

Fate of Campus Spirit Now Rests in 'OIW's' Decision

By Bill Wood
FOUR OFFICERS of the "Organization of Independent Women" and their sponsor have written Texas Tech's Administrative Council in protest to last week's unanimous Student Council opinion disapproving their organization on the campus.

As set forth in their communication, following conference with the Dean of Women, there is no precedent for THE TOREADOR's recent suggestion that the "OIW" present its constitution and by-laws to the Student Council for a resolution-opinion. As further set forth in their petition of protest, no such request has been made in the past of any other campus organization—to which the editor agrees again.

But, never in the history of Texas Technological college has the student body faced a crisis so far-reaching in scope as to have direct bearing upon the continued even tenor of campus life!

It is unfortunate, indeed, that this particular organization should unwittingly threaten Tech's campus life, but it offers an opportunity for discussion and class prejudices which have been staved off for 15 years here-to-fore.

Contrary to written statement to the Administrative Council the Student Council did not say the "OIW" would be undemocratic, nor did THE TOREADOR adopt that stand toward the co-eds.

The Student Council was uncontroversially clear in its statement: "We sincerely believe that an Independent Women's Organization on this campus would be a detriment to the spirit of democracy that now prevails."

And THE TOREADOR stands in whole-hearted accordance with that resolution. This student newspaper in general and its editor in particular would attempt a nation-wide repeal of the twenty-first amendment rather than deter 125 determined co-eds—unless we sincerely and conscientiously believed they undoubtedly would prove detrimental to Texas Tech as a whole.

YESTERDAY, a member of the proposed "OIW" lounged in this office and said, "You haven't hurt us; you've only made us stronger."

And to that, the editor has but one reply for the "OIW": THE TOREADOR is not desirous of "hunting" the "OIW." Instead, it is our wish to prove of public service to the other 3375 students on this campus.

We are all citizens of a small city—each with his own ambitions and remorses and dislikes. Yet, there remains within the innermost soul of every citizen of this campus an undeniable amount of civic pride.

That we are proud of the class and campus life we lead here on these high, windy plains of West Texas is self-evident. That we treasure a "howdy" heritage is undisputable. Although we experience our personal difficulties with one-another, no loyal member of this suburb west of Lubbock would pursue for a moment any program which threatened his community either from without or from within.

For these reasons, we believe the "OIW" is perfectly sincere in its own intentions. But, we feel the personal ambition of this organization—albeit the most natural aspirations has momentarily overshadowed its members' concern over the welfare of their community.

THE TOREADOR neither suggests a plan of stopping their organizing, nor does it exist as a possible program. But, the editor DOES believe in the potential members of that organization, themselves.

He believes that with due deliberation and logic, those co-eds in question can see the amount of controversy their organization has caused on the campus; and rather than consider such argument as their personal victory, will recognize the rumble in its true form—a threat to the continued democratic spirit prevalent in this school.

And he believes, further, those co-eds possess sufficient loyalty to your school and mine to abide voluntarily by the resolution handed down by their Student Council.

We've Been Whistling In The Dark Enough

LAST APRIL 16, THE TOREADOR published American colleges' first "propaganda edition." And most students and administration members were prone to regard as further propaganda an editorial appearing in that issue relative to the threat of impending tragedy, were students compelled to court off the campus, away from the watchful eye of police patrol.

That editorial was regrettably prophetic, for this morning a Texas Tech sophomore student lies in Lubbock Sanitarium, his chest and leg slashed by a negro assailant who attacked him and a co-ed companion on the outskirts of Lubbock in their parked automobile.

Already, this one case alone has resulted in enough mortification for two students, enough improper publicity for the college, and enough campus discussion to have justified the repeal of Texas Tech's no-campus-courting rule.

Had their automobile been parked on the campus of Texas Tech, where both are students, the chances of this attack would have been greatly reduced. But, fortunately, the boy will recover, and the girl suffered nothing more serious than shock and the public spotlight.

Quick apprehension by local authorities of the negro attacker and even a swift and rigid punishment will not prevent similar occurrences. Sex crimes, as surely this was intended to be, have been uncommon to this region of the nation.

But, with itinerant labor moving into the South Plains area more and more, and with increased national defense expansion of both population and production, West Texas no longer can enjoy its immunity from outrages of this nature.

So, once more, THE TOREADOR appeals for immediate lifting of the campus-courting ban. Human nature, we still contend, cannot be legislated against. Students are going to park their cars and talk, or smoke or court, whether it be on the campus of this college under the supervision of night-watchmen and Lubbock police, or whether it be on lonely out-skirt roads—where recurrence of last Saturday night's episode is just a question of weeks.

No, Saturday night's assault could have been worse, remember. THE CO-ED GOT AWAY, THAT TIME!!

Send-Off Slated For Red Raiders By Student Body

A SPECIAL pep rally has been called for 7 p. m. today in the Double T gymnasium, according to Chocky Fair, head pep leader. New uniforms will be worn by the pep leaders at the send-off rally for the special buses and football players to leave tomorrow for the Tech-Oklahoma A&M football game.

Coaches Berl Huffman and Odell Morgan are scheduled to speak at the rally. The program also consists of speeches by Red Raider co-captains, Ty Bain and Loyce Baillio, and music by the Texas Tech band.

Chocky Fair, head yell leader, announced today that the new uniforms for the yell leaders had arrived and would be worn for the first time at the Tech-Oklahoma A&M game.

Fair stated that the boys would wear white corduroy pants and white wool sweaters with a red double T set upon a black megaphone as a background. Set in the megaphone will be a small 41 set in white lettering.

The girls will wear red corduroy skirts with sweaters the same as the boys.

Five megaphones have been purchased for the leaders also. These will be black on one side with Texas Tech in red lettering, the other side will be black with Red Raiders set in red lettering.

All club meetings originally scheduled for 7 p. m. have been postponed until after the rally in order that club members may attend.

Students are urged by Fair to bring copies of the yell printed in last week's Toreador to the rally.

Tentative plans have been made for a broadcast of the rally.

Tickets On Sale Here For $1.15; Aggie Day Will Be Celebrated

BUSES FOR the student special to Oklahoma City for the gridiron battle between the Red Raiders and the Oklahoma Aggies will leave from the Women's Dormitory No. 2, Thursday, 11 p. m., announced Harold Thompson, president of the Student Council.

The time of departure from Oklahoma City will be announced at the game, as no word has been received from the student president of Oklahoma A&M concerning any program for the two schools.

Tickets for the game are on sale at the Double T gymnasium for $1.15, but they can be bought after arrival at the game.

The day of the game between the Red Raiders and the Aggies has been designated as Aggie Day for Oklahoma A&M, an annual affair in Oklahoma City. A&M alumni and exes are invited to the game, so Thompson urges that Tech students should make a good showing to compete with the large Aggie section of alumni and students that is expected.

Tickets for the student trip are cards which must have the signatures of the student, academic dean, dean of women or men, and the president of the Student Council. These tickets can be obtained in room 109 of the Administration building or at Dean James G. Albee's office. Each student must present his ticket to the bus driver before the bus leaves.

Home Ec Classes To Plan Program

Frosh And Seniors Chart Year's Work

Both freshmen and senior home economics clubs will organize and plan their work for the year at separate meetings Tuesday.

About 100 freshmen are expected to be present at their meeting in which they will plan programs for the semester, select a chairman, and appoint several committees. This group is sponsored as a part of the professional program of Phi Upsilon Omicron, home economics scholarship society. The committee which is to meet with the freshmen is composed of Katherine Mebus Miller, Doris Nell Tippitt and Mildred Hankins.

The senior home economics class has organized independently for the past several years and is headed this year by Marjory Ridley of Fort Worth. The purpose of Tuesday's meeting is to make plans and elect committees for the annual homecoming breakfast for seniors and alumni.

Also in this connection, Miss Margaret W. Weeks, dean of home economics, announced that all but three of the 45 spring vocational home economics graduates have been placed in positions.

Grayson Meade Added To Staff

Grayson Meade, instructor in vertebrates and research assistant, has been added to the staff of the geology department.

Meade is also a staff member of the West Texas museum, spending half of his time in each capacity. A member of the bureau of economic geology of Texas, Meade was formerly engaged in research for the University of Nebraska.

Brothers Start School Together; Hope To Get Degrees At Same Time

Edgar and Oliver Wischkamper, brothers from Shamrock, have all of their classes together. Both are freshmen aggies taking 19 hours each. Edgar, 19, and Oliver, 18, started to grade school together and finished high school at Shamrock in 1940. Both boys hope to graduate in Agricultural Education.

Lectures Precede Tour Direction By Librarians

Freshman orientation classes are making tours of the Library this week. One of the librarians will show the classes the location of each kind of material the library affords. The tours will be made from 4 to 5 p. m. and from 7 to 8 p. m.

Upper classmen who are not well acquainted with the arrangement of the library are welcome to go on the tours.

The librarians addressed the orientation classes last week by giving lectures preparatory to the tours.

Reading Room In Press Building Will Open Soon

Pending the completion of furniture and equipment which are being made in the NYA workshop is the opening of the Ione Press building. It will be finished in the next few weeks, according to Cecil Horne, head of the journalism department.

The reading room, which will contain a good selection of current publications and reference material, is named for Mrs. Iona B. Hutchinson, donor of the $100 journalism scholarship. She recently gave the department subscriptions to the New York Times and Fortune magazine.

Delay in construction of the furnishings is the result of a fire in the NYA workshop several weeks ago. Materials being used were destroyed.

Ex-Students Plan Homecoming

Plans for the annual homecoming celebration to be held Nov. 8 are now being completed. Highlight of the day will be the Tech-Creighton university football game preceded by the traditional pep rally and parade.

The luncheon and bonfire, the first part of the homecoming program, will be held the night before the game. Tentative plans for the rally and the parade are being made by Edwin Settle, administrative secretary of the Ex-students' association, J. W. Jackson, associate professor of government, and Mart Pederson, associate professor of dairy manufacturing, with the aid of the student council.

Luncheon will be served instead of the usual barbecue or picnic held in previous years. Two dances, one on the campus and the other downtown, will conclude homecoming activities.

Thesis of Dr. A. J. Bahm Reproduced by Microfilm Is Recent Publication

Publication of the doctor's thesis of Dr. Archie J. Bahm, assistant professor of philosophy and sociology, has been announced and the books are now on sale. The thesis, "An Interpretation of the Nature of Presence and Some Implications of the Interpretation," has to do with consciousness or awareness and is mainly the interpretation of a conscious experience.

The thesis was publication No. 329 of the University of Microfilms, and was not printed, but was reproduced by the microfilm method.

Directors to Meet in Fort Worth Saturday

TEXAS TECH'S Board of Directors will meet Saturday, Oct. 4, to open and tabulate bids for the construction of an agriculture building which was authorized by the Texas state legislature last spring. The board will meet in the First National bank building in Ft. Worth at 10 a. m.

NYA Making New Ticket Booths

Two new ticket booths for the Matador football field will be under construction this week at the NYA workshop. Specifications have been received by Harvey P. Christian, supervisor, and the booths will be completed in time for use at the New Mexico university game.

Twenty-five work tables for the journalism department are also being completed. Nine of the tables are ready for delivery now. Book and filing cabinets for the music department and the president's office are nearing completion.

Service Exams Are Announced

Mrs. W. D. Watson, Tech postmistress, has received the following announcements of new Civil Service examinations.

The Civil Service commission announces an examination to secure information specialists to meet the demands of various government agencies. The salaries range from $2,600 to $4,600 a year. Optional branches are press and publications and radio. Professional experience is required in editing or writing for the newspaper, national magazine or informational service or in radio informational work. Appropriate education may be substituted for part of the experience. Applications must be filed not later than Oct. 23.

Other examinations announced include: junior physicist, assistant observer in metrology, assistant and junior agricultural statistician. All application must be sent to the Washington office of the Civil Service commission not later than the closing dates specified. Full information as to the requirements for these examinations, and application forms may be obtained from Charles I. Walter, secretary of the board of U. S. Civil Service examiners or the Tech post-office.

Correction

In meeting a hurried deadline for Saturday's Toreador, a copy reader misinterpreted a story about the agricultural marketing service, which has its headquarters in the textile engineering building, and the headline was misleading. This is a service maintained by the United States department of agriculture and the division of engineering cooperates with the government by furnishing the office space for the organization.

Watch Your Budgets! We've Got A Little Federal Tax of Eight Millions to Pay

Joe College and Tech Co-ed will be watching their budgets after Wednesday, Oct. 1, for they will be among those who will help bear the extra $846,800,000 annual tax burden on articles from A to Z.

Joe wants a tennis racket or a set of golf clubs and finds a 10 per cent tax increase. Cigarettes won't cost him any more, but, because of a 2-cent a thousand and tax on matches he may have to pay for his light.

If Joe spends a half hour in the bowling alley, he may pay a little more because of the annual $15 on bowling alleys.

Tech co-ed finds she will have to pay 10 per cent tax on jewelry. Perfume and luggage she will have a 10 per cent tax also. To start a game of bridge, she will pay a levy of 15 cents a pack for cards. She wants to take a picture of the boy friend there will be a 10 per cent tax on photographic apparatus.

She will be glad she couldn't get that phone in the new dorm for an increase of 5 per cent on local calls and 10 per cent on most long distance calls will be levied.

The movies will cost Joe and Tech Co-ed more also, for the new tax bill puts an approximate 10 per cent tax on all admissions costing 10 cents or more.

Independent Women Lash Back At Toreador and Council

(See "Techsians and Texas," Page One)
FOLLOWING less than 24 hours in the wake of a Student Council resolution, unanimously disapproving their organizing, officers and the sponsor of the impending Organization of Women students struck back at THE TOREADOR and the Student Council via a letter addressed to the Administrative Council, executive body to whom the Student Council sent its resolution.

Herewith is the text of their reply:
Administrative Council
Texas Technological college
Lubbock, Texas
Gentlemen:

Relative to the suggestion made by the editor of THE TOREADOR in the issue of September 24 that the constitution of the Organization of Independent Women be submitted to Student Council, members of the OIW called upon the Dean of Women and were assured by her that there was no precedent for such a suggestion—that no such request had been made in the past of any other campus organization. In fact, the Student Council did not itself make any such request, nor did it invite a representative of the organization to present its aims or purposes. Consequently, it was with surprise that the OIW learned of the action of the council.

Certain questions seem to the OIW to be pertinent:

Why was such condemnation in order without a hearing from the organization in question?

Why were the officers of the OIW assured, when a member of the Student Council, as an individual, requested a copy of the constitution, that no such action was pending?

Why was the OIW given no opportunity

Two to One Favor Hawaii for State

(By Associated Collegiate Press)
A recent survey of the American Institute of Public Opinion was concerned with the possibility of statehood for Hawaii. Response indicated that of those persons polled, something like a majority of two-to-one favored the passage of an act of congress admitting the island possession of this nation into the union as a full-fledged state.

Interesting enough, Hawaii has asked for admission to the union as the forty-ninth state, with a vote of two-to-one for admission. The question of statehood for Hawaii is one of whether or not this nation should admit as a state a territory which is physically not a part of this continent. Hawaii lays some 2,100 miles away from Los Angeles, in mid-Pacific. The nearest land is 2,000 miles away.

Perhaps this "annexation" will come about in the course of time.—The Daily Iowan.

Candidly Speaking . . .

DOES THE joint U. S.-British seizure of control of the seas draw us nearer to a declared war or does it lessen the threat? This question all important to our land and involving the future of almost 150,000,000 Americans, brought serious answers from thoughtful students.

BOB IZZARD, native son of Amarillo, says this: "It is another step to keep ahead of Hitler. If staying ahead of Hitler means going to war against him, then, yes, it is drawing us nearer to a declared war."

Sophomore BOB LILLY has this comment: "This doesn't draw us nearer to a declaration of war, but lessens the threat. With the U. S. helping Britain, she has more time to concentrate on the Nazis, and therefore with little participation we can bring the war to an end."

THELBERT MILLER, junior in the aggie school, is optimistic to this extent, "I believe it tends to lessen the threat because when we show Hitler that we mean business about trying to keep the freedom of the seas, he will back down on his policy of trying to conquer the world by force."

BETTY HAFLEY, senior in Home Economics, gives us a feminine view. "It is a step nearer war, but it is one way of keeping Hitler over there."

Pre-law Major WORTHAM SEALE, answers hesitatingly, "It is a serious question, but I feel that this firm act by the U. S. and Britain will help keep us from getting involved in the war."

Other students regarded the question with such seriousness as to withhold a definite answer.

to speak on its own behalf?
Was the constitution of the organization read in its entirety to the council, or by any member of the Council?

As we understand it, the criticism of the Council, as voiced through the columns of THE TOREADOR, is that the OIW would be undemocratic.

Fun Editor Finds Poker Isn't So Funny After All

By ARLEE GOWEN

HAVING nothing more important to do Saturday peyem, I find myself "sittin' in" on a little game of hole card, still trying to fill that inside straight. According to the law of averages, (if that hasn't been repealed along with the Neutrality Act) everything happens at least once during eternity. And I accomplished the impossible; I hit the one inside straight.

Kibitzers standing behind me put on their pokerest poker faces, and I put on an expression of sincere disgust that would have done justice to any dust bowl farmer during the drought. We waited a while, twiddled our respective and collective thumbs, and then in a twinkling of an aurora borealis, my bettin' hand went into action.

Usually I play with the conservation of a one-armed Scotchman, but by the time the ante got to me it had risen to astronomical proportions. Somebody turned on the radio to relieve the nervous tension and amid many other polutions of the ether, I learned that Texas had the ball on Colorado's 45-yard line. I topped the bet of my chief opposition much to the dismay of my private poker stooge, kibitzering directly behind him who began babbling something which sounded like Coke Tales.

THEN Jack Crain broke through the Colorado line for 35 yards and in the excitement I called my opponents raise and kicked the ante and my stooge went into St. Vit.

Then came the payoff. I tossed down my straight and rubbed my greasy palms in contemplation of all the shekels I was going to rake off. My stayer, with an exquisite sense of delayed torture laid down his hand as slowly as the movements of a paralytic snail. I read and wept.

He held a full house, Colorado held the ball on its own 10, and I held my temper and the bottom of my chair with both hands.

Moral: Never draw to an inside straight while listening to Texas Rose Bowl prospects play.

Fish Tests Back By November 1

Results of the psychological examinations taken by the freshman in the arts and sciences division will be announced around Nov. 1 by the education department.

All major colleges of the United States give tests similar to the one given at Tech. By spring it will be known how Tech stands in relation to the other colleges of the state and in May how it ranks with all the colleges of the 48 states.

A comparison of freshmen in various sections of the country can be made on an impartial basis by means of these examinations. These tests are compulsory for freshmen.

Infra-Red Flash Picture Hailed For Sport Use

Editor, The Toreador,
I suppose everyone knows that they cannot see where they are going when they meet a set of bright lights on the highway at night—everyone except the thoughtful guy behind the lights of course. If we bring that closer and put it on the campus, we see ole "Red Raider" coming down the field with all he's got, then just as an opponent closes in—just when he needs that side step—FLASH!—and he cannot see where to side-step. We start here with the second down. "Red" cruises out in front where a pass comes his way. It's almost in his hands—another good picture is made for a paper instead of buying a football ticket—but how is "Red" going to handle the pass?

After the football season put "Red Raider" in shorts and let him play basketball. The same situation happens again. There should be some way to get a few pictures and yet let the game be un molested.

In Mechanix Illustrated for March, is an article on invisible flash photography with infra red light and films. Why not give the players a break and let them see what they are doing?

Selective Service Team May Play In Sun Bowl Grid Class Jan. 1

El Paso, Sept. 30—Border Conference and Southwestern Sun Bowl officials were in a huddle here this week talking over early season prospects for the seventh annual Sun Bowl classic which is to be held in El Paso on New Year's Day.

Prospects of a Selective Service team meeting a crack collegiate eleven in the traditional bowl tilt have drawn challenges from various army camps throughout the United States. Most recent inquiry came from Fort Ord, California. The coastal camp is expecting to turn out one of the best service teams in the country and is very desirous of meeting another team, service or otherwise, on New Year's Day.

Earlier Maj. Gen. Innis P. Swift, commander at Fort Bliss, expressed confidence that a team from his post would play in the bowl contest.

"After the troops return from the maneuvers—or toughening up period—in the Louisiana swamps, they are starting a gruelling series of rugged games, hoping to end up in the Sun Bowl on New Year's Day," said Gen. Swift.

Bowl officials are also eagle-eyeing other teams who have shown their wares before in the Border city. Utah University, Western

Men In Red May Spring Surprise

Raiders' Aerial Circus To Contest Aggies

By CHOC HUTCHESON
Toreador Sports Writer

SOME 35 Texas Tech Red Raiders leave tomorrow for Oklahoma City, where Friday night they face one of the toughest assignments on tap for this year's football team—the Aggies of Oklahoma A. & M.

Assistant Coach Berl Huffman announced yesterday that the squad would leave at eight a.m. Thursday. This schedule will put the Techsans in the capital of the Sooner state in time for a workout under the lights Thursday night.

Huffman has just returned from Oklahoma, where he and head coach Dell Morgan scouted the Aggies in their game with Oklahoma University last Saturday.

Your correspondent asked Coach Morgan how the Aggies looked in taking that 19-0 drubbing from the Sooners, and before he finished telling us about the game, we learned several things which were missing from the stories we had read in the newspapers. The points on which he enlightened us were as follows:

(1) Oklahoma A & M had two touchdowns called back because of rules infractions.

(2) The Aggies seriously threatened the O. U. goal line no less than six times, and the gun sounding the half found them within a hand's span of the goal line with a first down.

(3) Although Jimmy Reynolds received the writers' praise as the sparkplug of the A & M team, the Aggie who most impressed Huffman was Marvin Salmon, a back from Russellville, Ark. Huffman said that Salmon's kicking and passing kept the Aggies in the ball game all the way, and that although Reynolds is really a first-class back, Salmon completely overshadowed him in the Sooner game.

In preparation for Friday night's game, the Raiders went through hard workouts Monday and Tuesday, working chiefly on defense with which they hope to stop the smooth Aggie offense.

When Huffman was asked if he expected the Aggies to do much passing, he replied, "They throw 41 against Oklahoma. What do you think?"

Reserve, Catholic University and West Virginia are all keeping scouts working overtime with their early season prowess.

Sister Marie Giannino, SDC, a third cousin of Pope Pius XII, has enrolled for the spring semester at Mount Mary college, Milwaukee.

Overwhelming the New Mexico Aggies 21-6 the Texas Tech Picadors tacked up another victory in Roswell Saturday. The green yearlings showed plenty of power and speed against the cadet eleven.

Sparked by Leete Jackson, Lubbock all-state back and Clyde Clark of Amarillo, the backs picked up a total of 317 yards.

Taking the opening kick-off, the Picadors powered their way to the two yard line where they lost the ball on downs. Taking a Cadet kick on the 45 they marched back to the pay stripe with Standefer plunging over the one-yard line.

Leete Jackson gathered in an Aggie punt and galloped 75 yards behind a wall of blockers to ring up another tally in the second quarter. Clyde Clark made the final score after Zoller intercepted a flat pass on the Cadets' 29-yard line.

Playing the entire squad of 39, coaches "Nick" Nichols and Rafe Nabors, were well pleased with the performance, but stated the boys needed more conditioning than they had received in their two weeks work.

Although the Cadets had only five returning lettermen, they equalled the Picadors in weight. Roy Hull received the only injury when he pulled a ligament in his right leg.

The Picadors will have until Oct. 25 to prepare for the Cameron Aggie game with the third team will give the yearlings added experience for the Aggie tilt.

First Winner In Sears' Contest Is Announced

Milard Gillham, senior agricultural student, and football prognosticator, copped the Sears-guessing contest by foretelling the winners in the all ten of last Saturday's gridiron encounters.

Closed behind Gillham were Milton Dean, George Watford and Allen McArthur, all of whom prophesied the victors but lacked the ability to pick scores as close as the Tech aggie.

Judging by point system of subtracting the guess from the actual score or vice versa, Gillham cracked out a seventeen point margin over his nearest competitor. The winning farmer missed the score of seven of the teams by only one point and hit two others on the nose but faltered in the stretch to raise his final tally to a minus 124.

Milton Dean lost his chance to take down the weekly $5 prize by losing 29 points on the Wake Forest-Duke game with his 14 to 0 prophecy in favor of Duke. However, his count of 141 gave him a second place position on the grand prize of $50 which may be given to the person ending the 10 weeks' contest with the highest average.

The third place contestant, George Watford, marked up the only bull's eye among the top four leaders by chancing a 14 to 6 count on the Minnesota-Washington tilt, which ended just that way. Watford's final tally was 149.

Nineteen points back of Watford in fourth place was another agricultural student, Allen McArthur with a total of 168.

Vanderbilt and Ohio State threw most of the $7 entrants to the side-line by whipping Purdue and Missouri respectively. Only eight from the entire list picked both of these games correctly.

This year's number of entrants is well above former seasons and indications show that a larger number of students are taking interest than in previous years.

Firms Make Donations To Textile Engineers

Various firms have made donations to the textile engineering department. Materials given the department include:

- 866 bobbins from the Bowen-Hunter Bobbin company; 1 pint of gumolin, 8 ounces of stantone; 1 quart of retardine from Standard Chemical Products, Inc.; 100 pounds starch from A. E. Staley Manufacturing company; 70 pounds of starch from Clinton Company; 1 package of sodium hydrosulfite from the Arkansas Company; and 50 pounds of flake caustic soda from Mathieson Alkali Works, Inc.

He Dreams of It All Night; He Wades in It All Day--Toreador Writer Going Nuts

By SAM MALONE
Toreador Staff Writer

MUD . . . MUD . . . MUD . . . everywhere, just mud. That's a heck of a subject for any able-minded journalist to write about. At night I dream of wading through mud 10 feet deep. In the day-time I wade through mud almost that bad. Even the sidewalks are covered with the stuff. I've literally ruined every pair of shoes I own. Yes, sir, both of them.

Look's like there should have been requisition made to have a universal underground irrigation system so the top of the ground would at least stay firm enough to stand erect on. But whoever gave the firm order thoughtlessly had cars, busses and overshoes

Co-eds Unpack Boots and Fur Collars to Keep Warm

By M. M. Tunnell

THE WEATHER MAN has made some changes the past few days in both the weather and wearing apparel on the campus, particularly among the date bound and class going co-eds. Heavy plaid swaggar coats with fur collars are keeping many ears, etc., warm now as well as reversible plaid and gabardine rain coats.

Margaret Martin has a new pair of shop-made cowboy boots which she says are ideal for sloppy weather as well as horseback riding. Speaking of pretty boots, have you seen the blue suede red kid combinations that Billie Blackburn has?

Sunday proved a veritable paradise to males on the campus. This red-letter day was open house for women's dorm No. 2, and swarms of green capped freshmen as well as "dignified" upperclassmen took advantage of this. The girls' rooms were inspected from stem to stern. Why do men always feel risque in the open house Sunday. Aside from being tops in catering and managing, Miss Craddock is a genius with flower arrangements as evidenced by the charming appearance of the lounge in its holiday clothes.

Margery Hills continues year after year to be on of Tech's best-dressed co-eds. Have you ever seen Billie Jo Dodson with one hair out of place? Perfect grooming is a good two word description for this petite fille.

Chatter is already flying thick and fast as to "what shall I wear on the special?" Regardless of what you wear or take to the Tech-A & M game, one bit of good advice would be to take the heaviest coat you have just in case a good Oklahoma squatter hits.

To the agriculturally minded girls here is a bit of reminiscing by Elizabeth Draper: "You made hay while the sun was bright; I sowed wild oats by the moon at night; You may be stacked in bundles neat; But the lingering taste of my oats is sweet."

Predictions of Tech Instructor Become Reality

Tech campus is not without its prophets. Only last year Tech's professor of history, Charles D. Eaves, in a series of articles written especially for THE TOREADOR predicted the downfall of France and the assault on England.

"Adolph Hitler and the twelve apostles of his inner circle, including Goebbels and Goering, are little better than cutthroats. They are out to make the German race masters of the world."

In addition, he foresaw the need for a highly mechanized army, advocated the conscription and training of two million men in methods of warfare as soon as possible, advised the conscription of industry, and an increase in war appropriations to 20 billion dollars a year. "Otherwise," he stated, "we will be easy pickings for Herr Hitler."

BA Working Class Meets

Students of the business administration working class will meet at 7 o'clock tonight at the Lubbock Auto company where J. D. McPhaul, sales manager of the store, will speak to them.

Student Teachers Visit

Tech students taking elementary teaching have been visiting the Lubbock public schools this week. They visited the Dunbar school Monday and the Guadalupe school Tuesday.

When it gets cloudy the instructors could prepare a series of lectures for the student to read at home. But this would not give the student a proper amount of class cuts, or some student who could not read would fall to get his daily assignments.

There is NO solution. We are doomed. MUD . . . MUD . . . everywhere, MUD . . . MUD . . .

Tech ROTC Unit Shows Increase Of 8.1 Per Cent

Enrollment in Texas Tech's ROTC unit has increased 8.1 per cent over last year's figures, according to Capt. B. D. Rindlaub, head of the division of military science and tactics.

First and second-year basic training groups show increases of 9.8 and 14.3 per cent respectively. First year advanced training enrollment decreased 15.8 per cent, while the second year advanced class rose to 7.4 per cent. Total number of cadets is 334, plus a 40-piece military band replacing a 30-piece band of last year. The first ceremony is scheduled for Oct. 23.

Deans Will Speak At Annual Picnic

Deans James G. Allen and Mary W. Doak will speak at "La Spree," annual YMCA-YWCA picnic to be held from 6 to 8 p.m. in Aggie grove.

The picnic is a get-acquainted affair honoring freshmen and new students, according to the announcement of co-presidents Wanda Kimbrell and Neyland Hester.

Other entertainment will consist of folk games, to be directed by Jack Lewis of the First Presbyterian church, and special music by Lucy Dean Rose.

Tickets, 20 cents each, may be purchased at any time from any of the cabinet members, at the "Y" office or from Helen Ruth West, chairman of the ticket sales committee.

Neyland Hester, sophomore student of Bovina, has recently been elected to serve as co-president of the "Y" with Wanda Kimbrell.

Ellsworth Talks On Citizenship

Dr. J. O. Ellsworth, head of the economic and business administration department, was the principal speaker at last night's meeting of the Tahoka Retail Merchants Credit association.

He discussed "Citizenship," which was the last of a series of speeches before this group of business men.

FINE JUDGES AT TRI-STATE

N. C. Fine, assistant professor of animal husbandry, left Tuesday for Amarillo where he will judge dairy cattle Wednesday and Thursday at the Tri-state fair.

Liar's Contest Highlights ASCE Smoker Friday

A liar's contest will be the main attraction of the annual smoker of Tech's chapter of ASCE to be held Friday, Oct. 3, at 7:30 p.m. in room 110 of the Engineering Building.

The contest is to be judged by L. V. Nothstne, instructor in the civil engineering department. Regular meetings of the chapter will be held on the first and third Mondays of each month. All civil engineers are invited to attend the smoker and the next regular meeting, to be held Monday, Oct. 6, at 7:15 p.m. in room E109.

New Graduate Plan In Effect

EVANSTON, ILL., Sept. 30—(ACP)—A co-operative arrangement between the school of education and Medill school of journalism at Northwestern University, first of its kind in American educational circles, goes into effect this fall, providing a joint-degree program enabling students to receive their bachelor's degree in education at the end of the fourth year and their master's degree in journalism at the end of the fifth.

The new plan supplements a teachers' sequence offered by Medill in which students may receive the master's degree by coming up through the college of liberal arts. The new joint-degree program permits a stronger background in education.

Students in the new program remain in the school of education for their first three years. They transfer to journalism for their fourth and fifth years but receive their bachelor's degree from the school of education at the end of the fourth.

Added emphasis on home economics training is expected to boost enrollment of women students at the University of California college of agriculture.

Las Leales May Have Hand In USO Organization Here

POSSIBILITIES of formation of a local USO branch in cooperation with Lubbock civic organizations were discussed at the first regular meeting of Las Leales Monday night.

Tentative plans provide for participation of college groups, under the direction of Las Leales, in recreational programs sponsored by the proposed USO for cadets at the Twin Engine air base.

Patterned after plans now in operation at a number of colleges adjacent to training camps, recreational programs would be chaperoned by local women's service clubs. Tech students receiving bids to each function would be carefully selected by the sponsor organization, and cadets to attend would be designated by superior officers.

Las Leales, honorary women's service organization, is composed of 20 women students of junior and senior standing selected on the basis of character and leadership. President for the year is Twila Farrell.

Sponsors are President Clifford B. Jones and Deans Mary W. Doak, Margaret W. Weeks, and James M. Gordon.

Ex-Students Are Married Sunday

Allie Henderson of Farwell, Texas, and Aubrey Willard of Wellington, were married Sunday, Sept. 28, in Lawton, Okla.

The bridal couple were students in Texas Tech and were graduated last June. Willard is employed by the U. S. government as junior health engineer at McAllen.

Program at the convention will consist of banquets, a formal dance, demonstrations of model club activities and attendance of a football game between Penn State and Harvard University.

Only other Texas representatives to the convention will be from the University of Texas and Rice Institute.

Though Millsaps college is supported by the Methodist church, its Baptist union, only denominational organization on the campus has a membership of 108 out of a student body of 600.

"Life" and the current news magazines head the library lending list at Syracuse university.

Plans Completed For Hodge Podge Dance Oct. 10

Date for annual sophomore Hodge Podge has been set for Oct. 10, according to James Stokes, president of the class. Hodge Podge queen was also chosen at the meeting last night and will be introduced at the dance.

Jack York has been contracted to play for the affair and a committee was appointed to take charge of general arrangements.

SAME Will Honor Rushees With A Smoker Thursday

Prospective pledges of the Society of American Military Engineers will be honored at a smoker from 7:30 to 9:30 p. m. Thursday in the north ballroom of the Lubbock hotel.

All second year basic and first and second year advanced military students are invited to attend according to president C. J. Griggs.

Special guests will be club sponsors, Capt. Bruce D. Rindlaub and Lt. Henry D. Weston.

Canyon Teachers Bow To Netmen

Tech Squad Wins In Doubles And Singles

Texas Tech tennis squad inaugurated its fall inter-collegiate tourneys with a smashing victory over the West Texas State Teachers college Buffaloes Saturday on Tech courts in the face of a strong wind.

The netmen, coached by Dean James G. Allen, captured every match in the tourney, although both teams were hampered by a stiff southern breeze. The Canyon team is the first squad to meet the Raider men this season.

The No. 1 singles player, Max Munn, defeated Bobby Skeen of the Buffs, 3-6, 6-3, 6-1; Jack Lovelace, No. 2 man, won from Clark Jones, 6-4, 6-2; Harold Yeager, No. 3 net man, won from Gerald Matlock, 7-5, 6-1, and Lloyd Brunson, No. 4 on the squad, defeated W. J. Wooten, 8-10, 6-4, 6-2.

In the doubles, Munn and Lovelace defeated Skeen and Jones, 6-2, 6-4, and Story teamed with Brunson to defeat Matlock and Wooten, 6-3, 6-4.

Tech's tennis squad will go to Canyon later in the season to meet the Buffaloes again.

After a year of ineptibility Max Munn, Tech's No. 1 net man appears to be another Wilson Chapman in the making for Tech. His forehand drives and sizzling back hand shots mark him as the man to be watched in the fall tourneys.

Jack Lovelace and Munn appear to be a natural doubles team as they defeated the Buffalo racketeers in both matches. Tech has been looking for a tennis pair with the precision of Lovelace and Munn for the past year and a half.
