HOME TOWN TALK

By Beddy

THE first young white woman with dependents, who calls at the offices of The Herald Monday morning after 8 o'clock will be sent to a local housewife who has notified this column she wishes to employ a young white woman to do house cleaning, cooking and general housework. Wages will depend upon ability.

That is the first opening for a job for someone received since we announced Friday that a little employment office would be conducted right here in this column.

It is evident that there either are many less jobs than jobless or else people who have jobs open are neglecting to report them.

No matter what type of work it may be, you are urged to call No. 25 and give your name, address, the type of work you want done and any other information you wish.

We are opening this column for the purpose simply of trying to help some people who are in real need of employment. We do not know how serious the local employment problem is or whether it is serious at all or not. If it is, however, we want to do what we can to relieve that problem.

Some men, women, boys or girls looking at life through disheartened prospects may be needing very much the few hours, days or weeks of employment you can give. Call us.

WE are expecting a definite report from the railroad committee of the Chamber of Commerce at Monday night's meeting of the directors. Many conferences and much work has been done by the Chamber's manager, the committee's chairman and members. We are waiting for the signal to "go" in the race to provide funds to buy right-of-way and station sites in Big Spring and northwestward to the Dawson county line.

OUR friend the editor of the Reporter-Telegram at Midland has written some comments on our comments following his comments upon a recent series of paragraphs in this column.

Our words of last Sunday morning, "men and women in both Midland and Big Spring who have absorbed through twenty-three or even forty years deep seated rivalry between the two places, formed the basis of his latest comments.

The Midland editor seems to think those words meant that we felt Midland folks might harbor some "ill will" toward Big Spring as a city. Not so, absolutely not.

There is a lot of difference between friendly rivalry and "ill will." The idea of getting mad at the other fellow because he found some grapes you couldn't have if you discovered it would be all out of joint with Midland's idea or Big Spring's idea of fair play and friendship.

Friendly rivalry between communities has been the chief reason for the rapid development of West Texas. Cooperative effort within communities for the common good has built them. The desire of one community to outstrip the other is healthy, honorable, admirable.

Nope. We didn't mean old narrow-minded dislike just for the sake of disliking somebody when we said some folks in both cities have absorbed deep-seated rivalry. But we do know and the Midland writer knows there is much friendly rivalry. As fine that there is, we think.

For the entertainment of the folks here at home we reprint some of our friends' comments: THAT DEEP SEATED RIVALRY Continued editorial comment in the Big Spring Daily Herald acent the attitude taken, or to be taken, by Midland in the fight to be made by Big Spring and the Texas and Pacific for a northern extension of the railroad of that city refers to "men and women in both Midland and Big Spring who have absorbed through twenty, thirty or even forty years deep seated rivalry be-

Santo Domingo Dead Reaches Higher Total

Funeral Pyres Numerous; Light, Power Gone, Water Impure

By RENE M. LEPERVANCHE Associated Press Staff Writer Copyright, 1930, and all Rights Reserved by The Associated Press

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic, Sept. 6 (AP)—The smoke of unnumbered funeral pyres hung over the white man's most ancient city in the Americas today as the bodies of the victims of last Monday's hurricane, now estimated at more than 4,000, were consigned to the flames.

The estimate of dead, made by Dr. Antonio Calderon, in charge of the sanitary service, is admitted to be conservative, and it is feared the final total will be at least 5,000. That is about one-eighth of the entire population of the city. Five thousand more, many of them expected to die, are seriously injured.

Property loss is set at from $30,000,000 to $50,000,000.

Hour by hour the horror grows as refugees continue to drift in from outlying towns, bringing with them tales of new destruction and death, and additional bodies are found in the city's streets as work is cleared away the debris.

Along the muddy streets and on the banks of the River Ozama the dead yet lie in piles, a menace to the health of those who escaped the hurricane. All available houses, churches, and hospitals, are filled with the wounded, 300 being billeted in San Rafael Hospital alone.

An unestimated number of women and newborn children were killed in the maternity hospital. The building was roofed with zinc sheets of which were ripped away by the 150 mile an hour wind and scattered through the air, mowing down like a giant scythe those who crossed their path. Fifty bodies in the hospital were decapitated.

The city is still without light or power, and, worst of all, the water supply plant is so badly damaged it will be days before it can be repaired. With the city filled with dead and debris, the question of a pure water supply becomes hourly more pressing.

Common Laborers' Union Is Organized At Meeting Here

A charter for the Common Laborers' Union, newly formed local unit of organized labor, is expected here within the next ten days, following an organization meeting held Friday night at the Labor Hall.

A large crowd of common laborers attended the meeting. Approximately 75 charter members were received after the discussions. The total is expected to reach 100 or more after the charter is received and the chapter is duly organized.

V. R. Smithman, city manager, attended the session and talked at length on the problems of the laboring man. He discussed various phases of city work where labor is used. Representatives from other organized labor chapters were present and spoke.

The new union is for unskilled labor, only.

Improvement of laboring conditions, reaching a satisfactory minimum wage scale, and providing means for aiding members in obtaining work, are the three primary objectives of the organization.

Coste and Bellonte Back In Gotham, Very Tired But With Nice Sum Texas Cash Earned

NEW YORK, Sept. 6 (AP)—Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte, tired and bedraggled, but $25,000 richer than when they took off from Long Island last Thursday on their flight to Dallas, Texas, to qualify for the Easterwood prize, returned to New York today.

They asked for only one thing on their arrival at Valley Stream after a six and a half hour flight from Louisville today, and that was rest and a chance to sleep.

Accordingly, all engagements for tonight and tomorrow were cancelled and they retired to their suite in a Park Avenue hotel, where they said, they would stay until tomorrow afternoon when they leave for Washington to receive a welcome from President Hoover.

Tired as they were, they swung their transoceanic Question Mark north up the Hudson when they reached the Statue of Liberty, in New York harbor this afternoon and paid a flying visit to the military academy at West Point.

VACANCY ON COMMISSION TO BE FILLED

When the city commission meets Tuesday night in regular session a new member of the body will take his seat as an active member of the city solons. The vacancy created by the resignation of R. L. Cook, who resigned because he "did not agree with the major policies of the commission" will be filled by that time.

At a meeting of the body several weeks ago, B. Reagan, president of the West Texas National bank, was selected to fill the vacancy.

Although he has never made public his attitude toward the appointment, at the last meeting of the commission, the vacancy remained unfilled. It is understood, however, that a committee has been appointed to select a man to fill the vacancy caused by Cook's resignation.

Mayor J. B. Pickle has returned to the city after a short vacation and will attend the regular session Tuesday night. C. E. Talbot, commissioner, acted as mayor pro tem during the absence of Mayor Pickle and presided over the last meeting of the body.

When a successor to Cook is named, it will mark the second new city commissioner in the past two months. Hayden Hinman, chairman of the Texas & Pacific Railway, was named some weeks ago to take the place of W. W. Inkman, who resigned.

Drouth Forces Senator Glass To Sell Cattle

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6 (AP)—Senator Carter Glass blamed the drought and the tariff bill today for the auction of sixty milk cows at his farm near Lynchburg, Va., next Thursday.

He said he raised no alfalfa on his farm this summer and that prices of feedstuffs were so high because of the tariff that he could not afford to buy feed for the cattle.

"I suppose some of my cows will go to the butcher shop," he said.

U. S. POLO TEAM WINS INTERNATIONAL FIELD WESTBURY, N. Y., Sept. 6 (AP)

American with another combination of four young horsemen galloped off victorious today in the first match with Great Britain for the historic international polo cup. The final score was 10 to 5 in favor of the white-clad riders led by Tommy Hitchcock, and it came close to being a complete rout in the final lap.

Organized labor chapters were present and spoke.

GIRL AND FIANCE SLAIN IN MEXICO

STERLING PLATFORM, HARMONY CHIEF SPECULATIVE TOPICS AS STATE PARTY MEETING NEARS

GALVESTON, Texas, Sept. 6 (AP)—The Sterling platform program and the question of party harmony were chief items of speculation here today as Galveston prepared for the invasion of delegates to the state democratic convention Tuesday.

The Sterling road bond plan will not be a part of the formal democratic platform to be adopted in the convention. It was predicted here after party leaders here. No authoritative statement regarding the issue had been received from Ross S. Sterling of Houston, the nominee for governor. It was generally believed, however, that if the bond issue plan is mentioned in the platform it will be merely a mild recommendation for consideration of the voters.

Officials of the executive committee were expected late tonight in advance of the state committee meeting Monday, and other leaders of the party will arrive tomorrow for informal conferences. D. W. Wilcox, chairman of the executive committee, was expected tonight, as was Cone Johnson of Tyler. Mr. Sterling and Governor Dan Moody are due tomorrow. Every effort will be made in preliminary conferences to insure a harmonious convention session and a union of various party factions under the leadership of Mr. Sterling. There is some speculation regarding the influence of Ferguson, followers in various district delegations and several district conferences have been called to discuss means to combat any attempts to place anti-Sterling men on convention committees. Burriss C. Jackson, who managed Sterling's campaign in Hill county, has called a caucus of all delegates from the twelfth senatorial district for Monday night to discuss committee appointments.

Routine details of entertaining the convention have been completed by a local committee working under John L. Darrouzet, chairman of the Galveston delegation. Ses-

Chambers Trial On Murder Charge To Be Called Monday

Trial of C. C. Chambers, under indictment in connection with the fatal wounding of Ray Jones here in May, will be called Monday morning at 10 o'clock by District Judge Fritz R. Smith.

Judge Smith, who has been absent all week on account of a nail wound in his foot, will be able to be on the bench at the opening of the criminal docket week.

A special venire of 80 men has been summoned for duty in the trial of Chambers. Unless a motion for continuance is filed, the case will get under way Monday morning. It was continued from the last term of court and set for Sept. 8.

A number of other criminal cases were carried over from the May term. The criminal docket, with these, is unusually heavy inasmuch as 19 indictments have been returned during the past week by the grand jury.

The first week of district court was practically consumed with one civil case.

C-C DIRECTORS TO MEET

Directors of the Chamber of Commerce will hold an important meeting in the organization's offices Monday evening at 8 o'clock.

SNYDER PUBLIC SQUARE SCENE OF SHOOTING

SNYDER, Texas, Sept. 6 (AP)—Acting as peacemaker between two other men culminated today in the shooting and wounding of O. S. Wills, 58, of Fluvanna, deputy sheriff of Scurry county.

The shooting occurred at noon on the square here. Wills told officers afterward that a man for whom he had been acting as a go-between in a dispute with another man, called him to his automobile and began shooting at him.

Wills struck at the gun and the first shot went wild but the second struck him in the left shoulder. He jumped to the running board of the car and grappled with his assailant, holding the man until Sheriff F. M. Brownfield arrived.

Frank Greer, 30, farmer living five miles south of Fluvanna, was arrested and charged with assault to murder. He later was released on $3,000 bond. His wife and mother were in the automobile with him at the time of the shooting.

Wills was taken to a hospital at Lubbock but late today, attendants reported his condition was not serious.

LUBBOCK SHOOTING
LUBBOCK, Texas, Sept. 6 (AP)—John L. Fisher was released on $2,000 bond today after he had been charged with murder in connection with the fatal shooting of Walter Glover, 19, of Lamb county.

Fisher told officers he shot at the feet of prowlers who awakened him at his filling station at Shallow Water, 12 miles from Lubbock last night. He said he did not know he had killed anyone until officers came to investigate the shooting.

James Jackson Truett and Troy Hawkins, companions of Glover, had taken the slain youth's body to Littlefield. Glover was shot through his heart.

AL SMITH TO SPEAK

NEW YORK, Sept. 6 (AP)—Alfred E. Smith, Democratic candidate for president in 1928, will go into Massachusetts and Rhode Island this fall, the New York Evening Post said today, to assist his party's senatorial and congressional candidates.

Southern Cude-Oil Purchasing company's No. 1 Cowden, wildcat in northern Ector county, was drilling at 4,180 feet Saturday, with no change in the developments which last week branded it one of the most important strikes of the area.

From total depth of 2,990 feet the well swabbed and flowed 97 barrels in 1.12 hours Friday night, according to reports received here. Top of the lime was 2,855 feet.

Small pipe, with perforations and packer, was being run last night.

Louisiana Governor Fails To Produce Missing Men Who Were Expected To Sue Him

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 6 (AP)—Governor Huey P. Long failed to produce at his political rally tonight Samuel Irby and Dawes Terrell, who were kidnaped in a Shreveport hotel and hidden out since early Thursday as they were planning to file suits against the governor.

"We had expected to have these two young men here with us tonight," Governor Long said at the meeting, "but the police and detectives of New Orleans said they would arrest them if they appeared."

While the governor was speaking, a young man who said he was the deputy sheriff of Jefferson parish presented the governor with a batch of papers, which Governor Long said were sworn copies of warrants against Irby and Terrell issued in Jefferson parish and on which they were arrested in Shreveport and brought to Jefferson parish by state officers.

Failure of Irby and Terrell to appear at Long's meeting released many rumors concerning their whereabouts. While it was widely reported that Irby had relia- bly reported that he was in Louisiana, another report said he and Terrell were being held in the home of a Jefferson parish official and still another said they were on a boat down in the Bayou Barataria county south of the city.

Assistant Attorney General E. R. Schowalter said he had no knowledge of the men's whereabouts and that a search was being made for them in every parish in Louisiana. He said he did not believe either Irby or Terrell could be persuaded from their course of bringing suit against Governor Long and of continuing their testimony in the district court at Baton Rouge against the state administration.

Government Now Headed By Uriburu

Street Fighting Marks Advent of Mutinous Army, Navy

By NELSON J. RILEY Associated Press Correspondent Copyright, 1930, and All Rights Reserved by The Associated Press

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 6 (AP)—The Argentine government was thrown out tonight after street fighting which caused at least 15 deaths and 100 injuries.

A new government immediately was set up with the revolt leader, General Jose Evaristo Uriburu, as provisional president, while the former president, Hipolito Yrigoyen, was arrested and confined in the barracks of the Seventh Infantry in the city of La Plata.

Previously Yrigoyen had presented a formal resignation and it was reported he was in very ill health. Dr. Enrique V. Martinez, who was elevated to the presidency yesterday after Yrigoyen had "retired," was president only for a day. He also resigned tonight after the government had raised the white flag before the forces of the army, navy and part of the police.

General Uriburu named a provisional government, decreed martial law, dissolved congress and announced that he would remain in control until order was restored.

Improvements Completed By Episcopalians

First Services Scheduled Today In Remodeled Structure

First services of Morning Prayer since remodeling and redecoration of the structure was finished will be held in St. Mary's Episcopal Protestant church, Fifth and Bunnels streets this morning at 11 o'clock with W. H. Martin, minister in charge, officiating.

The first Episcopal church was built here 45 or 50 years ago. It is said that a brother of the Earl of Aylford gave the site and a sum of money for the first structure.

Several members now active in work of the congregation recall destruction of the church building thirty years ago by a storm. The present structure, one of the pioneer church buildings of Big Spring, has been improved and beautified within the past few weeks.

The improvements have tended to develop more fully the Gothic style of architecture. The windows are of Venetian amber glass. The chancel has been enlarged and choir stalls set off from the main body of the church by panels. The exterior has been stuccoed.

St. Mary's is a mission church under the supervision of Right Reverend E. Cecil Seaman, D. D., Bishop of North Texas.

months in the West Texas Permian basin.

The well made two small heads Friday night.

This test is 21 miles southeast of the producers in Andrews county and 24 miles north and a little east of the Penn pool in Ector county.

Pumping facilities, to be used in forcing water into the hole to make drilling possible below the strong gas flow, were being installed last night over Fuhrman Petroleum Corporation's No. 1 Ford section 16, block A-43, Andrews county, which has been making 20,000 cubic feet of gas daily for several days.

After striking the gas its terrific flow blew cuttings from the hole. When the bit had passed the gas-bearing stratum drillers were unable to make hole and a pump had to be installed.

HENDERSON, Tex., Sept. 6 (AP)—Excitement was at a high pitch in Henderson today, after the Joint Well No. 3 on the Miller farm, seven miles west of Henderson, blew in last night and ran wild through the drill stem for a time while operators were making a well stem test. Oil was blown over the track until valves could be closed and the well muffled in.

Operators predicted the well would be good for 10,000 barrels a week of several thousand barrels per acre the well blow in.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 6 (AP)—Showing an estimated four million cubic feet of gas but no oil.

Mid-Kansas Oil and Gas and Ramsey Petroleum No. 1 Messer, SW 22-14-3 W, west of Edmond, looked like a possible pool opener for Oklahoma County today. Gas was soon introduced a four inch line to the side of the derrick. The well, bottomed at 6,799 feet in the Wilcox sand, blew out wild this morning while cleaning out.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 6 (AP)—Mid-Kansas Oil and Gas and Ramsey Petroleum No. 1 Messer, wildcat, blew wild this morning while drillers were cleaning out the well on bottom after drilling through concrete. The well, which opens a new field in Oklahoma county, is located in SW SW SW 32-14-3, west of Edmond.

229 Miles Of Road Work Is Announced

FORT WORTH, Tex., Sept. 6 (AP)—Hearing to make permanent a temporary injunction obtained by Mrs. Beryl Turman against her husband, Luther C. Turman, millionaire oil man, whom she is suing for divorce, was passed for two weeks by agreement of attorneys here today.

Efforts at reconciliation will be made during that time, the attorneys indicated.

Mrs. Turman was granted a temporary restraining order enjoining her husband from disposing of any portion of the community estate during pendency of the suit. She is from molesting her or taking either of their two children from her. The children are Luther C. Turman Jr., 7, and Thomas R. Turman, 5. The community property listed, consisting of cash, real estate, leases, royalties and interests in producing oil wells in several Texas counties, was valued in excess of $1,000,000.

Turman Divorce Trial Is Delayed Two Weeks

AUSTIN, Sept. 6 (AP)—Improvement of 229 miles of state highways in Bowie, Carson and Cottle counties was announced today by the State Highway Department. The estimated cost of the three projects is $200,000 and brings the total of the contracts 15 and 16 to $1,728,000.

The Bowie county project calls for the construction on Highway 8 of 83 miles of double bituminous paving on a gravel base course with limestone binder from one mile south of the Texas and Pacific Railroad crossing at New Boston to Highway One at Corley. The estimated cost is $80,000.

The Carson county work consists of the construction of drainage structures and grading of 9.9 miles of Highway 75 from near Conway to the Potter county line at a cost of $20,000.

In Cottle county, 41 miles of concrete paving will be constructed on Highway 28 from Paducah, northeast. The contract also calls for the erection of 1,430 feet of wire mesh guard fence at dangerous points. The estimate for this work is $100,000.

Previous to today, the highway department announced road and bridge projects in other counties estimated to cost $1,526,000.

Eckhardt Cinches Batting Laurels

DALLAS, Sept. 6 (AP)—Leading his most persistent rival, Gene Rye of Waco, by 10 percentage points with only four games to go, Big "Os" Eckhardt, of Beaumont virtually had sewed up 1930 batting honors for the Texas League.

Through Wednesday's games and the day game of Thursday, the Exporter slugger had a mark of 379, compared to 369 for Rye.

Two players, Sam Leslie of San Antonio and Homer Peel of Houston, promised to finish with loftier marks than Eckhardt, but neither had played in half as many games.

On the cotton crop, M. H. Wolfe, general manager, announced today. He said the association would advance to the farmers seventy-five per cent of the market value at six per cent interest with a maximum charge of one dollar per bale for grading, marketing and selling.

"Our campaign to hold 3,000,000 bales off the market for higher prices, 20 cents being the goal, is creating wide-spread interest throughout the south and farmers are holding cotton in larger quantities than ever before," Wolfe said. "In most sections from 50 to 75 per cent of the crop is being held."

between the two places."
However, in a preceding paragraph, the Herald columnist passes the following compliment: an appreciable one, on Midland citizen ship. "Midland, as a community, deserves volumes of praise for its aggressiveness, the whole souled loyalty of its citizenship, and ability to work together unselfishly for the common good."
The compliment in that paragraph makes it hard for this editor to get "up in arms," but we do deny that there is any great volume of "deep seated rivalry" on the part of Midland people toward Big Spring, Odessa, Stanton, or any other neighboring city. Not one bit more than there is toward the Sweetwater, Abilene, Fort Worth,

El Paso or Lubbock, and that means that Midland as a community, bears no ill will toward any other town or city.

Midland has had little to work with, in turning from a more or less dusty cow town into a well paved, substantially built little metropolis, the center of a vast and cattle area and of a thriving agricultural territory, except an aggressive citizenship, filled with confidence in Midland and its territory.

Without the start of railroads, payrolls and certain natural advantages that "make things easy" for some towns or cities, Midland people "took the bull by the horns" and have built on faith. Money has been spent in great sums by individual citizens, bonuses have been extended to none, and expansion has been made just ahead of the growth of the country.

Poultry Raisers Face Critical Period—Bush

This is a critical period in the raising of poultry in this section, according to J. V. Bush, county farm agent.

He declared poultry raisers should exercise extreme care in providing clean, comfortable quarters with plenty of floor space and good ventilation which will not, however, form a draft of air upon the birds.

Vaccination, he declared, is accepted as a good practice. He urged cleansing unthrifty pullets of intestinal worms before the pullet flock gets into production, so that they will be in good condition for heavy production in the fall and winter. Feed the pullet flock liberally of grain to keep up the body weight and to help in preventing disastrous fall molt, he advised.

A Trifle Too Enduring

POSSIBLY it's just the summer heat, which always makes things seem hard to bear...

It wasn't so bad, at first. There was, originally, quite a thrill in seeing just how much punishment human bodies would stand.

Probably there is something to be said for the dogged quality of determination that stirs in the breasts of these endurance-record seekers.

After all, it isn't the length of time you can do a thing without stopping that counts so much as it is the way you do it.

The editor of the New Mexico State Tribune, of Albuquerque, recently hit upon an idea that seems to have possibilities in this connection.

There will be no use for any transient man to call at the City Hall to register for employment on city works.

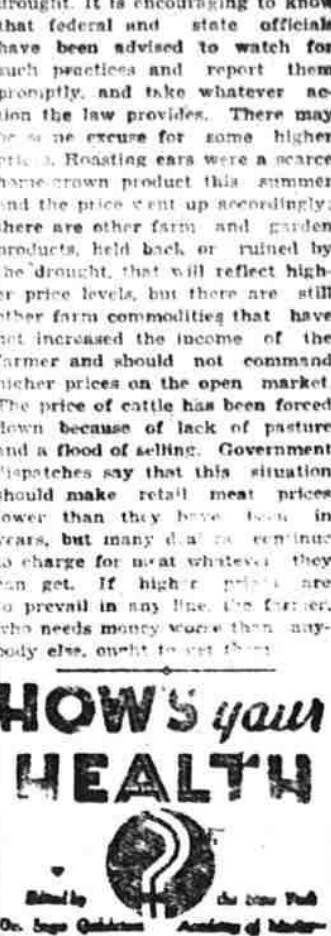

Something like that might be worked out for these adult endurance folk. When a couple of young men prepare to take an airplane flight for a month or so, we might tell them: "Here—we know you have a good plane and we know you're good pilots."

It might work. Who knows? If there's no other way out it ought at least to be worth a trial.

HOW'S your HEALTH

Temperatures. The temperature of a body may be taken in one of several ways.

In the mouth, the temperature is taken by placing the thermometer under the tongue and keeping it there, with the mouth closed, for at least one minute.

Be sure that the patient has not had food or drink for at least fifteen minutes previous to the taking of the temperature.

Normal rectal temperatures are approximately one degree higher than normal temperatures taken in the mouth.

Thermometers may be sterilized by being washed with soap and cold water and then immersed in alcohol.

Never wash a thermometer in water warmer than 110 degrees Fahrenheit—it may burst.

WHAT EDITORS SAY ABOUT T.&P.N.

DR. SPLAWN'S PREDICTION COMES TRUE. Now the Texas Pacific, one of the strong railway systems, has joined the battle royal for railroad territory in Northwest Texas.

It was not so many, many months ago that Dr. Splawn, former member of the Texas Railway Commission, made the assertion that the great Panhandle-Plains area would soon be crisscrossed with railroads.

The potential tonnage of agricultural products and the consequent increasing tonnage to supply the agricultural workers has scarcely been touched. Hand in hand with agriculture oil has played and will play an important part in the development of northwest Texas.

Good days are in prospect for all West Texans. Ecuador has enacted a new patent law replacing former conflicting acts and regulations.

EVERYDAY QUESTIONS

Answered By
Dr. S. Parkes Cadman

Questions from readers are answered daily by the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, Radio Minister of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America. Dr. Cadman seeks to answer inquiries that appear to be representative of the trends of thought in the many letters which he receives.

Buffalo, N. Y.
Why does the Church insist on religious forms and ceremonies? Is it not enough to make religion one's personal matter?

A religion without external authority is at the mercy of every one's whims and fancies. Hence, any faith which grips the human heart and co-ordinates souls in a common experience and aim must be based on the acknowledgement of a controlling power. Christians and Jews unite to define that power as transcendent God, who governs all that is for its ultimate good, and manifests Himself to His children in terms they can apprehend. Christians further believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Eternal Word of God the Father.

How does this faith work? It maintains standardized living, prevents social chaos, and submits our perversities and blunders to a judgment surpassing human wisdom. On the other hand, purely individualistic religion breeds ill-cense and disorganization. We do not sin primarily against ourselves or our fellows but against God. When He is obliterated from the realm of our thought and action, every one is left to do what seems right in his own eyes. The State would not countenance for a moment such looseness with respect to its laws. Neither can the Church. Her forms and ceremonies are intended to emphasize the cardinal verity that man can no more save himself than the State can breed the morality necessary for its protection. In so far as those forms and ceremonies fulfill this function they are to be observed by reverent and believing people.

I have a strange story to tell. I am living in a state you condemn. Yet this love between me and the man of my heart is the one force that makes him do his best work. He says so. What have you to say? Kindly omit address.

Beyond question, love, even when profane in character and unanctioned by society, can kindle to flame the spark in the lover's brain. Super earthy souls in exceedingly earthly bodies have frequently flashed out with almost excessive splendor. Musicians, artists and authors who dedicated their works to their mistresses and painters who used them as their models for some of the world's masterpieces are not unknown to fame.

If nothing more than an episode of creative force were at stake you might find justification for your relationship. As it is you are disturbed by it. Why? Because you are sacrificing the greater for the less.

Good morals surpass fine works. An unpolluted heart is a greater treasure to you than your lover's exquisite taste. Esthetic achievements procured at the cost of virtuous character exact a ruinous price. So you must choose between the transient and the permanent; between your eternal personality and an ephemeral passion. Which shall it be?

Moreover, sooner or later the results of sin ripen in the sinner's deeds. They blur magnificent portraits, prevent music from climbing to spiritual heights and deaden the soul's incentives to recognize the matchless loveliness of simple goodness. What is the use of living in the body if your soul is being slowly impoverished by the process? Read Keat's amazing letters to Fanny Brawne, contained in "The Life of John Keats," by Albert Erlange. This girl, says a recent critic "no less made Keats, the poet than she destroyed Keats the man."

Allentown, Pa.
Why is it that so much advice we get from persons is disagreeable?

Because, as the great French preacher Massillon said, "Agreeable advice is seldom useful advice." Nothing can please many and please long except faithful presentations of human nature. Those who understand it well are aware that its powers for self-deception are endless and active. Robbie Burns wisely observes:

"O wad some pow'r the gifle gie us to see ourselves as others see us."

And foolish notion:
What airs in dress an' gait wad
lea'e us,
And e'en Devotion!"

Small thanks are, usually the market price of sound counsel. Yet a man is so foolish that he cannot offer it even to another wiser than himself. And no man is so wise but that he may easily err if he heeds no admonition except his own. Not "parsons" alone, but all sorts and conditions of men are prone to advise their fellows.

Advice should not be given dogmatically, with an air of finality, or in a violent manner. In this matter human hearts are as delicate as flowers. They remain open to counsel given like the softly falling dew but close up when it resembles a tropical downpour. Further, it should be given disinterestedly.

When we listen to ourselves we too often listen to a flatterer and an apologist. When we listen to a friend, the wounds he inflicts set out vicious stuff and purge the soul of its infections. Good counsel should be backed by good example. The adviser who tells us to do what he says, but not what he does, pulls down with one hand what he builds with the other.

These simple and fundamental rules are binding equally upon clerks and non-clerks who unite to take to steer another man's boat.

GIRL'S DEATH
DETROIT, September 5 (AP)—A 16-year-old girl today was listed as the fifth victim in four days of a slugging who specializes in robbing small shops.

The case of the girl, Ethel Goodsmith, however, differed from others in that she saw her assailant and was able to describe him to police after regaining consciousness at receiving hospital.

The girl was alone in the store of her father, Morris Goodsmith, when the man entered in the yesterday. He attacked her, she said, when she turned around to fill his order for a pair of shoes.

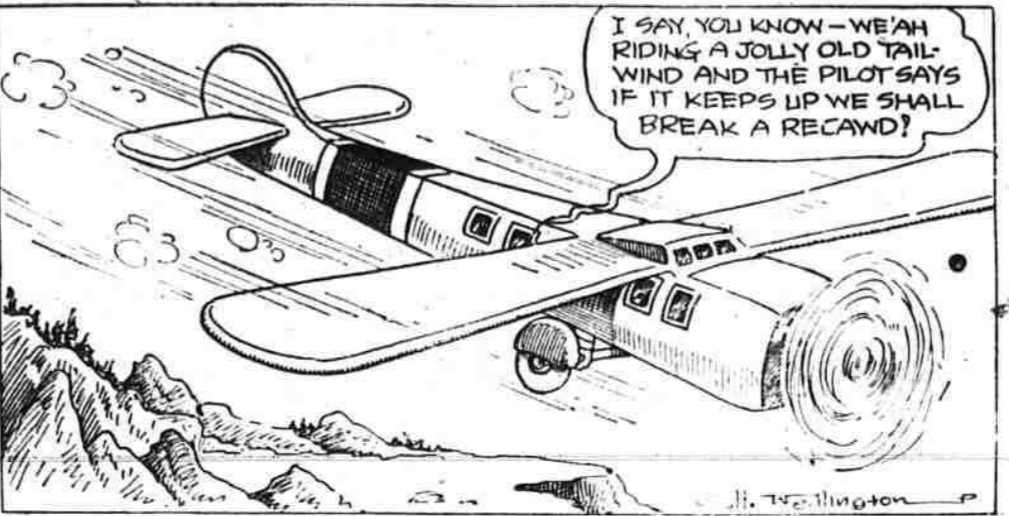

The other four victims were men who said they neither heard nor saw their assailant.

U. S. Plays Miniature Golf On 6,000 Tom Thumb Courses

The Game Was Invented In Chattanooga, Tennessee, Rather By An Accident

Its Inventor, Garnet Carter, Is Amazed At The Success Of His Casual Invention: He Never Plays Golf

Miniature golf, which has swept the United States quite by storm during the past summer, has an interesting tale behind it.

Those of us who putt-putt the little balls through the Alamo and over the Bridge of Sighs wonder at its inventor and probably cuss him a little.

In the "New Yorker" is an interesting resume of the invention and rise of the game to the heights it has reached at present.

Getting diligently to the bottom of this miniature-golf-course business, we find that it was all started in Chattanooga, Tennessee, by a Mr. Garnet Carter, who owns a hotel near there. He is described as a tall, easy-going Southerner who carries Pittsburgh stogies stuffed in several pockets. The Tom Thumb idea came to him about three years ago. He had a regular golf course in connection with his hotel and also a clog-golf arrangement for practicing putting.

One day it struck him that it would be more fun if the clog course were spread around more, with trick hazards. He tried it, and there you are. The idea of using cottonteed hulls for grass, however, wasn't his. He got that from an American named Fairbairn, who owns a cotton plantation in the grassless plains of Mexico. When Fairbairn went down there he was lost without his golf, until he noticed the lawnlake texture taken on by a layer of cottonteed hulls trodden under his peons' feet on the loading platforms. Carter applied the idea to his miniature course. His, too, was the happy thought of dyeing the cottonteed green.

Amazed at Success Carter is still amazed at the success of his casual invention. He hardly ever plays golf himself and on occasion has been heard to speak slightly of those who do. "Dang fools" he has called them more than once. A little while ago he sold his interests in the patent rights for a couple of hundred thousand dollars, the patentable part of the idea being the use of the dyed cottonteed and certain of the hazards. The course at his hotel, however, is now one of the most elaborate in the country. It cost forty thousand dollars and is called Fairland. The holes are named after nursery-tale characters—Peter Pan, Little Red Riding Hood, etc.

6,000 Tom Thumbs The people who made Tom Thumb what it is today, in the North at least, are the Townsend Brothers of the National Pipe Products Corporation, who bought the rights to Carter's patents north of the Mason-Dixon line. William Townsend was visiting his friend Bobby Jones in Atlanta and the ypaused to watch the players at a miniature course, of which there were already many in the south. Townsend at once saw the commercial possibilities. That was last October, and look where things are now: Six thousand courses in the entire country, two hundred in and around New York alone, operating under the Tom Thumb patents, and nobody knows how many others operating outside the patents. The first to be opened in the North was the McAdams course at Elmhurst, named after a partner of the Townsends. It began operating on May 2, this year.

Swankiest The swankiest is at the Atlantic Beach Club. The most profitable and colorful are the two behind the Roxey Theatre, owned by William Fox, where Broadway cavorts after the theatre. Broadway cavorts a thousand dollars a day provided the weather is good. The Tom Thumb courses are being opened at a rate of thirty a day, so fast that the company engineers who install them are transported from town to town by airplane. One man supervised the installation of courses at Coney Island, Hartford, Springfield and Boston all at once. A National Tom Thumb tournament is, of course, the latest development. It is to be held in October at Mr. Carter's Fairland course. First prize, five thousand dollars. —The New Yorker.

Makes Own Way

GUS LANEY

For over three years Gus Laney has made his own living. A familiar figure in Big Spring, he is either busy marking up your miniature golf score or selling you candy and wash ties that his mother makes. In this picture, taken in front of the Big Spring Herald building, Gus has his summer pack of wares. For a long time he sold candy, but it doesn't go so well in the summer, he says. Gus lost his arm several years ago. He has been saving his money for several years: to buy a light comfortable imitation one. Some time ago he sent his $50 away, but as yet has not heard a thing from the company. They have sent him neither his arm nor his money. If he gets it back he says that he won't buy one at present, times are too hard, he can use the $50 for other things.

"Hard Money"

By Clarence Budington Kelland (Harper and Bros.) This is called the romance of a man who stole a bank... not one of your present-day conventional hold-up men, but a historical character who was avenging a wrong. At any rate, it was a perfectly proper stealing with the reader agreeing that he would have done the same thing under the same circumstances.

All of this is mere bally-hoo to advertise a novel dealing with the history of banking. Sounds very technical. But it is really just the sort of technicality that common, every-day people need to know.

"Hard Money" serves two purposes. First, it is a splendidly told history of American banking. Since American bankers are today bankers of the world, the American system seems to have bred the best recognizable brains of today. If you are curious, here's how it happened.

Second, it presents the theory of money making in a very simple understandable way. People who live in a money-mad, money-measured age, such as this, ought to know more about making money. This is not a novel of economy; nothing is said about saving dollars and cents. Money is regarded by the hard-headed Dutchman, who is the chief character, as a servant who works for him. Mr. Kelland shows us how he puts that servant to work.

Many Real Characters

The chief characters are fictitious. No Van Horn, such as the book describes in sentimental detail, ever existed. But he might have well existed. His contemporaries, Cornelius Van Der Bilt and John Jacob Astor are described. The stationmaster of the day, Martin Van Buren, Daniel Webster, Aaron Burr, are part of the story. It is an epoch of the United States when money was a currency of the banks to be issued as the banks pleased, and bankers through their own mistakes learned the principles that underlie present-day banking.

Jan Van Horn was a Dutch tenant living between Albany and New York. His father was a ped-ler who received bank notes from the several states of the union. Their value differed according to the state. He was shrewd enough to cash them for their full value. His son observed and decided to make money work for him likewise. He went to New York and never lost sight of an opportunity to put a dollar to work.

In ten years he became a rich man. Chance favored him but more than chance his natural shrewdness and his foresight threw him in way of opportunity. He was not an opportunist; he created his own opportunities always looking ahead and seeing his way through. He married first a baker's daughter who bore him two sons and brought him only sorrow. He married again the daughter of a socially prominent family. His money and her standing gave him prominence enough to rank alongside the country's biggest men.

Had Faith in His Country Always he had faith in his country and always his faith was justified. If the book has any moral at all it is this. Jan Van Horn expected his country to grow, expand and become a big nation; he invested an undivided money with the end in view, never becoming discouraged at temporary setbacks. His financial attainment was his reward.

Read the book. Not alone as a story, but for the good solid information it gives. Every alert American ought to know more about the financial security of his nation. Here is a story of its foundation, told for the first time. It is an investment that is worth (Continued On Page 8)

SYNOPSIS: Dagger, Marley, on the hell he had died with him. Howard frowned perplexedly. "It's a queer situation," he concluded. "Here I am legally dead, the woman I was married to legally remarried to a man I'm proud to call my friend. I expect my money has been duly distributed to my heirs, and the people I used to know are reconciled to living without me. So I'm more than a man without a country—a man without an identity, unless I choose to carry on as Stacey Hawkins, who died in my arms and said with his last breath: 'No, there isn't a blighter on the world means anything to me, thank God!'"

Dagger frowned in her turn. "I won't marry Stacey Hawkins," she announced. "I don't love him. The man I love is Elaine Howard, and if he's dead we'll have to try some sort of a miracle to bring him back to life."

"Such as?" She laughed loudly, offering her lips. "Is it a fair price?" she asked presently.

And the pressure of his arm was enough response. "Steady, Desmond," she managed to gasp. "Oh, during one breath!" And then, illogically, "I suppose you would have come here anyway. I didn't need to go chasing all over the world after the shadow of a memory."

"I'm not so sure," returned Howard. "I haven't told you this, but just when was it you saw Ghulam Buk?" She told him. "Peculiar! It was that night on Chapter 37

THE END OF THE QU... Within the ranch house, the familiar, cool darkness was like a caress. Uncle Jim, breathing a little hastily, took her elbow and steered her into the living room. Here eyes were becoming accustomed to the darkness, and she recognized the picture of Sir Attila. She still over the mantelpiece, and her copy of the Blue Boy she had treasured. She was glad she had left them at Casa Blanca. She had felt that they particularly belonged in this room; they were a part of all that had come to mean to her. And immersed in the tall figure that rose from a seat beside her.

"Humph!" said Uncle Jim. "Humph! That new foreman, Dagger. Reckon you're acquainted?" She turned, her heart in her throat.

"So you came back to the oasis," said a deep voice that set all her pulses vibrating. "Blaine!" Neither of them heard Jim Marley chuckling as he gingerly tipped away.

"You don't need to make any big 'burry with dinner, Niko," he remarked to the little Japanese cook who still lingered in the hall. A few days later she was riding with Howard on the range. The horses came to a halt, tails flicking idly in the heat. Below, the river was a desultory trickle threading the mud-flats between the wide banks. The only other sign of life was the inevitable pair of buzzards soaring high over Mexico. Dagger kneeled Desmond closer, and leaned her head on Blaine's shoulder.

"It might have been yesterday," she said. "Not for me," he answered a little grimly. She raised her eyes to his, and one hand stole up to pat the silvery streak above his temple. "You went through all kinds of hell, Poor Blaine! But you're really not Blaine Howard now, Blaine Howard is dead, and I reckon

A DAILY CLEANSING HELPS TO KEEP THE SKIN BEAUTIFUL

While most women cannot go to a beauty salon very often, none of us are too busy to set aside a few minutes each day for beauty care at home. There is nothing difficult or complicated about home beauty treatments, and for every mark that age or worry leaves on the face, there is a simple, but effective treatment you can give yourself with your own two hands. You will be surprised how quickly the skin responds to just a few minutes of regular daily care.

A clean skin, of course, is the only basis for any beauty treatment. Given this, and a pair of willing hands, only three toilet necessities are necessary to provide a refreshingly clear complexion. These are: a cleansing cream, plenty of tissues to remove the cream, and a skin tonic to tone and freshen the face.

For a simple yet effective cleansing spread a generous amount of cleansing cream up over the face and neck with your cushioned finger tips. Then, with cleansing tissues wrapped around both your hands, gently wipe away the cream. To remove the last bit of cream and gently close the pores—again, saturate a bit of cotton with skin tonic and wipe up over your face. This will gently guard against open pores, and will leave your skin feeling cool and refreshed—ready for whatever special treatment it may need.

The next I met an American aviator, who'd come up from Shanghai to sell Chang a bunch of old Jerry on as Stacey Hawkins, who died in my arms and said with his last breath: 'No, there isn't a blighter on the world means anything to me, thank God!'"

"I don't know, Dagger," he con-

"I wonder," exclaimed Dagger, "And yet there's reason in your theory. It was Raul who moved me to follow your trail, Elaine. And Sidi Marut gave me courage to go on to India. And Ghulam Buk yes, it all does dovetail."
She fumbled in her breeches pocket and produced the jade luck piece the Tu-chun had given her.

cause he gave it to me, Blaine. That's ridiculous!"
"Any more ridiculous than that your thoughts built a bridge over which we might come together? No, Chang gave it to you deliberately. He believed implicitly in luck—or call it destiny, if you choose. And he believed that his luck was dependent upon this stone. When he gave it to you he was giving a hostage to his luck. He was saying, in effect: 'This woman is all to me. Bring her to me. If that may not be, I do not choose to live!'"

"But it can't be true," she insisted. "Blaine, it's only a little piece of jade that's cold when you touch it, with a dragon twisting around it. How could that kill a man?"
"It didn't kill him. What killed him was the power that he attributed to it in his mind. Thought, again. What you believe in, if you believe with sufficient conviction, is very likely to happen."

Dagger took it back from him. "Shall we throw it away?" she asked suddenly.
"Why?"
"Well, if we believe in it, as you say, it will help to keep us happy. If we don't or if we lose it—" and whenever we go away it will have to bring us back."

"Do you want to go away?" he asked, laughing.
She drew closer to him. Her eyes were seeking his.
"So long as I am with you," she said—"what does it matter?"

New Field Slows Down Teams In Tepid Contest

It took four tepid, dusty and weary quarters, not to mention a fluke pass, for the behemoths of Stevens and Brown and Company to knock off a 6-0 victory over the orange clad McCamey high school aggregation here Saturday afternoon.

As Old Sol beat down on a gridiron that could stand a rain and not register a kick, the team from out west battled the Big Spring crew to a standstill until three minutes of the end of the tilt. The trouble seemed to be that McCamey stopped everything Big Spring started. Numerous substitutions, however, were used by the Big Spring minors during the contest—the first, incidentally, of the season for the local high school contingent.

A satisfactory crowd saw Big Spring let chance after chance get smeared. In the second quarter a beautiful pass from Vaughn to Menece placed the ball within scoring distance, on the Big Spring nine yard line, to be exact, but McCamey lacked the punch to push it over. That was as near as the products of Coach Parks, former Eastland high school sub-coach got to the Big Spring backyard.

At that, however, naturally on the defensive, the McCamey crew darted into the offensive channel time after time and ripped through the Steer line for yardage.

The touchdown—the solitary one of the battle—came near the end of the fourth quarter.

With Rogers tossing and directing the aerial attack instead of Neal, the youth socked the first one to Hopper to place the ball in McCamey's 25 yard line. Another of the same caliber—the Rogers to Hopper variety—picked up 10 yards and placed the ball in striking distance of the goal.

The third of the series departed from Rogers' mitts, sailed to Phillips, bounced back into the melle and landed against Hopper's chest who galloped across the goal line.

Flowers' drop kick in an effort to glean the extra point was blocked. Probably outstanding in the day's performance was the work of Flowers and Rogers in the backfield, Pardue and Henshaw in the forward wall.

The rough condition of the field tended to slow down both of the teams, put a taboo on long punts, and rather complicated things in general.

The Big Spring crew had the McCamey outfit outweighed several pounds to the man, taken on a general average. Fresh material was shot into the fray at rapid intervals during the first half especially.

Saturday's tilt marked the first 1930 appearance of the lads which are dug for plenty of mauling within the next few weeks. It also marked the penultimate one before the first class A tilt of the season, Sept. 19 between Big Spring and Mineral Wells at the water hole.

CY TO QUARTER. MASON HEAVIER STADIUM TEPID

BY GAYLE TALBOT JR., Associated Press Sports Writer DALLAS, Sept. 6 (AP)—A few facts and fancies, some of which might even be news.

Cy Leland, a great halfback last year, will play quarterback for Texas Christian University this fall. There is no reason why he should not make a good one. He is smart and, well, fairly fast. Coach Schmidt expects to develop him into a capable passer, but we doubt he will ever sling a football like Howard Grubbs did last autumn.

Hay Morse, the veteran Dallas infielder, has been lucky since he entered professional ball some 18 years ago. He has played with eight pennant winners, which might be a record for all we know.

Howard Fitzgerald, Spud centerfielder, has been with the same club longer than any player in the Texas League. Six straight years, and the former Southwestern University star still is much of a ball player. Less capable players, but with more color, have gone up to the big tent and stayed there.

Some kind providence, perhaps, caused Mary Zita McHale, Dallas tennis star, to get on the wrong train at St. Louis on her way home from the eastern tournaments. The train she should have caught was wrecked, killing six and injuring many others.

President Alvin Gardner did not award Wichita Falls the disputed game with Beaumont and then reverse his decision. The first ruling was made by the second in command at Texas League headquarters while Gardner was on a fishing trip. Upon his return he reversed it, pronto, which was a popular move, indeed.

Football players are going to find it plenty warm in the State Fair Association's new stadium here. That is, at least, in the early games. The grass will be some 15 feet below ground level and completely encircled by the sweeping stands. Not an opening for even a vagrant breeze. But it should be nice along in November.

Johanne Dunsmore, product of San Antonio sandlots, is the latest addition to the Texas League's umpiring staff. They say he shows much promise. He was given a tough spot when they assigned him to the last Fort Worth series at San Antonio. An Indian hit a long fly down the left line with the bases crammed, and Dunsmore called it fair. The Cats raised no objection, it was foul by three feet, and there almost was a riot.

In fact, there was a scrap after the game, in which a friend of Frank Snyder, Panther foreman, was said to have beaten up an Injan fan. They arrested Snyder but found they had the wrong man.

They say that We don't Mason, versatile Mustang half, is returning from the mountains weighing 170 pounds and fit as a fiddle. That is about 10 more than he scaled last year, when he was the southwest's greatest sophomore back. He and Bruce Kattman should give the Panthers' opponents plenty to think about.

Juanita Bills, freckle faced little tennis star of Masonic home, Fort Worth, is not overburdened with technique, but what a fighting heart that youngster has! She is the new state municipal girls singles and doubles champion. In her final singles match Emily Reichert of San Antonio had her 5-2 and match point yet Juanita pulled out and won.

Dick Whitworth, whose great pitching has featured the Cats' climb to the top in the second half, twirled in 47 games for Austin in the Texas Association a few years ago. He was then, as now, a railroad brakeman in the off season, and he arranged his program so he could work his regular job at night and pitch in the afternoon. There are fewer experts each season who will come out flat-footed and pick the Southwest Conference winner. Up to now, we have not heard nor seen a prediction that didn't carry a half-dozen "ifs" and "providing thirs."

TO PLAN WORLD SERIES - CHICAGO, Sept. 3 (AP)—Representatives of the Chicago, New York, St. Louis and Brooklyn clubs in the National League and of Philadelphia and Washington of the American League today were invited by Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis for a pre-world series conference in Chicago, Sept. 8.

The conference, an annual affair for pennant contenders, will decide dates and other matters for the 1930 world series.

In accordance with organized baseball policy, the first two games of the fall baseball classic will be played in the home park of the American League pennant winner as Chicago of the National League did the first two games of the 1928 contest.

Initial Battle at Wichita Falls Set For Wednesday

BY GAYLE TALBOT, JR., Associated Press Sports Writer DALLAS, Sept. 6 (AP)—Unless Lil Stoner, Dick McCabe or Dick Whitworth comes down with fallen arches or something equally disconcerting within the next three days, the Fort Worth Cats, second half champions of the Texas League, will be favored to lick the Wichita Falls Spudders in their five-game playoff series starting Wednesday at Wichita Falls.

The statement defies tradition, in that a second-half champion never has been victorious in a saw-off. But it defies it on the proposition that no previous second-half winner had a trio of pitchers like Stoner, Whitworth, and McCabe. Those three offer sufficient grounds for defying anything within reason.

Victory in a short series is supposed to hinge approximately 75 per cent on pitching. Granting that the Spuds have the better hitting and fielding club, which, incidentally, is not granted by Cat adherents, they still would be some 50 per centage points in the red on that basis.

McCabe, with two games to play, was the only hurler in the league with 20 victories. Whitworth had 19, Stoner 14. Between them they had lost only 24, and practically all of their defeats were suffered more than a month ago. The trio has been practically unbeatable since the Panthers started their great drive to the title about the middle of August. All three are at top form for the playoff, hot and ready to go.

Prospects are that Manager Frank Snyder will shoot them at the Spudders in one-two-three order, and then start them all over again if the series goes more than the minimum of three games.

Big Three
The Wichita staff does not offer a match for the "Big Three." In Steengraf, big righthander, and Hal Wiltse, southpaw, the first-half champs have a pair who have won 19 games apiece. The trouble is that neither has been able to win lately. Wiltse, in particular, has been a disappointment. After setting the circuit afire during the first half he suddenly lost his effectiveness and has been almost a total loss for two months. If he should suddenly find himself again, he could change the entire aspect of the play-off, but there is no good reason to believe that he will.

Steengraf and Wiltse will have to carry the burden, with Earl Caldwell probably the third starter. Caldwell janks high in games won but has been erratic in recent attempts, as has also Les White, fourth member of the quartet that performed so brilliantly during the first half. Vincent might get the call before either of them.

Series Even
Although the arrangement of two games in Wichita Falls and then three in Fort Worth, starting Saturday, is considered absolutely fair to both sides, baseball men prefer the Cats' end of it. They point out that the Kittens need only to break even in the first two to have a big advantage when they return to their own field for the deciding tilt. Incidentally, the Spudders have been a great road club during the second half.

Another thing that will be in the Panthers' favor is the fact that the play-off catches them right in the middle of a big winning streak, all pepped up and looking for new places to go, while the Spudders undoubtedly have suffered a mental slump in the closing weeks of the race. The Cats will trot on the field Wednesday with confidence in themselves, particularly their pitching staff. The Oilers could not have quite the faith in their hurlers that they had a month back.

Well, the first game has come and gone and it was a clod-hopping affair, literally. They got the play-off of the new athletic field just in time for the players of Big Spring and McCamey to come on. If the farmers think they need rain, they should come down to the new gridiron and sniff some of those daisies. Big Spring won the game finally, but McCamey had Big Spring thinking maybe they weren't going to. It would be next to impossible to advance a concrete opinion of the first showing. Even a team made up entirely of first horses couldn't show up well Saturday with the field in the condition it was. But placed on the basis that it was as much to McCamey's disadvantage as it was to Big Spring's. On that basis, McCamey showed up as well as Big Spring. Of course it was the initial contest, and it was hotter than ironing day in July, and for some it was a rather new experience. Even at that, at times the Big Spring crew displayed need of plenty of everything. Line work was poor, at times. The game with Roby Saturday afternoon should bring out all that is good in the Big Spring crew. McCamey came unheralded, and liked to have kicked over an appreciator. Roby, on the other hand, comes with a reputation in front of them.

Stevens declared Saturday night it was the best opening game since he had been here. Although he was far from satisfied, he too saw the drudgery of that clodded field and that stinging sun. At least forty-five men were in uniform. And some of them were men, too. Big and hefty, hard hitting youths that should be hard to handle. It is well the Mineral Wells game is to be played on a grass field. Very well.

THIRD OILBELT LEAGUE BATTLE THIS AFTERNOON EXPECTED TO ATTRACT CROWD OF BALL FANS

Merrick And Bristow Grabs Second Contest 8-7 Friday To Even Series Count, Third Fray Scheduled Today

Hopping on Cramer's offerings in the seventh inning after McGeath's error at the first sack, Merrick and Bristow drove across two runs to break a 6-6 tally, and won over Magnolia 8-7 in the second of a five game series to decide the winner of the Oilbelt League Friday afternoon.

With the two games evenly split, the third will be played at 4 o'clock this afternoon on the Magnolia diamond near Fortson.

Lefty Lyday came to the rescue of Merrick and Bristow Friday afternoon, not only with his twirling arm but with his big stick. A home run with the bases stacked accounted for four tallies in the second inning. He drove across a run in the first and another in the seventh. After Chapman had gone about as wild as it is possible, Lyday took over the mound in the seventh frame and limited the Magnolia sluggers to a single bingle which accounted for one run, unearned, incidentally.

Anybody's Game
The second tilt was a hectic, saw affair and was any team's outfit until the curtain was rung down.

Magnolia grabbed a four run lead in the first inning on one hit, Chapman, Merrick and Bristow's initial twirling, walked one man and hit three with a pitcher orbit in that inning. The one hit, it should be mentioned, was a four base wallop by none other than Guy Rainey and drove across McGeath who had walked. Two of the runs in that frame were gleaned via the error route with Rose and singer being on the receiving end of the black lines.

Merrick and Bristow tallied a pair in the same frame when Meredith and Tate singled, Meredith tallying on Lyday's sacrifice and Tate tallying across the plate on Bruce Nesbit's triple.

Lyday's Rap
Chapman held the Mag boys at bay in the first of the second, and M. & B. gobble up four tallies on one hit in the last of the frame. Smith went safely to the initial nod on Ferguson's error at third and Brier walked. Meredith struck out and then Lyday slipped the four base package to the boys.

Things started rocking. In the third Ferguson gleaned a single and died on the sacks. Merrick and Bristow went scoreless and Magnolia did the same in the fourth. More restitution. In fact until the first of the seventh it looked like Merrick and Bristow's game with a two run margin. Things happened to alter the prospects however.

Fletcher opened the first of the seventh by placing on Lamb's second error of the day. He was forced by Roten, however. With Roten on the bag, McGeath sent the ball in the general direction of Big Spring for a home run, scoring Roten to tie the tally.

Falls Short
Merrick hand Bristow followed suit, however. Meredith placed on McGeath's error at first, Tate went away after Meredith had stolen second, and Lyday singled to tally Meredith. Lamb followed with a single, and after Nesbitt had popped out to Ferguson, J. Chapman singled to score Lyday and drive across the winning tally.

KITTENS TAKE SPUDS IN THIRD TILT OF SERIES

Robins, Cards, Cubs, Winners

BROOKLYN, Sept. 6 (AP)—The Robins resumed operations in slug-ging today after a three-day layoff and slaughtered the Phillies 22 to 8. The Brooklyn batters connected for 24 hits off the combined deliveries of four Quaker pitchers, Sweetland, Collard, Elliott and Phillips. Adolfo Luque gave the Phils 14 hits, but coasted along behind a big lead and lasted the full game. The Robins started him off with twelve runs in the first three innings then capped their attack with an eight run rally in the fifth.

CUBS 17, PIRATES 11
PITTSBURGH, Sept. 6 (AP)—Chicago won a slug-ging match from Pittsburgh today 19 to 11. The Cubs came from behind with a four run rally in the eighth and scored six more runs in the ninth. Hack Wilson hit his 47th homer.

CARDS 9, REDS 4
ST. LOUIS, Sept. 6 (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals kept up their pace in the National League pennant race by defeating Cincinnati, 9 to 4, here today. Tied with the New York Giants, the Cardinals remain four games behind the Chicago Cubs.

GIANTS 12-7, BRAVES 1-2
BOSTON, Sept. 6 (AP)—After losing three straight to the Braves, the New York Giants came out of their hitting slump today and clouted out two victories over Boston, 12 to 1 and 7 to 2. The Giants pounded Smith and Frankhouse for 13 hits in the opener while Fred Fitzsimmons held the Braves to nine. Bill Walker allowed the Braves only six hits in the second game while the Giants touched Berdel and Cantwell for ten.

SPORTS 5, STEERS 1
SHREVEPORT, Sept. 6 (AP)—Shreveport scored its third consecutive win over Dallas today when Estrada held them to one run and four hits while Grimm and Meadows were touched for 11 hits and 3 runs.

Austin Youth Blasts Hopes Of Frenchmen

Eliminates Great Netter In First Round of Tourney

By TED VOSBURGH, Associated Press Sports Writer FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 6 (AP)—They did not "seed" our Barkley Bell. They tossed him into the thick of the fight without benefit of "seeding," and this afternoon in one of the greatest first round matches ever seen in a national tennis championship tournament, the dynamic Texan proved it was all a mistake by beating the great Jean Borotra of France, 3-0, 6-2, 12-10, 7-5.

The slender, 22 year old kid from Austin was not considered good enough by the tournament committee to be included on the list of 12 American selected for favorable positions in the draw, but he played today like nobody's business to blast out of the tournament a player who still ranks among the greatest under the sun.

Bell left no doubt in the mind of the enthusiastic gallery of 7,000 as to why he was ranked ninth among the players of the nation last year and how he was able to force Henri Cochet to five sets at Wimbledon this summer.

Borotra, treated shabbily by fate in drawing the dangerous Bell for an opening opponent while other favorites faced comparative push-overs, battled with all the strength in his slender, graceful frame and all the courage of his justly famous fighting heart, but Bell had ten years more youth on his side of the net and he prevailed.

"Hold Everything" Hits Ritz Screen Today

Joe E. Brown, Old Favorite, Creating Fun

The circus tent and baseball diamond were sleeping stones which led Joe E. Brown to the stage—and finally to the motion picture screen.

Brown first appeared before the public at the age of nine years as a member of the Frazz, Marvelous, Ashtons, circus acrobats and acrobats, and he remained with this troupe for five years, appearing not only in circuses but also at parks and fairs.

When he was seventeen years old, Brown began his career as a professional baseball player, joining the St. Paul, Minn. team. He played with various "bush league" teams and eventually landed with the New York Yankees, where he sat on the bench several weeks and then went into vaudeville as a member of the team of Pevon and Brown. He played variety circuits for four years after which he entered the ranks of musical comedy and revue, playing important comedy roles in such productions as "Littera Littera," "Jim Jam Jams," "Greenwich Village Follies," "Betty Lee," "Captain Jinks" and "Twinkle Twinkle."

Except for one Vitaphone variety, made when he was appearing in "Twinkle Twinkle," Brown had not appeared on the screen since January, 1928, when he played a role in "Crooks Cut Wits." He immediately created a sensation, and has since been seen in "The Hill of the Show," "Take Me Home," "The Queen of Burlesque," "On With the Show" and "Song of the West"—the latter two attractive Vitaphone productions from the studio of Warner Bros.

Brown is playing the greatest comedy role of his career in "Hold Everything," the Vitaphone picture which is the headliner of the Ritz theatre program for today, Monday and Tuesday, with a cast which also includes Winnie Lightner, Georges Carpentier, Sally O'Neil, Edmund Breese, Dorothy Revier, Bert Roach and Jack Curtis. Roy Del Ruth directed.

"Back Pay" Features Corinne Griffith At Queen Theatre

"Back Pay," Corinne Griffith's latest starring picture for First National, which will headline the bill at the Queen Theatre Monday and Tuesday of this week, is founded on the most famous of all of Fannie Hurst's short stories. The picture of "Back Pay" is during the late world war and one of the important sequences is led in the "Mans Land in France, but directed by William A. Seiter, has almost intimate sidelights on the war rather than any big spectacular battle scenes. There are no shots of troops or soldiers on the march or of enemy armies fighting in the trenches. Instead, the main action is concentrated on a small group of eight American doughboys in a dugout, called to lay out wire entanglements.

CHAMPION LAUGH MAKER

Winnie Lightner proves the right to her title in that fast comedy knockout "Hold Everything," opening today at the Ritz theatre.

These scenes were shot at night exactly as they actually occurred in the war. Grant Withers, who opposite Miss Griffith in the dramatic First National production is one of the firing squad and has his way and is gassed and blinded in the story.

In a new device clockwork mechanism shuts off the gas in a war tent heated at a set time.

ALMOST CAUGHT IN THE ACT

Clive Brook, Fille Dove and Sidney Blackmer, above, are shown in a scene from "Sweethearts and Wives," which will play at the Ritz Wednesday and Thursday.

Rare Combination Of Mystery and Fun Woven Into Photoplay This Week In The Theatres

Once more Billie Dove scores a triumph! Her latest First National and Vitaphone starring picture, "Sweethearts and Wives," at the Ritz theatre, is one of the most completely entertaining and satisfactory films that the reviewer has seen in many a moon. It represents that very difficult combination of mystery and fun which so many producers have striven to achieve, and rarely with success. But "Sweethearts and Wives" tries it in a fresh way. There are novel twists and turns of the plot and characterization. And a highly important point—there is a uniformly excellent cast. Of course Billie Dove would make a whole stellar production in herself but besides the lovely heroine there is Clive Brook in one of the most faultless performances of his distinguished career. Also there is Sidney Blackmer, who has so rapidly become a premier picture figure. And the rest of the dramatic lineup is worthy of these headliners.

"Sweethearts and Wives" tells an enthralling and amusing story in a manner that can only be described as one hundred percent efficient. The dialogue is clever and sparkling, and is perfectly reproduced. Clarence Brown has been known for some time as one of the most finished and talented of Hollywood's directors. Many successful pictures stand to his credit, and to perhaps the most striking feature of the film is its revelation of the versatility of Billie Dove. Which is she—a French maid, an English lady of the upper tanks, a chance traveler? But in spite of these really astonishing metamorphoses she remains in the last analysis, the Billie Dove whom so many thousands of moviegoers know and never fail to flock to see. She is as beautiful as ever, in certain scenes, as a matter of fact, one almost felt that she had grown even more beautiful than before. But could that really be possible? Anyway—she's Billie Dove! You know what that means in one of the most faultless performances of his distinguished career. Also there is Sidney Blackmer, who has so rapidly become a premier picture figure. And the rest of the dramatic lineup is worthy of these headliners.

Dick Arlen Goes To Sea In Ritz Week-End Headliner Sea God

Battle canoes which a few years ago swarmed out of remote bays in the South Sea Islands, filled with warriors seeking heads and the bodies of enemies to eat, are again making martial voyages.

Manned by native crews in full regalia, eleven of these fantastic, shell-decorated craft took part in the filming of Paramount's new talking picture, "The Sea God." This production, featuring Richard Arlen, Fay Wray and Eugene Pallette, and filmed partly on an island in the Pacific, opens a two engagement Friday at the Ritz Theatre.

The war canoes are from thirty to fifty feet long and have a capacity of twenty to seventy-five warriors. They are made with three planks on each side and two narrow boards forming a flat bottom. All the boards have beveled edges and are sewn together by cords made from the stems of vines. The seams are caulked with a material something like rosin, obtained from a jungle tree.

Pearl shells in weird designs decorate the sides of the canoes. At both stern and stem are high beaks ornamented with conch shells. At the bow, just below the line of shells and close to the water, are heads carved of wood. These are supposed to watch for hidden reefs.

These clumsy appearing boats are said to be remarkably sea-worthy and natives have voyaged as far as 150 miles in them. They are propelled by paddles and guided by

And "His" Angel

"Luscious" is an overworked word and so is Fay Wray, because of her screen popularity and lusciousness. She plays opposite Richard Arlen in "Sea God" at the Ritz Friday and Saturday.

In the scenes depicting an attack upon a sailing schooner for which they man their war canoes, the natives carry carved spears eight feet long. These are made of palmwood and decorated with bands of colored hemp. Many of them also carry stone war clubs.

Hoot Gibson, Ever Popular, To Appear At Queen Two Days

Hoot Gibson, ace of Western stars, is coming to the Queen Theatre Friday and Saturday in a thrill-packed Universal western picture, "Spurs," Helen Wright as Gibson's leading lady in this rapid-fire production.

Miss Wright became a leading lady in films before she had witnessed the shooting of a scene. She played opposite Glenn Tryon in "Dames Ahoy." Despite her total lack of picture experience, she gave such a noteworthy performance that her place was immediately established.

"Spurs" is her second picture. She has an appealing romantic role which gives her ample ability to display her exceptional acting talent.

"Spurs" is one of the most exciting pictures ever made by Gibson, whose record for furnishing exciting pictures is known to every one. Gibson gives a broncho-busting exhibition which reveals the extraordinary riding ability that once won for him the all-around championship at the famous Pendleton, Ore., Roundup.

There is plenty of other kinds of wild riding in addition, to say nothing of combats ranging from fist to machine guns. Also, there is a good-sized portion of the comedy for which Gibson's pictures have always been famous.

The notable cast includes Robert Homans, Frank Clark, Buddy Hunter, Gilbert Holmes, William Bettam, Philo McCullough, Cap Anderson, Pete Morrison and Art Ortega. "Spurs" was directed by Reaves Eason.

Don Jose Mojico Is Starred In Picture Billed For Queen

Don Jose Mojico is the answer to the public demand for new faces and figures with romantic appeal in motion pictures, according to Fox Films.

Nearly six feet tall, weighing 170 pounds with a physique of a well-trained athlete, he is one of the most handsome faces and magnetic figures ever presented on the screen. His hair is jet black, with an inclination to wave and he has dark, expressive brown eyes.

He is typically Latin in features and has a winning smile and democratic manner that has made him thousands of friends in the many cities of America where he has appeared in both opera and concert tours.

In addition to a striking and magnetic appearance, Mojico has a lyric tenor voice which won him starring parts with the Chicago Grand Opera Company to whom he has been under contract for the last eight years, since he was twenty-one years old. In fact he has played opposite his discoverer, Mary Garden, and other noted prima donnas.

Mojico's first feature picture, "One Mad Kiss," a Fox picture will be seen at the Queen Theatre Wednesday and Thursday of this week and will serve to introduce a new star who undoubtedly will rank with the greatest of the screen. In this picture he portrays a daring outlaw who defies a Latin American dictator.

Mona Maria, former UFA star, Antonio Moreno and Tom Patricola have prominent roles in the cast. Marcel Silver, well remembered for his productions of Fox success— "Married in Hollywood," directed from a story by Adolph Paul.

EXCELLENT CAST

A good supporting cast that includes Sidney Blackmer, Lella Hyams, Clive Brook, Fletcher Norton, Crawford Kent and Joan Loder, was gotten together for Billie Dove's latest starring picture, "Sweethearts and Wives," the First National and Vitaphone production coming to the Ritz Theatre Wednesday and Thursday.

More airplanes were built in the United States last year, about 4600, than in any other country.

We hot or not, no rhyme intended, two hours old she picked up the got so excited we dropped two sports page of the San Angelo dimes in the hat when we really in times and pointed out 17 mistakes tended to drop one and take out in one column. It was the column four. Not only that but at one time on the left side of the sports em- we so completely forgot ourself that porium. Maybe the little child will be rubbed off the windshield and lead the straying young man back found out what they meant by the

into the safe channels of truth, variety, good fellowship and what not. A coincidence, they say, is something unusual. A coincidence slung us right on the bezer Saturday. Parks, the McCahey coach, was at Eastland last year. Two players of the Maverick squad, Allen and Vaughn were at Eastland last year. Two players on McCahey's lineup were named Allen and Vaughn. Another Eastland player was named Lough. We talked to Lough quite a few minutes before the game Saturday. He wasn't eligible, so he said. Yep, coincidences are strange creatures. The press box Saturday was filled with numerous portables. Doc Hardy occupied a given portion, but we paid him little heed due to the fact he smokes a foul kind of cigarette. Another young man present was Jack Glenn, who is a much worse wise-cracker than his brother who labors in the rear of this establishment, and his other brother Tiddles Glenn, who is reputed to have played errorless baseball in the City League. Frank Boyles couldn't get inside on account of his feet being so big. Outside of 14 others no one was up there but us.

Jones Valley Water Mains Being Built

System To Be Continued Northward, Says Smitham

Water mains are being laid in Jones Valley by the city, under supervision of City Manager Smitham, thus adding another step toward completion of the expansion and extension program for the sewer and water departments inaugurated with funds derived from bond issues voted for those purposes last March 6. Sewer mains already have been built in that section of the city. The water mains will be continued northward from Jones Valley to the North Side. Mr. Smitham said he was placing mains first in the sections of town that have been suffering from lack of pressure or volume of water.

San Angelo Interests To Purchase 1,000 Bales

SAN ANGELO, Texas, Sept. 6.—A thousand bales of cotton at 15 cents per pound and representing $75,000 will be handled in Tom Green county under plans arranged by a committee of business men. The plan will provide at least a fair price for some of the cotton produced in the county, according to C. B. Metcalfe, chairman of the committee of the campaign. The "buy a bale" plan is part of the state-wide program proposed by Gov. Dan Moody.

Efforts will be made by the committee to obtain the widest possible distribution of the benefits to be derived to farmers of the county, Metcalfe said.

Plans are to hold the cotton until it reaches 20 cents a pound.

Gas Supply For Coming Winter Is Ample In Big Spring

The Big Spring Public Service company, now a subsidiary of the Empire Public Service Corporation of Philadelphia, which has fortified the people of Big Spring against shortage of fuel gas by building a 6-inch main northward to the Prairie company's large main from the Panhandle gas fields, announces through its local management that its parent company is now operating forty subsidiary utility companies in parts of twelve states and is supplying seven different utility services to the various communities served.

As the heat of summer shows some signs of declining one naturally turns his thoughts to activities of the winter months," declared the Big Spring Public Service company officials. "The service rendered, while important at all seasons are particularly so during the winter."

"Keeping pace with the growth of the city and its requirements the Big Spring Public Service company has provided a gas supply second to none in the state for a town of this size."

"The local gas supply has been supplemented by the installation of an eight-inch high pressure main from Big Spring to the Amarillo field, in which a practically unlimited supply is available."

It is the aim of the company to continue utilizing all available local gas supply, from the Howard county field.

Pipe Boys' Pet Cat Given Away, Returns Alone From Santone

This is a verified story of a cat with no pedigree, but a staunch heart and tough feet, if nothing else.

The feline in question belongs to Bob Taylor, and is one of the pets of the Big Spring Pipe and Supply Co.

Because a little girl wanted it, the tramp kitten was turned over to her, and she immediately took it away from pipe racks and such things to the tree-laden land of San Antonio.

As it happened, however, the cat preferred grass to grass, and departed in the night—the first night after reaching San Antonio.

Five weeks later, foot sore but certain somewhere there awaited rest for the weary, the cat drifted back into its former home at the Big Spring Pipe and Supply Co.

As stated this is a verified story, of a wandering kitty.
