National City Played 'Short' In Own Stock

Mr. Roosevelt's private ideas about railroad reform dovetail generally with the recommendations of the Coolidge commission. The boys in the front line legislative trenches here have been told to hold their fire until his inaugural address. It will recommend complete reorganization of the I. C. C. and accept other major ideas of the report. The big rail man in congress, Senator Couzens, holds similar views.

That comes very near making it certain that you will see railroad reform in the next six months.

Leaders

Senators put their feet on the table and guttured at some of the so-called business leaders who came here to tell them how to cure the depression. The business men had made ideas about government. They gave the appearance of witnesses prompted to repeat over and over again: "We must balance the budget."

Few knew what was in the budget or had any idea how to go about balancing it.

Their ignorance caused much merriment among the legislators. Some of the choicest remarks of the winter season were passed around the cloakrooms.

"We get these fellows before the stock market committee first to tell how they caused the depression," said one. "and then switch them over to the Harrison committee to tell us how to cure it."

"We will not get out of the depression until we get some new business leaders," said another.

"I think Senator Harrison got them all down here to expose their ignorance," said a third.

It was a relief for the senators to have someone to pick on for a change.

Investigation

More trouble has been covered up among the senatorial stock market investigators.

Message Merriman and Stewart had a major falling out. They are the two who have been digging up (or rather not digging up) cases for Chairman Norbeck. The personal fracas terminated with the dispatch of Mr. Merriman to New York and the retention of Mr. Stewart here.

If that committee gets to the March 4 deadline without any broken skulls it will be a miracle.

Is there any basis of fact in the belief of many that in times like these there really is little if any thing of importance that may be done by a local chamber of commerce? In a recent radio address Dr. Julius Klein, assistant secretary of commerce, answered this question in a convincing manner. He listed specific instances of things accomplished by small-town Chambers of Commerce since depressed economic conditions set in.

Electra, Texas, was one town he mentioned. He had this to say about work done there: Down in the region of Electra, Texas, a number of years ago, the early plantings of cotton had been

Missouri Farmer Takes Mat Title From Big Ed Lewis

NEW YORK (UP)—Jim Browning, a Missouri farmer who developed legs of steel by gripping wire casks, clamped his legs about Ed "Strangler" Lewis' barrel-like body and shook the world's heavyweight wrestling crown off the Strangler's head.

Lying on the ring mat in Madison Square Garden with Lewis held in a leg scissors, Browning did a quick sideways "turnover" that whirled the champion through the air and thumped his head on the floor.

Again the Missourian did his "turnover," and again the bald pate bounced on the floor. It was enough. The burly Kentuckian, veteran of 3,600 grappling matches, was groggy. Browning loosened his legs and pinned the champion's shoulders to the mat.

Browning was recognized as

National City Bank President Earned $2,500,000 In Year

WASHINGTON (UP)—The National City Bank president, E. Mitchell, has earned $2,500,000 in the year ending December 31, 1932.

After declaring his belief that a bonus system of pay for bank officials led to "unsound banking and unsound securities sales," Cousens said: "The public should know what inspires some of these securities sales. It is no reflection on the National City bank, but their bonuses have been detrimental to the public interest."

Mitchell's salary is $25,000 a year. The remainder of the vast sum named by Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel, represents a bonus on profits paid by a management fund. Pecora said Mitchell received in 1927 and 1928 an aggregate income of $2,444,519.44.

"I'll have to check it up," replied the imperturbable banker. "Cousens referred to him as a 'star salesman' and at one point asked Mitchell whether he was a better salesman than he is a financier."

London is still recognized as titleholder in some parts of the country. Still other sections recognized Ed Don George of Canada.

Eight Cents For Air Mail Stamp Puts Highly Developed Facilities Of Fine System at Public Command

Eight cents. One nickel and three pennies. The price of one air mail stamp. No single commodity sold anywhere gives the returns on the investment or furnishes the coverage that is taken care of with a single sale of the yellow stamp upon which is superimposed the winged globe.

Coverage: Did you ever look at a dirty grey canvas mail pouch and stop to think what that same canvas covers? The hopes, disappointments, comedy, tragedy, ambition, every single emotion of which a human being is capable, go to fill up the canvas bag with that iron or brass lock. Here is a letter postmarked "Singapore" and boasting a silly looking stamp in one corner—

"Dear Mother: Ship docked yesterday, and today is my first time ashore. . ."; another letter has the name of a well known firm of attorneys printed on the envelope—

"In view of the fact that we have heard nothing from you, our client asks us to take steps. . ."; a slender lined envelope addressed in purple ink, probably signifying a blond sophomore—

"and, darling, he is an S. A. E. and during the intermission he. . ."; a soiled envelope with the address written in pencil—

"I got the job, Mazy and will send the money for you and the children to come to me as soon as I draw my first paycheck. . ."; a formal white—

"In announcing the engagement and approaching marriage of. . ."; "Yes, the coverage is fairly complete.

Alr Mail Pleas!

Throw a switch and dynamoes generate untold thousands of horsepower. Step on your automobile starter and your engine begins the job of turning gallons of gasoline into lines of speedometer. Lay a nickel and three cents on the counter of a stamp window, say "air mail, please," and drop your letter in the mail chute and what a machine you start! Mail carriers with their pouches on their backs; pilots flashing over mountain peaks and streaking down valleys; airline executives in private offices where the nerve centers of the industry join; field men, office men, repair men, mechanics—all form cogs in the great machine you have started. A post office clerk tosses your letter into an electrically driven cancelling machine, pouches it according to its destination, weighs it and records the result. The sacked mail is placed in a car and rushed to the airport. Here it is checked again and placed under armed guard where it is kept until put aboard the plane. In a few moments a faint drone is heard and in the sky a black speck increases in size until a liner roars overhead, circles the field once and lands. Seven minutes to do the job. Field porters file the room, Mangum in off at this station, your letter is filed on the weight, manifests carried by each plane, and marked on the pilots pouch record. Passengers are assigned their seats, baggage is stowed, the pilot taxis to the end of the runway, warms up the motors and slips into the air with your letter. In a few moments a voice drones through the loud speaker at the field office, "Abilene calling Mangum in No. 35." The voice of the pilot who has just departed fills the room. Mangum in No. 35 answering Abilene. Over Colorado at 2000 feet. Weather clear and unlimited. Big Spring dispatch. In and out of Big Spring schedule. Two passengers put aboard for New York. One 35—sand and twenty-one pounds thru Big Spring. Back comes the answer, "O. K. Mangum. Your position, weather and dispatch O. K. Abilene clear." Thus acknowledges receipt of the information that in that 1021 pounds is your letter.

Radio Stations.

Men trained in meteorology and radio, with head phones on, or with loud speakers tuned in, start compiling weather information which has been pouring from isolated company radio stations, from government stations and other government wires in order that the letter with your eight cent stamp may arrive at its destination on schedule. Trained mechanics stand by at each station to make sure that no mechanical trouble delays your message. Miles away a plane has taken a load of meteorological instruments to that height in order that the ground men along the line can tell the pilot carrying your letter at which altitude he can find the most helping winds. Colorado City and Abilene have been passed. Night, falls and the exhaust stacks glow purple. Airways lights, green, white and red, wink the message to the pilot that the course lies below him. Trained engineers and electricians have spent weary

WOMAN LOST 20 POUNDS IN 4 WEEKS

Mrs. Mae West, of St. Louis, Mo., writes: "I'm only 28 yrs. old and weighed 170 lbs. until taking one box of your Kruschen Salts just 4 weeks ago. I now weigh 150 lbs. I also have more energy and further more I've never had a hungry moment."

But people should take one-half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast—it's the SAFE, harmless way to reduce as tens of thousands of men and women know.

For your health's sake ask for and get Kruschen at Collis Bros. Drugs, or any drug store—the cost for a bottle that lasts 4 weeks is but a trifle and it's the first bottle you are not justly satisfied with results—money back.

back-breaking months that those lights may blink that message. Through heat-wrinkled deserts and flooded backwater districts the cable carrying the power for those lights stretched until it spanned the continent. Your nickel and three pennies did their share toward laying that cable. A voice crackles into the pilots head set—"Wind shift with rain approaching course from ENE at 22 miles per hour. Will cross course at Blank." A glance at compass and map, a quick mental calculation, a shifting of controls, and the plane is off at a tangent for a short time. Another shift and it is back on the course, with the bad weather behind it. Your eight cents helped maintained the radio station that reached out across the miles and sent that warning and as a result your letter was not delayed by the ship having to battle its way through the squall. Far to the east a beacon flashes, a glow appears on the horizon. Then pin-points of light announce a city. Mescham Field, Fort Worth and a voice broadcasting through the night. "Schedule 970 arrived in Fort Worth, Connected." And that means that your letter has been placed aboard another plane and even then is speeding eastward with throbbing motors roaring a greeting to the spirits of the men at Arlington Cemetery, whose efforts and foresight established a country, where such a return on the investment of a nickel and three pennies is simply considered as all in the day's work.

CHAPTER XXXIX

The girl in the gold chair turned toward the door of the dressing room expectantly. She was wearing a beige suit trimmed with hure rings of fur at the shoulders. On her head was a becoming little hat of the same color. Her shoes, gloves and hand bag were of identical hue.

As she looked at Sheila she smiled in recognition. Sheila returned the smile hesitantly. Should she speak to this girl who looked so familiar? Who was she? Sheila knew she had seen her and talked with her some where. But where? Who could she be?

Nodding slightly, still smiling, Sheila walked to the far end of the room where Henri, resplendent in striped trousers, morning coat and gardenia, was whisking about, rubbing his hands together and humming. He was a vastly different Henri now than when Sheila had met him an hour earlier. She smiled at the thought. She herself, changing from her own inexpensive frock to this costly model, appeared to be a different person, too.

As she passed Henri she glanced at him and he bowed just as he would have bowed to a valued customer. She was amused but took her cue from that. She was to walk about to sit down, inquire about prices and fabrics and appear to be one of the shoppers.

Without consent Sheila knew that no one in the room was better dressed than herself. Henri had seen to that. He had selected a costume for her that was exactly right to bring out her excellent coloring, the perfection of her figure.

She walked easily and gracefully. That was due to her years of training as a dancer. Sheila carried herself beautifully erect. She moved about the room, then sank into a chair. Henri nodded slightly in approval.

Presently he came toward her. "You're doing well," he approved. "Two women have asked me who you are already."

"Does that help?" asked Sheila.

Henri raised his eyes. "Help? They will say if I can make you look so beautiful I can do the same for them. They know the models are hired for their looks and ability to wear clothes. They think you are a client like themselves. Yes, my dear, it helps."

"Shall I talk to anyone?" asked Sheila as Henri prepared to move away.

"Of course. If anyone asks questions you can say Henri made your frock so long as you do it without seeming to introduce the subject. That's the idea. You're doing fine."

He moved away and as he did so the girl in beige approached. "You don't remember me, do you?" she said. "Mind if I sit down?" She opened her purse and drew out a jeweled cigarette case. "Will you join me?" she asked. A Sheila shook her head. "You haven't been here before?" "You haven't mind so long as you don't burn holes in his mauve carpet. Of course I know you're Sheila Shayne but you don't know me, do you?"

"I'm afraid I don't. You see, I meet so many people..."

"Oh, of course. Well, I didn't expect you would. I'm Dorothy Trevor, Dick Stanley's cousin. Trevor Lane's cousin, too. Oh—I'll bet Trevor got you this job, didn't he?"

"You know I'm working here?" Sheila asked.

Dorothy laughed. "Of course. You're much too good-looking to be doing anything else. I didn't think you bought your clothes here because I know who you were. She colored and went on quickly. "I mean actresses don't they here as a rule. Don't misunderstand me! Henri is too expensive for anyone who knows the value of money."

She lighted the cigarette and regarded Sheila. "I hope I don't seem terribly rude but I'm really interested in you. Ever since I saw you dance that night at Trevor's..."

"As a matter of fact I sang," Sheila said quietly. She recognized the girl now. She was one of the cousins from boarding school for whom Lane had given the party.

"Indeed you did!" the girl replied without embarrassment. "But you danced with Dick afterward. And I saw you several times dancing at the Club Volens last summer. I think you're wonderful!"

Sheila could not help liking this girl. The admiration in her eyes and tone were not feigned. She could not have been more than 18 in spite of her veneer of sophistication.

"I can't be very good or I'd have a job now," Sheila replied modestly.

The other girl's eyes widened. "But this is a job, isn't it? I'd love to wear all these pretty frocks and walk around and listen to Henri rave! I'll bet he can rave, too!"

"Oh, he's all right."

"Well, I suppose he's no worse than the stage managers," Dorothy interposed comfortably. "I hear they say the most terrible things and work you until you're ready to drop."

"We manage to survive," Sheila answered in amusement.

The other nodded. "I really do wish I had a job but Trevor says nowadays with so many people needing work it would be a crime to take a job just for fun."

"What does Dick say?" Sheila asked idly.

"Dick? He can't say much. He's so busy he doesn't know what's going on any more. He did say, though, it would be a crime for anyone to let me have a job! Dick doesn't seem to think I'm very useful. You couldn't get me in here, could you? I'd love it!"

They were interrupted by a boy with a message for Miss Trevor. "Mr. Stanley would like to speak to you on the telephone," the boy told her.

Dorothy turned toward Sheila. "It's Dick," she said. "I was to meet him for lunch!" Impulsively she put a hand on Sheila's arm. "Listen, you'll have to eat somewhere. Why don't you join us? I'll send word to Dick to pick us up here. He'll love it. Henri'll let you go, won't he? I'll ask him myself!"

"Oh, I couldn't—" Sheila began but the other interrupted. "Of course you can. Please!"

"Well—if it's all right..."

Dorothy rose. "Then that settled," she said. "I'll talk to Dick right now and tell him." She used in the direction of the telephone.

Sheila, left alone, thought that the reason this girl was so cordial was because of the glamour associated with stage life. That was why Dorothy Trevor had invited her to lunch. She would enjoy being seen with a girl who had been the featured dancer in stage productions, an entertainer in one of the best night clubs. It would be something to tell her friends later. Hundreds of other people seemed to feel the same way.

Sheila reflected that once she had talked about this matter with a well known star.

"Don't let it bother you," the older woman had said. "It's simply the way things are. After all on the stage we try to bring glamour into the lives of the members of our audience. They live through the roles we play and they see us in those parts—not as human beings like themselves."

That was it. An actress was supposed to be "different." That was why Jerry had hurt her so cruelly. He didn't think anyone would expect him to be sincere

Five More Killed In German Riots

BERLIN (UP)—Five persons were killed and scores injured Tuesday night in the inchoate civil war that has been raging since Adolf Hitler's rise to power.

This brought the number of deaths in political clashes since the first of the year when Hitler began negotiations for the chancellorship to about 70.

Bright Spots In Business

NEW YORK (UP)—Business failures in the last week were lowest of the year, according to R. G. Dun & Co., which reported a total of 363 defaults, against 629 in the preceding week and 731 in the corresponding week of 1932.

WASHINGTON—An increase of 39.6 per cent in estimates for building in January, as compared with December, was reported by the bureau of labor statistics.

HARTFORD, Conn.—Palmer Bros. Co. of New London will immediately take on 800 employees to get immediate delivery on an order for comforters placed by the American Red Cross, it was announced.

TOPEKA, Kan.—Revenue freight loadings of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railway for the week ended February 18, totaled 25,587 cars, against 19,650 in the preceding week, it was reported.

In the 1920 census there were 283,045 chauffeurs listed, 949 of them being women.

with a girl on the stage as with other girls. That was why Dorothy was excited by the prospect of going to lunch with her.

Well, she would lunch with Dorothy and Dick. Suddenly it occurred to Sheila that, of all the men and women whom she knew, Dick Stanley did care for her for herself alone. Cared for her? More than that, Dick loved her.

Why couldn't she care for Dick as she did for Jerry? Sheila thought mournfully that everything in the world seemed sadly mixed up.

Mrs. Roosevelt To Ride Horseback In Washington Park

NEW YORK (UP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt plans to go horseback riding in Rock Creek Park, Washington, every morning after she gets "settled down" in the White House.

"Dot," her own bay riding horse, and "Patches," a spirited black belonging to her youngest son, John, will travel to Washington a week or so after inauguration and be installed in some stable near the entrance to the park.

"We shall take two horses so the children can ride with me when they are there." Mrs. Roosevelt told the United Press. "Anybody that can ride at all can ride Dot, but only a skilled rider, accustomed to him, can ride Patches, for he is such an expected creature."

The White House stable have been abolished, and the area they occupied has been incorporated in the United Press. "Anybody that can ride at all can ride Dot, but only a skilled rider, accustomed to him, can ride Patches, for he is such an expected creature."

While the horses to be used by the new White House occupants are Mrs. Roosevelt's, the government will furnish their fodder.

Secret Meeting Held To Discuss Prices Of Oil Throughout World

LONDON (UP)—A secret meeting to discuss standardization of world oil prices was in progress at a west end hotel between representatives of the leading oil producing countries, except Russia.

J. B. A. Kessler, joint managing director of Royal Dutch, presided. Proceedings were so secret that it was only discovered today, although the meeting started yesterday. It will continue about a week.

H. C. Timmons is on a business trip to Stillwater, Okla.

Gulf To Test Ordovician In Upton County

Location Staked On East Side Of McElroy Pool For Deep Hole

Gulf Production company has staked a location for a test on the east side of the McElroy field in Upton county to be drilled deep in search of oil production in the Ordovician. It was learned here Tuesday through reports obtained by the San Angelo Standard.

The location is in the center of the northwest quarter of the southwest quarter of section 197, block F. Corpus Christi, San Diego & Rio Grande Narrow Gauge Ry. Co. survey. It is on a lease already proven by Permian lime production, making speed for completion by a certain date unnecessary. The test will be near the center of the west line of Upton county and about 15 miles northwest of McCarney. Rotary equipment will be used and will be moved in soon, it is understood.

The location for the Gulf's scheduled Ordovician test in Upton county is the second to be staked in West Texas within two weeks. The first was made by Humble Oil & Refining company on the White & Baker ranch in southeastern Pecos county near the center of an Humble block of approximately 14,000 acres. It is in the center of the northeast quarter of section 44, block Z. T. C. Ry. Co. survey. Several days ago water well was being drilled.

Humble is credited by an oil journal with having appropriate for leases and royalties and exploration in West Texas for 1933 more than double the amount allotted by any other major company now operating in the district. Heretofore Humble seldom has visited alone, farming out its blocks instead to responsible independents to obtain tests, and generally contributing to the financing of wildcats having geological merit and situated near its holdings.

It has been reported that location for an Ordovician test in another West Texas county will be staked soon.

DETROIT (UP)—Michigan's banks opened for restricted business Thursday, some for the first time since Governor Comstock's emergency closing order of ten days ago.

Generally, banks were following the plan allowing depositors to withdraw five per cent of deposits. At the opening hours in Detroit there was no line-up outside banks and in few instances did unusual numbers of customers gather inside banks.

Mexico City To Houston In Seven Hours Plan For New Air Passenger Line

HOUSTON (UP)—Seven-hour daylight air passenger service between Houston and Mexico City will be made possible in the near future if plans for two new air services, being discussed in Laredo, are brought to fruition.

James R. Wedell, speed flyer of Patterson and New Orleans, conferred with Laredo interests who announced recently they planned to inaugurate four-hour plane service between Laredo and Mexico City.

Wedell-Williams Air Service, of which Wedell is an official, announced yesterday in New Orleans plans for a fast air passenger service between New Orleans and Laredo, with a stop at Houston.

This service probably will connect with the projected Laredo line, Wedell told friends here while flying through on an inspection tour of the proposed route.

If present plans materialize, passengers will leave Houston not later than 11 a. m. daily, board the Laredo-Mexico City plane at 2 p. m. and arrive in the Southern republic's capital at 6 p. m.

New Orleans, Laredo Air Service Planned

NEW ORLEANS (UP)—Fast air passenger service between New Orleans and Laredo, Texas, with fares equal to the regular railroad passenger rates plus pullman fares, will be inaugurated soon by the Wedell-Williams Air Service, Inc., it was announced by Harry P. Williams, president of the company.

The route will be by way of Patterson, La., Houston and San Antonio, Texas. Plane connections for Waco, Dallas, Fort Worth, Tulsa, Oklahoma City, Kansas City and Omaha will be made at Houston by planes traveling to and from New Orleans, it was announced.

James R. Wedell, speed flyer, left Tuesday for an inspection of the route. He was flying one of the low-winged speed ships of the company.

Trials Sought For Operators Of House Where Girl Expired

SAN ANTONIO (UP)—Trial of three persons charged with being operators of a rooming house where pretty Constance King, 18-year-old San Antonio high school girl died of gunshot wounds, was demanded here by Judge Charles J. Matthews.

Judge Matthews heard deputy sheriffs yesterday explain they were unable to produce witnesses who were in the room when the school girl was shot.

It was the second attempt of service on the witnesses, the jurist was told. He instructed that subpoenas be drawn against the missing witnesses, James Hobbs and Winnie Mann, each 18 years old.

The third witness to the slaying,

Fire caused by spontaneous combustion caused extensive damage to feed belonging to John Coleman, eight miles south of here, and destroyed in excess of 100,000 bushels owned by his father.

City firemen rushed to Coleman's place with his chemical truck and succeeded in extinguishing the blaze. However, feedstuff on his father's place has already been virtually destroyed.

Feed put in stacks while too green was given as the cause of the blaze.

Witness Says All Companies Except One Over-Produced

OKLAHOMA CITY (UP)—T. T. Eason, Enid independent oil operator, told the senate oil investigating committee that every company operating in the Oklahoma City field—with exception of Mid-Continent Petroleum, deliberately violated proration rules.

The witness frankly admitted his three wells had produced 92,694 barrels more oil than their proration share. He told how he had purchased 215,266 barrels of oil in the field.

He said he had concluded that Colonel Cicero I. Murray, oil field military supervisor, "harrassed him with his army because I didn't pay protection money."

"It just happened," he said, "that every time the militia closed one of my wells it was not over-produced." Twice as much oil—running into millions of barrels—has been taken from the field as was legally allowed by corporation commission orders, Eason said.

Branching into another angle of the story of "hot oil," the senate investigators announced they would study complaints by Vernon L. Kiker, Wewoka oil man, that huge oil runs, hitherto unrevealed, could be traced through shippers.

CHICAGO (UP)—Marshall Field & Co., one of the largest mercantile stores in the world, showed a profit of $123,700 for the first quarter of 1932 as compared with a loss of $1,781,300 for the same three months in 1931.

Mrs. Walter Hightower of Hondale, N. M., is here for a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Brown and other relatives. She was accompanied by Mr. Hightower, who returned to the ranch Wednesday.

Judge Brooks Speaks, Hartman's Band Entertains

Approximately 125 legionnaires and guests attended a banquet-smoker held at the Fisher Building Wednesday evening.

Program for the occasion was varied and offered entertainment of almost every type. Judge James T. Brooks delivered an address on "Valley Forge" and Leland L. Martin spoke on Washington and his example for Legionnaires.

E. H. Bethel, accompanied by Mrs. J. H. Kirkpatrick, gave vocal numbers.

A four round boxing exhibition, staged by the Big Spring Athletic Club under the direction of J. E. Payne, was enjoyed by the crowd. G. A. Hartman's band played throughout the evening, presenting

MARY LOU GOES SHOPPING

She is only eight, but, even at this tender age Mary Lou is a daily customer at the neighborhood stores. Perhaps it is a package of crackers, and a pound of coffee at the grocer's. Perhaps it is some tooth paste or toilet soap at the drug store.

Of course Mary Lou doesn't decide on what she is going to buy. Her mother writes a list—this brand of crackers, this brand of coffee, this make of tooth paste, this kind of soap. She knows the prices, and gives Mary Lou just enough money, with an extra penny or two, perhaps, to spend for herself.

Buying is just as simple and easy as that because of just one thing—Advertising.

Advertising has given all of us a lot to be thankful for.

Because of advertising, people in Texas know about and buy Michigan motor cars. People in New Hampshire buy oranges raised in Texas and California. Because of advertising, merchants and manufacturers are forced to improve their products. It has standardized quality. It has also increased very much world consumption and thereby lowered costs. It promotes competition and thereby keeps dealers and merchants wide awake to make secure for you the most for your money.

But best of all it writes "Finis" on the business career of any merchant or manufacturer who attempts to fool the public or give them less than value received.

ber of Commerce depends upon whether its directors and members will really work. Men power is the most important factor, and Chambers of Commerce that have overcome prejudices against them generated by lack of facts as to their real objects, and have thus cemented the work and thought of all citizens of the community have been those whose members worked for the common good and threw aside selfishness and greed.

There's a lot of difference between a bill calling for immediate election of a state commission and one calling for its election after expiration of a two-year term.

Just two years difference—long enough to continue through this term of the governor.

That is why stiff opposition exists against bills to make the highway commission elective, but not until after a brand new commission is appointed by the present governor.

Her platform was strong in its support of an elective highway commission. But, the administration is sponsoring a measure to take oil and gas conservation enforcement away from the elected railroad commission and give it to a Natural Resources commission to be appointed by the governor.

Inconsistency—Such is the inconsistency into which a governor is thrust when dictators to her have but one end in view—personally to control every department of the government.

Oil men generally, no matter which candidate for governor they supported, do not relish the idea of having proration enforcement turned over to a commission appointed on the spur of the moment by one who has never claimed to know anything about the oil business. They are afraid some of these lawyer boys who have grown fat on fees collected for getting injunctions of various kinds might show up on the commission. In fact, Austin advises via grapevine telegraph indicate, the proposed Natural Resources commission that would be appointed now would be made up of not practical oil men but of individuals who have made their money by operating sort of like leeches upon the oil industry.

Insull—The whisper around the Insull hearings among those in the know was that more indictments are coming shortly in Chicago. Young Insull is not on the list of those to be indicted. Apparently he did not know much that went on. He does now.

The big witnesses were handled by the committee with kid gloves. It was "Mr. Young this" and "Mr. Young that" for Owen Young. The examinations of General Dawes and Melvin Traylor were also excessively polite.

Behind the calling of this trio was the determination of the committee to preserve the bipartisan political aspects of the Insull mess. There was no favoritism as between the republicans and democrats. Both got off lightly.

Japan

The British flip-flop was responsible for the stronger action taken by the League of Nations against Japan. There are increasing indications in officialdom that Britain came around because the Chinese were threatening action against the large British holdings in China. Some of our officials believe she also had in mind the coming war debt negotiations with us. That the real reason was fear of what the Chinese would do to British investments.

Increasing quantities of irate mail are pouring in on the senators from out in the country. Most of it demands action to end filibusters. It is evident many of the scribes do not know what filibusters are but they are bitterly opposed to them. That is why you have witnessed this recent agitation to change the senate rules, and hectic efforts to restore constitutional prerogatives.

Admitted to that is the fact that the democrats realize they have too many wild men like Huey Long on their hands. They can see they are not going to be able to get their program through next session unless they change the rules so they can handle these boys.

Gravy

You will have an opportunity shortly to see how sincere the senators are about economy.

Mr. Hoover has called the usual special session of the senate at noon March 4. That must be done for confirmation of Mr. Roosevelt's cabinet. But the law gives each senator mileage home and back for that special session. He may not even move out of his senate chair between the time the old session expires at noon and a moment later when the new session begins, but the law gives him mileage just the same.

A few days later when Mr. Roosevelt calls the special legislative session they will get mileage again.

That is what is known as gravy.

Notes

Geneva and Washington are getting somewhat closer together... The league's committee of nineteen is now copied here by naval radio direct from Geneva with only a few blotches... That opens a new line of communication which our diplomats say will be used frequently in the future... It may make for better feeling all around... Up to this time we have been getting league reports days late by cable and through the mails... Inflationists are clearly getting the worst of it in the Harrison economic hearings... The witnesses were arranged that way.

NEW YORK

By James McMillin

Investigation—Max Steurer—canny Tammany lawyer—may yet be seen in the role of chief inquisitor for the senate stock market investigation. He is said to be receptive to the idea of working for a committee with a democratic chairman—though he wouldn't work with Norbeck. There is still the possibility of some real excitement if the democrats want it.

Friendly relations have been restored between the National City Bank and the Tammany administration since the bank helped a successful flotation of 25 million dollars in city revenue bills at a lowered rate of interest. You can expect the National City's forthcoming inquiry by Mr. Pecora to be mild—if it takes place at all. Incidentally savings banks and insurance companies are quite eager to add New York City's obligations to their investment portfolios.

Utility people hear that the Federal Trade Commission's investigation of their activities will not be curtailed after all. The necessary part of the appropriation will be restored with the warm approval of the new president. Just another try gone wrong.

Insull

The Insull inquiry—as so far conducted—might have been tailored to order for New York's benefit. New York banks are gloating a bit. They figure that Chicago's claim to financial preeminence will certainly be handicapped by the evidence that Chicago's banks were far worse suckers for the Insull transactions than their New York brothers. Of course New York's turn could still come.

At the same time there is some annoyance that the senate has chosen the moment of a banking crisis to rake over dead ashes. That the process provides a sedative for an important section of the public escapes their thought.

Budget

The financial community was pretty disgusted with the performance of Jackson Reynolds and Myron Taylor before the senate committee. The senate won the round easily when the witnesses couldn't suggest how the demanded budget-balancing act should be accomplished. One of the witnesses is privately but vehemently insisting that he was misquoted. New York is skeptical.

The incident gave rise to the critic: "What would Taylor and Reynolds know about budget balancing? They can't even balance their own." Neither U. S. Steel nor First National's Security Affiliate has been a howling financial success in the last two years.

Seabury

Samuel Seabury's best guess in refusing a $75,000 fee for investigating the city courts was more or less forced on him. The money would have had to come out of the city—not the state—and after the city's agonized efforts to reduce its budget Mr. Seabury would have been on the spot if he had accepted payment.

Also there is some question as to how much of the $75,000 offered was stage money. But Seabury still stands a chance of collecting his $50,000 from the state for the other part of the investigation.

Dilemma

The Trust department of a large bank recently got into a curious jam. It started to sell out its clients' holdings of a certain corporation's preferred stock and advised sales in cases where it did not have full authority. One of the corporation's officers—who also happened to be a director of the bank—found out about it and raised so much Cain that the trust department had to cancel the advice and stop selling the stock.

Since then the stock has dropped by 20 odd points and both bank officials and clients are on the Trust department's neck about it.

Will the class in banking etiquette please say what a trust department is supposed to do in these circumstances?

Motors

The motor industry's showing in improving its January sales record as against January a year ago is not quite as bright as it looks. Dealers were stocked with 1932 models as early as November 1931. This year the dealers didn't get the 1933 models until January. There is still no evidence of increased public demand.

Stock Market

European holders of American securities took advantage of the attempt to assassinate Roosevelt and of the Michigan banking situation by dumping in wholesale lots on the New York market. It took the strongest kind of support from high quarters to avert a temporary panic. Wall Street's opinion of its foreign playmates is unprintable.

Wallace was going along with other students of economy in 1930 and 1932, predicting a revival of business. On June 1st, 1931, he believed business should "pick up" during 1931 and should reach the peak about the middle of 1932. However, by the latter months of 1932 his ideas had changed. In October 1932, he foresaw the farmers in "bloody revolution" within five years if the gold standard holds.

The Goldborough bill for currency inflation had Wallace's support and he was one of the first advocates of the domestic allotment plan of farm relief. He favors cancellation of European war debts and lower tariffs. Thomas J. Walsh
Attorney General

Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana, who will become attorney-general in the Roosevelt cabinet, was born at Two Rivers, Wis., June 12, 1896. He received his early education in the public schools from which he graduated. He taught as principal of several high schools and while so engaged was awarded a life certificate on an examination covering all the branches included in the usual college course. In 1924 he received his degree of B. L. from the University of Wisconsin and received his L.L.D. degree from the same university in 1931. He also took his L.L.D. degree from Loyola University in 1928. He began the practice of his profession at Redfield, South Dakota associated with his brother, Henry Comer Walsh. He opened law offices at Helena, Mont., in 1930 and 1937 associated himself

THOMAS J. WALSH
In 1906 he made an unsuccessful attempt for Congress. He was a candidate for United States

Senator in 1910 against Senator Thomas H. Carter and through his efforts a Democratic legislature was elected, but a deadlock ensued which ended on the last night of the session in the election of Henry L. Meyers. He was made unanimously nominated at the State convention as the candidate of his party and received the highest number of votes cast for any candidate at the following election. The legislature of 1913 ratified the choice of the people, every member of both branches, irrespective of party, voting for him. He was re-elected in 1918, again on Nov. 4, 1924, and again in 1930.

Senator Walsh was delegate to the Democratic convention six times to 1928 and was a member of the sub-committee on platforms each time excepting the last. He was chairman of the Democratic National Central Committee in 1924 and again in 1932 at Chicago at which time Franklin D. Roosevelt was nominated for the Presidency of the United States.

Probably the most outstanding accomplishment of Senator Walsh's career was the part he played in the sensational Tea Pot oil scandal in 1925 as head of the Senate investigating committee and whose revelations resulted in the conviction and imprisonment of Albert B. Fall, former U. S. Secretary of Interior on a charge of accepting a $10,000 bribe.
