Tech Models Show Styles In 'Ivy Look'

by JEANNIE BOOKOUT
Toreador Society Editor

Tech's guys and dolls will be on stage showing the latest toggerly with that "Traditional Look" at a style show set for 7 p.m. Wednesday in the Tech Union Ballroom.

The ivy wearing apparel with all its natural beauty, simplicity and subdued tones will be the center of attention as the latest campus fashions are modeled to the lilting music of the Broadway hit, "Guys and Dolls."

For college men there will be the newest styles in sportswear such as sport coats with a rugged look made from lightweight tweed and traditional suits in soft shades of bluegreens and olive, plaids and stripes. Clothes ranging from ski jackets and car coats to dress shirts with English tab collars will also be on display.

A view of new designs in exciting colors such as lemonite, bright green and magenta will be on hand for coeds at the show. Crew neck sweaters with a "long look" will be shown as well as coat dresses, knee ticklers, Oxford button-down blouses and an array of slim jims in moleskin and madris.

Shirtwaist dresses, which are really in swing this year for party and school, will be featured in wools and cottons.

Something new for the guys with a special doll are matching ski sweaters and car coats.

Models for the event have been selected from prominent organizations on campus. Showing feminine wear are Alta Ada Cates, Alpha Lambda Delta; Pat Jatron, Alpha Lambda Delta; Sarah Pickett, Angel Flight; Wynette Johnson, AWS; Mary Ann Gleason, Freshman Council; Gail Pfluger, Mortar Board; Shelley White, Panhellenic Council; Joy Keller, President's Hostesses; Pat Crouch, Program Council; Libby Malley, Town Girls; Theda Martin, WSO; and Melba Hardwick, Student Council.

Men who will be in action at the show are Jim Isham, cheerleaders; Charlie Aycock, Saddle Tramps; James Perry, BSO; Buddy Chestnutt, freshman cheerleaders; Wade Collins, Army ROTC; and Paul Campbell.

Clothes will be furnished by the Traditional Shop and Doms Ltd. of Lubbock.

Last Year's 'Bridesmaid' Wins 1962 Maid Of Cotton Crown

By DON JONES
Toreador Staff Writer

Ethel Glasscock, a brown-haired elementary education major at Texas Tech, was named South Plains Maid of Cotton for this year Wednesday night before nearly 2,000 persons in Municipal Auditorium.

Jan Barton and Denise Rose, both Tech students, were named first and second alternates.

This is the first time that the new Maid has ever won first place in any beauty contest. In 1959 Miss Glasscock placed second to Joan Weinke Weaver, last year's Maid, in the Miss Venus contest at Monterey High School in Lubbock.

Last year in the Maid of Cotton contest she again finished second to Miss Weinke.

Two other Tech coeds rounded out the top five places in the contest. Annette Sweett, Denver City junior, and Janice Vise, Tulia junior, were rated fourth and fifth in the pageant.

"I was in it all the way this time," Miss

Glasscock said. "I just knew I would win," when asked how she felt just before the South Plains Maid was announced.

In commenting on the hardship and rigors that the Maid contestants must go through in two days of rigorous activity before finals, Miss Glasscock said the tremendous strain was well worth the time.

"I would like to encourage more Tech girls to enter future contests, because I think it is one of the highest calibre contests ever sponsored. It also gives girls interested in cotton a chance to meet some of the really high officials in the industry."

The brown-eyed beauty, who sews all of her own clothes, plans to teach nine months of the year and model the remaining three months upon finishing her education at Tech.

The 1962 Maid moved to Lubbock six years ago from Greenville, where she attended elementary and junior high schools.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Glasscock of 2610 20th St.

The 20-year-old Maid was crowned by Mrs. Weaver. She will compete in the national Maid of Cotton contest in Memphis Dec. 28-29. She will also receive a $1,000 all-cotton wardrobe and a trip to Dallas to participate in the Cotton Bowl festivities on New Year's Day.

The winner of the national contest will be awarded a world tour and will present the Southwest Conference Sportsmanship trophy during halftime activities of the Cotton Bowl game, pitting Texas University, SWC champion, against probable opponent Mississippi.

Miss Glasscock will travel extensively over the South Plains area appearing on various cotton and related programs. She will also attend several banquets that will be held and are associated with the cotton industry.

Crowning the winner of this year's contest was the conclusion of two days of jam packed activities for the 25 contestants that entered the contest.

Of the 25 contestants entered in the cotton pageant, 18 were Tech coeds.

Wayne Underwood, vice president of the Tech Student Assn. and campus coordinator for the contest, said that the 18 Tech girls entered in the contest this year represented an all time high for Tech participation in the event.

Included in the world tour for the national winner will be trips to Europe and Canada. As representative of the cotton industry, the national Maid of Cotton will visit with government and cotton officials in all of the countries she tours.

The Maid will reign for a year.

BONN, GERMANY

Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's illness will prevent him from going to Paris Thursday for a scheduled meeting on the Berlin crisis with President Charles DeGaulle, authoritative sources reported tonight.

WASHINGTON

The White House announced Monday that Chester Bowles has accepted a new and important diplomatic post especially tailored for him.

The announcement ended reports that Bowles had decided to quit after being replaced as No. 2 man in the State Department.

The President's press secretary, Pierre Salinger, announced Monday Bowles had accepted appointment as Kennedy's "special representative and adviser on African, Asian, and Latin-American affairs with particular emphasis on the problems of the new and developing countries."

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.

The United States declared Monday the Soviet Union is trying to prevent the United Nations from putting the spotlight on enslavement of millions of people behind the Iron Curtain.

Adlai E. Stevenson, chief U.S. delegate, asserted that is the reason the Soviet Union has tried to seize the initiative here on the colonial issue from the Asian-African nations.

PIRIMAPOEN, NEW GUINEA

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, his face drawn and downcast as the first really hopeful clue faded, flew personally to this jungle search camp Monday in an apparent last-ditch effort to find his son.

The governor made the trip in a Catalina flying boat after smoke, which raised hopes when it was spotted Sunday, turned out to be a native fire without connection to 23-year-old Michael. He has been missing since he tried to swim to shore from a capsized boat nine days ago.

Texas Shaves Hairy Ranger

The entire staff of the Texas Ranger, humor magazine of the University of Texas, was fired last week by the University board of student publications for what the board termed "indecent" in the November issue.

Those fired were Editor Jack Lowe, Henderson; Associate Editor Dave Crossley, Bellaire; Art Director Kerry O'Quinn, Austin; and Circulation Manager Lieuen Adkins, Austin.

Crossley said the firings were "absolutely foolish and an example of the loss of temper" of officials of the student publications board.

Lowe said that apparently the board's ire was directed at an indecent word partially concealed in some of the sketches.

Stan Kenton Presents Progressive Jazz Show

An exciting and hauntingly beautiful musical evening is in store for progressive jazz fans Friday in the Municipal Auditorium.

Stan Kenton, unanimous leader of the progressive movement in music, will present his 23-piece orchestra in an 8 p.m. performance featuring the New Era of Modern American Music.

Tickets are on sale for the Union sponsored event at the Union and at Wayne's Record Stores. Student price is 75 cents, faculty members pay $1 and others pay $1.50.

Previewed in the new library will be four Mellophoniums, unique instruments developed especially for the Kenton sound.

Tech Band Director Dean Kilion will introduce the orchestra composed of five trumpets, five trombones, one tuba, five saxes, latin drums, string bass, the four Mellophoniums and Kenton's piano.

As a special feature, three of Kenton's best selling albums will be raffled off to members of the audience during intermission. The band leader will autograph the winners' prizes.

Delt Pledge Class Names 4 Officers

The pledge class of Delta Tau Delta elected officers for the fall semester at a meeting Wednesday evening.

The officers are president, Tom Arnold, Midland; vice president, Brett Bayne, Denison; secretary-treasurer, Bill Hein, Cheyenne, Wyoming; and sergeant-at-arms, Joe Livingston, Premont.

Reception Honors Foreigners At Tech Union Ballroom Today

Foreign students at Tech will be honored at a reception at 7:30 p.m. today in the Union Ballroom lounge.

All Tech students are invited to attend the reception to meet and get to know our foreign students better, according to Max Gillaspay, chairman of the International Interest Committee.

Some of the foreign students at the reception will provide entertainment. Refreshments will be served, followed by an informal discussion.

Subjects such as languages, the European countryside, different ideologies and concepts of government and what foreign students think of America were discussed at a previous reception.

Tech Girls Compete For Magazine Title

Texas Tech's most beautiful girls will compete for the Miss Mademoiselle title and an honored place in the 1962 La Ventana in the La Ventana Extravaganza, Feb. 23.

The fourth annual production, formerly the La Ventana Beauty Pageant, has a new format this year, according to Ralph W. Carpenter, publicity chairman.

Carpenter said the production would not follow the Miss America style of selecting a winner as has been followed in the past.

"It will be a complete stage production that combines both beauty and talents of individuals and groups on the campus," Carpenter said.

Harbinger Extends Magazine Deadline

The deadline for submitting entries to the Harbinger, Tech's literary magazine, has been extended through Friday.

Editor Curtis Bradford stresses there are no restrictions upon students entering. The magazine is written entirely by Tech students.

First and second place prizes are being awarded in four categories: short story, poetry, formal essay and research essay. Judges are members of the English department and their decision is final.

Entries should be taken to the English department, Rm. 127 in the C&O Bldg.

Tech Student Rates Poem Publication

Arthur Chandler, sophomore English major from Lubbock, has had his poem "Fireworks" published in the Annual Anthology of College Poetry.

"The Anthology is a compilation of the finest poetry written by college men and women of America, representing every section of the country," said Dennis Hartman, secretary of the National Poetry Assn.

"Selections were made from thousands of poems submitted," Hartman continued, "and we congratulate Chandler and Texas Tech on this honor."

Coach Announces Tryout Schedule

Tryouts for the intercollegiate television debates are 3 p.m.-7:30 p.m. Dec. 6 in the Speech Bldg, according to Robert Dick, debate team coach.

Any Tech student is eligible.

The subject to be used for the tryout is federal aid to education. The student should prepare a five minute speech on the subject, with one to three arguments in favor of federal aid.

The tryouts will be unique in that the student will talk before a closed circuit television camera. The judges will evaluate his work in another room while watching him on a monitor.

The debate is scheduled Jan. 14. The opposing school will be St. Mary's University, San Antonio.

For further information contact either Dr. P. M. Larson, speech department head, or Dick.

Knowles Attends Conference On Education For The Aging

Dr. Elmer M. Knowles of the School of Home Economics attended the Region VII Conference on Education for the Aging at the University of Oklahoma Nov. 20-21.

The conference was one of nine regional conferences scheduled during 1961 to make plans for implementing the decisions and suggestions of the January 1961 White House Conference on the Aging.

Representatives from Arkansas, Louisiana, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas attended the conference.

"Such a conference furnishes material and ideas that can be used toward the improvement of courses in family relations at Texas Tech," said Dr. Knowles.

Professor Reviews Stone's Best Seller

Marie Miles, Tech assistant English professor, will present a book review of Irving Stone's "The Agony and the Ecstasy" at 7:30 Wednesday evening in the Daisy Goteke Room of the Lubbock Public Library.

An entry does not have to be sponsored by an organization. A 1-point grade average, $1 fee and completion of the entry blank are the only requirements that prospective entries must meet.

The Extravaganza is being sponsored by Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalism fraternity for men.

Approximately 300-400 coeds are expected to enter this year's contest. Over 250 entered last year.

Bob Taylor, president of the undergraduate chapter, said the purpose of the contest is to display the beauty of Tech coeds entered and also to provide entertainment for an expected crowd of 1,000.

The winner will be crowned Miss Mademoiselle and will have a full-page color picture in the Mademoiselle section of the La Ventana. The 10 finalists will be featured in the same section.

Miss Playmate also will be crowned at the Extravaganza.

Admission to the pageant is $1 per person.

Crisis Over Berlin...

The fate of the world hinges on one question—can the Berlin crisis be settled by negotiations?

The alternative, of course, is eventual war, probably all-out nuclear war which would destroy the United States, the Soviet Union and much of the rest of the world.

Looking at the two choices objectively, any rational thinker would shrink in horror from the nuclear destruction of civilization and say, "Negotiate."

But the question remains—can either the West or the Communist powers back down from their firm positions and make the necessary concessions? The answer at this point seems to be a regrettable no.

The two views on a "satisfactory" settlement of the status of West Berlin and East Germany are too divergent and too much is at stake for both the contending powers to allow much hope that any arrangement would be agreeable to both sides.

In the months-long battle of nerves and force, leaders on both sides of the Iron Curtain have taken firm, "unalterable" stands on the Berlin question.

President Kennedy said in August that "we cannot and will not permit the Communists to drive us out of Berlin—either gradually or by force."

East German Communist head Walter Ulbricht said in September that "West Berlin must be neutralized" and again Sunday that when East Germany signs the separate peace treaty with the Soviet Union, the Western Allies will have to withdraw their garrisons gradually and negotiate with East Germany for access rights to West Berlin.

Premier Khrushchev told the 22nd Communist Party Congress in October that the only definite way of preserving peace is to liquidate the "remnants" of World War II. By this he means signing a German peace treaty—with or without the Western powers.

Such a unilateral treaty between East Germany and the Soviet Union is totally unacceptable to the U.S. As Kennedy made clear in his August speech, the U.S. is unalterably committed to the defense of West Berlin, a defense which would be difficult, if not impossible, if the East Germans were given the sovereign power of closing the access routes to West Berlin, as Ulbricht has threatened to do.

Ulbricht has said that the East German Communists are "ready to give every reasonable guarantee of nonintervention in West Berlin" and Khrushchev has declared that "we propose to include a clause to the effect that no one shall have the right to interfere in affairs of West Berlin." The pitfalls in such statements are apparent—the presence of Western troops in West Berlin could easily be interpreted as "intervention" or "interference in the affairs of West Berlin." And there should be serious doubt as to what the Communists mean by a "reasonable guarantee."

The issues, then, become relatively clear. The United States and its Western Allies cannot retreat in Berlin. If West Berlin is lost to Communism, West Germany is likely to go next and the U.S. will forfeit its prestige, its self-respect and its place as the leading power in the struggle for freedom. It must use whatever force necessary to keep West Berlin free.

Khrushchev and the Communist powers cannot retreat in Berlin. Too many strong promises have been made to back down now. A stronger reason perhaps—Khrushchev cannot allow such a blatantly successful outpost of capitalism to exist behind the Iron Curtain, tempting as many as 3,000 refugees a day before the Berlin Wall was erected in August. The 22nd Party Congress hinted at a few cracks in the solid Communist bloc and it is doubtful that Khrushchev can afford a loss of prestige by conceding anything in negotiations. He must use whatever force necessary to crush West Berlin.

The dilemma boils down to "standing firm" or "remaining flexible," (willing to negotiate). England is definitely for negotiations and Kennedy seems to be leaning that way. However, France and West Germany demand firmness. DeGaulle says that "there is nothing to negotiate in Berlin, the West has its rights and that's that" and that concessions of any kind will be the beginning of a "long slide down a slippery slope." Adenauer is convinced that any negotiations with the Soviets will end up with West Germany being "sold down the Rhine."

After talks with Macmillan this past weekend DeGaulle seems a little less opposed to negotiations, it is waiting until he talks with Adenauer in Paris this week.

Khrushchev seems willing to negotiate and has said that he will postpone the signing of the separate treaty with East Germany if the West shows a willingness to talk it over, but he has warned that he cannot wait indefinitely.

If all the powers concerned do decide to negotiate, we return again to the original question—can the Berlin crisis be settled by negotiations?

So much is at stake, there is so much pressure from so many sides and the stands already taken have been so firm that, again, hopes for a satisfactory settlement seem very dim indeed.

Only time and the reasoning ability of the world's leaders can determine the outcome. A failure to reach an agreement, a miscalculation, a sign of weakness could mean the end of freedom—or the end of civilization.

Ralph's Ramblings

Welcome back to the grind. There is one little ray of hope—Christmas vacation begins in three weeks. Maybe we can make it.

—RWC—

Coach Joe Kerbel, former assistant at Tech, brings his West Texas State Buffaloes to town Saturday in an effort to end the Raiders' season on a losing note. We're hoping Mr. Kerbel is disappointed.

Nothing would please Kerbel more than a victory over the Raiders. His team has a good record (6-3) this season and a win over a SWC team would put extra feathers in his hat. I imagine he'll play everybody except E. J. Holub in an effort to defeat Tech. It's a big game for the Buffaloes.

I believe Tech can defeat the hot-shot West Texas crew if they make up their minds.

It would mean a 4-6 record for the Raiders if they win. I hope they do.

—RWC—

The editors of the humor magazine at Texas University were fired last Wednesday. It seems that there was a little disagreement over their November issue which deals largely with Texas A&M. A "little fifth" slipped into some of their sketches and the powers-that-be decided that enough was enough.

I understand the Tech Bookstore has several copies in stock. Have fun.

—RWC—

Are you tired of run-of-the-mill dormitory breakfasts? Then maybe you can take a suggestion from the advertising campaign of a California winery which suggests for something different for breakfast—try champagne.

Hell, who can afford it?

—RWC—

Christmas will soon be here and in case you haven't made up your mind on what to give the "sweet young thing" yet, here are a few suggestions I ran across the other day while thumbing through a Neiman-Marcus catalog. You can purchase a diamond necklace at $32,000, an ermine bath robe for $6,900 and assorted other baubles that are priced in the $2,000-range. Shop now and avoid the rush.

—RWC—

I must comment on Texas A&M's decision to fire Jim Myers as head football coach. About the only thing wrong with it as far as I can tell, is that they waited about two years too long to do it.

Why large institutions "dilly-dally" around with head coaches so long has always been a puzzle to me. Football is big business. It's a tough business. There are risks involved.

If the Aggies are able to land a big name like Jim Owens, their football program will certainly receive a shot in the arm. Owens is one of the most popular young coaches in the nation right now.

—RWC—

The Tejas Theater has scored big with the students of Texas Tech. They are offering a discount in the admission price on presentation of student ID cards. This practice might just make the Tejas the No. 1 theater in Lubbock.

Evidently, they want and appreciate our support.

Toreador Mail Call...

Dear Editor,

On June 17, 1961, I was critically injured in an automobile accident in Odessa, Texas. Upon my return to Lubbock I visited my personal physician and was subjected to further treatment. On completion of treatment here I received my Lubbock doctor's bill from Medical Center Hospital and Hestand Clinic—both of Odessa.

I immediately submitted these bills to our fine insurance company (The Student Accident and Sickness Insurance Plan) and a reply was sent—very promptly I might add—to me that said, and I quote, "The circumstances leading up to this accident are very peculiar—and although Texas Police Departments will not release an officers report we would like for you to get a personal statement from that officer (investigating officer that is) and send it to us."

Well, in a situation such as this I was obviously perturbed as the brief policy given to me at the time I registered stated in part:

—will pay up to $500 medical expenses—yah, yah, yah, yah, yah.

1. Medical and surgical treatment by a physician or surgeon.
2. Hospital confinement and special nurses.

3. Miscellaneous hospital expenses—more yah—yah.

4. Does not refer to me in this case.

5. Does not refer to me in this case.

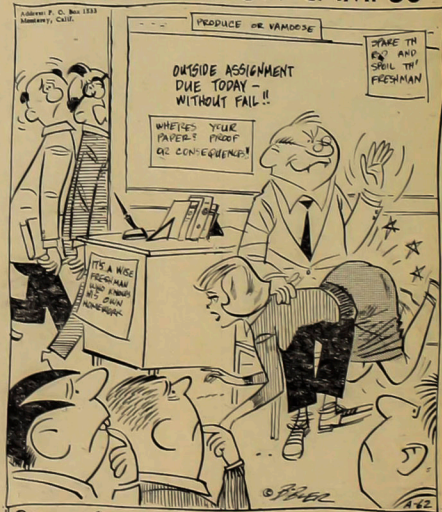

And you know, I really believed all this—I really thought that if I had an accident with resulting injuries my insurance policy would pay for the above named instances.

Well, from my very brief and to the point letter it seemed that my claim didn't meet something—what—I have no earthly idea. The point I'm trying to get over here is that when this fine plan covers you and you have a legitimate claim and you receive a letter from headquarters telling you to do something you can't do—just do as I did—see a lawyer. My, my—it is amazing what someone can do when you have a lawyer. Why I had a check in the mail the same day my lawyer saw Mr. Wm. Nixon Holmes—now wasn't that nice.

Well, fellow students, what you want to do when you have an accident, if you are able, contact your lawyer before you send in your claim—maybe he can tell you whether or not your claim is legitimate.

Sincerely,
W. L.

ing the latest problems facing the nation's economy.

Carruth will be among student representatives from all over the nation to attend NAM's 66th Congress of American Industry. The theme for the convention is "A Blueprint for American Strategy," and it will emphasize the merits of the free enterprise system. In addition to President Kennedy's address, Carruth will hear an address by Glen T. Seaborg, chairman of the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission.

Carruth's application in the state-wide competition was attested to by Dr. R. C. Goodwin, Tech president. He has earned several scholarship awards and fraternity honors, and he is now studying toward a degree in chemistry or engineering.

Carruth will depart next Monday and in addition to the convention will be given a guided tour of historic and famed New York sites, including United Nations' offices.

Tech Patrol Finds Numerous Articles

Several articles that were stolen or lost have been found by the Tech Traffic Security Police and may be returned to their owners upon proper identification.

Traffic Security Director Bill Daniel reported that the most recent articles to turn up are two 14" hub caps. Daniel said, "We have several articles that have been found and confiscated and are anxious to return these to their owners."

"The hub caps are spinner type on a black and white checkered background found about two weeks ago. They have initials carved in them and the owner may claim them with the proper identification," Daniel added.

Daniel urges all students and faculty members to report anything lost or stolen to the Traffic Security office, so that arrangements can be made to return the items to the owners.

Judging Team Places Second In Chicago Contest Saturday

Texas Tech's crop judging team placed second in the International Crops Judging Contest in Chicago Saturday.

Out of a possible 5400 points Kansas State won first with 5275.8 points and Tech followed closely with 5263 points.

Tech has sent representatives to the meet for the last 15 years. The teams have placed first seven times, second seven times and third once.

The teams competed in three phases of judging: commercial, grading, identification of seed and plant specimen and seed analysis.

In commercial grading Tech placed third with James Melton getting 559 points, Billy Don Big-ham 555 and Garland Moore won 549 out of a possible 600.

Tech placed first in identification. Bigham and Moore had perfect scores with 600 points each and Melton won 595 points.

In seed analysis Tech placed first. Melton placed first with 600 points, Bigham placed fifth and Moore placed twelfth. No record of their points was available.

Tech competed against approximately ten colleges and universities.

SCARLET Scatterings...

By CHARLES RICHARDS
Toreador Sports Editor

All seven of Tech's seniors will act as captains for Saturday's football finale with West Texas State.

Bob Witucki, Pat Holmes, Larry Mullins, Bake Turner, George Fraser, Richard Stafford and Dick Polson will receive the honors as they play the last game of their college career.

It hasn't been an extremely successful one for them, but each has contributed vitally in the play of the Raiders, still in a rebuilding stage.

The value of Witucki, Holmes, Mullins and Turner has been more noticeable than the other three, who have been hampered the greater part of this year by injuries.

Even though their injuries have prevented them from working full speed and playing as much as they would like, their attitude has been a great help to the team. It's an added incentive anytime the boys who can't play will stick with the team and continue to give all they've got.

Against Arkansas, Richard Willis played in his first game of the year and re-injured the leg that has kept him out of previous games. Other than Willis, however, Tech should be in good shape for West Texas Saturday.

It's the biggest game of the year for the Buffaloes, many of whom had rather beat Tech than win the Border Conference. As Coach J T King put it, it's another case of "big school vs. little school," and the Canyon gridders will, in all probability, be playing way over their heads.

Pete Pedro is the big attraction for WTS. He's the second leading scorer in the nation, and a good day against the Raiders would give him that distinction.

The Buffs are a lot tougher than the team that came here a year ago, losing to Tech 38-14. On this year's team are 13 transfers from other colleges to increase their stock.

The Buffaloes finished near the bottom of the pack in the Big Eight last year, but several of the losses came as a result of forfeiture.

One pre-season basketball poll rates Tech as 19th in the nation. That's nice publicity, but Coach Gene Gibson is probably hoping Colorado—the Raider's first foe—doesn't do anything to change the rating.

Pres. Kennedy's war exploits

When Lt. Kennedy's PT boat was sunk in '43, he and his crew were given up for dead. But actually, they were fighting starvation on a desert island. Read the authentic account of their ordeal in this week's Saturday Evening Post.

Count-down Starts; Cagers Begin Soon

10-9-8-7-6.

No, there are no rockets preparing to leave the Tech campus. Not unless you consider the Texas Tech Red Raider basketballers, who hope to launch a successful season when they host Colorado University Monday.

The count-down has been going for some seven weeks, but Tech Head Coach Gene Gibson can limit his forward vision to only six days now, as his defending Southwest Conference champions begin the 1961-62 season.

The performances of Harold Hudgens, Del Ray Mounts, Mac Percival and Roger Hennig in workouts so far make Gibson's hopes optimistic ones. The four—all returning starters from last year's titlists—have looked impressive in pre-season drills.

The fifth starter on last season's "cinderella team," Tom Patty, was a scholastic mishap, but three other cagers are waging a contest for the vacancy.

Bobby Gindorf—who alternated with Patty much of last year—Sid Wall and Mike Farley are the candidates for the spot.

Other SWC coaches are putting the tab on Tech to repeat this year, but Gibson thinks that the race could go to any of five other teams.

"I don't know that we should be favored in the race. Since we won it last year, it automatically goes to us, I guess," Gibson said. "A&M, TCU, Rice, SMU and Texas all have a good chance to win it, in my opinion. Our boys have been working awful hard though, and I think we'll be in the thick of the race all the way down to the wire."

The Raiders won't be lacking competition in the initial game. The Buffaloes have been dubbed as a darkhorse in Big Eight play this year. Kansas State has been picked as favorite, but Colorado is highly regarded in the conference this year.

A 24-game schedule is on tab for the Raiders this year, with 13 of the games to be played in Municipal Coliseum. In addition to Colorado and seven SWC tilts, the Red Raiders will also meet Loyola, Oklahoma, VMI, Mississippi and Phillips 66.

The entire schedule is as follows.

- Dec. 4: Colorado*
- Dec. 8: Memphis State
- Dec. 9: Vanderbilt
- Dec. 16: Loyola*
- Dec. 19: Oklahoma*
- Dec. 28: VMI*

As Raiders Fall, 28-0

Hogs Impress King

Arkansas' Razorbacks gave strong evidence in Little Rock Saturday how they went about winning a share of their third Southwest Conference championship in as many years.

They defeated Texas Tech's Red Raiders easily, 28-0, and even with the thrashing, Coach J T King's team turned in a good performance.

"We didn't play badly at all. In fact, we played real well," King said Monday of the game. "We were pleased with everything except the score. We made a lot of little mistakes, but that's to be expected when we had to stretch our defense like we did, trying to contain Arkansas' speed."

King didn't rate the Porkers as highly as Texas, the team the Razorbacks tied for the title with the victory over Tech.

"The first team of Arkansas will compare with anyone's," he said, "but they don't have the reserve strength of Texas. Ole Miss had the line to stop them, but we didn't. They're a good team, and they'll make the Southwest Conference a fine representative in the Sugar Bowl."

The Razorbacks accepted the Sugar Bowl bid immediately after the 28-0 decision over the Raiders.

For Tech, the game left its conference record at 2-5. Two games still remain in conference play with SMU and TCU meeting and Baylor and Rice getting together.

If TCU and Rice win, as expected, Tech would finish in a tie for sixth with Baylor and ahead of SMU.
