Something To Interest Everybody Can Be Found At Local Museum

By RUTH MINTNER

Old timers get a thrill over seeing possessions of their friends and family used to use, children walk around and stare in amazement over the old-time articles, and everyone enjoys seeing the old relics and curios at the West Texas Memorial Museum at the city park.

Indian relics, war implements, old snapshots, and even an ancient Edison phonograph are some of the displayed articles.

The museum, originated and sponsored by Mrs. Mary Rumpass, is open every afternoon from 1 till 5:30 o'clock, and is taken care of by Mrs. Ellen Davis. Around twenty to fifty persons from over the United States call at the museum every day, although on Sundays around two or three hundred usually come. On July 4 approximately 600 persons inspected the museum.

In the museum may be seen the wedding dress of Mrs. Cliff Talbot. Although the satin ribbons are slightly yellowed with age, the dress has retained its original beauty. The late J. H. Hefley presented a box picture, real flowers covered with glass, that was made about 1800.

On the wall are mounted bear and deer heads given to the museum by the late Albert Fisher. Portraits of Marion Coffee and of Uncle Billy Davenport that were painted by the late H. W. Caylor, were donated by Mrs. Caylor.

A quilt made by the mother of Mrs. E. F. Settles around 1884 has a card on it explaining that her mother picked the cotton and sheared the wool for the quilt and then went through all the process to weaving the quilt. Seven photographs, some old and some new of western life, were donated by Mrs. L. S. McDowell.

Photographs of the flood of 1902 were given by Mrs. Loretta Stockton, and Earl Reagan has donated a hand grenade like those used in the World War.

The oldest item in the museum is a Dutch wine mug brought over from Holland around 1700.

Report Given On The Baptist Encampment

Report on the Baptist encampment at the city park was given by Mrs. Carl Grant for the Y.W.A. of West 4th St. church when members met at the church Monday night.

LANE HUDSON'S HORSE, SOBRELAS OLAS, WINS BLUE RIBBON IN MINERAL WELLS SHOW

Until another show comes along to prove otherwise, one of, if not the top Palomino stallion in Texas is Sobrelas Olas, winner of the Palomino show at Mineral Wells Saturday.

Sobrelas Olas, owned and shown by Lane Hudson, Big Spring, took the grand championship of the Mineral Wells event after winning his class over a field of 18 stallions three years and over.

The animal, bred by W. B. Mitchell and Sons of Marfa, was shown in the Big Spring horse show April 21 and placed third. His second time out, however, he won over all ages of Palominos exhibited by some of the leading breeders of the state.

Dr. Verne Scott, head of the animal husbandry department at John Tarleton college in Stephenville, and who judged the show, was highly enthusiastic about Sobrelas Olas, which means "over the waves." Dr. Scott regarded him as a "perfect horse" and as one of the most outstanding Palominos he had ever seen.

While he said he could find no fault with any point on the horse, he was especially impressed by the head and neck.

After the judging, Sobrelas Olas was shown along side of the winning mare exhibited by Dr. Arthur Zapp, Mineral Wells, and bred by Mr. and Mrs. M. K. Witt of Coleman.

Lane, who has always been a horse fancier, was presented with the colt by his father, J. L. Hudson, when the animal was a colt of eight months.

The horse is of quarterhorse and thoroughbred breeding and carries register No. 277. Although a member of the Palomino association since its organization, the Mineral Wells show was the first outside Big Spring that Lane had made with his horse.

Another feature of the show, which was a feature of the annual Mineral Wells health festival, was the first all-Palomino horse rodeo. The parade, too, was a colorful one and ridden by men in gold shirts and light trousers. Directors of the state Palomino association were present, had several meetings and planned on the Abilene show in the autumn.

Prior to the judging Lane put a price of $1,500 on his stallion. After the show, he could have had a taker, but the championship made him worth vastly more.

Keep Up Fight To Gain Lower Hauling Rates

ATLANTA, July 16 (AP)—Southern representatives, contending a "one arm farm system" has developed in Dixie areas, continued their fight before interstate commerce commission examiners today to gain lower rates on livestock hauling.

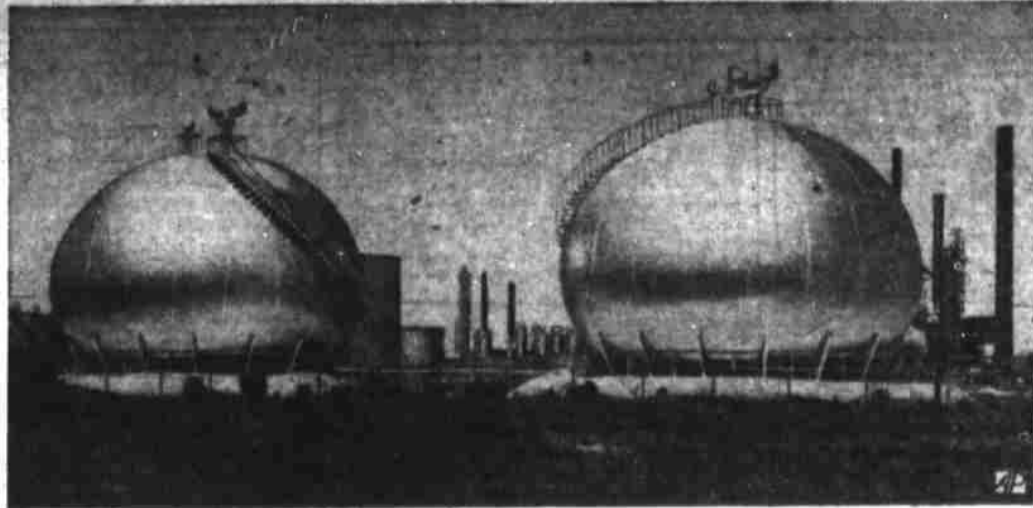

Dr. Clarence Poe of Raleigh, N. C., editor of the Progressive Farmer, told the board southern states should be given "equal opportunity" to revive livestock raising.

Testifying yesterday, Poe said the south suffered from a "one arm farm system," and that there was less livestock raised in the section now than 20 years ago, although the population had nearly tripled.

The editor said that concentration of cash crops like tobacco and cotton, to the exclusion of livestock, resulted in soil and human erosion that was detrimental to the entire nation because it lowered buying power.

Virginia, South Carolina, North Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee and Kentucky are seeking a lower rate structure on livestock shipments, claiming rates in other areas discriminate against them.

H. C. Barron of Chicago, attorney for a group of western railroads charged Poe's testimony was "propaganda" and unsuccessfully sought to have it stricken from the record.

INDIANS GATHER FOR FESTIVAL

HENRYETTA, Okla., July 16 (AP)—Hundreds of Creek Indians gathered today for their summer dances at the Hickory Stomp Grounds, historic site of the "Smoked Meat Rebellion."

Preliminary ceremonies were scheduled to get under way at noon, with some of the minor stomp dances planned for tonight.

The old stomp ground, however, will begin to echo to beating feet and stapping drums in a rising volume tomorrow, with a picturesque women's ribbon dance in the afternoon and a full-tribe dance during the night.

Indian women, usually kept in the background, will step out on the stomp ground, where in the Crazy Snake uprising federal troops quelled rebellious Indians who were accused of raiding smoke houses of white settlers along the Canadian river valley.

UNION IN IRELAND—Political enmities were forgotten in Dublin as the war brought dangers of a foreign invasion, and Premier Eamon de Valera (right) and William T. Cosgrave (speaking) joined together to unify the people of Eire. Both men appeared at a Dublin recruiting rally; Cosgrave is leader of the Fine Gael opposition in Eire.

AN ANALYSIS OF THE WAR DEVELOPMENTS

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Today's news from Rome and Berlin rather forces the impression that the nazis would be just as happy if they didn't have on their hands the job of making good their threat to invade England and annihilate that island kingdom.

With a month passed since France succumbed, the conquering Germans are still withholding the blow of their upraised fist. Meanwhile the continent is drifting towards chaos and famine, while Britain daily grows stronger militarily and displays real power both on offense and defense.

And now diplomatic quarters in Rome say Fascist Foreign Minister Ciano intends to go to Berlin tomorrow to consult Hitler about a speech in which the fuhrer might offer England a chance to surrender. The alternative would be a smashing attack.

This follows yesterday's prediction by Virginia Gayda, authoritative fascist writer who frequently speaks for Mussolini, that Britain would be given a last chance to line up with Italy and Germany in "renovating" Europe—a choice between surrender and "inevitable destruction."

ENGAGEMENT OF YOUNGEST ROCKEFELLER ANNOUNCED

By Mary Elizabeth Plummer
NEW YORK, July 16 (AP)—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., smiles today at the memory of friends who used to tell him:

"With all that money to spoil them, you're entitled to four black sheep out of those five boys if only one comes out good."

Not one black sheep has shown up yet, and it looks as though none will.

For it was announced this week that his youngest son, David, is engaged to wed, at 25, without having had a single sensational fling as a rich playboy.

Three of the four older boys are already married.

Only Winthrop remains unmarried, and his liking for gaiety, which once worried his father, has long since been accepted by the family as harmless fun.

Notoriety has no place in the Rockefeller tradition, just as divorce has no place in the matrimonial sphere David is preparing to enter.

David's engagement to Margaret McGrath, who shares his taste for intellectual pursuits, is in keeping with the family's conservative faith in happy marriages which last, and which have little to do with the night club set, and little interest in the world of fashion.

Attractive Peggy McGrath, who will become Mrs. David Rockefeller, didn't care to have a formal debut, although her parents are listed in the social register and her mother is a member of the exclusive Colony club.

She cares more about literature, pictures, music—interests she has in common with David Rockefeller, whose scholarly pursuits have made him a candidate for a doctor of philosophy degree at the University of Chicago.

Her father, Francis McGrath, is a partner in a famous old Wall Street law firm. Her grandfather was a former railroad executive.

David and his bride-to-be have been friends for years. Acquaintances may be sought here for a partner at her first dances.

He prepared to hear what he termed "the three most important witnesses" his committee has yet questioned. All six from California, he added, and they will be queried regarding specific instances of sabotage, espionage and fifth column activities extending throughout the west coast area and into other sections of the country. Information will lead into Hollywood and the aircraft and shipping industries, he said. The hearings here will be closed to the public and Dies did not announce his witnesses' names.

Leading Pros Match Strokes In Detroit

DETROIT, July 16 (AP) — Golf-dom's biggest names match strokes over Oakland Hills' rolling course today as a climax to a war of words between Walter Hagen's Ryder Cup team and Gene Sarazen's challengers.

From the ballyhooed match that grew out of an argument at last month's Inverness invitational tournament at Toledo, O., the Red Cross hopes to realize $25,000 for its war relief fund.

Sarazen found fault — and still does — with the United States Golf association's choice of Ryder Cup-pers.

Ryder Cup Captain Hagen disagreed. Sarazen offered to pick a Cupper off the course — any course — and Hagen accepted.

Sarazen's team suffered a blow when it was learned that Jimmy Demaret, the game's leading money winner this year who is paired with Ralph Guldahl in the No. 1 spot, had an infected foot.

Demaret said the infection resulted from a blister suffered in the Texas Open. He announced he planned to withdraw from the Chicago Open but would play in the match here if possible.

Oilers Invade Abilene Wed.

The Standard Oilers, at the present time setting the pace in the Major City softball league, invade Abilene Wednesday evening for another crack at the Abilene All-Stars, equipped with practically the same artillery that blasted the highly touted Abileneans into submission in their last meeting.

The All-Stars, favored by many to win the state championship, fell before the Oilers last month by a 5-2 score and looked none too good in doing it.

Making the trip from here will be Hubby Savage, the speed ball tosser who limited the Abileneans to four scattered hits on the other occasion. Chuck Smith, Lewis Heuel, L. Glendinning, W. D. Berry, George Neel, Leonard Morgan, Hal Martin, Alton Bostick and Hal Battle.

The Oilers also have a game booked with the San Angelo All-Stars in San Angelo Saturday night, July 27.

MEXICO READY TO COOPERATE IN DEFENSE PLANS

MEXICO CITY, July 16 (AP) — Mexico is prepared to cooperate in any plan for the military defense of the western hemisphere approved by the Pan-American conference which meets at Havana July 20. Finance Minister Eduardo Suarez said today.

Suarez, who will head the Mexican delegation, declared however he believed the major issues facing the conference were economic rather than military.

"The most important task facing the Havana conference," he said, "is some solution of the economic problem created by the European war, which has been marked chiefly by the slow disappearance of foreign trade."

Suarez said Mexico hopes something can be done at the conference to "increase inter-American transportation facilities, particularly by water."

The Sports Parade

By Hank Hart

Snooks Carroll, the San Francisco boy who played out field for the Big Spring Barons through May, returned to California last week to try and talk Joe Devine, Yankee scout, and the Oakland Pacific Coast league club to cooperate with him in helping bring the professional game back here in 1941.

Carroll, who has been associated with the game since he became bat boy for the Missions in 1922, expressed confidence in Big Spring as a baseball town, said he would be willing to give it a trial only if the organization was operated like it was before Tony Rego took the reins here this year.

He would prefer leaving the business problems of the club up to appointed local parties.

Conley Cox, one of the WT-NM league's better short-stops last season, may get back into the game as a second baseman for the Odessa Oilers.

The veteran slugger, who played for the Midland Cowboys in 1939, will talk over terms with Walter Butler soon. Cox, who hit .305 as a Waddie last year, lives around Odessa.

Bus Dorman, who won a game for the Amarillo Gold Sox almost singly handed Sunday in Lamesa, took over first basing duties for Bubba Jonnard's crew when Bones Sanders went on the shelf with a cut finger, suffered during pre-game infield drill.

Charley Bryan, the veteran hurler who signed under Tony Rego at Odessa and who later got his walking papers, has caught on with Lamesa. He worked in the second game against the Gold Sox.

The suspension of Mal Stevens, youthful right fielder, from the Lamesa lineup may be longer than expected. The Galveston product is said not to be in the best of shape.

TIPS ON BASEBALL: HOW TO PLAY THIRD BASE

By Harry Lavagetto

AP Feature Service

Third base is rightly named the "hot corner." Standing only 90 feet from the batter and handling 200-foot-a-second drives from his club would qualify it for the name even if there weren't a dozen other reasons.

It's a job that calls for some especially if there is a runner on first. If the baseman plays deep the hitter may lay down a bunt. If the baseman is up "on the grass" the batter may pull a hit direct through or over him.

The safest rule, with a runner on first, is to play up for a bunt until the batter has two strikes off him. Then you can move back.

General Rules

Here are some general rules. On base hits to the outfield, you should play the bag to relay throws or to cut off an advancing runner. In the case of hard singles to left of second base you sometimes act as cutoff man on throws to the plate from the outfield.

It's just as important for the third baseman to study batters and runners and know where they are likely to hit and run as it is for any other infielders.

With runners on first and second the pitcher usually handles bunts down the third base line and you hold the bag for a forecut. If there's a runner on third, always make sure he's going to try for home before you make a throw to the plate. When runners are on second and third the infield always plays for a rundown on the runner on third.

Special circumstances call for special duties. For instance, the third-sacker may have to cover second if both shortstop and second baseman are pulled far off the bag to field a ball.

There's plenty to do if you're a third baseman. It's really a "hot corner."

special qualifications to handle its special duties. A third baseman, preferably tall, must have a strong, accurate throwing arm. It's a big help, too, if he can acquire a sort of sixth sense about the batter's intentions. For instance, when a strong "pull" hitter comes to bat the third sacker must be ready for anything.

Youths Drill For Tournery

Three Colorado City youths came to Big Spring Monday afternoon to practice for the West Texas Junior golf tournament, which takes place at the Mundy course August 7-9.

Best round for nine holes was turned in by James Pritchett, who had a 38 over the difficult layout. Percy Bond was one stroke off Pritchett's pace.

Both will be strong contenders for the honors won last year by Bill Roden, Glen Rose.

Senators New Toughies In Junior Loop

By JUDSON BAILEY

Associated Press Sports Writer

The rest of the American league finally has succeeded in getting the proper respect from the St. Louis Browns, but now the circuit has a new wrecking crew.

The Washington Senators, who last week temporarily deposed the Detroit Tigers from the American league lead, knocked the Cleveland Indians off the top perch yesterday.

Washington won't be any more than a troublemaker this year, but Ruckey Harvis Senators are doing their bit to keep the race in the junior circuit uncertain. They even climbed from the cellar to sixth place with their 8-6 decision yesterday, the second straight over Cleveland.

The Browns suffered their 13th consecutive defeat as Joe Cronin and Jim Tabor led the Boston Red Sox to 10-6 victory. Cronin hit a homer and a single and Tabor three singles to pace a 15-hit offensive.

Detroit noted out the Philadelphia Athletics 9-8 to regain first place.

The Chicago White Sox halted a four-game winning parade by the New York Yankees with a 3-2 win. The Cincinnati Reds won another run verdict, their fourth in six games, 3-2 over the Phillies and lengthened their margin over the second place Brooklyn Dodgers to three full games.

The Dodgers divided a double-header at Pittsburgh, winning the first 10-1 and losing the second 4-3.

The New York Giants were futilly itself as they dropped a 5-3 game to the Chicago Cubs. The Terrible Terrymen made 15 hits to seven for the Cubs, but left 16 runners stranded. Two short of the record.

The St. Louis Cardinals massacred the Boston Bees 12-2 with a 20-hit bombardment.

Lamesa Loses Again, 7 To 4

LAMESA, July 16 (AP)—The lowly Clovis Pioneers clipped the wings of the rallying Lamesa Lobos on Monday evening, winning, 7-4, behind the effective elbowing of J. Shirley.

The Tatemens got to Shirley for one run in each of the first three innings but he was invincible in the clutch after that.

The Pioneers also scored in the first when Mel Steiner, after forcing Roy Smith at second, went to third on a single by Walter Schmidt and on to pay dirt on an infield out by Cecil Smyly.

Successive singles by Al Carr and Eddie Guynes and an inlay by Johnny Stone in right field gave the Lamesans their first run. In the second Timer Bride scored for the Lobos from the half way station on Shirley's wild throw to first while Guynes popped one out of the park in the third.

Clovis racked up a bunch of runs in the fourth while Smith's circuit play in the ninth iced the game for Shirley.

MARTIN, BATTLE AND BLOUNT STAR IN WIN OVER EL PASO

The triumphant American Legion Junior baseball team of Big Spring returned home Monday afternoon from El Paso where last weekend they administered a series licking to the El Paso city champions in the playoff for the sectional championship and thereby earned the right to compete in the state tournament at Houston.

The youthful crew, managed by Ben Daniel, had a tough time in convincing the El Paso Mexicans that it was the better team but finally did so in three games, winning the first, 4-3 behind the tossing of Gas Perra and the third, 10-1, after dropping the second affair, 9-4.

A large hunk of credit for the successful invasion should go to Powell Martin, a third sacker who turned pitcher in the final game to hold the El Pasoans to two singles, Hal Battle, and Peppy Blount, the latter two outfielders.

LEW JENKINS MAY NOT BE UP TO BEATING ARMSTRONG CAN DISH OUT WEDNESDAY NIGHT

Sweetwater Youth Had To Take But Little Punishment In Title Match

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK, July 16 (AP)—At the risk of being disbarred from the local chapter of the EC-Texas association, I'm afraid Lew Jenkins is due to be beat by Henry Armstrong tomorrow night at the Polo Grounds.

The reason is that Jenkins, though he fought his way to the lightweight championship in a sensational manner, has not up to now been called upon to show that he can take a hard punching around the body. Not that he can't, as is shown by the fact that Armstrong's punch did did was thump his opponent a few times, and then they turned on the lights and started stacking the chairs.

It was the same against Ambers. Weakened by making the 135-pound limit, Ambers simply crumpled under Jenkins' furious onslaught.

So that brings the lean Texan up against one of the greatest little fighters the game ever saw, champion of the weight division above Jenkins' and the spoiler of many a pugilistic hope. The negro is a bitter, remorseless fighter who can take a punch or a dozen punches and continue to come on.

Jenkins' backers are counting on a knockout. They hope Lew can connect with a couple of terrific swipes and flatten Armstrong before the negro gets in his destructive work. It is doubtful that even Lew's best friend thinks he can win a decision over the dreamy little negro in 12 rounds.

But knocking out Armstrong seems to be quite a problem in itself. Cafeiro Garcia, a near-midweight with a mile's kick in his right hand, laid perhaps a dozen of his famous "bolos" right on Henry's tag one night in the Garden, and all it got him was a licking. Armstrong shuddered under the impact a time or two, but then only came on to rip at Garcia's middle the harder.

Perhaps Jenkins possesses, as some claim, the greatest shocking power of any lightweight who ever lived. Even so, it still is reasonable to doubt that he can hit harder than Garcia, who, since his defeat by Armstrong has knocked out such middleweights as Fred Apostoli, Glenn Lee and "Popeye" Woods.

The gamblers have had Armstrong a favorite all along, and their odds against Jenkins are likely to be a solid 2 to 1 before the two enter the ring. Of course, they also make Ambers a favorite over the pride of the prairie and took a licking, but this will be different, they hope.

Howard Pollet Wins Fifteenth

By the Associated Press

A team with a six-man pitching staff in which each hurler wins more games than he loses is bound to be around the top.

That's Houston, currently leading the Texas League by a margin of nine and one-half games over second place San Antonio.

Three of those pitchers have combined to rack up more than 40 games in three-fifths of the season.

Howard Pollet and Howard Kist have turned in fifteen wins apiece against four defeats. Ed Wissman has won eleven and lost five in the second line of offense are Steve Warchol with eight victories and one loss, Ted Wilks with eight victories and seven defeats and Henry Nowak with six wins and four losses.

Pollet drew abreast of Kist last night by downing Tulsa 5-3.

San Antonio fell before Dallas 5-3 while Tulsa, the league's leading hurler, falling in his try for victory No. 18.

Third place Beaumont lost to Oklahoma City 10-7 despite Dixie Parsons' two home runs that drove in three tallies.

Fourth-place Shreveport triumphed over Fort Worth 9-1. Joe Greenberg got four hits out of five trips for the winners.

Bring On Joe Louis, Says Al Hostak

AL HOSTAK

"He Just Hits Too Hard"

SEATTLE, July 16 (AP)—He'd much rather fight Joe Louis, but right now Al Hostak, the NBA-recognized middleweight champion from Seattle, is going to defend his title in a 15-round here July 19 against Tony Zale of Gary, Ind.

Some boxing experts regard Hostak, a 23 year old youth of Slavish strain from "de under side of de tracks," as the hardest and fastest hitter, pound for pound, in the ring today.

But his murderous miffs haven't made him a great deal of money for various reasons.

He's cracked them up twice, and his followers say it isn't because he has brittle hands.

"He just hits too hard," they tell you.

First, Al knocked Freddie Steele in a round to win the championship. In his first defense, he hunged up both hands on Solly Kriegler's rocklike jaw, and lost the title.

He won it back by cooling Kriegler in four heats.

Last winter Hostak knocked out Eric Seelig in a round in Cleveland, then met Zale down in the first and was giving him a fancy hemstitching until the fifth. Al let go a wild one and the back of his left hand hit Tony's forehead.

The left was useless from then on, and Zale easily outpointed Al but was unable to do something no one ever has done: put Hostak down.

The fight here July 19th will be Al's first since the Zale fight, but the layoff was marked by unsuccessfull efforts to match him against the succession of title holders recognized by the New York and California boxing commission.

Seattle promoter Nate Druxman tentatively worked out deals with Mike Jacobs whereby Jacobs would release Ken Overlin, the New York California tilt, Cafeiro Garcia, the light-heavyweight king, for a fight in Seattle provided Hostak was released for a fight in New York.

In fact, the local triumvirate even wanted to match Hostak against Joe Louis, declaring Louis' lantern jaw would be a cinch for Al's right cross.

Other reasons the Seattleites advance for Hostak never showing in New York:

1. Refusal by New York, right after Hostak beat Steele for the title, to recognize him as the champion.

2. No adequate financial guarantee ever has been made.

3. The fact the middleweights draw far larger gates in Seattle than in New York.

4. Why don't the New Yorkers want to fight in Seattle? Al declares his hands are harder than ever now and that he'll slam Zale out in a hurry.

RELEASES ORDERED
MEXICO CITY, July 16 (AP)—Mexico's state governors were requested by the secretary of interior today to release all persons jailed for "participating passively" in the presidential election two Sundays ago unless they had committed serious crimes. Hundreds of persons will be affected.

Jim Farley To Have Job Cut Out For Him

CHICAGO, July 16 (AP)—It's rather common knowledge now that the prosperous Ruppert regime of the New York Yankees is at an end.

The new owners of the club, likely a syndicate headed by Postmaster General James A. Farley, will have quite a task ahead of them if they expect to match the record of the late Jacob Ruppert.

The colonel, who died in January, 1939, at the age of 71, became sole owner of the Yanks in 1923.

They won the pennant that year on the last day of the season and captured eight other flags while the wealthy brewer was alive.

Farley, however, is not a newcomer to the sports field. He has behind him a distinguished record as chairman of the New York Boxing Commission from which he progressed into an equally brilliant career as a political strategist.

His boyhood friends say he was quite a fancy first baseman in his day.

Well informed baseball men agree there is little chance the present setup of the Yankees would be changed by a change in ownership. El Barrow, president of the club, George Wetas, secretary and director of the farm operations, and team manager Joe McCarthy are regarded as fixtures.

The Yanks, shooting for their fifth straight pennant have faded badly this season, but even so are only five and a half games behind the pace-setting Detroit Tigers.

Editorial

It has been pointed out that in the 150 years that have elapsed since the great French revolution the government of France has changed its form no fewer than ten times.

As France changes its government for the eleventh time, however, prospects for getting back to democracy appear more remote than ever before.

It is idle to speculate on whether or not the French people like their newest form of government, which is a dictatorship.

The pass to which France has come no doubt will cause her people to reflect on the tragic series of events which brought it about. It is easy to say that France collapsed in the face of superior numbers and greater efficiency.

Poor France. In our grief for her let us not forget that we ourselves are not immune to the disintegrating influences which brought her down.

CHICAGO. I've never been able to figure out yet when people sleep during political conventions. Decent and respectable folk go home and to bed, leaving the city somewhat freer and easier to get around in.

And always, the conversation is as thick as a pea-soup. But if you listen long enough and hard enough, you'll get enough choice bits to set even the foggiest mind racing down paths of possibilities.

THEY'LL BE IN THE AIR

For instance, around the table at one of these midnight snack-early breakfast tables the other morning, it came out that the presidential race probably will be one of the flyingest campaigns on record.

The reasoning was something like this: Wendell L. Willkie already has demonstrated that he believes in carrying the G.O.P. banner above the clouds. In his pre-convention campaign, he made hay in his whirlwind 48-day campaign mostly by harvesting his crop of personal appearances with airplane propellers.

He flew from there to his vacation in Colorado. In other words, there's no doubt about Willkie. He'll do an air campaign from the moment he unleashes until the polls open November 5.

On the other side of the picture, there's President Roosevelt. For something over eight years, he has been the hod-carrier of the democratic campaigns. Not even his worst enemy would refuse to concede that he's one of our ablest campaigners.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

NEW YORK. Talbot Patrick is the publisher of the Goldboro, N. C. News-Argus, and every now and then he likes to take a run up to New York. On his last outing he went out to the fair, realizing as he got off the train that his pass book had just two tickets left. It was one of those books that may be refilled after the last ticket is used.

Te got his refill in a hurry. Mr. Patrick used one ticket entering the fair grounds. He promptly left the grounds through an exit and presented the book for reentry, using up the last ticket. It was at the moment he presented the book the second time that he realized, to his amazement, that he was using last year's book from the San Francisco fair.

One of our favorite waiters in Manhattan is Julius, who has been in the Pennsylvania hotel "Nineteen years and eight months, sir." Julius is the sort of picturesque old Manhattan character you don't forget. He looks like the man who carries the drum in the Spirit of 76. He has a special dessert which he makes himself whose ingredients are rum, strawberries, and ice cream.

Another tip for those who enjoy an occasional splurge in distinctive cuisines is this: Let Miroi at the Coq Rouge fix you a perfectly swell dish which contains lobster and tuna. It hasn't even got a name. It's just something Miroi thought up. There are other ingredients, but then Miroi won't talk. It's his secret and it is something worth keeping.

If you have tears to weep, prepare to weep then now. Weep for poor John McCarthy, who left the other day for Lake Placid and a season of toil. As you know, Kate Smith has a daily 15 minute broadcast period. To broadcast there must be an engineer. But Kate is broadcasting from her summer home on Lake Placid. Therefore, Johnny is off to Lake Placid for three months, to work just 15 minutes a day.

And what then John? "The day after I get back," says John. "I leave for my vacation."

Strange how the name of Judge Crater bobs up in the diary of Manhattan. Every few months he is supposed to have been seen in some remote sector of the world. In New York his disappearance and whereabouts is as much a mystery today as it was twelve years ago. One night he was here, in the flesh, smiling and handsome. He had dinner at a Broadway restaurant. Some time during the dinner he got up, excused himself, and walked out into the street. Not a single solitary human who ever knew him, or has his interest at heart, knows where he went or what happened to him. Yes, it hasn't been so long ago that someone "recognized" him in Death Valley. Another account had him in some African refuge. I have talked with men who are sure that he is in China. Now comes a school teacher from New York who thinks she saw him in Mexico two months ago, sitting in a country store, smoking a pipe.

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

HOLLYWOOD. The big "cycle" in the movies right now is not westerns, not war movies, not musicals—but youth.

A few years ago the youngsters played second fiddle to the seasoned troupers. The heyday of Will Rogers, Marie Dressler and Lionel Barrymore saw film stories created to glorify the middle-aged and beyond. It was the era of "characters."

Chapter Nine SHE MAN IN THE CAR Julia was coming out of Falloia's room when I reached the corridor.

She beckoned me and started double timing toward the back of the building, talking as she ran. "Shows how much sense I have," she said. "I went in to get the keys, and I forgot to get the keys."

A red taillight was glowing against the darkness of the long garage behind the club. It started to move and a small roadster backed into view. Julia halted it before, I think, she realized who the driver was.

Jeff's voice answered her gruffly. "What are you doing here? But he held open the door and told us to get in. "You can drop me at the troop."

He made no further comment, and the silence grew uncomfortable when he had finished shifting gears. So I asked him where the fire was, and he thought it was out in the boogie near the target range. "Brush fire. He didn't know."

His answers sounded terse and a little bored. Between us Julia made no sound and I could feel my distaste for Jeff Tack growing. Cold, curly ill-bred—

He stepped on the gas suddenly and the car fairly leaped down the row in front of the barracks. He braked with the same disregard for mechanical and human comfort and with a swift movement was out of the car.

"I'll walk back, or pick up a lift," he said slooily. "I hope you'll use some discretion and not get too close to the fire."

Without further waste of words he was gone. Julia woke from her trance, slid into the driver's seat and engaged the clutch. She did not speak until we had turned onto the back road that led toward the target range, and then she sounded almost happy.

"You can see," she said, "how nice he is when you get to know him."

"What's back here?" I asked as the car turned left beyond the target range. Not far ahead we could see the wild orange and red glow of flames and a column of black smoke ascending against the gray night sky.

"Nothing that I know of. There's a plank bridge over a gulley that runs behind the target butts and beyond that a wooded hill that's the edge of the reservation. The road ends at the foot of the hill. When they're firing you can't even come this far. It's roped off."

Raging inferno A thought struck me. "You don't suppose it's an airplane that crashed trying to land on the range?"

"No pilot would be such a fool—on a night as dark as this." But she sounded scorned. "Unless it was a forced landing. There's a perfectly good landing field only a few miles from here."

She jammed on her brakes. The narrow dirt road was clogged with cars. Further ahead a fire truck was outlined in black against the red fog which was billowing up out of the gulley.

We left the car at the side of the road and stumbled through sand and undergrowth toward the flames. I could see now that soldiers were manning the truck, working with disciplined silence and speed to the accompaniment of the steady hissing of chemicals and the ominous roar of rapacious, glutting fire.

My heart lurched as I saw what the fire was feeding on—a car, nosed down and heeled over on its side at the bottom of the gulley. Once a car—now a raging inferno at the mercy of those ravaging flames. They were completely out of control, elemental, mocking the puny human efforts to check them.

I was standing beside Julia in silent fascinated horror, staring, moistening my dry lips, when the fire veered at some momentary whim and I saw a dark shadow within the car.

I must have screamed, for suddenly I felt two hands clamp onto my shoulders and I stumbled backward into someone's arms. I twisted and saw that it was Adam, and hid my face against his chest, trembling so violently that I could hardly stand.

"There's someone in that car," I moaned, and he did not contradict me. He held me for an instant; then with one arm still supporting me, he led me back from the gulley, back behind the fire truck out of sight of that feeding fire.

She must have missed the bridge in the dark, though what she was doing was out here—

"No, no! No, you don't understand—Falloia's home in bed." I told him eagerly. I felt as if a clamp had been removed from my throat. For an instant the relief was stupendous. Not Mimi—not Felicia. The thief. But—the trembling seized me again—the nonetheless, whatever his misdeeds, a human being trapped in that blazing hell—

Julia was answering his quick fire of questions, describing Felicia's arrival at the club in her girlish, and her explanations. It didn't sound in the least funny now.

A soldier came up and saluted. I let go Adam's arm and stepped back, controlling myself, while he listened to the report. The thick undergrowth in the gulley was on fire and there was some danger to the wooded slope behind the range. Adam went off to see about it.

I glanced around and saw that a small crowd of spectators had gathered. Officers and men, a few women. Colonel Pennant was there, and Jeff Tack and Gerald Beaufort. They joined us and we told our story of Felicia and the theft of the car. I saw Captain Jones, the doctor, standing at the edge of the gulley looking down and shaking his head. The ambulance was just behind the fire truck and two hospital corps men lounged against it smoking cigarettes.

The fire began to die at last, leaving behind it a twisted hulk of red and black metal and the charred remains of what had once been a man. Adam came to us looking quite gray and tired and told us we'd better go home.

"We're going to try to get the body out," he said. Pink dawn was streaking the sky and the lake when Julia dropped me at the club and went on home. I undressed and stood for a long time under the cold shower, trying to shock some life back into my quivering muscles.

I killed as much time as I could dressing, but the mess hall was still closed when, all in clean white, and every hair painfully coaxed into place, I came out into the deserted lounge. So I paced the veranda, smoking cigarettes that made me feel no better until I heard flashes and silver clattering inside.

The regular waiter had not come back. The same one who had served us at dinner brought me orange juice and black coffee and two cups of it. Over the last cup I asked him what had happened to Immerman.

"Late," he said disquietedly. "Had the afternoon and evening off yesterday, but was supposed to be here for breakfast. He'll catch it!" He clattered some silver down at the head of the table. "Mrs. Bridewell sick?"

I told him she had a headache and was not to be disturbed, and he started a chatty conversation about the fire. I could see that the story of Felicia's mishap had reached the barracks after all, but Adam's entrance, looking as stern as I had ever seen him, dried up the fount of small talk.

"Where's Immerman?" he asked, and was told of Immerman's defection. Then the waiter scurried off to the kitchen.

I seized the opportunity to tell him about Immerman at the Post Exchange, and he listened with a peculiar, startled expression.

"That's very interesting," he said when I had finished. He rose, went out into the lounge, and I could hear him telephoning.

He came back in presently, sat down and sipped his grapefruit. I made the wan gesture of passing him the pepper, but he took it from me and set it down without comment.

"Immerman did not sleep in the barracks," he said when the waiter had taken himself off again. "I didn't quite follow his thought, but said no more. And presently, because my patience would not wait until he had gone through the usual oatmeal and ham and eggs, I asked him if the body had been identified."

He shook his head. "Small hope of that, unless there was bridge-work and we can locate the dentist."

"I need not have worried about the ham and eggs. He left his oatmeal half finished, pushed back his chair and rose."

"We're going out again and sift the ashes for clues as soon as the frame has cooled enough. You'd better wake Felicia pretty soon and tell her to get dressed. There might be something she would recognize—cut links, buttons, a ring. We'll need some confirmation of the fact that it's the same man who held her up last night—there's always the chance the thief had other fish to fry."

Claims Reds In Control Of Shipping

BEAUMONT, July 16 (AP)—The Dies committee today was told that the communist party is seeking to dictate the war policy of the United States, and has a means to this end could paralyze overnight all west coast shipping and communication.

The informant was John L. Leech of Portland, Ore., recently employed by the commission of public docks there.

Leech, whose testimony involved a number of California and federal government officers, said that during the past seven or eight years all important west coast strikes were engineered and carried out by the communist party.

Asked by Dies why communists concentrated on shipping and communication, Leech said they wanted to gain control in an effort to dictate the war policy of this government so that no attack could be made on the soviet union or its allies.

Leech's testimony was made behind closed doors, but through reliable sources the gist of it filtered outside Dies' hotel suite where the hearing is being held.

The witness said that by strikes communists could prevent shipment of ammunition, war supplies and troops, as well as communication of messages.

Leech said he was expelled by the party in 1937. When Chairman Leech asked if the policy Leech had outlined was still in effect, he answered it had been intensified.

In 1936, he testified, the communist party began to center activities in aircraft industries on the west coast, and that many party members worked in airplane manufacturing plants.

MARKETS Wall Street

NEW YORK, July 16 (AP)—The stock market shook off a portion of its gloom today and selected steels, motors, aircrafts and specialties rallied 1 to more than 2 points.

Volume picked up on the comeback around midday, but reverted to sluggishness in subsequent proceedings. Extreme gains were reduced at the close. Transfers were around 400,000 shares for the first time in about two weeks.

Brokers attributed the revival partly to the thought the market may have been "sold out" and was due at least for a temporary upswing despite possible adverse news developments.

Delegate Bonus Issue Delayed

CHICAGO, July 16 (AP)—The democratic convention rules committee, after a hot debate, deferred until tomorrow a decision on the question of awarding a delegate bonus in future conventions to states going democratic in prior presidential elections.

The argument developed the same fight between southern and northern states that occurred before the national committee two days ago.

The rules committee also deferred action on a proposal to reduce the number of delegates from the territories.

It agreed on a partial report recommending that the platform committee be represented by a woman from each state as well as a man.

South American Protectorate Is Being Studied

SANTIAGO, Chile, July 16 (AP)—Foreign Minister Cristobal Saenz disclosed today that he has received and is studying a note from the United States on establishment of a protectorate over European possessions in Central and South America.

Details of the communication were not immediately forthcoming. (It is probable that the note relates to Latin American proposals for a protectorate over European possessions in South and Central America—already advanced rather than any proposal originating with the United States.)

Livestock Show May Be Restricted To Drylot Classes

Possibility that the fourth annual Big Spring 4-H club and FFA livestock show will be restricted to drylot classes was seen Tuesday in a meeting of the chamber of commerce agricultural and livestock committee.

The committee took the position that value of feeding calves was not in producing show animals primarily, but rather in turning out animals which would return a profit. Milked animals, while they round out much more readily, are admittedly strictly for show purposes.

Tom Ashley, committee member, O. P. Griffin and J. H. Greene recommended to the chamber directors the elimination of the milked class from the local show and that cash awards either be greatly reduced or abandoned in favor of an expense paid trip to boys to market where they can see the animals sold and processed.

The action might reduce the number of entries, but the committee expressed the belief that it would contribute more to beneficial results from feeding projects.

NEW DATES FIXED ON ONE-VARIETY COTTON PARLEYS

Dates of the one-variety cotton parleys in three communities this week were erroneously reported Monday, it was disclosed Tuesday. Meeting Called On Organization Of Freezer Plant

Further developments on a campaign to organize a freezer locker plant here are expected to come from a committee meeting scheduled for July 25.

At the last land use planning session, the freezer locker committee was instructed to continue its investigations concerning the possibility of a quick-freezing unit with cold storage locker space on a co-operative basis.

Each member is now supposed to be engaged in enlisting a sub-committee of five members to join in the program. Hence, it is possible that the July 25 meeting may yield some definite plan of action toward securing such a plant.

Freezer locker plants have experienced a phenomenal growth during the past two years. They are based on the process which preserves meat, fruit, vegetables and other fresh food stuffs almost indefinitely with little or no loss of original freshness or flavor.

Want Routes Kept Open

WASHINGTON, July 16 (AP)—The state department announced United States opposition today to the closing of world trade arteries such as the Burma road and the French Indo-China railway over which China receives most of its war supplies.

Japan had demanded that Great Britain close the Burma route.

A statement from Secretary Hull said:

"The secretary of state in reply to inquiries by press correspondents for comment in regard to the Japanese government, the British government would prohibit temporarily the movement of certain commodities through Burma into China over what is known as the Burma route, said that this government has a legitimate interest in the keeping open of arteries of commerce in every part of the world and considers that action such as this, if taken, and such as was taken recently in relation to the Indo-China railway, would constitute unwarranted interpositions of obstacles to world trade."

Their transfer to another plane to continue to the Bahamas would be quick, the dispatch said, indicating there would be little stopover at New York.

Rural Rallies Of Candidates Concluded

Candidates dusted off their speeches and injected new and fervent tones into their delivery Monday evening as the last of the political rallies in rural sections was held at Hartwell.

Virtually all the talks included one or all of four popular points—considerable length of residence, varied experience as background and qualification, need of a chance to get started on the ladder of success, and urgent need of a job.

Now and then a candidate would speak eloquent, and occasionally a speaker dipped his tongue in the magic of southern oratory; but in the main it was a case of "I have been here so long, most of you all know me, no one would appreciate your consideration more on July 27 than I would."

By far the warmest salvo of the evening was fired in the state senator's race with Mrs. Alvin R. Allison, Levelland, representing her husband and Mrs. Billie Bob Reagan, Big Spring, speaking for Marshall Fomby, Dickens county judge. They both delved into issues and subtle and not-so-subtle stabs were made at the opposition.

Lee Porter, county clerk, unopposed in his race for re-election, took occasion to remind candidates that their second expense accounts are now due at his office and must be submitted not later than Friday. He urged all office seekers to observe the deadline date.

Meanwhile, absentee voting, with little more than a week's time left, continued steady with 124 votes polled. The same time two years ago, the total stood at 250, but then the primary time was much earlier. Total absences in the first primary of 1938 was 439, a record, and in 1936 was 368.

REA Project Is Outlined Before Club

A description of the REA program for Howard and Martin counties and a report on a recent trip to Washington were given before the Rotary club at the regular weekly luncheon Tuesday.

O. B. Bryan, supervisor for the Caprock Electric Cooperative, Inc., explained the two-county set-up for which $144,000 has been allocated for 158 miles of line. Easements are being secured for line right-of-way, he said, and the way to Fairview is nearly complete as is a section westward toward Martin county.

An optimistic view of conditions was given by J. H. Greene, chairman of commerce manager, as he had heard it from many sources on a recent visit to Washington. He outlined the contrasts he and E. Spence, city manager, had made and speculated over the city's part in the national defense program.

Mrs. Frank Gibson favored the club with two vocal numbers, accompanied by Mrs. C. W. Norman. Visitors were Dan Parrish, Abilene, and Jim Kelly and Fred Mitchell, Big Spring. Elmo Wasson was in charge of the program.
