Spaceshot successful

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla.—America's Pioneer 9 spacecraft blazed into orbit around the sun Friday and successfully began its assignment as a robot interplanetary weatherman on the lookout for solar radiation storms hazardous to moon-bound astronauts.

In a tricky two-for-one launch, Pioneer 9's 92-foot-tall Delta rocket also kicked a small communications satellite into earth orbit to be used for radio-relay target practice by the worldwide man-to-the-moon tracking network.

"A perfect launch and a perfect spacecraft," said a spokesman for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Ames Research Center, the agency in charge of the Pioneer program.

All eight experiments aboard the $14 million Pioneer 9 were turned on and began beeping information to earth six hours after the twin payloads blasted off from Cape Kennedy at 4:46 a.m., EST, officials said. Strong signals were also received from the 40-pound communications satellite.

Proposal considered

WASHINGTON—Top U.S. officials appraised cautiously Friday South Vietnam President Nguyen Van Thieu's proposal that his nation take over the leading allied role in the Paris peace talks.

The only official comment came from presidential press secretary George Christian who said "President Thieu's proposal of course will be considered." And the State Department said U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker in Saigon would be in touch with Thieu with a reply.

However, both U.S. and Soviet diplomatic officials here expressed doubt that North Vietnam would be willing to sit down at the Paris conference with a delegation headed by a South Vietnamese delegation.

In Paris, Xuan Thuy, the chief North Vietnamese spokesman at the talks, branded Thieu's proposal as unacceptable.

The new turn in the deadlocked efforts to get the Paris talks going with both South Vietnam and the National Liberation Front represented underscored the need for consultations soon between President and President-elect Richard M. Nixon, officials said.

Nixon-Humphrey meet

MIAMI, Fla.—President-elect Richard M. Nixon and Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, the man he defeated, sat down together Friday in a display of the unity both men have urged.

Humphrey and Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, his vice presidential running mate, flew in to Opa-Locka Airport at Miami on the way to the Virgin Islands.

Nixon was there at the foot of the ramp to greet them with a handshake.

The Republican president-elect had telephoned Humphrey earlier in the day in Washington, D.C., to suggest that they meet. Humphrey mentioned that he would be heading for the Virgin Islands. That led to Nixon's suggestion that they meet at Opa-Locka.

An Air Force Conair jet flew the Democratic running mates, their wives, and members of their families from Washington. Nixon and Humphrey met in the office of the Coast Guard commandant at this former military base on the edge of Miami.

Demands go to Pope

WASHINGTON—Two laymen carried demands for resignation of Archbishop Robert E. Lucey of San Antonio, Tex., to the U.S. Catholic Conference and the Pope's diplomatic delegation to the United States Friday.

The laymen, John V. Carolin and Sam Snell, brought with them copies of petitions with 4,700 signatures supporting the priests who recently asked for the archbishop's resignation in a letter to Pope Paul VI.

Carolin said, "We wanted to make them aware of the way the lay people feel about the crisis. We fully recognize that there is nothing dramatic that can be done on a day's notice."

Carolin and Snell met for about one hour each with the Rt. Rev. Francis T. Hurley, the associate general secretary of the Catholic Conference, and the Very Rev. Peter Silivskas, secretary of the Apostolic Delegation.

B52s strike at enemy

SAIGON—Waves of U.S. B52 Stratofortresses struck at enemy staging areas near the Cambodia border Friday, touching off large explosions in a region where a South Vietnamese general said the foe had massed 60,000 troops for a big offensive.

Although U.S. Command officials were not inclined to accept the South Vietnamese figure at face value, the eight-engine bombers were ordered out in an extraordinary concentration of air power against the area about 60 miles northwest of Saigon.

Attacking in eight waves of approximately six planes each over a 24-hour period, the B52s rained 1,500 tons of bombs on suspected bases, infiltration routes and supply dumps in the long-time enemy stronghold called War Zone C.

Snow hits Texas

TEXAS WEATHER—A surprise storm of snow shocked Texans from the New Mexico line west of Midland and Lubbock into the Dallas and Fort Worth areas Friday—more than eight inches falling in some sections and turning highways in the snow area into potential death stretches.

The snow came barreling out of the Rockies, through New Mexico and onto Texas' South Plains and spread into some more southern areas.

By late morning it reached Dallas and Fort Worth in the form of vast, wet flakes that melted as they fell. It reached Waco by early afternoon.

West of Fort Worth-Dallas, conditions grew severe for travelers.

Big day, big ballgame ahead for Tech dads

The second busiest weekend of football related activities at Tech—second only to homecoming—will be kicked off today at 9 a.m. with registration for Dad's Day activities.

The yearly salute to Tech's dads begins with registration at the Coronado room of the Union.

THE DAD'S Association will hold its yearly meeting at 11 a.m., to be followed by a "dads only" luncheon in the Union Ballroom. Wives of the dads will meet for lunch in the Union cafeteria.

The climax of the "fatherly activities" comes at 2 p.m. with the kickoff of the Tech-TCU football game at Jones Stadium.

Activities at the game include a salute to the dads by the Tech Band

Lubbock liquor issue may go to polls soon

By JOEL BALLEW Staff Writer

Petitioners have secured enough signatures to bring the wet-dry issue to a vote in Justice Precinct 6, according to a spokesman for the Citizens for Economic Development.

Friday was the last day the petitions could be submitted to the County Clerk's office. As of 4:30 p.m. the petitions were still out.

AFTER THE petitions are submitted to the County Clerk they must still be checked to be certain the signatures on them are from qualified voters of Precinct 6.

If a vote on the issue is brought about by the petitions it would be to decide if on-the-premises consumption and the package store sale of liquor will become legal.

On-the-premises consumption would allow one to buy beer or wine in restaurants. Package stores would be allowed to sell liquor for off-premises consumption.

DOYLE HOLMES, of the Lubbock Baptist Association, is heading up a campaign to assist the "concerned citizens" of Lubbock in the fight against legalizing the sale of alcoholic beverages in Precinct 6.

According to Holmes, no concrete organization has been formed against the "wets." To date, the only action being

The saddle swap between Tech and TCU had its beginning in 1961. The team that wins the annual rivalry takes possession of the saddle as a symbol of winning the "West Texas Championship."

TCU has had the saddle for the last two years, but the Big Red team hope to return it to its first home.

ANOTHER COLORFUL event planned for the game is the sale of red, helium-filled balloons by Theta Sigma Phi, professional women's journalism society.

Med school hearing set in Austin

A delegation of Tech administrators and Lubbock representatives will appear in Austin Monday before a hearing by the Coordinating Board for Texas Colleges and Universities to try to secure a medical school for Tech. Amarillo is also seeking the medical school. If it is awarded to Amarillo it would be under the University of Texas system.

The Coordinating Board announced in September its intentions to establish a medical school in West Texas because of a need for more doctors in Texas.

The Coordinating Board will deliberate after Monday's hearing and will announce a decision Dec. 3.

Techsans ready to win saddle

By NANCY FIREBAUGH Copy Editor

About 400 Techsans tramped the Intramural Gym to raise "Give 'em hell" spirit among Raider fans at the pre-game pep rally Friday.

The main theme of the rally was "Get the saddle back." The Raiders face the TCU Horned Frogs at 2 p.m. today in the annual Dads Day game. Since 1961 there has been a tradition of "swapping" a miniature saddle. The winner of today's game will be awarded the saddle as a symbol of the rivalry between Tech and TCU.

Crucial game for Tech

Raiders-Frogs clash today in grid battle

By DAVE AMMONS Assistant Sports Editor

Tech's Red Raiders, currently sharing the Southwest Conference leadership with three other teams, will be out to end a two-year victory drought against Texas Christian University when they battle the Horned Frogs in Jones Stadium at 2 p.m. today.

The Raiders' last triumph over TCU came in 1965, when Donny Anderson and Tom Wilson sparked Tech to a 28-24 win. In their past two encounters, the Raiders have scored only three points—on a record-setting 55-yard field goal by Kenny Vinyard—in their 6-3 and 16-0 losses. None of the current Red Raiders have ever crossed the Horned Frog goal line.

Tech entered the Dad's Day contest deadlocked for the SWC lead with Arkansas, Texas and Texas A&M. The Raiders have a 4-1-2 season record, including a 3-1 mark in conference action, based on victories against Texas, Colorado State, Texas A&M and Rice, a loss to SMU, and ties with Cincinnati and Mississippi State.

TCU IS 2-5 for the season with a 1-3 loop mark. The Frogs have lost to Georgia Tech, Arkansas, SMU, Texas A&M and LSU, while defeating Iowa and Baylor.

The bulk of TCU's offensive attack rests with halfback Ross Montgomery and fullback Norman Bulach. Bulach, still on the doubtful starter list with an ankle injury, is second only to Montgomery among Frog rushers with 490 yards on 80 carries for a 6.1 yard average.

Montgomery, who needs only 42 yards against Tech to become TCU's No. 2 all-time rusher, has ground out 562 yards on 133 carries for a 4.2 yard average. He also leads the Purple and White in scoring with 36 points.

ALTHOUGH TCU uses a trio of quarterbacks, junior Ted Fay has handled most of the signal-calling chores for the Horned Frogs. Dan Carter and Busty Underwood, however, have also seen a good deal of action.

Fay has completed 58 of 121 aerials for 799 yards and two touchdowns. His longest pass play of the season was a 50-yarder to Montgomery against SMU.

Lizny Cole is the current pacesetter among the TCU receivers. The junior end has caught 16 passes for 252 yards and one touchdown.

Although the Horned Frogs have managed only two wins, they trail their opponents in total offense by a mere 66 yards, 2284 to 2218.

TECH'S BALANCED offensive attack centers around the passing of quarterback Joe Matulich and the rushing of a host of Redmen.

Matulich has attempted 141 aerials, completing 71 of them for 845 yards and eight touchdowns. Backup man Tom Sawyer has connected on nine of 26 tosses for 156 yards.

Senior halfback Roger Freeman is the current leader among Raider rushers with 377 yards on 92 carries. He also leads the team in scoring with 54 points.

Tony Butler will be forced to take over Tech's fullbacking duties today in

'Miseries' comes out in paperback version

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—School is so full of misery you could write a book. So the eighth grade class at School 52 wrote one.

"School," said one of the coauthors, "is dropping all your books in the hall when you have a miniskirt on."

"SCHOOL," SAID another, "is being told to keep your love life out of school, and you don't even have a love life."

"School," said a third, "is having Frank Vigilante sit on your lunch."

These melancholy pronouncements and others from a group of 13- and 14-year-olds appear in a 5-cent paperback titled "Miseries United" which is the brain child of 52's eighth grade teacher, Theresa Lopata.

For instance—

"SCHOOL IS looking at a cardboard window with a flower painted on it."

"School is when you have to go to the lavatory and the teacher doesn't believe you."

Goldilocks and Red Riding Hood were rescued by Red Raiders who helped them keep the saddle they had found in the woods. When a fairy princess kissed a horned frog, the frog turned into a dashing Red Raider.

THE SPIRIT stick went to Kappa Kappa Gamma this week. For the uninitiated, the spirit stick is a bright red rod topped by the traditional Double T. The winner of the week takes possession of the stick during that week.

Bledsoe Hall presented the football team with a box of fried frog legs at the opening of the rally.

It was cold outside, but cheerleaders and the "Goin' Band" kept the heat on inside the gym. The twirlers gave a lively performance to a rousing rendition of "Lady Godiva."

The rally was moved inside to the gym because the weather was cold. One student said, "The rally seemed more effective inside since the cheers bouncing off the walls is so infectious."

"ON OCCASION it seemed that the walls might burst open from the noise."

The rally, staged for the football team before facing the Horned Frogs today featured balloons, "GO GET THE SADDLE, RAIDERS" card section, and scores of bobbin' Double T signs.

The rally ended, in the usual tradition, with the school song, and finally the fight song.

Vietnam not only problem

Reds invade other lands

(Editor's note: The following is the third in a series of articles taken from a speech by Secretary of State Dean Rusk on foreign policy.)

What is happening today in Southeast Asia? Let me remind you that it is not just the problem of tens upon tens of thousands of North Vietnamese troops coming into South Vietnam.

There are some 40,000 North Vietnamese troops in Laos, where they are not supposed to be under the agreements of 1962. North Vietnam is training guerrillas to feed over into north and northeast Thailand, a country which has threatened no one.

Prince Sihanouk of Cambodia has publicly complained of the assistance given by Hanoi and Peking to what he calls the Red Khmer in his own country of Cambodia despite his efforts to maintain a rigorous policy of neutrality, at least as far as we are concerned.

AGENTS AND ARMS are coming across the northeastern frontier of Burma, and India recently disclosed a substantial Chinese involvement in the Naga country of eastern India.

Now, looking at this situation, I would suggest to you that we Americans among ourselves would have very little problem in deciding what would appear to us to be a reasonable and fair result in Southeast Asia if we were talking about it just among ourselves.

Surely we could agree that North and South Vietnam should be pulled apart militarily and that any outstanding problems should be settled by peaceful means.

Surely we could agree that the Laos agreements of 1962 should be fully respected by everyone, that Thailand ought to be free from the guerrillas being trained at a distance to be sent into Thailand to assassinate and murder and kidnap, that the small and neutral country of Burma should be allowed to live in its own life unmolested, and that interference in the internal affairs of India by force from the outside is a very dangerous thing indeed and incompatible with the maintenance of the peace in the area, that Cambodia ought to be allowed to pursue its policy of complete neutrality without allying itself with any side if it wishes to do so.

What is reasonable and fair is not a difficult thing for Americans to agree upon.

Why, then, do we disagree? Because of the constant stream of noes which we get from Hanoi. The problem is not what is reasonable but what Hanoi is demanding; and we have different views among us apparently on how we deal with that problem.

I would suggest that even though it apparently sounds just a little old-fashioned these days, it remains true that it takes two sides to make peace.

I MYSELF DO NOT see how peace can come to Southeast Asia unless those who live and fight in Southeast Asia are prepared to make peace.

And I do not see how one step after another taken by one side only can bring the kind of peace which can endure—if the nations of that area are to endure and the peoples of that area are to live out their own lives by means of their own choice.

We need something from Hanoi—as President Johnson put it some months ago, "almost anything, almost anything."

It is possible for Hanoi to make proposals, make suggestions, indicate that it is willing to find some way to live at peace with its own neighbors in Southeast Asia.

But it's not just Southeast Asia; it's very important that we understand that. What is really important is the fidelity of the United States under its security treaties in this hemisphere, across the Atlantic, and across the Pacific.

Because confidence in the fidelity of the United States under those treaties is the principal pillar of peace in the world, the principal deterrent to general war.

'Urban university' decision to chart course

Tech has a medical school at stake Monday at Coordinating Board for Texas Colleges and Universities' hearings in Austin. A medical school would be an important addition to the school, and the hearings command much attention.

However, another hearing will be conducted Monday morning which involves a crucial decision for state-supported higher education.

It involves a triangular confrontation over the Dallas-Fort Worth-Denton educational community. Two forces in the confrontation would combine present schools in the area into a super university. The third force has not revealed the details of its plan, only that it opposes the first two.

The Coordinating Board for Texas Colleges and Universities has proposed the creation of a "new urban university" in which North Texas State University, Texas Woman's University and the University of Texas at Arlington would be components.

The Coordinating Board for Texas Colleges and Universities has proposed the creation of a "new urban university" in which North Texas State University, Texas Woman's University and the University of Texas at Arlington would be components.

The new university would contrast with the Southwest Center for Advanced Study for research and doctoral laboratory facilities.

The University of Texas system has its own proposal—to create its own subsystem. It would combine into one university the University of Texas at Arlington, Southwestern Medical School, the Southwest Center for Advanced Study and a new senior college to be created.

East Texas State University (which has also been considered in the "urban university" schemes), North Texas State University and Texas Woman's University each have prepared position papers in opposition to University of Texas and Coordinating Board plans.

The three schools have not revealed their proposals, but it would be logical that they would attempt to retain a greater degree of autonomy.

The Coordinating Board report said the 17 institutions in the Dallas-Fort Worth-Denton area are "largely uncoordinated, lack unity of purpose, and are not operating at peak potential."

It is only logical to coordinate the efforts of so many institutions in such a condensed area. A fight for autonomy would likely be lost.

The decision could affect the future of Tech and of the Coordinating Board. What is happening in the Dallas-Fort Worth-Denton area will eventually happen in the West Texas and other areas.

If the University of Texas system takes in the "urban university" in East Texas to add to its system that includes UT at El Paso and others, the next logical step would be for it to take in other areas when coordination becomes desirable.

Then Tech eventually would lose its autonomy and the Coordinating Board would lose its function because there would be no more schools to coordinate if they were all under the same system.

The hearing Monday and ultimate decision should chart the course for state-supported higher education to follow. Will it concentrate on several regional university systems or on one giant University of Texas system?

We hope it goes with the regional centers, with our sights on a future Texas State University based on a large central campus in Lubbock.

Is it possible to be passed by at 30?

Absolutely. If you're a 30-year-old engineer who's failed to keep up with the latest developments in his field.

Because Western Electric's an acknowledged industrial leader in graduate engineering training, that's one worry our engineers don't have. Our nearly-completed Corporate Education Center near Princeton, N. J., for instance, will have a resident staff of over 100. More than 310 engineering courses will be offered, and about 2,400 engineers will study there in 1969. It's the most advanced facility of its kind.

Ask around. You'll find that when it comes to anticipating change, Western Electric is way out in front. And we make every effort to keep our engineers there too. See our recruiter or write College Relations, 222 Broadway, New York, N. Y. 10038.

'Taming of the Shrew' termed a 'treat'

Play offers good acting, funny plot

By CASEY CHARNES
Fine Arts Editor

An abundance of excellent character actors and a plot funny enough to keep audiences laughing for two-and-a-half hours make the University Theater's "Taming of the Shrew" a beautiful Shakespearean treat. David and Judy Keyes portray the battling couple Petruchio and Kate, and their fireworks light up the stage every time they appear, singly or together. Though the lines sometimes seem merely memorized and stated, rather than directed towards other characters, the comic effects afforded by the situations are funny enough to overcome this small handicap.

THE SMALLER ROLES for thoughtful characterization are plentiful in this production, and special kudos must go to Billy Huddleston (Gremio) and Glen Thomason (Grumio) for especially good performances.

The other actors are good, too, but Huddleston and Thomason take special delight in their parts and install in their lines a wealth of hilarious elaborations.

Biff Painter as the drunken tinker Sly is a character that Shakespeare didn't do very much with. But Painter gives an exuberant portrayal, and is particularly funny in duets with James Odom, who, believe it or not, is funny and convincing as a pseudo-wife of Sly.

THE PRODUCTION is very well-staged, and has more than a medium of clever touches.

The fact that the Italian players are players created a need for fake properties that actually look unreal.

The props department came up with trappings that look both theatrical, yet functional. Being deliberately unreal is harder than it might seem.

Also, the addition of side stages to enlarge the action is used to best advantage for scenes of minor interest.

THE SET, DESIGNED by Dr. Clifford Ashby and built by William Tolliver, is believable and balanced, constructed for a maximum of facility of staging.

The costumes, produced by Larry Randolph in the Theater's costume shop, are also cleverly done, including family color schemes to further enable audiences to separate family trees.

"The Taming of the Shrew" is an auspicious beginning for the University Theater's year. It is a credit to its director Ronald Schulz and will probably be a delight to all its viewers.

Music groups plan symphony concert

Major works by Schubert and Stravinsky will be presented by Tech's Symphony Orchestra and choirs at a 3 p.m. public concert Sunday in the Student Union ballroom. There is no admission charge.

Orchestra Director Paul Ellsworth will conduct the instrumentalists in a performance of Schubert's Symphony No. 9, considered one of the composer's finest and most challenging works.

Rejected as too difficult to play when it was first submitted to the Vienna Philharmonic around 1830, the symphony today is included in the repertoire of almost every orchestra.

In the second half of the program, the choirs will join the orchestra in presenting Stravinsky's "Symphony of Psalms" under the baton of Gene Kenney, director of choral organizations at Tech.

Using the text of the vulgate, Stravinsky chose verses from three psalms, the first a prayer and an entreaty, the second a proclamation of joy over the Lord's response and the third song of praise. Composed in 1930, the scoring is notable in that it calls for an orchestra without violins and violas in the string section and without clarinets in the wind section.

Stage band to perform

Tech's Stage Band directed by Joel Leach will present a public concert at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Tech Union ballroom.

The program, sponsored by the Union's Special Events Committee, will be open to the public without charge.

Exponents of the "big band" style, the 20-member music group features a repertoire which includes arrangements by such well-known professionals as Stan Kenton and Count Basie along with arrangements by Leach and Don Caldwell.

In many ways the Norelco Beauty Sachet is just like a beauty parlor. It manicures, pedicures, massages, applies facial creams, buffs and files nails, and stimulates your scalp and muscles. But in another way, it's more than a beauty parlor. It also shaves your legs and underarms. And it shaves underarms as close or closer than a blade in 2 out of 3 shaves as tested in an independent laboratory. (As does the

The Lady Norelco is a shaver that has two shaving edges. One for legs, and one for underarms. It also has a 110/220 voltage selector for easy travel use. And it's not at all expensive. Even if it shaves like it is.

The Way I See It

Picadors need team effort

Michael Phelan

For a long time I have been laboring under the misconception that the prime reason college teams got together for; was to win. Such is not the case with the Picadors, Tech's freshman football team.

Last Thursday night, 8,000 chilled fans sat in Jones Stadium and watched the Picadors go down to 16-13 defeat at the hands of the Texas A&M Fish in the second annual Khiva Shrine Bowl. This was the Pics third loss in four outings.

ON THE TWO occasions that Tech fans have gotten a look at the Picadors in Jones Stadium the freshmen have been defeated. To the assembled fans it was evident that both the Oklahoma Boomers and A&M Fish had outlasted the Tech athletes.

All season long, the Tech coaches have emphasized that the main reason for freshman football is to get a good look at the players and to determine their worth at their respective positions.

I do not quarrel with the position that it is important to watch the players for future reference. But, I am disturbed at the apparent lack of team spirit, and most important... winning spirit.

A SOURCE CLOSE to the Tech Athletic department was quoted as saying he disagreed with the handling of the freshman football program. "They've got to instill the winning spirit in these players from the beginning. They have to impress on the freshmen the importance of giving 100 per cent team effort all the time they're out on that field."

A number of the Pic players have expressed doubts about the value of first year football. "What good is it, said one freshman, all I'm waiting for is spring practice."

Another freshman footballer said that he agreed with the system. "I think that it gives the coaches a good chance to see what the individual players look like against good competition. Maybe it hurts the team spirit... but I know I want to win, although some other guys might not care."

I MUST TEMPER my criticism with two qualifications. 1) The Tech freshman do care about Tech and its football fortunes, if they didn't, they wouldn't be here. 2) This column is not a criticism of Coach Berl Huffman, a man who is as much a part of the spirit and pride of Tech than any man on campus.

I am simply saying what I think should be said... that if the University expects the student body and Tech fans to support their athletic teams, then those teams should put out a 100 per cent team effort. To field a winning team is not so important as to field a team that looks as if they are giving every effort to play as a team.

SWC lead on the line

King ready for TCU Frogs

When things go awry at Tech, such as unexpected ties and disappointing defeats, there's inevitably the job of putting things together again. That, of course, falls to the King's men.

At Lubbock they have a very fortunate situation: a pair of Kings. One is JT the coach, the other is Don, the right guard and co-captain. Both have become experienced and quite adept at "putting things together again"—as recent as last week, when the Red Raiders rebounded from their only loss of the season to trounce Rice, 38-15, and grab a share of the Southwest Conference leadership.

A YEAR AGO when Tech missed out on the championship by a matter of five seconds, one of its proudest possessions was an outstanding offensive line that conveyed the Raiders to the nation's third best ball-carrying record. Don King was a starter in that line and one of only three to return this season.

Coach King rates Don "one of the quickest starters in college football," and adds, "I haven't seen his equal as a blocker in five years. He's a great competitor and a great leader."

A senior physical education major, Don is 21 years old, stands 5-11 and strikes at 215 pounds. He was all-state at Hirsch High School in Wichita Falls. He was selected to play in three all-star games, but was struck down by rheumatic fever.

HE IS CONFIDENT Tech will "put things together again" and keep them that way in the Red Raiders three remaining games, the first of which is against TCU Saturday. Don's attitude toward the future is recorded in the following interview:

Q. Tech has not scored a touchdown against TCU since 1965 despite owning one of the leagues better offenses. What do you feel has been the problem?

A. First of all, TCU is due a lot of credit for doing everything right. I don't know why, but apparently they were better prepared mentally than we were. I don't believe we had an all-out team effort in either of the two games I played in, but things are going to be different Saturday.

Q. One of the doubts about Tech before the season started concerned the offensive line that had to be rebuilt. How do you feel about the progress in rebuilding?

A. Against Rice last week we came off the ball better than in any game this season. We're progressing each week by eliminating errors and we're building confidence through cooperative effort. Of course, no one heard the players saying the offensive line would be a weakness... certainly not the offensive linemen.

Q. In what areas do you feel Tech is improved offensively over last season?

A. I think we had a great football team last year, and I think the offensive line this year is about to reach the level of last season. We have a real good backfield, good runners and strong blockers (Roger) Freeman may not have (Mike) Leinert's quickness, but he has good moves and is having a great year. So are (Jackie) Stewart, (Jimmy) Bennett, and (Tony) Butler. Joe Matulich rolls out real good and you have to respect him, and Joe is doing a better job of passing.

Q. In what phases is the Tech defense stronger?

A. Experience has been a big factor in our better defense. Most of our personnel returned and they have improved their techniques. We have exceptional strength and depth at linebacking, and it helped a lot when some of our defensive ends got well. You know, there's a lot of speed in the secondary and those guys hit real well.

Q. What are some of the encouraging intangibles at this stage, such as two of the last three games at home?

Frog rushers challenge Tech defense

(Continued from page 1) the absence of Jackie Stewart, out with an injury. Butler has gained 94 yards on 29 carries so far this season.

WHILE THE OFFENSE has provided the fire-power, the defense has proven tough, too. Tech's pass defense has given up a pass completion mark of only 41.2 per cent this season while picking off 14 enemy aerials, an average of two per game.

Always a break-away threat, Raider safety Larry Alford eclipsed his own school record in punt returns last week against Rice. The 5-10, 180 pound junior returned five punts for 85 yards to give him a season total of 391 yards. The SWC record for most punt return yardage in a season is 549, set by Davey O'Brien of TCU in 1937.

Tech kicking specialist Kenny Vinyard boosted his extra point string to 38 last Saturday, booting four in a row against Rice. He has hit 21 of 21 this season and hasn't missed since the 1967 game against Texas when one of his kicks was blocked.

THIS AFTERNOON'S "All I See is Red" Day contest marks the twenty-fifth meeting between the two schools. TCU leads with 15 wins and nine losses in the rivalry that began in Fort Worth in 1926 with a 28-16 Horned Frog victory. Since the Raiders joined the SWC, however, the ledger reads 5-3 in TCU's favor.

Next week, TCU returns to its home field to face the Texas Longhorns, while Tech travels to Waco for an encounter with the Baylor Bears.
