

Students Talk About Politics, Old Flames

by CLAUDIA RANEY
Toreador Staff Writer

So you have a class at 8:00 and you've been talking since 7:00—and no one has come to relieve you? What do you do—KEEP TALKING!

And that's just what many Tech students have been doing since Sunday. The phone-talking craze is all part of the inter-dorm telephone marathon that has taken hold of the Tech campus and isn't scheduled to let go until the Christmas holidays.

Talking to strangers isn't really as hard as you might expect, according to both boy and girl participants. Sometimes the conversations take an unusual twist which can prove both interesting and informative.

For instance, Linda Hill, a sophomore resident of Knapp Hall, tells of an interesting talk she had with a boy who said he was an atheist. He told her that, as a great scientist, he had lost much of his belief in the Bible. Another boy consulted Miss Hill as to whether or not he should break up with his current flame. And a third boy entertained Miss Hill by reading another boy's letter from his girlfriend over the phone.

Old girl friends and politics are two subjects which have received considerable attention during the talkathon, according to Ray Finfer, a freshman from Thompson Hall. Finfer said that approximately 40 dates have been arranged between residents of Knapp and Thompson as a result of the marathon.

West Hall resident Sarilyn Bay said that a lot of the time on the phone is spent studying. Both parties come equipped with books and notes and study together.

Cheryl Walker, another resident of West, reports that much of the conversations are devoted to a trading of vital statistics such as height, weight, color of eyes, home town and major course of study. And if you find you have one of these in common, you're off like a shot.

Another inevitable event in the typical marathon conversation is the familiar "Who do you know" game. It goes something like this: "Oh, you're from Houston—do you know old so and so?" Sometimes, according to Gaston Hall freshman, Bill Strickland, you draw a blank; other times you discover that you're talking to a long lost relative.

All and all, you can really learn some new and unusual things about your fellow Techsians by joining in the fun. It may be serious or it may be light. But at any rate, you can bet it will be fun.

Judges Pick Debaters For Television Contest

Tension was high and retorts were sharp in the speech department's try-out debate Wednesday night.

The debate, which was carried on closed circuit television and Tech radio station KTXR, narrowed a field of twenty contestants to the top four.

A panel of three judges, consisting of Dr. P. Merville Larson, speech department head; Sylvia Mariner, retired staff member; and Janice Haywood, Tom S. Lubbock debate coach, selected the four top debaters.

The four chosen were Kip Glasscock, Richard Estrang, Arthur Skibell and Mike Pollard. They will compete against each other with the top two traveling to Dallas Jan. 14 to oppose St. Mary's University of San Antonio in a televised debate.

The Tech representatives will be debating the affirmative as opposed to St. Mary's negative.

Robert Dick, speech instructor, said, "Our team will be supporting the proposition Resolved: that the federal government should equalize education opportunities by means of grants to the states for public, elementary and secondary education."

Winner of the Tech-St. Mary's debate will compete against the winner of the University of Texas-Midwestern debate March 11. The topic of strife for this engagement will be the one party system of Texas and whether it is detrimental to state government.

"SORRY, YOUR TIME'S UP"

Brenda Hobbs, Ginny Hughes, Loubeth Sanders and Delores Lewis hint to a fellow Knapp Hall talkathoner that she has passed her allotted time on the phone.

Percival Sinks Final Shot --- Too Late -- Tech Bows, 63-62

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Texas Tech's Mac Percival connected on a long, desperation shot Friday night, but it came just after the final buzzer sounded, and the Memphis State Tigers escaped with a 63-62 victory before a sellout crowd of 4,200 partisan fans here.

The victory was the third in four starts for Memphis State, who previously defeated Texas Wesleyan and Baylor and bowed to Minnesota.

The loss was Tech's and evened its schedule at 1-1. The Red Raiders beat Colorado in its initial contest.

The weather here was cold and damp, and the Raiders followed suit. The Mutt-and-Jeff combination for Tech, Harold Hudgens and Del Ray Mounds, was cut to less than half its Colorado production as both failed to connect on their favorite shots. Hudgens made 31 and Mounds 21 against Colorado, but against the Tigers the 6-9 Hudgens made only 15 and 5-10 Mounds, 10.

Bob Smith scored for the Tigers with only 1:02 left in the game to give Memphis State a 63-58 lead and apparently the victory. But Hudgens scored on a jump shot from the free throw line, and Percival scored on a tip-in after a Tiger shot had missed to bring the Raiders within one point with 18 seconds left.

Hunter Bechman finally shot for Memphis State with 8 seconds left, and the ball hung on the rim, before falling off and out of bounds on the Tigers.

The Raiders called time out with the clock showing five seconds, time for possibly one shot. There was a bobble on the throw-in, but Sid Wall recovered it and tossed to Percival who couldn't get it off before the buzzer.

Tech trailed almost the entire first half before tying the game at 26-26 with 2:45 left. The Tigers went ahead again, 28-26, but the Raiders caught up again seconds later, and went ahead for the first and only time, 31-30, with 56 seconds left in the first half. A successful jump shot seconds later by Larry Garber put the Tigers ahead to stay.

Although the Raiders' shooting eyes were off, Hudgens and Percival had good nights on the boards to enable the Southwest Conference visitors to stay close.

Memphis State rallied to a seven-point lead, 24-17, with seven minutes left in the first period, but the Raiders countered to cut the lead to a single point, 25-24, and it remained nip-and-tuck until the intermission with the Tigers still ahead by a point, 32-31.

Bob Neumann, 6-5 sophomore who was top scorer for the Tigers with 17, found the mark on two quick jump shots to shoot Memphis State ahead, 36-31, after play began in the second half. The two teams traded six points then for a while, as Memphis State would build to a six or seven-point lead, and then Tech would narrow the margin to three.

Leading 52-49 with 8:24 left, the Tigers made a bid to sew up the game and the victory, and almost succeeded before the Raiders came to life. Bechman scored on a 15 foot jump shot to start the action, and then the Tigers stole a Tech pass. Garber connected on a long set shot and then it was Smith's turn to play hero. He stole the ball and drove the length of the court to score easily and put the Tigers out front, 58-49—the largest lead of the game.

Hudgens connected on two free throws to cut the lead to seven, and then in a zone press, full court defense, Percival made the score 53-58 with his theft of a Tiger pass and layup that was good. Jim Horton gave Memphis State another point when he made his free throw shot after being fouled by Mounds. Roger Hennig closed the margin further with a jump shot from 12 feet out, and Percival's tip-in of Sid Wall's missed shot left the Raiders only two points behind, 57-59.

Wall was fouled by Neumann and made his charity shot in a 1-1 situation, but the second try was no good, and Memphis State rebounded to gain possession of the ball with 3:17 left and only a one-point lead, 59-58. A second opportunity to even the game or go ahead came moments later when Smith was called for fouling Percival. A 1-1 situation again existed, but Percival missed his first try, and the ball went out of bounds on the rebound off Memphis State.

A traveling violation gave the ball back to Memphis State, and Horton ripped the net from 20 feet out to send the Tigers further ahead. Smith then made his two-pointer that gave the victors their five-point lead with a minute left.

Percival took scoring honors for Tech and the game with 18 points, Hennig and Wall contributed 8 each and Bobby Gindorf had 3.

Next to Neumann in scoring for Memphis State were Garber with 15, Snyder with 9, Bechman with 8 and Horton with 7.

The Raiders will have no time to lick their wounds over Memphis State, because they will be traveling to Nashville tonight to play Vanderbilt. The Commodores are a pattern-type ball club, with a fast-moving offense. In guards John Russell and Bobby Bland they have two of the finest guards in the Southeast Conference.

The Texas Tech-Vanderbilt game will begin at 8:15 p.m., preceded at 6 by a game between the Wayland Flying Queens and Nashville Business College.

Seamstresses Model Garments In Contest

The School of Home Economics will be the scene of beautiful clothes displayed by talented seamstresses as 91 contestants model their own creations in the District I "Make It Yourself With Wool Contest."

The contestants, who represent 60 counties in District I, come from the Panhandle and South Plains area. They will model dresses, suits and coats which they have made from 100 per cent wool.

Garments are judged on quality of construction and general appearance.

The top adult winner and the top 10 per cent of both the junior and senior divisions will be eligible to compete at the state contest at Tech on Jan. 6.

The judging will take place in two phases. The first phase, in which quality of construction is considered, was held Friday. Miss Nena Roberson, former extension clothing specialist; Mrs. Myra Timmons of Tech's School of Home Economics; and Mrs. Annie Margaret Turner Clark, former homemaking teacher, were judges.

The second phase, in which fashion and appearance are judged, takes place this morning and is judged by Jack Christian, executive assistant for the South Plains Electric Cooperative; and former homemaking teachers, Mrs. Mark Anthony of Lubbock and Mrs. Milton Davis of Slaton.

Winners will be announced at a "grand finale," at which contestants will model their handiwork, at 3 p.m. in the Home Economics Bldg.

The contest is sponsored by the women's auxiliary of the National Wool Grower Assn.; the women's auxiliary of the Texas Goat and Sheep Raisers' Assn.; and the American Wool Council.

Yuletide Festivities Prelude Christmas Vacation In Dorms

by KONNIE CLEARMAN
Toreador Staff Writer

The Christmas spirit is not only found in homes where small children anticipate the coming of Santa Claus or on busy streets packed with shoppers—it is also found in the Tech dorms where special activities really make the prelude to Christmas a gay and festive time.

Wednesday night senior girls in Weeks Hall participated in their traditional caroling program. Approximately 50 girls walked through the halls of the dorm carrying lighted candles and singing Christmas carols. A Christmas party climaxed the caroling and the tree was decorated.

West Hall is having a special treat this year. Several girls in the dorm entered a KSEL contest on "Why I think the KSEL disc jockeys should decorate my tree"—and won. The girls then decided to let the whole dorm be in on the prize and so five KSEL disc jockeys, Dee Wooten, Bill Sherbert, Lou D'Laie, Jerry Coleman and Bill McAllister, will decorate the West Hall tree Wednesday.

The Horn Hall lobby was filled Thursday night at the all-dorm party to decorate the tree. The girls who didn't get into the actual act of decorating did their share in singing Christmas carols. Coffee and doughnuts were served.

Knapp Hall will decorate their tree Sunday night. The tradition at Knapp calls for a white tree adorned in pink. No one will be likely to mistake Knapp for a men's dorm—especially when they see the dolls in the Knapp Doll House. Each year the girls contribute dolls to be given to needy children.

Monday night will be the festive trim-tree night in Doak Hall. Seniors will trim the tree in the lobby, and the other girls will trim the tree in the upstairs lounge. An added decoration will be red roses and greenery on the railings of the stairway. The all-dorm party is scheduled for Tuesday.

Course Shows Skills For Summer Camp

Training in basic camp craft skills is being offered beginning Tuesday and ending in January. Students interested in working in summer camps can enroll in the training which is a Camp Crafters Certified program approved by the American Camping Assn.

The program will include the teaching of skills such as firecraft, knots and lashing, gears and shelter, map and compass, tool craft, outdoor cooking, health and safety and outdoor conservation.

The training program is such that students will be qualified to work in almost any kind of summer camp, according to Mary Anderson, instructor.

Interested students should call SH 4-0502 or PO 2-0196.

Union Sponsors Holiday Program

The Tech Union Workroom will be the setting for a Christmas program sponsored by the Tech Union 7 p.m., Dec. 14. A group of students from the speech department in Dr. Larson's interpretive reading class will give the program.

The program will consist of humorous and serious selections of prose and poetry.

This will be one of the Union's forums for the semester. There will be no admission charge.

"HAPPINESS CAN'T BUY MONEY"

I have asked the makers of Marlboro—an enterprising and aggressive group of men; yet at the same time warm and lovable; though not without acumen, perspicacity, and drive; which does not, however, mask their essential great-heartedness; a quality evident to all who have ever enjoyed the beneficence of their wares; I refer, of course, to Marlboro Cigarettes, a smoke fashioned with such loving care and tipped with such an easy-drawing filter that these old eyes grow misty when I think upon it—I have asked, I say, the makers of Marlboro—that aggregate of shrewd but kindly tobaccoists, that cluster of hearty souls bound together by the profit motive and an unflagging determination to provide a cigarette forever flavorful and eternally pleasing—I have asked, I say, the makers of Marlboro whether I might use today's column to take up the controversial question: Should a coed share expenses on a date?

"Yes," said the makers simply. We all shook hands then and squeezed each other's shoulders and exchanged brave smiles, and if our eyes were a trifle moist, who can blame us?

To the topic then: Should a coed share expenses on a date? I think I can best answer the question by citing the following typical case:

Poseidon Nebenzal, a student at Oklahoma A and M, majoring in hides and tallow, fell wildly in love with Mary Ellen Flange, a flax weevil major at the same school. His love, he had reason to believe from Mary Ellen's sidelong glances and maidenly blushes, was not entirely unrequited, and by and by he mustered up enough courage to ask her the all-important question: "Will you wear my 4-H pin?"

"Oh, foolish reaper! Why have you not told me before?"

"Yes," she said simply. They shook hands then and squeezed each other's shoulders and exchanged brave smiles, and if their eyes were a trifle moist, who can blame them?

For a time things went swimmingly. Then a cloud appeared. Mary Ellen, it seems, was a rich girl and accustomed to costly pleasures. Poseidon was bone-poor and he quickly ran out of money. Unable to take Mary Ellen to the posh places she fancied and too proud to tell her the reason, he turned surly and full of melancholy. Soon their romance, so promising at the beginning, was headed for a breakup. But at the last moment, Poseidon managed to blurt out the truth.

"Oh, beloved agrarian!" cried Mary Ellen, grappling him close. "Oh, proud husbandman! Oh, foolish reaper! Why have you not told me before? I have plenty of money, and I will contribute according to my ability."

Poseidon, of course, protested, but she finally persuaded him of the wisdom of her course. From then on they split all expenses according to their incomes. Rather than embarrass Poseidon by handing him money in public, a joint bank account was set up to allow him to write checks. Into this account each week they faithfully deposited their respective allowances—35 cents from Poseidon; $2300 from Mary Ellen.

And it worked fine! They were happy—truly happy! And what's more, when they graduated they had a nice little nest egg—eight million dollars—with which to furnish a lovely apartment in Lubbock, Texas, where today they operate the local laundromat.

So you see? You too can salvage your failing romance if you will only adopt a healthy, sensible attitude toward money.

Interest Mounts

Favor For Song Change Grows

Interest in changing the school song is beginning to mount. The Toreador has received many opinions on the subject—most of them have favored the idea. Clint Formby, past president of the Exes, informed the Toreador Friday night that he was in complete accord with the song change idea. Other Tech Exes have expressed the same opinion.

Of course, there are those who oppose the song change idea. They are entitled to an opinion on the matter. However, we strongly feel that the idea is approved by both a majority of students and Exes. The "againers" are in a minority.

Persons opposing the change have indicated that they do not believe the song sounds like a funeral march—in fact, they think the song is beautiful—when it is sung by the right group. This reasoning is far out in left field. We're not all gifted song birds—we have to do the best we can. It's obvious that the "Matador Song" doesn't leave much room for amateurs. It's plenty hard to sing.

Another objection raised by a few is that the song is a tradition and should not be changed. We say hear, hear to good traditions; but does this one meet the standards of a good tradition? We say no.

The Toreador urges the Student Council to carefully consider the song change proposal at their December 12 meeting, pass a resolution favoring the matter and institute proper action.

We earnestly feel that the public opinion current is running in favor of a song change. The time to act is at hand.

Toreador Mail Call...

Dear Editor,

At the Tech-West Texas State football game, the usual inappropriate and witless comments of Tech's head cheerleader were uttered into his microphone; and, as is usually true on such occasions, these comments engendered a desire to move to another section of the stadium which was free of the amplified comments of the spokesman-booster. The comments at Saturday's game, however, were more than just inappropriate, witless, and distracting; they were pretty offensive at times.

Referring to one of the West Texas State coaches as "the little round man" and to Pete Pedro as "the little monkey" is certainly not within the bounds of good sportsmanship or good taste, and the latter reference may be labeled as racial bigotry on its crudest level.

If these comments were not shamefully distasteful to the Tech students and fans who witnessed this abuse, then something is wrong with our individual and collective reactions.

Sincerely,
Roger Scott

Dear Editor,

In the past few issues, the Toreador has kept us informed on the developments of the controversy over the changing of the school song.

First of all, I would like to make it clear that I do not voice the opinions of the sophomore class but those of my own.

I feel that we should first consider what is best for Texas Tech. We should try to satisfy the wishes of the majority and the only way this can be accomplished is by finding out what the majority wishes. We should not be swayed in our opinions by those of "outsiders" nor by the fact that the school song has served Texas Tech for such a long length of time. We should decide for ourselves whether or not the Matador song is still desirable.

Here I would like to propose a possible solution to the problem.

A committee could be formed to poll student opinion on the matter or perhaps questionaires could be published in the Toreador whereby we could voice our opinions and comments on the subject and thus bring the controversy to a speedy end.

In the past, controversial matters have been fought over and discussed without a decision ever having been reached. Let's accomplish something this time!

Sincerely,
Gary Strickland
President of Sophomore Class

Dear Mr. Carpenter,

I have read all your articles in recent editions of the Toreador concerning the changing of the school song. Although it is unusual, I must say that I wholeheartedly agree with your opinions. Any open-minded person can certainly see the reasons for a change. Thus far, in my opinion, there have been no valid reasons posed against such a change. The tradition argument certainly "holds water," but not in this case.

Tradition is a fine thing and we should uphold it, but, tradition is something which should be shared by students and exes alike. There is very little tradition on this campus, but least of all, that concerning the school song. A school song is something that should be everlasting, the Tech school song is something which will not be. Among the other reasons, we should change the song to insure this.

I would like to go one step further and make a proposal. There is nothing that says we have to come up with a completely new song. There are two songs on this campus which are unanimously agreed upon in popularity: Dixie and the fight song. I propose to make the fight song the school song and Dixie the fight song, or, rewrite Dixie to fit this campus and make it the school song.

No matter what finally happens, it seems to me that anybody arguing against such a change in the present school song for the invalid reasons posed thus far, is just damned narrow-minded.

Respectfully yours,
Tom Edwards

From Politics To Pool

j. petty

A friend of mine once said, "I stutter—laugh with me, not at me."

It seems that we have lost this ability to laugh with people—now its all taken personally.

We can't tell jokes about the Jewish merchant, the Irish cop, the Negro preacher because society now has forgotten how to laugh with people—it thinks it can only laugh at them.

The rising tide of individual freedom in America has all but destroyed the good, oldtime humor that we all used to laugh at—Amos and Andy has been condemned by the NAACP; a society that says it represents the interests of Italians in America says that it is discriminatory toward Italian-Americans to be portrayed on television as gangsters.

How many of us have laughed with the antics of Jack E. Leonard or Jackie Gleason who kid themselves about being fat? The way it is going now, the fat people may band together and forbid us to kid the obese.

The root of this mess stems from the 1954 Supreme Court ruling concerning segregation. Definitely, I am not against integration, but it has produced this one tragic side effect; we have become afraid of ourselves.

This was made evident at Saturdays game against West Texas when Tech's head cheerleader was commenting on the antics of WTS coach Joe Kerbel and Pete Pedro.

The little people in the student section were "offended." Concerning Kerbel, he is a showman. He likes these comments. He can laugh with himself.

As for the cheerleaders comments of Pedro's running, they were apropos, he is fast. Anyone who twists the idea of his "running like a monkey" into a comment of racial bigotry is himself the bigot. He cannot distinguish colorful comment in his own narrow mindedness.

The real tragedy in this degrading of humor is that we now consider funny the sick comedian whose basic tenet of humor is filth and sex.

This timely comment appeared in the LSU Daily Reveille: "The Christmas season, like the presentation of the new cars, seems to start earlier each year. In August people are first warned to buy early and avoid the rush. September ushers in Santa Claus sales and the opening of toy departments. The first cold day in October merchants try to decide who will wear the pillow and the white beard.

"In November Christmas bells and lights are strung from poles

"By December, people are sick of the thought of Christmas. Perhaps this is why the tinsel and lights are jerked down on Dec. 26, as though they were something hated and boring.

"People do not want Christmas to interfere. They want it to come softly like any other day so there will be no bother. It is too much trouble to be sucked into the activities of a Christmas season. Christmas must be pre-packaged so that it can be defrosted slowly. It is bought in August and then thawed with the Christmas turkey a few days early . . .

"I think that I will wait until Christmas to have Christmas. It's a lot of fun to buy gifts on Christmas Eve and bump into Christmas trees and be crowded and shoved by people like myself who enjoy the season.

"I'm going to ignore what is going on down town and in the shopping centers . . . I think I will enjoy Christmas on Christmas."

Whoever said it, I like it:

If another country decided to send a man to hell, the United States would form a congressional committee and try to get one there first.

Shocker At Tejas Offers More Than Student Rates

Sunday afternoon movie-goers will form long lines to see the new movie at the Tejas—not only because it offers special student rates.

"Town Without Pity" is showing there.

It's a hard-hitting shocker in the tradition of "Anatomy of a Murder" which deals with unsavory subjects and doesn't mince words.

Kirk Douglas is simply sensational.

His acting ability too often merely mediocre, this script provides an appropriate vehicle for Douglas' dramatic talent. His role calls for versatility and he emerges the correct mixture of viciousness and tenderness.

An army attorney, he is called to defend four enlisted men accused of rape in a small Swiss village. They are overwhelmingly guilty and hanging—in the minds of their commanding general and the local populace—is too good for them.

Douglas—once an unwilling executioner—does not believe in capital punishment, and strives to save their lives.

Upon his arrival in town, he is met by lady journalist Barbara Rutting who is to plague him constantly throughout the trial.

Attorney for defense does little to ease the situation by calling her paper a "filthy rag" and walking out on her every time she appears. "Is it your habit," she asks, "to defend monsters?"

To which she receives an elegant Douglassian reply consisting of turned back.

She is a hauntingly beautiful woman and a skillful actress. In a barroom scene where Douglas slurs, "Never take a law-shuit... jus' never take a law-shuit", she does an emotional about-face which would do credit to an oscar-winner.

A different kind of beauty is the victim. Lithe, lovely ingenue Christine Kaufmann performs a splendid debut. She is presented both as violated innocent and passionate seductress.

Such a part is demanding and would prove a challenge for a seasoned actress. Miss Kaufmann's inexperience only enhances the role.

Douglas' cross-examination of the prime witness provides a brilliant courtroom climax for the film. He's at his best. Furiously the questions fly. His pounding words reduce the girl to tearful self-contradiction. Roaring and stomping and pounding the table, he grinds away at her story and self-control until her testimony is demolished.

It's an exciting movie. It's one to see.

New Cars Need Parking Permits

Students who will be changing cars Christmas are urged to scrape and save their old parking permit to turn in to the Tech security patrol when they come back from the holidays.

Reason for this is that a temporary permit will be issued on presentation of the old sticker at a cost of fifty cents for the remainder of the semester, saving students the five dollar fine for not having a parking sticker.

Bill Daniels, security patrol chief, said, "All students should load their cars immediately before departing and should be careful not to leave articles in the back seats overnight which will attract pilferers."

Tech Tourney Opens

Fraternity teams from three Texas colleges met in games in the Intramural Bldg. Friday.

The occasion was the first annual Invitational Fraternity Basketball Tournament.

Kappa Alpha of West Texas State shared scoring honors for the day as they rolled by Tech's Phi Gamma Delta chapter, 69-40. One other fraternity, the Phi Delta Theta chapter of Tech, also scored 69.

Billy Dunway tossed in 24 and Jerry Logan 23 for Kappa Alpha as the two scored enough points between them to defeat the Fijis. Bake Turner was high man in the losing cause with 17, backed up by Rick Stapleton's 15.

Jerry Avery paced the Tech Phi Delt chapter in its 69-38 win over Sigma Chi, also of Tech, in the most decisive victory of the day. Gary Schessler and Shelby Miller made 10 each to lead Sigma Chi, and Jerry Parsons made 13 to take runner-up scoring laurels for the Phi Delt.

Kappa Sigma and Pi Kappa Alpha combated in the most exciting match of the day, with the Kappa Sigs going into overtime before escaping with a 46-45 victory. Bevo Francis had 13 and Tom Gibson 11 to head the Kappa Sigma attack, and Larry Hughes and Butch Baines led the Pikes with 13 and 10 points respectively.

In another game involving two local chapters, Phi Kappa Psi was edged by Sigma Alpha Epsilon, 50-37. Don Rucker made 17 and David Hatch added 12 in the win, with the Phi Psi's being headed by the 20 points of Don Weldon and 8 by Lewis Rix.

Don Williams scored 9 as the Texas Christian Sigma Chi chapter started successfully, downing Tech's chapter of Delta Tau Delta, 44-30. Ward Williford led the Deltas with 10.

Quarter-final games scheduled this morning are Kappa Alpha (West Texas) vs. Phi Delta Theta; Kappa Sigma vs. Sigma Nu; Sigma Alpha Epsilon vs. Sigma Chi (T CU); and Phi Delta Theta (TCU)

vs. Kappa Alpha (West Texas State).

Features of the tournament today also include an attendance trophy for the fraternity with the best ratio of its members in attendance and presentation of an all-tournament team, in addition to trophies for the winning teams.

Mets Get Ashburn

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Mets purchased outfielder Richie Ashburn, former National League batting champion, from the Chicago Cubs in a straight cash transaction Friday.

Ashburn, 34, batted .257 in 109 games last season. He is a veteran of 14 years in the National League, 12 with the Philadelphia Phillies with whom he won the batting crown with a .350 average in 1958.

SCARLET Scatterings...

By CHARLES RICHARDS
Toreador Sports Editor

That thing called basketball really hit the Tech campus Monday when the Red Raiders took the court against Colorado. They received a standing ovation when they made their first appearance on the court and there wasn't a dull moment from then on.

Newcomers were given a rigid initiation to Texas Tech style play as they saw the Raiders fall as far as eleven points behind, only to fight back and win (in double overtime at that).

The only notable complaint by students about the game was that it was just too early in the season for the Red Raiders to play a game filled with suspense, as Monday's game was. The first-game errors were evident, but all in all, most fans left Municipal Coliseum feeling as proud of the Raiders as a t-shirt would feel worn by E. J. Holub.

—SS—

This is a basketball weekend. Texas Tech's Red Raiders played Memphis State in Memphis, Tenn., last night and will play Vanderbilt tonight. The Intramural Gym is also filled with action too, however, with the Alpha Tau Omega-sponsored fraternity basketball tournament in full swing. Teams played all day yesterday and wind up tonight with the championship game at 6:30 and a dance at the Coliseum at 9. Sunday the intramural cage season starts.

—SS—

Edsel Buchanan, men's intramural director at Tech, has been making positive steps toward making Noche de Conquistadores a success next spring. He has written several big-name sports personalities in hopes of adding another drawing attraction to the already illustrious slate lined up.

Noche is the occasion at which the top contestants in each of the intramural sports, both individual and team, meet to determine the all-college champions.

—SS—

The word is going around that Joe Kerbel, head coach at West Texas State and former coach at Tech, is one of those being considered for the vacant mentor spot at Houston University.

Maybe the Cougars see something in the dictatorial coach that I've missed in my observations, but I can't see anything attractive in the man. From his frequent displays of ill temper and other antics at the game here last week, it would appear that Kerbel is a long way from being approached for a head coaching position at a big-time school.

—SS—

Sports Illustrated's special basketball issue is out now, and their staff picks Texas A&M to take the Southwest Conference.

Cincinnati is given a good chance by their "experts" to retain the national championship again this year, although last year's runner-up, Ohio State, is said to be stronger than its national title winner of two years ago.

In the Border Conference, Arizona State (currently in the nation's top ten) is the choice, with Kansas State a heavy favorite in the Big Eight.

Of importance to Texas Tech is the fact that Memphis State and Loyola of the South are rated two of the top three independent teams in the South and Southwest.

'Mural Play Starts Sunday

Cagers Square Away

Forty-one teams, largest ever for intramurals at Tech, will start play next week in five 1961-62 intramural leagues.

Action in the Fraternity League Sunday will start things off with Pi Kappa Alpha meeting Phi Gamma Delta, Sigma Chi meeting Kappa Alpha, Delta Tau Delta contesting Kappa Sigma and Phi Delta Theta playing Phi Kappa Psi. The other member, Alpha Tau Omega, is idle.

Independent Leagues I and II will highlight second-day action. In Independent League I, the Hustlers and Ringers will meet, the Racketeers will play the Misfits, Phi Epsilon Kappa will try the Rebels and Newman Club will play the Wesley Wildcats.

Independent League II play Monday finds BSU vs. the Bandits, the Sacrats vs. the Comancheros, the Crusaders vs. the Afterburners and the Worthless Wonders vs. the Scraps.

Independent League III begins its initial cage play Tuesday. Delta Sigma meets the Rangers, the Dead Soldiers contest the Rodeo Club and the Bad Hats vie with the Azures. The Flintstones drew a bye in first-round action.

The Dormitory League is the last to start, with its first game coming on Wednesday. Sneed Hall is idle the first week with Wells Hall opposing Bledsoe Hall, Thompson Hall challenging Gaston Hall and Gordon Hall playing Carpenter Hall in other games.

Sunday games will get underway at 1:30 p.m., while weekday matches will be staggered at either 6:30 p.m., 7:45 p.m. or 9 p.m.

SAE Wins Honors In Swimming Meet

Sigma Alpha Epsilon collected 87 points to win the All College Swimming meet Friday.

SAE finished 17 points ahead of its closest contender, Phi Delta Theta. Bledsoe Hall recorded 62 points for third place in the meet, and the rest of the teams were out of the running.

Pi Kappa Alpha finished with 18 points, Delta Sigma Pi scored 11, Delta Tau Delta garnered nine points, and Kappa Alpha Order had seven. Phi Gamma Delta and Sigma Chi tied at the bottom with six points.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon took three first prizes in the 25 yard side stroke, the 25 yard breast stroke and the 50 yard breast stroke.

David Irwin scored the 25 yard side stroke win, and David Wight won both the 25 yard and 50 yard breast stroke.

The Phi Deltas took wins in the diving contest (Bobby Hutto) and the 25 yard back stroke (Ken Bailey).

Bledsoe's 100 yard freestyle relay team (Joe Armbruster, Corky Barton, Travis Thompson, Mike Bohn) won that event, and Barton took first in both the 25 and 50 yard crawl strokes.

Bledsoe and Phi Delta Theta tied for the most number of points scored in a single event. Bledsoe collected 24 points in the 25 yard crawl stroke, the same total recorded by the Phi Deltas in the diving contest.

GOING HIGH! — Two Texas Tech fraternities—Kappa Sigma and Pi Kappa Alpha—contest for the basketball in their game Friday. Kappa Sigma won the game, part of a tournament on the Tech campus. The tourney concludes today.

Sneed Sponsors Annual Run Today If Weather Permits

A turkey, a trophy and a kiss will go to the winner of Sneed Hall's Turkey Run at 2 p.m. today if the weather permits.

Miss Glenda Pettiet, Turkey Queen, will award the winner a kiss. Second and third place runners are to receive trophies denoting their standing in the event. "If the weather is bad," Everett

Barnes, Sneed president, said, "the Run will be held Dec. 16, if the weather is fine."

The race course will begin at Sneed, proceed south on College to the President's home where it turns right to Boston. From there it runs north on Boston, cuts the circle in half, crosses in front of West Hall and ends at Sneed.

Speech Teams Attend Meets

Tech speech teams traveled in opposite directions to the University of New Mexico and Texas A&M for competitive meets last weekend.

At the New Mexico meet in the individual events, Richard Estran and Wynette Johnson advanced to the semi-finals in extemporaneous speaking and Cleo Haston moved to the semi-finals in oratory.

The debate team composed of Cleo Haston and Wynette Johnson posted a 4-2 record for the meet. They went undefeated Friday downing Arizona State College, Adams State College of Alamosa, Colo., and the University of Denver.

Saturday they were power-matched against undefeated teams and lost to the University of Redlands of California, and the University of Colorado but defeated Colorado State College. The other two teams each posted a 2-4 record. Representing Tech on these teams were Richard Estran and Jim Porter, and Hac Brummett and Dixon Healy. Robert Dick accompanied the group.

At the Southwest Conference meet at A&M a four-man debate team defeated Baylor and Texas A&M but lost the remainder of their rounds.

Debating for Tech were Kip Glasscock, Mike Pollard, Arthur Skibell and Mike Lange. TCU won the meet and SMU placed second. Dr. Merville Larson sponsored this team.
