

Stock show plus humor slated today

The animals will have their day today at the 19th annual Little International stock show sponsored by the Block and Bridle Club.

The judging will begin at 11 a.m. in the new horse barns on the Tech farm west of Murdough Hall.

The Milk Maid contest and the boy's and girl's greased pig chases will add a touch of humor to the serious business of the stock show.

THE 1966 MILK MAID will be the Tech coed who can get the most milk within the three minute time limit. Various campus organizations are sponsoring Milk Maid entries as well as entries for the greased pig chases.

Richard Stanley, Tech senior from Dalhart and president of Block and Bridle, said the judging of the contests in the stock show is based on showmanship rather than the quality of the animals.

All stock, with the exception of one horse event, will be furnished by the Animal Husbandry Department. The training and care of the stock was by students who will be showing the animals.

THERE WILL BE competition in classes of beef cattle, swine, dairy cattle, sheep and quarter horses.

A first this year will be a $1.25 a plate barbecue lunch served between 12:20 and 2 p.m.

The 11th annual Blue Ribbon Ham auction will begin at 1 p.m. and continue through the show.

City Council authorizes widening of College Ave.

Easing of traffic congestion near Tech took a step forward Thursday when Lubbock City Council authorized advertisement of bids for widening College Ave. between 19th and 34th Streets.

After the letting of bids in March, construction should begin in April and extend through an approximate 7-month period ending in October.

AFTER DISCUSSION of the plans Councilmen voted to construct sidewalks on the west side of the thoroughfare, it was also authorized to build a 36-foot wide median with three openings dividing six lanes of traffic. City Engineer Sam Wahl was asked to prepare an estimate on the type of median to be built.

In the construction project the city of Lubbock has had to buy a total of thirty parcels of land. In November eight houses were bought extending from 29th Street south.

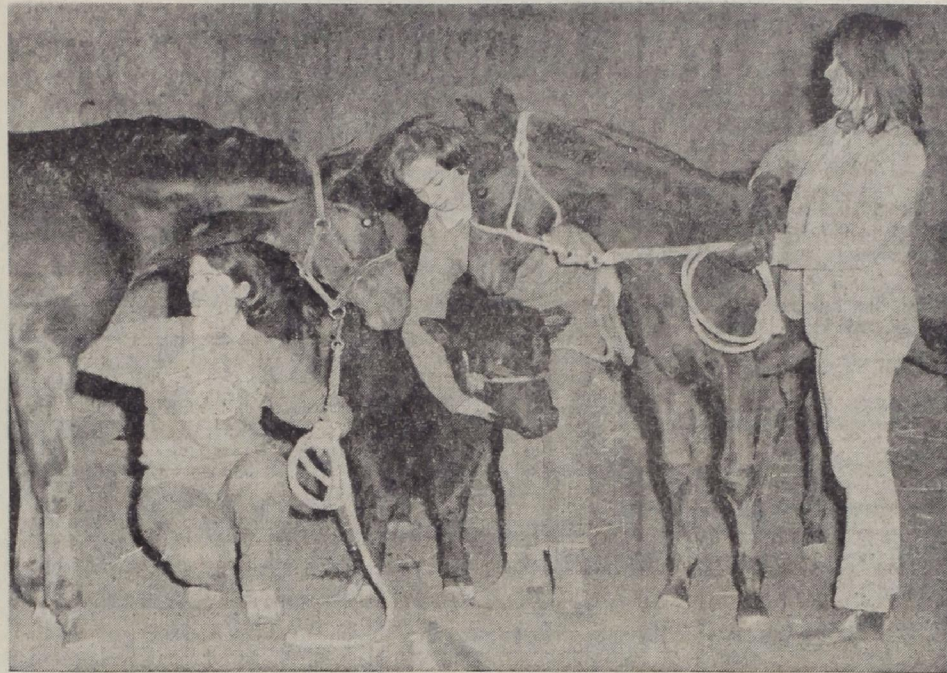

In January approximately ten houses will be bought in a scattered area, and in March eight more houses will be bought making a total 26 houses. vacant lots and a portion of a rug company comprise the remaining parcels of land to be bought.

Alert militiamen save Viet bridge

SIAGON, North Viet Nam (AP) — Rifle fire of alert militiamen exploded a Viet Nam mine as it floated toward a key bridge on the Saigon River Friday night. The blast rattled windows in the heart of the capital, where U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk was a weekend visitor.

U.S. troops convoying about three dozen trucks laden with ammunition and other explosives were near the bridge, the Binh Loi railroad and highway span two miles north of Saigon. The convoy suffered no damage and went on its way after the blast.

The big mine, camouflaged by a cluster of weeds, was about 400 yards upstream when one of the Vietnamese militiamen guarding the bridge spotted it and opened fire.

Petitions seeking a 'dry strip' ready for action

By JIM WEST
Staff Writer

Petitions seeking to dry up Lubbock County's Precinct 2 will come up for action before County Commissioner's Court early next week, the county clerk's office said yesterday.

Mrs. Mary Helen Yaggy, deputy county clerk, said, "We have finished our certification of signatures, and will present the petitions to the commissioners at their regular monthly meeting Monday."

The petitions ask that Lubbock County commissioners issue an order calling for a local option election in Precinct 2 to determine if the area should ban the sale of liquor within its boundaries. The election would be held within 20 to 30 days of the order's issuance.

THE CLERK'S OFFICE certified 759 names on the petitions as being those of qualified voters or holders of tax exemptions in the 1964 general election. Only 605 names, representing 25 per cent of the precinct's voters in the last gubernatorial election, were required.

This is the second set of petitions filed by an organization which calls itself The Drys of Precinct 2. The first set, submitted Nov. 11, was rejected by the county clerk because it did not contain enough valid signatures.

The dry group is composed of residents near what has come to be known as "The Strip," an area 1½ miles south and east of Lubbock on the Tahoka and Slaton highways. The area contains a score of liquor stores built since 1960, when the precinct voted wet in a local option election.

PETITION CHAIRMAN for the dry group is James F. Davis Jr. of Acuff.

"We have nothing in particular against the liquor people themselves—some of them attend our church, and we're glad to have them," Davis said. "What we're against is the product they sell and what it brings into our community."

"People come out here to buy their liquor and beer, and sometimes finish a six-pack before they get a mile from the store. They pull big drunks on our county roads, and even run their cars up into the turn rows in our fields.

"THEY BLOCK OUR ROADS with their drunken parties. I've spent $400 this year to replace tractor and pickup truck tires ruined by broken beer bottles.

"They do thousands of dollars worth of damage to our farm equipment by pouring sugar into the gasoline tanks of our trucks and tractors, and use sledge hammers to beat up our irrigation pumps just for the thrill of it.

"It's getting to where we're scared to leave our wives and children at home, and we're getting a bellyful of it. We own this land, and all we want is decent treatment."

Davis added that the vandals are transients and not local people.

Moderates grab for GOP reins

(AP)—Progressives moved Friday to tighten their leadership control of the Republican Governors Association as a preliminary for an attempt to nominate one of their own for the presidency in 1968.

Early arrivals among the progressives, or moderates as some prefer to be called, were telling themselves as the conference sessions opened that if they hang together they have what it takes to wrest convention control from the conservatives who nominated Barry Goldwater in 1964.

The current object of their affections is Michigan Gov. George Romney but there were clear signs that Romney will have to prove himself a good bet before the chips finally go down on him.

ON HIS ARRIVAL, Romney said he does not believe there are any plans "to select and support a presidential candidate at the conference."

He said he was looking forward to a meeting with Gov.-elect Ronald Reagan of California who has criticized the Michigan governor for failing to support Barry Goldwater two years ago.

Asked about Reagan's suggestion that he ought to repent as a preliminary to any bid for the 1968 nomination, Romney merely laughed.

HE SAID NOVEMBER voters had indicated they were ready to give the Republicans "an opportunity to do a job." In line with this, he said the governors should concentrate on "solving problems, working together and getting ready for 1968."

As a first step toward formation of a power bloc, the progressives offered the conference a choice between Gov. John A. Love of Colorado and Gov. John H. Chafee of Rhode Island for the association chairmanship.

Both are certified to follow the progressive pattern of the retiring chairman, Gov. Robert E. Smylie of Idaho, a primary election victim of conservative attack in his home state.

AS A FURTHER STEP, the progressives counted on adding as least two more governors to the five now serving on the Republican Policy Coordinating Committee.

House minority leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan invited such an expansion of gubernatorial participation in policy making. He pledged that congressional Republicans would work closely with the 25 Republicans who will occupy statehouses next year as a result of the GOP upsurge in the Nov. 8 election.

National Chairman Ray C. Bliss, here to confer with the state executives, gave his backing to this move.

BLISS TOLD a news conference he sees no value in reshaping the issue of who failed to support Goldwater in the 1964 campaign as did Romney. Bliss said it would be a mistake to "turn the clock back." Republicans need a high degree of unity if they are going to be successful in 1968, he said.

Bliss voiced the view that at this point President Johnson is more vulnerable on the impact of the war in Viet Nam than any other single issue. He said the Johnson administration's credibility in this respect undoubtedly was questioned by the voters in the November election.

Soviet Union, France warn of wider war

PARIS (AP)—France and the Soviet Union warned Friday that the war in Viet Nam may spill over into neighboring countries.

They blamed the gravity of the war on "outside intervention"—an apparent reference to the United States—and said the conflict is the principal obstacle to relaxation of international tensions. But they gave no hint as to how the war could be brought to an end.

They held up growing French-Soviet cooperation as a model for the world to copy.

Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin and French President Charles de Gaulle said this in a joint declaration marking the end of the Kremlin leader's nine-day state visit here.

THE COMMUNIQUE was remarkable for the delicate balance it maintained between French and Soviet viewpoints on European security and on world disarmament. There was little if any change in their respective positions.

Europe's most abiding problem—the reunification of Germany—was not even mentioned in the 3,000-word declaration.

Kosygin and De Gaulle raised the question of a possible European security conference where the German problem would certainly be discussed, but set no time for the meeting, saying simply, "in the future."

THE STATEMENT on Viet Nam reflected the similarity of French and Soviet views on settlement of the war—that the United States must withdraw. An American diplomatic source commented: "I don't think they've broken much new ground in this communique."

Kosygin and De Gaulle said the Vietnamese war was intensifying and was causing heavy human and material losses. They also "deplored a situation whose gravity is the result of outside intervention."

"THIS SITUATION endangers the neighboring states of Viet Nam and at the present time is the principal obstacle to the relaxation of international tensions and the establishment of lasting peaceful relations among numerous countries," they said.

The statement was similar in tone to the communique issued at the end of de Gaulle's visit to the Soviet Union last June 30.

Kosygin returned to chilly—3 degrees above zero—Moscow as just about the time the communique was made public in Paris.

ENGINEERING AWARD — William R. Ham, a sophomore civil engineering major from Childress, accepts the $200 C.C. Perryman Award Thursday from Mr. Perryman, former Tech faculty member. Hamm was selected for the award for his outstanding work in engineering graphics last year. Perryman was an engineering graphics professor at Tech from 1929-65. Hamm's father, a 1941 Tech alumnus, is assistant district engineer for the Texas Highway Department in Childress.

CCRC stops Project Misery

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — "Project Misery" is over for another year and 35 sixth-graders at Pine Valley School are glad they were able to take it.

They volunteered, with their parents' approval, for a week-long experiment during which they learned something of segregation, prejudice and discrimination.

"The children are more considerate of one another after their experience," said their teacher, Wilda Wood.

The class was asked by Mrs. Wood if it wanted to conduct the project, initiated last year, for a week during this school year and the pupils approved 33-2.

During this week the 35 sixth-graders lost certain rights and privileges.

They had to eat lunch at a table set apart from the rest of the students in the school lunchroom. They couldn't play with other pupils during recess. They stepped off sidewalks to let others pass.

They couldn't speak to anyone unless spoken to first. They were denied such assignments as raising and lowering the flag, running the audio-visual projector or serving as a teacher's assistant.

As the week progressed, Mrs. Wood said, the students "talked about protest marches, silent sit-ins and other forms of showing their disapproval over the various acts of discrimination."

Said 11-year-old Cathy Pennekamp, "I think Project Misery was an exciting experience. I felt I wasn't worth anything when everybody turned away from me."

"I didn't like being pushed around," said Toni Bubick, also 11. "We had to fight to get our privileges back."

This was done by petitioning the Colorado Civil Rights Commission. The director visited the school and called the violations to the attention of the principal, who restored their rights.

One boy said after the week was over, "I was even glad to talk to kids I didn't like."

Approval is expected

The Coordinating Board, Texas College and University System, meets Monday in special session and endorsement of a tuition hike can be expected.

The board is considering two methods of raising tuition, either through an across-the-board hike, such as double the current rate of $50 per semester, or an entirely new system of charging a specified amount, possibly $7 or $7.50 per semester credit hour. Reportedly, the board favors the second method because it equates the tuition costs for students.

Of course, the final say in the matter rests with the state legislature, which convenes Jan. 10. Although tuition-increase bills have been defeated in the past three sessions, proponents of the increase say they have more support this time because of added financial aid made available to the student, specifically the Texas Opportunity Plan.

But they also admit that their fight is a long way from being won. With parents and students on one side, higher education officials and the Coordinating Board on the other, and legislators in the middle, it looks like a real battle royal shaping up for January.

Tooting your own horn

Seldom do we like to toot our own horn, but as the old saying goes, "if you don't, no one else will."

This week the University Daily has published 30 pages, our largest output for the year except during registration. For those who were here last year, this is comparable to 60 pages of last year's tabloid - size paper. During this same week in 1965, 48 pages were published. This nets a 2.4 page increase per day.

Advertisers more and more are realizing the importance of the college markets and that as Texas Tech grows, so does this market. The result is a growing University Daily.

The Student Publication Committee is now working on plans for expanding printing facilities for the University Daily so that it can keep pace with the rest of the campus. "Growth" is the key word here, as it is throughout Texas Tech.

It looks like a prosperous year.

Tech prof designs original road map

Dr. Dan E. Feray, Texas Tech professor of geosciences, is part of a three-man team developing a road map which will add new dimensions to traveling in the United States. The maps correspond to highway designations, mileage charts, park listings, etc. — but go a step further. Using contrasting colors and color-keyed guides, the maps tell the ages of the rocks being traveled across plus their composition in layers, and general characteristics of the land.

The idea for the map began in 1959 when Dr. Feray and Dr. Philip Oetking produced a similar map of Texas for the Dallas Geological Society.

In 1964, the idea was broadened to include the entire country and went under the auspices of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists. This nationwide mapping plan was conceived by the AAPG president that year, Dr. Grover E. Murray, now president of Tech.

"We have designed the first of the series of 11 maps," Dr. Feray said, "which covers the mid-continent region of Oklahoma, Kansas, Arkansas and Missouri." The remaining ten area maps are in process, and each will be published as it is completed.

"These easy-to-read maps offer a simple, easily understood geological picture of the area being traveled," Dr. Feray said. "We hope they will be a valuable source of information for tourists by explaining the variations seen in rocks, soils and land forms.

On the reverse side of the map, smaller illustrations tell the geological history of the area while others show characteristics of the landscape, telling how and why the different rises and falls in the land occurred.

Dr. Feray is working on the project with Dr. Oetking of the Graduate Research Center of the Southwest, project chairman, and Dr. H. B. Renfro of the Neches Petroleum Corp. The map research is being done with the cooperation of the United States Geological Survey.

Each of the 13 pledge classes will sing two sorority songs.

ROAD MAPS WITH NEW DIMENSIONS — Dr. Dan Feray, Texas Tech professor of Geosciences, points out geological dimensions on a new style road map he and two associates have developed to Tech President Grover E. Murray, Dr. Feray and Dr. Philip Oetking of the Graduate Research Center of the Southwest first conceived the map idea for Texas, and the project was enlarged to cover the whole United States at the urging of Dr. Murray during his tenure as president of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists. The AAPG is sponsoring the map project.

Dr. William Farmer will speak Sunday night at the Methodist Student Center as the second speaker in the Wesley Foundation's Perkins Lecture Series.

Dr. Farmer, a professor at Southern Methodist University, will speak at 6 p.m. and at 8 p.m. on "The Humanity of Christ." He chose this subject in contrast to the divinity of Christ which is usually stressed during the Christmas season.

Experienced as both educator and theologian, Dr. Farmer has written several books and many articles for religious journals. He is a member of the Society of Biblical Literature and Exegesis and the Society for New Testament Studies.

Dr. Farmer is a native of California and attended Occidental College, Los Angeles and Cambridge University, England.

Sunday night's program includes a supper at 5:30 and worship services at 7 p.m. A dance interpretation of part of the play, "A Child is Born," will be presented as a part of the worship services.

Stamp out one-stampers!

"A five-cent stamp, please." "Anything else?" "Nope, just the one stamp." These one-stamp shoppers comprise the majority of the daily sales of the Tech Station Post Office in the Administration Building. They also are main reasons for the long lines, congested hallway and unnecessary amount of time it takes to buy stamps.

Bill Schroeder, clerk in charge of the station, said Friday that with the oncoming Christmas mailing rush, the one-stamp students should buy enough to last at least a week.

"This would help the traffic in the hall and save both the students and us a lot of time," Schroeder said.

Schroeder also asked that students mailing packages include complete return addresses as they are now required by the U.S. Post Office.

Christmas packages to service men overseas have also been abundant in the past weeks.

"The majority of these are going to Viet Nam," said Schroeder.

Although it is past time for the packages to be sent regular mail with delivery in time for Christmas, students can still send their gifts air mail by paying parcel post rates and printing "S.M.A." on the package in large letters. This will insure air mail delivery as the government is flying free all Viet Nam-bound packages from San Francisco during the Christmas Season.

Arizona whips cold Raiders

By GEORGE CHAFFEE
Sports Editor

Hit by a scoring drought colder than yesterday's north wind, Tech's Red Raiders fell to the University of Arizona Wildcats, last night, 64-49.

The contest played before only 2,958 fans packed into a tiny coliseum, was by far the poorest showing by the Red Raiders this season.

Slowed down by scoring slumps which lasted several minutes several times, the Raiders could not contain the taller Wildcat quintet which was making its first home appearance in Tucson.

Tech began playing a ball-control game in an effort to slow down the powerful Arizona offense paced by Dick Root, a 6-4 junior who scored 12 points. However, the Raiders could seldom find the loop whenever they put the ball up. The contest also marked the first time a Western AC rule was put into effect regarding fouls. In effect the rule states that for the first six fouls (except shooting fouls) the fouled team receives the ball out of bounds rather than a foul shot. The purpose of the rule is to speed up the game and it did exactly that as it only took about one hour, 45 minutes to play the contest. In fact, the Raiders only scored five points from the free-throw line.

PRACTICALLY the only thing that did go Tech's way was the opening tip-off. However, the Raiders lost the ball and Arizona drew first blood with a field goal by Gerald Jacobs.

Joe Dobbs knotted the score temporarily, but Jacobs hit a 10-footer and Bradley Green scored on a lay-up following a steal, and the Wildcats moved in front, 6-2.

DAVE OLSEN closed the gap for the second time with two goals from underneath, but the Raiders then fell victim to a myriad of mistakes and the 'Cats too advantage and blew Tech right out of the gym.

To add to the mistakes, the Raiders fell into two major scoring droughts both of which lasted for a total of 10 minutes in the first half.

The Raider's scoring percentage for the first half was a dismal 30.8 per cent, while Arizona was ripping the cords at 68 per cent clip.

LITTLE JIMMY Fullerton appeared to be the only Raider who could make a basket as the 5-10 guard scored 8 points in the first half to lead the Raiders.

Trent Bonner, earlier hobbled by a severely sprained ankle, made his first appearance this season, but the crippled senior never scored a point in the game.

As the first half wore on, Arizona built up a 19-point lead which cut to 17 points after Dobbs scored in the closing seconds to make the scoreboard read Arizona 34-Tech 17 at the half.

WHEN THE second half opened, the Raiders threw out their ball control game and began taking more shots. It appeared for a while the strategy would pay off as Olsen and Vernon Paul cut the Wildcat lead to seven points with 9:31 remaining.

However, a scoring spurt by Arizona's Jim Hansen scored nine points in about three minutes to put the 'Cats out of reach.

THE RAIDERS again hit a scoring slump; this one lasting two and one half minutes, and Bill Davis, who scored 11 points for the Wildcats added to the Raiders' miseries with a five-point spurge.

Both teams then went onto a full-court press and only nine points were scored in the final three minutes. Gordon Lindstrom hit a 12-footer with two seconds remaining to make the final score read 64-49 and the Raiders went down to their second defeat.

THREE OF Coach Gene Gibson's cagers scored in the double figures, but all totaled, they only accounted for 34 points. Dobbs and Fullerton had 12 and Olsen hit for 10.

Obviously disappointed by his team's showing, Gibson said after the game, the Raiders "should have been charged admission" for their lackluster appearance.

I'D LIKE to think they were looking ahead," Gibson said. "If we don't get ready for New Mexico (Tech's next opponent) they'll really strap it on us."

The Raiders will fly to Albuquerque at noon today where they will play the second game of their three-game road trip.

NEW MEXICO is a pre-season favorite to win the Western Athletic Conference and is currently ranked sixth in the nation.

Tip-off is scheduled for 9 p.m. CST. The broadcast will be carried over KFYO radio.

Mother tells Gilbert about AP selection

By RODNEY KEMP
Staff Writer

How does an All-American learn of his selection?

His mother tells him. At least that is how Tech's Larry Gilbert found out about his selection to the Associated Press' All-American second team.

"I answered the phone," Gilbert said, "and heard my mother say congratulations Larry Don, I am so proud of you."

I said, "Mother, what are you talking about?" Then she told me the news of my selection.

In the football season just completed Larry performed in excellent fashion: 52 receptions, 7 touchdowns and over 700 yards gained. These credentials alone make him a standout, but there are other qualities besides athletic prowess in this All-American.

After the first game of the season at Kansas, in which Gilbert caught 7 passes and scored 1 touchdown, he was congratulated on his fine performance. Larry, accepting the remarks unhesitatingly, preferred, instead, to talk about the passing of Scovell and the good job the offensive line did.

Lou Breur, a standout end in his own right, was talking about pass patterns last spring. He demonstrated the mechanics of a Z-out, paused and said, "You ought to see the beautiful way Gilbert does it."

Add the qualities up: a good son, a genuine humility, respect and admiration of teammates, and exceptional ability and it equals All-American—Larry Don Gilbert.
