Great Story Is Told: It's Columbus Day!

How many Tech students know what today is? Well give you three guesses—and odds are ten to one you can never figure out just what this day, October 12, signifies.

In the first place, can you imagine where we would all be if it hadn't been for Columbus? Possibly residents of England, Ireland, France, and various other places.

For instance, there's Veronica Lake. She is definitely an American gift to the universe—we will not state our opinion of her hair-do. That is something!

Independents And Beauty . . .

If you don't belong to a social club, you are an independent. There are quite a number of Techs who do not belong to some social club, and yet when there is a class vote taken to nominate someone for some school office or otherwise, who is in the majority—the social clubs. This situation is naturally true, because these clubs have been at Tech for some time, and they have established a strong foothold.

We live in a nation that gives everyone freedom of speech, freedom of press, and the right of a democratic vote. This should be true in our colleges today, for if one set of rules is set up and another is followed then there will be trouble somewhere sooner or later.

Our forefathers came to America in order to do more as they wanted to. They wanted to be independent. Independence has been fought for and upheld in America and should not be thought light of even in the colleges of today. Boys and girls are sent away to school to broaden their outlook on life as well as to get an education. When these same boys and girls get out on their own in the world, they are not going to have any club to tell them what to do and how to vote; they will be independent then and why not now?

There is a beauty nomination in the near future. Heretofore La Ventana beauty section has been filled almost entirely with club girls. Maybe they have been the prettiest girls on the campus, if that is true then they should be there, but we think it can be safely said that there are several girls on Tech campus that are equally as pretty who do not belong to a social club. Independents, you have an opportunity to choose some girl for beauty, why not nominate an Independent?—A.H.

Now Is The Time . . .

"Now's the day and now's the hour," Robert Burns, the great Scottish poet once said. This applies to today more than it did in the past, for opportunity knocks but once. The opportunity facing the college student today for tomorrow's world is one not to be taken lightly. Now's the day and now's the hour, and there's work to be done.

Some students must face more than the mere fact that they are to earn a degree, which may end in four or more years of getting by and taking "walks" at the disadvantage of those who do attend college for serious preparation.

Not every student who attends college is living on the luxury of borrowed time or borrowed minds. There are those who must work their way through to the very end realizing that they are using their time and money for a lasting cause. There are serious minded students attending who are being financed by a parent or guardian or an organization with faith that they will take their place in a society to better tomorrow's world.

Yet tomorrow's world will be a builder's world where everyone must work together, not for fame or riches, but for the ideals and values that men have had to fight and die for. It will be a world built upon the foundation of the past and preserved by those of the present.

And so, this is the opportunity all of us have to face, this day and this hour. Our attitude now determines what part we will be given in the building of a peaceful and prosperous world. —J. H.

Where Are The Juniors?

Lost—somewhere on Tech Campus one Junior class. This could well be the just of a want ad to be run in the Toreador. Since the day of the general convocation and class officer elections what few students that have shown up at class meetings have been very few in number. Junior class, the one to take over the high spot on the campus this next year is almost surprisingly nil.

Sure, there are many students on the campus that claim they are Juniors. According to semester hours they probably are, but when it comes to class meetings they just are somewhere else.

At the meeting last week to elect a vice-president there was a grand total of less than fifty present. It is disgusting to think that there are five or six times that many students on the campus who are regularly enrolled as juniors and just can't get around to the class meetings.

This part of the Toreador goes to press before the class meetings to elect class queens, but it is ventured that the other classes are representative in attendance no better than the so-called juniors. We hope that they all turn out 100 per cent.

The Old, Old Story . . .

An old story that has time and time again been cussed pro and con in The Toreador is this subject of sidewalks. Theoretically Tech campus has enough sidewalks in the right places to assure every student dry footing to class in all buildings.

There are people who will take short-cuts. Perhaps they are to be commended. Perhaps not. The results are that the plots of grass, or rather what was once grass, is now completely trod under with muddy tracks and well-beaten paths.

The Toreador has, many times before, advocated a "Keep-on-the-sidewalk" plan. And, as it usually goes, this plea falls on deaf ears. There could be a reason for all this. Maybe the college should take a poll, similar to traffic polls taken by the city, to see where most of the traffic goes. By this method they should be able to arrive at some definite conclusion, and build some side-walks where they belong.

Until the time that these new sidewalks can be built, about all The Toreador can do is appeal to the civic pride of Tech students. Won't you please stay on the sidewalks?

Graduation of 630 students at the University of Wisconsin's 92nd annual commencement on Saturday, May 26, brought the total number of degrees granted by the State University to 65,543. These degrees have been granted by the University over a period of 92 years—from the first commencement in 1854 through May, 1945.

Letters To The Editor

Sneed Hall Lubbock Texas, Oct. 7, 1945.

Editor, The Toreador, Campus.

Dear Editor:

This evening when the football boys arrived from Austin there were around twelve or fourteen students at the gym to meet them. I would like to know why there is such a great lack of school spirit in the freshman and some of the upperclassmen here at Tech.

When I first entered this school they said that school spirit was low because of the lack of students but every semester it has gotten lower. This is the lowest I have ever seen it, although we have this semester the highest enrollment that Tech has had in some time.

School spirit is not built on one thing alone. There are several different factors that influence it. A student must like very much the school they attend, they must want to see the school get ahead but they must not wait for someone else to do what needs to be done. Everyone must cooperate and get behind the movement.

Another thing is hazing. Some people say that hazing has nothing to do with school spirit. Compare Tech to Texas A&M. They are noted for their school spirit. One thing that affects it is hazing and the Sharecroppers do a lot of paddle swinging. A good freshman makes a good upperclassman later on. One thing that makes a good alum is a paddle.

What does the Disciplinary Committee have to say about this problem?

I believe that my views on this are the same as most upperclassmen and lots of the freshmen. An upperclassman.

EDITOR'S NOTE—Frankly, we agree with you altogether on the school spirit part. What Texas Tech needs is spirit. How and when we are going to get it, we don't know. It will be left up to students like you to get something organized, something started. About the hazing, not being sure, we beg to differ in an apologetic tone, but we were under the impression that Texas A&M had banned hazing. Also, from reports from San Antonio their spirit wasn't too much to brag about. All of which may bear out your point.—Ed.

DEAR EDITOR:

Here at Tech there is always much talk about school spirit, but nothing is ever one about it. Don't get me wrong, some people do a lot to foster school spirit, yet there is always something lacking.

Take for instance, our yells at the football games. First of all, as I can see, we have only three yells that we use. For a school as large as this, we should have several times this number.

Second, our yells are moth-eaten. Every one-horse high school has the same type with different words to suit the colors and name of the football team respectively.

Third, I think we yell at the wrong time. It is not necessary that the spectators yell at all times during a game. Only when the team needs encouraging and when the playing is not too interesting to take one's eyes off of it, should the cheer leaders make the on-lookers yell.

I am not saying this to ridicule our cheer leaders or pep yells. The leaders are the best we have had in years. What I would like to put before the student body is the question, "Why do we not have more cute yells?"

Surely in a school this size, some individual should be bright enough to compose a new yell or two. I would like to see the Student Council appoint a committee of students to make up or approve new yells written by the committee or any student.

Then I would like to see the best yells presented before the student body at a pep rally, and the students adopting the ones they like. The most important thing is that something should be done immediately, before the football season is over this year.

Frankly I was embarrassed at the Texas U. game because we used only three yells. We had the spirit, plenty of it.

Thank you, De-Pepped, a Co-Ed.

Birthplace of 50,000 RADARS

TWO years before Pearl Harbor the Government asked Bell Telephone Laboratories to help perfect radar as a military instrument. The Bell System, through the Western Electric Company, its manufacturing branch, became the nation's largest supplier of radar systems.

Bell scientists designed and developed many different types of radars—each for a specific job. One particular type was standard for B-29s in the Pacific for navigation, target location and high altitude bombing. Another directed all Navy guns over five inches.

This is not surprising, for radar development and production stem from the same roots that produced and continue to nourish this country's telephone system.

Tulsa's Golden Hurricane To Invade Tech Saturday Night

Game Time Set For 8:15 In Tech Stadium

Oklahoma's mystery football team at the University of Tulsa will invade Tech Stadium this Saturday night to crack skulls with Morgan's Raiders. Game time is set for 8:15 p.m.

The Raiders, having lost two and won one game, are in top notch condition for the tussle even if the weather is bad. It is believed by many that Tech will show its best form in the mud. At any rate this theory will be proven or busted this Saturday night if the rain continues as expected.

Following the 33 to 0 defeat at the hands of the Texas Longhorns the Raiders are becoming more serious and making workouts hard in hopes of stopping the Golden Hurricane. This will be the Raiders' second home game. The first was against Southwestern and was a victory for the Raiders to the tune of 7 to 0.

Tulsa has defeated Wichita 61 to 0 and Drake 19 to 0. Coach Henry Frnka has plans for the same outcome of the Tech game, but the Raiders are on home ground this week therefore it may prove a tough task to undertake. The Raiders always do their best ball carrying on home ground.

For four straight years the Hurricane has been a bowl contender and is picked to be a five year team. Frnka has placed much hope in the following men: Gene Spangler, senior wingback and ex-AAF star, and Bob Thomas, who fought through Germany with the infantry after playing a year with the Golden Hurricane.

The Hurricane line is strong and experienced, but the backfield is green and inexperienced which makes it difficult for Frnka to well establish his single wingback system. All of Frnka's backs are small and not in any case rangy, therefore Morgan's eleven has the edge over the Hurricane eleven due to the speed and range of Walter Schlinkman, Gene Hardey, Jack Dillon, and Arthur Shahan.

Jr. R. Boone is at present the biggest hope for Frnka's eleven. Also there are Leforce and Moss, who are also fine triple threats and are expected to see lots of action in the Tech game. Tulsa's Halter excels in running and spot kicking. If he ever gets in the open he's hard to stop.

Also weight of the Hurricane backfield is a great problem for it is far under that of the Raiders, thus giving another advantage to the Raiders.

The starting lineup for Tulsa will be Cal Richardson and Dick Moseley at ends, Chubby Grigg or Nate Armstrong and C. B. Stanley at tackles, Ruben Morgan and

Golden Gloves Interest Stepped Up This Week

Lubbock teen-agers have started getting "Golden Gloves-minded" in the past few days, and the employment of Bob Stinnett as a boxing instructor by the city recreation department has stepped up the interest.

Stinnett has already started classes at the Community Center and will start this week at the Corral. Classes at the Community Center are on Friday night and at the Corral will be from 7 until 9 o'clock.

It is hoped to get complete teams for the Golden Gloves from both sections of the city that are served by these centers.

Stinnett has 25 years of ring experience, ten of these as a professional fighter, and is expected to develop some nifty glove slingers from this city. He was Max Baer's head trainer for three years, and holds the distinction of being the only man to every hang a kayo on the chin of the former heavyweight champion, doing so in a gymnasium workout. Stinnett fought for the world's light heavyweight championship at one time, and has fought such well-known boxers as Maxie Rosenbloom, George Dixon, Joe Roche and Jack Malone.

At the present time Stinnett is employed by the State Highway department and is devoting his evenings to the boxing program sponsored by the city. He urges all boys interested in boxing to take these instructions. The turnout to date have been very encouraging.

Miss Grace Durham is the new assistant professor of child development and family relations. Miss Durham has a B. S. degree from Colorado Agricultural college. She has also taught high school home economics in Monta Vista, Colorado.

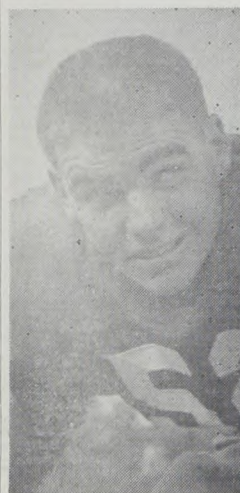

"The Junior Deputies of America" organized in San Antonio by William F. Brogan are boys that peace officers in handling juvenile crime in that city.

Pencilin throat lozenges made by a physician and a pharmacist's name at Corpus Christi, Texas, are being used at the Naval Air Station for treatment of trench mouth.

Jack Thomas at guards, Felto Prewitz at center, and Brown, Boone, Spangler and Camp Wilson in the backfield.

For Tech probable lineup will be Moyers and Winkler at ends; Black and Snodgrass at tackles; Birdwell and Lawhorn at guards; Otis Turner at center, and Hardey, Shahan, Norris and Schlinkman in the backfield.

The Red Raiders played three quarters of grand football in Austin last Saturday, only to fall before D. X. Bible's reserve strength in the final quarter 33-0. Walter Schlinkman was definitely the best man on the field. The Dumas Demon ran over, and through a multitude of Steers. Despite the fact that they lost by a lopsided score, Tech ran up 223 yards on punt and kick-off returns alone.

Saturday night Coach Henry Frnka turns loose his Tulsa Golden Hurricane in Tech's stadium. The men from Tulsa U. are very bowl-minded, for they have appeared in four bowl games in the last five years. Remember when they defeated Tech 6-0 in the Sun Bowl? In the last two years Tulsa has defeated Tech by a score of 34-7 both times. Last week Tulsa hung up another victory, this time over Drake 19-0. The Golden Hurricane threw passes, ran around the ends and sent Camp Wilson up the middle until they were in scoring position. They then mixed off-tackle smashes and passes to push the ball on over the goal line. Tulsa will, however, probably spring many tricky passes and running plays at Tech, as Coach Frnka of T. U. and Coach Morgan of Tech were room-mates in Austin college. Both coaches received their football training under Peter Willis Cawthon, who was then head mentor of the college in Sherman. Each coach will be striving for victory over his former roommate, so look for Tulsa to unwrap a high-geared offensive.

This year the Red Raiders have a better chance of beating Tulsa than ever before. Gone from the Hurricane's campus are Perry Moss and Red Wade, two young men who dealt the Raiders much misery last year. Camp Wilson, who played football at Hardin-Simmons prior to his Tulsa debut, still packs power to spare. Felso Pruitt is going great guns also, anchoring down the T. U. line. The Hurricanes have turned up with a passer to replace Perry Moss. He is a half-back by the name of Smith.

Can Tech stop Tulsa's counter plunges, wide end sweeps, double reverses and passing attack? If so, they must be able to cross the Golden Hurricane's goal line to win the game. All depends on what Coach Dell Morgan can whip up for his Men-in-Red to throw at T. U. next Saturday night.

Now to pick the winners in next week's games. Texas U. will take Oklahoma university by two touchdowns. L.S.U. over Texas A&M by one point.

Arkansas over Baylor by a touchdown—maybe! Oklahoma A&M over Southern Methodist university by three touchdowns.

Tulane will take Rice by a touchdown or so.

Army over Michigan by a host of touchdowns.

Notre Dame should take Dartmouth by any score they choose.

Ohio over Wisconsin by two touchdowns.

Navy over Penn by four touchdowns.

Tulsa over Tech by 7 points.

Life With the Exes

First Lt. Ford L. Sturdivant, '41 industrial management and former member of Tech golf team, is now headed to Fort Sam Houston and then to Frew field, Temple, Fla., where he is to receive his discharge.

Tech Press Revealed As Place Where Toreador Goes To Bed

By ANNE HURT
Toreador Staff Writer

Little do some students on this campus know that the Journalism building is the home of the Tech Press.

A mechanical department was first set up in 1934 in the basement of the Engineering building. In 1941 the Journalism building was constructed as a permanent home for the Tech Press. This building was built without State aid. Total investment for the press and equipment and the building is $130,000.

The mechanical department consists of one large cylinder press on which the Toreador is run each week; a Linotype and a Linotype; a power paper-cutter; and two saws. With this equipment not only is the Toreador printed but various other material as well, some of which include the following: the college catalogue, registration forms, programs, artist course tickets and library cards.

Besides these printing jobs, the Tech Press publishes books. It is now printing, "Lord Russell's Canadian Policy" by Dr. Oscar A. Kinchen, professor of history, and "Charles De Morse: Pioneer Editor and Statesman" by Dr. Earnest Wallace, assistant dean of Arts and Sciences and professor of history. The latter book was printed last year. The entire process of printing books is done in the mechanical department of the Tech Press with the exception of the binding.

Possibly the most important college item which the Tech Press publishes is the Toreador. A magazine was once put out by the journalism department but the war and paper shortage stopped its publication. The Toreador is written, edited and printed in the Press building. Some colleges are not so well provided as Tech and must have their school papers printed off the campus.

There are many improvements to be made in the journalism department and in the equipment of the Tech Press. Heretofore, there has been a one year class offered in printing, but in the future, the department hopes to have a four year course. There is also to be much improvement in the photography class through additional laboratory equipment, thereby enabling a student to receive a minor of 18 hours in photography rather than the usual six hours.

Plans for the future Tech Press also include for the mechanical department a new Linotype and a new automatic press, complete binding machines and photo engraving equipment.

Styles to Beguile

A few weeks ago, the cover of one of our weeklies depicted the disillusionment of G. I. Joe, who upon his return sees a young thing turned out in full plaid shirt regalia, one of those awkward outfits with that sloppy "borrowed" look some girls prize. Her hairstyle was literally "gone with the wind" . . . And that had been dreaming of "Pin-Up" girls for many lonesome months! Fortunately for G. I. Joe, there are plenty of wiser and smarter sisters. No lumberjack toilette for them. They're taking advantage of the newest, most feminine fashion flattery, and demanding the best of beauty service to go with it.

. . . And we're with them . . . with every advantage we have to offer! Women who prize all the details of good grooming depend on us . . . Shaping that forms those striking new "Up Sweeps" . . . the right "nape" treatment and hairline for every type. And Permanents . . . well that's the work that makes a girl a permanent "pin-up" in the eyes and heart of her G. I. Joe!
