Teeth—
Here's a tip for the tired business man who can't understand the words or music of the New Deal show since it went on the rocky road.

Not only are the anti-trust laws in force—the anti-trust establishment in the Department of Justice has been strengthened. Its personnel is larger than ever before. The NRA experiment has furnished it with detailed information on prices, agreements, trade practices. It was never better equipped to detect and prosecute violators of the Sherman and Clayton Acts.

The administration has already tipped its hand. It will prosecute anti-trust violations to the limit. President Roosevelt has made that clear. And Attorney General Cummings' last case before entering the Cabinet was a suit for triple damages under the anti-trust statutes. He won it!

Manufacturers are assembling quietly at Washington to promote the revival of trade associations and agreements. The bigwigs of business are framing a plan for voluntary cooperation which they intend to present to Mr. Roosevelt. He won't turn it down flatly, but he sees little hope. He has tried and discarded by Chief Executive more friendly to it than Mr. Roosevelt will ever be. The Federal Trade Commission took the movement under its wing some years ago but gave up in disgust. It admitted that it could not formulate a code of "fair practices" which would stick.

In those days the D. of J. was sympathetic. It gave fairly liberal "horseback opinions" on what business could safely attempt. Often it was accused of leaning industries to thumb noses at the anti-trust laws. The Roosevelt administration is in no such mood at the present moment. "The NRA is dead," shouts Mr. Roosevelt in one breath. Then he adds, "Long live the anti-trust laws." You don't have to be a lawyer to know what he's driving at!

Mad—
The McCarl-TVA clash is at the stage of ugly charges and counter-charges. Behind their hands friends of the New Deal declare that the Controller General has long held a grudge against the "experiment." It is the first time in fifteen years that anybody has dared to impugn his impartiality. According to TVA critics, Mr. McCarl asked Chairman Morgan to give a job to a friend. Since TVA is supposed to be out of politics it placed Mr. Morgan in an embarrassing position. The Controller General was then demanding the right to audit every penny of expenditures. The request was granted. If you believe the TVA people, the McCarl employe turned out to be inefficient. So he was discharged.

Then Mr. McCarl assigned auditors to go through the authority's books. It was this investigation which provided the explosives now being used to blow up the Roosevelt power policy. And one of the auditors was a relative of the discharged employe, according to the TVA crowd. They're pretty mad and may air their soreness before a senatorial committee.

Flowers—
No New Dealers watches news developments more closely than the sensitive, conscientious Henry Morgenthau. All the Rooseveltians like to know what the writing boys are saying about them. And Mr. Morgenthau's treasury covers such a wide front—foreign gold, domestic liquor taxes, expenditures, etc.—that his curiosity is understandable.

Not so long ago Mr. Morgenthau installed a department press service. It summarizes every item of news affecting federal finances and mimeographs the batch. By early afternoon the summary is in the hands of every treasury top sergeant. They see themselves and their policies as others see them. The service is extremely efficient as a rule.

But imagine Mr. Morgenthau's dismay—and laughter—when the humorous summary juxtaposed those two items: "Washington says that Controller J. F. T. O'Connor will elope with Elissa Landi, movie star." United States Health Service warns against June fever induced by growing flowers.

More Rental Checks Here

Bitter with the sweet came this week in the form of more first half rental check payments and return of split cotton contracts.

Thirty-six first half rental checks totaling $1,435.15 boosted the total to more than $50,000 here this spring. The amount represents about 70 per cent of the first half payment.

Thursday all of 53 split contracts were returned for completion of more information on a new form issued only June 6, long after the contracts had gone to Washington. The extra form requires only clerical work and no signatures. County Agent O. P. Griffin planned to have them back to Washington soon.

Railroads Ask Recognition, Says Jensen

T & P Passenger Agent Speaks Before Kiwanis Club Here Thursday

"Today and this week, the Western Railroads are asking proper recognition by the western United States citizens," Frank Jensen, general passenger agent of the T. & P., with offices in Dallas, told the Kiwanis club at their regular meeting in the Crawford Hotel.

A railroad week program had been arranged by Dr. W. B. Hardy, who extended the invitation to Mr. Jensen to appear before the club.

In his talk Mr. Jensen quoted numerous statistics showing expenditures of the railroads, trackage, employment and numerous other figures.

He pointed out the vast sum of ten billion dollars invested by the western railroads in their lines and equipment. He quoted figures showing the mileage of track in western United States to be 145,000 equal to a distance of six times around the world at the equator. He said there were 780,000 units of locomotives and all types of cars owned and used. Persons employed by the railroads in all the various capacities number 840,000, enough, with their families, to make ten cities the size of Dallas. Persons in almost every class of labor and professions are employed by them.

He said that the annual payrolls of western railroads amounted to more than $1,000,000,000 annually. He stated that taxes paid by them during a normal year amounted to $150,000,000, of which 46 per cent went to the schools of the west.

He declared that since the world war the T. & P. had been completely rebuilt. New rails; new ties; new ballast, new bridges, etc. Equipment expenditures for the western railroads during the last 10 years has amounted to six billion dollars.

One of the most astounding figures he gave during this talk were that only five people out of the more than 77 millions of passengers had been killed on the western railroads during the past year.

Other railroad men who were present as guests of members at the meeting were: John P. Watkins, R. C. Strain, E. E. Brindley, W. C. Bird, R. V. Jones, H. C. Carney, J. R. Kennedy, H. C. Porter, D. P. Watt, K. R. Woodford, F. G. Sholte, Pete Johnson, F. L. Danner, George Dabney.

Other guests at the meeting were E. S. Winham, Fort Worth, and James A. Davis.

15-Hours Filibuster By Sen. Long Ended At 4 a.m. Thursday

WASHINGTON (AP)—Final congressional approval of the NRA extension resolution by Friday night was indicated Thursday when President Roosevelt told house leaders he was willing to accept the measure as passed by the senate.

At a White House conference Roosevelt said he also would accept the Borah amendment to tighten enforcement of anti-trust laws.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Having crushed a fifteen and a half hour filibuster by Senator Long, Louisiana, the senate at 6:10 a. m. Thursday adopted, 41 to 13, a resolution to extend the shadow NRA until next April.

Senators went home to sleep.

House leaders conferred Thursday on how final action should be taken of a plan whereby businessmen would be allowed to make an agreement governing labor conditions and unfair practices but, under an amendment by Senator Borah, Idaho, accepted at the last minute, anti-trust laws would be tightened. Long's speechmaking, story-telling and receipt giving ended at 4 a. m., lasting since shortly after noon Wednesday.

Senators Schall, Minnesota, and McCarran, Nevada, followed for a short time. The senate rejected the Gore amendment requiring senate confirmation of all presidential appointees paying over $4000 yearly, which was the vehicle for Long's filibuster.

The senate resolution would eliminate all compulsory codes and restore anti-trust laws to full effect.

WASHINGTON (AP)—A weary but determined Senator stayed in session Wednesday night to break a filibuster by Senator Long against the NRA extension bill which the Administration wants to get through congress before the recovery law expires Sunday.

The Louisianaan, dressed in conservative suit and lavender shirt, after speaking more than six hours, showed no sign of tiring. He made frequent references to President Roosevelt, particularly to his trips on the yacht Neumahal with Vincent Astor whom he termed the "political front" of the Rockefeller interests.

Senate leaders used every parliamentary device to wear out the talking Louisianaan, who was fighting for a "rider" to the extension resolution which would require senate confirmation of all federal officials drawing $4,000 a year or more.

Slipping milk and cold coffee, Long read from the constitution, the Declaration of Independence and a novel by Victor Hugo, but most of the time talked extemporaneously to the obvious entertainment of crowded galleries.

Once Long and Chairman Harrison, Democrat, Mississippi, of the Finance Committee were negotiating for an agreement to vote tomorrow, but Senator Black, Democrat, Alabama, interrupted with a demand that Long be forced to continue.

"I believe it's the will of the senate to continue and let the senator from Louisiana speak until Sunday," Black said.

Once Senator Minton, Democrat, Indiana, interrupted Long to ask that he speak more quietly "because there are a lot of people asleep around here."

"I am sorry I woke up the senator from Indiana," Long retorted. "It would have been better if he had never waked up."

Senator Barkley of Kentucky, acting Democratic leader, once asked Long if he had studied music.

When the Louisianaan replied that he had, Barkley suggested that he "sing" instead of talk.

Leaders were determined either to pass the NRA resolution tonight or obtain some agreement for an early vote.

The Louisianaan's intimations that Astor, as head of the International Mercantile Marine, had obtained mail subsidy contracts brought a sharp denial from Senator Black, Alabama, Lewis, Illinois, challenged Long to make clear whether he meant the President was "in tow" of Astor. Long replied:

"When a man is getting contracts out of the United States for millions of dollars and has the president on his yacht and comes back and gets another piece of money—I would say to the President in words of the Bible, 'Avoid that appearance.'"

Charging that influence was brought to have eliminated from the utility holding company bill sections to include Mellon and Rockefeller gas pipe lines—language which was inserted on motion of Senator Clark, Missouri, before passage yesterday—Long said the bill had been introduced just before Roosevelt's last trip on the "Neumahal" and added:

"There was some influence that the senator from Montana (Wheeler) could not prevail against that permitted Rockefeller and Mellon to sit out of that bill."

INFLUENCE

Greatest of all man's powers is his influence. It endures in memory even after his source has slipped away. Fortunately years do not measure capacity for this indelible quality.

In this Marvin Burleson was rich. It was not the will of the Maker that he should live long, rather that he should live well. Despite his 17 short years of life, Marvin made the most of them.

It was our happy privilege as his co-workers to observe and feel the goodness of his life. We loved him because we knew him. Marvin had no bad habits. He never sacrificed principle for popularity. He looked forward with worthy ambition, eager to meet the battle of life squarely. He asked nothing save opportunity. If he could not stand on his own, he would not stand.

It was in this spirit that he died.

We are assured that he goes to eternal rest facing a great and just reward. Although we sorrow in his passing, we gain hope and faith from his life.

REGAIN CONFIDENCE—SEE AMERICA FIRST

You can hear a good deal of talk about the need for confidence, these days. If you listen for it; and after hearing about so much of it you are apt to begin to wonder just why we need to do so much talking about it.

Confidence is essential, of course; but confidence in what? In the honesty or good sense of a particular group of politicians, financiers, business men, or labor leaders, or in the general health and robustness of the country as a whole?

In the long run, the latter is all that counts. America is so big and so husky that she has stood up under an awful lot of hammering from selfish and misguided people in the past.

Politicians have misled her and robber barons of finance and industry have taken her for a ride, but nobody has ever been able to put her in the hospital for keeps.

Perhaps the best course for a person who feels this need of confidence would be to go out across the countryside and see what there is to be seen.

He could drive across millions of acres of the finest farming land in earth, past big barns and comfortable houses and green fields, amid sun-browned and brawny people who are more self-reliant, more intelligent, and more ambitious than any other group of farmers that exist.

He could go through the world's greatest workshops where the most modern machinery on earth is teamed with the earth's most skilled workers under the direction of executives who know their jobs forward and backward, inside and out.

He could travel over the world's greatest transportation network, with paved roads, railroads, lines, waterways, and airplanes, fields to cooperate in the moving of people

TO REVEAL WHISPERERS

The Senate has passed a bill requiring all persons who receive pay for trying to influence national legislation or the work of national government departments, to register their names with the government in Washington. If the House concurs, the measure will become a law, and all Washington lobbyists will have to be registered.

The work of the lobby will go on, of course, even if this bill does become law. But the bill should have a very healthful effect, just the same.

It is perfectly proper for any group to send a representative to Washington to explain the group's point of view and make known its wishes. All that we have a right to ask is that such men appear openly, under their true colors, and let everyone know who is paying them. That is what this bill seeks to accomplish.

CHANGE THE SYSTEM

Two hundred and fifty thousand "ghost" names on the scholastic lists of Texas will be the subject of study by a senate investigation committee which has been probing into many dark recesses of the state government since adjournment of the special session.

These non-existent children are worth $16.50 apiece to the various school districts where they are supposed to have their habitat.

Of course this question of padded scholastic lists never will be settled until the system is changed. We shall have to get around to it sooner or later. State apportionment, all good citizens should agree, should be based on actual average daily attendance and not upon the number of names the census takers can get on the list.

Nobody has charged that there has been graft in this respect, but few would undertake to deny the essential inequity of the system under which we operate.

Many school districts have at or near 100 per cent attendance, others never reach as much as 50 per cent. Yet the 50 percenters receive state funds for every child listed as a scholastic, thereby getting a heavy advantage over the district which has a large percentage of scholastics in attendance.

Whatever the method employed in correcting this evil, it should be based on commonsense and equity.

It is not fair to permit some districts to reap all the benefits of a system that is clearly not working to the interest of all alike.

and goods on a scale never seen before.

He could visit the world's greatest oil fields, its most productive deposits of coal and iron and aluminum, its most stupendous hydro-electric plants. He could see a series of colleges and technical schools such as no other country can boast, busy at the job of providing trained leadership; he could mingle with a people not yet discouraged by the ill of a long-drawn depression, but full of determination and brave optimism.

Confidence! It ought to be a drug on the market. This country is simply too big to lick. Not folly nor selfishness nor blindness can stop it.

The one thing that ought to seem certain in a world of uncertainty, that America will return to its old-time health.

Jane Addams' Stirring Life Has Hull House As Monument

By ROBERT WALTON

CHICAGO, (Sp.)—Although her fame spread to the far corners of the world, Jane Addams never forgot her first love—Hull House—in Chicago. It was in Illinois that she first saw the light of day and it was nearby—just a few counties removed from her birthplace—that she did perhaps her greatest work for the cause of humanity.

Miss Addams was born in Cedarville, Ill., Sept. 6, 1869, the daughter of John Addams, a friend of Abraham Lincoln. As a child she made frequent trips to the city, but Chicago never heard of her until 1889.

A New Venture

It was in that year that Miss Addams, home from Europe where the presence of so much poverty had led her to dedicate her life to social work, opened Hull House with her friend, Ellen Gates Starr.

Previously she had visited Toynbee Hall in London, the world's first social settlement, but it was a new venture upon which she was embarking in the middle western metropolis.

The Haymarket riots were still fresh in everyone's mind and designers were looked upon with suspicion.

In the "Melting Pot"

The neighborhood Miss Addams chose for her venture was in the center of the west side's "melting pot" at Halsted and Polk streets. Charles Hull donated his mansion, spared from the flames of the great fire, for the purpose.

"God's hand must have saved the house for us," said Miss Addams.

The program of activities began with children's clubs, free kindergartens and afternoon teas.

Gradually the word spread among the foreign sections that a welcome was waiting at Hull House. The people came timidly at first, but distrust soon gave way to enthusiasm.

There were classes in language, music, art, basket-weaving, lace making, sewing, cooking and other subjects.

Miss Addams didn't limit her activities in Chicago to settlement work. For a time she was an inspector of streets and alleys, a city appointment, and she served on the board of education.

Chicago will remember Jane Addams not only as the founder of Hull House but also as the originator of a system of social service work that has been copied far and wide.

Jane Addams' Stirring Life Has Hull House As Monument

There was a gymnasium, a day nursery where employed mothers could leave their children, a restaurant, a theater—Hull House became the true community center.

Shrine For The Famous

Its influence is just as important today as it was then. Thousands of citizens use its facilities every week, and while it is now housed in much larger quarters, there is still the same friendly greeting extended to the stranger.

In recent years Miss Addams has not lived at Hull House, but she has devoted a definite part of her time to its program. While she was there it became a shrine for famous persons as they passed through Chicago. Former President Theodore Roosevelt was a frequent visitor. He called Miss Addams "Chicago's most useful citizen."

Ramsay MacDonald, prime minister of Great Britain, brought his bride to Hull House on their honeymoon and years later their son visited Miss Addams there.

Worked For City

Among those who worked under Miss Addams at Hull House are Frances Perkins, secretary of labor; Gerald Swope, president of the General Electric company; Julia Lathrop, first chief of the federal children's bureau; Grace Abbott, who later held the same post and at present is on the University of Chicago faculty; Mackenzie King, former premier of Canada.

The wide brimmed hat is of dark red straw, the gloves of beige suede.

Morgan Duke Heads Gulf States Co.

Consolidation Of Gulf States And Trinity Life Announced

DALLAS—A Morgan Duke of Fort Worth was unanimously elected president of the Gulf States Security Life Insurance Co. it was announced here Wednesday. His election by the board of directors was voted following the resignation of Z. E. Marvin, Sr.

At the time of Mr. Duke's election B. A. Donnelly also of Fort Worth, was unanimously elected executive vice-president of the company.

Mr. Marvin will remain a member of the board of directors and a member of the executive committee. He had not announced his further plans Wednesday.

Both Mr. Duke and Mr. Donnelly are former Dallas insurance men and for 20 years engaged in the insurance business here. Mr. Duke in addition to his presidency of the Gulf States Company, is president of the Trinity Life Insurance Company of Fort Worth, president of the Trinity Bond Investment Corporation and the Commercial Standard Insurance Company. Mr. Donnelly is secretary and treasurer of the Trinity Life Company.

It was announced that plans had been approved for the immediate consolidation of the resources of the Gulf States Security Life Insurance Company and the Trinity Life Insurance Company. The enlarged company will occupy the Gulf States building in Dallas which has been recently extended to 16 stories and air conditioned throughout.

The enlarged company will have in force approximately $60,000,000 of insurance. The total assets of the consolidated organization will

TEXAS TOPICS

By Raymond Brooks

Texas, it has been found, doesn't have to wait entirely upon the Rayburn holding companies' bill to deal with the situation of pyramided corporations or capital stock structures.

For instance, Texas has proven that it can require every corporation operating in the state to be a Texas corporation. That is, it can require every foreign firm to set up a state corporation, with Texas officers and headquarters. This was proven by the railroad law.

Corporations are creatures of the state, and exist by its permission and according to its terms.

The Humble company decision of course permitted outside owners of the stock to vote and control the affairs of a Texas corporation. Texas has proven that it can require the investment of certain types of reserves of insurance companies in Texas securities. It probably can require the ownership of specified percentages of stock in Texas corporations, or its deposit in voting trusts, within the state.

In short, Texas control of all corporations in Texas is within the run approximately $3,500,000. "This will offer additional protection to the policyholders of the enlarged company," Dr. Duke said, "and it will perfect one of the greatest insurance sales organizations in the state." The agency force of such company has been producing around $1,000,000 in insurance each month. Mr. Duke pointed out. Both companies operate only in Texas.

There were no other changes made in the personnel of the Gulf States company at its directors meeting. There were 23 directors present and the elections of both Mr. Duke and Mr. Donnelly were unanimous.

The proposed merger of the two companies has the approval of Judge H. L. Daniel, insurance commissioner of Texas.

Judge Daniel said: "The officers and directors of the two companies are to be congratulated upon the plan of the proposed consolidation which is a very wise and unselfish act on the part of the officers and directors of the two companies."

It certainly should result in the rapid growth of the enlarged organization that will produce a large company, financially strong and well able to protect the interests of its policyholders under any and all conditions."

reach at this time of the legislature. This makes no reference to control through taxing powers, such as franchise taxes, and intangible assets taxes.

movement, more aggressive and better organized than in other states, has a broad political objective on these three fronts: Legislative membership, leaders in political and official life; the oncoming younger citizenship. Already, on any matter of division, the Young Democrats have the balance of power in the Texas legislature, whenever they stand together. Members of the legislature, such as J. Doyle Settle and Howard Davison, are active leaders in the organization. The next decisive showing to be made by the organization will be a concentrated influence in state political races. The organization already has thought to offer its own candidates for state office, but waited for a more propitious time, and in the recent election of Gov. Allred registered strong support.

Gov. Allred was was an honor guest and the chief speaker on a program of the state convention of Young Democrats in Amarillo.

Miss Gibson Married To B. R. Keller

Lovely Home Ceremony Is Held At Mrs. Anne Gibson Houser's

Following a family tradition of being married underneath the portrait of the first known ancestor to bequest her musical gifts to her descendants, Miss Rowena Gibson gave her hand in marriage to Ben Robert Keller Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of her sister, Mrs. Anne Gibson Houser.

The rites were said in the dining room with the Rev. W. G. Buchschaer officiating. The couple stood before the buffet over which hung the large oil painting of Patricia Jane Greaves which the Gibson family had brought West from its Kentucky home. Tall white tapers in silver holders burned on the buffet, which was centered with a bowl of lovely yellow roses.

The wedding party attendants were Miss Eugenia Merrick as bridesmaid, and James Absent of Albuquerque, N. M., as best man. The bride came in on the arm of her sister, Mrs. Houser.

A lovely summer pastel motif was employed in the frocks of the wedding party. The bride was attired in a gown of blue net and carried a bouquet of pink roses and framed with sprays of bridal wreath. Mr. Flood wore yellow crepe and Miss Merrick, pink crepe.

before the ceremony. Mrs. W. K. Edwards at the piano was her accompanist and played the wedding marches. Mrs. Edwards wore a frock of peach-colored net.

A white-iced wedding cake was sliced by the bride and served to the few intimist friends that were invited in for the ceremony and the reception.

After the reception the bride changed to a tailored traveling ensemble of navy blue net with blue and white accessories and the young couple left by car for Albuquerque where they will make their home.

Mrs. Keller has lived in Big Spring off and on for the last four years, making her home with her sister and her mother, Mrs. Sudie Gibson. She was born in Arlington, Kentucky, and lived there until coming to Big Spring. She has been in school most of the time her mother has lived here, attending Millersburg College in Millersburg, Kentucky, later going to Jonesboro College, Jonesboro, Arkansas. Last year she did her sophomore work in Lubbock at Texas Tech, specializing in expression and dramatic art.

Mr. Keller was born and reared in Shreveport, La. He is employed by the Trinity Oil Company and has been located in Hobbs, N. M., until a recent transfer moved him to Albuquerque.

The Real "Inside Story" of Beer

(Reading Time 60 Seconds)

IN 60 seconds I can give YOU a tip about beer THAT will pay you dividends FOR the rest of your life.

EVERYBODY knows that it TAKES barley, malt, hops AND yeast to make beer. BUT not everybody knows WHAT else it takes to make THE best beer. THE truth of the matter IS this... IT takes Enzyme Control. WHOA, there!... don't let a LITTLE word like that DISCOURAGE you. IT is really as simple AS apple pie.

AN Enzyme's job in life is to MAKE things ripen, such as FRUITS, vegetables and beer. THE trouble is, an ENZYME never knows ENOUGH to stop. UNLESS it is controlled IT goes right on working UNTIL the fruit is OVER-RIPE and useless. NOBODY wants beer that IS under-ripe or over-ripe, AND that is just WHERE Schlitz comes in. SCHLITZ has learned the DELICATE job of controlling ENZYMES exactly. AND that's why SCHLITZ tastes best AND agrees with you so well.

MY sixty seconds are up! SO let's quench our thirst WITH a cool bottle of SCHLITZ... in brown BOTTLES to protect its PURITY and fine flavor

MAX BAER HEAVY FAVORITE TONIGHT

'EXPERTS' PREDICT EASY WIN

California's "Terror" Will Be Forced To Surmount Me and Crowd Tonight

(Special To The Herald)

NEW YORK—Max Baer is going over the top and James J. Braddock, the ex-dock hand who parlayed a concrete chin and game heart into a title fight, is going to rest his heavy head on the canvas for an uninterrupted 10-second snooze in Madison Square Garden tonight.

Baer, heavyweight champion of the world, will hurdle the greatest handicap ever saddled upon a title holder's back when he disposes of this alger hero of the prize ring—a puffed up light-heavyweight who was pulled out of the flaccid junk pile and now finds himself on the threshold of fame and fortune.

Hostile Crowd

The California terror of Queensberry will be forced to surmount a hostile crowd, promoters and mobs who, whether you believe it or not, do not tilt an eye at the suggestion of "protection." But Baer's answer to all this will be a pair of fists which have mercilessly dumped Max Schmeling, Primo Carnera and King Levinsky and which unless one is blinded to reason, are scored to beat into submission tonight's challenger and idol of the masses.

Baer is fit to go five or fifteen rounds. Physically, he has no excuses. He is worried over his fists which are admittedly sore, but they are not fractured. He is as strong as a bull. As keen as a razor blade, Braddock, a game fellow, cannot hope to out-box, out-punch or out-smart Baer. He cannot cope with him in the clinches or at long range. He has, in fact, only that luck charm that miraculously catapulted him into his present place as Baer's opponent in Maxie's first defense of the title he so brutally tore from Carnera's massive brow. The odds are 4 to 1 on Baer to win, even money that Max stretches Jimmy. It is ridiculous to post greater odds in any event where so many things can happen.

Hiding out in a downtown hotel after a car ride from Ashbury Park, uneventful except the car ran out of gas, Baer revealed his plan of battle. "I'm going to start to work on Braddock's body," he said calmly as he rested between the covers of a soft bed. "His chin may be weaker but I'm taking no chance on my hands. For four or five rounds, I'll cover up, move in close, sink that left hook into the pit of his stomach and crash my right under his heart. When I have him softened up I'll change my target to his chin. By that time his hands will be down to protect his head and he'll have a clear shot at his jaw."

Baer was unworried. He has conceded Braddock an easy fight from the outset. "How can he win; what can he win," he demanded. "He says he's going to be desperate. Well, I am too. I've got mouths to feed, including my lawyers and managers. Twice as many as he has. I've got to win. I'll knock him out, and if you want to make some money, you bet on me to finish him off around the fifth round."

Hoffman Picks 'B'

Anell Hoffman, who is still engaged in his brawl with the commission, unhesitatingly picked round five as the spot for Braddock's bubble to burst. "Braddock and his manager, Joe Gould, are talking a good fight. But maybe they are whistling in the dark. Gould adds, rather whispers in a way, "It's worth $25,000 to us and we've never seen that much money before."

There is still some fireworks to be exploded. Hoffman was to have reiterated his protest of Art Donovan as referee at a commission meeting this afternoon. He felt confident the commission would agree to name some other arbiter. Baer said that in event they would not name another arbiter, he positively would not get out of his corner to answer the bell.

Hoffman supported him. "We'll make them change or there won't be a fight, and Madison Square Garden can refund the money to the ticket purchasers," he said. Whether he would go through with such a dangerous riot provoking move, we are not qualified to say, but Hoffman, who just asked the commission why he was "poison in their eyes" has his dander up. The Herald reported it has posted Baer's $20,000 appearance check, thus stopping any ambitious attorney from attaching that sum. Interest in the fight, despite its one-sided aspect, has been crystallized by the arrival of reports from parts of the country.

Baer—People's Choice

Almost unanimously Baer is their choice. Although here and there Braddock pops up with an apostle who thinks Maxie will fold up if the fight goes longer than five rounds, Braddock will be the same of caution during the first few frames of the encounter. "He won't give Baer a chance to wing him as the old Carnera," says the venerable old. "That's the mistake

WHAT A DIFFERENCE A FEW MONTHS MAKE!

By JOHN STAHR (Associated Press Sports Writer)

The new National League theme song (with Francis Kipling Frisch leading the chorus):

"So it's Dean, Dean, Dean, you fellows, don't throw it at his head!"

Last October the Brothers Dean, Jerome H. "Dizzy" and Paul "Duffy" sat comfortably, if a little vindictively, on top of the baseball world.

They'd pitched the St. Louis Cardinals to the National League pennant, contributing 49 of the team's 95 victories, and followed up by shipping the Detroit Tigers in the four games necessary to win the world series.

They had color, they had class. They were unquestionably the most effective as well as the most entertaining pitching brother act the big leagues had ever known. They were pitching for a rough, tough, swash-buckling sort of ball team that delighted old-timers with its pugacity and daring.

Ingrowing Pugacity

The Cardinals still are colorful, pugacious, daring. The Deans still are effective and entertaining; but their effectiveness is not nearly so conspicuous as it was last year, and their entertainment has seemed to run more to slapstick than strike-outs.

And the Cardinal pugacity has shown signs of being of the ingrowing variety, as indicated the other day when Dix and Joe Medwick squared away in front of the dug-out after hurling respective accusations of "laying down on me" and "not bearing down in there."

National league batters are thinking of renaming the time-worn descriptive of a ball thrown at the head of a batsman from beanball to "Deanball." Even in spring training down south there was some fussing about the alleged tendency of the Deans to heave the beaner when rivals took liberties with their regular offerings.

Much of their involvement in squabbles this season has sprung from indulgence in this playful whim of winging the 5-ounce horsehide at Mr. Bette's head.

Dix Isn't Happy

There seems to be some question now as to whether the Cardinals will continue to consider the glory of the Dean pitching quite worth the price—also whether the elder Dean will ever regain his old stride so long as he remains under the Cardinal banner. Some of his quotations of late indicate a distinct unhappiness in his surroundings.

these fighters make, trying to belt out Baer in the first few rounds. Jimmy will take his time and he'll have Max crying for mercy after the tenth round. But Gould is overlooking the fact that Baer is in fine shape, stronger than Braddock, and backed by the experience of two twenty-round fights. Every round will increase Baer's chances and reduce Jimmy's. The "railbirds" seem to think Braddock will enter the ring with the idea of going fifteen rounds and will keep figuring the champion will lose half the rounds by fouling and perhaps others through riling up the referee.

As a matter of fact, no matter how one-sided the fight, fans seem to think Baer will lose if it goes the limit.

You can't forget that Carnera's score card of Donovan and two judges—showing that Baer was not even ahead in the tenth round after flooring the mountainous Italian at least ten times.

The house will probably go $200,000, which in view of the antipathy toward the Deans by an aroused New York Press and the nature of the fight, will be around unusually low.

The Howard County Refinery-Carter Chevrolet softball game play, scheduled to be played Wednesday evening, was postponed and will be played next week.

Both teams were on hand for the battle, but it was decided that the grounds were too wet to begin.

The SPORTSMAN

Within the boggy confines of Minnesota's northern Red Lake district the last herd of woodland caribou in the United States thrives unmolested, far from the habitat of man.

Remnant of fauna that once ranged the northern United States from coast to coast, the herd is estimated at a dozen head. So inaccessible are the marsh-mottled Red Lake environs that a definite census is impossible.

Market-hunting, drainage, over-shooting and man's proximity applied extinction for the stately beasts over the wide range 20 years ago. And only through a quirk of fate—a joker retained by nature—has the caribou retained a foothold.

During the land boom of the 1920's the Red Lake area was marked, with other northern lands, for drainage. But ditches caved, the tucky soil hampered operations and finally the project was abandoned.

Unproductive except for wild life, the huge northern expanse, with its peat moss and straggly jack pines appearing like a crazy quilt, today is a veritable haven for game.

4-H Ducks!
The assistance of Nebraska 4-H poultry club members in a project designed to increase the wild duck population of the Corn-husker state is being sought by State Game Warden Frank F. O'Connell.

The plan calls for the Nebraska game, forestation and parks commission to furnish a limited number of eggs to each boy or girl club member and buy back next fall, at 75 cents to $1, each wild duck the youngster hatches and raises from eggs furnished by the commission.

O'Connell said the plan was being tried as an experiment and that it would be more practical to furnish eggs to club members in counties near Lincoln, the state capital, so the work could be supervised efficiently.

Records May Fall At NCAA June 21-22

By RUSSELL NEWLAND Associated Press Sports Writer BERKELEY, Calif. (AP)—If athletes from the midwestern and eastern sections rate up to top performance they will dominate the high and broad jump events in the National Collegiate A. A. championships here June 21-22, but the pole vault shapes up as a closer competition.

Vincent Murphy, Notre Dame star, has cleared the bar at 6 feet 1-4 inches, indoors this year. Al Trendell, Temple university negro, has a best mark of 6 feet 7 inches and another great negro athlete, Willis Ward of Michigan, has cleared the same height.

In the 6 feet 5 3-4 inch class is Jim Philson of Drake, and Wade Allen of Michigan State is three-quarters of an inch below. The best he far west has to offer is Hummer Smith of Stanford at 6 feet 3-4 inches; Hugh Thompson and Paul Jacques both of California at 6 feet 3 7-8 inches; William Carson of San Diego State at 6 feet 3 1-4 inches and Bog Swisher of Washington at 6-3.

Miss Dorothy Bunch of Sweetwater is yielding Miss Evelyn Merrill.

SPORT SLANTS by Pap

While the mile run is listed as the feature event on the all-star invitation track meet at Princeton June 15, any one of the other five events may well produce a performance that will steal the show.

The fields entered in the two-mile, half-mile, quarter-mile, 120-yard hurdles and pole vault may lack the international flavor of the mile entry but each group includes at least one star who is capable, potentially, of breaking the existing record.

Matty Geis, Princeton track coach, has ventured to predict that a new mark will be set up in the quarter when five of the country's leading middle distance runners take their mark on the lightning fast track in Palmer stadium.

Let by Glenn Hardin, Louisiana State university's captain, the fine field in this event includes Ivar Fuqua, former Indiana star and winner of the race last year, Jimmy LaValle of the University of California at Los Angeles, Bob Kane of Cornell and Eddie O'Brien, Syracuse university's sophomore sprint sensation.

Geis picks the Syracuse sophomore as the likely winner over the field—or at least avers that O'Brien will force the man who heads him to the tape to break the record of 46.4 seconds set up by Ben Eastman in March, 1932.

There is certain to be a real race between LaValle and Hardin no matter what happens. The west coast negro recently regained the

I. C. 4-A, 400-meter championship which he held in 1933 but did not defend last year because poor health kept him off the cinders part of last spring.

LaValle is particularly eager to avenge the defeat he suffered at the hands of Glenn Hardin at the National Collegiate title meet, last summer.

Beating the lanky Louisiana star to the tape in a "quarter" is a man's job for Hardin has flashed his old form again this season, and if you will recall, that was good enough to earn him three places on Dan Ferris' All-America track and field team.

Hardin May Be It In his only appearance in the east on an outdoor track Hardin turned a leg on the mile relay at the Penn relays in 47.2 after he had anchored his team to victory in the two-mile race with a half mile that was close to 1:54.

He finally broke out in a hitting rash that afternoon when he hit two home runs, a double and a single in five times at bat. He missed his fifth hit by inches when he sent a long fly to the fence which Ben Chapman just did manage to get his fingers on. All in all, his big bat drove in four runs, enough to top the Yankees total singlehand.

After the game we asked Greenberg if he felt satisfied with the slugging show he had put on.

"Well," he demurred, "I should have had a third homer in that one Chapman grabbed on me in the seventh inning. And besides it would have been nicer if there had been a few more of my neighbors in the stands to see the fireworks there were only 5,000."

Some guys are never satisfied!

Princeton To Hold Super Track Meet

By JOHN STAIR (Associated Press Sports Writer) PRINCETON, N. J. (AP)—The cinder track that, in less than two years, has felt the dig of spiked shoes pounding out the three fastest miles in foot-racing history is being manicured to an almost gleaming perfection in honor of the 30 hand-picked athletes in Princeton's second annual "super-invitation" track and field festa, June 15.

It was on the lightning-fast deeply rock-balled Palmer Stadium oval on July 15, 1933, that the first staggering blow was struck in the feverish campaign that has raged through the last 24 months to bring the world mile record down within whispering distance of the fabulous four-minute-flat.

Jack Lovelock, a slight, 154-pound New Zealander competing for Oxford-Cambridge against Princeton-Cornell, that day gave the track world a shanking-up by whipping Princeton's Bill Bonthron in the then almost unbelievable time of 4:07.6, Bonthron was only a couple of strides behind in 4:08.7.

Up to that time 4:20 was considered cracking good time for a mile, 4:15 commanded headlines, and the 4:10 that Gene Venke returned, indoors in 1932, was practically miraculous. Up to that day only two men in history had broken 4:10—Jules LaDouneque, Frenchman who'd turned pro, with 4:09.2, and that fellow from out in Kansas, Glenn Cunningham, clocked in 4:09.8 at the 1933 N.C.A.A. games.

Henninger Forces Find Range In 5th To Beat Lab

By HANK HART Ernie Richardson's Chemists threw a scare into the Coeden Oilers in Wednesday evening's only softball game scoring six runs in three innings, but the Henninger forces finally found their range in the fifth inning, tied it up in the sixth, and won the game with six runs outburst in the eighth. The final tally was 12-6.

The Chemists jumped on Art Middleton for four runs in the first stanza, continued to shower base hits to all corners of the field until the fifth, and appeared on their way to their first major victory but collapsed in the fifth and the Oilers combined base hits with numerous Lab errors to finally gain the decision.

Manager Richardson had his fast ball working on the mound and up only four hits, but smart base running by the Oilers accounted for the majority of the Coedenites' counters.

The Chemists got to Middleton for six hits, three of which came in the first inning.

"Dutch" Mosley, speedy Coeden gardener, collected the only extra base blow of the evening, bailing out a home run in the eighth.

Fred Perry Made Even Bet Against Wimbledon Field

LONDON. (AP)—Few persons least of all the bookmakers—are doubting that Frederick J. Perry will retain his men's singles championship in the big tennis fortnight at Wimbledon starting June 24.

Stung for large sums on him last summer, when they started him at reasonable odds of 3 to 1 against one of London's largest commission houses has the British ace listed at even money against the field this time.

"Anybody who wants him at that price had better act quickly," said an official of the house.

Tilden Only Other Offhand, he could remember only one other player who had started Wimbledon at even—Bill Tilden. He proved a good investment.

Following Perry on the 1935 "honors list" is Jack Crawford at 3 to 1, Bunny Austin 4 to 1, Gottfried Von Cramm 5 to 1 and Sidney Wood at 7 to 1.

English Women's Good Luck Tokens Overload Caddies

NEWCASTLE, Eng. (AP)—Many star sportswomen have a secret reason for wearing the same weather-beaten sports outfits repeatedly in championship meets.

They will not admit that they are superstitious, but often something in the way of a mascot will be discovered in the background—and they have "lucky clothes."

Spectators at the British women's golf championship were surprised to see some of the smartest players turn out, day after day, in the same clothes.

Miss Diana Fishwick achieved a record round dressed in her lucky green, a suit she wears for her important matches.

The former English champion, Miss Wanda Morgan, is not happy unless she is wearing her slightly faded navy-blue beret. One player took a few mascots with her. The poor caddie had to carry around the course a bag containing an ivory elephant, a woolly toy dog, a silver-mounted hare's foot, and a horsehoof! And the owner was beaten in the first round!

Chapter 21
BAD NEWS

"It's so difficult!" thought Alison unhappily. "If I told father, he might believe me! And she'd find some way of wriggling out of it. After all, I can't prove what I saw; it's going to be my word against hers."

And if it came to that, she felt certain, her father would choose to believe Daphne Sumers.

"She'd only say that I'd made it all up," she thought despairingly. "Anyway, can it be right to tell tales? Is it ever right to do wrong?"

"So impossible to know!" She might only succeed in hurting her father without doing any good. Perhaps the best way would be to go direct to Daphne herself and tell her that she had found out.

It was still early when Alison got off the bus at Knightsbridge. In any case, her father would not be at home before five. She would finish off her shopping, she decided, and make up her mind what she must do then.

But she was still uncertain as to what was right when at last she got home.

Sitting in her own chair by the fire, alone with him, pouring out his China tea, poking the big logs on the fire to make them blaze, as she had done hundreds of times before, she found it harder than ever to break up her mind.

She could not listen properly to his description of his day, his titch with Daphne and two old friends, some gossip he had brought home from the club, the latest political scandal; she assented at random, trying to make up her mind to plunge.

"Father—" she drew a deep breath and got as far as that but Robert, still chucking over his last joke as he lit a cigar, broke in before she could finish.

"By the way, did Daphne tell you about our new plan?"

Alison pulled herself together with a jerk.

"No. As a matter of fact, I missed her this afternoon."

Was he going to ask why? For a second she held her breath.

"Oh? You haven't seen her then?"

"No."

"Oh, we settled everything at lunch!" Robert was pleased to be able to break the news himself, he had rather a childish love of being the first and he did not notice Alison's expression of relief.

"She and I were talking things over," he went on cheerfully, "and we both feel that there's no real reason why we should wait a whole six weeks to get married. I was waiting because your aunt wouldn't be back from India to look after you, but Daphne says that she would much rather that you came with us."

"On your honeymoon?" All Alison's anxious thoughts were scattered by this bombshell. She stared at her father blankly.

"Yes." He laughed rather shyly. "We're not a young couple, my dear, to be romantic about that. She says you'd enjoy it. Daphne thinks it'd be great fun having you with her while I'm playing with my botanical collection. You see we've decided to go to Spain now, the Southern Pyrenees, instead of Madeira, and you'd love that."

"I think I'd feel horribly in the way," Alison could not keep the sheer dismay out of her voice.

"Nonsense! How could you be in the way? We both want you." He patted her shoulder.

"Father, please—honestly, I'd rather not!" It came out with a rush. "I'd much rather stay in the house alone, if Aunt Emily isn't back in time!"

"I thought you'd be pleased." Robert looked upset and very hurt.

"I—I think it's sweet of you both to want me." She got that out with an effort.

"We do want you. Surely that's enough?" There was a note of annoyance in his voice now.

"But I'd rather stay here." In her despair, Alison plunged. "I—I want to talk to you about that. You see, I've been thinking things out and I think I want to take up some work."

"Work? What on earth for? My dear child, don't be so silly!" He was quite heated. "There's no earthly reason to work. You know perfectly well what I think of all this modern nonsense about girls earning their own living!"

"I don't want to earn my living," Alison strove to be patient. "I just want something to do."

His annoyance faded suddenly into laughter.

"Something to do. You'll have plenty. Why, Daphne's planning to give a dance to bring you out soon as we get back, and you'll be much too busy playing round and amusing yourself to worry about work."

"But I don't want to dance and amuse myself."

"Don't want to come out and be presented? What rubbish! You'll love it. All girls do. Dancing and spending money and having new frocks and stuff—that a little goes a long way!"

Was there no way of making him understand? thought Alison helplessly. A few months ago, he would have listened to her views, but now Daphne had taught him to think of his daughter as a child still, to be treated as a fool!

She made one last desperate plea.

"Let me try it—just for a little while anyway. The three weeks you're away and see—"

"See what?" His anger burst suddenly. "My dear, you're being very stupid! It's not like you. All this nonsense about work? Daphne and I want you to come with us, and that's enough. It's extraordinarily sweet of her to want you, and I don't think you're behaving any too well. I'm afraid it's simply that you're jealous, and I hate to think that!"

His anger died away, as it always did, in a few seconds. He touched her right hand gently.

FINISHING TOUCHES FOR JIMMY

Alison's mind was the one idea in Alison's mind as she rushed upstairs to her room. The thought of being third on that honeymoon trip, of being left half the day with Daphne and with no escape, was dreadful.

Skiing and mountaineering had been Alison's hobbies when she was at school; the freedom and the loneliness of the high peaks appealed to a mystic streak in her nature. She had found in those solitary expeditions some things she had always wanted, peace to straight out her tangled ideas and to know herself and her aims.

The light and color of those wide landscapes in summer, the utter silence of the snow and the thin cold air in winter enchanted her and had formed a secret joy to which she could look forward during the up in high-heeled 'old slippers,' thought Alison rebelliously. "And whatever happens now I shall always think of her kissing that man!"

She did not go downstairs again. She could not face her father until she had made up her mind what she was going to do. She lingered in her own room, pretending to read while she thought deeply. Yet when the housemaid came up to lay out her dress for the evening she seemed no nearer a decision.

"—anything more—funny—" Guy had said. And surely this was funny? For Daphne to change all her plans on the spur of the moment, change her arrangements for a honeymoon trip to Madeira and insist on a third person coming out with them to Spain!

"It's not that she wants me," thought Alison with conviction. "She doesn't like me a little bit. She may put that over with father, it doesn't go down with me!"

"We settled everything at lunch," he had said. What had made her change? Not that kiss, then, in the basement at Fulham. Something had happened before that.

Could this new motive have anything to do with Guy? But the butler had said distinctly that he had given no name, so it couldn't be that!

One thing Alison felt sure of—something had made Daphne change her mind, it was no mere whim, for Daphne Sumers was not the type of person who acts without some deep motive. The more she considered it, the more Alison mistrusted this sudden change of plan.

Jim Nervous At Weighing

Baer Clowns At The Commission Office, Kids Braddock

NEW YORK (Sp.)—The weighing in for the big heavyweight fight today found Baer at 209 1-2 pounds and Braddock at 191 1-4 pounds.

Baer approached Braddock in the dressing room and extended a hand which Braddock took coolly.

"I wish you—" started Baer. But Manager Gould broke in with "Get away from him. You can wish him nothing. You'll have plenty of time to talk to him when you're in the ring tonight."

"Who are you," asked Baer. "Well, you know who I am; anyway, you big bum," shouted Cantwell.

"Sure, I do, old Grand Larceny himself," yelled Baer as he pulled off his shirt.

Cantwell took a step toward Baer in the crowd but General Phelan outbouted them all by declaring that the state athletic commission would throw everyone out if the wrangling didn't stop.

"Oh, I'm nervous. I don't see how I can go through with this fight," Baer said. He grinned and kidded with his undressing.

Later Baer as he left the building announced that when he entered the building he had sensed "an obnoxious odor and looking around I found it was Cantwell."

However, the purpose of Gould and Cantwell was accomplished. They did haze Baer a little. They only hoped that it would prey on his mind up to going time.

Dr. Harry Walker of the commission examined both heavyweights and pronounced them in perfect condition.

Dr. Walker said that Braddock was nervous but that it was a nervousness of peak condition.

Braddock was distinctly nervous at the weighing in.

Dearest Daughter

Thanks so much for sending that delightful little note, remembering my birthday. And please don't feel that its being so short made it any the less welcome.

Besides, I know what it is to have "shopper's headache"—to feel all worn out and dragged down, with your feet as heavy as lead from walking around all day.

But, my dear, why do you do it? I know you and Bob have something of a struggle to make ends meet. It won't always be that way, because I know Bob's a very ambitious young man—ambitious for you as well as for himself.

But take an old lady's advice, dear. Look for bargains—no matter how wealthy you become. But don't make an expedition of it. Make it a tour. You get a newspaper. Look for real bargains there, before you set out. Then you'll know where you're going, and you won't wear yourself out so. I know, because I do it.

Give my best to Bob, and give Bob, Jr., a great big kiss from his grandma.

Lots of love,
 Mother.

tendency than on any other piece of legislation. It will lay the emphasis on a system of verbal unionization and is vitally necessary if the Federation is to have an effective weapon against company unions and racket unions.

The strike threats which have been bandied about so freely of late are mainly for the purpose of increasing the pressure for this bill. Not many strikes will materialize if it passes. If it doesn't there will be plenty. This thought is being drilled into congressional ears daily. But a point to bear in mind is that labor must take the Wagner bill on any terms it can get.

ish admiralty. For if Herr Hitler expands on the sea, so will France and Italy. Great Britain will not sit by idle. And Japan has already denounced the 5-53 treaty.

Newspaper correspondents recently laid these problems in Secretary Swenson's lap. They asked him to discuss prospects for revival of a naval disarmament conference in view of these developments. They picked on him because Mr. Swenson is usually confidential and loquacious. He expounds the "big navy" viewpoint.

Mr. Swenson cleared his throat.

The reporters prepared for a pronouncement that would shake the world—at least the naval nations. But all the secretary of the navy said was: "Secretary Hull has asked me to say nothing about naval disarmament plans." So if you want the lowdown on the problem, see Mr. Hull. And this cabinet dictator won't tell.

Dilemma
To seat or not to seat Rush D. Holt of West Virginia in the senate's most difficult problem right now. In the cloakrooms members squint for a way out of the dilemma which the black-haired youth presents.

Most members would like to seat him, although he swore he was eligible for the senate when he was one year delinquent in years. But if 90 senatorial candidates tried that stunt at the same time it would mean that we would have no Senate. That is the logical, constitutional conclusion—and they're strong on the constitution these days. But the "horse-and-bogey constitution"—as the Republicans put it—is ambiguous on the age qualification. It says that a senator must be thirty years old without specifying whether that applies to the time of election or seating.

Stranded
Bill Green and his associates talk a lot about the Connery 30-hour bill as an essential part of their immediate legislative program. Actually they know it has no chance at this session. But by giving the public the idea to chip away at the Wagner bill, they are setting up an objective to be fought for in future—and thereby strengthening their own position in turn.

Labor chiefs haven't forgotten that they reached their 48-hour pot of gold in 1938 and were benched when the depression came because they didn't have another major campaign in swing.

Threat
People who feel that bankers in this country have too much power should take a look at France. Last week the Bank of France—in the middle of a crisis—blocked Francois Pietri's attempt to form a government all by itself. Pietri had managed by delicate diplomacy to enlist the assurance of support from the radical Socialist party—which had been instrumental in overthrowing the Eouissin-Caillaux cabinet. The diplomacy included a much more modest request for authority to "save the franc" than Flaminio and Bouisson had asked. But the Bank of France thought M. Pietri had conceded too much in this direction and put sufficient pressure on him to force him to withdraw.

How was this pressure exerted? By the simple expedient of letting it be known that the bank would refuse to handle the government's short-term notes if Pietri took office on such a platform. The threat—if carried out—would have smashed French credit to smithereens, yet it was taken at face value.

Not a single Deputy protested at the bank's interference. Can you figure what would happen here if the Federal Reserve Bank refused to take the Treasury's notes?

Dim
Although they don't advertise it, the convention of the International Chamber of Commerce in Paris late this month was designed to mobilize sentiment for currency stabilization. Faint gestures by Secretary Morgenthau, France and Belgium had encouraged them.

Now prospective price changes resulting from the NRA decision have cooled any ardor the administration may have felt for immediate stabilization. With cabinets falling right and left, France cannot make a move in that direction. And Great Britain's new leaders will not jeopardize London's hope for restoration of financial supremacy by sitting around a conference table at this time.

Prospects for a world conference dwindle every day. There are too many problems for the home teams on the home grounds.

Notes
Chain store lobbying is in for a thorough ventilation by the house investigating committee. "We've struck pay dirt already," said a committee member. The omnibus banking bill will pass, according to best advice. NRA employees about to be let out are urging work relief authorities to provide quick white collar jobs, such as the manufacturing census. Many will be absorbed by expanding new agencies... Domination of Tsingtao, is Japan's objective, in American opinion.

NEW YORK
By JAMES McMULLIN

Slipper
The policies announced by the American Iron and Steel Institute give a clue to the future tactics of big business in dealing with organized labor. Present standards of wages and hours are to be maintained in steel and other leading industries largely for the purpose of strengthening employer resistance to anything resembling the closed shop.

If wage and hour relations are not disturbed the only remaining issue which justifies a strike call is union recognition. A strike on that basis—with working conditions not involved—is rated far less likely to enlist public support than a walkout keyed to a question of pay. And even conservatives admit that public opinion will be an important factor in determining the outcome of future labor disputes. On the same line of thought, right ring generals were delighted with the open sponsorship of a constitution amendment to broaden federal powers by the A. F. of L. They feel that this will also help to alienate public affection for the Federation cause.

Business expects the Federation of Labor to go all out for the closed shop shortly. Large corporations plan to make the union's climb as steep and slippery as possible.

Future
On the future side of the fence, the Federation's battle plan is this. The Wagner bill is the primary target and organized labor's battles will focus on it much more intensely than on any other piece of legislation. It will lay the emphasis on a system of verbal unionization and is vitally necessary if the Federation is to have an effective weapon against company unions and racket unions.

Relief
New York insiders learn that Harry Hopkins is gaining influence in the work relief setup at Ickes' expense. This is another way of saying that the civil works type of project—where a maximum proportion of the outlay is spent for direct labor and a minimum for materials—is likely to be given preference over public works construction of a permanent character where materials are an important cost element.

Sideights
Judge Pattangall—Maine promoter of a conservative coalition—is an ardent dry... Utility groups operating in the northeast much prefer to deal with the public service commission in Massachusetts, New Jersey or Pennsylvania than with the one in New York... The Massachusetts commission is rated the hardest-boiled but also the fairest.

Soothed
A few weeks ago the members of Secretary Roper's Business Planning and Advisory Council were breathing fire and threatening to resign en masse. Their reports to the White House on New Deal legislation had apparently been ignored and they felt they were sewed up in such a way that they couldn't express their opinions to Congress or the public without laying themselves open to the charge of breaking faith with the President. Now they are quite pleased with their situation and will continue to function indefinitely.

What happened? Extremely smooth diplomatic oil was poured on the ruffled waters. Were they sore because they were denied con-

Sensitive
Insiders also credit the President with astute maneuvering on the constitutional amendment stuff. By picking it up and then apparently dropping it he has made the issue his own if it shows signs of being valuable later. If it flops, he is in no way committed to it. He's free to let the voltage of popular sentiment guide his future course.

Note what this move accomplishes. Radical labor has been not for such an amendment. It's been talked up by left wingers for their own purposes. Now the issue has been taken away from them. Huey Long or Father Coughlin might have used it to strike sparks. They can't now. At the same time conservatives are enjoined from accusing the President of disrupting the Constitution. They can't possibly make the claim stick that he's trying to force the amendment. He needs only to point to his super-scrupulous observance of the principles set forth by the Supreme Court to make that charge look silly.

There's no telling yet how large a proportion of the electorate favors an amendment. Informed sources learn that response to the fever has been much weaker so far from the White House expected. Moreover the feminine reaction registered to date has been strongly in favor of leaving the Constitution alone—a curious outcropping of conservatism on this point from all sections of the country. If it keeps up the amendment will almost certainly be pigeonholed. The Roosevelt administration is particularly sensitive to the opinions of women voters.

Minimized
Keen New Yorkers remark that the President's concentration on NRA as the front page issue among the three on which the Supreme Court ruled against the New Deal distracted attention from one that was perhaps a harder blow to his personal prestige. When the nine Justices agreed he had overstepped his authority in removing William E. Humphrey as Federal Trade Commissioner they put him in a spot that might have proved very embarrassing. The possible kickback was minimized by focusing attention elsewhere.

Vigilance
Senator Wheeler's retreat on the holding company bill to the extent of accepting softening amendments was sweet music to utility leaders. But they aren't kidding themselves that the battle is over and safely won.

New Yorkers have a deep-rooted suspicion of such "concessions." Too often widely-advertised amendments in their favor have amounted to nothing more than juggling a few commas without altering the sense of threatening legislation. They say that unremitting vigilance is required to protect themselves from being played for suckers.

Wait
New York cotton circles get word of a reflex to the NRA decision which may make a lot of difference to farmers. Administration circles privately express doubt as to the legal validity of the Bankhead Act.

If the doubt persists it means the end of crop loans on a twelve cent basis. Probably loans would still be made—but much more cautiously and at markedly lower rates per pound. So cotton growers had better wait a bit before they start counting next year's chickens.

Thanks
The rising tide of cheaper corporate financing is a factor not to be ignored in appraising the chances for stable wage and price levels. Savings on interest rates by companies which take advantage of current refunding conditions tend to offset the difference between pre-NRA and present wage costs and thereby lessen the incentive for pay-cuts. By the same token they broaden the margin of profits at a given price—thus easing the pressure for competitive price slashes. Workers in many factories owe Joe Kennedy a vote of thanks for improving the prospects of wage maintenance.

Red
Stock Exchange president Charles R. Gay spoke before the New York State Chamber of Commerce the other day and stressed the idea that business would be wise to live up to its new responsibilities. The Chamber is very stiff-necked in its conservatism and likes to have its speakers go after the New Deal tooth and claw. Mr. Gay's remarks were received politely—but some members shuddered when such heresy was voiced within their sacred portals.

Fact
Many conservatives are perturbed by the president's layout for a skeleton NRA organization. You hear dire prophecies that it will turn out to be a super OGPU. But the best posted sources refuse to share the general alarm. They believe that a fact-finding body unhampered by administrative problems can be very useful to business as well as to the government.

fact with Congressional committees considering pending legislation? Okay, they could have their contacts. What's more, the White House would make all arrangements for them—and it did. Did they crave to air their views to the world? Well, if it meant so much to them they could do that too and it wouldn't be held against them. But would they please bear in mind that they were supposed to be the President's confidential advisers and that, while he appreciated having their ideas, he didn't necessarily share them. It would of course be taken for granted that they wouldn't do or say anything to embarrass him.

Result
The Council did publish the section of its report dealing with the holding company bill. Naturally FDR wasn't enthusiastic about their open disapproval of one of his pet pieces of legislation—but they were not reproached in any way for what they did. So now they have decided not to release any other parts of their survey—even though they have blanket permission—unless Mr. Roosevelt himself suggests it. This group remains the only direct channel of liaison between the administration and business and both sides are genuinely desirous of keeping it open. Considering the temper of the Council in May, New York observes that FDR certainly retains his gift for soothing fevers.

Insiders
Insiders also credit the President with astute maneuvering on the constitutional amendment stuff. By picking it up and then apparently dropping it he has made the issue his own if it shows signs of being valuable later. If it flops, he is in no way committed to it. He's free to let the voltage of popular sentiment guide his future course.

Extreme right wingers think that Mr. Gay should be watched as a potential candidate for Mr. Hoover's "red list."
