Allied Air Offensive Against Europe Goes Into Seventh Day

Enemy Convoy Smashed, RAF Over Germany

LONDON, May 18 (AP)—British bombers, returning again last night for the seventh successive time to the air offensive on Europe, attacked targets in southern Germany, fighters swept northern France and Belgium, and coastal aircraft damaged five ships in an enemy convoy, it was announced officially today.

The coastal command planes attacked a convoy off the Dutch coast which was initially attacked by Beaufighters yesterday. Two of the supply ships in a convoy of eight merchantmen and three escort vessels were left sinking and were seen to be abandoned by their crews, it was stated.

An Allied headquarters communique announcing that Alghero in Sardinia was bombed again last night indicated that the air offensive was also being carried on relentlessly against the south of Europe.

Aircraft of the fighter command on intruder patrols during the night attacked road and rail communications and enemy air bases in northern France and Belgium, it was announced.

The moonlight channel battle was the finishing attack of a fight started in daylight yesterday with hits on escort craft and supply ships by Beaufighters. A Canadian squadron then attacked with torpedoes.

During the night, enemy planes again struck at London. At least ten persons were known to have been killed. A Welsh town, identified by the German radio as Cardiff, underwent one of the worst raids since 1941. By noon the bodies of several dead had been recovered, and rescuers said it was believed that at least 20 still were buried in wreckage.

Meanwhile reconnaissance reports indicated that the daring raid by picked Lancaster crews assigned to attack and breach two of Germany's largest dams Sunday night had attained the goal of "doing as much damage as could be done by thousands of tons of bombs dropped on many nights running" on the usual objectives.

A mammoth wall of water swept down into the highly-industrialized Ruhr valley, site of some of Adolf Hitler's most needed war plants, from the blasted wall of the Mohne dam.

Farther to the east, the Eder dam, backing up 202,000,000 tons of water and characterized by the air ministry as the largest dam in all Germany, spilled terrific quantities of water through at least two uncontrollable breaches into the Wester valley, drowning out naval war plants and disrupting water-borne traffic.

Long-range four-engined Lancasters dipped into a hall of anti-aircraft fire to an altitude of only 100 feet to drop a barrage of heavy mines against and breach two of the dam walls. Picked crews trained for weeks for the novel attack.

The Sorpe reservoir, which with the Mohne dam controls about 70 per cent of the Ruhr basin water-fall, also was attacked, but results were not reported.

A late reconnaissance revealed that the Mohne dam was breached over a length of 100 yards, the air ministry said, and that the power station below had been swept away.

The sweeping floods tore up railways, carried away bridges, and destroyed or damaged hydro-electric power stations, the ministry added.

Christian Church Lauded By Chiang

CHUNGKING, May 18 (AP)—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek praised the Christian church and its missionaries in China today and said the "abolition of unequal treaties had freed the Christian church from all association with foreign imperialism or aggression."

In an address to the opening session of the first national Christian conference held since the outbreak of the war, the Chinese leader said: "We still need them (the missionaries) and welcome Christians from other lands who serve the people of China with true sympathy and devotion. Don't feel you are guests. You are comrades working with us to save our people and build a new nation."

Chiang and his wife are Methodists.

"Limitless Savagery" Australian Hospital Ship Sunk By Japs, 299 Perish

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, May 18 (AP)—The Australian hospital ship Centaur, brilliantly lit and unmistakably marked, was torpedoed and sunk in flames by a Japanese submarine off the coast of Australia last Friday with a loss of 299 lives.

No warning whatever was given. The ship capsized and sank within three minutes.

The ship, carrying 363 aboard, including only one of 13 women nurses, were saved. Forty-three of the crew of 78 and 245 Australian and British medical staff men went down, most of them trapped on a lower deck of the blazing ship.

There were no Americans aboard. The ship, en route from Sydney to New Guinea, carried no patients.

Survivors, crowded on makeshift rafts in waters swarming with sharks, were picked up 36 hours after the Centaur went down.

General Douglas MacArthur expressed deep revulsion at the "limitless savagery" of the sinking.

"The vessel was traveling unescorted and was fully illuminated and marked with the Red cross and complying with all provisions of international law governing hospital ships in time of war," the announcement from his headquarters said. "The weather was clear and visibility was excellent."

The torpedo hit at 4:10 a. m. while the ship was 40 miles off Brisbane and most of those aboard were asleep below decks. The huge red crosses on its side had been newly repainted in Sydney two days before and survivors said the vessel "was lit up to glory." It offered a perfect target for the murderous attack.

Sister Eleanor Savage of Sydney was the one woman survivor. Despite a blow in the face which gave her a black eye, she never complained and survivors said her fervent prayers did much to help keep up morale. It was only after the rescue that she mentioned a side injury. Doctors found three ribs broken.

Frank Davidson, ship's butcher from Sydney, said he saw a great mass of men struggling futilely to force their way up from a lower deck through the debris-blocked hatches. He could hear them screaming for help as he jumped from the ship.

"We thought we heard airplane motors in the darkness but the pilot (of the ship who was on the same raft) said it was diesel engines. Then we saw a couple of lights close by and knew it must be the submarine."

Sharks cruised about the rafts all the time and the men repeatedly drove them away with their oars. One 13-foot shark snapped hungrily at an empty, brightly-colored tin tossed into the ocean and its sharp teeth sheared off the bottom of the can.

Local Field Selects Crew For Olympics

A bombing crew, representing the Big Spring Bomberdier School is being selected to participate in the "bombing olympics" which will be staged in Childress Sunday, with teams from Texas, New Mexico and California bomberdier schools competing.

Lieut. Col. John W. White, commanding officer of the Childress Bomberdier School, has announced that a silhouette battleship, target on Lake Childress, would be skip-bombed and that an aerial tear gas and glider attack would be made on a cadet combat base on Cap-Rock near Childress.

Main event of the olympics will be an actual bombing match with caedra dropping bombs from 10,000 feet at a 30 foot bullseye target.

Other schools participating in the contests will be teams from Midland, San Angelo, and Childress, Texas; Deming, Albuquerque and Alamogordo, N. M. and Victorville, Calif. Plans call for site of the "olympics" to be rotated.

Axis Loses Heavily In North Africa

LONDON, May 18 (AP)—Deputy Prime Minister Clement Attlee announced today in the house of commons that Axis casualties in Africa and the Middle East were nearly triple the losses sustained by Britain since Italy entered the war on June 10, 1940.

British, Commonwealth and Empire forces have lost approximately 220,000 men in killed, wounded and missing, Attlee declared.

German casualties in Africa and the Middle East, he said, total 227,000, and Italian casualties 400,000.

Fighting Flares On Kuban Front

MOSCOW, May 18 (AP)—The Kuban front flared into action again today when German troops stole through the forested hills and sprang upon the Russians in a violent effort to regain important positions lost weeks ago.

Latest Russian reports said that German infantry which attacked several times supported by tanks, planes and artillery, was thrown back each time with heavy losses. The German counterattacks are aimed at driving the Russians back from the inner positions of the Black Sea port of Novorossiisk.

County's Bond Figure Gains

Howard county's credit on war bond purchases for May had taken a jump Tuesday—but there still was a goodly sum to go.

From state headquarters County Chairman Ira Thurman received word that some purchases made here in late April were received after the first of the month and would be credited on the May total. This accounted for some $30,000 additional for this month, without affecting the "over-the-top" achievement during the Second War Loan of last month.

With the new credit, subscriptions for the month through Tuesday were $68,835. The monthly quota is $115,600, so there still is nearly $47,000 to go, and only eleven more business days to meet it.

He succeeds Odessa school Superintendent Murry Fry.

Reservations Needed For Hiway Dinner

Reservations for the dinner Wednesday night at 8 p. m. at the Settles hotel to honor Reuben Williams and Fred Knetsch, members of the state highway commission, have been coming in slowly, the Chamber of Commerce office said Tuesday.

Due to rationing, it is necessary that those who plan to attend the dinner notify the chamber of commerce by noon Wednesday.

Two members of the highway commission will be in Big Spring following a celebration at Garden City marking the opening of the Midland-Garden City-Sterling City road.

Several local people plan to attend the formal opening of the road in Garden City Wednesday noon. Count Judge James T. Brooks and county commissioners, members of the county sheriff's office, J. H. Greene, chamber of commerce manager and representatives of the board of directors are planning to attend, it was understood.

Many Homeless In Indiana Floods

INDIANAPOLIS, May 18 (AP)—The Wabash river and half a hundred normally insignificant tributaries, glutted with heavy rain, forced more than 500 families in central and northern Indiana from their homes last night.

The largest evacuation was at Marion, where city engineers said the Charles Mills dam was doomed under pressure of the Mississippian river.

At Frankfort 150 families to the local armory and into the shelter of friends homes. At Wabash itself the river was nine feet over flood stage and climbing steadily.

House Rejects Skip-A-Year Tax Proposal

Turned Back Under Veto Threat By 202-194 Count

WASHINGTON, May 18 (AP)—Heeding the threat of a possible presidential veto, the house rejected for the third time today the senate-approved skip-a-year income tax bill.

The action, by roll call vote of 202 to 194, came on a motion to instruct its delegates to a joint house-senate conference committee to accept the senate measure.

By its decision—which opens up the possibility of a new stalemate—the house stood pat on its own measure, the Robertson-Forsand bill which would abate a year's tax obligations for approximately 90 per cent of the nation's taxpayers.

The vote, polled off in a tense climax to the seessaw struggle which has gripped congress for months, came after Speaker Rayburn (D-Tex) predicted flatly that the modified Ruml skip-a-year plan, if passed, would be vetoed.

Republicans had swung all their power into a final house drive to send the senate-approved skip-a-year income tax bill to the White House in the face of a threatened presidential veto.

President Roosevelt late yesterday told congress in a letter that he considered the Ruml plan "highly inadequate" and that he would not acquiesce "in the elimination of a whole year's tax burden in the upper income groups during the war period."

International Food Parley Gets Underway

HOT SPRINGS, Va., May 18 (AP) Judge Marvin Jones, head of the United States delegation, was nominated by unanimous vote of the steering committee today to be permanent chairman of the United States food conference opening tonight.

The nomination must be ratified by the conference itself. Jones had been designated temporary chairman by President Roosevelt.

The steering committee selected English as the language of the conference. French, Belgian, Luxembourgian and Haitian representatives asked, however, that this not be regarded as a precedent. French usually has been the language of international meetings.

The committee also adopted a motion that the conference complete its work not later than June 3.

Laid out for the conference is an agenda which will lead the delegates and their technical experts into a discussion of the problems which, during the past quarter century, brought the world face to face with a perplexing dilemma of want, hunger, and starvation on the one hand and unmarketable food surpluses and potential plenty on the other.

The British delegation indicated through its chairman, Richard K. Law, that it believes the approach will have to be made through measures designed to provide full employment and expanding international trade. Other delegations have not yet disclosed their views.

BRITISH SUBS

LONDON, May 18 (AP)—British submarines torpedoed and sank an Italian destroyer and at least five supply ships during a recent series of Mediterranean encounters, the admiralty announced today.

Women Lay Bodies On Rails

LONDON, May 18 (AP)—Laying their bodies across the tracks in front of locomotives, the wives and daughters of Frenchmen drafted for German labor have almost halted the deportations to the reich, Fernand Grenier, former communist deputy who has joined the fighting French, declared today.

"The latest Vichy reports admit that between 50 and 80 per cent of the workers conscripted for German factories failed to go," he said.

Grenier gave a full account of activities of French guerrillas in the last three months and produced a sheaf of underground newspapers printed in France to document his remarks.

U. S. FORCES CLOSE PINNACLES ON EASTERN END OF ISLAND

WASHINGTON, May 18 (AP)—American forces have captured a ridge which apparently is the main Japanese defense position on Attu Island, Secretary of the Navy Knox announced today.

United States troops advancing north and south across the eastern neck of the island, Knox said, have been brought very close together by this victory if they have not actually joined.

The operation against the ridge apparently climaxes the first phase of the campaign for this island in the Aleutians and Knox reported to a press conference that despite stubborn resistance so far "our casualties are much lighter than had been expected."

The army troops on the island, the secretary added, have the full support of warships standing off to sea, and planes operating from American bases to the eastward whenever weather permits.

Knox's report on the Attu fighting, which began a week ago with an American invasion of the U. S. island which the enemy had held since last June, was made only about an hour after the navy had issued its first detailed communique on this initial stroke to smash the Japanese hold on the western Aleutians.

One paragraph in the communique said that the American forces were advancing against "stubborn enemy resistance from numerous machine gun nests" and that the enemy troops had "entrenched themselves along a rocky ridge."

As soon as newsmen gathered in his office, Knox noted that the communique had been issued and said "we now have word that our troops have captured that ridge and have driven the enemy out—we are now in possession of the ridge."

The pincers began to close in from the two initial beachheads and Knox said it was his understanding that the main enemy defense force in the region south of Holtz Bay was smashed by the Messers Bay landing expedition, which he described as the main American force.

Once the American line is established it would definitely pocket the enemy in the relatively small area at the eastern end of Attu and the job would become one of wiping out his installations which are chiefly located in the vicinity of Holtz Bay and Chicago harbor a few miles to the east.

Knox said that so far as he knows the rest of the island—which is the bulk of it—without military significance and bare of Japanese installations.

He said that one day of good weather would "very greatly help" by permitting available American airpower to be thrown against the Japanese positions and soften them up for land attack.

The secretary said that the operation initially was accomplished with complete secrecy and there was no serious opposition until American troops had landed on the beaches.

One reason why secrecy was particularly important, Knox said, was that the vessels were working through treacherous reef-strewn waters where the harbors offered anchorages only 14 feet deep and had enemy fire opened too soon our losses might have been much heavier. As it was, Knox said, the landings were "risky and uncertain of success."

"The operation continues and need for secrecy continues," Knox said.

"Beat Jap First" Talk Inspired, Says Senator

WASHINGTON, May 18 (AP)—An idea that a senatorial appeal to "beat Japan first" may have been suggested during conferences with United States military leaders was expressed on Capitol Hill today in the wake of a three-hour senate row over diverting American military might to the Pacific.

Senator Chandler (D-Iky), who started the wrangle with warnings that if Germany is beaten first the United States may count on little or no help from Britain or Russia to whip the Nipponese, acknowledged himself that he was "encouraged to make the speech."

The Kentuckian declined to say from what source the encouragement came.

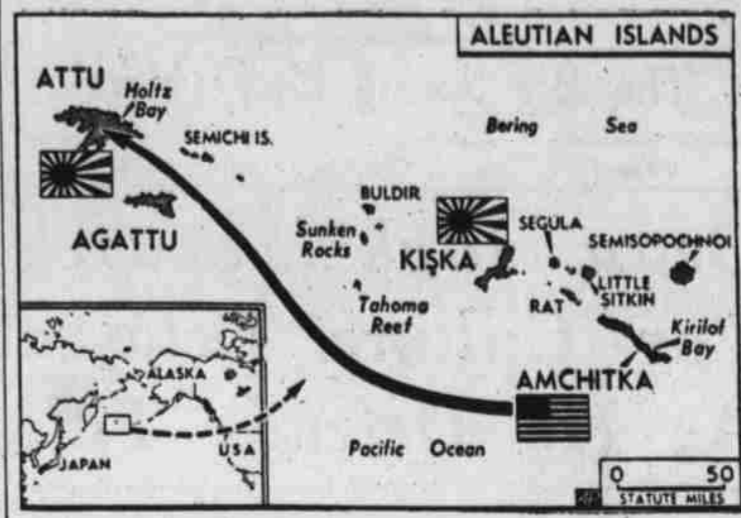

The president was disclosed last night to have told Premier Stalin of Russia that it is "reasonable to expect further successes on both the eastern and western fronts," and to have expressed a hope to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek that Allied forces will take the initiative against Japan in Asia "in the near future."

In the senate, Chandler said his previous appeal for a full assault in the Pacific had been made "on my own hook," and added: "I wouldn't have done it again but I was encouraged to make the speech and I know now our boys want it that way."

Village Seized

LONDON, May 18 (AP)—The Yugoslav government-in-exile reported today a seven-hour battle in which it said Yugoslav patriots seized the important mining town of Veronik last Friday and destroyed a power plant and mine installations.

Two fully laden German troop trains were said to have been derailed and mangled so that that "not a person escaped."

Change Flags—Attu, shown at the upper end of the map, is the main Japanese defense position on the eastern end of the island. U. S. forces Tuesday broke main Jap resistance on the eastern tip.

Bill Advanced To Assure 25-cent Ceiling On Cotton

WASHINGTON, May 18 (AP)—The senate agriculture committee voted 8 to 2 today to recommend passage of legislation by Senator Thomas (D-Oka) designed to prohibit the fixing of a ceiling price of raw cotton at less than 25 cents a pound.

Specifically the measure would prevent the sale of any cotton owned or held by the government at less than 23 1/2 cents until its value reaches 25 cents.

Opposition to the measure was voiced by Senator Gillette (D-Iowa) and Willis (R-Ind) on the ground that it is directed at only one commodity.

J. C. McDonald, commissioner of agriculture for Texas, chief spokesman for the bill, asserted its purpose was to bring the price of cotton up to 25 cents, which he said would give the farmer "some return for his labor" in the price structure.

The house-approved labor bill, to require the inclusion of labor costs in the parity formula, is still before the committee, to which it was returned by the senate some weeks ago.

McDonald told the committee the measure would tax a floor of 23 1/2 cents on cotton, using 7-8ths middling as a basis, while at the same time putting a ceiling at 25 cents.

It would affect 2,700,850 bales of cotton owned outright by the government and 3,451,000 bales on which the government has loans.

Under present law the government may sell no more than 300,000 bales of its cotton in any one month nor more than 1,500,000 bales in any one year. The bill would remove these restrictions.

Father Wanted Him To Be A Matador

By JACK SMITH
PHILADELPHIA — Back in Guadalajara, Mexico, old Juan Flores always loved the bulls and the gory excitement of a Sunday afternoon with the matadors, and when his youngest-son, Jesse, began growing tall and strong, Juan hoped that Jesse soon would bring him bulls' ears as souvenirs of the "toros" he had slain.

Jesse is 26 now, and he has yet to fight a bull. But Juan has a fine collection of baseballs.

And if the Philadelphia Athletics' olive-skinned Mexican rookie maintains his early season record—one that has set the baseball industry to chatting—old Juan probably will be just as pleased that Jesse didn't turn out to be another Belmonts after all.

His First Big League Game
 Jesse never saw a major league baseball game until opening day, April 25. But within the next three weeks he won three games and lost one (because of poor support), and created a minor sensation by going 15 2-3 innings against Washington, allowing only five hits and no runs for a 2-1 victory.

In the same period, he out-pitched such veteran masters as Dutch Leonard, peer of the American League's knuckleball hurlers,

JESSE FLORES
A Good Neighbor Pitcher

and Tex Hughson, who won 22 games last year for the Boston Red Sox.

Connie Mack brought this good neighbor up from Los Angeles of the Pacific Coast League, which he topped in 1941 with seven shutouts. He began his career with Biabe in the Arizona-Texas League in 1938 and was a star from the start.

Started In Backyard
 Jesse began his career in the backyards of La Habra, Calif., to which old Juan had migrated.

"Baseballs love bull fights, but they also like baseball, and I was one of those kids," Jesse says. "Sure I love the excitement of the bulls but once I started pitching baseball, I said to myself, 'Jesse, this is the game.'"

When Juan, now 73, heard his "muchacho" viva-ed, he mused, "perhaps there can be a Belmonts in this game too," and old Juan became a fan although at first the play was "muy rapido"—too rapid, and hard to follow. Now he collects baseballs of the games Jesse wins, and saves the clippings when veterans tell the newspapers of his son's screwball and uncanny control.

Jesse is married, has an 18-month-old daughter, is applying for U. S. citizenship, speaks English with only a trace of an accent, but rattles off Spanish with his pal and team-mate, Roberto Estalella, a Cuban, at a furious clip, occasionally breaking away from his native tongue to interpose a hearty American "O. K."

Cards Dropped To Third Place As Brooklyns Win

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer
 A microscope still is standard equipment for National League fans trying to find any difference in strength between the Brooklyn Dodgers and the St. Louis Cardinals.

These two rivals for the pennant

The senior circuit collided at Ebbets field yesterday for the first time this season and the Dodgers won by the most infinitesimal margin possible, 1 to 0.

This was good enough to chase the Cardinals into third place and make it impossible for them to gain the league lead during their stay in Brooklyn, but it failed to indicate any clear cut superiority for the long grind ahead.

It was the first victory for Rube Melton and the first defeat for Howie Pollett, who allowed seven hits and four walks.

A southpaw, Ernie White, was scheduled to face the Dodgers today with Whitlow Wyatt on the mound for Brooklyn.

Only two other games, both in the national league, were played yesterday. The Cincinnati Reds squeaked back into the first division by beating the New York Giants 3-1.

At Philadelphia the surprising Phillies conquered the last place Chicago Cubs 8-4 to extend the Bruins' losing streak to six games.

78th Rallies To Win 4-3 Over Reds

The 78th Squadron (formerly the 816th) writhed in apparent defeat for five innings Monday before Pvt. Bredemeyer lost his magic twirling touch for the Group II Reds (formerly the 816th).

Ultimately the 78th came through with a 4-3 win to give it a 4-3 victory over the Reds. It was the fifth out of six starts for the 78th.

Bredemeyer had tossed superb ball through the first three innings, striking out six in that space of time. He got two more for the rout but he also gave up six hits. Pvt. Timpko (78th) led hitting with a single and a double while Marsh and Thurston of the II Reds and Sonnenschein and Ramsey of the 78th were stars afield.

In the other game of the evening, the 359th broke a 14-14 deadlock in the last inning with a terrific 10-run rally that completely broke the power of the Group I Reds (formerly the 816th).

Pvt. Miner and Pfc. Gooch of the 359th had two hits to lead for their mates while Pfc. Riley had four hits for the Reds. Henderson (359) and Pfc. Gartman (Reds) each had homers.

Sees Football Boom After The War

PITTSBURGH, May 18 (AP) — Clark Shaughnessy, soft-spoken "T" formation stylist who hopes to put the roar back into Pitt's Panthers, predicted today that college football would enjoy the greatest boom in the history of the game after the war.

"These boys are going to have a lot of steam to get rid of when they return, and football is the first they'll turn to for rough-and-tumble competition," said the former Chicago, Stanford and Maryland coach as he laid the groundwork for Pitt's spring (beg pardon, summer) drills beginning June 28. He added:

"The state of physical fitness of our modern armies is so high—and in such enormous quantities—it's difficult to picture just how big this boom will be. But it'll dwarf anything we experienced after the last war."

Service Teams At Top In State's Semipro Play

DALLAS, May 18. — The war brought about suspension of the Texas League, but gave the fans more baseball than they ever had before.

They can go down to the park where their Texas League club used to play and see fellows in action who would be performing in the majors at top prices if they were not getting in their licks for Uncle Sam at 50 bucks a month or thereabouts.

There are semipro circuits in most of the Texas League cities and attendance is good, because those fellows turn in a classy brand of ball, being largely ex-professionals working in defense plants.

Three service teams now playing in this section can give you a pretty fair brand of major league ball. Take the Waco Army Flying School headed by Birdie Tebbetts of the Detroit Tigers. He has Sid Hudson, Washington pitcher; Buster Mills, who has been with six big league outfits, and Bruce Campbell, in the majors 12 years.

Then there is the undefeated Camp Walters club, which boasts such fellows as Bob Savage, pitcher with the Athletics last year; Ken Gables, a New York York Yankee chafel from Hampton, and an assortment of minor league performers who worked with Gables to wallop Tebbetts team and remove the Waco Army Flying School from the unbeaten list.

Favors A Grid Title For '43 Service Teams

WASHINGTON, May 18 (AP) — Rep. Monroney (D-Okla.) today proposed a national service teams' football championship for the 1943 season.

"If the war department would sanction it and select the men to arrange the schedules and so forth, it could be handled nicely," Monroney told a reporter. "Most of the athletic brains in the country are in service schools now, there would be no difficulty in outfitting the teams, and the games could be played in nearby college fields."

There would be approximately 200 teams available for elimination, based on a regional arrangement with the regional winners going into the final rounds during November, he said.

"I just hate to see football disappear from the scene in any part of the country," Monroney said. "It's too fine a morale-builder for the service men."

Beau Jack's Search For Culture Delayed As He Defends Title

By DELON GRAHAM
AP Features Sports Editor
NEW YORK—Always interested in improvement of the breed, whether it be horse or homo sapiens, it was with great interest I learned that our lightweight champion can now distinguish between cat and dog when he counters these words in the public prints.

Furthermore, Beau Jack can write Sidney Walker, which happens to be the 135-pound champion's name.

He can read well enough to make sense out of the average newspaper story, so long as they don't ring in any 35 cent words on him. It just goes to show what boxing can do for a person, what an elevating profession it is.

When Jack was a shine boy at the Augusta, Ga., National Golf Club, newspapers were just things white folks left scattered around the room to be picked up.

His attitude changed last November. Boxer Jack beat Allie Stolz and became the No. 1 contender for the title. Almost overnight he came up with this gnawing craving for culture and knowledge. He was curious to know what was in those newspapers, besides pictures.

So reading and writing it was for Jack. Bowman Milligan, his guardian and ring coach, became his private tutor. (Jack was steered away from arithmetic. The champ is allowed $5 a week spending money and his board of strategy decided there was no reason he should learn that currency came in larger denominations. It is much better that he bank his earnings for him until such time that he can use them. Yes, reading and writing would suffice now for Jack.)

After keeping his nose in a school book for a month, Jack could read his name and write it too. That was the status of his cultural progress the night last December when he knocked out Tippy Larkin in three heats and won the crown.

Between fights he'd light out for Augusta and cram some more. There was definite improvement by the time he first fought Fritz Zivic, more progress at the stage of their second meeting. And he was quite a literate party when he countered the intellectual Henry Armstrong, the erstwhile poet, some weeks ago.

Now Chick Wergelas, his manager, tells me Beau can maneuver his way across any newspaper and come up with the gist of the news, not too badly mangled.

Well, it just goes to show, etc.

Secret Bombight Is 'Hero' Of Ritz Film, 'Bombardier'

America's secret weapon, the Norden bombight that is in the nose of the big bombing planes doing such deadly work on axis targets, plays a vitally important role in the new picture "Bombardier," which has a premiere showing at the Ritz theatre this week-end.

The film starts Thursday for a three-day run, simultaneously with showings in Albuquerque, San Angelo and Midland — all towns which, like Big Spring, are homes of Bombardier schools.

The bombight, as a matter of fact, is the "hero" of the picture, because the story is built around the development of bombardier training in use of this important instrument.

The authentic story of how we came to possess and develop this priceless instrument, and how thousands of students are taught its operation in the country's big Bombardier schools, is revealed for the first time in the film, which co-stars Pat O'Brien and Randolph Scott.

A night bombing raid over Tokyo comprises the memorable climax of the picture, the cast of which also includes Ann Shirley, Eddie Albert, Walter Reed and Barton MacLana.

Six Firemen Hurt As They Fight Blaze

PEORIA, Ill., May 18 (AP) — Six firemen were injured late last night and early today when fire and a series of five explosions of undetermined origin destroyed three buildings and damaged two others in Peoria's central business district. Damage was estimated unofficially to be more than $100,000.

The blaze started in a building at the intersection of 5th and LaVaca Navigation.

In Mitchell county, the Couden Petroleum Corp. and W. D. Casebolt No. 1 C. C. Thompson, wildcat six miles east of Colorado City, loomed as a failure at 3,940 feet where it logged a hole full of sulphur water. It was to carry a wet hole to 4,000 feet, contract depth. Location is in 53-25, T&P.

Zupke Paints Grange Portrait

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., May 18 (AP) — Resplendent in a gleaming orange helmet and a bright blue jersey, Red Grange is running again—in a portrait painted by Bob Zupke, the man who coached him to football immortality two decades ago.

After spending 29 seasons at the University of Illinois, Zupke retired a year and a half ago. He now spends most of his time raising pigs (he started out with four and now has 250) down on his farm at Mahomet, Ill., writing V-mail to scores of football men in the service, or putting around with his paintings.

A riot of colors always appealed to the old maffer, and he could not pass the opportunity to dress up Grange in a blaze of orange and blue—even making the football in the "Galloping Ghost" arms a gleaming bronze.

FLYNN IN HOSPITAL
HOLLYWOOD, May 18 (AP) — A week's sojourn in the hospital is indicated for screen actor Errol Flynn.

His physician, Dr. Thomas M. Hearm, said yesterday Flynn is suffering from a recurrent respiratory disorder.

New Well Is Acidized

Reaction of the new Howard county discovery well, the W. S. Gaheris (and Couden) No. 1 Pauline Allen, a mile north and east of Vincent, remained a topic of speculation Tuesday following treatment of the test Sunday with 1,000 gallons of acid.

Swab swiveled off Monday in cleaning operations and fishing efforts to recover it were fruitless. It appeared probable Tuesday that tubing would have to be pulled before cleaning out can be resumed.

The test, which showed 50 barrels a day natural on a 36-hour pumping run, flowed some Sunday following the swab. Operators said the well had been improved by the acid but could not say to what extent. Location is in section 57-30, LaVaca Navigation.

Chartik On A Hitting Spree

ST. LOUIS, May 18 (AP) — Introduced into the American league only a fortnight ago, the livelier baseball brought with it a new—and also livelier—edition of Mike Chartak, St. Louis Browns' right fielder.

Mike, the 25-year-old 200-pound lad with the molar-churning swing was never exactly a powder-puff player—but in his best days last year or this he revealed no such chubbiness promise as in the eight days since the advent of the oomph pellet.

The six-footer, currently cleanup hitter for the Browns, collected 10 blows in 22 trips to the plate, beginning May 9, the day the new ball was tossed into play.

This barrage boosted his slugging-like .225 average as of May 9 to a lusty .303 as of today, a 78-point hop.

Three Applicants For Machinery

Only three applications were considered Saturday by the Howard county farm machinery rationing committee at the AAA office.

Approved were applications of J. T. Bell, one windmill and tower; Repps Guitler, windmill and tower; and Walker Merrick, windmill.

Meet The Bombardiers— New York, Massachusetts Send Most Cadets Here

New York, Massachusetts, Illinois and Michigan led the states in representative in the newest classes to reach Big Spring Bomber School. Oddest note in Class 43-11 was the fact that Texas was represented by only one cadet.

NEW YORK
Hugh T. Donohue, Bayville, was a student at Syracuse university when he entered the cadets. A brother is a first lieutenant medical officer. Donohue played semi-pro football for two years. John J. Butler, Southampton, was a machinist at an eastern airplane factory before deciding to fly in them rather than make them. Charles C. Beall, Larchmont, studied at Brown university and was a carpenter apprentice during school vacations. Howard B. Engle, Delmar, had his own insurance agency in civilian life, photography is his hobby. Vinton Stearns, Elmira, was an auditor for P. H. Whitney, studied at Bentley School and Accounting and Finance. James L. Crandell, Glens Falls, was a student at St. Lawrence university where he was interested in dramatics and choral work. A brother, William, is an aviation cadet in pilot training so perhaps one day the two Crandell brothers may be a combat team. Joseph C. Golbe, Niagara Falls, was a furnace operator at an electrometallurgical company. He studied at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute at Troy. Gabriel E. Wisniewski, Lawrence, was a student at Central Business school, later a salesman. A brother is a private in the army. Claude Clark, Attica, was a crane operator in civilian life. Roger E. Dounce, Bayside, Long Island, graduated from Columbia university and stepped immediately into the cadets. He was a member of the Bayside Yacht club, hopes someday to be a writer and a newspaperman.

In an interesting reverse of the naturalist's name, Class 43-11 has a cadet named Darwin Charles. His home was in Schenectady where he was a student and often did work as a musician and an emcee. Seth J. Converse, North Rose, was an inspector at a manufacturing plant in Rochester. He is 18, one of the youngest men in the new class. John S. Galati, New York, was a clerk on Lexington avenue. A brother is somewhere overseas. Edward C. Gelsichter, Schenectady, studied at Ohio State, left the Scarlet and Gray to join the cadets. Francis W. Fitzgerald, Troy, was a clerk-machinist at a New York arsenal. He was a four sport man in athletics at high school. Thomas H. Allen, South Elmhurst, was an insurance man before he decided to help insure the future of peace by blasting the axis.

Francis J. Haley, Jr., Staten Island, was an accounting clerk in New York before entering the army nearly a year ago. James P. Gleason, Jr., Brooklyn, studied at Brooklyn college and New York university, was a clerk before entering the army. David Gold, Brooklyn, was a student at City College before joining the cadets last November. Louis Amater, Newark, was the manager of a department at a large sportswear company. Edward Davidowitz, Brooklyn, was a dental technician with his own office before deciding to fly with Uncle Sam. Clifford E. Bowditch, Jr., graduated from Union college and was once a life guard on the same beach as "Zimny." Famed legless swimmer, Herbert E. Crandall, Olean, was a mechanic in his home city. A brother is a non-com with the military police.

John D. Haldans, Rochester, is a graduate of Eastman School of Music, was a salesman for a clothing firm before entering the Air Force. He hopes someday to write good music. Stanley T. Grocki, Lockport, was helping to make the planes in which he flies before joining the air force. Jacques I. Blum, New York City, studied at Lycee Claude Bernard in Paris, France. He was production manager for a New York firm before entering the army. George A. Evans, Hadley, graduated from New York College for Teachers, was a high school science teacher. Another member of his family, a brother, is in the cadets, too. Roger S. Tennant, Poughkeepsie, was a student at the University of Kentucky until his entry into the army. He was employed at a business house in his home city before entering school. George M. Stimik, Binghamton, was a masseur at a YMCA, now hopes to rub Hitler and Hirohito the wrong way with some accurate bombing. A brother is a private in New Mexico. Arthur C. Stanton, studied at the Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn, was a draftsman at a marine electrical company.

MASSACHUSETTS
Leonard H. Feingold, Boston, graduated from the Boston College of Pharmacy, was a registered pharmacist at Boston General hospital. Frederick Geffen, Boston, studied at Ohio University in the hills about Athens, was a member of the Bobcats' freshman football team. A brother is a lieutenant junior grade in the Navy. Thomas L. Underwood, Quincy, was an electrician at a shipbuilding plant. Donald W. Douglas, Stoneham, was a shipping clerk but his hobby was writing and cartooning. He hopes someday to be an author and a playwright. Joseph M. Gosselin, Fall River, was a shipping clerk at a Fall River plant. Watertown, studied at Northeastern university, was a salesman for a Boston firm. James H. Gallier, Dalton, studied at Berkshire Business college, was a U. S. Customs clerk. Thomas R. Gregory, Watertown, was a production clerk. He lettered in tennis at Watertown high school. He hopes someday to be a writer. Nicholas J. Auferio, Somerville, hopes to be a vocalist with a name band after the war is over. Singing is his hobby, perhaps one day his profession. Malcolm R. Boyd, Lynn, holds a degree from the Massachusetts College of Osteopathy, was an osteopathic physician before deciding to be a bombardier. When the war is over he intends to return to his private practice.

Clifford L. Gunnison, Boston, was employed by a defense plant before joining the cadets. Melford H. Butts, South Hanover, was a defense worker before entering the army, starred in three sports in high school where he was captain of his basketball team. Merton Ananian, Newbury, was a clerk at a grocery store. Two brothers are in the navy. Leon Stone, Dorchester, studied at Northeastern, was a chemist at a Watertown firm. Two uncles are army officers. James W. Campbell, Somerville, was a machine operator. His brother is a marine. Philip W. G. Baird III, Cambridge, Mass., studied at Harvard before entering the cadets. He lists his hobbies and talents as artist, writer, public speaker and poet.

ILLINOIS
Verl B. Murphy, Chicago, was an auto parts salesman before going into the army more than two years ago. William Demas, Chicago, was a student at the University of Wisconsin, left to enter the cadets. A brother is in the signal corps. Donald G. Cox, Hamilton, studied at Macomb Teachers college. Irvin G. Signer, Chicago, studied at Crane Junior college and was a clerk in Washington, D. C. before entering the army. Whether it is significant or not, Big Spring is his thirteenth field since he entered the army. Ivar N. Anderson, Chicago, studied at Valparaiso University, was employed at an Indiana defense plant. Robert G. Seyffert, Chicago, studied at Northwestern university, was a junior accountant. A brother is an enlisted man in the air force. Peter M. Gunnar, Riverside, studied at the University of Chicago, ended his studies to join the cadets. Richard R. Slupski, Chicago, studied at Chicago Tech, was a drill press operator. A brother is a machine gunner overseas.

CONNECTICUT
Michael J. Connery, Georgetown, studied at Fordham university and was a clerk during summer vacations. Robert E. Clark, East Haven, was an inspector for a Connecticut defense plant. A brother is an officer in the signal corps. Joseph J. Strumski, East Hartford, studied three years at Davidson college, was employed at the International Silver company before being inducted at Hartford. Joseph F. Burke, Hartford, was a lath operator for a defense plant, played semi-pro basketball and amateur football while a civilian. William G. Hale, West Hartford, was a student at Bard College at Columbia University and later the Middlesex Veterinary school. He left school to become a bombardier. Volney F. Snyder, Torrington, was a machine operator in a defense plant. His father is a first lieutenant in the state guard.

MICHIGAN
Burton H. Grannon, Jackson, was a Link Trainer designer in civilian life. He is one of three brothers now in the service, one of whom is overseas. John W. McCargar, Owosso, studied at Western Michigan college, left school to become one of Uncle Sam's cadets. Martin Douma, Jr., Grand Rapids, was a production foreman in a Michigan plant. Anthony C. Bernatovich, Detroit, was a printer's apprentice for a theatrical advertising company. William A. Burley, Detroit, studied at Lawrence Institute of Technology, was a cashier for a transportation company in the motor city. A brother is an enlisted man in Texas. Salem A. Smith, Jr., Detroit, studied at Wayne university, was a lath operator before entering the army.

OHIO
The voice of Kirby Brooks was well known in the Miami Valley a few months ago. Now it will be heard from the greenhouse of bombers in the call "Bombs Away." Kirby V. Brooks, Dayton, was a well known announcer at radio station WHIO in that city, was equally well known as a vocalist with top dance bands in the area. His parents live at Cassville, Mo., where he attended high school. He later studied at Monett junior college. Edward V. Chorancak, Lorain, was an arc welder at the shipyards in that city. Walter C. Double, Canton, studied at Ohio Wesleyan and the University of Michigan. He was a shipping clerk at a Canton firm during vacations and before he was inducted at Fort Hayes. Fredric P. Conrad, Bellaire, was a crew foreman at a steel corporation. A brother is in the Marines. Paul J. Siler, Shelby, was a clerical worker in the city welfare department at Detroit. Robert B. Cox, Akron, graduated from Hiram College in 1939, later worked for one of the Rubber City's main rubber factories. Frank L. Bracken, Jr., Cleveland, was an employee of a telephone company before entering the army.

PENNSYLVANIA
Achille P. Augelli, Scranton, studied by extension from Penn State, was a defense plant machinist before going into the army. A brother is also in the army. Paul W. Butler, Wellsboro, was a machinist tool maker. Joseph A. Zavorski, Philadelphia, was a printer. Gregory J. Figulak, studied at Carnegie Tech, was an employee of a defense plant. A brother is an army PFC. Harry T. Baird, Bethlehem, carried an APO number before going into the cadets. He has been in the army for more than three and a half years. Charles F. Bantz, Philadelphia, was a machinist. One brother is an aviation cadet, another a staff sergeant. Stanley G. Bache, Philadelphia, was a clerk in the U. S. Navy Yard. His father is in the U. S. Coast Guard. Richard H. Colborn, Monongahela, was a steel worker. Victor M. Boffa, Philadelphia, was a defense plant machinist. He graduated from Girard college. Stanley M. Gleason, Jr., Bradford, was a meter reader. A brother is in the army too. He played three years of semi-pro baseball. Ralph J. Hamilton, Corry, was a machinist before joining the cadets last summer.

THE MIDDLE WEST
Donald A. Blaney, Neenah, Wis., was a personnel man at a firm in his home city. He studied at the University of Chicago. James A. Doelger, Milwaukee, was a student at Milwaukee vocational junior college. He was employed as a glass company in Pittsburgh when he entered the army. William H. Glavin, Atchison, Kas., was a truck driver, once studied at St. Benedict's college. Victor D. Barnett, Colby, Kas., was a farmer-rancher. His twin brother is with the army in Alaska, another brother is a technical sergeant with the victorious African forces while a third brother is a sergeant still in the states. Donald A. Forbes, St. Louis, Mo., was an installer for an electrical company, has a brother in the ordnance. Otto L. Eckl, St. Paul, Minn., studied at St.

Thomas college, was a cost accountant and an optician. He has a brother in the coast artillery.

Leo J. Brenner, Garden City, Kas., studied at St. Joseph's Military Academy and Kansas State college where he took his degree. He was a vocational agriculture instructor at a high school before entering the army. A brother, Capt. W. R. Brenner, is a Japanese prisoner in the Philippines, another brother is in the naval corps. Ralph J. Swofford, St. Louis, was an installer for a telephone company. Two brothers are overseas, one a sergeant with the Marines and the other a staff sergeant with the forces in Africa. Norval R. Add Casualties— Bathing Caps

By MARY WHALEY
Gone for the duration are many things, including bathing caps, those unattractive and usually unsatisfactory gadgets designed to keep the hair dry and out of the eyes while swimming. A survey of Big Spring drug stores disclosed yesterday—now run don't walk to the nearest store—that there are exactly five rubber caps in stock in town. Take away the one we purchased and you have left—four. The gay colored caps of yesterday are also things of the past. Those four in stock are called "natural colored" but it's a stretch of the imagination to believe they look very natural on your head. But you aren't complaining are you? No, of course not, but you can't help but hope the synthetic rubber program proves a success. Allure takes a back seat when you put on your natural colored bathing cap.

outh, Ind., studied at Purdue, was a chemical laboratory assistant. His sister is a navy nurse.

No Complaints Here On Ceiling Prices

The request of OPA for housewives and shoppers to report all prices posted above ceilings to the ration boards so far has brought no complaints to the local board. Such complaints are to be handled by the price panel clerks, but other merchants are adhering strictly to the ceiling prices or local shoppers are not complaining. At least, to date, the price clerks have no "kicks" to handle.

If In Doubt-- Call The Doctor

By MARTHA M. ELIOT, Associate Chief, Children's Bureau U. S. Department of Labor

AP Features
"How shall I know when Tommy is really sick enough to call the doctor?" a mother asks me. "Of course I know doctors are over-worked, but I hate to take a chance!"
Well, whenever you're not sure his best is to play safe. If Tommy shows symptoms of illness, keep him away from other children

Put him to bed, and call the doctor.

What are symptoms of illness? Let's see. Suppose you ask Tommy to do something and he suddenly finds he has a pain in his stomach. A minute later he is bouncing around actively. That pain is one that can be laughed off.

When Tommy is really sick his whole demeanor will very likely show a change. He may be listless, turn away from his dinner with the explanation that he's "not hungry." He may be irritable and fussy, and melt into a crying spasm for no good cause. Perhaps his face seems flushed. Now if he complains of a pain in his stomach, the symptom is more serious.

Many children do have some fever when they are ill, and frequently they vomit. I think it is a good thing for a mother to learn to use a thermometer, so she may know what the temperature is.

Scarache is an important danger signal. It is often due to a cold infection and may be accompanied by fever. A baby too young to talk may be found crying and pulling on his ear. Another danger sign is a convulsion. This results from some irritation of the central nervous system. Accompanied by high fever, it may mark the onset of pneumonia or meningitis. Place such a child on a bed where he cannot harm himself and call the doctor at once.

The baffling thing about many childhood diseases is that they start with the symptoms of the common cold. Measles, for instance, usually begins with watery eyes, running nose, and fever, before any rash appears. Scarlet fever begins with some fever and a sore throat.

When Tommy has a cold, keep him in bed and away from other children, and call the doctor. He is best able to decide whether it may be something more serious.

New Plan May Delay Draft For Fathers

WASHINGTON, May 18 (AP) — Plans to draft several millions of men in classes deferred for physical defects, and others heretofore deemed "necessary" to industry, may operate to delay the induction of fathers.

Your Electric Cleaner will CLEAN FASTER AND BETTER if you'll empty the Dust Bag more often

In these days when time is precious, you can save your time and help your electric cleaner do a faster and better job simply by emptying the dust bag of your cleaner more often. A good plan is to empty the bag immediately after each use, for accumulated dust slows up the air flow and reduces the suction of the cleaner.

- Other Tips on How to Get Better Service from Your Electric Cleaner
- Oil the motor regularly with the type of oil recommended by the cleaner manufacturer.
 - Take care of the electric cord. Don't let it become frayed or kinked, if possible, and when wear does occur, use black friction tape to wrap the worn places.
 - Pick up hard objects, such as hair pins, buttons or other things that might damage the cleaner mechanism or clog the brush.

When your cleaner doesn't work properly, be sure to take it to a reliable electric repair shop.

Former Resident Is Married In Santa Monica

Word has been received here of the May 15 marriage of Miss Lenora Cardiff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Cardiff of Hemet, Calif., and William Elton Billings, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Billings of Big Spring.

The couple was married in the Chapel of Dawn at Santa Monica, Calif., by the Rev. Fred W. Judson, pastor of the Trinity Baptist church. The chapel was decorated with tall baskets of white gladioli, delphinium and calla lilies.

The bride was attired in a white satin gown with lace trim. Her fingertip veil was of bride illusion, and fell from a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried a colonial bouquet of white rosebuds and gladioli, centered with a white orchid.

Alla Lee Burt of Santa Monica, California, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid and was attired in a blue net formal and carried a bouquet of pink roses and sweetpeas.

The bridegroom was attended by Robert H. Dolling of Fairchild, Conn.

A reception was held in Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Brennan's home following the ceremony, and around 30 guests attended.

VEIL HAT — White daisies on Actress Jeff Donnell's smart hat have bright gold centers, as daisies should. The hat is designed to be worn either with or without the veil.

Editorial - - Congress Can Put End To Confusion

Report of Senator Kilgore, a West Virginia Democrat, chairman of a sub-committee of the Senate Military Committee, that there is a lack of unified overall production, because of overlapping agencies, should be followed by action that would remedy this dangerous condition.

The report agrees with portions of the Truman Committee report, that "confusing lines of authority extending from the White House had created conflict among top administrators and retarded all 'most' programs. The War Production Board is not a production board," the report said, and continued, "In no single phase of the war production program does centralized control exist at the present time." The strength of the report lies in the fact that it was based on testimony given at its hearings by Byrnes, McNutt and Wilson, all top administrators in their several organizations.

These agencies are creatures of the Congress, in that the Congress gave the President authority to establish them. Surely the Congress has the power to remedy this situation, and that it should be remedied goes without saying. The question is, Will the Congress do this, or will it let things rock along, at the present condition, delaying production and increasing costs.

The purpose of the report must be to show the Congress that action by that body is necessary, else there would be no sense in having a committee and a report. If the statements in the report are true, the action should be prompt. The President is constitutionally the commander in chief of the armed forces and naturally must have authority to get supplies for those forces. But when he names one man one day and another man another day, giving each a limited authority, which is sometimes conflicting, the Congress should exercise its undoubted authority to straighten the tangle.

The report should be followed by appropriate and decided action.

Maybe One In Every Pot? Backyard Chicken Raising On Boom

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE AP Features Writer

WASHINGTON—The war boom may not put "a chicken in every pot" but a lot more people are going to become better acquainted with chickens on the hoof.

The meat-rationing pinch has caused a big increase in backyard raising. Requests for information on poultry tending are pouring into the Department of Agriculture at a rate more than double that of pre-rationing days.

Keeping a small Victory flock of chickens for fresh eggs and poultry meat is a good way for families in small towns and the suburbs of cities to augment their food supplies. This year there has been a heavy trend to broiler raising.

Government poultry specialists estimate that 15 hens and 50 other chickens for meat and replacement purposes will produce 372 pounds of solid food in a year. Eighty pounds would be the meat of young chickens, 22 pounds in steers and roasters, and 270 pounds in eggs.

You can make a start in backyard poultry-raising by purchasing hatchery eggs, day-old chicks, started chicks and partly grown or well developed pullets. Ordinarily, the two latter methods are preferred because it usually is inconvenient for the city dweller to hatch eggs or raise chicks.

It is advisable to obtain chickens from a reliable breeder who is known to have healthy stock bred for high egg production. From 8 to 15 birds should provide the average family with a liberal supply of eggs for most of the year.

The more common breeds are suitable for a backyard Victory flock. Among these are Plymouth Rocks, Rhode Island Reds, Wyandottes, New Hampshire and Leghorns. The Leghorn is a good egg-layer but a poor meat producer. Plymouth Rocks, Rhode Island Reds and New Hampshire are good all-purpose breeds.

Chickens should have proper food, good housing and careful watching to prevent the spread of disease. Most backyard poultry keepers find it more practical to use commercially-mixed feeds than to mix their own. Grain may be fed in a litter but a more sanitary method is to feed it in hoppers.

A large space is not needed for a small flock. Laying hens can be kept indoors the year round. They will lay well and keep healthy if they have comfortable, well-ventilated houses and are fed suitable rations containing cod liver oil or some other source of Vitamin D.

The sun porch is an important development in backyard chicken housing. This should be about the same size as the house with a wire, cinder or concrete floor which keeps the chickens off the soil and is easily cleaned.

Poultry specialists say sick birds should be removed from the flock as a precaution against loss. In case of an outbreak of disease, consult a veterinarian or communicate with your state agricultural college, giving a description of the symptoms and conditions under which flock is kept.

A Victory Garden and a Victory flock of chickens, well confined, make a good backyard combination. The chickens will consume garden waste as well as kitchen scraps, which will help to reduce the feed cost.

HIGHWAY TO HER HEART

Chapter 8

Cleve and the prospector were talking things over. They'd walked down along the sandbar, stood now looking at the cradle the man had rigged up for separating the sand and flecks of gold on this bar. He was showing Cleve some nuggets. Interested in spite of herself, Penny joined them.

"Real gold!" she exclaimed. "How thrilling!"

"Tom Innes, the prospector, smiled at her somewhat shyly. "All these bars have gold," he said, "but nobody ever got rich working 'em. You just make wages, that's all."

Cleve said to Penny. "I should have brought my camera."

Innes said, "Why don't you folks stop here for lunch? I got plenty of fresh meat on hand. You're sure welcome."

Cleve thanked him, explaining they were in a hurry to get on. Penny told him about Bill.

"I heard all about that plane wreck," Innes said. "I think you two can make it all right. All you got to watch is the river."

"Bad?" Cleve asked.

"Bad in spots," Innes informed him.

On a sheet of paper supplied by Penny, he drew a rough map. "Le Frene's shack is located about here on a small creek that flows into the Peace. Before you reach that creek," Innes explained, "you got to travel about sixty miles. There's one carrying-place at Rock Portage. Stop there an' pack your canoe and stuff over it. It'll take about four hours."

"Thanks," said Cleve. "That makes everything a lot clearer. Any bad water between here and the portage?"

Innes drew up his shoulders in an expressive gesture. "Plenty of it. But you'll be all right if you look sharp. The only danger is rocks."

"We'll make it," said Cleve.

"Keep in clear water as much as you can," the prospector advised them.

Cleve nodded. Penny took the map and buttoned it into the pocket of her shirt with the other.

They set out again in the knowledge that it wasn't going to be as easy as one might think. They must be alert every minute. Penny was glad she'd brought along the head-net that protected her face and neck from mosquitoes, also the pair of heavy gloves she wore.

Cleve was cheerful. "I don't think we need a guide," he said optimistically. "You never know what you can do until you try."

Penny agreed with him. She was sitting there watching Cleve handling their canoe with admirable skill. Exposure to the sun and air brought a rich, healthy glow to his face. Unconsciously, she was comparing him to Powell Ward. She wondered what sort of girl Cleve would marry—if he ever did.

At four later they stopped and drew the canoe ashore. It had begun to rain. Hurriedly, Penny put on her slicker. Cleve drew a tarpaulin around his shoulders. The overcast drifted away across distant peaks and suddenly the sun blazed out once more.

As they re-embarked, Penny laughed. "You've been doing fine, Cleve. You need a rest. Let me take the paddle."

But when she reached for it, he pushed her arm gently aside.

"No, tot. Not yet. Your turn may come soon enough."

In retaliation, she rumbled his hair.

"You think I'm soft," she posted. "You've an idea I can't take it."

"That isn't the idea at all. I want to make it as easy for you as I can."

"You're spoiling me."

"In an hour you'd have blisters on your hands."

"Damn it," said Penny. "If I can't cultivate a few blisters for Bill, I'm not worthy of being his sister."

Cleve gave in reluctantly and took Penny's place in the stern. Picking up Wolf, Cleve showed his teeth, imitating a growl. The malemute pup reached up to lick Cleve's chin.

"You're too affectionate," Cleve mumbled loud enough for Penny to hear. "You certainly don't take after your mistress."

"That's enough from you," retorted Penny, gaze fixed excitedly on the rushing mill-race of the central channel.

They were speeding along. Here and there were whirlpools and tufted, lacy streaks of water that had to be avoided. The river itself, not the canoe, seemed to be moving. It rushed down upon you, went singing past. Spray rose like white mist, here and there, and floated away. With the sun shining through it, it was gorgeous with all the colors of a rainbow.

Glancing back, Penny saw that both Cleve and the malemute were taking a nap. They had confidence in her. Suddenly she was rounding a bend straight into what looked like a series of cascades tumbling and roaring ventrally from shore to shore.

Hollywood Sights and Sounds—Convict Gets Fancy, And It Means Costlier Film

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Rogar Touhy, the gangster, wasn't thinking about $5,000 limits on movie sets when he made his escape from Stateville prison, Illinois, last year. He could have been a lot more considerate about it.

Lee Marcus, producing the story of Touhy, almost weeps when he hears about convicts who, with some recent regard for their movie biographers' budgets, escape in garbage cans or dig simple little holes under walls. Because Touhy got fancy, the studio had to spend a lot of money taking the gangster (Freston Foster) through a whole series of sets: the prison kitchen, the garbage platform, the yard, Tower 2, the schoolhouse, the powerhouse, the loading tunnel, the storeroom, and finally the wall at Tower 3. . . .

Robert Taylor, for "Russia," is taking lessons in symphony conducting from Albert Coates, who is also playing the piano for the film. . . .

Walter Lawrence is here of a story of classic frustration. Young Lawrence is an inventive fellow who makes a sideline of movie work and can be found now on the set of "Sherlock Holmes Faces Death." One of his inventions is an amplified steam whistle—a great big noise which, he insists, could be heard over a radius of 50 miles and put a crimp in the air raid siren business, especially if they let him mount it on top of some tall building downtown. They won't. Furthermore they won't let him blow it. Not once, just for practice.

I doubt that it means a new era of inter-studio friendliness and love, but here is 20th Century Fox putting out a little picture that will boost a Warner Bros. feature. The featurette is "Three Sisters of the Movies," all about the Bronte sisters who wrote books. The picture is intended as a preview ad for Charlotte Bronte's "Jane Eyre," produced by 20th. But Warner Bros. also has a movie called "Devotion"—based on the lives of the Brontes. . . .

Aubrey Mather first hit Hollywood six years ago in the road company of a Leslie Howard play, and he then had offers from all the studios. They wanted him to drop out of the play at once and get to work in pictures. Mather said he'd finish his tour and come back.

"The tour ended three weeks later," he says. "I rushed back to Hollywood. None of the people who had offered me those choice

Washington Daybook Can Byrnes Hold 'Solid South'?

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—Suppose I just give it to you for what it's worth, without emphasizing too much that I think it may be worth something. It came from a political observer, now retired, but formerly high enough on the Democratic rolls to speculate with some authority.

Suppose, he said, President Roosevelt should run again with James F. Byrnes, now the "little president," as his vice presidential candidate, and with the understanding that if the war were over before the fourth term expired, he (President Roosevelt) would resign in favor of the ex-congressman, ex-senator, and ex-associate justice of the supreme court.

There is an idea to toy with. By picking Byrnes as his running mate, the President probably could bring all the recalcitrant southern states back into the fold because the little gentleman from South Carolina rides high with his southern colleagues.

Why did Byrnes step down out of that $20,000-a-year-for-life job on the supreme court, if there were no greater future promised than being trouble-shooter for the administration? If the President does run for a fourth term in the midst of a global war, whom else could he select for a running mate and why?

I've tried those questions on several bigwigs in both parties hereabouts and all I've gotten, aside from a worried look or a staring eye, has been the counter-question, why didn't Roosevelt pick Byrnes in 1927? The answers to that are probably three: (1) Byrnes was too valuable as floor manager and smoother-outer of Democratic convention ailments to be used for anything else; (2) We weren't in the war then and Byrnes had crossed the "New Deal" on home front issues often enough to raise the probability that he wouldn't always string along on everything that the Administration proposed; and (3) Byrnes probably wouldn't have had the job under any circumstances. (It's pretty well established that he had his heart set on the supreme court post.)

There's also the fourth point made by some observers that President Roosevelt felt that Henry Wallace would help with midwest and farm votes—which were more important than the still-solid South.

It is, of course, too early to make any predictions about 1944, but the powers that be in other parties already are drawing the lines. The fact that Byrnes, who didn't earn his political spurs by being a yes-man, could probably win enough confidence in the south to stem any threatened rebellion there, is not to be ignored.

One thing is becoming more apparent every day: the White House is not averse to having the fourth term issue discussed openly. A word from the President to some of those who have been shouting it from the mikes and house-tops would have put a stop to it weeks ago.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

The tradition of American cavalry traces back to Indian warfare days and although modern armies are largely motorized today, the cavalry still plays an important role. Sturdy, well trained horses and excellent equipment and trappings are necessary.

When men are in the saddle for hours, their saddles, saddle rolls and other equipment must be made to stand the wear. Complete with carbine and helmets, the equipment for the cavalryman runs into hundreds of dollars. You can help provide this with your War Bond purchases. Air Instructor Is Sentenced On Liquor Charge
CHICKASHA, Okla., May 18 (UP)—William C. Bryan, instructor at the Cimarron Army Flying School near Oklahoma City, pleaded guilty in county court here today to transporting liquor illegally and was fined $50 and given a 30-day suspended jail sentence.
Bryan and his companion, Gilbert Jackson, Phillips, Tex., were slightly injured Saturday night when their plane was wrecked in a forced landing on a farm near here. Six quarts of rum were broken in the landing.
Jackson pleaded guilty to a charge of drunkenness and was fined $5 in Chickasha police court. The men were reported en route from Borger, Tex., to Calumet, Okla., at the time of the crash.

Crash Fatal To 10 Fliers

EPHRATA, Wash., May 18 (UP)—Ten army fliers—five officers and five enlisted men—were killed early yesterday in a ground collision between two four-engined bombers at the Ephrata army air base. Five others escaped.

The base, in a report released today, said one of the bombers collided with a sister ship while preparing to take off on a routine night flying mission. The second plane burst into flame.

Lieut. Frederic M. Paps, air base public relations officer, said the dead were:

- First Lieut. Lloyd H. Nygard, Big Fork, Mont.; Second Lieut. Donald Wright, Seattle; Leland W. Crumbaugh, Warrensburg, Mo.; Billy J. Evans, El Reno, Okla.; and Daniel H. Stone, Jr., Brooklyn, N. Y.; Staff Sgt. Ray Cook, Alma, Okla.; Sgt. George Sevkarian, Chelsea, Mass.; and Kenneth L. Johnson, Searsboro, Iowa; Pfc. Mark D. Glynn, Tampa, Fla.; and Pfc. Edward F. Pych, Alden, N. Y.

West Coast Embarkation Port Has Expanded Five-Fold Since 1941

By FRANK CAREY
PORT OF EMBARKATION, San Francisco, May 18. (AP)—A five-fold expansion of facilities and personnel has taken place at this port since Pearl Harbor to meet the titanic task of shipping men to Pacific areas and keeping them and lend-lease Allies supplied with everything from cannon to carrots.

This was disclosed to newsmen on a transcontinental tour of war ports during the first demonstration of port facilities to the press since the beginning of the war, and port officers said some installations had literally mushroomed from the last two years.

Although centered in San Francisco, the port includes the component ports of Los Angeles and Portland, and its facilities embrace not only ships and piers and great warehouses along the waterfront, but inland holding areas to shelter cargo overflows, locations for the final training of soldiers going overseas, and miles upon miles of railroad lines.

Directed by the transportation corps of the army service forces, this great funnel spout aimed westward at the Axis illustrates the activities of the 120,000 officers and men of the transportation corps throughout the country who handled all supply by rail, motor and ship to our fronts around the globe.

Maj. Gen. Frederick G. Ibreath, commanding general of the port, says that every man who goes overseas means the initial shipment of more than six tons of ammunition, food and other supplies, and that thereafter, more than a ton a month must be shipped for each man in the field.

Pigs To Be Given To Boys On Friday

Eight sow pigs and one boar will be received here Friday noon for distribution to as many boys who are participating in the Sears-Roebuck Co. pig club contest.

Company officials also are expected here and will have boys and their fathers as special guests at a luncheon. Distribution of the animals will be accomplished during the afternoon.

E. M. Regenbrecht, state extension service swine husbandman, said that the sows would come from W. A. Williams at Vega in Oldham county and the boar from C. L. Franz at Turkey in Hall county. All are registered. Regenbrecht is planning on being here for the occasion.

New Officers At Bombardier School

Two officer arrivals were announced by public relations of the Big Spring Bombardier School Monday.

Second Lieut. Marvin B. Johnson, Abilene, reported from Chicago and 2nd Lieut. Vernon E. Benson, Wausaw, Neb., reported from Randolph Field.

A physical disability discharge was issued to Cpl. Richard L. Soens, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Soens, Hinckley, Minn.

Fighter Groups In Competition

RANDOLPH FIELD, May 18. (AP)—The second squadron of Randolph Field's single engine fighter group outpointed the first squadron 137-126 here in competitive combat training air maneuvers which the army said were the first held at an army air forces training field.

Army officials said such maneuvers probably would be conducted on training fields throughout the country. They were originated by 2d Lt. Frederic C. Gray of Abilene, Tex., and Maj. L. G. Griffin of Anderson, S. C., group commander, and assistant group commander of Randolph fighter units.

Greater Food Output To Be Proposed

HOT SPRINGS, Va., May 18. (AP)—United States delegates brought to the United Nations food conference opening here today plans for expanding domestic agricultural production to a level which would provide all citizens with a health-promoting and life-extending diet.

Those plans call for sharp increases in the production of such vitamin-rich foods as milk, eggs, poultry, vegetables and fruits.

Prepared in conjunction with the National Resources Planning Board's program for expanding industrial activity and employment, the projected program envisions a productive output by 1954 which would provide all persons with an adequate diet as measured by the National Research Council.

Nutritionists of the agriculture department estimate that more than a third of all Americans have an inadequate diet, because of ignorance of good food rules, a shortage of buying power, and, in some cases, an insufficient supply of vital foods.

Although the sessions do not open until tomorrow, some 200 steel-helmeted soldiers already are on guard to keep intruders from the conference grounds.

Newsmen, barred from all except opening and closing plenary sessions, will make their headquarters in the Homestead's casino, transformed into a press room.

Private Debt Down, As US Total Grows

WASHINGTON, May 18. (AP)—The public debt reached a new high in 1942, climbing $45,000,000,000 while private debt declined $3,000,000,000 during the same period, the commerce department reported today.

The changes in the debt structure, which stemmed chiefly from economic effects of the war program, the department said, saw the net public debt rise to $110,000,000,000, while the net private debt dropped to $113,000,000,000.

Midwest Refineries Put On Quota Basis

WASHINGTON, May 18. (AP)—All refinery operations in the middle west area (district 2) will be placed on a quota basis today by Petroleum Administrator Ickes to meet "a developing crude oil shortage."

On the basis of these quotas all refineries will operate at a level of at least 80 per cent of the normal rate for the July 1941-December 1942 period, it was estimated.

BULL IN A CAR

LOS ANGELES (UP)—James Brown, 46, had the misfortune to be driving through the city with a Holstein bull calf in the luggage compartment of his car when a blackout suddenly came on. It was the first war manifestation the Holstein bull calf had ever seen and it began bawling so lustily that it attracted the attention of Deputy Sheriff Claude Everie. The latter decided there could only be something sinister in a man driving through a blackout with a bawling bull calf in the baggage compartment of his car and booked them both on suspicion.

CHILD ESCAPES DEATH

PAXINOS, Pa., May 18. (AP)—Three-year-old Kathleen McGrath lay between the rails last night while a locomotive and 14 loaded coal cars that killed her mother and two-year-old sister passed over her. Coroner Sidney Galloway, who investigated the deaths, said Kathleen escaped with superficial injuries.

THE WAR TODAY: Aleutians Are Important, If Remote

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

The prediction by army officers in Washington that Japanese-held Kiska Island is likely to be the next objective of our forces in the Aleutians—after Attu—has brought a request that I deal again with this obscure sector of our global war.

Because they're an out-of-the-way spot, the Aleutians seem a long way off.

Still, the Aleutians are important, if mysterious. Were the Japs allowed to retain their hold on these westernmost islands of the group, the day might come when America would have to pay heavily for it.

The Japanese last June occupied Attu—The islands for which our invading force is now reported to be fighting fiercely—and Kiska, which lies some 180 miles to the southeast. These little volcanic knobs are on the western end of the Aleutians, which sweep out from the Alaskan peninsula in a curve like Hailey's comet, fifteen hundred miles long.

Most of the Aleutians are of small size to man or beast. They don't even grow trees, but confine their activities to producing some of the filthiest weather the world knows. Fogs exist the year around; gales constantly lash them; it rains 250 days in the year.

However, part of the islands are susceptible to development as submarine and air bases. The most important, of course, is Unalaska next to the Alaskan peninsula. That's where our Dutch Harbor is, and the island has vital defenses for the protection of the approaches to that part of the American continent.

The islands held by the Japs are on the other end of this tail of islands. Kiska is the best of the lot, for this has spaces which can be developed as air-fields. Attu also could be used for emergency airplane landings after a lot of work in preparing the ground.

The Japanese objective in occupying these islands probably was mainly defensive. Attu and Kiska are in the path of shipping and airplanes, and if developed as bases could be used to hamper any operations we might undertake against Japanese territory from Alaska, or try to stymie our sea and air communications with Russia.

These defensive bases also mainland or even northwestern might be used against the Alaskan United States if the Japs were permitted to develop sufficient strength. Certainly it's a potential menace which couldn't be overlooked.

One would assume that when we have reclaimed these westernmost islands we will develop them as bases. They would be valuable in defense, and they would be fine stepping stones both for our operations against the Japs and for communications with Russia. Attu, by the way, is only about 700 odd miles from the important Jap base of Paramushiro, just south of Kamchatka.

Pleads Innocent In Slaying Case

TULSA, Okla., May 18. (AP)—Mrs. Ella B. Howard, 44-year-old divorcee, pleaded innocent at her arraignment on a charge of manslaughter in the hotel-room slaying of the wife of a wealthy Tulsa oil man March 25.

In a brief hearing yesterday, her attorney, Walter Scott of Fort Worth, entered the plea. District Judge Oran A. Shaw continued her $10,000 bond.

Mrs. Howard was charged with murder in the fatal shooting in her Mayo hotel room of Mrs. T. Karl Simmons, widely known horse-woman and wife of a Tulsa oil operator. The charge was reduced to manslaughter at her preliminary hearing in common pleas court.

4 TIMELY SUGGESTIONS that will make your trip more convenient—and will help bus travel do its big wartime job

- 1 If week-end jams you'd help unravel—Then pick a mid-week day to travel!

Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays are the best wartime travel times—and you'll leave more seats for the armed forces on week-ends.
- 2 Don't wait until mid-summer's here—Go now before the crowds appear

You'll help "balance-up" wartime transportation by going before or after July and August when travel is always heaviest.
- 3 Now when you take a trip some place Please travel light and save some space

"Budget" your baggage when you travel nowadays—take along less luggage than usual, to save extra handling and extra space.
- 4 Advice that's good these hectic days—Avoid like sin all holidays!

There's no place like home on holidays—by avoiding travel at such rush periods you'll avoid overcrowding wartime transportation.
