

KING COTTON RULES

Week Of May 16 To 21 Designed As National Cotton Week To Emphasize Values Of Material

Monday users in National Cotton Week... Paris is making more use of cotton than in any past year.

The great Paris dressmakers gave more prominence than ever to cotton at their latest fashion show.

WORTH: Among the cotton creations featured by this distinguished house were: A cotton lace jacket for evening wear.

JENNY: The most striking cotton outfit shown by this house was a dark blue suit worn with a cotton plique blouse.

VERA BOREA: Several items featured in this collection need to be mentioned. There were white webbed cotton blouses, white worn cotton pajamas worn with short blue jackets.

LYOLENE: This Russian-Paris designer who had such a success in the United States not long ago, offered a collection of Rodier fabric designed, oyster white, coats for summer, to be worn with blue and white, and pink and white, gingham dresses.

When Summer Comes One of the most prominent of the American style experts located in Paris made a special tour of all the fashionable seaside resorts last September to disseminate the latest trends in the vogue, as experience has established that the fashions here at that time will usually be most popular in America the following summer.

"I am fortunate in being able to give you a digest of this investigation. For morning wear the fancy pajamas which were giving place to mannish white duck trousers and cotton shirts.

"As to colors for actual beach wear, white had the lead. Various shades of green came next, followed by light and dark blues, pastel pinks and white in combination with other colors.

"The fussy accessories and little jewelry were seen. Attention was centered on fabrics and colors, for all lines were tailored and pure decorations eliminated.

"Handkerchiefs scarves or the same material as the dress are worn over the shoulders and knotted in front, or wound around the head. Corsetry top coats, also mannish, usually for beige, and cotton dress pajamas in white or navy blue, also had their innings.

"Some people think that cotton is a rather exclusive product of the southern United States. This short history reveals its antiquity. Cotton was high fashion long before Christianity was founded.

In the statutes of Manu, rules for the guidance of the Guild of Cotton Weavers were laid down in 300 B. C. "Incredibly light muslins" were used to drape images of Buddha in India. The ancient mummies of Thebes were "but misty veils" in their shrouds.

"Early names for cotton, among them calico, lawn, percale, chintz, dimity, gingham, and seersucker, were inspirations. No other fabric names conjure up such images of cleanliness, quaint simplicity, and freshness. They are redolent of rural life.

"The cotton story goes triumphantly on and on. The new 1932 many-colored plaques, meshes, corruys, organdies, dotted Swisses, tweeds, homespuns, terry cloths, batistes, and laces, to name only a few, are a definite part of the fashion picture. The Washington Bicentennial gives the legitimate excuse for wearing calicoes and percales of chintz design.

State Highway Problems Topic Of C. E. Thomas

LAMESA—At a political banquet held here early in the week, Clyde E. Thomas of Big Spring, candidate for the Democratic nomination to the state senate from the 30th district, dealt almost exclusively with highway problems.

"Beginning my campaign early in January, I was the first in the State to announce that since the Highway Department has taken over certain roads and designated them as State Highways that about $3,000,000 of the Highway funds should be used to take care of the annual demands for the bond issues upon these highways and thus relieve the counties of their heavy taxation. This plan will result in a reduction of the county tax rate, the county tax rate itself of anywhere up to 30 per cent, in nearly all the counties.

"But there are some counties that have not yet issued county road bonds, and have not rendered unto the public the road service heretofore given by other counties that have built substantial highways. It is true that as a general rule, these smaller counties do not have a county tax rate as high as the counties who have gone in heavily for roads.

particular reference to these counties, upon what I shall call the New Highway Policy. I don't like to refer to it as a New Highway Policy, for the politicians that have been running our state heretofore have had no policy; $45,000,000 have been spent every year as a patch work proposition.

"We are now face to face squarely with the problem of formulating a state highway policy. The politicians are not going to do this work for us. The matter has got to be discussed among the people and by the people and their voice has got to determine the future course.

"For those counties that will receive their portion of the $3,000,000 to take care of their county bonds upon public highways, I say that the highway department should go in to these counties, immediately, and spend all of its resources upon constructive state highways purely from the gasoline and license funds and without the direct assistance of these counties save and except the furnishing of the right of way; and connect up and complete, in the main at least, a state highway system out of its patch. It now has on hand.

"Frankly, I am against any cutting of a melon by way of slicing the highway funds and spreading it out over the counties according to population. There is no statemanship in such a general levy. Such a division is confiscation of the resources of the highway department. Such a division, to counties by population giving unto those counties that have not shouldered the burden as to highway building, would have no principle or policy to justify the same.

"I believe in an effective highway commission; I believe in a state highway system, controlled, managed and financed by the commission itself, and maintained out of the gasoline funds, and without assistance from the county tax rate whatsoever.

"I do not believe, however, in giving to the highway commission the absolute control as to the place and direction of the state highways. I don't believe the commission should have control over Dawson, or Hockley, or Cochran, or Terry, or Lynn, or Floyd counties and have the absolute control as to whether your highway should miss your small communities or not. An unrestrained highway commission at Austin could and would in many instances kill your small communities, ruin your small merchants, and tend to dislodge your centers of community interest, by building the state highway around these communities, or missing the towns by a few miles, leaving, as testimonials of such centralized power, abandoned farms, and desolate schools.

"I believe the commissioners' court should be duty bound to furnish the right of way and determine where that right of way should go through the county. In this method the communities would have voice through their own officers living among them, in their own immediate affairs—matters vital to their own existence.

"The highway department then under such conditions would not have the right to split across a little 40-acre farm cutting it into two little triangular plots and thus ruining all that this poor farmer may have. The commission couldn't make the farms exist for five roads; but the roads would exist for the small farmer, the little merchant—the fellow who only wants a fair chance to make a living without being robbed. In other words, I am for a local management as to the right of way.

American Crime Stills His Baby Voice

INTO eternity while his hands were clean, his baby face unmarked by life's worries, his precious heart unblemished by his experiences Charles August Lindbergh, Jr., has gone. The most irreparable of all losses has been suffered by America's most noted and most beloved young couple. Forever their hearts will ache and a void that cannot be filled has been created.

The suffering American crime has inflicted upon Lindy and Anne is no less hard to bear than that of any mother and father of any child that has been taken from them by such heinous methods.

The fact that Little Lindy was the world's most famous baby only serves to impress more deeply and more universally upon the American people who still believe in law and order the dangerous state into which their indifference has brought them. How an enforcement of law and order is a political platform. But those in the pews and those in the councils of government do little about it.

America has gotten into the habit of considering itself the greatest government in the world—a government so constructed in its beginning to forever insure protection to life, preservation of liberty and pursuit of happiness.

There were many attractive and useful gifts for the young honoree. Fresh homemade cookies and sandwiches were passed around by Lottie Lee Williams, Emma Ruth Stripling and Imogene Lay.

Five Million Decision Rendered By Court

AUSTIN, (UP)—A decision valued at between $5,000,000 and $8,000,000 was handed down by the state supreme court here in the case of the Rio Bravo Oil company vs. J. F. Weed et al, from Jefferson county.

The court held that title to property abutting a railroad right of way extends to the middle of the right of way, just as title to a city lot extends to the middle of the street. Weed and others had leased abutting property to the Gulf company.

Rights to the disputed strip, over which the Texas and New Orleans Railway company held an easement, were also claimed by the Rio Bravo Oil company which had drilled on the land.

Under agreement, the Rio Bravo company will pay the Gulf company for the oil recovered during litigation of the dispute less the cost of production, a sum estimated at more than $5,000,000.

Religion Is Best Cure Of Depression, Declares Candidate

MERCHANTS' BOOSTER DAY SET FOR MAY 25 TO BE FEATURED BY CONCERTS OF NOTED MUSICIANS

Merchants' Booster Day, May 25, being announced today in the Herald, will be one of the most festive, money-saving, bargain days in the history of Big Spring.
Many novel features, a variety of entertainment, special merchandise events in all of the stores, and rare bargains, will be given at all hours of the day.

The outstanding entertainment of the day will be given at the Merchant's Free Matinee at the Ritz Theatre at 5 p. m. Most of the merchants of the city will give tickets for the show which will be given with a purchase of one dollar or more, in their store, which will admit the holder to the show absolutely free.

Paul Christensen and his Orchestra, with his Radio Night Club are being brought from Radio Station WKY especially for the Merchant's Matinee. The show will last for one hour. This orchestra is one of the foremost of the country, it has played for the "talkies," made records and is the station orchestra for WKY in Oklahoma City.

T. S. Currie said that as a member of the tax committee he wanted to clear one thing: "I don't think Mr.
Spence meant to say he hadn't been invited to meet with the committee. He was busy and we were busy and that is why we didn't get together. We went over the budget and the audit. We wanted to get some information and make recommendations. But we could not do this until we had conferred with the city manager. We didn't know that the capital outlay was and did not know the details about some other items. I recommend that a committee of 12 men from among the largest taxpayers be appointed to go over the budget with the commission and help it."

Mr. Talbot said "that it what this public hearing is for. You had as much opportunity to get the facts as anyone else."

Mr. Talbot said the whole commission would meet next Tuesday evening and that public was invited to attend the session. He said Mr. Currie's recommendation for appointment of 12 men as advisors would be presented to the mayor.

Frakes

corporation governor the state has ever known.

"Corporations are not paying their just and honest debts," he charged.

Favors Censor Board After asserting that one-half of current picture shows are "no good," Frakes explained he would favor appointment of a state board of censors to censor all picture shows.

Frakes would reverse procedure in connection with placing of blame for bank failures. "I would promote legislation to make the president of a failed bank guilty until he proves his innocence, and place him in a jail cell until he proves it," he declared.

"Some of my opponents will be scattering money right and left, but I ask you to examine that money closely. See if you don't find a trace of oil on it," he said, and was applauded.

Frakes announced he would improve state governmental efficiency by enactment of laws permitting consolidation of state, county and city offices, the elimination of needless bureaus, and the removal of office of surplus employees—"pie-eaters," he called them.

He will speak tonight in San Angelo.
