

McGovern to campaign in South

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) - Sen. George McGovern, attaching negative motives to the Nixon administration's so-called Southern strategy, has committed himself to doing major political battle with the President for the hearts and votes of Dixie residents.

The South Dakota lawmaker, who is favored to capture the Democratic presidential nomination next month, shrugged off predictions the South will easily go Republican this year, and he promised Tuesday he would campaign hard in the region.

Newspaper writers and politicians "who keep claiming I don't have any chance" in the South against Nixon "may be in for one of the biggest surprises of their lives," McGovern told a Little Rock, Ark., rally.

"If there's anyone under the impression that we're going to write off the South, or any other part of the country, forget it," he later told a meeting of Arkansas Democratic convention delegates.

"I want to offer something other than the Nixon strategy," he said during the campaign day that took him from San Antonio, Tex., to Little Rock. The Nixon strategy, he said, is "a divisive one, one that appeals to the Old South, to the worst instincts in all of us."

McGovern said several times during the day he thinks the South would benefit more than any other region by his populistic tax reform proposals and his plan to end the Vietnam war within 90 days of his inauguration. The South, he said, has suffered a disproportionate number of casualties in the war.

He admitted, however, that his support of school busing to achieve racial desegregation could hurt him in the region, but, speaking to the Arkansas delegates, he blamed Nixon for making school busing a major issue when, he said, it needn't have been.

McGovern's audiences at Tuesday night's rally here and earlier in Oklahoma City, San Antonio and Little Rock have been made up overwhelmingly of young adults. He proved he has enthusiastic young admirers in those cities and a campaign organization capable of getting them out.

But whether he is making inroads among older voters appears questionable based on his appearances in the first two days of this three-day trip that concludes today in Columbia, S.C.

Gov. Jimmy Carter of Georgia, who was the overnight host of McGovern and his wife Eleanor, did not greet McGovern at the Atlanta airport nor did he appear with him at the rally in front of the state Capitol.

In Arkansas, Gov. Dale Bumpers likewise did not appear at public gatherings with McGovern, but he did show up at a news conference with the senator at the governor's mansion.

Tech hosts workshop on school business

Public school education is pupils, teachers, curriculum and instruction; but, with individual system budgets often running into many millions of dollars annually, it is also very big business.

It is toward increasingly better business management in the public schools that this year's School Business Services Workshop on the campus of Tech was aimed.

The annual workshop was Wednesday and Thursday.

Jointly sponsoring the two-day event were Tech, the West Texas Association of School Business Officials, Texas Association of School Business Officials (TASBO), Lubbock Independent School District, IDS, Region XVII Education Service Center, and a group of school equipment exhibitors.

Workshop coordinators were Harold Glasscock of the Lubbock school district and Dr. Berlie J. Fallon, associate dean for graduate studies in Tech's College of Education.

Fallon said this year's workshop was expected to attract some 115 school business officials, including more than 60 from outside the immediate South Plains area.

Featured speaker for the opening general session was Prof. Maurice Kirk of the Tech School of Law. His topic was "Current Problems in School Law."

Later in the morning, workshop participants heard from Jimmy Hooser, administrative assistant with the Texas State Teachers' Association (TSTA), Austin. He discussed proposed legislation and gave a preliminary report on TSTA's task force work on school finance and programs.

Baird surveys Chicano beliefs

BY BILL MICHALEK
Staff Reporter

Lubbock Mexican-Americans are being surveyed by Tech associate professor of government Dr. Frank L. Baird to determine their political behavior and attitudes.

The Lubbock study is one phase of a research project that also views Mexican-American in San Angelo and Amarillo under the auspices of the Institute for Ethnic Studies of Texas Tech.

Dr. Baird was assisted by Jesus F. Guzman Jr. in formulating a 104-question survey. Volunteers from Dr. Baird's summer government classes have done most of the legwork in reaching approximately 700 representative households with the questionnaire. He acknowledged that general response to the project had been favorable.

The survey is divided into four areas. The first area asks 24 questions about personal data from name, age, occupation, and income to "Are you first, second, third, . . . generation U.S. citizen?"

The second area deals extensively with political participation. It asks such specific questions as "If you do vote, do you know the number of your precinct?"

nesday was C. C. Michel, public relations specialist from Odessa, who made "Some Watermelon Remarks." Presiding over the luncheon program was Glasscock, assistant superintendent for business affairs for the Lubbock ISD.

The opening general session for Thursday began with W.W. Gearhart of the McAllen ISD presiding. An address on the "Economic Outlook and Its Relationship to Education" was delivered by Dr. Robert Rouse, chairman of Tech's department of economics.

Conducting a clinic following Dr. Rouse was chairman Lee Elder of the San Angelo ISD and George Cristy of the Seminole Public Schools, Odell Kite of the Lamesa ISD and W. B. Hammonds of the Hurst-Euleus-Bedford ISD, Bedford.

Registration

Registration packets for second session summer school may be picked up today from 1-6 p.m. on the second floor of West Hall. They may also be picked July 5-7 in the afternoons in room 108 of West Hall.

Texans interested in officials—especially their money, expenses

An opinion study made by the Institute for Mass Communications Research at Tech showed 77.6 per cent of the respondents favored financial disclosure by state officials. The concept was opposed by only 14.7 per cent.

and "Do you know the name of your precinct chairman?" The 50 questions in this area cover, among other things, voting habits, party preference, party dislikes, Mexican-American leader influence, and candidate preference at the local as well as national level.

The next area centers on ethnic matters, or as Dr. Baird put it, "how they view themselves." One question asks preference of name for their ethnic group; another wants their definition of the newly coined term "Chicano."

The final area asks them specific names of people in power, from the president of the United States, to their state senator and state representative, to a member of the Lubbock School Board.

Dr. Baird and Guzman prefaced the survey with spot appearances on local Spanish-speaking media attempting to inform primarily Mexican-Americans about the study. Dr. Baird attributed much of the success the survey response had been to previews over the media.

Dr. Baird hopes to draw definite conclusions about political philosophies of this ethnic group. As he begins to pore over the answers, he expressed the desire for a better understanding from others of the Mexican-American ethnic.

Voluntary blood donations begun

By LAUREL PHIPPS
Special Reporter

Conversion to an all voluntary blood donor program may reduce the present $25 cost of a pint of whole blood (red blood cells) if South Plains residents favorably to the program, Roger M. Smith, director of Blood Services of Lubbock (BSL), announced at a news conference Tuesday.

BSL, a self-sustaining non-profit corporation, is part of a nationwide network of 24 blood banks which will adopt the new policy.

Smith anticipates the cost of a pint of blood eventually will drop to about half the $40 national average.

He said the change would take place gradually within six to 12 months so as not to jeopardize the local or national blood supply. Presently, 60 per cent of the BSL donors are paid, he said.

If more people give blood voluntarily, money not spent on paid donors can pay for a larger part of blood drawing, processing, storage and delivery costs, Smith explained. The savings can then be passed on to patients who need blood transfusions.

"We must depend on the news media and various community groups to educate the public concerning the need for voluntary donors," he said. "In Lubbock alone 1,500 donors per month are needed."

Smith said another reason for the change to a voluntary donor program is that the incident rate of serum hepatitis transmitted through blood transfusions is higher in a paid donor program.

"A person who gives blood for money will sometimes lie about his medical history and pass on a disease to a recipient," he said. "The person who voluntarily donates blood has no reason to do this."

Smith said a test for serum hepatitis has been developed, but is only 25 per cent effective. For this reason "we must rely upon the integrity of the donor."

Arland R. Cook, donor recruitment director for the entire Blood Services association, said incidence of hepatitis in Blood Services donor blood already is lower than that of commercial blood banks because the non-profit associations do not accept blood from "skid row" donors or from donors who use drugs.

In 1971 only one case of serum hepatitis was reported by the 38 South Plains hospitals served by BSL, Smith said. This compares with the approximately 12,000 transfusions using BSL blood which were given that year.

Despite this figure, Smith said, BSL will make the switch as part of a "national trend moving toward voluntarism and away from the paid donor concept."

He said a bill "to encourage the voluntary donation of pure and safe blood" was introduced in the House of Representatives last November. There currently is a companion bill before the Senate, also he added.

Bus service to continue

BY HERB MEYER
Staff Reporter

Buses will continue to provide transportation for students traveling between commuter parking lots and classes again this fall.

Gene Lake, Tech Traffic and Parking Counselor, said that Tech bus service will continue even if the Lubbock Transit Corporation discontinues operations.

He said that though Lubbock Transit has provided Tech with bus service since 1968, results of open competition will determine the company chosen to service Tech students this fall.

Tech officials recently discussed the campus busing situation with representatives of Transportation Enterprises Incorporated, at Austin, according to Lake. He said that Transportation Enterprises operates 47 buses at UT.

Lubbock Transit presently operates eight buses at Tech. Six buses are operated on a circular route from Commuter lot C-1 (west of stadium) through the campus and back to lot C-1. A second campus route between Commuter lot C-2 (east stadium) and lot C-3 (Law area) is serviced by two additional buses.

The student bus service is funded by taking $2.00 from each student service fee collected. Lake said that the Tech regents have allocated $87,000 for bus system operations during the next year.

According to Ernie Prenevost, manager of Lubbock Transit Corporation, continued support of Lubbock Transit operations by the city of Lubbock is necessary if bus service is to continue on city streets.

Prenevost said that if city support is withdrawn, it will be necessary to either increase the $6.75 per operating hour presently charged Tech for student bus service or reduce amount of campus service. Lubbock Transit charged $6.00 per operating hour when service was initiated in 1968.

Ms. dilemma for foreign liberated woman

NEW YORK (AP) - To Ms. or not to Ms.?

That may be the question for liberated American women, but it's obvious that the feminists haven't given a thought to the rest of the world.

If they had, they'd realize that the language of liberation loses something in the translation.

Take French, for example. A married woman is called madame; an unmarried one is addressed as mademoiselle. Find a compromise for that if you will.

Ms. just doesn't seem to fit in the language of love and the land of romance.

Would you believe GIs coming home from the war and singing about Ms. from Armentiers?

Things aren't much better in other non-English-speaking countries. There's senora and senorita in Spain, frau and fraulein in Germany. The length of the list depends only on your linguistic ability.

Actually, the language barrier isn't the only problem with the catch-all title dreamed up by the feminists.

Reams have been written about the problem of pronunciation. And none of the suggested solutions seem to work.

Try addressing someone by pronouncing the two letters separately. It sounds like you're reciting the alphabet.

The generally accepted "miz," on the other hand, sounds like something out of "Gone With the Wind." Not a very liberated image.

The new mode of address also offers more chance of offending.

In the old days, if you didn't know whether a woman was Miss or Mrs., you could guess and you had one chance in two of being right.

Now, with three choices, the odds are against you. Two times out of three, you'll pick the title the woman doesn't want.

What Ms. doesn't do is change anything important.

It doesn't get women equal pay for equal work. It doesn't give them the right to own property or handle their own financial affairs. It doesn't give them the right to education, jobs or political office.

And no husband is likely to start helping with the housework just because his wife's letters are addressed to Ms. instead of Mrs.

TO THE STUDENTS OF TEXAS TECH UNIVERSITY:

Never has it been my good fortune to observe, and experience, more ideal student participation and cooperation, than that demonstrated here on our own campus during the recent ASEE Conference. Nor was I the only one conscious of this outstanding quality. Our guests from every state in the Union, and from ten foreign countries commented most favorable regarding the wonderful esprit de corps of our students - not only those in College of Engineering, but throughout all divisions and colleges of the University.

I know that many of you endured disruptions in your class schedules and subjects. For this we apologize. At the same time we laud you for having put up so uncomplainingly with these disadvantages.

Speaking for Dr. James H. Lawrence, General Chairman for ASEE; 1972, and myself as well, I offer sincere thanks to each one of you for helping us to make this the "best conference ever"—a phrase which expresses the consensus regarding this big event.

Business Analysis

Insurance agents may be sued

NEW YORK (AP) - Pennsylvania insurance commissioner Herbert S. Deneberg suggests that flood victims in scores of communities in the East might consider suing their insurance agents and brokers for negligence.

"If agents want to assume the privileges and status of being professionals they must take the responsibility too," he said in an interview.

"As a lawyer," he said, "I think there is ample precedent to accuse them of negligence if they failed to tell their clients that flood insurance was available.

Such suits would be restricted to residents of communities in which flood insurance was available under a federal subsidy plan. While most communities are eligible, not all sought qualification under the program.

Action would be filed by individuals or by groups acting in a class action, in much the same way that professional negligence cases are being brought in increasing numbers against lawyers and doctors, he said.

Should such a concept find wide acceptance the consequences for agents, insurance companies and municipalities would be extraordinary, but it wouldn't be the first time Deneberg has provoked and upset the industry.

A Certified Life Underwriter and former professor, Deneberg earlier issued "A Shopper's Guide to Life Insurance," challenged the fees charged by hospitals and paid by Blue Cross and denied Blue Shield a rate increase.

The fact that flood insurance is available in many communities, and can be made available in others, has been described as the industry's best kept secret and least publicized product, but agents alone are not at fault.

Under the federal plan, communities may qualify for flood insurance, to be purchased by property owners, by agreeing to certain land usage and property restriction clauses.

However, most communities have failed to take qualifying action. Deneberg said that of 5,000 flood-prone communities in the nation, only 1,200 are enrolled. Of 500 such communities in Pennsylvania, only 90 are qualified.

Moreover, either because the state's 30,000 agents failed to inform them or because they chose not to seek coverage, only 683 property owners were covered under the federal plan at the time the floods struck.

The blame, therefore, seems to be shared also by the federal and state governments for not publicizing the availability of coverage, and by municipal officials for not seeking to qualify, as well as by agents.

Many people apparently through their homeowner policies provided flood coverage, Deneberg said. But, he added, if the insurance agent poses as a professional adviser, it would seem he has a responsibility to inform.

A RECORDING TRIUMPH—NEWLY RECORDED!

THE COMPLETE VAUGHAN WILLIAMS SYMPHONY CYCLE

SIR ADRIAN BOULT. CONDUCTOR.

Now with the release of Symphony No. 2 "London," Sir Adrian has completed the mammoth nine symphony recording program. Long recognized as a Vaughan Williams specialist, these performances now unquestionably establish him as the repertoire's foremost authority. Nine individual albums in all. Each distinctly different—each of a magnitude that demands the absolute in interpretative mastery and engineering skill. Boult and Angel meet the challenge. Magnificently.

NOW... the complete Vaughan Williams Cycle

Only $3.69 per LP.

- SB-3739 Symphony No. 1 "A Sea Symphony" (with The Wasps Aristophanic Suite)
- S-36838 Symphony No. 2 "A London Symphony"
- S-36532 Symphony No. 3 "Pastoral Symphony" (with In the Fen Country)
- S-36557 Symphony No. 4 (with Norfolk Rhapsody No. 1)
- S-36698 Symphony No. 5 (with Serenade to Music)
- S-36469 Symphony No. 6 (with The Lark Ascending)
- S-36763 Symphony No. 7 "Antarctica"
- S-36625 Symphony No. 8 (with Concerto for Two Pianos and Orchestra)
- S-36742 Symphony No. 9 (with "Old 104th Psalm Tune Fantasia")

S-36625
 First stereo recording for the Concerto! An infectious interpretation of two sonically demanding works. Yet another performance attesting to Boult's interpretative mastery of Vaughan Williams' literature.

SB-3739 (two discs)
 Boult's super-affinity for this sprawling, choral/orchestral work renders the performance incomparable insight and magnificence. Angel captures the power in stunning detail.

S-36838
 The champion of Vaughan Williams spokesmen conducts the most popular of the composer's nine-part cycle. Sonics are flawless and superlatively big—highly complementary to Boult's vital artistic finish and total mastery of the score.

S-36532
 The most serene and introspective of all the Vaughan Williams symphonies conducted by today's foremost authority on this music. An unflinching accurate performance. Sensitive recording.

S-36763
 In a sweeping interpretative spectacle, Boult triumphantly conquers the mammoth score... his penetratingly precise knowledge ingratiate the performance with a vital and brilliant intensity startlingly absent from other performances.

S-36742
 Conductor Boult again displays his unique in-depth mastery of the finite poetic line—of this, the composer's last symphony. Coupled with the "old 104th" Psalm Fantasia. An issue of intense musicianship and recording excellence.

Students develop can bumpers

TUSCON, Ariz. (AP) - Beer can bumpers for automobiles? About 40 University of Arizona engineering students have combined 20 used beer cans with $2 worth of lumber to develop a bumper they say will leave cars undamaged in collisions at five miles per hour.

"Admittedly it's not very attractive, but I think people are beginning to be more willing to buy cars that aren't necessarily attractive, but are safer and more practical," Lawrence Scott, chief adviser to the students, has said.

The cans on the test can still contain labels and the wood is unfinished, but Scott said he expects cosmetic improvements later.

The cans are sandwiched lengthwise between two pieces of lumber and, Scott said, can be attached to conventional cars to replace original bumpers.

IRS hires woman inspector

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The Internal Revenue Service's first woman undercover inspector says she has certain advantages over a man.

"I can go more places than a man," said Deborah Ganz, 24, of Santa Monica. "For instance, I can go into an office as a clerk typist and nobody would suspect that I was an undercover agent." Carrying a gun, Miss Ganz started work Tuesday. Her assignment: checking out IRS employees and people who offer them bribes.

Because it considered the $9,000-a-year job too dangerous, the IRS had not hired women previously for it. But Miss Ganz isn't worried. "Women fight dirtier than men," she said. "We're more vindictive."

"The cans may be crushed on impact, but they're free and anyone should be able to replace the damaged cans at home with about as much trouble as changing a tire."

The bumper is one of the main features on a car that the engineering students are modifying for entry in a contest sponsored by a group called Student Competition on Relevant Engineering at the General Motors proving grounds at Milford, Mich., in August.

The car also will be equipped to use clean-burning natural gas and has other safety features inside, such as special seat belts for pregnant women and a polarized plastic visor which swings in front of the windshield at night to reduce glare.

New BSU director named

Mr. Robert Cannon has been named the new director of Tech's Baptist Student Union, an appointment made by the Baptist General Convention of Texas.

Cannon has been the assistant BSU director at the University of Texas at Arlington, the director of the BSU at SMU and also at Stephen F. Austin University before moving recently to Tech. He graduated from North Texas State University in 1964 and went on to graduate from Southern-western Baptist Seminary in 1968. "I am very excited and I'm looking forward to the days ahead," Cannon commented. The summer activities of the BSU include a Monday night Bible study, Thursday night vespers and Friday night missions work. Cannon also said that plans were being made for the fall program.

The Baptist Student Center will be open daily from 7:30 a.m. to 11:00 p.m.

National competition

Tech ad campaign wins

Tech students of advertising have handed over a check for $1,000 to their Department of Mass Communications—the sum they won in a national competition for an advertising campaign designed to sell the Ford Motor Company's Pinto car.

Rules of the competition are that entries may be on any subject having to do with marketing of the Pinto. Youthmark, Inc., of New York provides the judging.

Tech won over a field of 15 in the Southwest Region but lost out on the national level to the University of Arkansas.

Eighteen students participated in the entry, preparing a campaign outline, all the layout elements for print advertising, tapes for radio ads, and copy and design of other advertising. Costs of the campaign also were determined on a national basis.

The Ford Motor Company benefits through use of the ideas submitted by students.

Working on the program at Tech were: William R. Claypoole, a part-time instructor in mass communications and partner in an advertising agency with offices in Odessa and Lubbock; teaching assistant Gary Shackelford, formerly of Tulia, who is working toward the master's degree with emphasis in advertising; student David E. Hill (son of Earnest B. Hill, 4221 Beaverbrook) Dallas, who was principally responsible for the art work for the campaign. Other students who worked on the project are: Stephen Beasley, Monte Dodd, Darrel Thomas, Melissa Sellmeyer, Pierce Doan, Jerold Dunlap, Randy Hambrick, Gordon Saunders, Sa.

Also Sandra Waters, David S. Johnson, James McElgunn, James Thompson, Alvin Miller Ricky Prince, and William R. England, Jr. Also Jochen Lauber, Postweg, Germany, and Jochen Sallowsky and Claus Anderson, Hambrug, Germany.

Tech coed qualifies

Brenda Bryan, an attractive Tech coed has leaped her way into qualifying for the olympic training competition.

Brenda, 19, a physical education major from Seminole who competes for the Texas Track Club as well as Tech, competed last weekend in the Olympic trials at Los Alamos Calif.

In the pentathlon competition she placed ninth in the nation just 200 points shy of the first place girl. The pentathlon is comprised of five events and Brenda won two of the five, the long jump and the 200 meter dash. Her downfall was in the shot put where she has not had sufficient training.

In the long jump she easily made the olympic qualifying jump of 20'8" by going 21'1 and three fourths inches. This is the second best jump in the U.S.

Upholstery course offered

A practical course in how to upholster furniture is being offered Tech students this summer by the clothing and textiles department in the College of Home Economics. Ms. Robert Toland, course instructor, said the course, 4330, is taught from a homemaking standpoint and not commercial and covers such areas as teaching the student where to shop for materials, types of materials needed and the processes necessary to the actual upholstery.

The course can be taken as an elective for either an undergraduate degree or a graduate degree. Currently it is being offered in the summer program only. There are no prerequisites. This occupational home economics course was first taught at Tech as an elective in the clothing and textiles division during the long term. According to Ms. Toland it has not been offered in the long term since 1962 or 1963. Since then it has been taught in the summers as the department started getting crowded.

"It is very difficult to include all of the basics needed in this course during the short summer session. If it were taught in a long term course you could start out with the basics and progress on through and do more different styles. It would be more comprehensive than it is now," said Ms. Toland. For those interested in taking the course, Ms. Toland said, "We keep a waiting list in the clothing and textiles office. Those who are interested can call and have their names placed on the list. There must be at least ten undergraduates register for the course before it can be offered."

Ms. Toland said that she would probably give the course at the Y.M.C.A. this fall. Further information about the course can be obtained from Ms. Toland in room 102 or at the clothing and textiles office in the Home Economics Building.
