Texan can't thank you enough for your courageous stand in our favor.

The front-page editorial and editorial page coverage were superb.

We have watched The Toreador with interest this year. We think it has consistently exhibited the best in college journalism. It has a rare vigor quite absent in most Texas college newspapers.

If we can be of any assistance to you in your campaign for SWC membership, please drop us a line. Also, check our February 23 issue for a brief comment upholding Tech's admission bid.

Please post this letter for the staff to see. Better yet, we wouldn't object to your publishing it.

Very Sincerely,
Willie Morris
and The Texan Staff

Thanks for the kind words,
Willie.

We may need the assistance in our SWC bid, which you offered. You may fire when ready. Ed.

Honor Code Proposed at Brown ...

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—(I.P.)—A new Honor Code which "emphasizes correction of cheating rather than on punishing an offender" has been proposed at Brown University. The proposed code is a revision of one which failed in 1954 to get the 75% backing of the student body necessary for adoption. Under it violators would be warned before being reported.

The major change is in the procedure for reporting violations. "The current proposal states that a person observing either the giving or obtaining of unauthorized assistance shall tap his pencil on his desk until he has attracted the violator's attention. If the violator stops cheating, no further steps shall be taken; if the violator persists in cheating, the observer shall confront the offender directly or anonymously, asking him to turn himself in.

This failing, the observer shall report the matter to the Honor Council, a body of undergraduates which would administer the Honor Code," according to the Brown Daily Herald.

The reporting procedure of the previously-proposed code "required a student or faculty member observing evidence of dishonesty either to confront the cheater and ask him to report himself or to report this information directly to the Honor Council."

Letter: To The Toreador

Dear Sir,

Recently the discipline committee of Texas Tech suspended four women and four men students for taking an unauthorized, unchaperoned trip to Jaurez, Mexico.

Part of the statement of the discipline committee as quoted in the "Lubbock Morning Avalanche" on February 26, 1956, read: "The disciplinary punishment was meted out because of a serious violation of the regulations of the college and a breach of good social conduct."

Certainly the fact that the women students were absent without leave is a violation of the rules of this college. Moreover, the women students were not of legal age and they were supposedly transported across state lines by the male students. Statutory laws may have been violated here.

However the males students did not break any rules of the college; therefore any forthcoming punishment seemingly should not come from the discipline committee of the college but from the courts in the event that any laws were broken.

The question involved is this: Are we, students of this college, responsible to the discipline committee for where we go and how we spend our time away from campus? If our time away from class our own or does it belong to the discipline committee? I recall signing nothing during the last registration giving the discipline committee control of my time away from classes.

Was being absent without leave such a serious offense that it actually merited suspension.

Without a doubt the "breach of good social conduct" clause is a powerful weapon. Already it has been successfully employed to suspend four male students from this college.

Whether or not the trip to Jaurez was a "breach of good social conduct" should be decided by the individual himself. A person's morals are his own insofar as they do not result in damage to the life or property of someone else.

Sincerely,
Billy Hastings

You have a good point, Mr. Hastings. We have yet to learn of a group — whether a discipline committee on the college level or the temperance boosters of prohibition time on the national level — who could successfully protect another group's morals.

In the final analysis, it must be a personal decision.

COLLEGE GRAPEVINE ...

Texas College Has No 'Race' Problem

By CLAYNELLE ROOKER

With all of the unfavorable publicity with regard to segregation running rampant in the South, it is like a breath of fresh air to hear a bit of peaceful news.

That segregation is not a problem at San Angelo College has long been recognized. Two years ago, a colored boy was elected a class favorite. Last year, a colored girl was chosen the outstanding graduate. Now another negro girl, 17-year-old June Blair, has entered SAC as a pre-med major. In all there are about 12 negro students attending San Angelo College.

The "Xavier Review" has classified male students and their usual approach to a date as follows:

Freshman: "Your're not going out with me, are you?"

Sophomore: "Will you go out with me?"

Junior: "Where are we going?"

Senior: They say nothing—just wait for the girl to speak first.

Americans, accustomed to buying anything from engagement rings to a car on credit, can get a college education on the installment plan, too.

"No-down-payment, pay-as-you-go" plan of financing a college education has been considerably successful at Gannon College, Erie, Pennsylvania.

More than 600 young men have gone through Gannon by borrowing their tuition through an arrangement with the Bank of Erie at an interest rate of $133 per $100 for a four-month period. This program was put into effect four years ago.

The "Gustavian Weekly" recently suggested that someone put this sign on the doors of all lecture rooms:

CAUTION: Be sure brain is engaged before putting mouth in gear.

Male students who attend the Colorado School of Mines have few worries these days about the fact that their school is not co-educational. The last issue of "The Oredigger" carried a new item which indicated that the Miners have five new cheerleaders.

The boys imported the gals from Colorado Women's College. That old saying still holds. Where there is a will there is a way.

Princess-to-be Grace Kelly has asked a former schoolmate, Mrs. Arvid A. Pamp, to be one of her bridesmaid at her April wedding to Prince Rainier III, of Monaco.

"Just send me your measurements," Mrs. Pamp said Miss Kelley told her, "and I'll mail them to Neiman-Marcus"—Dallas department store which is making the gowns for the entire wedding party.

So, with Philadelphia, Hollywood, Paris, and Rome virtually all of the world at her fingertips, anxious for the honor of fashioning her wedding gown, the lovely Grace chose Texas. Ahem!

Pi Lambda Phi fraternity pledge class at the University of Oklahoma recently donated a portable television set to the school infirmary for use by student patients there.

Now the only problem is keeping the students in class rather than sick in bed.

Debaters To Discuss Honor System

Should Tech adopt the honor system? This will be the question at an Oxford Debate Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the Tech Union Ballroom Lounge, according to Wendell Roberts, Lecture and Debate Committee chairman.

Under the honor system each student is placed on his honor not to cheat, and to report any other student whom he sees cheating. It is in use in many schools today such as Yale and West Point,

Roberts stated. In discussing the question the debaters are expected to examine honor systems used in other schools and to discover if any of those honor systems could be adopted to examinations at Tech, Roberts said. No state-supported school in Texas is using the honor system at present and it is generally more successful in private schools.

Miss Elaine Boney, instructor of Modern Literature, is to address the Quarterly Club, a woman's faculty club, next Wednesday at 7 p.m. at the Lubbock Woman's Club.

The topic of Miss Boney's speech will be "Existentialism and its Reflections in German Literature." She plans to define existentialism and show how important it is to modern literature, and its reflection on the literature of Germany.

Tech Students Turn Thumbs Down On Traffic Rule

By FLOYD WOOD
 If a sample poll is any indication, Tech students do not favor the new parking regulation by a margin of five-to-one. The poll, taken Thursday noon on the Administration Building parking lot, questioned students in regard to their opinion of the new regulation which will cause a car to be towed away if found parked in the wrong area.

Most students interviewed felt that the traffic problem on the campus is real and steps are needed to help. Suggestions range from setting aside new parking lots to restricting entering freshmen from having cars on the campus.

Of the 18 students interviewed, 15 felt that the new rule is too severe while the other three agreed with the policy. None of the students is neutral on the issue and all those queried gave an opinion:

See editorial, p. 2

Leon Hall: "It's being too strict . . . It isn't that necessary."

Roger Scott: "The policy is being carried too far. I don't think that students should park in the wrong areas but cars shouldn't be towed away anyhow."

Nathan Dyer: "Being careful to park in the right area should be stressed and that's all."

David Goddard: "I definitely think the policy is too strict."

Arnold Drake: "Since it seems that there is a shortage of parking spaces, it is absolutely necessary sometimes to park in the wrong areas. So until the situation is helped I believe the rule is too strict."

Jack McCuiston: "I don't like it. I don't think they should divide the Administration parking lot in half, but should give more room to students."

Charles Gafford: "Oklahoma University, where I went last semester, had the same policy. However, the situation here isn't that bad."

Don Bell: "I'm not much in favor of it. It seems like they are getting a little too strict."

Alton West: "I'll agree that students shouldn't park just anywhere. I do think, however, it is a little too stiff. I believe the old three-ticket method should be sufficient."

Mrs. L. O. Woodward: "It's not fair because there aren't enough places to park."

Mrs. LaRue Smyers: "I surely would hate to come out of class and not find my car. I feel that the tickets were good enough."

Richard W. Hatton: "It's a pretty good idea, but I don't know about the fine, too. There is a need for more parking space for off-campus students."

Lon Roberts: "I believe the rule is all right. I believe that it will help to provide space for the students who park in the right spaces."

Don Stroud: "I think it's a little strong. But something has to be done like stop letting the freshmen bring their cars to school."

Charles Curry: "They've got to do something; maybe this is the best idea."

Mrs. Irene Houston: "There should be more space provided for cars. I have found that it is almost impossible to find a place to park close to the campus when I come back from student teaching. We don't want to park wrong, but sometimes we can't help it."

Kenneth Pierce: "It's a good idea, especially when students block in other cars. Seems like more space should be made available by the ruling."

Glenna Woods: "It's so hard to park, but I think it's a little strict, since a charge will be made to get your car. I guess it will make everyone more aware of the rules."

Techsans Take Trophy

The SMU Mustangs, conquerors of the Southwest Conference, loom on the horizon this week as a formidable obstacle for newly crowned Border Conference champion, Texas Tech.

The two Texas colleges will decide who will advance further in the NCAA playoffs when they meet March 13 at Wichita, Kan. One loss will eliminate a team from contention.

Southern Methodist methodically disposed of all competition and sewed up the conference championship last weekend. They romped through the SWC with a 10-0 record. Nationally, they are ranked in the top ten for the nation's collegiate quintets.

Texas Tech, on the other hand, captured complete conference honors only after a hard struggle. They boast an 8-4 conference slate and 13-11 season mark.

The Techsans took it all on the final night of the season when they dumped New Mexico A&M in the Tech Gym.

Lanky Gene Carpenter became

EARL REDWINE, 6-foot, 5-inch junior from Covington, Ky., turned in his best game of the season in a reserve role Monday night scoring in double figures, when the Red Raiders smashed a college scoring record for the second time this year. Tech massacred Texas Western 117-90, beating by four points their previous game record of 113 earned against Arizona State Feb. 1. Redwine was a top-notch player at Walker Air Force Base, Roswell, N. M., before entering Tech. The physical education major formerly attended Eastern Kentucky State. He is 25 years old, weighs 190 pounds, and plays forward and center.

a raging lion as he pumped through 35 points to pace the Raiders. Carpenter's hooks, set shots and craps were sunk with uncanny accuracy.

Du-Wayne Blackshear and Jim Reed wrote the final chapters to their collegiate careers before a packed house by scoring 15 and 10 respectively. However, their value to the team wasn't measurable in points. Both played outstanding defensive and passing games.

When Tech meets the Mustangs, Blackshear and Reed will be on the bench since they played collegiate basketball as freshman and are ineligible for NCAA activity.

Basketball Winners Chosen

Upsets last week deadlocked standings in two leagues, as 1956 intramural basketball draws to a close.

In the dorm league, the Sneed Longs pulled into a tie for the league lead, by defeating previously unbeaten Gordon, 52-40. Each team has identical 5-1 records for the season. Still a threat is Doak, with a 4-1 record and two games remaining.

In the Independent League No. one, the BSU cagers tasted their first defeat, and left the league in a three-way tie for first. The Baptists lost to KKK, 32-23 to even the two teams' record at 5-1. The third team, the Vets, made its record 5-1 by downing the Moles, 41-34.

Softball Leagues To Set Schedules

Entries for Intramural Softball will close March 8, according to assistant intramural director J. D. Snyder.

Fraternity managers will meet Tuesday at 5 p.m. in the gym to draw up the season's schedule.

Dorm league and independent managers will meet at 5 p.m. Thursday in the gym to draw up their schedule.

Teams in each league are eligible for the post-season tournament, which will decide the intramural champion.

Twirp Week Starts At BSU

The boys around the Baptist Student Center will never have it so good as they will starting Monday when Twirp Week begins. A strict set of rules have been set out saying that the girls will perform all acts of chivalry, ask for all dates, assume all financial responsibilities, etc. And to make sure everything goes according to Hoyle, a Kangaroo Court has been formed to try offenders during the week.

A big Twirp party Saturday night, March 10, at 7:30 will climax the week and will be the night the "Court" will hold its session. Court deputies watching for violators of the Twirp Code will be Jim Whitt, James Barber, Pat Stambaugh, Deann Buske, Wanda Neill and Barbara Smith.

Two of the main activities of the week will be practical discussions at the student center on Monday and Tuesday nights with emphasis on the Christian home and will deal with the do's and don'ts of dating, engagement, marriage and establishment of a Christian home.

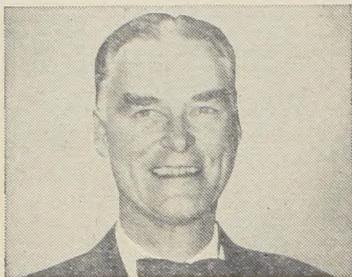

On Monday night the discussion will be entitled "Tips For Twirps," and the leaders will be Mrs. Charles Waters, Mr. and Mrs. Allen White, Mrs. Grace Wellbord, Rev. I. D. Walker and Theibert Miller.

"When Two Twirps Tweet" will be the title of Tuesday nights panel discussion which will be led by Mr. and Mrs. Mack Meade, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hobbs and the Rev. and Mrs. Bruce McIver.
