

Actor Captures Tech Audience

by BILL MCGEE

Toreador Amusements Editor

A vast stage. A chair. A patina blanc French Provincial table bearing a lone candlestick. And a man.

This was the sight seen by 1,500 people when the curtain rose at the Municipal Auditorium Tuesday night.

Someone nearby said, "Ho! No one but Rathbone could get away with that."

And he did. His eloquence filled the nearly-empty stage and enchanted his audience.

And it was his audience. From the time of his walk-on, when he was greeted with sustained applause, until his Shakespearean "good night," the grand old master of the stage held all in the magic of his voice.

Prefacing poetry readings with the account of a wise man who told his son he believed only in God, human folly and laughter, Rathbone said, "...and since the first two are incomprehensible, let's dwell on the third. . . laugh with me and at me for a while."

His "readings" were not readings at all, but were memorized selections from Edgar Allen Poe, A. E. Housman, Dylan Thomas and Robert Browning.

Rathbone's famous lyrical voice lent new dramatic qualities to Poe's "Annabelle Lee" and Thomas' "Hands."

He interspersed the poetic selections with introductory paragraphs often containing humorous personal anecdotes. In regard to his swashbuckling Hollywood phase, he said, "In those sword-fights, I could have killed Errol Flynn anytime I wished."

The second portion of his program, entitled "An Adventure in Loving," traced poetically the relationship of a young man and his true-love from "perhaps 18 years old" to their golden wedding anniversary. Selections by Shelly, Shakespeare, Ogden Nash and Elizabeth Barrett were recited.

"Let's give Shakespeare back to Shakespeare," Rathbone said to introduce the final portion of his show. He lamented the modernization and psychoanalysis of the Bard's characters by contemporary actors and directors.

"Shakespeare never heard of Freud," he said, "so let's leave mother-love to Tennessee Williams and out of 'Hamlet.'"

After three monologues from "Hamlet," selections from "Macbeth" and Romeo's death scene, Rathbone verbally closed the curtain with Prospero's soliloquy from "The Tempest."

The audience reluctantly roused itself from the Rathbone spell to break into unrestrained applause.

At an informal chat Tuesday afternoon, Basil Rathbone had expressed some strong opinions concerning the theatre:

"Shakespeare might say today, 'Get rid of the improvements, play it as it was written.'"

On movies: "It's as unexciting as anything I can think of. . . monotonous, hard work, uninspiring. . . and there is nothing to compensate for the lack of an audience."

On television: "I don't if I can help it."

On "The King of Kings": "That's one character you just don't play around with."

On acting: "The entertainer develops personality; the actor disguises it."

On advice to the young actor: "I can give no advice. There is no place for you to go. You can only learn all you can while in college and be lucky enough to break in. We need a national theatre."

On talent: "Wagner, Dylan Thomas, Shakespeare. . . such talent is a divine gift."

On dramatic theorists: "I should hate to see one produce 'Hamlet' without any other experience. It would be a crashing bore."

Club Extends Deadline For 'Handsome' Race

Tech's Most Handsome Man will be elected by popular vote at Club Scarlet, mock night club, Nov. 18.

This annual "night out at Tech" is sponsored by Theta Sigma Phi, national women's journalism fraternity.

Due to misunderstanding the deadline for entries in the Handsome Man contest and skits for the Club Scarlet program has been extended until Friday at 9 a.m. Entry blanks have been placed in the BSO boxes in the Ad Bldg, next to the west stairs.

"You are urged to pick up these entry blanks and submit them to the Journalism Bldg, as soon as possible," Freda McVay, president of Theta Sigma Phi, said.

Entries already received for the Handsome Man contest and sponsoring organizations are the following: Ben Faulkner, Sigma Chi; Wendell Barnett, Kappa Kappa Gamma; Wayne Underwood, Kappa Alpha Theta; Bill Allert, Sigma Kappa; David Rankin, Knapp Hall; Myles Sadler, Gamma Phi Beta; Tom Link, Pi Beta Phi; Robby Robinson, Delta Delta Delta; and Cary Marshall, Horn Hall.

The program of five-minute acts includes a duo by Gordon Hall, a song and soft shoe comedy by Sigma Kappa, a skit by Sigma Chi, a skit by Zeta Tau Alpha, a skit by Gamma Phi Beta, a comedy skit by Pi Beta Phi, a skit by Kappa Alpha Theta, a skit by Kappa Kappa Gamma and a minstrel act by Delta Delta Delta.

Red checked tablecloths, candlelight and juke box music will give Club Scarlet its night club atmosphere. Admission is $1 and entitles the ticket holder to one vote for the Most Handsome Man.

Tech Hosts Area Bands Saturday

In a musical tribute to American veterans, 19 West Texas high school bands will join the 230-piece Big Red band during half-time activities at the Tech-Boston College football game Saturday.

The Veteran's Day program will consist of 1,369 bandmen and twirlers — the largest gathering of musicians to participate in the annual Texas Tech Band Day.

In a salute to all branches of the armed forces, the band will play the traditional songs of the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps. This number will feature the twirlers of each band.

Featuring piccolos and trumpets, the bands will then form a giant USA on the field as they play "God Bless America," and "Stars and Stripes Forever."

Marching into a double T formation, the bands will then play the Matador Song and Tech Fight Song in a tribute to Tech.

Area bands to participate in Saturday's halftime show include Littlefield, Plains, Stinnett, Whiteface, Kress, Ropesville, Shallower, Childress, Jayton, Idalou, New Deal, Lockney, Slaton, Tom S. Lubbock, Crane, Wilson, Andrews, O'Donnell and Floydada.

WASHINGTON

President Kennedy said Wednesday he will ask additional defense funds next year to maintain the U.S. military position.

Kennedy told his news conference that the United States is obliged to remain the strongest military force on the earth.

And, as he has before, he declared his confidence in this country's present position, saying he would trade it with no other nation on the globe.

In reference to his recent order that preparations be made for nuclear testing in the atmosphere, if this is deemed necessary, Kennedy said this is in order to keep from being fooled by the Russians.

Kennedy said that while the United States negotiated in good faith at the conference table with the Soviet Union on the possibility of a test ban treaty, the Russians were getting ready for the series of monster explosions they have unleashed in the atmosphere since Sept. 1.

"If they fooled us once, it is their fault," Kennedy said. "If they fool us twice, it is our fault."

AUSTIN

Three Negro students at the University of Texas filed suit in federal court Wednesday asking complete racial desegregation of the school's dormitories.

The suit names as defendants Chancellor Harry H. Ransom; President Joseph R. Smiley; F. C. McConnell, director of housing and food services; and Miss Jane Greer, manager of women's residence halls.

The suit was brought as a class action on behalf of other students at the university, the petition said, because "the class is so numerous as to make it impracticable to bring all members thereof before the court," and because a common question of law is involved for all of the school's Negro students.

An estimated 300 Negroes attend the university.

ECUADOR

Air Force jets attacked Ecuador's legislative palace Wednesday and forced an army-backed jurist to drop his claim to the presidency. Minutes after the attack, radio stations and loudspeakers announced that Camillo Gallegos Toledo, Supreme Court chief and a political centrist, had resigned.

Army Units had supported him to take over the job left vacant by the resignation of crisis-ridden President Jose Maria Velasco Ibarra.

The air force disagreed with the army choice and sent three jet fighters with weapons blazing over the legislative palace.

My suggestion that classes are interfering with the splendid Fine Arts Festival met with stony silence on the part of the powers-that-be. Those assignments will just have to be put off another week—and perhaps I can get by with a few more cuts. As yet, I've not seen one program that wasn't exceptionally good. Laurels bea-coup to the Union and all concerned for making the sixth Arts Festival the highlight of the fall semester and the best yet.

Meddling for the moment with the editorial page which Tuesday bore cries of outraged protest against a lagging school spirit, I offer a cure: Put the band where it can be heard. The most memorable minute of the game was during the band's intricate half-time maneuvers when for a few seconds—just a few horns' were turned toward the East stands and I could hear the music! Bands are to be heard, too! Put the mighty Red Wave in the West stands so students can hear it — and watch field-side spirit perk up.

Glad to hear some unusual sounds issuing from the snack-bar area of the Student Union—there's now a Brubeck-Desmond recording on the juke box. To whatever committee in charge you'll be surprised how quickly good jazz can catch on when it's offered.

"Hamlet"—Sir Laurence Olivier's movie masterpiece — is scheduled for showings at 4 p.m. today and at 8 p.m. Friday in the Ballroom. Winner of five academy awards, this is one of the finest films ever printed.

The French clubs' showing of "Daddy, Mamma, the Maid and I" is set for Tuesday at 3, 5 and 7 p.m. in Rm. 11 of the Library. It's a hilarious tale about a "maid" brought home by an amour-stricken son. It has English subtitles.

One I've been looking forward to . . . the second twilight Music Hour's "Music from the Grand Boroque (1600-1750)" in the Museum Sunday 3:30 p.m. The program includes the Quantz Trio Sonata in C Minor, Bach's Toccata in D Major and Vivaldi's G Minor Concerto.

Not-to-be-missed . . . the Coffin-Miller pedal marionettes in the Union Ballroom at 4 p.m. Friday, with Moliere's "The Imaginary Invalid."

Speech Tournament Provides Student Learning Opportunity

"An important way for students to learn to express and communicate their basic ideas is through participation in such activities as the Intramural Speech Tournament," according to Kip Glasscock, tournament director.

Organizations wishing to participate must enter the tournament by Nov. 14. The first event will take place at 6:45 p.m., Nov. 15, in the Aggie Auditorium. There will be an opportunity to enter future events at a later date. Entrance fees for the entire year are $10 per organization.

Various events in the tournament are extemporaneous speaking, radio speaking, Bible reading, poetry reading, dramatic interpretation, persuasive speaking, after-dinner speaking and public speech interpretation.

Trophies and plaques will be awarded to individual and organization winners on a point basis.

Glasscock stressed that the importance of the Speech Tourney is to give organizations a chance for intellectual competition, give individuals an opportunity to express their ideas, provide students with speech credit and present awards to those most able to express their ideas or the ideas of others.

At the end of the year, a sweepstakes trophy will be awarded to the organization compiling the greatest number of points. The second event will take place Dec. 13. Other events have not been scheduled.

Seven Receive Memberships

President's Hostesses recently acquired seven new members. Ginger Butler, Catherine Gordon, Karen Anderson, Carolyn Wood, Judy Cowger, Carole Jean Francis and Ann Orrick were selected as members of the group on the basis of campus knowledge, scholarship, classification and dorm activities. These girls filled the seven vacancies in the 40-member organization.

There were 110 girls who applied to become President's Hostesses. All applications will be kept on file and any further vacancies will be filled from these applications.

61 Coeds Pledge Newest Sorority

Chi Omega, Tech's newest social sorority, has added three new pledges to their roll bringing the total number of pledges to 61.

The new pledges are Glenda Gibson, Cleburne; Lyndall Russell, Fort Worth; and Mary Dee Harris, Fort Worth.

The pledge class of Chi Omega recently elected officers. Serving as president for the group is Marilyn Tinney. Mary Jo McClain was chosen as vice president and Jeannie Bookout was selected as secretary. Pat Crouch was made treasurer.

Molly Fulton will be the social chairman and her assistant is Sharon Jones. Orlean McCallum was elected to the post of projects chairman.

Other officers chosen include Judy Abbott as music chairman and Carolyn Hatch as assistant music chairman. Serving on Junior Panhellenic for Chi Omega is Shari Addison. Mary Helen Hatton will be historian.

Blanks Are Due To Mortar Board

Applications for membership in Mortar Board must be turned in by Nov. 10. Junior girls with an overall grade point average of 1.8 and who will have completed between 60 and 100 hours by the end of the fall semester are eligible. Sophomore girls who plan to graduate in three years are also eligible.

Applications may be turned in to Linda Barnhill, Weeks Hall. Blanks may be obtained from Miss Barnhill also.

Mortar Board is a national senior women's honorary service organization.

Tramps Schedule Fall Rush Smoker

A smoker will begin fall rush for the Saddle Tramps at 8 p.m. Nov. 14 in the Rec. Hall of the Tech Union.

All Tech men who will have completed 38 semester hours at the end of the fall term are eligible to belong to the mens' spirit organization. Those eligible are invited to the smoker, a member of the organization announced.

An invitational party will be given Dec. 5 and pledges chosen to become Saddle Tramps will be announced Dec. 13.

Panties, of all things, occupied the minds of about 2,500 male students at Texas University last Friday. The Daily Texan, student newspaper, said that "panties streamed into the air like pollen from a flower in full bloom."

According to the Texan, it was the first full scale pantie raid at the University in almost five years, and it all began when a burning trash can "warmed up the blood" of men's dormitory residents. The raid was led by about 400 students chanting, "We Want Girls!"

These undergarment raids are something you can naturally expect at Texas University. It seems that a portion of their student body pleasures in stirring up little tidbits of childish destruction. If they would spend more time in constructive activities they might have a better name across the nation.

I'm sure that a major portion of their student body is dedicated and hard working. The bad thing is this small minority of trouble-makers will be turned out of TU one of these days to move into our society.

What a shame.

The Rice University Thresher recently carried an article concerning Canyon's J. Evetts Haley and the Texans for America group.

Haley, who has just retired as a member of Texas Tech's Board of Directors, swooped down on the State Textbook Committee and according to the Thresher, launched a censorship drive. A portion of the Thresher article follows:

"Almost unnoticed by the public, the group, led by Canyon cattleman J. E. Haley besieged the committee early in October with a large list of complaints about the books being considered for use in Texas high schools. Largely as a result of the complaints, the committee has ordered that every history text adopted for use beginning in 1962 must be partly edited and re-written to meet the group's requirements. Several other books have been rejected or changed, and more alterations may be announced after the committee's November meeting."

I don't suppose Haley will ever change. Oh, well.

Students Speak

Sounding Board

By BRONSON HAVARD
Editorial Assistant

A recent editorial in the Toreador concerning the prices charged Tech students at Lubbock movie houses sparked comment and discussions among the student body. Today the Sounding Board surveys Techsan's reactions with the question, Are you opposed to the present prices now charged by local movie houses?

The questions, What do you think would be a fair rate for students? and How would you remedy the situation? were also asked in the random survey.

"Yes, because I don't think the movies they show are as good as the prices indicate," Bobby Hankins, a freshman Agriculture major, answered when asked about the prices. For a fair rate he suggested about 60 cents. As for remedying the situation he commented, "I don't know how you could do that. If the students get together they ought to be able to figure it out."

Barbara Baker, a freshman English major, said she didn't go to shows in Lubbock but added, "I know in Austin there are reductions on student prices. That is quite possibly the reason why I haven't been." She also commented, "I read an editorial in the Toreador suggesting the SUB run first rate movies and I think that is a real good idea."

"Well, for certain movies I am," Carol Crawford, a sophomore homemaking Education major, "I don't think the movies are that good," she said. For a fair rate Carol suggested between 40 and 50 cents. "I am opposed to charging a dollar for a show," she strongly stated.

For a remedy she reasoned, "... if there were more variety in shows, more people would attend and the prices would go down."

A Freshman Council Representative, Andy Wilson, answered, "Yes, the drive-ins are reasonable but the others aren't. The inside shows for the average college students costs too much."

To remedy the situation, Rep. Wilson suggested discount cards for Tech students. He concluded his opinion by saying, "I think the Tech Union should show current movies every Friday and Saturday nights."

"If we could get everybody to co-operate, I suggest we eliminate the high prices by a mass boycott," John Dougherty, a sophomore Engineering major, said. "I think it's (the prices) too much. At Austin and College Station they give student discounts," he stated.

"As much money as the students put into this town, they should show some gratitude," he added. For a fair price he suggested 60 or 65 cents.

Kay Carotubbs, a freshman liberal arts major, said she was not opposed to the movie house prices and expressed the opinion, "I think that some of the prices are too high but I think a lot of the movies are worth seeing and worth the price."

"The prices at the drive-ins can't be beat eous," Griff Evans, sophomore accounting major, but some of the prices downtown are outrageous. About a fair rate he replied, "It depends on the show."

"I think if the Tech Union would start showing movies at reasonable prices that it would bring the prices down," Evans offered as a way of remedying the high movie house prices.

Toreador Mail Call...

Dear Sir:

After listening to a few promotional spots on the radio benefiting a well-known local toy store, it has become evident to me that the management of this store is planning to boost sales again this year as they did last year, by bringing Santa Claus to Lubbock on November 9. I wonder, isn't December 1-24 enough time for exploiting one of the most sacred of Christian days? Aside from this, my prime objection, I wonder if the management of this store considers the expectation which it builds up in young minds, a good month and a half before Christmas actually comes, and then the confused questioning of these young minds as to just what it is all about.

I am still old-fashioned enough to rebel against the Christmas decorations put up in Lubbock on Thanksgiving day; but compared to the outrage which is coming to pass Thursday, such decorating is no worse than waiting till Christmas Eve to trim the tree.

Very truly yours,
Mary F. Nettleton

Editor:

I was very much disappointed to hear that Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson was called in to crown the Homecoming queen. This, to me, brings out the poor judgment of those responsible. Could they not even locate a loyal TECHSAN and/or Texan, but had to bring in a Socialist Democrat!

A Spring 1961 graduate,
Bill H. Brandt

Editor:

As in the past I have felt the need to write you in regard to the proposed name change for this college. I again feel this need. As I understand the situation, the people who want to change the name of the college would like the word "university" in the new title. This, I have been told, would qualify Tech for more State money to pay instructors and for research. Also, some people feel that the word "university" would draw more people to the school.

On the other side, there is the question of doing away with the double "T." These people feel that Texas Tech would be losing 30-odd years of tradition if a name were chosen that did not include the double "T" (without using the words "Texas Tech"), and therefore, the name should not be changed. Many Tech Exes would no doubt regret the loss of the old name. Most of these people would approve a name change if "Texas Tech" was included.

There have been several names suggested that would retain the double "T" (without using the words "Texas Tech"), and include the word university. The proposed name, Texas sTate University (with the capitals as I have used them), would do this. This, however, is about like letting E U stand for Texas University. Another example of a name retaining the words "Texas Tech" and using the word "university" was the name "Texas Tech University." Many people were opposed to this name because they were not brave enough to coin a new meaning for Tech.

Texas Tech is a city of sorts in itself. About 4,500 people reside here most of the time and over 12,000 people are occupied here. We have a book store, theater, cafe, modern office buildings, and other related things which make Texas Tech compare directly with a city. At the present our "city" is called Texas Technological College campus, or more commonly, "Texas Tech." We have a United States Postoffice, called Tech Station, Texas.

Many cities have universities named after themselves. In order to make both sides of the name change party happy, I propose a new name that will retain the double "T," the words "Texas Tech," and "University." I propose a new name—THE UNIVERSITY OF TEXAS TECH, named in honor of the city in which it is located.

Thank you,
Jim Reynolds of Sneed

Students Hear Corps Lecture

Daniel Russell, head of Texas A&M sociology department, conducted lecture sessions and interviews Wednesday for Techsians interested in working with the U.S. Peace Corps.

"I would like to emphasize the need for college students of almost all skills and interests for duty in the Peace Corps," said Russell, "as well as those with specialized technical training."

Russell said he was "very well pleased" with interest shown by Tech students, and that several of the 20 persons interviewed demonstrated many of the qualities needed for success in this type of work.

The visit by Russell is part of a nationwide recruiting program for the Peace Corps. There are currently 850 in training to be ready by January, and 3,000 are expected to be at work by the following January.

Russell explained that application forms may be obtained at any post office, and they should be sent to Washington at least six months before expected date of graduation if possible.

Persons passing the examination have some choice in the location and type of job they will have, according to Russell. It was also brought out that—although most Corpsmen are college graduates—special needs in foreign countries sometimes create jobs for high school graduates with practical skills.

Tournament Starts

The Tech Union Duplicate Bridge Tournament begins at 5 p.m. Sunday in the Union Workroom. Entries will be received at the Union through Saturday, and contestants arriving late will be penalized. Winners will receive trophies Sunday night.

Debaters Enter Contest Sponsored By Sinclair

Robert Dick, debate coach, attended a meeting in Dallas Friday to make plans for the second annual Sinclair TV Debate series.

The Tech team will debate St. Mary's University Jan. 14 to open this year's series. Sixteen colleges and universities will participate in the contests.

Each winning team is awarded $1,000 and the loser is given $500. The Tech team won two debates but lost their third last year, winning a total of $2,500, which was applied to a speech scholarship fund.

Lockhart Attends Craft Workshop

The young child was the main topic of discussion Tuesday at the art workshop attended by Dr. Bill Lockhart, head of the department of applied arts at Tech.

The workshop, which was held in Seminole, dealt with means of promoting creativity in the young child.

Demonstrations were given to show how creativity may be promoted by use of crayons, toothpicks, drinking straws and other readily available materials; also through block and scrap printing.

"A teacher of art does not necessarily have to be a productive artist to show how to create," according to Dr. Lockhart. The teacher's role is to permit children to break away from patterns which promote dependent thinking.

"Through free expression, the child has a chance to do independent or creative thinking. The school art project should be presented in such a way that the child is placed in a problem solving situation," said Lockhart.

The topic for the first debate will concern federal aid to education. Should Tech win the first debate, the team will meet the winner of the Midwestern University—University of Texas match. The topic will concern the benefits of a two-party system for Texas.

Two Tech teams returned from debate at Texas Christian University Sunday. Team One won four and lost two, Team Two won three and lost three.

Team One (Mike Pollard and Kip Glasscock) defeated University of Texas, University of Nebraska, Abilene Christian College and Washburn University. The team lost to University of Oklahoma and Rice. About 150 teams participated in the meet.

Three debate teams will leave Thursday to attend a debate tournament at Central Oklahoma State College. The team members are Mike Pollard and Kip Glasscock, senior division; Cleo Haston and Hae Brummet, junior division; and Genie Joyner and Wynette Johnson, women's division.

Of the Tech debaters, Dick said: "We have a relatively inexperienced squad but they are working hard and enthusiastically and we should be expecting a great deal from them toward the latter part of the season."

Club Discloses Details Of 'Little International'

All Tech students are eligible to participate in the 14th Annual Little International Animal Judging Contest—an event featuring divisions of one class of swine, two classes of sheep, three classes of beef cattle and four classes of quarter-horses.

Students may register outside the animal husbandry office, Rm. 227 of the Agriculture Bldg. through Wednesday.

One division of the quarter-horse showings will enable students to provide their own horses. Drawing for the college animals will be conducted Wednesday.

Final judging—based on showmanship rather than the quality of the animal—will be at 12:30 p.m. Dec. 16 in the Livestock Pavilion. This will give the students 30 days in which to groom and train their animals.

Seven ribbons will be awarded in each class of animals and a trophy for grand champion and reserve champion in over-all competition will be awarded. Four county agents will judge in the contest.

The Little International is sponsored by Block and Bridle Club under the supervision of Bob Stovell.

Tech Infirmary Gives Services To Students

by KENNY BRADLEY
Toreador Staff Writer

At least 24 people at Tech care whether or not you are sick—the Tech Infirmary staff.

Financed entirely by a portion of the $17 Student Services Fee (approximately $6 per person), the Infirmary maintains a complete staff at all times to provide medical care for Tech students.

The Harriett and Len McClellan Memorial Infirmary is located just east of Tech Union and north of Horn and Knapp Halls. Its staff includes two doctors, seven registered nurses, eight licensed vocational nurses, one receptionist-laboratory technician, one dietician, three cooks, a maid and a custodian.

Supervisors of the Infirmary are Dr. Fred P. Kallina, director of the Student Health Service, and Dr. E. R. Rose, professor and college physician. Every patient of the Infirmary is under the direct supervision of one of these doctors.

Infirmary hours are from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 8 a.m. until noon on Saturday.

Dr. Kallina reports other services of the Infirmary include allergy immunizations given free of charge between 2 and 4 p.m. each day.

"Our budget will not allow us to provide the various vaccines needed for the immunizations, but we will be more than glad to in-culate those students who furnish their own medicine," Dr. Kallina stated, "and if the student needs a prescription to obtain such drugs we will be very glad to provide him with such, thus eliminating an expensive doctor's fee."

The Infirmary is divided into two divisions: the out-patient clinic and the in-patient clinic. The out-patient clinic treats students who are not sick enough to require hospitalization, and the in-patient clinic is for use by those students who have to be put to bed.

Teachers Present Papers At Meet

Three English department faculty members, Mrs. Grace Wellborn, Dr. J. T. McCullen and R. Roger Brooks, will present papers at a meeting of the South Central Modern Language Assn. at Baylor University Friday and Saturday.

Mrs. Wellborn's paper concerns "The Legendary Three in the Scarlet Letter," Dr. McCullen's paper is titled "Tobacco and Health in Literature" and the subject of Dr. Brooks' paper is "The Effect of Criticism on Matthew Arnold's Poetry, 1849-1853."

Other Tech faculty members attending the meeting will be Dr. John C. Dowling, Dr. Alexander P. Hull, Dr. T. Earle Hamilton and Beatrice W. Alexander of the foreign language department.

Picadors Test WTSC

Frosh Play Friday

Coach Berl Huffman's Picadors will be trying to even up their season record when they clash with the West Texas B team in Jones Stadium at 3 p.m. Friday.

For a team that has lost two of three games this season, the Picadors are highly rated. The squad is four deep and includes several all-stars from the 1960 high school football campaign. And, according to Huffman, the group is "one of the best I've ever coached."

The losses were to Arkansas, 14-7, and Rice, 7-0. But even in losing, the freshmen looked impressive as both the Shoats and the Owlets have reportedly their best freshmen teams in several years.

The only common foe between Tech and West Texas is the Hardin-Simmons B. The West Texas B group slammed the Buttons, 54-21, before the Picadors managed a 23-7 win over the same squad in Abilene. West Texas lost to the Air Force B, 19-6, and then to the McMurry B, 30-6.

West Texas, like Hardin-Simmons, has no freshman team, since freshmen are allowed to participate in varsity sports in Border Conference. So the Picadors will be playing against older and more experienced gridders.

But such was the case against the HSU Buttons, and the Abilene squad fell to Tech.

Huffman will probably start C. C. Willis at center, Marcel Dorothy and Larry Carlisle at guards, John McDaniels and Billy Belew at tackles, Johnie Bentley and Tommy Doyle at ends, James Ellis at quarterback, Max Gatlin and Don Anderson at halfbacks and Butch Thompson at fullback.

Students will be admitted to the game with their ID cards, and general admission tickets are on sale at the ticket office.

A house divided against itself cannot stand. Brother, if that statement holds any water, get ready for Texas Tech to come tumbling down—not the team but the student body. And believe me, quarterback Johnny Lovelace will get the last laugh. The boos that echoed over the field last Saturday will probably be hooted all over Houston and the SWC. But don't pin the blame on Lovelace when Tech loses the SWC Sportsmanship Trophy.

Real Swell College Attitude

That's the limit, isn't it—real fine college attitude in its truest form. Chances are that if Tech went through the season winless, most people would just sit and watch silently. That's bad enough.

But now that the Raiders have come through with a couple of upsets, "Armchair" coaches have an excellent opportunity to show that they have reached the height of supreme cletic excellence. Now, according to these brilliant minds, Tech ought to beat everyone—and if they don't, the defeat is all the fault of a quarterback. And the coach doesn't help, either.

How asinine can human minds get . . .

Got To Win To Rate Cheers

If a Raider basketball player bobbles the ball and the opponent scores on the mistake,—that's okay. Sure it's okay, because the basketball team usually wins anyway—and that's about the only way a Tech team can rate a cheer. Yes sir, Tech has a real winning spirit—when it's winning.

But When The Chips Are Down

So now that Tech is having a rough row to hoe in football, the team gets the axe from the students as being a bunch of have-nots.

Joe Kelly,—sports editor of the Lubbock Avalanche Journal, commented Monday in his column "Between the Lines" on the boeing at the Rice game.

"We want to take this opportunity to compliment those fans who boomed so lustily last Saturday when Johnny Lovelace went into the game. That took a lot of courage and we're sure everyone is proud of them for having the guts to boo like that.

Sterling Display Of Sportsmanship

It certainly was a sterling display of sportsmanship and proved that those little men and women can be counted on when the going gets tough. Yes sir, those are the fans you want on your side.

"Believe me, Lovelace ought to be booed every time he steps on the field. This "mature" 18-year-old youngster from Farwell ought to be sitting in the stands where he could rake the peanut shells out of his hair and put in his two bits worth, too.

"We're sure that Johnny appreciates that wonderful support and if you'd just stop by and tell him in person what you think of him, we have an idea he'd show you his appreciation.

Kelly continues, "Those students who joined the chorus can be classed with the same campus heroes who swallow goldfish, stage panty raids, crowd into phone booths and push beds down the street to show their athletic prowess and impress the world with their vast intelligence.

"We hope that they are real proud of themselves."

Yes, Mr. Kelly, and those fans who booed Lovelace are undoubtedly the same ones who, after the game, slithered back under the rocks from whence they came.
