WASHINGTON

By Ray Tucker

Cracked—
Don't expect any mad rush to make good the President's call for a streamlined Constitution to replace the horse-and-buggy vehicle. The White House is distressed at the adverse reaction to its appeal. Nobody is yet marching on Washington. The official clipping bureau sends over a batch of bad news daily. Saffo voice comment on Capitol Hill is bitter.

Such diverse advisers as Attorney General Cummings and "Young Bob" LaFollette counsel caution. They argue against precipitate presentation of stopgap legislation or constitutional amendment. Classroom polls convince presidential scouts that the present Senate would refuse to submit any kind of amendment to the states. Crystallization of the anti-court issue would block enactment of the President's pending program. Congress would seize upon it for its filibustering possibilities.

Political lines have cracked completely, foreboding 1936 dissolution. Southern Democrats are revolting against the thought of federal control. Even Progressives are divided. Candidate Vandenberg rejoices at the prospect of pitting home and mother, the flag and the Constitution against the New Deal.

Strategy—

Mr. Roosevelt spoke out against the NRA decision before he planned to fear some less appealing figure might lead the charge. He has asked loyal Democratic Senators to refrain from formal discussion on or off the floor. He thinks the issue too momentous to be discussed in a casual speech.

His aides have mapped a tentative plan—subject to change, of course. Under it the President will dramatize the issue of necessary federal control in a carefully worded message to Congress. He will ask for a public discussion around the cracker barrels and town halls. It is the same strategy he adopted to generate popular pressure for the Social Security Bill.

That method is meant to keep alive the issue through the next congress and the campaign. If re-elected, the President will regard it as a mandate for his philosophy. He will apply "heat" to Congress, leaving it to the people to influence legislative action. Long-headed politicians concur in this slow-motion program. So do those who think the Constitution ought not be changed in fluttery, jittery style.

Slated—

Unostentatiously the President presses his charge against the court. His first act after the NRA amendment was to notify Senate leaders that he wanted passage of the Guffey bill for nationalization of the coal industry. It was off the "must" list until Chief Justice Hughes put it on.

Measures Guffey and Wagner are revamping the measure to meet the court's objections. They are writing a specific code into it and delegating definite power to a specific agency. They are eliminating intrastate mines from its jurisdiction. These consist of "captive mines" whose product goes to a nearby factory. They make up about 18 per cent of the industry.

Andrew W. Mellon has quietly entered the struggle, perhaps taking his cut from his erstwhile boss, Herbert Hoover. Some of Mr. Mellon's coal operators originally favored the bill. Within the last few days they have turned against it. They dread most its companion bill—the Wagner Labor Disputes measure, which is also slated for passage to stave off the threatened soft coal strike.

Rebuttal—

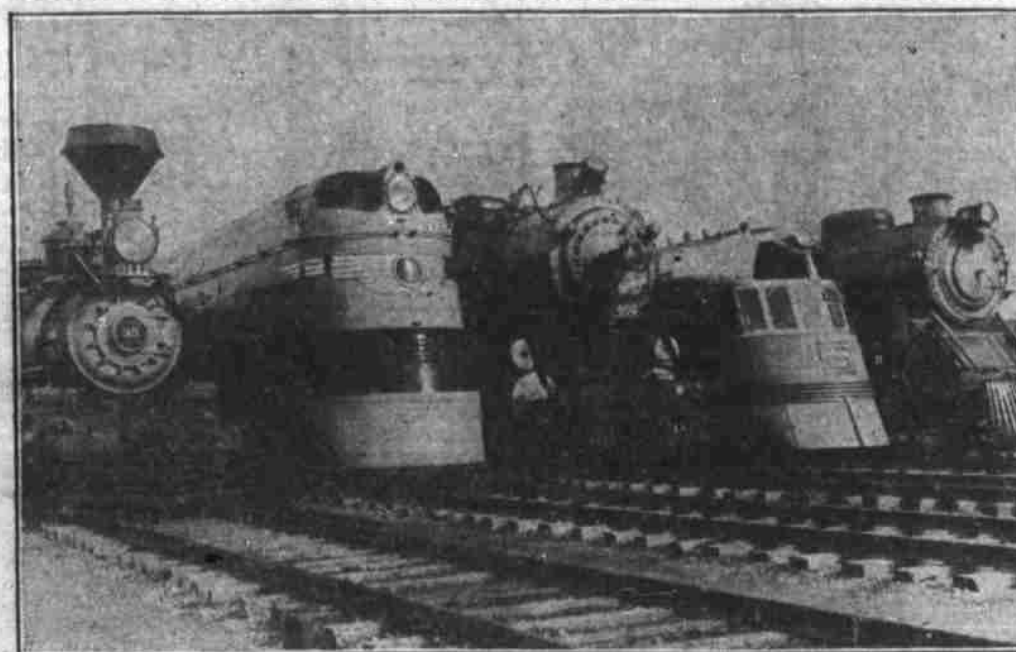

These measures symbolize legislative defiance of the court. Some lawyer-senators contend that they cannot be cleaned up into constitutional shape. But their backers reply: "Never mind that. Let's send them right up to the Supreme Court. Then we will get a legal as well as a political test."

The nine jurists will hear some sharp criticism and joshing when the Guffey bill comes up for debate. Judge Brandeis will read decisions in which the court held that coal mining was subject to federal regulation because of its interstate character. Sympathetic senators will elaborate the President's threat that the court feels kinder toward property rights than it does toward human needs. Mr. Wagner will quote Mr. Hughes' opinion in the Appalachian coal case.

When industry is grievously hurt, when production concerns fall, when unemployment mounts and

First Woman To Be Hanged In Delaware Pays Penalty With Son For Slaying Of Brother For Life Insurance

GEORGETOWN, Delaware (AP).—Mrs. May H. Carey, 55, a grandmother, and her first born—the father of three—died in the hangman's noose Friday, expiating a crime that was "perfect" for more than seven years. Fog surrounded the Sussex county jail as she mounted the scaffold, preceding her son, Howard, 27, by more than thirty minutes.

She was pronounced dead at 5:24, eastern standard time, the first woman to be hanged in Delaware.

Dr. Aubrey C. Smoot said she died of strangulation. The couple's crime was the slaying of Robert Hitchens, Mrs. Carey's brother, for his $2,000 life insurance.

250,000 State Scholastics Are 'Missing'

Texas Senate Probers Seek To Find Group Costing State Four Million Year

AUSTIN, (AP)—A determined search for an estimated 250,000 "missing" school children, whose names on school rolls cost the state $4,000,000 annually, was launched Thursday by a senate general investigating committee.

"Missing" children are those whose names are on school census rolls, but can not be determined as existent, and do not attend school. A preceding committee which estimated the number at 250,000, effected the removal of 12,000 to 15,000 fictitious names.

The school census master was assigned to the subcommittee headed by Senator W. R. Poage of Waco, also chairman of the entire committee, but because of the importance of the work, Senator W. P. Collier of Eastland said the whole committee would devote much time to it.

Despite the work of the previous committee, it was ascertained some rolls have been "padded" with names previously ordered off.

Procedure in the investigation, as outlined by Senator Collier, would be similar to that employed by the preceding committee. In most instances schools offered to compromise after investigations of portions of rolls revealed discrepancies.

Collier predicted the committee's work would add impetus to a bill revising the entire scholastic enumeration basis. The bill, which passed the senate, but failed in the house at the regular session, would institute a master census plan, based primarily on an enumeration of Texas school children from birth to past the school aid age.

Prime Minister Gives Up Post After 6 Years

Failing Health Causes MacDonald To Relinquish Office

LONDON, (AP)—Stanley Baldwin, twice prime minister of Great Britain, accepted that post again Friday from King George after Ramsay MacDonald who had served as head of the government for the past six years resigned.

MacDonald, who is leaving the post on account of failing health, surrendered his portfolio to the king during an hour's audience. MacDonald recommended Baldwin to succeed him.

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
NEW YORK—Britain now has a striking change in governmental leadership in substituting Stanley Baldwin for Ramsay MacDonald as prime minister.

The two famous statesmen are as far apart as the poles in personality and, in many respects, in processes of thought.

Premier MacDonald is a socialist and an internationalist. Former Premier Baldwin is an ultra-conservative, a typical John Bull, who sometimes has been called a "Little Englander" by critics who like to look beyond the British horizon.

Baldwin Born To Wealth

Probably many of the differences can be accounted for in birth and upbringing. MacDonald, the Scotsman, was born in dire poverty, the son of a farm servant in the drab village of Louth, which accounts for a socialist's shores of the North Sea. From this beginning he battled his way with his own two fists through many trying years to fame. It was perhaps natural that early in life he turned to socialism and visions of international brotherhood, and cast his lines with the working class.

Baldwin, the Englishman, was a child of upper-class wealth. His road through England's famous institutions of learning and on to politics was easy. In time he, himself, acquired great wealth.

Long Party Leader

He was reared in the great Tory party, which represents the wealth and aristocracy of Britain. The two men are about the same age, Baldwin being 68 and MacDonald 69. Each had been prime minister twice, and has held numerous other posts of distinction in the government.

Baldwin long has been the elected leader of the conservative party which now has a huge majority in the House of Commons, although the present government is nationalistic, which accounts for a socialist prime minister. MacDonald for many years was the elected leader of the British labor party, until he was thrown out by his followers when they felt he had deserted their cause in accepting the premiership of the nationalistic government.

MacDonald has a magnetic personality and an aptitude for leadership.

Baldwin lacks the personal magnetism of MacDonald, but his rugged personality inspires faith and confidence. He is conservative in every way, and has all the marks of the English country gentleman. He is slow to move, but when he does move he goes in a direct line. As a speaker he is unimpassioned and reserved, although some of his addresses have been called masterpieces of composition.

MacDonald has been described as a visionary by some of his opponents, and it has been claimed he has been too much interested in foreign affairs and not enough in the welfare of his own country. Baldwin is intensely practical and has devoted more of his energy to home affairs than to those of other countries.

Both Hard Workers

Both men are indefatigable workers. Baldwin, however, has always kept himself fit by plenty of exercise, while MacDonald has allowed his work to trespass on his health.

Baldwin once told me his theory

NEW BRITISH PRIME MINISTER

Stanley Baldwin (foreground) Friday accepted the post of British prime minister, succeeding Ramsay MacDonald (background). There are hardly two other men in all England who are as different in thought and personality as MacDonald and Baldwin. MacDonald, an internationalist and liberal, came up from poverty to the highest office in British politics, while Baldwin, a conservative and isolationist, was well born and travelled the easier route to political success.

During their short stay here, a committee from the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce, headed by W. T. Strange, will be on hand to extend a welcome to the visitors. The public is asked to be at the station at 10:40 to aid in extending the motion picture executives a cordial welcome to Big Spring.

The committee is as follows: Shine Phillips, G. A. Woodward, Harry Lees, A. Swartz, Glenn Guilkey, L. I. Stewart, Sam Goldman, R. T. Piner, Edmund Notestine, Nat Shick, R. L. Cook, L. A. Eubank, Calvin Boykin, Joe Galbraith, G. C. Dunham, Charley Corley, James A. Davis, C. S. Elomshield, Dr. P. W. Malone, Charles Frost, Dr. W. H. Hasty, John P. Watkins, M. M. Thorpe, George White, J. Y. Robb, Marion Edwards, Dr. M. H. Bennett.

The special train is due to arrive in Abilene at 6:45 p. m. Friday, and the party will be driven immediately to Hardin-Simmons university, where they will be guests of the Cowboy band and Manager Gil Sandifer at a barbecue and band concert. Harry M. Warner, president, and Albert Warner, vice president, will head the party.

Rest and recreation from their transcontinental train, was what officials in charge of the Warner "convention special" indicated they would appreciate at stops along the route. That sort of reception has been planned for them. However, at Big Spring a unique stunt has been planned for the visitors. It was indicated here Friday morning.

The Warners and their men are en route to a company convention in Los Angeles. Officials from the British Isles and European countries will be aboard the train.

He was aiding in unloading the bar wheel and as he stooped under the wheel to fasten a chain, it slipped and fell on his back.

Couple Stalled By Snow Drifts Week Ago Too Hot Now

Less than two weeks ago Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Hale, teachers in the Elbow school, were shivering while a snow plow ripped open a road.

Now they are sweating in heat at San Marcos, Texas, where they are attending summer school.

They wrote of their experience in a letter to Miss Anne Martin, county superintendent. Hale is principal of the Elbow school.

Business and Industry will be pleased with President Roosevelt's determination to get speedy action of one kind or another in the matter of the NRA. Regardless of whether some attempt is made to salvage a workable recovery act from the wreckage, or business is left to its own devices, definite action will end the uncertainty that is already slowing business down.

Though the White House has been silent, it is evident from the fact that NRA employees have not been dismissed that the President does not intend to abandon hope of a reformed NRA. Beyond this there is little to indicate what action is to be taken.

One of the twelve proposals being canvassed suggests the complete abandonment of the NRA and its objectives for the time being to see what would happen. Needless to say, such a procedure would not meet with approval by the president or Donald R. Richburg.

Regardless of what calamity howlers may say, such a step would not necessarily plunge us into a maelstrom of price cutting, wage slashing, hour lengthening, and general labor disorders.

Economic factors limit business and industry in matters of employment and wages, a fact that the NRA did not at times take fully into account. Ordinarily merchants and leaders believe in the fair treatment of workers and may be relied upon to establish equitable wage scales without the compulsion of statutes.

There are, of course, greedy real-estate men who never deal fairly with employees. Such employees have always existed, and probably always will, and it is their existence that makes such legislation as the NRA desirable. However, these employees have largely, found ways and means to evade the provisions of the NRA, and it is likely that they should be able to do the same thing under a revised act.

Fortunately this class is in the minority, another fact which the administration does not seem to have realized. They have regarded business generally as piratical and unfair, a view which has led to apprehension as to what may happen if the NRA is forgotten.

A sane view of abandonment precludes all possibility of economic disaster following a complete abandonment.

On the other hand the modern trend is toward the moderate and intelligent socialization of government. In keeping with this is the proposal to amend the constitution in such a manner as to permit a federal trade commission, or the interstate commerce commission, to rule in matters of working conditions in businesses in interstate commerce, such an amendment, of course, would pave the way for state laws governing intrastate trade.

Such amendments and laws would embody only the admitted good of the NRA, the phases touching on child-labor, minimum wages, working hours, and perhaps the arbitration of disputes between employees and employers.

Naturally such an amendment would amplify rather than alter the constitution since a lessening of individual security—as applied to employers—can not be considered.

Such a course could have no serious effect on business, and if properly framed, these laws would make unethical practices in business unlawful and punishable.

Other steps contemplated are the stretching of existing laws, and the empowering of individuals or groups to govern working conditions. None of them appear to be practical.

The broadening of the interstate commerce laws to meet the needs of the NRA was what led to its downfall, and it is certain that existing laws, altered to meet post-NRA needs, would meet the same fate. The empowering of individuals or groups to control commerce might lead to complications via the dictatorial route, but even if it did not, such power must be regarded as essentially departing from our conception of democracy.

There seems to be little choice between an abandonment of the NRA, or its continuance by Constitutional amendment, though perhaps the latter course would be beneficial in the end. But, for the present, business will welcome any move that will end uncertainty.

DO YOU KNOW—?

That arson, "crime of crimes," is responsible for more than 50 per cent of the lives of firemen lost in all fires?

That one arson fire is said to cost more than a dozen unpreventable fires?

That many losses of suspicious origin not yet proved incendiary when reported, are classed as "unknown" or "miscellaneous"?

That arson fires swell the total losses, thus affecting the cost of insurance protection to everyone?

That, to combat arson, special agents of the National Board of Fire Underwriters are adding state departments and cities in the organization of arson squads and that many cities now have such squads?

That the model arson law has been enacted in 34 states?

That suspicious fires are thoroughly investigated by experienced arson detectives and that many of them result in convictions of the guilty persons?

That you can do your part to stop this crime, committed against society?

That you should report any suspicious fires to the authorities?

That the lives of many innocent persons are endangered by this lowest type of criminal?

Help bring him to justice!

VEGETABLE NOTES

Save the liquid in which vegetables have been cooked. Keeping this in the ice box will help with your soup stock.

Spinach and green vegetables are supposed to contain iron; onions, sulphur; cabbage and green vegetables, sulfur; and celery and lettuce are supposed to have a good effect on the nervous system. All these points may be considered, but most valuable of all is to eat what you find agrees with you. Each person is her own best gastronomic judge.

With canned goods it is an essential thing to open the tins a while before using so that the contents may come into contact with a fresh supply of oxygen. But, above all things, remove the contents as soon as the tin is opened.

'Black Fury' Opens Today At The Ritz

Heralded As One Of The Great Ten Pictures Of The Year

When the first National picture "Black Fury" opens at the Ritz Theatre today, local audiences will witness a production that is heralded by competent critics as sure to be one of the ten great pictures of 1935, and one which will make Paul Muni a leading contender for the award of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences this year.

Tense drama, tempered with humor, romance and astounding spectacles feature this picture, which has one of the largest casts ever assembled for a single production. There are thirty-six speaking parts, as contrasted with or seven in the average picture. Hordes of hate-maddened miners battle beneath the earth, and storm the gates of the mines seeking to seize it. The brutal killing of a father because he resented an attack on his daughter by a drunken guard, is a prelude to one of the most dramatic fights ever filmed, as Muni battles to avenge the death of his friend.

Muni's one man strike, in which he barricades himself in the mine after blowing up all but one of the entrances with dynamite stolen from the company's store of explosives, and his reconciliation with his sweetheart who had deserted him for the arms of a treacherous policeman, are two of the dramatic and thrilling episodes that characterize this tremendous production.

Karen Morley has the leading feminine role. William Gargan portrays the part of her seducer. The production was directed by Michael Curtiz from the story "Jan Volkovich" by Judge M. A. Musmanno, and the play "Behunk" by Harry R. Irving.

Texas Drug Men Want To Sell Liquor

Association Votes To Ask They Be Made Distributors If Repeal Wins

DALLAS, AP.—The Texas Pharmaceutical association convention voted at its closing session Thursday to recommend that drug stores be the proper agencies for distributing liquor in the event repeal is voted August 24.

The vote followed a proposal of the legislative committee, Festus A. Pierce of Corsicana, vice-president elect and committee chairman, told the convention that in the opinion of the committee repeal would be voted, and that the association should be represented when legislation is drawn to control liquor distribution.

The committee also recommended that the association press its fight for a fair trade practice act, and for a law regulating distribution and advertising of contraceptives and prophylactics.

The committee further proposed that newspapers be asked to stop referring to "drug store cowboys," the term being called unfair both to the drug store and the cowboy, and to calling narcotic drugs.

All its recommendations were adopted.

Fort Worth, San Antonio, Houston and other cities bid for next year's convention. The selection will be made later by the executive committee.

President C. C. Harris of Houston and the other officers elected yesterday afternoon were installed.

communities dependent upon profitable production are prostrated, the walls of commerce go dry."

Crisis

Some Democratic legalists advance a logical theory to explain and soften the controversy and provide the Democrats with a political out.

These laboratory lawyers point out that the court does not always uphold its own "obiter dicta" in future decisions. And it was "obiter dicta" which blew up the New Deal. According to this view the nine jurists have grown tired of stretching the constitution to meet modern social and economic changes. So what they sought to do was to warn the administration that it was acting illegally under the constitution as written, and to precipitate a crisis necessitating a popular verdict.

Friends of certain liberal jurists say that no other interpretation explains their stand. You will hear a lot on this from the Democrats. This argument rationalizes the presidential demand for constitutional changes unless the court applies it—and the court must hold its tongue in a purely political squabble.

Strikes

Direct actionists in the labor movement—John L. Lewis and his UMW associates—are jubilant these days. They contend that recent events demonstrate the soundness of their reliance on field organization rather than political alliances. They are discreetly laughing up their sleeves at Bill Green of the American Federation of Labor.

Mr. Lewis never placed all his eggs in the White House basket or in NRA codes. He called a soft coal strike before the court wiped out the admittedly beneficial bituminous code. But Mr. Green relied upon legislation and have forced in the White House. He deprecated recent strikes, notably the automobile walkout. He compromised. Now developments beyond the administration's control have forced him to call a council of war at Washington. He echoes Lewis in threatening strikes.

It was Lewis, however, who forced the White House to swing behind the Guffey and Wagner bills. The constitutional crisis is likely to affect labor's attitude toward capital as deeply as it has the relationship between government and governed.

Bereft

In rebuking the executive arm of the government the Supreme court has revived congressional esprit de corps. Their new freedom does not show in excessive legislative independence—they will still await a test of Mr. Roosevelt's popularity to call political shrewdness—but it appears in their walk and talk. Corridors resound with a chorus of "I told you so's."

Even in the obedient house two administration favorites are sunk. It is improbable that the TVA or AAA amendments can be passed at this session. House committeemen hitherto favorable to validating TVA's right to sell power to municipalities are again it publicly. AAA proposals to licensing middlemen are temporarily out as of doubtful constitutionality.

It is in the house that the president has held his grip. Its great White House majority has acted as a check on senate back-sliders.

Should the Byrns-Bankhead-O'Connor legion fall him Mr. Roosevelt will be bereft of any backers except the Tagwells and Richbergs.

Notes

Federal bureaus held down by congress are handing in fancy plans for big spending, to help get rid of that four billion. Congress throws up its hands at the idea of formulating codes for interstate industries—too big a job. Definition of "unfair practices" keeps Federal Trade commission busy year after year. Business men say their legal advisers are warning them to play safe against Trade commission surprises. Railroad unions are exchanging views—they're in an ugly mood.

NEW YORK
By JAMES McMULLIN

Weakened

John L. Lewis has called a soft coal strike for June 16 because he felt he had to—not because he wanted to. His hand was forced by the communist miners' unions. Some months back he held off a strike because he feared they would cash in on it at his expense. Reports that they were planning a strike of their own made him change his mind. If the radicals had acted and he hadn't, he stood to lose a sizable flock of his restless membership to them. And if by chance their direct action was successful while he stayed on the sidelines he would have been in danger of having his carefully built union go to pieces completely.

There's no doubt that the United Mine Workers can tie up every mine in Pennsylvania if they choose. The operators in that region admit it and are not disposed to fight back aggressively. But it's questionable whether the strikers can do as well in Kentucky, Virginia and West Virginia. Those mines were never unionized until NRA came along and union discipline isn't so firmly established. The ironic angle of coal strikes is that they are invariably most successful where wages and working conditions are best and most likely to flop where labor is worst off.

Lewis is shooting for the 30-hour week—which he won't get. Most operators would sincerely prefer to quit the business permanently. But he probably can gain enough concessions to dress up as a victory. Last year was the first prosperous period for the soft coal industry in eight years—admittedly due to the artificial high prices maintained by the code. This prosperity went to the heads of a number of companies and they got generous with dividends. Now they wish they hadn't. Their freehandness to stockholders greatly weakens their arguments against union demands.

Paving

Passage of the Guffey coal bill is the one hope of averting a strike. This bill—which may turn out to be the cornerstone of New Deal reconstruction—has had very little public discussion. It would set up a Bituminous Coal commission with sweeping powers to fix wages, alter conditions and prices. This would satisfy the unions. It would also have authority to spend $300,000,000 buying in marginal mines and taking them out of production. The plowing-under theory applied to coal. The buying would be financed by a bond issue to be subsequently retired out of taxes on coal. This feature appeals to a lot of operators who figure limitation of output is their only salvation.

Unbelievable But True

Before being pursued and caught, this ghost swordfish vanquished a monster whale!

A mortal combat in which the marlin swordfish pictured above bested a 120 foot whale was filmed on and below the surface of the sea, scenes below showing the marlin attacking, and the damage done to the whale's vitals; and above, the whale using his only offensive weapon, his huge tail, to toss his adversary into the air in an effort to kill it. This combat is one of the many sensations in "Fish From Hell," said to be the most thrilling short film of the year. It is a unit of the R&R road-show program featuring George Raft in "The Glass Key," playing Tuesday and Wednesday at the Ritz theatre.

The bill is being revised to get around the implications of the NRA decision. Coal mining is declared to be interstate commerce (the railroads use coal, don't they?) Further it is declared to be an industry vital to national defense and therefore properly subject to federal control—a new and significant approach. Still further, the proposed commission's powers are drafted in close parallel with those of the Interstate Commerce commission—whose constitutionality has long been established. You see the point. If the Guffey bill is enacted and stands up in the courts—and competent lawyers believe that it would—it paves a fresh avenue for broad federal regulation of industry.

Sugar

There were two reasons for the turn-around whereby the French Chamber of Deputies gave readily to Boulestin what they denied Flamin. One was Boulestin's skill in getting stubborn political parties to help form his cabinet and thereby share his responsibility. The other was fear of an unstoppable panic if a parliamentary stalemate persisted. The makings were there and showed too clearly for comfort.

The French politicians are in a peculiarly awkward spot. They must do one (or more) of three things: to save the budget—devalue, impose heavy new taxes or cut the pay and jobs of government employees. Any one of the three is currently tantamount to suicide so far as the reaction on the voters is concerned. Moreover, could be pardoned for shirking a task on those terms.

Joseph Caillaux—the new finance minister who believes in rapprochement with Germany—talks bravely about maintaining the gold parity of the franc. There's a general impression that this will be done. The fundamental economic situation is unchanged. Caillaux has his one hope with his call for an international stabilization conference. If he can get stabilization—with Germany included—it will sugar-coat the pill of moderate devaluation enough to make the nation swallow it with little protest—and that's the object.

Help

Utility lawyers have dug up what they figure is convincing proof of the unconstitutionality of the holding company bill. How, they inquire, can the federal government arrogate to itself the right to order the dissolution of corporations whose existence is duly authorized by state charters? This ties in pretty well with the growing state's rights and power people rate it a most promising defense.

Utility men are also pleased with publication of that section of the Roper Advisory council's report which deals with the Wheeler-Rayburn bill. They especially like the council's insistence that wide geographical distribution of operating properties is desirable. Recommendations for regulation tally with Wendell Wilkie's speeches and are acceptable to the better class com-

There's no way of telling how much attention congress will pay to the council's views. But the power leaders are confident the report at worst can do no harm and might help them a lot—especially as it is temperately and calmly phrased.

Preparing

Joe Kennedy does want to quit his job as Chairman of the Securities Exchange commission but it looks as if he will have to stick around for quite a while. The possibility that the commission's authority will be challenged in the courts alters the picture a lot. It's an open secret that FDR wants Kennedy's hand on the helm if stormy weather develops—and insiders understand that Joe will stay in harness as long as his chief requests it. The SEC is preparing for trouble by adding new legal talent to its staff.

Responsive

New York sharps predict that any constitutional amendment to enlarge the federal government's powers over industry and agriculture will be handled by state conventions and not state legislatures. Conventions would be more responsive to the popular will and far less likely to be affected by the blandishments of expert lobbyists.

Standard Chevrolet Makes the Grade

Even in San Francisco, where hills are hills, they refer to Arguello Boulevard as "steep." They even mark it officially with a stop sign that says "Dangerous—32% Grade." It's tough climbing, but most motorists much prefer going up to going down. A 1935 New Standard Chevrolet made the upward climb, just to show that it can be done, and they took pictures to prove it. This year's Standard Chevrolet, which has the same "Blue-Flame" engine as the "ster models, has made itself a hill climber by scotfully zooming over hills and mountains that are regarded as severe tests of power.

NOBODY thought Katherine would make a very good wife. She seemed too frivolous. Always made a game out of everything. Hadn't a practical thought in her head—so it seemed.

Maybe that's why she DOES make Ed such a good wife. You still wouldn't think she was serious about a thing. Yet she must be. Because you've never seen a house kept better in your life. Or a budget balanced more neatly.

Most women come home from shopping all tired out. Not Katherine! She makes a grand game of it . . . calls in her weekly "Cook's Tour". She pores over her newspaper like a travel map . . . charts a course that takes her to bargain ports . . . and gets there without one wasted step.

How? She follows the advertisements. Watches them as closely as a sailor watches his compass. And she gets fun out of it all . . . But who wouldn't, with a happy home like hers and her knack for saving up money!

TEXAS TOPICS

By Raymond Brooks

A group of legislators in the next few days will ask Governor James V. Alfred to reconvene the house and senate late in July, rather than in September, to pass a liquor sale and taxing law.

Argument of these members will be that the state will begin losing $500,000 a month in taxes from the day the constitution is changed, if the repeal amendment carries, until a statute can become effective.

The wets have little hope of mustering 100 house votes to open up liquor sales earlier than 90 days from adjournment of the session, even with the promise of taxes. Those who want the real plan in effect quickly will show that the state would pay the cost of the session, four times over by advancing the beginning of the law one month.

They will essay to show the governor that by July 15 it will be fairly clear whether the amendment will carry. The repeal group has made extremely slow headway in getting started, but believe that it will pyramid its drive to the most effective form, rather than to start it early and get the drys hard at work.

Purely Vegetable Laxative

Thedford's Black-Draught is one of the most popular laxatives sold today because it is made of the leaves and roots of medicinal plants, and because it brings refreshing relief from constipation troubles.

"Black-Draught helped me when I was bilious, constipated, feeling sluggish, dizzy, or had a bad taste in my mouth," writes Mrs. W. M. Bullock, Waynesburg, Ky. "I haven't found any medicine I like better than Black-Draught."

It's the favorite laxative of thousands of others. Have you tried it? THEDFORD'S BLACK-DRAUGHT

Its passing of a long campaign designed to abolish the ad valorem tax for state purposes on all property.

It has been concluded that this tax shall be retained, along with others, but that certain exemptions extending the $3000 homestead exemption perhaps in time to all other levies, city and county as well as state.

The ad valorem tax now produces only about a fourth or a fifth of the state's revenue. But aside from a reasonable exemption on resident homesteads, public policy has now shaped itself that property ought, and will continue to bear some of the burden of state taxation.

If some federal judge doesn't nullify the action, Governor Alfred's granting of the first state pardon to men convicted in federal court—a customs guard and a deputy sheriff at Brownsville, will carry a step further the fight of Texas senators in resisting federal encroachments upon state powers. In the Brownsville case, the trial was taken out of state courts merely on the motion of the customs guard, on the ground that he drew his pay from the federal government. Just how federal courts ever got to the point of providing for two kinds of justice in criminal cases is not very clear to those who listen to the grave pronouncements of U. S. supreme court that the federal government cannot kick the states aside on any pretext.

The effort of the governor to sustain state sovereignty is more important than the merits of the individual pardon, which was sought and secured for the men by important federal and state officials and political leaders of the section, and recommended by officials of Mexico.

Sen. Ben G. O'Neal of Wichita Falls has just been named a member of the board of managers of the American Legislators' association, the central executives group of the organization, representing the legislative department of all the states.

His appointment to the post gives Texas a position in the national council of legislators comparable to that represented by a cabinet position in an administration.

Sen O'Neal was named the Texas representative to the interstate commerce commission on conflicting taxation, out of which grew the American Legislators' association. He served as the southwestern delegate, and this year, by the recognition conferred upon him by Pres. Belknap has been advanced to a place on the board of managers.

Your very valuable contribution to the work of the interstate commission on conflicting taxation, and your attendance at its meetings have been sincerely appreciated by all concerned," Mr. Belknap told him, in announcing his appointment to the national board of managers.

Lawmakers representing the legislatures of all states, through the interstate commission and the legislators' association, have begun to work out measures of cooperation through which state legislative policies will be formulated and conflict avoided between federal and state taxation and other legislation. One of the first steps was to cause the federal government to start withdrawing from the policy of levying a sales tax on gasoline, leaving this field to the states.

Though the safeguards of a reserve of power in the judiciary to decide the limits on authority of the executive, and the limits of authority and jurisdiction of the legislature generally have been reassuring, the certain clamor to curb the United States supreme court's unlimited exercise of power is sure to find some echo in Texas. The Hidalgo county case, saying the legislature can not remit future taxes, is in point. The court wiped off the books a law under which Texas had lived for 12 years. The recent decision that Texas has no anti-trust laws touched another point.

In the abstract, there has been much question whether courts should have the power to declare void a law enacted by the legislature and approved by the executive and sustained by the approval of the electorate.

United States supreme court can pass on the validity of a state constitution or constitutional amendment. Until changed, and on questions that the electorate wants it changed, the Texas supreme court can declare void any state statute. The court is answerable to its own interpretation of the law alone. And thus it is the re-

Love Prefers Loveland

LOVELAND, Colo. (UP).—"Love-land" meant more than a city to Miss Madonna Salisbury of Holdrege, Nebraska, and Ralph H. Propp of Sidney, Ia. Because the name of the town had such a romantic ring, the couple drove 258 miles, through the rain and over extremely rough and muddy roads recently to be married here.

Back Plane Sectors

CAMDEN, N. J. (UP).—Air-planes, too, have the back seat driver menace, according to Amelia Earhart, famous aviatrix. Stopping at the airport here for a brief rest, she said: "A woman in the back seat of a plane or an automobile should set just the same—trust the driver and refrain from comment."

In Defense of Plumbers

MARSHFIELD, Ore. (UP).—It's more than tradition—it's good advertising—that plumbers forget their tools. "Sure we sometimes forget our tools," a plumber said at the state convention of his craft here. But it's good advertising, and has made a lot of people think about us, even if they do curse sometimes."

Egg Bandit Sought

PUEBLO, Colo. (UP).—Police recently sought an "egg-breaking bandit." The robber is an unusual type in that he not only robbed houses but he stole eggs from the refrigerators and broke them on planes in the living rooms of Pueblo homes.

Lightship Gets New Berth

SAN PEDRO, Cal. (UP).—Stationary as an island, the Lightship Relief is anchored in San Pedro channel seven miles off the breakwater light for a seven months' stay. Scientists are aboard making daily observations of the set and drift of currents in the channel.

VETERAN RELIEVED OF CONSTIPATION* BY NATURAL FOOD

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Corrects His Condition

Here is an interesting, unsolicited letter: "I have used Kellogg's ALL-BRAN for about 4 years, and find it a wonderful relief for constipation." While in Government Service in the P. I., I contracted constipation in 1929-30.

"I consider your ALL-BRAN in terms of millions, instead of the cost of a box of pills, for it surely has saved me. I eat ALL-BRAN every morning." — F. L. Wylie, Visalia, Calif.

*Constipation due to insufficient "bulk" in meals.

Research shows Kellogg's ALL-BRAN supplies gentle "bulk" to aid regular habits. ALL-BRAN is also rich in vitamin B and iron.

ALL-BRAN is a delicious laxative food... far better than patent medicines. Two tablespoons daily are usually sufficient. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Chemistry Of The Garden

Tells How Legumes Thrive
And What To Do

ROOT SYSTEM OF A LEGUME SHOWING NODULES WHICH TAKE NITROGEN FOR PLANTS.

Peas and beans belong to a family of plants known botanically as legumes. They have the unusual attribute of taking nitrogen from the air and secreting it in the roots in little bumps easily seen when the plant is pulled up. These are usually referred to as nodules. A special form of bacteria performs the work for the legumes of taking the nitrogen from the air. In some soils these bacteria are absent or deficient and it is necessary to inoculate it with a culture containing it. To accomplish this the seed is treated before sowing.

To gain the maximum yield from peas and beans, particularly in large plantings, the seed may be inoculated with nitrogen culture.

inoculated with nitrogen culture new commercially available and sold by all seed houses, the cans containing complete directions for its use. The various legumes require different cultures, clovers and alfalfa being legumes as well as peas and beans. It would be an interesting experiment for the home gardener to plant a row of inoculated peas and beans and another row which has not had the nitrogen inoculation and note the difference in the vigor and growth of the two rows and the difference in the crops harvested from the treated and untreated rows.

While the nitrogen inoculation is not necessary for the production of good crops if the soil is fertile and well worked, it is a guarantee of good crops. If peas and beans have been grown in the soil in years past it is already inoculated with the bacteria, and the inoculation is less needed. In soil in which these crops have not been previously grown, it is an excellent idea to try it. A can of the culture costs only a few cents and the operation is simple, requiring no technical knowledge, so you may grow chemically assisted peas and beans if you wish.

It is an excellent plan to spade the soil for the beans in advance of planting, working in a good supply of fertilizer and then a light working when it is time to sow the seed. Beans are a warm weather crop and there is seldom much gained by trying to beat the season by early planting.

POTATOES MAY BE VARIED BY BAKING WITH CHEESE

If you wish to cook potatoes in a new way why not bake and stuff them? This can be done with cottage cheese.

After the potatoes are thoroughly cleaned, bake in a very hot oven for about twelve minutes and then reduce the heat, baking on for slightly over thirty minutes, or until they're soft.

Cut in half, lengthwise, and take the potato from its jacket.

ENEMY'S KISS

Chapter 19
DAPHNE'S SUCCESS
"Don't worry," he soothed. "She's much too young yet to think of marrying."
"I know. That's the very age that appeals to the type I'm speaking of—a child, innocent enough to believe in them. They're experts. They know how to make romantic love, and how to work up to the point, when she runs off and then—well, she'll make a settlement and after that he just won't care! I tell you, dear, I'm scared!"
"You mustn't be. You and I can take care of her."
"That's just it," insisted Daphne. "I feel I'm to blame. That I haven't looked after her! That my stupid mistake may have done her untold damage."
"You mean the other night?" He looked incredulous. "You're worrying about nothing, honestly. I'm just saying that I'm very pleased about it but I saw the young man and she was quite safe, I feel certain, with him."
Daphne shrugged her shoulders. "Of course, you may be right. I haven't seen him," she admitted dubiously. "He may be everything you say. Only, I could see that the child was taken with him, that he had a glamor—quite naturally! At this age one lives half in fairyland and a knight errant—well, it's not surprising she should fall in love with him, if he's at all good looking, and when I heard that you'd thought of making him to lunch, I could have almost screamed!"
"Surely there isn't any harm—"
"Of course not, if he's the sort you say he is. But do you really think, Bob, that a decent young man would have stayed there with her? Don't you think he'd have found some way of getting hold of a chaperone? There are cottages, you know, round Warley!"
"I suppose it was a bit late, and in that case—"
"I know. One must allow for that. But even then, one's heard such terrible stories. Any idiot could see that Alison had money—her dress, those pearls, everything; and the type I've been talking of—well, it's their profession. I'm not suggesting that there was anything wrong—why should there be, when he was there was a better, a bigger chance of marrying her? Only, I got an awful shock, dear, when I saw that breakfast table!"
Robert shifted uneasily.
"I really think you're making too much of it," he said. "I'm sure if you come to lunch too, and meet him—"
"I expect you're right," said Daphne meekly. "I know that you're a good judge of people; better than I am. That's the awful part of the sort of time that I've after her. But now I feel quite happy. I know you'll do it tactfully, let her think it comes from you—you are so clever at those things."

"It's you who've made me happy," responded Robert. "I'd no idea you felt like that, I mean about Alison."
"I'd love her anyway, but I love her doubly because she's yours," said Daphne Sumners and kissed him again.
If she had any thoughts, they remained hidden behind the dark veil of her austere eyes.
Robert chose the hour after dinner when he sat in the library, the heavy damask curtains drawn, the fire burning brightly, coffee and liqueurs on an old Chippendale tray table by the deep sofa, and Alison turning over gramophone records at his side.

thinking of asking that young man to lunch—"
"Guy Westman?"
"Yes. If you're thinking of asking him to lunch—"
"It was you who suggested it, father!"
"Oh, yes, well—anyway, I think perhaps we'd better find out just a little more about him first, that's all. I mean, we don't know much, do we?"
"I thought you liked him?"
"I do. Oh, I do! But, well, one can't be too careful; I mean, he seems a very nice, decent sort of fellow, charming and all that, but you know, Alison, people aren't always what they seem. After all, you do get crooks in this world. And you're a very pretty girl, my dear!"
"What are you talking about, dear?" Alison dropped the record on the sofa.
"Nothing. I only don't want you to go losing your heart to some damned crook or fortune hunter, that's all."
Alison looked at him steadily.
"Father?"
"What's Mrs. Sumners been saying to you?"
"Daphne? Why, nothing."
"Oh, yes, she has! You didn't think of that idea yourself?"
"What idea?" said Robert rather haughtily.
"About my losing my heart and Guy Westman being a crook."
"Well, she's quite right. He did not notice Alison's bitter smile.

Angels Make Another Gain

Mellinger Forces Rout Cosden Lab Thursday Fifteen To Three

By HANK HART

The Mellinger Angels took advantage of the Herald's idleness Thursday evening to slip into second place in softball league standings defeating the Cosden Lab, 15-3.

The Angels set the stage for the crucial battle for first place Monday, June 10th, when they routed Walling, New Chemist finger from the mound in the early innings and gave Richardson, successor to the former TCU baseball star, almost as much punishment.

The Harzen collected a total of 17 base hits off the offerings of the Lab pair, Howard Swetley and "Buckley" Hare leading the attack with three bingles each. Graves and Hare divided mound duty for the Angels, whitewashing the Chemists until the fifth. The Mellinger mound artists limited the Richardson forces to seven hits, Phillips and Gordon each recording two.

Ollie Cordill and Good Graves also proved troublesome to the Lab flingers, Cordill collecting two safe blows and a free pass in four trips and Graves two bingles in three attempts.

The Angels bewildered the Cosdenites with a five run attack in the first stanza, returned to count another in the second, sent Walling to the showers with a four run attack in the third, and terminated their scoring with five runs in the fourth.

Jack Wilson was the only Angel who did not take advantage of the offerings of Walling and Richardson, making four futile trips to the plate.

The Chemists broke the ice when Richardson and McClesky faltered on Walling's hit and accounted for the other when Richardson crossed the plate again in the seventh, this time on McClesky's outfield fly.

Young's Cafe Team Loses Thursday, 5-1

City Hall, Big Spring Laundry Golfers Play Nine Holes

Settles Cleaners, golf team in the Muni league No. 1 got away to a flying start. Thursday afternoon by pounding the Young's Cafe linksmen. The Cleaners came through with a 5-1 victory.

Frank Morgan and Carl Young of the Cafe team won one point from Roy Cornelson and Hubby on the first nine but lost on the home stretch, giving the Settles team two points and the Cafe men one. Dave Cornelson and Cornett walloped Payne and Aldredge for the other three Settles points.

One match was started in league No. 3, the City Hall and Big Spring laundry teams clashing for nine holes, with neither gaining an advantage.

McDaniels and Driver of the City Hall won one point off Woods and South, while Francis and Enscore of the Laundry were taking Whitney and Morris for one point.

Teams may be entered in the leagues through Sunday, Pro Charley Akey said today. Any person needing a few more golfers for a team is asked to get in touch with Akey.

Howard-Flewellen Game Called Off
The Howard Co.-Flewellen game, scheduled for Thursday afternoon, was called off late in the day and will be played next week on an open date in the schedule.

The game was postponed due to the fact that several players could not be out on time.

to fill the gaps. Waco, with a couple of hundred boys out for the team will have an older, more experienced club than Temple, for instance, which can get only about 40 boys out. Who suggested and boosted the 17 year old rule? The big city schools. Nobody else? Why? Because it fits their student body better."

AL CUCCINELLO, KID BROTHER of Tony Cuccinello of the Dodgers, was doing great work substituting for the injured Hughey Critz of the Giants. When the Brooklyn boys were playing the New Yorks Critz yelled from the bench: "Better watch your kid brother, Tony, he'll steal your thunder." So Tony yelled back: "Better watch him yourself, he'll steal YOUR job!"

WE HAVE BEEN REMINDED of one thing that you have to admire in old Old Jinx Tucker, the Waco scribe. He stays consistently on the wrong side. He has argued so vehemently on behalf of the interscholastic league that we sometimes suspect he is the paid publicity director for the organization.

JINX SAYS WACO WON'T BE helped by the new 17 year old age limit rule. He says the reason he is for the rule is that it's fair to 90 per cent of the school students. That's all honey, too. The Temple scribe tells us that 90 per cent of the students do not play football. Or, if everyone knows that, if 20 per cent of the boys in a school want to play football a coach is happy.

And those who want to play football aren't hindered or treated unfairly if several 18 year old boys are on the club. In fact, they have a better chance to become the football players that they want to be.

Temple Writer
"TO CUT THE AGE LIMIT from 20 to 19 years of age would be fine. But to cut it down to 17 years is too drastic and what few supporters there are for the new rule could never convince us otherwise. The Class B schools will be hurt. Why? Because some schools can't get more than 16 players out now. Because boys start to school later in smaller schools. Because most of them are 'country boys' and progress slowly in their studies."

"IT WON'T HELP THE BIGGER schools? Oh, yes it will. There will be more material, more 17 year old boys in the larger schools while the smaller schools probably will have to play some 14 year olds just

ANOTHER COMEBACKER

(By the Associated Press)

Because she went about the task of mending her injured back as methodically as she pursued her tactics against a tennis foe, Mrs. Helen Wills Moody is now abroad on a comeback trail which leads toward Wimbledon and possibly to the national championships at Forest Hills later in the summer.

She stayed away from the tennis courts for the year following that afternoon in August, 1933, when she defaulted to Miss Helen Jacobs by walking off the court while trailing 3-0 in the final set when her injured back pained her so that she felt she was about to faint.

For six weeks, before she made her decision to go abroad, Mrs. Moody played two sets of hard tennis daily with Howard Kinsey. When she felt the old power returning to her forehead drives she suddenly made up her mind and with little tittle packed her bags and booked passage abroad.

She took the occasion of a free afternoon before sailing time to get in an hour and a quarter of practice with Frank Bonneau, professional of the River club in New York, to show that she was still capable of her former brand of tennis.

Same Fierce Forehand
Her forehand seemed to carry the same terrific power; she did not spare herself in covering the court at any time. Mrs. Moody vigorously vent after the many well-placed drop shots Bonneau sent over the net.

Her service was a bit in need of improvement but that was largely due to the fact that the former champion was not putting too much effort into that department of her game since it places more strain on her back than the other shots.

Mrs. Moody insisted that her tennis plans for the present do not carry beyond Wimbledon. She hopes to return to this country early in July and then will announce her plans. Her tennis future will be determined by success or failure at Wimbledon.

Since Miss Helen Jacobs, winner of the national singles title for the past three years, is also abroad and planning to play at Wimbledon it is possible that a replay of the Moody-Jacobs match of 1933, the forfeit match and perhaps the most discussed tennis final in history, will feature the Wimbledon tournament.

And Alice, Too
Miss Alice Marble of San Francisco has been practicing on the tennis court for a little comeback of her own. The third ranking woman player for 1933 has completely recovered from the nervous breakdown and sunstroke that came just before the Wightman cup matches were played in England last year.

SO THEY CALLED 'EM—

WELTERWEIGHTS. The boxing division for fighters from 135 to 147 pounds had its birth in 1792 when a group of English battlers called themselves "welters"—a term meaning extra weight, used in steeplechase racing—and fought among themselves. The class has been steadily active in the United States since 1892.

Al Espinosa Leads In Oakmont Golf Tourney

G. Sarazen, Ranking Favorite, In Hot Pursuit

OAKMONT Country Club, Pittsburgh, Pa.—With Gene Sarazen, the favorite, galloping in pursuit with birdies on the first three holes Friday, the lead for 36 holes of the US open golf championship passed temporarily to Al Espinosa, Akron, Ohio, who scored a 76 for a total of 151.

Espinosa, as well as Sarazen, had a 75 for the first round, and started Friday's play four shots behind the pace-setter, Alvin (Butch) Frieger, of Beloit, Wis., who was among the late starters.

The defending champion, Olin Dutra of Los Angeles, failed to gain on the net-sets. He took an outgoing 36, two over par.

and called a halt to her tennis activities. Miss Marble plans to make another bid for the cup team and take part in most of the major tournaments (this summer).

Another west coast lass, Miss Jane Sharp of Pasadena, is less fortunate than her sister Californians, for she will be kept off the courts for the remainder of the season by a serious side injury.

The national women's indoor champion will have to forego an opportunity of playing on the Wightman cup team because her family physician deems it necessary that she take a complete rest. The pretty little Pasadena miss, who was ranked No. 6 nationally last year, enjoyed a fine winter season and will be missed in the big tournaments this summer.

IF EVERYBODY with something to interest you should come and ring your bell, what a nuisance it would be! Think of the swarming, jostling crowd, the stamping of feet on your porch and carpets!

Every day we know of many callers who come to see you. They never jangle the bell—they don't take up your whole day trying to get your attention. Instead, they do it in a way that is most considerate of your privacy and your convenience. They advertise in your newspaper!

In this way you have only to listen to those you know at a glance have something that interests you. They make it short, too, so you can gather quickly just what you want to know. You can receive and hear them all without noise or confusion in a very few minutes.

the chief objectives of the company in holding this year's convention in Los Angeles, was to enable the field men to see first—and at first hand—the remarkable technical advances made within the recent past and now, for the first time disclosed in the making of Max Reinhardt's "Midsummer Night's Dream" and "Page Miss Glory," starring Marion Davies both pictures being ready for early release.

"Our foreign representatives will be more largely represented than ever before," continued Major Warner, "and the route followed by the special train through the great Southwest, with stopovers at points of interest and of importance, will be an impressive introduction to the size and majestic beauty of our country for those who have not had the opportunity in the past, to see with their own eyes, the wonders of the American Continent."

The first stop in Texas was made Friday morning, June 7, at Longview, where in conjunction with the Chamber of Commerce, the East Texas Amusement Co. served as hosts to the party for a brief tour of the great East Texas oil fields. Boarding the train at Gladewater, the convention-bound motion picture men next stopped at Dallas where they were greeted by city officials and a group of prominent theatre owners, including R. J. O'Donnell, of Interstate Theatres, Messrs. Robb and Rowley, of the R. & R. theatres, and others. At Dallas the Texas delegates, under the direction of Fred M. Calloway, Dallas branch manager, and comprising the following: R. L. McCoy, W. O. Williamson, Jack Groves, W. W. Brimberg and Allen S. Glenn, boarded the train.

At Los Angeles, Marjorie Davies, president of Cosmopolitan Corp., will take a prominent part in the convention activities and will be the official hostess at the Burbank studios and head the welcoming committee of stars which will include: Paul Muni, Dolores Del Rey, Kay Francis, Joe E. Brown, Dick Powell, Al Jolson, Ruby Keeler, James Cagney, Pat O'Brien, Edward G. Robinson, Guy Kibbee, Jean Muir, Joan Blondell, Betty Davis, Warren William, Ricardo Cortez, Glenda Farrell, Hugh Herbert, Patricia Ellis, Frank McHugh, Ann Dvorak and others.

of how a Prime Minister should handle the House of Commons. Here it is:
"It is a great mistake for a Prime Minister not to keep in touch with the Commons. The House of Commons is like a fickle woman. If you do not woo her persistently she will become jealous and get out of hand, but if you pay her constant court she will always be sweet and smiling."

June 27 Is Deadline On HOLC Loans

Important Information For Applicants Received By Local Attorneys

Important information regarding applications for loans from the Home Owners' Loan Corporation has been received here by Woodward and Coffey, HOLC attorneys.

Requirements for applications are listed in the instruction. Close examination is to be made in every case by attorneys, J. C. Anderson, district manager said, to weed out applicants who have no chance of relief under the corporation.

"It is desirable to eliminate all ineligible applications at the beginning and not create any hope in their minds that this corporation will refinance their loans," said Anderson. "It is unfair to the home owners and to the present mortgagee to send in applications which would ultimately be rejected."

The applicant must show his ability to repay his loan, give present and former income, furnish conclusive evidence that the structure is a homestead, show the amount of delinquency, date of the original mortgage, date the property was acquired, cost of property compared to present debt, evidence present mortgagee will not renew or extend existing indebtedness, evidence it can not be refinanced elsewhere, amount of payment and necessary instruments.

Applicants have until June 27 to apply for loans.

Commissioners' Trip Now Problematical

Trip of County Commissioners Frank Hodnett, Arch Thompson, and Jim Winslow and Chamber of Commerce Manager W. T. Strange to Austin to appear before the state highway commission became problematical Friday.

Strange was engaged Friday afternoon in an attempt to ascertain whether G. B. Gilchrist, chief engineer, and Harry Hines, commissioner from Wichita Falls, had gone to Washington. If they have, the local group will likely postpone its trip until it can gain an interview with a full commission.

The commissioners and Strange had hoped to promote action on highways in Howard county.
