Pentagon freezes funds

WASHINGTON.— The Pentagon Thursday froze $350 million in proposed military building contracts and then suspended all new civilian "pork barrel" construction awards indefinitely.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara ordered a hold on award of new military construction contracts "because of the uncertain state of federal finances."

Such projects include barracks, family housing, training facilities and other structures.

About three hours later, it was announced that Secretary of the Army Stanley Resor had ordered the Army Engineers to suspend award of all new civil works construction until further notice. The order was effective immediately.

The Army said no dollar figures were available on the extent of the civil works freeze. However, the combined freeze might apply to more than $3.5 billion in new work.

The moves hit close to home for Congressmen, some of whom have voted to hold up President Johnson's tax increase request until the administration can demonstrate plans to cut spending.

Reward offered for loot

MIAMI, Fla. — A substantial reward — "No questions asked" — was offered Thursday to ransom two coin collections valued at $1.5 million taken by five hooded gunmen who invaded the mansion of Willis Harrington du Pont.

The bandits broke into the 33-room home and tied the young millionaire, his family and servants before hauling away their loot.

Late in the day attorney Harold Gray, representing du Pont, said the family would meet the ransom demands of the bandits.

"All information will be kept confidential," the statement said. Private investigator William Stanton was named as go-between for anyone with information on the loot.

"I'll never keep anything of value in my home again," du Pont vowed as police and Federal Bureau of Investigation agents combed the city for the bandits.

Astronaut killed

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — One of the nation's astronauts, Marine Maj. Clifton Curtis Williams Jr., died Thursday when his T38 jet plane smashed into a wooded area near the Florida-Georgia border and exploded.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said Williams was alone in the craft when it plunged to earth and disintegrated.

Air Force Maj. Joe Johnson of Moody Air Force Base, Valdosta, Ga., said Williams' body was recovered by members of a Moody helicopter crew that arrived at the crash scene 10 minutes after getting a Mayday call from Williams.

Maj. Johnson said only shredded wreckage was found at the bottom of the 15-foot crater dug by the crash impact. The crash-site is about 20 miles northeast of Tallahassee.

Williams, 35, who liked to be called "C.C." by his fellow astronauts, was en route from Patrick Air Force Base near Cape Kennedy to Brookley Air Force Base, Ala., near Mobile.

Spending cut sought

AUSTIN — Gov. John Connally asked state departments and state colleges and universities Thursday to hold down their budget requests for the 1968 fiscal year.

In letters mailed Wednesday, Connally said in view of local tax increases and a recommended income tax surcharge "the state's response to taxing and spending becomes even more critical."

"The exercise of all possible economies consistent with adequate state services, therefore, has become imperative," he said.

The governor said increased appropriations for this fiscal year "carry with them an obligation for the departments, agencies and institutions of the state to practice more efficient management of the state's resources."

He said in some cases he expects smaller fund requests and, if the requests are larger, "detailed and complete justifications will be required to merit the possibility of favorable consideration."

Draft call hiked

AUSTIN — Texas will have to furnish 1,159 men for induction into the Army in November, compared to 977 this month, the state selective service director said Thursday.

Except for September when the state's draft quota was 1,180, the November call is the highest in six months, said Col. Morris Schwartz.

Schwartz said the national quota for November is 22,000, all for the Army.

He also said 4,650 men will be given pre-induction examinations in November, an increase of 650 from this month.

Antipoverty extended

WASHINGTON — The Senate voted a two-year extension of the antipoverty program Thursday after refusing to trim it back to the $198-million slimmer figure asked by President Johnson.

As the measure went to an uncertain outlook in the House, it would authorize appropriations up to $2.25 billion for the Office of Economic Opportunity in the current fiscal year, and $2.4 billion in the year starting next July 1.

The Senate voted 50 to 36 against a Republican move to cut the current year's authorization to the $2.06 billion proposed by Johnson, and then passed the bill 60 to 21.

Committee will study name plans

Name-change supporters Thursday announced the formation of a six-member student-faculty committee to revise a survey proposal presented to the Ex-Students Association last month.

The committee will draft a new proposal for a survey intended to poll students, faculty and ex-students as to what name they favor. Supporters are hoping for Ex-Students Association approval of the plan.

Dr. John Wittman Jr., associate professor of economics, will serve as chairman of the new committee. Other members are Dr. Kenneth W. Davis, associate professor of English; Charles Dale, professor of finance; David McDougal, chairman of the Student Name-Change Committee; J. B. Spaulding, graduate student and instructor in marketing and Tom Burtis, a graduate student in psychology and a member of the Joint-Name Change Committee.

Dr. Walter Cartwright, associate professor of sociology, will serve as a consultant on the design of the survey.

THE COMMITTEE will attempt to resolve objections raised by the Ex-Students Association Board in their Sept. 23 meeting. It hopes to submit a new proposal for consideration by the Ex-Students Council, governing body of the Association, at its Nov. 3 meeting.

"We hope to revise the proposal to answer objections which Ex-Students Association officers raised last month, and to forestall any other anticipated objections," the committee member said.

Backers cite merits of hospital district

(Editor's note: Following is the third of a four-part series on the proposed hospital district and Tech medical school.)

Even though Lubbock property owners have one of the lowest county tax rates in the state, the over-all tax structure presents a grim picture to citizens already feeling the pinch of tight money and high interest rates.

This, however, does not deter backers of the proposed hospital district.

Bob Nash, assistant manager of KFYO radio, and Dr. O. Brandon Hull have spoken out for the district. Hull is president of the Board of City Development, newly elected president of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce, and has headed the Chamber's committee on the medical school and hospital development for the past four or five years.

They and other civic leaders such as W. B. (Dub) Harris, director of development for Methodist Hospital, point out the benefits of the proposed teaching hospital complex, basing their appeal for votes on humanitarian, educational and economic considerations. They view the hospital as a way to strengthen Tech's educational base, and at the same time provide a means of attracting medically orientated facilities to Lubbock.

Further, they maintain it would help attract other business and industry to the Lubbock area.

Lubbock yogi says practice aids health

By LARRY CHEEK

Anyone who drives a pink 1959 English Ford shooting brake is bound to be interesting.

And of the legions of Lubbockites driving pink shooting brakes (station wagons), Austin Storie of 2601 Amherst St., is undoubtedly the most interesting of all.

He has been practicing yoga for 16 years, tunes pianos on the side, and is "of social security age," although he declines to reveal his exact birth date.

Based on meditation and deep rhythmic breathing, yoga is widely varied in its benefits, according to Storie.

"I could take a football team at half-time and make them come back even stronger in the second half," he said.

Yoga can also relieve ills such as asthma, reduce weight without paying attention to dieting, and strengthen both the mind and the body, Storie said.

Storie stands on his head for two one-half hour stints every day. It rejuvenates the endocrine glands, he said.

He first became interested in yoga when passing through Hollywood in the 1940s. After becoming acquainted with some members of a class there, he later learned the art from Indra Devi, a yogi who studied in India.

Storie will be teaching a class this fall at the Lubbock YMCA. Emphasis will be placed on relaxation and postures to make the body more supple.

About 86,000 yoga positions exist, but Storie will be teaching only 30 or 40.

Definite times for the class will be announced by the YMCA.

Housing suit served purpose, lawyer says

The law suit against Tech by 34 men concerning off-campus housing has accomplished what it was meant to accomplish and further plans have not been made, attorney Kenneth Bowlin said last night.

Bowlin said at a meeting of the Lubbock Apartment Association that a request for a temporary restraining order der filed Sept. 20 was to get the case into court where they could talk to someone and point out the housing problem to Tech administrators.

As a result of the preliminary hearing on the request Sept. 22, Bowlin believes Tech has decided not to continue construction on the Wiggins Complex. He said the hearing also brought out the announcement of a new policy allowing hardship cases to live off campus.

"I have not talked to the plaintiffs since the hearing and we have made no plans regarding the future of the case," said Bowlin.

"I firmly believe this case cannot be won until it reaches the U. S. Supreme Court, and if we decide to continue we will take it all the way."

Bowlin said at least 20 of the original 34 plaintiffs have received permission to live off campus and have therefore been dropped from the suit. He did not know how many were left.

Bowlin said the case involved bonding companies all over the United States. The problem is caused by Tech's attempts to amortize loans on dorms.

"TECH PAYS off the loans with the money they get from room and board payments and they claim the right to set these payments at whatever rate necessary to amortize the loans."

Tech sets the rates and then forces students to live in the dorms before they can register.

"This is in violation of the 14th amendment," said Bowlin. "It deprives those who cannot pay of their rights to equal educational opportunity and it also involves discrimination when one student is forced to move on campus and another is not."

Bowlin said his own investigation had indicated that about 1,500 students had gone home last year because they could not afford the dorm and they could not get permission to move out.

Bowlin said he did not believe Tech should be so concerned with maintaining 100 per cent occupancy of its dorms because there was little threat of foreclosure.

"What bonding company in New York wants a dorm in the middle of the Tech campus?" he said.

Ethics debate due Sunday

By JOHN DROLLINGER

Dr. William Banowsky, pastor of Lubbock's Broadway Church of Christ, Thursday said abortions should be legalized and that society needs a greater understanding of homosexuality and prostitution.

Banowsky will debate Anson Mount, religion editor of Playboy magazine, Sunday on topics such as abortion, homosexuality, prostitution, the "new morality" and religion.

He said it will be "difficult to have a real confrontation, but I am going to force an issue."

Banowsky said the Bible, both New and Old Testaments, does not mention abortion.

"I think abortion should be legalized," he said. "A woman should have the right to choose, under medical and legal sanctions, if she wants an abortion."

"But the abortion should be therapeutic. If the pregnancy is caused from rape or incest or even if the mother were exposed to some illness such as measles, then she should be able to get an abortion."

been guilty because everything said in the name of Christ is not Christian.

"The church has inherently said that sex is evil, and the church has got to change its views. Sins of so-called Christians have made millions for Hugh Hefner, publisher of Playboy.

"He has exploited sex and made it a merry-go-round of sofas and beds, or whatever will accommodate two persons in a prone position."

ON HOMOSEXUALITY and prostitution, Banowsky said more understanding is needed. He said society has been unforgivably cruel to the homosexual, "but legalization is not the solution, as Playboy advocates.

"The homosexual needs greater understanding and sympathy as well as help. Prostitutes are used. They end up more sinned against than sinning," he said.

The main arguments against Playboy philosophy is that it bases its advocacy on sexual license — casual or recreational sex in which no one gets hurt.

"But they fail to see that sex for the sake of sex can destroy a person himself. Playboy claims to be another brand of situation ethics. But advocates of situation ethics will not have anything to do with Playboy," Banowsky said.

HE SAID THE DEBATE was arranged because he was disturbed that Playboy appointed a religion editor and that the magazine attempted to present Playboy philosophy in the name of Christ.

"They do not attempt to deny Christ. They misrepresent Him. They actually present Him as a prophet of the 'New Morality,'" Banowsky said.

"New morality" holds that the standards which made some act absolutely right or absolutely wrong is no longer valid, Banowsky said. "I don't believe this."

He said whenever morality is discussed now, "People immediately think of sex."

"If they hear that someone was arrested on a morals charge, immediately the pills come to mind or perhaps even a brothel in a dormitory. But morality has to do with many things other than sex. A lazy professor or a cheating student is immoral, also."

BANOWSKY SAID the Playmate of the Month centerfold in Playboy is not obscene, "but obscenity is when some deacon in the church utters the word 'nigger.'"

He said he believed the church has

PURE SITUATION ethics says the greatest evil is using another person and that love is the most important thing.

"Playboy says life is for personal fulfillment and opposes any code that says self discipline is more honorable than self pleasure."

Banowsky said the debate will be orientated toward the university student because of current movements on various campuses and "because students want something they can commit themselves to, and I think Christ is the answer."

"I think Christ is a very dynamic person," Banowsky said, "but the church has presented itself, its preachers and its programs to the college student and not Christ."

The debate will be in Memorial Auditorium from 8:30 to 10 a.m. Sunday and is planned primarily for Tech students.

Dallas Times-Herald bares SDS at SMU

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Times Herald said Thursday that a self-avowed Marxist told the newspaper he is heading a local group dedicated to keeping young men out of the draft by legal or illegal means.

The Marxist also said he was an organizer for the national office of Students for a Democratic Society (SDS), which has a chapter on the Southern Methodist University campus.

In a copyrighted story, the Times Herald said the organizer said he does not recognize the U. S. government as "his government."

Rather, it said, he considered "the black freedom fighter of Mississippi, the black freedom fighter of Detroit and the Cuban people who overthrew the imperialistic United States as my government."

The 20-year-old Florida native said he was among 15 paid SDS organizers throughout the nation, and was also the director of the Dallas Draft Resistance Committee.

Meanwhile, U. S. Rep. Joe Pool, a Dallas Democrat, said he would hold a Friday morning news conference to discuss the draft resistance movement. Pool, a member of the House Un-American Activities subcommittee, says he wants the committee to investigate the draft resistance movement.

Pool said he specifically wants to take a look at the Dallas Draft Information Center, which opened last month.

Robert Foley, 24, director of the center, said, "I would not advise anyone to do anything illegal. But I feel that many men need information about deferments and methods of filing papers with the draft offices."

The Marxist, however, told the Times Herald: "We will help any man willing to go the distance with the authorities. We will find a structure — legal or illegal — that will keep them out."

Dorm disciplinary system deserves support

Integration of Resident Standard Boards into the nine men's dormitories on campus this fall is a significant addition to the university's disciplinary structure, for it will for the first time allow students to sit in judgment of their peers.

The RSBs, conceived by Dean of Men Lewis Jones and developed by the Men's Residence Council, will deal with all disciplinary cases arising in or near residence halls except those involving theft or morals. Each dorm will have a five student member Board which will hear the cases.

The new system will hear many cases formerly taken to the Dean of Men's office, although residents will have the right to appeal decisions to the Dean of Men and, when the Code of Student Affairs is adopted next Saturday, the Student Appeals Board.

The Boards will be empowered to place residents on probation, require them to work on dorm improvements, notify parents, or refer the case to the Dean of Men. It's quite likely that the Boards will be at least as strict as the Dean, for students tend to have little patience with fellow students.

The Board's philosophy is indicated in its preamble: "Self-government in any form cannot function without privileges and responsibilities." Members of the Boards will indeed carry responsibility, for they are on trial. Their actions will determine student respect for the Boards, necessary for their strength and continued operation.

Aesthetics and cars

Classrooms to the South and parking to the North, and apparently never the twain shall meet at Texas Tech.

The already acute shortage of parking space for off-campus students was accentuated this fall when nearly 175 parking spaces formerly designated for students in areas on the southwestern part of the campus were changed to accommodate faculty.

In trying to alleviate some of the resulting strain Traffic-Security and the Traffic Commission conceived the idea of a temporary dirt lot at the southwest corner of 15th Street and Flint Avenue which would have provided spaces for approximately 500 cars. Their proposal was taken to the campus Planning Committee where it was rejected.

It is true that dirt lots are not the best, but they only cost about $200. Also, dirt lots do not contribute to the aesthetic beauty of the campus, but it is difficult to think aesthetically when one is walking several miles each day to connect classroom and car.

Who's for governor?

Issues have seldom been items of contention in Texas gubernatorial elections. The Lone Star State, notorious for its one-party structure, has usually elected candidates on the basis of personality.

For the first time in recent years, Texas voters may face a ballot which represents both the elements of issues and personalities.

Judging from off-election year political activity across the state, 1968 is likely to produce an election with far-reaching effects.

MOST STATE EXECUTIVE aspirants are awaiting an announcement by Gov. John Connally on whether he will seek an unprecedented fourth term.

Some hopefuls are already on the starting blocks, should Connally decide to retire from public life.

Two months ago Connally's decision would have been relatively simple. He had only U.S. Sen. Ralph Yarborough and Lt. Gov. Preston Smith to worry about.

But a sudden surge in the popularity of Sen. Robert Kennedy, as indicated by various polls, has caused Connally to take another look at a new term.

UNDERSTANDABLY, MORE THAN a decade of feuding with the liberal Senator causes some reservations when talk of retirement arises.

Unsuccessful in previous bids for governor, Yarborough has been in the political game long enough to know he can't defeat a man like Connally.

However, Connally himself has lost popularity during the past year. In an attempt to keep the state's financial system on a pay-as-you-go basis, Connally pushed for liquor-by-the-drink in hopes of stimulating additional state revenue.

LT. GOV. SMITH, a Tech graduate and Lubbock resident, has openly declared his candidacy for governor—regardless of what Connally decides to do.

Smith and Connally forces had a rift during the last legislative session on Smith's powers as presiding officer of the senate. House Speaker Ben Barnes, a young but dynamic Connally man, has said he is interested in running for governor if Connally should decide to retire.

Such a development would pit the two conservatives—Smith and Barnes—against Yarborough in the party primary. The liberal would have a distinct advantage.

POLLSTERS SAY BOBBY is preferred over Johnson as the Demo's 1968 presidential candidate. Gulp and double gulp! Connally was quoted earlier in the week that if Kennedy is nominated, he would have to bolt the party. Connally seemed to use this as a reason for not running for another term.

But it seems more realistic that Connally could be of better service to his friend, the President, during 1968 if he's also on the Democratic ballot in the race for governor.

Sexual revolution reaching schools

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article, prepared by North American Precis Syndicate, is the third of a five-part series dealing with attitudes toward and concepts of the sexual revolution. It describes the need for sex education in elementary and secondary schools.

If the sex revolution has done nothing else it has triggered a public clamor for sex education. The clamor comes from parents, doctors, teachers and clergymen. And it's being answered. Sex is not only going public; it's going to school.

The list of city and suburban school systems that now teach children about sex is a long one. Add communities that are planning sex or family life education in the near future and the list grows into the hundreds. By the 1970's there will be some instruction in sex and reproduction in the overwhelming majority of the nation's elementary and secondary schools.

TODAY, FOR example, in kindergarten classes in Glen Cove, L.I., five-year-olds learn how babies are born. In Flint, Michigan's pioneering family life education program headed by Dr. George Chamis, eighth-graders discuss masturbation, sex drive, and venereal disease with their teachers. At many colleges and universities students are able to register for a special course in human sexual behavior that will cover everything from homosexuality to premarital sexual intercourse.

This clamor for information about sex is a striking reversal of our traditional silence in such matters. Even the medical profession has only recently begun to assert its willingness to consider sexual behavior as much a part of their practice as other bodily functions. For the most part medical students in the past have had little or no training in their professional schools in the treatment of common problems of sexual intercourse in marriage, for example. Once forbidden territory, human sex needs have suddenly become the focus of professional interest and concern.

IT'S ABOUT time, according to authorities in the field of marriage and family life.

"I have had people say in effect that if we could get a good sex education program we might be able to put the lid back on," says Lester A. Kirkendall, Professor of Family Life at Oregon State University. "Now the lid was never on to the extent they thought it was. But I don't think this ought to be the objective of a sex education program."

DR. MACE agrees that those who expect that sex education

Costumes set for play

BY MARGARET EASTMAN
Fine Arts Editor

University Theater crews are busy preparing for the opening of "Man and Superman" Nov. 10. The Bernard Shaw comedy is the story of a girl, Ann Whitefield, and her lovers.

Larry Randolph has designed costumes and Dr. Clifford Ashby has designed three sets for the production.

THE COSTUME CREW is making 11 women's outfits from scratch, and altering contemporary men's apparel to a semi-Victorian style.

Randolph said the outfits will cost between $400 and $500. "The main thing I'm trying to do," he said, "is not get carried away with historical details. The problem, is keeping the costumes alive, since so many of the characters are in mourning.

"The people don't really belong to any particular era. I'm trying to make each costume as interesting in itself as possible."

RANDOLPH SAID he will use symbolism in the costuming. For instance, the character Violet is very practical and concerned about money. Her costumes will have strong lines and they will be in the primary colors to show her practical nature.

Randolph said, "Ann's costumes give the effect that one is looking through layers. This is to demonstrate that here are things about Ann that don't show on the surface. She will wear black, like a black widow spider, but she's not fatal. Violet will show through Ann's mourning dress to relieve the sobriety."

Miss Ramsden, a hard-headed old maid of high Victorian morals, will wear a costume that is decidedly Victorian.

Most of the other characters are breaking away from the Victorian period. Thus, their costumes will reflect less of that era.

There are 30 crew members working on costumes who will put in approximately 1,200 man-hours.

THE PRODUCTION'S three sets will be stylized and semi-Victorian. Ashby said they will be in bright colors. "We are using two-dimensional scenery because the characters are two-dimensional."

Two of the sets will be in London and the other will be in Granada, Spain. They include a carriage house, a garden and a study.

"We are looking for a 1910

Stutz-Bearcat that runs," he said. "That is the only major technical problem we have."

The make-up committee also has some plans in the making. Winkle Crowe, chairman, said the characters will wear wigs, false mustaches, puddy noses and beards.

"Miss Ramsden's wig will point up her stupidity," Miss Crowe said. "We will style the characters to look as Victorian as possible. We plan to restyle wigs the theater already has.

Committee members plan work sessions for retreat

Members of nine Tech Union committees leave Saturday for a retreat at the Episcopal Conference Center near Amarillo. The 110 member will work in group session in order to learn more about themselves and their relationship to the Tech campus.

"The retreat gives the members of each committee the opportunity to become acquainted with each other in order to function more efficiently as a committee," said Mrs. Dorothy Pijan, Union Program Director.

EACH SESSION will be led by a member of the Leadership Board, a board of Tech students formed last spring to work with campus organization on retreats.

ID CARDS

Students will not be admitted to the Tech-Mississippi State game Saturday without validated ID cards.

Mrs. Ruth Shurtz, manager of the ticket office, said that a check with Herald Photo, makers of the cards, showed that all IDs should be available by Saturday.

Sex taught in school

"But the ultimate criterion that decides sexual action is really character. And sex education can't change character. It can bring enlightenment, and this can help. But if people think that a sex education program is necessarily going to sweep away the problem of promiscuity, let us say, I think they are going to find out that it is not so."

PROVIDING information about sex is essential because, except for scattered schools, there is today almost no place but the street for youngsters to learn about how people make love and how babies are conceived and born. Mrs. Helen Southard, family life consultant to the Young Women's Christian Association and the author of "Sex Under Twenty," sees thousands of teenage girls each year and gets hundreds of letters from both boys and girls.

Ignorance about conception—and how to avoid it—is especially widespread among these youngsters, says Mrs. Southard. "Many, many of the questions I get from young girls both in letters and in groups are: 'When is my safe period? My friend says she can't get pregnant if she has sexual relations at such and such a time.' Or a girl will say: 'I have done this several times and haven't gotten pregnant. Does this mean that I probably won't?'"

MRS. SOUTHARD, like many sex educators, thinks the home is the best place to teach about contraception. Others think the schools should do the job. Parents, they say, are too embarrassed and awkward to teach it properly. And they are generally not too well informed about contraception.

The sudden demand for the schools to offer sex education is running into some problems. For one thing, there is no agreement as to just what sex education should be. Many parents and teachers want a course that will teach morality. Those who would limit sex education to factual, informative teaching about sexual functioning are divided as to just what should be taught at what grade level.

Some educators express little doubt, though, that sex will be in most of our classrooms very soon indeed.

"It should," says Dr. Kirkendall, "help us to recognize that through sexual expression we have a way of communicating warmth and love for one another. And it ought to help us to get away from the intense embarrassment and uneasiness that arises in families when the subject of sex comes up."

SYMBOL DEPLETION

We've almost lost a good word, and we hate to see it go.

The movie industry may feel the same way about words such as colossal, gigantic, sensational and history-making. They're good words—good symbols. But they've been overused, and we tend to pay them little heed. Their effectiveness as symbols is being depleted.

One of our own problems is with the word "opportunity." It's suffering symbol depletion, too. It's passed over with scant notice in an advertisement. It's been used too much and too loosely.

This bothers us because we still like to talk about opportunity. A position at Collins holds great potential. Potential for involvement in designing and producing some of the most important communication systems in the world. Potential for progressive advancement in responsibility and income. Unsurpassed potential for pride-in-product.

That's opportunity.

And we wish we could use the word more often.

Collins representatives will visit your campus this year. Contact your College Placement Office for details.

Southwest Conference teams find class only against each other

By JACK DONOVAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Southwest Conference may be finding itself outclassed in intersectional football competition this season but its private clashes to date show few weaknesses.

Southern Methodist and Texas A&M opened the conference campaign three weeks ago with the Mustangs pulling out a 20-17 last-seconds victory.

LAST WEEK Texas Tech upset Texas 19-13 for the Raiders' first triumph over the Longhorns since being admitted to the conference seven years ago.

Saturday Arkansas and Texas Christian go at it in Fayetteville, Ark., while five other conference teams seek to improve on the league's record of only two victories in 13 non-conference games. Rice has an open date.

Texas Tech, the conference's lone undefeated team, is at home to Mississippi State, Washington State is at Baylor, Florida State at Texas A&M, Oklahoma State at Texas and Southern Methodist at Minnesota.

THE COMBINED season's record of the five intersectional foes is unimpressive — two wins, eight losses and two ties. The victories were posted by Oklahoma State, 7-6 over Arkansas, and Minnesota, by one point over Utah. Florida State tied Alabama 37-37 but lost its other two games.

THE SPOTLIGHT will be on Texas, Arkansas and Tech. The back-to-back season-opening losses suffered by the Longhorns and Razorbacks are almost inflammatory. The question at Tech is whether the Raiders will let down against a winless opponent after staging their most memorable triumph.

ARKANSAS AND TCU have been starting their conference seasons against each other every year, with one exception, since 1930. This is the first time that both of them will enter the game winless.

The Razorbacks have won the last eight times, and since 1958 TCU has managed only three touchdowns, scoring twice in the 1962 game and once in 1964.

Coach Frank Broyles, distressed over last week's 14-12 loss to Tulsa, plans to start sophomore John Eichler at quarterback in place of senior Ronny South. That change will leave junior letterman David Dickey of Palestine, Tex., as the only veteran in the Arkansas backfield.

TCU, WHICH averaged less than a touchdown a game last year, is doing little better offensively this season. The Frogs got nine points against Iowa but could score with only 10 seconds remaining against Georgia Tech last Saturday. Regardless of what has gone on before, the winner will join SMU and Tech in first place.

Oklahoma State brings an uncrossed goal line record to Texas, which has three outstanding running backs, Chris Gilbert, Bill Bradley and Linus Baer. The Cowboys played a scoreless tie with Air Force Academy and held Arkansas to a pair of field goals.

AS THE SEASON unfolds, Texas Tech, which drew scattered pre-season support for the conference title, might be the team to beat.

Mississippi State, beaten by Georgia and Florida, should not trouble the Raiders in this rubber game of their three-part series. Tech Coach J. T. King apparently has produced a defense to augment his proven offense.

Southern Methodist returns to action after a one week layoff and Coach Hayden Fry will be starting his third quarterback in as many games.

INJURIES to veteran Mike Livingston and his relief, Ines Perez, have forced Eddie Valdez into the starting role. A year ago Valdez compiled a brilliant record in leading Henderson County Junior College to the Junior Rose Bowl championship.

Minnesota, which lost 7-0 to Nebraska last week, has one of the biggest teams in the Big Ten Conference, averaging 230 pounds in the line and 221 overall.

The last time Minnesota played a Southwest Conference representative was in 1936 when the national champion Gophers whipped Texas.

BAYLOR, ALSO idle a week ago after losing to Colorado and Syracuse, faces a Washington State team that was overwhelmed by Southern California and UCLA, the nation's first and third ranked teams in The Associated Press poll, and unbeaten Oklahoma.

The Texas Aggies, who also dropped a close game to Purdue before falling apart before Louisiana State last Saturday, seeks to rebound against Florida State whose highlight of a losing season was tying Alabama. The game will be the first between the two schools.

Tech after No. 4

Best start in 8 years

LUBBOCK — The Texas Tech Red Raiders, off to their finest start in eight years, are currently on a three-game winning streak and setting a fast pace.

Quarterback John Scovell is the current rushing leader with a two-game total of 209 yards and an average of 6.7 yards per carry. His 176-yard rushing total against Texas last week in Austin established a new Tech record for Southwest Conference play. The old rushing mark of 164 yards was set by Donny Anderson in 1965 against TCU.

Scovell's performance against the Longhorns was the best since C. R. Roberts of USC gained 251 yards in 1956. In Southwest Conference play, it was the best since Jim Swink of TCU riddled the Texas defense for 235 yards. Tech's rushing total against Texas of 310 yards was the most since

A&M made 336 yards in 1956.

EARLIER THIS season against Iowa State, Tech established a new non-conference opening game attendance figure as 38,250 fans stormed Jones Stadium. The next week against Texas, 65,200 fans overflowed Austin's Memorial Stadium to see the Raider-Longhorn battle. This marked the first time Texas had played a home opener before a full crowd since 1952 against Notre Dame, a team which also beat the Steers.

The Raiders total of 52 points in the Iowa State game set a record for most points scored in a game since starting conference football play. In that game kicker Jerry Don Sanders tied a record for extra points in a game as he booted six for six.

Kenny Vinyard, the second member of Tech's kicking corps, came within one yard of his SWC field goal record as he split the uprights for a 54-yarder against Texas.

TEXAS TECH, ranked 10th in the nation by Associated Press, is currently third in the nation in rushing with a 299.5 yard average per game. They are 10th in the nation in total offense with an average of 412 yards per game.

Tech is leading the Southwest Conference in scoring (35.5 points per game), rushing, and in total defense (253.5 yards per game). The Raiders have scored a total of 71 points, limiting opponents to 13.

WE'RE LOOKING FOR PEOPLE WITH A BIT OF THE MAVERICK IN THEM

(We're a bit of a maverick ourselves.)

Because Allstate has never been content to do things the way they've always been done, we're sometimes called the maverick of the insurance business.

We're the company that led the fight for lower insurance rates by cutting red tape and needless frills. The company that made insurance policies easier to read and understand.

And this kind of pioneering has paid off. In just 35 years, Allstate has grown from a handful of customers to more than eight million policyholders. Our sales have more than tripled in the last ten years alone (they're now approaching the billion-dollar-a-year mark). And we now rank among America's top 100 corporations in terms of assets.

We appreciate that our remarkable growth is due to people — "mavericks" who shared our philosophy. Right now, we're looking for people of the same stripe — men and women with the fresh ideas and ambition to become part of our management team.

Are you a bit of a maverick? A person who doesn't automatically settle for the status quo? Then consider a career with Allstate.

We need people now (regardless of their majors) in Marketing, Investment, Finance, Underwriting, Public Relations, Communications, Personnel, Law and Research. (A start in any of the careers is the first step toward a key position in Allstate's management.)

If you qualify, we'll move you ahead just as fast as your talent and dedication can take you. (Our policy is to promote from within.) In addition, you'll find that few companies can match our extra employee benefits (including the famous Sears Profit Sharing Plan).

To get all the facts, see our Personnel Manager when he's interviewing on campus.

Allstate is interviewing:

Longbord one hits Cards; Yas provides punch

by Associated Press
 Boston (AP)—Jim Lonborg was robbed of a World Series no-hitter by Julian Javier's double with two out in the eighth inning Thursday as Lonborg's one-hitter and two tremendous home runs by Carl Yastrzemski squared the Series with a 5-0 Boston Red Sox victory over St. Louis in the second game.

 LONBORG, who barely escaped injury when mobbed by fans after winning the clincher from Minnesota Sunday, threatened to match Yankee Don Larsen's perfect game of 1956 as he retired 19 straight Cards before he walked Curt Flood on a 3-2 pitch with one out in the seventh. Javier ruined the 24-year old right-hander's bid for a no-hitter when he doubled to the left field corner on the first pitch with two out in the eighth.

 Lonborg, a handsome razor-cut Stanford graduate, thus became the fourth pitcher to throw a one-hitter in Series history. The others were Ed Reulbach of the Chicago Cubs in 1906 against the White Sox. Claude Passeau for the Cubs in 1945 against Detroit and Floyd Bevens for the New York Yankees in 1949 against Brooklyn.

 Yastrzemski's extra-20 minute batting practice after Wednesday's opening defeat and hitless frustration, paid off with two homers, a single and four runs batted in. He had taken no batting practice Thursday to save himself for real action.

Powerful No. 6, the man who carried the Red Sox on his back to the pennant and everybody's choice for most valuable player honors, slammed a 360-foot homer into the sixth row of the right field stands in the fourth, breaking up a scoreless battle between Lonborg and Dick Hughes.
 COMING UP IN the seventh inning after Jose Tartabull walked and Dalton Jones singled, Yastrzemski slammed a pitch by left-handed Joe Hoerner into the center field bleachers. It was a tape measure job, landing about six or seven rows up among the frantic Red Sox fans about 430 feet from the plate.

 A brightly sunny day with temperatures in the 80's turned into a dull, cloudy afternoon as the game wore on. They turned on the lights in the seventh and rain brought out umbrellas and raincoats as they went down the stretch with Lonborg's dramatic pitching.

 The drama piled up as Lonborg whirled through the Cardinal batting order, once twice and into the third time before he finally walked Flood on a low, outside pitch on 3-2. It was the 73rd pitch of the 95 he threw through sunlight and rain.

Cards praise Bosox, series 1-1

By Ben Brown
 Associated Press Writer
 BOSTON (AP)—Most of the St. Louis Cardinals players felt Boston's Jim Lonborg was throwing the pitches to the right spot but their bats just weren't connecting.
 "He was throwing them right in there," Manager Red Schoendienst said after Lonborg and the Red Sox beat St. Louis 5-0 in Thursday's second game of the World Series.
 THERE WAS MORE talk in the Cardinal dressing room about

Carl Yastrzemski, the American League's leading hitter who went without a hit Wednesday but cracked two homers Thursday.
 "I got the pitch almost where I wanted it," Hughes said in discussing the first Yastrzemski homer, a blast into the right-field corner, "It was a fast ball."
 "His (Yastrzemski's) body moves toward their dugout on the first base side," Hughes said. "His style is similar to St. Louis catcher Tim McCarver's."

 JOE HOERNER, normally the Cardinals' most effective left-handed reliever, gave up the second Yastrzemski homer, a three-run blast, just after he replated Ron Willis on the mound.
 "I threw a fast ball up high," Hoerner said. "I got two strikes on him high and inside, but I didn't quite get the one he hit where I wanted. . . And boy, did he hit it."
 Julian Javier, the brilliant-fielding St. Louis second baseman, spoiled Lonborg's bid for a no-hitter with a sharp double to the left-field corner in the eighth inning.
 "I hit a good pitch," Javier said. "He threw me some good pitches all day." He added that he felt the ball was in there when it left the bat.

SCHOENDIENST said there was little discussion on the Cardinal bench about Lonborg pitching a no-hitter. "We were more concerned about winning the game," Schoendienst continued.
 "But, of course, you've got to get some hits to win."
 But Curt Flood, the St. Louis centerfielder who walked in the seventh to eliminate the possibility of a perfect game by Lonborg, said it was hard to follow the ball at the plate.

Students organize to study plans for law association

Tech's new School of Law is taking steps toward organizing a student law association.

John Seymour heads a newly organized committee which will study the feasibility of a law association. Seymour was elected chairman of the investigating group Wednesday by Law School students.

The committee plans to query several law schools. The committee also is considering affiliation with the nationally organized American Student Bar Association.

Seymour said that Dr. Richard B. Amandes, dean of the Law School, and Dr. James G. Allen, dean of student life, have pledged their support to the organization of a student governing body.

The student organization will be a cohesive force providing better direction and communication of the Law School activities, said Amandes.

Through its functions a student law association will give the student a better picture of what is happening in his area of study, he said.
