THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Vol. 42 Texas Technological College, Lubbock, Texas, Tuesday, December 13, 1966 No. 57

'THAT GOIN' BAND FROM RAIDERLAND' WEEK—The city of Lubbock officially recognized what everyone on the campus has been saying for years—the university band has never lost a halftime show. To show its appreciation, Lubbock Mayor W. D. (Dub) Rogers proclaimed this week as "That Goin' Band from Raider-

'Wet-dry' judgement postponed

The County Commissioners Court postponed until 10 a.m. Thursday its ruling on whether to hold a local option election in Justice Precinct 2 of Lubbock County to decide if the precinct might go "dry."

Meeting at 10 a.m. Monday, the court said it would extend the time of the decision in order to give County Clerk Floe Swenson until 9 a.m. Thursday to certify petitions calling for the election.

THE PETITIONS were presented by a group called "The Drys of Justice Precinct 2" but were protested by a group of "wets" who want to extend the date of the election past January 31 so that new voter lists will be effect which they claim will "more accurately determine actual residence locations" of signers.

If called by the Commissioners Court, the election would be on the question "for" or "against" the sale of intoxicants for off-premises consumption in the justice precinct, which is the only part of Lubbock County in which alcoholic beverages legally can be sold at the present time.

LAST WEEK THE county clerk's office announced that 759 names on the petition had been certified as valid, but there has been some opposition on the grounds that some of the signers do not actually reside within the precinct any longer.

The additional time will allow the names to be verified as residents. The number of names required for an election to be called is 605.

Mrs. Swenson said she could not be sure all the names on the petition were residents of Precinct Two.

Senate to vote on Tech Fiesta

Student senators will introduce a resolution proposing a Tech "Fiesta" at a 7 p.m. meeting today in Ad. 260.

Other business will include a report on library services; a discussion of longer hours in the library during finals; a report by Business Manager Johnny Walker on the financial status of the Student Association, and a report by the School Flag Selection Committee.

AUSTIN (AP)—The Texas College Coordinating Board recommended Monday that a typical Texas undergraduate at a four-year state-supported college should pay more than double his current tuition next September.

If approved by the legislature, it would be the first tuition increase at Texas' 22 public colleges and universities since 1957.

The board overrode a lone dissent by Dr. M. Joaquin Cigarroa of Laredo to adopt six recommendations by a subcommittee which has been studying tuition for the past several months.

"In essence," Cigarroa said, "it is a tax on students."

"Those who would double tuition rates in Texas would plant a dagger and a thorn in the heart of the hopes of Texas youth," said Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., speaking at St. Mary's University in San Antonio.

In-state residents who now pay a flat $50 a semester tuition fee should pay $7 a semester hour or $105 for a normal 15-hour semester next year, the board said.

The fee for out-of-state residents attending Texas' four-year schools would be $20 a semester hour, or $300 per semester instead of the current $200 fee.

The board said this would bring in an additional $43.8 million to the schools during the next two-year fiscal period.

"Considering fees in addition to tuition, the in-state student under the new rate would pay between $122 and $146 per semester," a report by the board's staff said. "At least 35 per cent of state-supported colleges and universities in the nation charge more."

The report said, "Under the proposed charge pattern, out-of-state students studying full-time in Texas will pay less than out-of-state students under similar institutions of study in 27 per cent of public institutions elsewhere."

Exempted from the $7 semester hour charge would be medical, dental and baccalaureate degree nursing students, who would pay the same tuition they now pay. The $20 semester hour charge also would exempt out-of-state graduate students.

Other subcommittee recommendations on tuition policies adopted by the full board include holding at current levels the tuition fee at public junior colleges for residents of Texas who come from within the local district.

The tuition fee at junior colleges for Texas residents who come from outside the local district should be $7 per semester hour—the same as in public senior colleges and universities—the board said.

The board recommended that junior colleges be allowed to charge building-use fees in addition to tuition charges not to exceed $2.50 per semester credit hour, and said they should be authorized to pay tuition fees on behalf of students from local funds as long as the payments do not exceed 5 per cent of the total amount of income from tuition fees.

The bulk of "numerous letters from legislators, educators and interested citizens" have urged that tuition be increased, the board said.

Yarborough, a member of the U.S. Senate's Education subcommittee, said "The present Texas proposal to double tuition is an anti-education proposal . . . It hits hardest the 90 per cent of college students who either work their way through college, or borrow enough to get through."

"The proposal is barbaric, outworn, short-sighted, anti-education, anti-people. It ought to be defeated. It is the worst blow at education in Texas in decades."

The board approved setting up two new graduate schools of social work, with headquarters at the University of Houston and Arlington State College. Arlington would work in co-operation with North Texas State University and Texas Woman's University. The Arlington complex and Houston school each would be funded with $150,000 a year.

The board also called for expanding the size of entering classes at state-supported medical schools by a total of at least 100 and an unspecified increase in first-year classes at state-supported dental schools. In connection with this, the board voted to conduct an intensive study of Texas' medical and dental needs with a report due by July 1, 1968.

A discussion of the state's nursing shortage was set for the board's Jan. 16 meeting.

Also approved was a recommendation to hold off on converting two-year public schools to four-year institutions until a master plan of education is completed prior to the 1969 legislature.

Court chooses legislature to fill vacancy

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court ruled Monday the Georgia Legislature may pick the state's next governor under an 1824 provision of the state constitution.

The 5-4 decision, untangling the knotted election dispute, very likely means that fervent segregationist Democrat Lester G. Maddox will take over as governor.

THE GEORGIA Legislature, which convenes Jan. 9, is overwhelmingly Democratic and Maddox, hailing the high court's ruling, said he has been assured "I will be Georgia's next governor."

However, his Republican opponent Howard Bo Callaway, refused to concede defeat.

The Georgia ruling saw Justice Hugo L. Black swing over to the court's conservative wing to form a majority favorable to the state's position that the legislature has the right to choose between Maddox and Callaway.

"There is no provision of the United States Constitution or any of its amendments which either expressly or impliedly dictates the method a state must use to select its governor," Black said in announcing the decision.

Clams needed for education

Equipping a university such as Tech to carry out its primary mission of educating the state's students is a complex and costly operation, involving much more than mere acquisition of desks, chairs and blackboards.

Last year, along with huge expenditures for buildings and other permanent facilities, Tech bought such diversified items as:

- 1,200 clams
- A rotating electromagnet ($16,800 each)
- Two pounds of morning glory seeds
- China and silverware ($15,000 worth)
- Three-hundred nine-to-12 inch earthworms
- One million pounds of milo

M. L. Pennington, vice president for business affairs, keeps close tabs on the many facets making up the business of education at Tech.

And it's big business.

"During the 1965-66 fiscal year," Pennington said, "we spent more than $29,500,000 to educate, house and feed the 16,300 students here. That figures out to be more than $3,300 an hour, 24 hours, seven days a week."

It is difficult to place a specific value on a university in relationship to the community where it is located. However, Pennington estimates that Tech, its students, faculty and staff will spend more than $61 million in Lubbock during the 1966-67 academic year.

"EVERY TIME the university's enrollment increases another 1,000 students," Pennington said, "it is the equivalent of a new $14 million industry moving to Lubbock."

Pennington pointed out some local comparisons to show the magnitude of the Tech operation:

"The faculty, staff and student body numbers more than the cities of Plainview or Lamesa.

"The telephone system at Tech is twice the size of the one in Slaton.

"WE USED ENOUGH natural gas last year to burn a gas light, day and night, in front of every home in Lubbock for a full year.

"We used enough electricity to serve the needs of 10,000 average families in Lubbock for a year.

"Enough water was used by Tech to fill a channel 300 feet wide and a mile and a half long to a depth of more than 19 feet."

Tech students who eat their meals on campus are expected to consume more than 13 million pounds of food this academic year, wash it down with 202,000 gallons of milk and top off the whole feast with 23,000 gallons of ice cream.

ONE OF THE busiest places on campus last year, according to Pennington, was Tech Union. More than 1.5 million customers purchased items there—and cashed more than $620,000 worth of checks.

Tech's 1,839 acre campus is the second largest in the nation. The campus proper—the lawns, buildings, and parking lots—comprise 371 acres, about the size of the principality of Monaco.

In achieving its goal of education, Tech graduated 1,885 students with bachelors degrees in 1966, 343 with masters degrees and 19 with doctorates.

Since the university opened its doors in 1925, 32,899 degrees have been conferred and more than 250,000 students have attended classes.

BIA needs teachers for Navajos

The Navajo Indian Reservation in Arizona and New Mexico is looking for more teachers and Tech students may fit the bill.

Interviews are set Dec. 14 by the Bureau of Indian Affairs for elementary education majors.

Starting salaries range from $5,331 to $7,696, depending on the applicant's qualifications.

THE BUREAU OF INDIAN AFFAIRS' long-range educational goal—adequate school opportunities for all Indian children—is well advanced in New Mexico where about one-half of the Indian school population is now enrolled in school.

About 30,000 Indian children attend schools in Arizona. The BIA currently operates more than 62 boarding and day schools there, serving approximately 13,000 students.

Students attending Bureau schools consist mostly of Indian youths without access to public schools and those who need intensive English instruction to overcome language handicaps.

The large Indian population and isolated communities on the Navajo reservation make the BIA school system a necessity.

THE NAVAJO population of the Arizona reservation is approximately 100,000 in an area of 24,000 square miles. The population in the New Mexico extension of the reservation is 29,000.

Maxwell Taylor feels at home as war general and as diplomat

Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, former chairman of the joint chiefs of staff and former U.S. ambassador to Viet Nam, will be the initial lecturer in the 1966-67 University Speakers' Series Thursday.

The distinguished scholar will speak to students and faculty at 7:15 p.m. in Lubbock Municipal Auditorium. His topic will be "Viet Nam in Perspective," a subject which is expected to be of special interest because of the General's first-hand knowledge of Southeast Asia and his reputation as a brilliant strategist.

TAYLOR, WHO completed his assignment as ambassador to Saigon in July, has been in many of the world's trouble spots during his career as a military man and diplomat.

The son of a railroad lawyer in Keytesville, Mo., he finished high school at 15 and stood fourth in the 1922 graduating class at West Point where he was dubbed "most learned" in the senior yearbook.

A natural linguist, Gen. Taylor was proficient in Japanese, Chinese, French and Spanish by the time the United States entered World War II. He then added German and Italian.

He was Chief of Staff and Artillery Commander of the 82nd Airborne Division during the war, serving in the Sicilian and Italian Campaigns, in the Normandy drop on D-Day and in the Battle of the Bulge. In the Korean War he again led field troops as commander of the Eighth Army.

APPOINTED Chief of Staff of the U.S. Army in 1955, he served until his retirement in 1959, then was recalled to active duty two years later by the late President Kennedy who named him to the President's Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board.

He was named chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff in 1962, tapped for a year's ambassadorship in Viet Nam in 1964, and in September of this year, was named by President Johnson as a special consultant to the President on matters of diplomatic, military, strategic and economic problems.

Gen. Taylor currently is serving as president of the Institute for Defense Analysis, a non-profit institution sponsored by 12 colleges for the purpose of investigating technological, scientific and sociological factors involved in defense.

HE IS THE author of "The Uncertain Trumpet," a best seller written during his brief retirement in which he criticized the "massive retaliation" warfare policies of the Eisenhower Administration. The title of the book is based upon a quotation from I Corinthians, xiv, 8.

Taylor, who advocates reliance on a buildup of the Army's conventional forces rather than nuclear retaliation, likes the following quotation from Polybius, a Greek historian of the pre-Christian era: "It is not the purpose of war to annihilate those who provoke it, but to cause them to mend their ways."

Economy taken to excess

Economy has long been cited as a virtue, but like anything else becomes a vice when taken to excess. Such is true for an individual, a group of individuals, and even an institution of higher education.

Such is true for higher education in Texas. According to a recent survey conducted among members of the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges, composed of 97 institutions comparable in size and scope to that of Tech, Tech has the second-to-lowest resident tuition and fees per year, and is among the lowest five for non-residents. Only the University of Texas median figure per student is lower for in-state residents.

Students at three out of four state colleges and universities are paying higher tuition, fees, room, and/or board charges this year than they were last year. The survey shows an overall 6.73 per cent increase in in-state tuitions and required fees (to $333) and a 6.53 per cent increase for out-of-state tuition and fees (to $782). At Tech the figures are $150 and $444 for the "average" full-time student.

Tech and Texas are two of only six institutions who have held students' costs steady for the past two years. Tech last raised room and board in 1964, and then only $11 per year, and tuition in 1957, when it went from $25 to $50 per semester throughout the state.

Next year's $90 room and board increase is the first "drastic" increase in student expenses at Tech in more than 10 years. The same is true for most of the 21 other state-supported colleges and universities in Texas.

What does all this mean? It means that Texas is behind in funds for higher education. Taxes simply cannot carry the burden when 22 four-year institutions and a growing number of junior colleges are competing for the monies available if Texas higher education is to keep pace with the rest of the nation.

The state will have to turn to the student for more money, although this should not be its sole source in addition to taxes. The Daily Texan, student newspaper at the University of Texas, has suggested that the legislature legalize pari-mutual betting at horse races and use the added revenue for higher education. Certainly other possibilities exist.

However, these methods cannot fill the void entirely. We feel that students should and must assume responsibility for a larger part of the cost of college education if Tech and 21 other colleges and universities in Texas are to build more classrooms, hire better professors and maintain and/or increase their student services.

Of a $10.4 million educational and general operations budget at Tech for the current fiscal year, tuition and fees account for but $1.95 million. This budget was cut short of what was requested and needed, simply because there wasn't enough money to go around.

We think it's time Texas students and parents realize that they must bear a larger portion of higher education costs, or face the prospect of paying high out-of-state tuition in order to get a high-level college education.

'Your simple war'—part II

Viet Nam: its two sides

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of a two-part series describing the non-military aspects of the war in Viet Nam. Moffett, who served as editor of the Yale Daily News last year, is now serving as a full-time CPS correspondent in Saigon. He calls the series "Your Simple War."

By HOWARD MOFFETT
 The Collegiate Press Service

SAIGON—Both sides in the Viet Nam war are using all the available power they can muster to gain support of the population. Yet, there is another dimension to the conflict between the elites of the government and the Viet Cong, and it is best expressed in terms of their values.

One side claims a sincere anti-colonialism refined by fire through twenty-one years of war. It emphasizes social justice and especially the abolition of privilege. It travels closer to the ground, and more often has succeeded in identifying itself with the simple virtues and viewpoints of the peasantry.

DISCIPLINE is strict, and apparently little deviation from the official point of view is tolerated lest the infrastructure's (a system of organized authority) effectiveness be weakened. Personal freedom and ambition seem to be subordinate (sometimes voluntarily, sometimes not) to the collective goal.

The other elite claims nationalism, but has become increasingly reliant on foreign arms and aid to achieve it. It too speaks of social justice and the abolition of privilege, but it lays greater stress on the protection of personal freedoms, fortunes and points of view. As a result, differences often become outright dissensions.

This elite is anything but unified. It is riddled with factions competing for influence across political, religious, regional and institutional lines. It has maintained a significant degree of personal and civil liberty at the expense of the continuation of privilege and even organized corruption.

Yet this elite, heavily dependent on foreign aid because of its own factionalism and widespread corruption, is unified in opposing the regimentation and loss of personal liberty imposed by the other elite in the areas it controls.

What is perhaps difficult for American intellectuals to understand is that, though they are often abused by those in power at any given time, the convictions of the second elite run as deep and sincere as those of the first. The issue is better expressed by a leading Vietnamese intellectual, Ton That Thien, in a recent article in the Asia Magazine:

"ONE MAY ASK why the Vietnamese fight, an what has sustained them for so long. The answer can be summed up in two words: liberation and freedom."

"But the tragedy of Viet Nam is that the Vietnamese are divided into those who believe in the primacy of liberation, and those who believe in the primacy of freedom. The majority of the first are in the North, and the majority of the second are in the South. Neither the North's nor the South's government offers the Vietnamese people both liberation and freedom. Each offers the Vietnamese only half of what they want."

"This double half-order, which gives the Vietnamese a sense of half-fulfillment and unfinished business, is the major cause of prolonged division and war, with all its terrible consequences. For not only is Viet Nam divided, but each Vietnamese is torn internally by violently conflicting desires. As a citizen, he aspires toward liberation, and as an individual he aspires toward freedom. He cannot give up any of those aspirations without feeling a deep sense of partial alienation. For a man is both citizen and individual, and without both liberation and freedom he is only half a man."

Both the physical war and the psychological war are being fought here at several different levels. There is a struggle to build and destroy infrastructures in each of some 10,000 hamlets. There are squad and platoon-sized engagements between local guerrillas and government militia, called Popular Forces. There are terrorist bombings at luxury hotels and in peasant markets.

The struggle has now spilled well beyond the borders of South Viet Nam and has become in effect a regional war. Anti-government activity is reported increasing in Laos, northeastern Thailand, and even Burma, while the Hanoi government claims North Viet Nam is about to be invaded.

FINALLY, THE international political implications for the rest of Southeast Asia—from Indonesia to East Pakistan—are enormous. And however Americans want to slice it, Southeast Asians see the two major protagonists—competing for power, influence, and the vindication of ideology—as the United States and China.

This, then, is your simple war.

It is true that American warplanes are bombing and burning and killing civilians, more than you will ever read about in the papers. It is also true that the Viet Cong disembowel good province chiefs, or bad ones, and they do run prison camps under conditions not so far removed from those of Dachau. The only thing these two statements prove is that war is hell, and modern guerrilla war is worse than any other kind.

What is going on here has two sides, in every usage of the word. It is not just a slaughter of particularly innocent, peace-loving villagers. Nor is it a particularly democratic defense of freedom against terror and tyranny from without. It is a total war.

Committee seeks communication

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following report was prepared by the Student Senate Food Committee. Members are Jay Carter, chairman; Cathy Carter, John Coppinger and Kretz Jeffrey. This is the first of several articles written by Student Senators which will be published.

The Student Senate Food Committee would like to make public a point of clarification.

The Food Committee eats in the different dorms several times a week, to answer questions and to hear complaints and suggestions.

LAST YEAR as a result of suggestions made by students, the Senate Food Committee working with Mrs. Shirley Bates, director of food service, and M. L. Pennington, vice president for business affairs, was able to make available the continental breakfast now in use, punch as well as tea served at meals, a larger variety of salads and the privilege of choosing any two choices from the salads and desserts, with the exception of Saturday night and Sunday.

The Food Committee has noticed while eating in the different dorms that at each meal some students will say that they like the lunch today, while others say they do not.

NEITHER THE FOOD Committee nor the Food Service can do anything about personal likes and dislikes in food, but both are most interested in serving the best food possible under the food budget.

Many students fail to realize that the revenue for the food service must come completely from the students' room and board fee, with no help from the state. From the food service budget must come wages for the cooks, dietitians, servers, waiters and persons connected with the food service. Also the cooking and eating utensils, chairs, tables, stoves and even the cafeteria building must be paid for out of the food service budget.

IT IS OUR OPINION that under the circumstances, the food is not too bad, but the Food Committee and the Food Service are the first to agree that there is always room for improvement.

There are many problems in preparing 20,000 meals a day, but by communicating with the students many of these problems can be solved.

The Food Committee will continue eating in the dorms and would appreciate your suggestions. We will be wearing name tags. There is also a food representative in each dorm to hear your suggestions, and these representatives have direct contact with Mrs. Bates.

A FINAL NOTE: As students working with the Food Service, we believe that the Food Service is sincerely interested in the best possible food.

Diamondmen admitted to SWC

By GARY TILLORY
Staff Writer

After two years of fighting, Texas Tech and the University of Arkansas have been admitted into Southwest Conference Baseball.

At the league's winter meeting in Dallas this past week, Arkansas and Tech were given the go ahead for the 1968 season.

WHEN TECH entered the conference in 1956 it was by their request as well as that of the Southwest Conference that Tech not participate in baseball, said Polk Robison, Tech athletic director.

"It was felt that the conference couldn't support a league with Arkansas and Tech in it. Arkansas was so far away in one direction and Tech was in the same situation in the opposite direction that the league felt it was for the best interest that the two schools be left out of conference action for a while," said Robison.

"About two years ago we got with Arkansas and started working on an idea of participating in the conference. They began their baseball program then and it was planned that we would move along with them for admission into the conference," said Robison.

AS IT STANDS now, the conference is a six team league with Texas, Texas A&M, S.M.U., T.C.U., Baylor and Rice. Each team plays each other three times, said Robison. "Texas will play two games in Dallas against S.M.U. and then later in the year S.M.U. will go to Austin and play Texas one game," he said.

"In the spring meeting in Dallas this year we will probably discuss some scheduling to give us some advance notice to schedule other non-conference games," he said. "What comes out will be a two game schedule for every other year. Meaning that we would play Texas up here in 1968 for two games and then in 1969 we would go to Austin and play two games," said Robison. "At the present the conference teams play 15 games a year and with this two game set up it would mean that they would play a 14 conference game schedule," said Robison.

THE BASEBALL team is on the rebound of one of their better seasons in quite some time. This year the Raiders will field nearly everyone that started last year, and support should improve greatly on their 10-13 season last year.

There's no question about it this will help our recruiting program for baseball, said Kal Segrist, ex-Yankee infielder and now assistant baseball coach. In the past we have had to rely on word of mouth to do our recruiting, he said. We have now taken the first big step in gaining a real great ball team, he said. Our second step will be to provide the facilities for playing ball and to offer full scholarship for ball players, he said.

In the past we have been able to offer only half scholarships. It's hard to get real good ball players here when they could go to some other school, in a conference on a full scholarship, he said. This however, will have to take care of itself as time goes on, he said.

RIGHT NOW we have the type ball club that could compete in the conference, but when we get established we will become an even better ball club in the conference, he said.

In this season's campaign the Raiders will face conference opponents Texas A&M, S.M.U., T.C.U. and Baylor. For the Raiders Feb. 1 not only marks the first day of workouts, but it also marks the last season that Tech will have to play as an independent.

Trading period labled as dud

(AP) — Inter-league trading, 1966: Dud:

That's the stamp that's likely to be applied to the thin folder showing the trades that baseball's master manipulators have pulled off during the month-long inter-league trading period that ends this Thursday.

FOR AS THE clock ticks off the final hours in which National and American league teams can cross league lines for trades, only five such transactions have been completed—and one was an outright purchase.

Oddly enough, the New York Yankees—who for years have traded from strength—crossed league lines three times to complete deals. They have been the only team to risk letting a big name star go to another league as Cincinnati did last year by trading Frank Robinson to Baltimore.

THE YANKEES stepped right up where the Reds struck out last year by dealing outfielder Roger Maris, the 61-homer hitter of 1961, to the St. Louis Cardinals in exchange for third baseman

Charlie Smith. Lee MacPhail, the new Yankee general manager who initiated the talks for Robinson when he was Baltimore's general manager last year, may have had his hand forced in letting Maris go.

Not only had Maris been on the trading block since the end of the season, but the Yankees needed an established third baseman after pulling off their first inter-league trade.

IN THAT ONE, the Yankees sent veteran third baseman Cleo Boyer to Atlanta for Bill Robinson, a rookie outfielder, and pitcher Fredrico Chi Chi Olivo. In their other inter-league swap, the Yankees traded pitcher Pedro Ramos to Philadelphia for pitcher Joe Verbanic.

The Phillies also made one other inter-league deal acquiring outfielder Don Lock from Washington for pitcher Darold Knowles. In the only other inter-league transaction, Pittsburgh purchased pitcher Juan Pizarro from the Chicago White Sox.

IN ALL, seven teams have participated in inter-league trades with 11 players changing hands.

Raiders tackle Sooners

By GEORGE CHAFFEE
Sports Editor

With two road games behind them, Tech's scrappy Red Raiders take their basketball hopes to Norman, Okla. tonight where they will close out their Western tour against Oklahoma University.

GENE GIBSON'S cagers are 1-3 for the season after losing their first two away games to Arizona and New Mexico. The Raiders played a disappointing game while losing 64-49 to the Wildcats, then, on the following night, put a scare into nationally-ranked New Mexico before falling in the last of the second half, 80-59.

Oklahoma also took two on the chin during its recent Western tour, losing to Seattle, 88-79, and California, 108-81, behind center Don Sidle's 27 rebounds, an Oklahoma school record.

SIDLE, who stands 6-8, has turned into a slithering scorer, too. He has averaged 25 points the first three games, but has also had tremendous help from forwards Jim Johnson (22.3) and Willie Rogers (17.0), and guard Terry Due has picked up some of the outside scoring slack by averaging 10.3 points per game.

The biggest weakness of the Sooners is defense. "Our defense very definitely has to improve," said Sooner coach Bob Stevens. "We are leaving too many holes on defense, and we need to be more aggressive."

BEING AGGRESSIVE is one thing Gibson doesn't have to worry about in his Red Raiders. In only one game did the Raiders fail to put out a good effort, and that was when they took their sinuses to Arizona.

Jerry Haggard continues to pace the Raiders in scoring with a total of 48 points for four games. Billy Tapp is next with 45, and he is followed by Vernon Paul (39) and Dave Olsen (36). Olsen has proven to be the most accurate, hitting 15 of 26 attempts for a .577 percentage.

TWO RAIDERS have come off the injury bench, but both have only seen limited action. Trent Bonner's ankle has improved and Benny Wiggins, sidelined with mononucleosis, saw some action in the New Mexico game.

Starting for Oklahoma will be forwards Johnson (6-4) and Rogers (6-3), center Sidle, and guards Due (6-3) and Allen Gott (5-9).
