Secretary Roper's business advis ory council is in warm water again their usual state of mind

Although six leading members have quit because the White House showed no interest in their advice a few survivors have struggled desperately to inform President Roose velt on the views of business and industry. They regularly send comments on his proposals to him, and wait in vain for replies. If he looks at them there has been no sign of it. He has even withheld them from the prying press, and under their agreement only he can make them

The last three reports, however, have hit the headlines of many newspapers. Mr. Roper won't admit it but he wishes somebody would tell him what good there is in having an advisory committee if you can't control it. Unofficially ports to Senate Finance Committee members and that they must have "leaked." But a quiet check discloses that democratic senators have never seen these anji-New Deal opuses.

Comptroller General McCarl is good enough lawyer to be able to read between the lines of ambiguously worded law. When he gets around to studying statutes enacted by the recent session of congress he will find that it has snipped his red tape and weakened his capacity for halting New Deal ventures.

He has handicapped so many un took him for a ride on the Sequoia. But still Mr. McCarl continued to veto TVA, AAA and REA proposals He was sorry - he had no feeling in the matter-but the proposed projects exceeded the legal authority conferred upon their sponsors. One high-up official got so angry at this practice that he said: "We can get just as tough as you are."

Mr. McCarl isn't tough, contrary to common belief. In fact, he sympathizes with many of the things he has to turn down.

AUSTIN (/F) - Governor Allred innounced Wednesday the legislature would be called into an extraordinary session Sept. 16 to conider liquor regulation and possibly ther matters. He said members of the legislature with whom he had talked feit there should be time to study proosed bills and learn what is being done in other states.

Meanwhile, the governor admit-ed there was little use to attempt enforcement other than by local option since Texas voted wet Satirday. He pointed out that an attempt to convict men charged with liquor sales would be useless as there would be no penalty as soon as repeal becomes effective.

Accordingly Texas Rangers ceased enforcement of the state prohibition laws but were instructed to obtain names of dealers who sold liquors before passage of regulatory laws in anticipation the legislators I semas A. #### LIKELY INDUSTRY

Recently mention was made in this column of the fact that thought ought to be given toward attracting new industries to this city. A meat processing plant was envisioned as a worth while project. Another local publication suggests a cotton seed oil mill, and justly so. When highways to the north are finished, it will leave this city a logical point for seed concentration for a large area. Someday if a railroad is extended to the north from here, that will be only all the more true, Thus, an oil plan would be another practical industry for Big Spring.

Revival

Fearless in denunciation of sin, oristling with wit and humor, and delivering a sermon with more power and fervor than most ministers much younger than himself, Rev. Charles W. (Warhorse) Young, of Newlin, Texas, will occupy the pulpit twice daily at the Coahoma community tabernacle beginning Sept. and running probably two weeks.

Young, who is in his 70's, swept this western area in the late '90's with the gospel, recording thousands of conversions. Though his head is gray, the veteran gets about like a boy, preaches with great vigor and energy. Fearless, direct, with DENTON, Texas - Miss Ann much wit and humor, he never fails
