STUDENTS Of The Big Spring HIGH SCHOOL

Eight pages of Wednesday's Herald was devoted to news for the "Wheel." There is something printed in that paper about you. Did you get a copy? Did you send one to your friends? This paper will be more interesting to you in the future than it is now. It will mean much to you. We have a limited number of them left. After they are gone no more will be printed. They may be had for only 5c per copy. Ask your mother and father how much they would give now for a paper that carried the news of any of their school years. Now is the time to get these papers.

A Compromise

DISPOSITION of the case against an American naval lieutenant, his mother-in-law and two enlisted men, convicted of manslaughter in the slaying of a native, was hardly more than a compromise designed to satisfy all elements and keep down further trouble.

The quartet were formally sentenced to serve ten years, but the sentence was promptly commuted to one hour by Governor Judd of the territory of Hawaii. The defendants served their one hour in a symbolic way and were released to go where they please.

Considering the ugly ramifications of the case, this is as good a solution as any. The white population of the islands, particularly the navy element, thought the accused should have been acquitted—as did most people on the mainland. But the native and other racial elements of the islands thought otherwise. It was difficult to steer a middle course between these two opinions without running the risk of serious disorders. There is no blinking the fact that Honolulu has been something of a powder magazine for months, ready to blow up at any minute. The defendants and their attorney, Clarence Darrow, seemed well pleased with the turn affairs have taken and no doubt nearly everybody in authority in the islands breathed a sigh of relief. Let us hope Hawaii has learned its lesson. If the heinous crime which gave rise to the killing of the native is to be repeated, Hawaii will discover that her troubles have just begun, not ended.

Wichita Falls Without Team In Texas Loop
Spudders Become Cannibals Of Longview For Season

WICHITA FALLS — Wichita Falls is without Texas league baseball for the first time since the franchise was moved here from Waco in 1920. At a special meeting of the stockholders of the Wichita Falls baseball club, holders of the franchise, it was formally voted to move the Spudder team to Longview.

The transfer, announced by L. C. McEvoy, president of the club, may be temporary. McEvoy said that the Spudders probably will return here at the close of the 1932 season. He said the only obligation incurred by the ownership of the club was operation at Longview for the remainder of the 1932 Texas league season.

The Spudders will take on the name of the Longview Cannibals at the start of a three-game series at Longview against Fort Worth, May 25, 26, 27. Longview will have 61 home games starting with the one of May 25.

Williams again manager. In 1928, with Williams again manager, they lost in a Texas league play-off to Houston, managed by Frank Snyder. In 1929, Jim Galloway piloted the Spudders and led them to a half-year pennant but in a play-off against Dallas, the Spudders lost. The next year, Fort Worth beat the Spudders in another play-off for the pennant and the right to represent the Texas league in the Dixie series. Williams managed Wichita Falls and Frank Snyder was steersman for the Fort Worth Cats.

Wichita Falls attendance went on the rocks last year and plans were made to move them to some other city, but it was finally left here.

After losing its franchise to Wichita Falls in 1930, Waco reentered the Texas league in 1932 by taking over the Galveston franchise. Galveston re-entered the league last year by taking over the Waco franchise.

Kowalik In Finish With Much Thrill

San Antonio Twirler Retires Cats With Bags Full In Ninth

MAN ANTONIO—Determination to win was written on Fabian Kowalik's brow when he ascended the mound to pitch for the San Antonio Indians in the opening game of the Fort Worth series Thursday. Although he wavered near the finish he retired the Cats before they could score another run, keeping the bats on the big end of the count, 4 to 2.

When Joe Engle rapped out a two bagger following two singles, to drive in a run in the ninth, lacking one by the Cats to tie, Manager Robertson came from the dugout and walked up to Kowalik, but the crowd shouted, "leave him there!" and with a grim expression returned by Kowalik, Robbie walked off the diamond to leave the chucker to his fate.

Goach to Reading
Kowalik then retired the side with the bases full, and everyone in the crowd of about 1200 that witnessed the game can write his own story as to the brilliance of the contest.

The game marked another change in the Indians lineup with Eddie Hall back in right field and Cap Crossley at third base. This change signaled the release of Thord Baseman Charles Goach, who is on his way to Reading, Pa. in the International league on option by the San Antonio club, an announcement of which was made after the game.

GALVESTON—Hank Thormahlen, portly Galveston southpaw, pitched and batted the Buccaneers to their third straight victory here Thursday night when he figured heavily in a 4-1 win over the Dallas Steers.

Besides holding the Steers to four hits and striking out nine men, he hit three times out of four trips to the plate, scored two runs and drove in another. The victory was the fourth in a row for him.

John Whitehead fared badly for the Steers, the Bucs collecting ten hits and all of their runs off him before he was removed for a pinch hitter in the eighth inning. Minogus finished the game.

Ann Dvorak, pictured above, is Hollywood's newest Cinderella. In the past three years she has been a dancer and bit player at M-G-M studios, but she was virtually unrecognized until she was selected by Howard Hughes for an important role in his production, "Scarface," which plays a two day engagement at the Ritz, commencing Sunday, with a midnight matinee Saturday night.

Following her brilliant performance in "Scarface," Howard Hughes offered Miss Dvorak a contract to play leading roles in his productions. She had to go to court to have the contract legalized, as she is but 9. The court gave its approval and affixed its stamp to her contract. Immediately she was given a leading role opposite Spencer Tracy in "Sky Devils," a succeeding Hughes production, which was shown at the Ritz last Sunday. ATHLETICS 4, RED SOX 3
PHILADELPHIA—Jimmy Foxx's eleventh home run of the season came with the bases filled in the first inning Thursday to give the Athletics a 4 to 2 victory over the Red Sox. The homer followed a single, a double and a walk off Kline. He was yanked after Williams followed Foxx's drive with a single. Lisenes blanked the Athletics the rest of the way, allowing only two hits.

SPORTS ON PARADE
By CURTIS BISHOP

Today ended the high school career of such luminaries as Tack Dennis, Hill Flowers, Carleton Coburn, David Hopper, Lloyd Forrester, Oscar Heblsen, and E. P. Curry. Four of the youths constitute a good backfield, Coburn, Flowers, Dennis, and Heblsen. Hopper is the best prospect for a collegiate star that has ever come out of Big Spring.

Most of them are planning on attending institutions of higher learning, both educationally and athletically. Flowers and Coburn, we believe, are planning on Terrel Prep at Dallas. Heblsen will wear the uniform of an A. and M. cadet next year if present plans materialize, and Hopper will pursue an engineering course at Baylor University. Ralph Denton will enter Monticello Junior College at Monticello, Ark. Curry will enroll in Texas University, as will Bill Stampff, Tack Dennis, as you know, is silent concerning his choice of an Alma Mater.

Dennis, Flowers, Coburn, Hopper, Forrester and Heblsen—a splendid collection of young manhood that. All of them all-around stars, with Dennis, Flowers, Hopper and Forrester excelling in three sports and the others in at least two.

Longview and Tyler will have their "opening day" games in the Texas league sometime in the near future, and the chug-chug of oil pumps and the droning of giant motor trucks, will have to share their popularity with the swat of the ball against a bat and the dash of the family touring car to the ball park. The Longview Cannibals, formerly the Wichita Falls Spudders, will open Tyler's home season Sunday. The Fort Worth Cats will open at Longview on probably May 25.

Wichita Falls has seen some great teams in her day. There was a time when such sluggers as Bennett, Fitzgerald, Bettencourt, Jenkins, Levey, Burns and Kress were U. S. champions of the Texas league, and achieved the usual victory in the Dixie Series. Levey, Burns and Kress are in the majors, while Bennett, Fitzgerald, Bettencourt, Jenkins are clouting out hits in AA leagues.

Tony Antistat, we have learned, is still sweating 'em for Bisbee, Arizona in the day time and captivating his audience by playing the piano at night. Antistat, you remember, was the handsome outfielder-infielder that joined the B. S. Cowboys in the mid-season of 1929, coming from the Fort Worth Cats. He pastime in the center garden for the locals for some three weeks, and was then ordered to Bisbee by Kennesaw M. Landis, who seems to have sort of a pull in baseball circles.

It is estimated that 10,000,000 18-hole rounds were played throughout the United States on public courses last year and that private clubs came in for an even greater share of attention. The Lincoln course of San Francisco showed the greatest number with 200,395.

Golf and tennis are, a consensus shows, the most popular games with the American people, and are comparing favorably with bullfighting in Spain, cricket in England and horse racing in Kentucky. Baseball and football, however, remain the most spectacular, and attract the greater number of on-lookers. But judging from the attendance reports of the baseball leagues this year the diamond game is on a real decline instead of advancing.

Almost ever league in the United States has reported that its clubs are operating at a loss.

George Dabney is ranking No. 1 on the Big Spring Tennis club roster just at present, due to a series of one-sided victories over H. B. Dunagan, who is in No. 2 place, and Joe Davis, who has climbed up to No. 3 position. Bill McCarty completes the ranking quartet.

The local netters are despairing of activity for the summer. Competition seems to be impossible, although the H. S. racquetballers are willing to play any combination in Texas except Texas and Rice universities.

Ambitious neighboring towns are asked to get in touch with H. B. Dunagan, Jr. Either four or six-man matches will be played.

East Ward P.-T.A. Hears Lecture On Ward School Music

Mrs. Roy Pearce, new president of East Ward P.-T.A., presided over the meeting Thursday which was the last meeting of the year.

Mrs. E. F. Houser was the main speaker on the program. Her topic was "Musical Appreciation" from the child's point of view. Jennetta Dodge gave a reading and Ben Carpenter, Jr., several violin solos.

The officers made their reports. Mrs. A. J. Crain and Mrs. J. P. Dodge were appointed on a committee to purchase equipment for taking care of the yard. Mrs. Cain was made chairman of the summer Round-up committee.

Many of the visitors viewed an interesting exhibit of the work of the pupils of Miss Hawk, whose room won the attendance prize.

The following members registered: Mmes. James Wilcox, J. A. McDonald, J. L. Terry, A. L. Carille, John Lane, A. J. Cain, M. L. Myatt, Dutch Henry, Lena Tucker, Ethel Hightenthal, W. P. Mims, Geo. E. ### HEATH HERE TODAY

SUSAN CAREY, 29 and beautiful, had become engaged to ERNEST HEATH, her former employer. She is secretly in love with BOB DUNBAR, millionaire's son whom she met at business school. Heath sends Susan's aunt to recuperate from an illness and the girl is grateful to him. BEN LAMPMAN, Susan's selected suitor, shoots himself after wounding Heath. He recovers and goes away. Bob tries unsuccessfully to see Susan but she does not know this. He sees her at the theater one night with Heath and becomes angry. DENISE ACKROYD, debutante, wags Bob for herself. Susan meets Bob at a masked ball and he makes love to her. Denise interrupts.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLIII
The two men faced each other across the shining expanse of mahogany. Heath was seated, his fingers playing nervously with the ivory handled paper knife. Waring stood up and down, hands in pockets.

"But tell me what happened!" Heath demanded impatiently. "If what you believe is true they should have come to some understanding that night. I've heard nothing. Everything has gone as before."

Waring shrugged. "I've told you all I know," he explained. "Maybe I've been all kinds of a fool to mix into this at all. But you asked me and I only told you what I knew."

"I'm grateful to you," said the older man stiffly. "I know I can trust you. That's why it seemed a good idea to have you take her to last party. But if they met and nothing happened why then—"

He raised his brows inquiringly. "I see the point. You want to go ahead. Well, I don't know but what you're right," Waring said slowly. "They danced with each other. I'm sure of that. And they met a brief late-a-late. I must admit I felt like a blooming spy."

"Sorry, old man, but it couldn't be helped. It was in a good cause," the employer reminded him. "That's what she had a chance to talk with him and see him again and decide that their little flurry is over. That was what I wanted to be sure of. Well, now I'm satisfied."

"But Waring's tone was serious and Heath glanced at him curiously.

"Out with it, man. If you've anything to say, say it and be done with it."

Waring stared reflectively out across the roof tops.

"I'm nothing except that I seemed a bit excited as we drove home," he said lamely.

Heath laughed aloud, relieved. "Is that all? Well, I can see no occasion in that. Any girl might be excited coming home from a big party. No, no, you're getting to be an old woman." He clasped the other affectionately on the shoulder. "I appreciate your solicitude, old chap, but honestly, I think it was pretty much wasted. Your imagination was working over time."

"I hope you're right," Waring muttered.

"I know I am," said Heath thoughtfully. And on that note the conversation ended.

"Why do we wait any longer?" Heath asked Susan that night over a table high in a city restaurant. The city lay far dully beneath them a spangle of lights to north and south.

His complacency was momentarily disturbed by the look she flashed at him. There was something unsettling about that look. "She behaves as though she were afraid of me," the man thought in surprise. He was very gentle.

"Your aunt's coming back on Saturday, isn't she?" he went on. "Well, then, why couldn't we have a very quiet ceremony the following Monday and sail from New York next morning?"

With an effort Susan managed to keep her hand from trembling. Steadily she said, "All right. I'll arrange it that way."

The man liked her quiet response. Triumphantly he thought of Waring's hints and fears. Waring had been wrong. The girl was perfectly willing to marry him quickly and go away. That did not look as though she were nursing a broken heart.

That night as Susan brushed her hair before Rose's dressing table she told herself it would be better this way. She would go away, see new sights and new faces, and be cured of the fever which had possessed her so long. Aunt Jessie would be pleased. Everyone would be. There was no use postponing it any longer.

Lifellessly she told Rose, "I'm going to be married Monday."

"My dear!" Awe-struck, the other girl laid down the orange stick she had been using and gazed at Susan. "Try to sound a little more cheerful about it. It's not a funeral, you know!"

Susan summoned a smile. "I know. I didn't mean to seem gloomy. I'm tired, I guess."

"You poor little," Rose hugged her. "Let me and out that beige suit with the fox collar I was talking you about. It's just your size and the style will be perfect for you. That will save your shopping and I can have it charged. You certainly can't," finished Rose hurriedly, "be married in any of your old things."

Susan agreed without enthusiasm. It was kind of Rose to go to so much bother for her. Of course she should look well for the ceremony. It would be nice if she could feel excited and happy about it as brides were supposed to feel but since she couldn't she must at least try to look the part.

The suit was delivered the following afternoon and with it came pumps of snakeskin and stockings of sheerest silk. Rose had even chosen a tiny turban to complete the ensemble. It was fashioned of ivory small velvet flowers in pale fawn shades.

"Try them on, lovey," Mrs. Milton commanded. Susan obeyed. Last time as she was she could not help a feeling of satisfaction at the effect produced by the new outfit. She looked to herself, slim, straight and remotely elegant as the mannequins sketched on the pages of stood Bob Dunbar.

"You surely are a picture," Mrs. Milton told her, wiping away a sentimental tear. "When I was a girl we thought we weren't married right unless we wore white satin and a long veil, but I declare, no one could mistake you for anything but a bride this minute. Listen, dear, there's the doorbell!" she went on rapidly. "My hair's a sight so you go. There's a good child," Susan flung open the door, prepared to speed some luckless vendor of books on his way. Could she be dreaming? There before her

Brain Food

"There was nothing else to do," said Susan gravely.

The young man set his jaw. "I don't see that," he muttered. "I had only just found you. There wasn't any point in running off like that."

Susan twisted her hands and tried to avoid his eyes. "You mustn't talk that way," she said rapidly. "I can't let you. It's not right."

He laugh rang out. "Who says it isn't right?"

"I do."

Brain Food

"All the better then because I want to talk to you for a bit," the young man repeated.

Susan led him into the comfortable Milton living room. She put up a hand to remove the little hat

Brain Food

"I do much better standing," said Bob. "I've had the douse of a time finding you. Why did you stage an escape some night of the hall? You didn't even leave a Cinderella slipper."

Brain Food

"Look here, my girl!" With a single long stride he was at her side. He dropped to one knee, bringing his face on a level with Susan's. "We've got to cut out this nonsense. We're wasting time. I thought we settled all this this night."

"Nothing was settled," Susan said, trembling at his nearness. She could catch the scent of expensive tobacco and shaving soap and Russian leather. His blue eyes, dancing wickedly, were dangerously close to hers.

"I thought you were bright," he mocked her. "I thought you knew what I was talking about." His voice lowered, softened. Into it crept the lovers' note that Susan had heard once before.

Brain Food

"My girl," he muttered, covering her clasped hands with one of his own. "My own darling."

Susan's heart melted to him utterly but she sat, rigid and apparently composed.

"Sweetheart, look at me!" Bob commanded.

Unwillingly she turned her eyes to his. "You mustn't," she warned.

Mrs. Marvin K. House And Mrs. George Garrette Joint Hostess At Bridge Party

Beautiful Flowers Make Rooms Colorful Setting For Many Merry Games Of Contract, Mrs. Edwards High-Scorer

The beautiful home of Mrs. Marvin K. House was the scene Thursday afternoon of a prettily appointed contract bridge party when Mrs. House and Mrs. George Garrette entertained jointly for their many friends.

A color scheme of pink and green was carried out in all the party appointments. Cluster of blue larkspur and brilliantly-hued poppies and bowls of roses formed the decorative notes of the spacious rooms where the tables were arranged for eight tables of players.

Trophies in the contest were awarded to Mrs. Edwards for making high score, a lovely powder mat for the bathroom; to Mrs. Mount for high cut, an attractive cookie jar; and to Mrs. Clarke for consolation, a lemon plate.

An ice course, in which the two colors were beautifully carried out, was served after the play. The guests of the afternoon were: Misses Shine Phillips, W. W. Inman, Dee Hilliard, V. Van Gleason, O. L. Thomas, John Clarke, M. H. Bennett, R. Homer McNew, Grover Cunningham, J. Y. Robb, M. M. Edwards, V. H. Fiewellen, Steve Ford, Bernard Fisher, Joyce Fisher, Payne, R. T. Piner, R. C. Strain, P. W. ### Sermon Topics

There will be no services at any of the city's churches Sunday evening because of the baculaureate services to be held at the First Methodist church at the evening hour.

At the First Baptist church, the pastor, the Rev. R. E. Day will speak in the morning on "Fruits of the Christian Religion." He announced also that the regular meeting of the teachers and officers of the Sunday school has been called off for Wednesday evening, due to the closing exercises of school.

At the St. Paul's Lutheran church the pastor, the Rev. W. G. Buchschacher, will speak in the morning on "The Triune God: Father Son and Holy Ghost."

At St. Mary's Episcopal church, the vicar, the Rev. W. H. Martin, will preach a sermon observing Trinity Sunday.

Services for the Presbyterian church are announced elsewhere in the paper.

ASSEMBLY OF GOD NOTES
There will be a rally at the Assembly of God beginning Saturday night and continuing through Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Primm, who have been spending the last three weeks in Waco and Waxahachie, are expected home Saturday.

Rev. and Mrs. J. Richard Spinn and son, Edward, have returned from Abilene, where they spent several days, the guests of friends.

Mrs. A. M. Evans has returned from Dallas, where she had visited relatives for a month.

Legion Auxiliary Reports Good Benefit Crowd

The American Legion Auxiliary had a splendid attendance Thursday evening for its bridge-42 benefit which it gave at the Crawford Hotel in order to raise money for its social service work.

The organization expresses its appreciation publicly to the firms who donated the prizes and to the hotel for the use of the lounge. The prize winners and their awards were: Mrs. J. B. Hodges, high contract for women, an electric lamp from the Texas Electric Service Co.; Alton Underwood, high contract for men, an electric cigarette lighter from Albert M. Fisher's store; Mrs. C. D. Parker, of Fortson, high auction for women, a box of Contour Face powder from the Mostelle Beauty Shop; Mr. Boler, of Fortson, an ash tray from Cunningham and Phillips; Miss Ruby Burnett, high 42 for women, a candy jar from Waits Jewelry store; L. T. Stewart, two silhouette pictures from Dudley's Variety store; Mrs. P. W. Malone, high cut for women, a handkerchief from Mellinger's store; Mr. Blum, high cut for men, a hat rack from Biles Drug Store.

The lounge was attractively decorated with flowers for the occasion.

North Ward P-T-A Concludes Term

The North Ward P-T. A. held its last meeting for this school term Thursday afternoon at 3:30 at the school.

The first grade room, under the direction of the teacher, Mrs. Patrick, presented an interesting pageant, "Vacation."

Mrs. W. T. Bell expressed her appreciation for the cooperation of the association, after which Mrs. H. N. Duff gave an instructive talk regarding P-T. A. work. She emphasized the importance of the local president's attending both district and state meetings as well as all City Council meetings.

Mrs. Duff also presided over the installation ceremonies in which the following new officers took part: president, Mrs. Frank Sholtz; first vice-president, Mrs. S. M. Stinson; second vice-president, Mrs. Herbert Lee; third vice-president, Mrs. R. L. Huckabee; secretary, Mrs. Ralph Smith; treasurer, Mrs. Rhoads. In her talk to these officers Mrs. Duff reminded them that the organization was non-sectarian, non-political and non-commercial.

Those present were: Mrs. W. T. Bell, J. F. Skalkicky, Rhoads, Ben Carpenter, S. W. Stinson, Ralph Smith, E. N. Duff, Roy Eddins, A. G. Stevenson, Pottier Parker, F. G. Sholtz, W. T. Stewart, L. S. Phillips, W. D. Becker, V. L. Patrick, Ed Low, Willy Henry, J. R. Creath; Misses Lois Gardner, Mostelle Stevenson and Mildred Creath.

Mrs. H. N. Stroud Honors Guest At Lovely Party

Mrs. H. N. Stroud entertained two tables of bridge Thursday afternoon, honoring Mrs. A. J. Yarell. A lovely color scheme of yellow and green was carried out in the refreshments, which consisted of a salad course and sandwiches. Mrs. Duff made high score and received a framed silhouette. Mrs. Yarell was presented with a lovely handmailed handkerchief.

The guests in addition to the honoree were Mrs. J. H. Parks, Enory Duff, Misses Frances Sheeler, Bertha, Shugart, Leutze Sheeler and Rose Morgan.

Handy Craft Club Has Picnic At City Park

The Handy Craft Club of the Big Spring high school had a picnic at the City Park Wednesday evening.

After a series of exciting games, lunch consisting of sandwiches, olive potato salad, lemonade, cookies and ice cream, was served. The following were present: Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Brown, Velma Scott, Arlyne Chaney, Viama Sanders, Mary Pond, Louise Squires, Geneva Shuser, Maxine Denny, Junia Shuser, Minnie Earle Johnson, Bernice Hailey and Marilee Hull.

Baked Pineapple Pudding: This costs about a quarter, and makes enough pudding for four people. Cream three tablespoons butter and four tablespoons sugar, and add one well-beaten egg yolk.

Pineapple Caramel Tapioca: You can make enough of this to serve six people for not more than thirty-five cents. Scald one and one-fourth cups milk in a double boiler.

Moderate Fried Meats: Pork Chops with Grilled Pineapple: This recipe will serve six people at a cost of less than seventy cents.

Lamb Chops with Sautéed Pineapple: This, too, serves six people, and costs a little more than seventy-five cents.

A Frugal Fruit Dish: Scalloped Pineapple and Rhubarb: This combination costs between forty and forty-five cents, and will serve eight people.

...but, Judge Klapproth also becoming Ill Judge Garland of Lamesa was elected special judge. He will hear the report of the grand jury at Seminole today.

Approximately 45 sections are involved in the suit, brought by Andrews against Martin county. Hundreds of dollars in tax money is tied up through the litigation. The old Robert Rucker survey line could not be located by surveyors in a direct northern direction, it is alleged by Andrews county, but found the evidences of the survey as tending westward, which results in the Andrews claim.

Martin county has a higher valuation set, but a lower tax rate, it is asserted. The dispute of the counties did not come into open rupture until university lands became subject to taxation, as provided for recently by constitutional amendment. Two Midland surveyors, Bryan Ertel and Ralph Huey, have surveyed the line. Estee for Andrews and Bucy for Martin county, respectively.

gasoline tax to relieve counties of road bond indebtedness in seeking re-election this year.

Gov. Sterling, accompanied by Adjutant General W. W. Sterling and Ranger Sergeant M. E. (Lone Wolf) Gonzales, reached here early Thursday from Houston. The governor and his party, escorted by J. W. Slaughter and others, went from here to the Northwest highway celebration at Grapevine.

"My idea all the time in 1930 in advocating a state road bond issue was primarily to relieve the overburdened counties by the state aiding them to retire their bonds," Gov. Sterling said. "Economic conditions at this time do not warrant the authorization of more indebtedness by state or local governments, and I therefore shall not advocate a state bond issue."

"I believe part of the gasoline tax should be used to relieve the counties of their bonded indebtedness for highways, however, and shall so advocate in my platform. Before this is done, a constitutional amendment will be necessary. Lawyers tell me the state will not be able to take over the indebtedness of another branch of the government not incurred by the state and without having had anything to do with authorizing expenditures. So we will have to amend the constitution to give the state that power."

The governor, who vetoed the Brooks bill turning part of the gasoline tax to the counties for bond retirement, said his plan, while in principle similar to the purpose of the Brooks bill, will not cripple the highway department. "I vetoed the Brooks bill," Sterling said, "because of the damage it would have done to our highway construction program."

Gov. Sterling expects to release his platform late next week, and will take the stump early in June, he indicated. Friends of his will be called together in Houston next week during the state convention to lay plans for his campaign.

From Grapevine, the governor planned to drive to Austin later in the day by way of Fort Worth.

for the potential allowable. Wells in the west side were given a factor of .147189 for potential and 47 barrels each for 40-acre units. The new plan is intended to restrict drilling in the west area. The new potentials probably will not be completed until June 15 and the allowances for the first half of June likely will be the same as for the last half of May.

The feeding tests, designed to determine the best way of marketing home grown feeds through beef animals, were conducted in a fine new plant at the farm.

Four lots of Hereford steer calves, which graded good to choice at the time of entering the feed lots, were fed for 180 days.

The object of the test was to compare the following: Unground threshed milo, found threshed milo, unground milo heads, ground milo heads.

Summary of the test shows that the calves that were fed ground milo heads, gained more than those of other three lots.

Lot 4, given ground heads, gained 2.06 pounds per day.

Lot 2, given ground threshed milo, gained 2.02 pounds per day. Lots 1 and 3, given unground threshed milo and unground milo heads, respectively, each gained 1.76 pounds per day.

Lot 4 also led in average gain per head in weight over the 180-day period. Animals in this lot gained an average of 371.2 pounds each. Lot 1 animals gained an average of 315.5 pounds; those of lot 2, 364.1 pounds and those of lot 3, 314.2 pounds.

field and the others on the east side.

Of the total daily potential of 64,516 barrels for the entire field, the east side has an allowable of 26,132 barrels, of which 5,670 barrels represents the marginal well allowances. The potential allowable is 5,512 barrels, making a total allowable for the east side of 31,183 barrels.

The allowable for the west side of the field was determined by subtracting the allowable of 11,183 barrels for the east side from the total allowable of 21,000 barrels, leaving 9,817 barrels. This was divided into one-third (3,269 barrels) for acreage and two-thirds (6,548 barrels)

Big Spring Linksmen To Meet League-Leading Lamesa Players In Sand Belt Feature Of Sunday

The Big Spring Country Club eight-man golf team, undefeated in the Sand Belt League this year, will meet the Lamesa Linksmen, likewise unbeaten and leading the league with 90 points to 82 for the local in a feature match of the Sand Belt play Sunday afternoon on the Lamesa course.

Midland, two points behind Big Spring, but weakened by the injury of Ellis Cowden, will entertain Sweetwater players on their eight-hole course provided the green and fairways can be rescued from a hard rain of the last week; Terrell and Snyder, will stage a battle of their own for fourth place on the Snyder course; and Colton will invade Odessa.

TODAY and

By WALTER
The Robin

It really is of the utmost importance that opinion be not clouded by catchwords in discussion measures to promote recovery. The problem is difficult enough in itself. But the difficulties will be greatly magnified if those who discuss them do not take the most care to find out exactly what it is that is being discussed. It is particularly true of the current discussion about a public work program.

There are three plans to be considered. The first is that of Senator Robinson which was set forth on Wednesday of last week. It is described as follows:

With assurance that the budget will be balanced and with emergency assistance in sight for the distressed, a well-considered construction program may be promptly authorized and entered upon. The issuance of, say, $2,000,000,000 of tax exempt bonds, to be spent upon self-liquidating or profit-making enterprises, such as tunneling, bridges and the destruction of slums in the great industrial centers. In instances where their credit resources have not been too depleted and where authority exists or can be promptly obtained from the states and the cities desired to carry forward construction programs which have been suspended because of lack of credit should be delivered to the government their tax-exempt obligations and the revenue from the undertaking should be impounded to pay, the first, the running expenses and second,

MONTGOMERY WARD

"It Won't

the fact that the Herald Tribune has confused the Robinson-Hoover plan with the LaFollette-Wagner-Smith plan, the crux of the objection is that the new credit applied to enterprises will not in a period of "debt-paying" that is of deflation, "set in motion a series of stimuli which spread gradually throughout the country. For after one or two changes of hands... the return to the banks, where it merely ceases to be, like any other credit that is not needed." This argument assumes that the money received by employees and firms engaged in the work would be used by them, or by those from whom they in turn made purchases, to repay loans at the banks and that the banks would make no new loans. This, I take it, is what is meant by saying that the new credit would quickly cease to be.

The argument assumes that the time has not yet come for the resumption of investment, that debt-paying, or in other words deflation, has not gone far enough. Those who argue this way can point to the fact that although the Federal Reserve banks have been creating money on a large scale, the member banks do not seem to call loans and to deflate. The banks do not want to invest, and therefore it is argued that a positive program of credit creation and public investment must fail.

Now it would be admitted, I suppose, that the resumption of recovery would be a resumption of investment. If tomorrow morning the bankers announced that they had sold successfully a bond issue, let us say, to electrify the Pennsylvania Railroad and the next day they had sold successfully a bond issue to construct a large power plant, the objections to the Robinson-Hoover idea would unquestionably fall the news as most encouraging.

Now what is it that stands in the way of such undertakings? Is it a belief that the country will never again need capital improvements? Hardly. Is it a belief that capital improvements can not yet be made profitably? Yes. Why can't they be made profitably? Some would say because the costs of materials and labor are still too high; others that the volume of business is not great enough to make any enterprise profitable. The objection as to costs is a matter for negotiation with contractors and with labor; the objection as to volume is a question of being able to wait for an improvement in business. For this waiting means uncertainty in mind of the investor. He wants to be very sure that the money he invests will be safe as to capital and interest.

The fundamental argument for the Robinson-Hoover idea is that it is a plan to overcome this initial hesitation of the investor by giving him the assurance that the national credit is pledged. Let us take a concrete illustration. Suppose the Port of New York authority undertook to build a vehicular tunnel under the East river. Suppose it issued bonds for that tunnel which were guaranteed as to interest and sinking fund by the tolls of the tunnel. Suppose then that the federal government announced that it would buy those bonds at par whenever offered. I am no bond expert but I should suppose that private investors would be glad to get such bonds and that actually the government would not have to buy many of them. Now if this happened, an actual increase of investment would have taken place.

Those who object to this idea on the ground that the money received by contractors and employees will simply be deflated out of existence by the banks take a very ominous view of the present situation. They imply that after the most drastic deflation of prices and credit of which there is any record a still more drastic deflation is impending. Now it may be granted that there is still considerable scaling down of inflated capital structure to be gone through with. But it is perfectly possible, or at least it has been perfectly possible in the past, for investment to be resumed in enterprises which have been deflated while others recover and are passing through receiverships and foreclosures.

There is no certain sign which everybody recognizes as the signal for resumption. It is legitimate, therefore, to assume that some resumption is possible at this time, and that it would occur if the nerves of bankers and investors had not been shaken by the harrowing experiences through which they have passed. It may be that the Robinson-Hoover scheme will not work great results. No one can guarantee it. But the risks of the attempt are small. The country will not be worse off, come what may, for having made some investment in useful and revenue-producing projects. On the other hand, the risks of not doing anything, of sitting and letting the vicious spiral of deflation spin, are very great.

There is the risk that "debt-paying" will become impossible. The Robinson-Hoover plan is, therefore, a truly statesman-like effort to test by sound principle with a problem which will otherwise surely provoke the adoption of entirely unsound principles. If the people are to bear what they are suffering, they must be convinced that those who claim to be sound are also willing to take all the positive measures which informed opinion can justify. The Robinson-Hoover plan can be justified by informed opinion; though no one is finally expert in these matters, it can be said confidently, I think, that there is sufficient weight of expert opinion behind the scheme to warrant the experiment.

If it succeeds in some measure everybody will rejoice. If it fails, it will be because the forces at work are greater than we are able to cope with, and they will run their course in spite of us. But at least we shall not have to reproach ourselves with having been unwilling to do what we could with such light as we have.

Dorothy Levering, Ray Simmons, B. T. Cardwell and H. S. Faw appeared in a short skit, entitled "Ah, Ah, Ah."

The College Boys and the pajama girls gave a song and dance number, with the little hula girls still on the stage. Ray Simmons appeared, told the little girls a story of a wild girl with a ring for her nose, who proved to be Bob Fyatt in his hula attire.

The water ball gang reappeared. The chairman had the entire cast, except the bathing girls, to be seated. He brought in the judges, Paul Alexander, Tracy Smith and H. S. Faw.

The Lions pajama chorus made its grand entry. It included: Walt Smith, Miss Fortune; R. T. Pitter, Miss Take; Virgil Smith, Miss Deal; Harvey Clay, Miss Deed; H. Bohannon, Miss Shun; Jess Slaughter, Miss United; Snakes; Bob Henry, Miss Sweet Pea; W. B. Hag behind and are passing thru receiverships and foreclosures.

The "real" bathing girls were introduced, the judges retired for their deliberations, while the College Boys sang several numbers. Selection of Miss Terious as winner of the shiny, brass loving 'cup' followed.
