Stocks Reach New High In Buying Wave

Cotton Goes Up Dollar A Bale, Loses It, And Gains Again

NEW YORK (AP)—Stock and the principal staples reached new highs for the recovery on the crest of another huge buying wave Thursday. The ticker again fell behind the transactions.

Extreme gains ranged from $1 to more than $5 a share in many issues, and although profit-taking frequently checked the advance, prices were around the day's best by mid-afternoon.

Cotton jumped up about $1 a bale, lost nearly half of that gain, and then recovered it again.

All these squeals you hear from House Republicans about executive Democratic control are entirely true.

In the palmiest days of Cannonism the minority had more rights than it has been given lately. Not only is freedom of speech curtailed but no one is permitted to even suggest an amendment from the floor.

Since March 4 not a single important bill has been given normal House consideration. On one occasion, the Home Loan Mortgage Bill, did the Democrats permit the Republicans to offer amendments.

The usual procedure is for the college professors to get the legislation in shape offstage. They hand it to the leaders and the leaders jam it through the House as is.

No one is objecting very strenuously. Even the Republicans will tell you behind their hands that they are screaming only to make a record of protest. They realize it would be dangerous to let the House vote on all the pet theories of members as riders to the Administration bills. This is no time for rocking the boat.

Also the party in power has the responsibility for legislation. It will be held accountable by the electorate.

Speaker Rainey does not fit in with the role of czar. He is a liberal at heart and has always fought against the rules he is now defending. He is a mild-mannered man who has no fire of voice or eye.

When asked about the strict rule on the Truth-in-Securities Bill, he replied in a big-hearted way.

"Well, we let the Republicans talk for five hours. What do they want?"

G. O. P.—

You never hear much nowadays about the Republicans, but they are doing plenty.

The Snells, Wadsworths and McNarys are privately playing along with the western Progressives wherever they can. They hope some day the lost sheep will stray back into the fold. Wadsworth is keeping particularly quiet but he is Snell's right arm in the House.

These boys are completely snubbing the old Hoover crowd which is working in the opposite direction, trying to bounce the Progressives through Republican Federal associates.

It looks very much as if there will be a fight eventually between these two wings for control of the party.

Ex-Secretary Mills is the only go-between playing with both wings. The congressional crowd would like to have him with them but he is willing to let the Walter Brown, Doaks et al. go. The Mills fight against inflation was not exactly a success but he scored at a big private dinner party here recently. His speech impressed the politicians of both parties.

Offstage he is the most active living Republican.

The Republicans started to set up a powerful opposition publicity outfit here but decided against it.

There were two reasons. First, this is a bad time for opposition. Patriotism demands support for Mr. Roosevelt's economic proposals or silence as far as possible. Also you can not start powerful publicity outfits without money.

Girls Figure In W.T.C.C. Features

Mrs. Lee Weathers, Director, Has Novel Entertainment At Auditorium

An outstanding feature of the W. T. C. C. convention is the original musical show being put on tonight and tomorrow night at the City Auditorium by Mrs. Lee Weathers, who has been specially imported for the occasion. Mrs. Weathers is well known in Big Spring after having taught expression to the city's talented youngsters for several years. She is contributing time and talent to entertain the visitors for both evenings and to show off the new auditorium at its prettiest.

The setting will be the same for both performances. At each show the array of pretty girls representing West Texas towns will be introduced. The special numbers will vary, however.

Mrs. Weathers has written the words and designed the scenery for the show. She decided on an evening in Mars and she has told the whole W. T. C. C. what she thinks Mars will look like, so far as she can guess.

The curtain will rise, with the King and Queen of Mars on their throne attended by ten young Martians. Ray Simmons is the King and Miss Lila Ashley the Queen. The Martians are: Janice Jacobs, Eddie Raye Lee, Mary Ruth Ditta, Judith Pickle, Eloise Kuykendall, Jane Marie Johnson, Janice Lee Leader, Ruth Horn, Wynell Woodall, and Mary Alice McNew.

Suspense is in the air of Mars when the curtain goes up. Something is about to happen and the Martians are not sure what it is to be. Their radios don't tell them and they suspect almost anything.

That anything proves to be a dirigible from the Earth, Mars nearest neighbor and a planet that very conveniently speaks the same language as the Martians do.

When the Martian king sees he has visitors, he welcomes them profusely and turns the stage over to them. The visitors are all W. T. C. C. visitors and they are proper.

First to be presented are the girls representing the West Texas towns. Mrs. Lee Weathers, hostess of the show, does this.

Others are the members of the Denton Teacher's College Stage Band, of which Floyd Graham is director. Mr. Graham is also director of the ship in the play. His band takes its place on the stage.

In addition to the West Texas girls, three other girls are on the ship. Miss Zillah Mae Ford; Miss United States, all-American, who is Miss Gene Handley of C. I. A.; and Miss Big Spring, Miss Modesta Good.

The Martians and the audience are then entertained by the dance numbers which will be different each evening.

Tonight Robert Riegel will dance. The Accordion girls, Louise and Willette, of Lubbock, will play. There will be four songs by the local chorus composed of Misses Eva Mae O'Neal, Carline McCleskey, Mickey Davis, Marguerite Tucker, Virginia Cushing, Alla Mary Stahl, Ruth Williams, Dorothy Hochpald, Dorothy Jean Frost, Dorothy Payne and Alta Taylor.

The stage band will give several novelty numbers, including an original composition by one of their members, "Hymns and His Piccolo." Miss Irene Jay, of Abilene, will dance. Ted Ledford will give several specialty numbers. Miss Virginia Craig, and Miss Gene Handley, of Denton will dance.

The program for Friday night will be announced in Friday's paper.

Roosevelt Has No Intention Going To London Conference

WASHINGTON (AP)—It was reiterated at the White House Thursday that the president had no intention, at present, of attending the London economic conference, opening there on June 12.

There was a possibility of the president going to London, should circumstances require his presence there, was not put beyond a possibility by some of his friends.

The fitting up of the cruiser Indianapolis to accommodate him was described as preparations for taking him on the cruiser's "shakedown" trip next month.

Weaving Wool With Hand Loom Is Shown In Display Set Up By Texas Tech At Settles Hotel

Wool will be woven during the W. T. C. C. convention with a hand loom set up in the Settles hotel lobby Thursday morning by Prof. Heard of the textile department of Texas Technological College.

The weaving of wool with hand loom is a proposed new industry for West Texas by Dr. Bradford Knapp, president of Texas Tech, and he proposes to lend the assistance of the college in getting the industry started.

The textile department of the college had designed and now has in operation here as a convention attraction a hand loom which weaves beautiful and serviceable woolen cloth suitable for suits, overcoats and other garments. The

Convention Pick-Ups

Convention leaders are expecting the bands that have made reservations to make up for lost time as they arrive Thursday evening and Friday. The Anton Opyles, official W.T.C.C. band this year, was delayed until noon Thursday, leaving the convention without a band through the morning.

The Dallas delegation, diked out with golden hat bands, and carrying canes, alighted from the Texas & Pacific train shortly after 9 a. m. Thursday, about two hours late.

Ben Criss, manager of the Dallas Chamber of Commerce, was, of course, in the Dallas crowd. Big Spring is getting to be a favorite place of Ben. He came out last summer for the West Texas Press Association convention.

Ten minutes after Charlie Guy, kingfish of the Lubbock newspapers, hit town with A. E. Davis, manager of the Lubbock Chambers of Commerce, Charlie and Max Bentley, Abilene Reporter-News managing editor and chairman of the editorial board of West Texas Today, started their gabfest which will continue unabated and uninterrupted until Saturday night.

Harry Montgomery, Associated Press correspondent, arrived Thursday morning. He joined a large number of correspondents of newspapers throughout West Texas.

A Travel-Air plane, owned by A. F. Holt, manager of an ice manufacturing plant at Lubbock, landed at Big Spring Airport this morning. Mr. and Mrs. Holt and William Larimer of Lubbock were aboard, and will attend the convention here.

George E. Smith, city manager; George Baker, publisher of the Devil's River News, and Floyd Dungan of Sonora, arrived Thursday morning to attend the convention. They were accompanied by G. A. Wynn, Sonora attorney, who is visiting his brother, Tom Wynn.

"Five second service" was the deal of W. G. Riddle, district manager of the Southwestern Bell Telephone company, who is doing the best of operators in the local exchange for the period of the W.T.C.C. convention. He said the company was fully prepared to handle any load of traffic that might develop. Late Wednesday the telephone department was closed in

Officials Declare Every Indication Points To Largest Attendance In Four Or Five Years; Committees Represent Affiliated Towns

HAWK POINTS OUT NEED FOR UNITED ACTION

Charles Braun Substitutes For Lawrence Westbrook; Resolutions Passed Urging Federal Officials To Include Highway Building In Public Works

By HARRY MONTGOMERY Associated Press Correspondent

West Texans from the Rio Grande to the northernmost counties of the Panhandle were gathering here Thursday for the annual convention of their regional chamber of commerce.

Registration began at 9 a. m., and the first session of the convention, a luncheon for directors, was held at noon.

Officials said there was every indication that the attendance would be the largest in four or five years, or since the organization decreed that its conventions should be devoted to business rather than entertainment. It was significant that the crowds already pushing their ways into local hotel lobbies were made-up of various committees representing numerous affiliated cities, rather than large good-will delegations from a few neighboring cities.

The chamber, during the administration of President Wilbur C. Hawk, has featured direct service to individual communities, and these cities were invited to be represented at the convention sessions if they expected to benefit fully from the organization's program.

Hawk pointed out that the realization of the need for united action during a period of economic distress, and the fitness of the chamber's program to meet these needs had brought 53 new cities into membership during the past year, making a total of 170 affiliated towns.

Charles Braun, Austin, was substituted on the program of the Public Works and Emergency Relief group conference this afternoon for Lawrence Westbrook, Texas relief director. This conference will be the first in a series of such conferences.

The convention work committee today passed resolutions urging federal officials to include highway building as a project for expenditures under the proposed federal public works program; that highways be designated as a principal project for work relief; urging West Texas political subdivisions to avail themselves of the clause in Texas law authorizing self-help bonds without necessity of a bond issue, and thanking Governor Ferguson and her relief committee for seeking the establishment of emergency work conservation camps in Texas.

Other resolutions commended the legislature for adopting appropriation bills substantially less than the previous biennium; urged support of Senator Walter Woodward's bill which would provide for a per capita limitation on all revenues that may be collected by the state; urged abandonment of the practice of postponing tax payment periods; that tax collectors be required to install modern bill collecting methods; that an educational campaign be instituted for a more complete payment of taxes; that government agricultural relief be administered through the state extension service, and that West Texas secure a booth at the Century of Progress, Chicago.

These resolutions will come before the general assembly tomorrow.

D. A. BANDEEN, above, general manager of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce has made the organization so useful and beneficial to the history of West Texas that it is a shame.

Bridge-Tea On Friday Is Chief Social Event

Mrs. E. V. Spence General Chairman For Function At Country Club

The bridge tea to be given at the Country club Friday afternoon, 3 to 5, is the social event of the W. T. C. C. for visiting women.

It will be a pastel tea and according to the plans of Mrs. E. V. Spence, general chairman, will be a very colorful affair with every woman visitor in town present, if she cares for tea, bridge, riding or golf or even just plain sociability.

The transportation committee of which Mrs. E. O. Price is chairman will have cars at the Settles hotel, the Crawford hotel, the Douglas hotel at 2:45 to drive those who want to play bridge to the Country club. The cars will be back again at those three hotels at 4:45 for those who want to go out only for the tea.

The committee that will see after those who want to go on the horseback ride tomorrow will arrange for the riders to leave at 2 o'clock. Miss Dorothy Ellington is chairman of this committee.

The women golfers will commence their play at the Country club green, announces Mrs. F. H. Liberty, chairman, at 1:30 in order to give time for everyone to be through by 5 o'clock, the tea hour.

All local women who have registered are asked to attend the tea and meet the visitors.

In the receiving line at the Country club will be the members of the general committee who are helping Mrs. Spence, Meses, Ralph Rix, Steve Ford and W. J. McAdams; wives of the officials of the W. T. C. C. wives of local officials and others prominent in the Chamber of Commerce work.

The sponsors' breakfast for the girls who will represent the towns of West Texas at the Court of Mars will be held Friday morning at 10 o'clock on the Settles messanine.

Mrs. R. Homer McNew is chairman of this committee. She has arranged a very clever primitive West Texas theme, something out

Broker's Tip Wins Derby in Fast Finish

TODAY and TOMORROW
 By WALTER LIPPMANN
 The President's Radio Address

The President's radio address of Sunday night was preceded by an increasingly insistent demand that he say something to reassure those who dread the vast powers of the Inflation Bill. Many of those who appealed for reassurance would have liked Mr. Roosevelt to say in so many words that he would never use the extraordinary powers conferred upon him. Had he done this, had he renounced the powers before Congress actually conferred them upon him, Mr. Roosevelt would have been a far less astute political leader than he has thus far proved himself to be. Such a renunciation would have been doubly unwise. It would, on the one hand, have revived the movement for mandatory inflation in place of the discretionary and managed inflation which is now in prospect; on the other hand, it would have thrown doubt and confusion into the minds of people who, released from the mania for liquidity, are now basing their economic activity upon the assumption that there is to be a sustained rise of prices.

Without renouncing his powers, Mr. Roosevelt has, however, designated his objective and named his means to attain them. The objective is a price level maintained somewhere about the average of the Middle Twenties; that, one may confidently believe, is the correct interpretation of his statement that "we seek to correct a wrong and not to create another wrong in the opposite direction." Whether a dollar whose purchasing power has been reduced to the level of the Middle Twenties would be worth less than or as much as its gold parity, nobody knows. The president has, therefore, quite rightly refrained from any dogmatic commitment to revalue or not to revalue the dollar in terms of gold. The dollar is to be revalued in terms of commodities and gold is to be used, as it should be in any rational scheme of things, as an instrument to stabilize the purchasing power of the currency rather than as an omnipotent thing to which all other values must submit.

In respect to the monetary devices by which the rise in prices is to be produced, the President was much more specific. Quite significantly he said that "the existing wrong," namely, that prices are too low and the dollar too high, was to be corrected by "an enlargement of credit." This is the conservative way to produce and control an inflation in that an enlargement of credit can be reversed by a contraction of credit. The President has the power to produce inflation by an expansion of currency, but this method can not easily be reversed and is, therefore, a dangerous method. Without renouncing the power of currency inflation, Mr. Roosevelt has made it clear enough that it is the method of credit expansion which he proposes to use.

The time, therefore, clearly seems to have arrived when the panic-mongering of the past fortnight ought to be abandoned. These alarms from very respectable sources are no doubt sincere. But they are based upon the worst possibilities of the Inflation Bill rather than upon the real intent of the Administration which is to execute it. They can do no good. Vigilant criticism will be of the utmost importance in the months to come, and if the believers in sound money can adjust their minds to present realities, they can play a great role. But, as the Journal of Commerce puts it, "if they confine their efforts to denunciation of policies no longer debatable, they will only be talking for the record."

In all of this the President said nothing which has not been plain to those who have tried to understand sympathetically the meaning of his monetary policies. To them the most reassuring sentence in the address will be the one in which he said that he did "not want the people of this country to take the foolish course of letting this improvement come back on another speculative wave." Had Mr. Roosevelt showed any signs of being unduly impressed by or complacent about the extraordinary revival of the past few weeks, then indeed there would be cause for anxiety. He would simply be repeating the fatal error of last summer when, having made a promising start, the administration and the Federal Reserve System stopped pressing for recovery at the moment when recovery was beginning. The administration was, no doubt, paralyzed by the political situation, and the Federal Reserve System may have been inhibited by its preoccupation with the duty of maintaining the gold standard. Whatever the human justification, the fact is that the initial recovery was not vigorously promoted, and the ensuing disappointment deepened the depression.

Mr. Roosevelt's refusal to look upon the present speculative movement as a victory is in the highest degree reassuring. For this speculative movement can not wisely be looked upon as more than a favorable opportunity to adopt measures which, under the unfavorable conditions of continuing deflation, would probably have had little effect. This applies particularly to expenditure on public works. While the great deflationary forces were still bearing down upon us, one or two or three billions of expenditures on public works would, it seems to me, have been futile except as a very expensive form of outdoor relief. But with the movement of money and prices reversed, with buyers coming forward to meet the sellers, deliberate public spending for the purpose of creating a capital goods market and of providing wages should have very real effects. When everybody is selling, the government alone is not powerful enough to substitute itself for the purchasers who are missing. But when demand is rising to meet supply, when purchasing is being resumed, another big purchaser, that is to say, the government, may have a powerful effect in the market for labor and materials.

It is to be hoped that new purchasing power will be injected not only by Federal public works expenditures but by many other means. If it is possible to do so, this is the right moment to bring assistance to local governments so that they may at least arrest, and then reverse, the devastating effects of suspending their public works, cutting the heart out of the public services, and of failing to pay the salaries of their employees. It is the right moment, also, to make an extra effort to restore to the people some considerable part at least of the purchasing power now locked up in closed banks, and the Administration ought to take the risks of using its powers to that end. This is the time, when we are embarking upon a policy of sustained cheap money, for the Treasury and the Federal Reserve Board to send word all the way down the line to the banks that they are expected to co-operate by relaxing the pressure on debtors who can become solvent when prices have risen. This is the time, too, to encour-

Convention Report Given By Rotarians

Reports of the forty-first district Rotary convention held in San Angelo May 1 and 2 were given at Tuesday's session of the Rotary club in the Settles ballroom, with Max S. Jacobs, secretary, in charge of the program.

W. C. Blankenship reported on international relations, Elmo Wason of the Tuesday noon day luncheon program; C. W. Cunningham on community service, and H. Reagan on the Tuesday morning general session of the convention. All talks were interesting and each gave a vivid description of the proceedings of the convention, which was attended by sixteen members of the local club.

The Gold Standard

For more than a year a dreadful spectre has been held up before our eyes—the unspookable danger that we might, if we were not careful, some day be forced off the gold standard. We shuddered when told that at one time, a year ago we actually were within a few days of such a development; we have devoted lip service to the plea that this dreadful calamity must at all costs be prevented.

Well, now it has happened—and everyone seems to be happier. A new atmosphere of confidence has arisen. Commodity prices seem to be about ready to swing back upward. The action which once was dreaded as a catastrophe is now being hailed as a master stroke.

What brought about the change? Bitter experience, largely, which taught us that the price we were paying for our gold dollar was too high. A good many things look quite different today than they looked at year ago. One of them is the gold standard.

New Effort Started To Make Betting On Horse Races Legal

AUSTIN (UP)—The Texas legislature had before it the second effort of this session to legalize horse racing in this state on a pari-mutuel betting system.

The effort is contained in a surprise rider to the departmental appropriation bill calling for the establishment of a state racing commission and the allowance of a betting of a pari-mutuel basis.

Further action on the rider is not expected before late this week since the departmental appropriation figures must be retabulated to conform with the free conference adjustments and the rider cannot be brought up until the whole conference report is considered.

The conference yesterday withheld a record vote.

The rider provides for a three-member racing commission consisting of the state tax commissioner, the commissioner of agriculture and a third commissioner to be appointed by the governor.

Only two racing meetings a year would be permitted one racetrack and the number of racing days for a track would be limited to 61 a year. Track operators would be allowed a 10 per cent cut of the money wagered on their profit. Eight per cent of the operator's receipts would go to the state as a tax.

The state's receipts would be used to promote better horses and to support the department of agriculture.

A similar measure was killed in the house several weeks ago by a close margin.

Legislators Go On Half Pay As 120-Day Period Set Aside For Biennial Session Comes To End

AUSTIN, (UP)—Tuesday marked the closing of the 43rd Texas legislature in the session were limited to the normal 120 day period set aside for it.

Instead prospects are that it will continue until near the end of May. Wednesday the members went on a half-pay of $3 a day.

Appropriation bills for state departments, for colleges and for aid of rural schools have not yet been agreed upon. How summer sessions of the state colleges will be financed is also undetermined.

Taxation bills are also unacted upon. A state sales tax is still alive on the house calendar but with so little chance of favorable action that the author said he would not press it. An income tax bill has passed the house and is resting in a senate committee which held one hearing upon it without reporting the bill.

Relief measures include a $20,000,000 bond issue which the senate has approved and which the house has yet to act upon. If the house concurs it will have to go to popular vote. A state commission to handle relief is provided in a bill that has passed the house and awaits senate action.

Three separate bills postponed mortgage foreclosures until a general relief bill was passed that permits a good-faith debtor who is unable to pay to postpone the sale by showing a court that forced sale would sacrifice the property at less than fair value. A limitation on deficiency judgments also has been enacted.

Emergency banking and insurance moratoriums were enacted and tax relief extended by cancellation of penalties and extension of time for payment. The law under which 25 cents was exacted for automobile headlight certificates was repealed.

Hunting License Bill Is Changed In Lower House

AUSTIN, (UP)—Instead of a universal Texas hunting license of $2, which it favored last week, the Texas house of representatives voted to raise the license to $3 for hunting outside the hunter's home county and leave hunting in the home county free. It now goes to the senate in this form.

Fishing license is made $1.10 with the privilege of fishing in the fisherman's home county and streams touching it without license.

Advocates of a universal hunting license of $2 at first defeated efforts to amend their bill by striking out numerous counties. It was finally passed by a vote of 85 to 62.

The house then voted to reconsider and opponents of the universal $2 license gained such strength that sponsors of the bill were glad to accept the amendment that raises the fee to $3 and exempt home county hunters. In this changed form it was finally passed 83 to 3.

The final passage was in face of a warning that the amendment had been accepted only in order to get the bill to the senate and that the home county free hunting will be cut out by the senate.

Raising the fee for hunting beyond home county limits from $2 to $3 is expected to raise $75,000 revenue for the fish, game and oyster department.

The bill is the only one sponsored by Speaker Coke Stevenson whose district comprises some of the best deer and turkey hunting sections of the state.

New bills were admitted to permit the Dallas county-Arcadia fresh water control district to negotiate for funds with the reconstruction finance corporation and to permit incorporation of firms to exterminate moths and termites, reported to be doing great damage to wooden buildings in the Panhandle.

Thompson Calls On Oil Men To Work Out Plan Among Selves For Stabilization Of Industry

DALLAS, (UP)—Ernest O. Thompson, state railroad commissioner, in an address to the Dallas Advertising League, called on oil men and others desiring stabilization of the industry on the basis of price to work out a plan among themselves.

"The railroad commission should not be blamed for keeping its orders within the scope of the powers given us," said Thompson. "We have written a valid order, and have done the thing which was most needed of all to give stability to the oil industry. The great East Texas field has been for many months the stumbling block of the whole industry because of the want of an enforceable proration order. He told the audience of business and professional leaders that the commission's fight to maintain equitable distribution of oil would compare to other crises in the history of the railroad commission.

Point-by-point his development of the subject was:

1. That during the past week imports of oil into the United States had totaled approximately 162,000 barrels, that total demand of all oil is 9,422,000,000 barrels as compared to domestic production of 8,710,000,000 barrels.
2. That before the discovery of the California, Oklahoma and Texas oil fields oil companies, fearful of a shortage, had accumulated about six hundred million barrels of oil in storage above ground. That following discovery of the new fields a fund of $250,000 was created for the furthering of a proration program among states.

3. That East Texas' estimated production of 100,000,000 barrels could supply more oil than all of the other oil fields in the United States combined.
4. That the present allowable order restricts the East Texas field 99.4 per cent.

Developing the theme of the present allowable in East Texas, Thompson said:

"We are permitting these wells each day to flow only 15 per cent of one hour's producing ability. One hour is practically 4 per cent of a day. Fifteen per cent of one hour would be 15 per cent of 4 per cent, which would be six-tenths of 1 per cent. Therefore, you can see at a glance that we are permitting the East Texas wells to flow only six-tenths of 1 per cent of their entire capacity."

Thompson said the commission found favor in the present order inasmuch as attempts to have it declared invalid by court order had failed.

"All this hula-baloo and discon-test has come about because the big companies in their desire to limit production brought evidence before the railroad commission which caused us to believe that not more than around 150,000 to 200,000 barrels could be produced from the East Texas field per day without crusting waste. Therefore, we allowed this amount of oil in our orders."

These orders, he said, were struck down because "the court properly saw that we were speculating."

"What the court wanted was something definite and certain," he said. "We have that definite certainty now, which is the producing ability of the different wells of the field."

The commission said the order did not limit how little a producer can run and that the commission believes "that we can depend upon the enlightened self-interest of the producers of the East Texas field to devise ways and means of obtaining the greatest ultimate money yield out of their oil."

Attacking the proposed acreage plan for oil allowable, Thompson said that "it would sound the death knell of every little rig in the oil business, and would shortly lead to unification, that is lumping it all together and letting the big fellows operate it, and then he would bill you for your part."

"That," said Thompson, "would mean the end of the little fellow, and I, for one, like to see these little fellows have a fair chance."

Thompson said rising prices in East Texas were a good indication of better times that it would "not be long until the question of price

Peace Officers Charged With Extortion Of Beer Sellers In East Texas

LONGVIEW, (UP)—Two peace officers here faced charges of extortion as a result of a week-long investigation of their alleged dealings with beer sellers.

Justice Perry Meredith last night set bond for E. L. Hummcutt, constable at Big Sandy in Upshur county, and S. R. Jones at $1,000 each.

Texas Rangers O. G. Taylor and H. R. Turner conducted the investigation which led to the arrests.

It was alleged the arrested men extorted money from at least two beer sellers under threat of arrest in ghetto if they did not pay.

AUSTIN, (UP)—S. R. Jones of Longview, under $1000 bond for alleged extortion in connection with beer traffic, was recommended a special Texas ranger March 24 this year by the adjutant general's department, records in the main office here revealed.

What steps the adjutant general would take in regard to the charges against Jones was undetermined.

O. G. Taylor and H. R. Turner, who conducted the investigation which led to the arrest of Jones and E. L. Hummcutt, Big Sandy constable, are regular Texas rangers, the adjutant general said.

A bill to repeal the "gin marriage" law, requiring three days notice of intention to wed, is on the governor's desk.

House and senate have failed to agree on fee bills reducing amounts county officers may retain as their pay.

Liquor measures still lie on the governor's desk, though assurance has been given she will sign. Delay is for sound picture arrangements.

The measures passed are a state 3.2 beer bill to be effective if a state constitutional amendment to permit beer is voted favorably on Aug. 26. There is also a bill setting up a means of ratification or rejection of national prohibition repeal. A proposal for repeal of state prohibition on hard liquor is still on the house calendar.

A bill to create a new oil and gas commission has been killed. One to create an elective highway commission is pending in the house.

An oil company-pipe line divorce bill is in the house.

An administration reorganization bill, to take effect in two years, has passed the house. A boxing bill is waiting favorable opportunity to get action. A pari-mutuel horse racing bill has been fastened on the appropriation for the state department of agriculture by house and senate conferees.

Two appropriations of $250,000 each have been made for expenses of the session. How much of the $500,000 will have been used at the end of the session can not be determined in advance. House expenses already are being reduced by dismissal of clerks of committees.

To date, a statistical reporter has computed that new laws have cost $6.25 a word in the whole half million appropriation is exhausted. Approximately two-thirds of the bills of a session, however, are enacted in the closing two weeks.

Homemakers Give Teacher Farewell Party

The Homemakers Class of the First Baptist Sunday School gave an unusually attractive party at the church Wednesday afternoon celebrating Mother's Day by inviting the members of the Dorcas Sunday School Class as their special guests. The party was also a farewell shower for Mrs. Fanny Gee, teacher, who is leaving the city.

Mrs. W. A. Stall opened the meeting with a devotional. Mrs. Roy Pearce read a poem entitled "Mother." Mrs. Roy Green sang as a solo, "Mother Machine."

Several children took part. Edna Verne Stewart and Geraldine Woods gave readings. Merle Smith and Frances Satterwhite sang a duet accompanied by Mrs. H. F. Thane.

A very clever act, a demonstration of a Model T Ford, was given by four South Ward pupils, from Miss Audrey Phillips' room.

Mrs. Gee was presented with many lovely handkerchiefs from members of the Homemakers and also from the Dorcas Class of which she was a member.

Those present were: Mmes. A. S. Woods, Ray Millon, David Orr, K. S. Beckett, Rogers, H. B. Hull, L. I. Stewart, B. Reagan, R. C. Hatch, F. D. Stamper, A. T. Lloyd, Hardy, Will Crawford, W. B. Buchanan, Fanny Gee, Roy Pearce, Roy Green, Hurling, Lad Canble, Potts, Clarence Miller, H. F. Thave, Mason, Carl McDonald, F. W. Bettle, Earl Baker, Ryan, R. E. Day, J. W. Aderholt, M. L. Burch, L. Gradual Shutdown Of Central West Pools Is Reported

BROKENBIDGE (UP)—Gradual shutdown of oil wells in 25 Central West Texas counties, an aftermath of crude price cuts and increased output elsewhere, contributed to the West Central Texas Oil and Gas Association's plea for federal control of the industry.

J. D. Sandefer, Jr., president of the organization, advanced the following reasons for federal control in a message to Secretary of the Interior Ickes.

1. State authorities have made a failure of proration.

2. Enforcement of state conservation laws is making a political football of the industry.

3. Thousands of employees are being discharged by operators shutting down in this district.

Due to large supplies of oil in sight, "the only way out is through proration," Sandefer believes. "This can be accomplished through limitation of current production to market demand, restriction of new pools, restriction in countries exported to the United States, fair allocations of demand as between pools," he said.

"There is simply too much oil. Production must be pruned fairly. Under the present handling in this state the 3,000 wells in our district can not survive."

Mickey Mouse Notes

Mickey Mouse picnic Saturday. Every child in town is invited.

Remember these things. The picnic is this Saturday, May 13th, at City Park after the show.

There will be two big trucks waiting right after the show to take all mice to the park. Children's parents who prefer taking them are at liberty to do so.

Every child must bring enough lunch for one person, consisting of sandwiches, cakes or fruit or all of these. Mice are asked to leave lunch on the table in the lobby as they go in.

There will be plenty of ice cream donated by one of the creameries, and lemonade furnished by the Ritz theater.

Out-of-town visiting children are especially invited.

Parents who wish to go to this picnic are cordially invited to do so.

Bids On Carrying Mail To Station Called For

Bids for carrying mail between the post office and Texas and Pacific terminal are being called and will be accepted by Postmaster Nat Shick until May 15.

Doug Thompson, veteran carrier, now handles the route, which has the heaviest run of any in Howard county.

Eighty-five submitted bids recently when the route between the postoffice and airport was advertised. While all bids were conservative, a few were ridiculously low.

Postal authorities here were mailed eight application blanks. After requesting a hundred additional ones, they were supplied with ten more.

3.2 Beer Test Case Prepared In Tarrant

FORT WORTH (UP)—District attorneys are preparing Tarrant county's first test case on the legality of 3.2 beer sold here.

Les Copeland, arrested after a raid which netted several bottles of beer brewed in New Orleans, was charged under the Dean Law, the state's prohibition statute.

W. P. McLean, Jr., Copeland's attorney, said he would defend his client on two grounds: first, raising policemen had no search warrant; second, Congress has held 3.2 beer is not intoxicating.

Under The Dome At Austin

By Gordon K. Shearer

By GORDON K. SHEARER

AUSTIN (UPI)—A small news item from Washington recently carried great political significance for Texas.

The item was a mere announcement that Congressman-at-Large Joe Bailey, Jr., of Dallas, would not be a candidate for the new Dallas county district against Congressman Hatton Sumners, a fellow townsmen.

Those who remember the enthusiasm with which the junior Bailey was received on the stump in Texas last summer, at once began to figure on what side he may run for.

Suppose he should announce for the United States senate against Morris Sheppard. Suppose he should enter the race for governor. Either move would cause some quick readjustment of the prospects.

Bailey's entry into either race might also determine Attorney General James V. Allred's decision on what office he will next seek. Allred, with his big anti-trust suit against major oil companies still pending, would like to finish up that bit of business. It may not be over when the governorship race gets under way. He probably will be free for the next senatorial race. — But with Bailey and Allred both in that race it would likely make it a cinch for Sheppard.

That Allred is being figured on by politicians as a likely entry in the governor's race is only too apparent.

When Rep. Sarah Hughes of Dallas, referred to him in the house of representatives as "the next governor of Texas" friends of Speaker Coke Stevenson were quick to come out with a statement that Stevenson will be an announced candidate.

Stevenson, canny as he is witty, merely looked wise.

The personal and political strength of former Governor James E. Ferguson was exerted to elect Stevenson speaker. Stevenson had not been a Ferguson stalwart, in fact, he had scratched that name. But Stevenson was preferred to Rep. A. P. Johnson, whose admiration of Governor Ross Sterling approached close to hero-worship.

With Bailey and Stevenson both in the governor race, the Ferguson forces would split. Ballo was a law partner of the late Luther Nichols, drafter of the Ferguson sales tax plan and counsel for Ferguson in political litigation.

In an event, the next gubernatorial race seems to be rounding into a shape with no room for Mrs. Ferguson in it. Indications point to there being several such outstanding candidates, that there will not again be an opportunity for the Ferguson "vest pocket vote" to slip Mrs. Ferguson into second place for a run-off.

The entry of Congressman Bailey into the race for the United States senate would be more interesting. Senator Morris Sheppard's term expires in 1937.

Sheppard succeeded Bailey's father in the place when the latter resigned and was not a candidate. In his recent campaign speeches, Joe Bailey, Jr., expressed the hope he might follow the principles and views of his father.

"I can't hope to match them," he said.

The man who runs against Senator Sheppard is not going to have an easy time of it. Despite the present trend away from prohibition, public feeling has a habit of swinging like a pendulum.

If the regulated liquor traffic fails to show a big improvement over the speak-easy type of thirteenth-queching by the summer of 1936, when the senatorial campaign is on public opinion may have swung back stronger than ever to prohibition.

Senator Sheppard, too, has for 20 years been looking after matters for Texas constituents, whether they were political friends or foes. Many times when all other means failed to untangle Washington red tape, the Texarkana senator got results. Twenty years of that sort of service builds up a friendship that will stand him in good stead.

Sam Johnson, motor division of the state railroad commission, has a son, Lyndon B. Johnson, who is speaker of the "Little Congress," composed of secretaries to senators and congressmen.

Lyndon Johnson is secretary to Rep. Richard Kleberg of the 14th Texas district.

In honor of his fellow-Texasian's election, Vice President Garner presented the speaker of the "Little Congress" a gavel made from a tree planted by Sam Houston.

With practical assurance that Speaker Coke Stevenson of the Texas house will be in the race for governor next year, Albert G. Walker, of Vernon, is being put forward as a candidate for speaker of the 44th legislature. His important bill of the present session was one providing penalties for violation of oil regulations.

Walker, born near Mineral Wells, has lived also at Denton and Cisco.

A recent visit of former Governor Ross B. Sterling to Austin led a reported "political conference."

First it was reported he conferred with former Governor Dan Moody, then that he had conferred with Attorney General James V. Allred. It developed neither Moody nor Allred had conferred with Sterling, so the "conference" was a one-man affair.

MONTGOMERY WARD

DARLING FOOL

MEAN HERE TODAY

MONNIE O'DARE, who up to a few days ago in Belvedere, a small town, helps to support her mother, her younger sister, Kay, and her brother, MARR. She goes to the aid of her older brother, BILL, who is in a garage, and CHARLES KUSTACE, handsome mechanic in town, because her friend, JAY GARDNER, who says he is in love with Monnie, neglects her and Monnie's friend, SANDRA LAWRENCE, a girl who has pretended to be her friend, is trying to get Dan away from her. Monnie learns BILL plans to marry ANNE GILLEN, a cheap, good-natured sort of girl, as soon as she gets her divorce. Dan stops in to see Monnie at the store but she is cool to him. Kay is discontented in Belvedere and Monnie worries about her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER VIII

Monnie made herself proud and cool, answering him. "Yes?" she said. Dan's voice over the wire sounded as if he were laughing. "Monnie, listen, I was in such a rush today, I wanted to talk to you but you know how Mother is. She won't wait—"

He paused, evidently waiting for encouragement. Monnie felt a new sense which somehow annoyed her. She did not want to be in a hurry. After a few seconds he went on again. "How about tonight? We could drive out some place. It's better than the hinges out here at the club, but it will cost by 7. We could take a picnic basket, go out on the River Road—"

Every pulse in the girl's slim young body was hammering. Every nerve seemed to accept the invitation. But pride held her back. Coolly she said, "In a way but I have another engagement."

It cost her a great deal to say that. It was not true. She had nothing on earth to do that evening but it was time Dan Cardigan was taught a lesson. Time he knew that he could not have Monnie O'Dare's company for the mere snatching of his fingers—

"Oh, I see," Dan sounded flat, crestfallen. Monnie exulted in her triumph. But after she had hung up the receiver, after she had gone quietly back to finish her luncheon she felt a little reaction.

"What did he want?" Mrs. O'Dare asked nervously. Her policy in all her children's affairs was one of "hands off" whenever possible. But she could not help noticing the change that had come over Monnie since Dan Cardigan's return. With resentment and anger foreign to her quiet nature she now regarded the Cardigans. Wasn't Monnie, who was lovely and gracious enough to catch the attention of a prince, quite good enough for young Dan Cardigan? Mrs. O'Dare had lived in Belvedere all her life. She knew, with bitterness and a little sardonic amusement, the right rules that govern small town society. She knew Monnie "didn't belong" now that she worked in Mr. Vernon's drug store. The Cardigans would look higher than the little cottage on Denny street when they put the accolade of their approval on a bride for Dan.

"Just asking me to drive out with him tonight for a picnic supper," Monnie returned in an indifferent tone. "I told him I was busy."

"Monnie, I forgot to tell you," her mother cried with animation. "Mr. Eustace stopped in this morning to ask if you and Kay would have dinner with him tomorrow night. He included me, too, but I told him I'd rather not come. You young people can have a better time by yourselves. He said he was making some other plans. I don't know who—"

"That was foolish of you. He asked you because he wanted you," Monnie told her. Somehow this message took the sting out of Dan's half-hearted invitation. Charles Eustace, who was cultivated and rich and handsome, didn't mind letting the whole world know he was friendly with the O'Dares, even if they were poor and lived in a shabby little house on the wrong side of town.

"He's nice," Mrs. O'Dare said. "Kay will be wild with joy when I tell her. Poor child, she hasn't had much fun lately! And I keep worrying lest she get so bored with dullness that she'll join that wild crowd in town. Mrs. Merwin was telling me they had to give the Young People's Society down at the Fourth street church a roof talking to some of the boys brought figures to the last meeting. The janitor found the bottles and morning when he was sweeping up."

"Imagine not being able to be sure of those infants at church meetings!" cried Monnie, "trick!" But Kay didn't go last time she said she was tired of all that crowd. They were too slow."

"That," contributed Mrs. O'Dare, "was the night she spent with Chariss Briggs. Her father and mother went to High Springs. Remember?"

Monnie was sitting on her hat before the mirror, only half attending to the conversation. But at Chariss's name something flashed in her brain. A scrap of gossip which had drifted to her ears in the store. Two old women, their heads together, muttering:—

"—that Risby Briggs. She's a trial to her parents and no two ways about it. Gallivanting around with travelin' men down at the hotel—"

She allowed nothing of the sudden consternation she felt to show in her face. These terrible old babblers talked about everybody, anyhow! It didn't mean a thing, the fact that they gossiped about Chariss who was fat-pussy and red-haired and had a caddy. Kissable face. Only Monnie did wish she knew more about Kay's activities outside the home. Kay was mysterious about her affairs, sultry when questioned. It was impossible for Monnie, working as she did during the day, tired at night, to keep track of her.

"Let me alone, won't you?" Kay would say, rather sullenly, when questioned. "You never want me to have any fun. Might as well be buried alive—"

Monnie kissed her mother and hurried out. She looked fresh and charming in her thin yellow frock with the brown straw hat. No one would have guessed that she carried with her a burden of worry too great for her 20 years.

"I wish," she cried to herself passionately, hurrying down Denny street, "I wish Father were here—"

She wasn't old enough or wise enough to settle all these problems. Bill, who might have helped, was immersed in his own affairs. That, too, Monnie had to keep from her mother's ears. Bill, 22, the head of the family really, was in love with a married woman whose husband was about to get a divorce.

Resolutely she put this thought from her.

It was later the same day that Sandra ran in to see her. Sandra, very crisp and fresh and fragrant in embroidered hat and shimmering white, with an incense hat trimmed with field flowers. Monnie was hot and tired—it was at 5 o'clock—her frock which had seemed so cool and immaculate a few hours earlier was now wilted.

Sandra's tone was light and confidential. Demanding a huge jar of the special bath salts Mr. Vernon always ordered for her, she leaned over the counter, whispering, "My dear, I've such heaps to tell you!"

Monnie pushed back the damp bronze ringlets clustering around her forehead and tried to smile. It was a sorry attempt. She felt out of sorts, angry, suspicious. Hadn't Sandra been playing tennis with Dan at the Country Club only a short time before; hadn't she lunched with him? A wave of furious jealousy and resentment swept over her but she forced her tone to be calm and dispassionate.

"Have you? Let's it a frightful day, I'm perishing—"

Sandra widened her eyes and flicked her lashes downward in a way she had.

"I saw—guess who?—today," she murmured importantly.

Coolly Monnie said, "I know, Dan. He told me."

Something very like annoyance crept into Sandra's homely expression. With an instant flash of precedence Monnie said to herself that Sandra had wanted to make her jealous.

"She's pretending when she says she's my friend," thought the younger girl bitterly. The knowledge made her cold and forbore. She hadn't many friends. She was too busy and too poor to make them—and she had counted on Sandra. Last winter the other girl, rich and easy and cultivated, had made things pleasant for her, had lent her books and invited her for Sunday night suppers. Now everything seemed changed.

Sandra said importantly, "My dear, we talked about you!"

"Did you, indeed?" Monnie hated herself when that sarcastic note crept into her voice but she could not keep it out.

"Danny's such a darling," the other continued, lowering her tone so that Mrs. Anstie Cory who had come in and was pottering around among the toothbrushes, should not overhear her. "He's honestly fond of you, Monnie."

Mrs. Anstie came up at that moment with the toothbrush she had selected. She peered near-sightedly at Monnie.

"What's this I hear," she cried cheerily, "about your young sister leaving us and going to New York?"

"It's news to me," Monnie told her. "What was Kay planning now?" (To Be Continued)

care for Dan. Of course we do! For an instant Sandra stopped her white, beautifully measured head over the other's and Monnie was conscious of the contrast. She had helped Mr. Vernon open a packing case that afternoon and had broken a nail. She felt gauche and grimy beside the other girl's perfection.

"When Dan telephoned me after lunch," she told Sandra, "and asked me to go out with him tonight I refused."

"My dear, you did?" Sandra quite glowed. "I think you were perfectly right. I think that's just the medicine he needs. He'll begin to realize how spoiled he is. You've been too sweet with him always—let him treat you just as he liked and then let him come around—"

Sandra seemed quite excited. Her voice raved on, with heat. "Why, everyone has been talking about it. I've told a dozen people myself. Take my word for it, Monnie. O'Dare doesn't care that for Dan. She's got heaps of young men."

Perhaps, Monnie thought, after she had wrapped Sandra's package and said good-by to her, she outjudged her friend. Perhaps Sandra was really and truly her champion. "It's my nasty, suspicious nature, I guess," she thought ruefully. "It's natural for Dan to see a lot of her. They belong in the same set—I don't. Perhaps Sandra is right, and a dose of his own medicine will bring Dan around."

Mrs. Anstie came up at that moment with the toothbrush she had selected. She peered near-sightedly at Monnie.

"What's this I hear," she cried cheerily, "about your young sister leaving us and going to New York?"

"It's news to me," Monnie told her. "What was Kay planning now?" (To Be Continued)

Army
A certain woman secretary to a Democratic congressional leader is one of the leading lobbyists against the army cut.
She is the wife of an army aviator and does not care for the bill reducing flight pay and the furloughing of officers at half pay. She is telling all and sundry the injustices of the legislation but can not win over her own congressman. He will vote for the bill.

The boys in the know are pessimistic about the United States Chamber of Commerce following Mr. Roosevelt's advice and increasing salaries.
Some industrialists in the audience privately suggested it is too early to act yet. They thought if prices continued to improve during the next thirty to sixty days they might do something along that line.
Debts
It is whispered on the best authority that the confidential figures of the Budget Bureau originally failed to include the June 15 War Debt payments. Our officials apparently thought they would not receive the money.
All that was changed just before Premier MacDonald arrived. Budget calculations since then have been made with the expectation that the payments will be received. Lord Snowden, former Chancellor, is understood to have advised Loom was manufactured by carpenters in Lubbock with the exception of the harness, reed and shuttle and these may be had for a total of about $10. The maximum cost of the loom complete is $45 and this figure may be reduced materially if one does his own work and utilizes materials on hand.

With the simple, easily constructed loom the average person may learn to weave his own cloth. Dr. Kapp proposes that the college will give instructions for installing the loom and also for operating it. It is suggested that a loom might be installed by community on a co-operative basis and some one or two learn to operate it.
To give some idea of the practical operation and efficiency of this hand loom, a skilled student is able to weave a yard an hour, or enough cloth in a day to make a suit or overcoat. If one does not want to write him, he had crated 20 yards of the cloth woven in the Tech textile department for his own use.

C. C. "I hope West Texas will stay in the fight for 20 years if it is necessary to get justice for these farmers," said Mr. Stapleton.

Panhandle May Soon Realize Dream Of Opening Palo Duro State Park
AMARILLO—The Panhandle's dream for a quarter of a century—the opening of a great scenic playground in famous Palo Duro Canyon, is near realization, in the opinion of local committees and state officials.
Developments looking to the establishment of a state park in the Canyon, with a 30-mile highway down the very heart of the stupendous gorge, have been rapid during the past 10 days, with the organization of Panhandle citizens from seven counties to secure right-of-way and to assist state officials in getting work started in the immediate future on actual improvements.
D. E. Colp, chairman of the Texas Park Boards and John W. Pritchett of the state board of water engineers, spent five days in Amarillo in reviewing the Canyon and in conference with delegations from the various committees interested in the project. Yankees Drop Into Tie With Indian Team

Gomez Chased Early; Old Sam Jones Holds Leaders Under Control

CHICAGO—The New York Yankees, leaders in the American league race since the opening day, Wednesday dropped into a tie with the Cleveland Indians as the Chicago White Sox chased Lefty Gomez from the mound in less than two innings and then went on to a 10-2 victory over the world champions.

The Sox found Gomez and his successors, MacFayden and Jablonowski, for fourteen hits while Sam Jones, who'll soon be 41 years old, held the Yanks to six scattered blows for his third victory of the season.

The Yankees had visions of being shut out for the first time in 233 games as Jones shut them out with two hits in the first five frames. In the sixth, however, passes to Byrd and Gehrig and Chapman's single, after two were out, kept the champions' record intact.

DETROIT—The Philadelphia Athletics neared the 500 mark in the standings Wednesday by winning both engagements of a double-header with Detroit, 3 to 2 and 6-4.

While the Tigers outthrew the Athletics 8-5 in the opener, the Macks bunched their hits, and Marberry added the necessary walks for the decision. Merritt Cain worked throughout the first game, while Marberry gave way to Whitlow Wyatt at the start of the eighth inning for the A's was the high spot of the game.

ST. LOUIS—The St. Louis Browns pounded Whitehill for four hits, including two doubles, to score five runs in the eighth inning and shutout the Washington Senators Wednesday, 5-0. Two walks and Menush's error also contributed to the scoring. Whitehill allowed only two hits in the first seven innings.

Midland And Lamesa Lead Golf League

MIDLAND—Midland and Lamesa jointly hold the top rung of the Kat Klaw Golf league, based on cards received by James P. Harrison, secretary of the league.

Although Lamesa lost to Seminole, that club's 18 points were enough to balance with Midland's 20 points.

The complete results of Sunday matches follow:
Hobbs 20, Midland 20.
Big Spring 20, Stanton 20.
Seminole 22, Lamesa 18.

This leaves the following tabulation of points won by the six teams:
Midland 44
Lamesa 44
Big Spring 36
Hobbs 36
Seminole 26
Stanton 24

Midland and Hobbs are the only clubs not to have lost a match, having only a tie to offset their records.

Error Wins For Dallas

Tulsa Loses To Missions; Oklahoma City, Pirates Win

(By the Associated Press)
DALLAS—Binder's error in the ninth on Pitcher Salveson's grounder that allowed Lou Brower to score from second, gave Dallas a 1 to 0 victory over the Houston Buffaloes. It was the opening game of the series and developed into a pitching duel between Mike Cvegeros of Houston and Salveson, each allowing six hits.

Binder came in fast to field Salveson's grounder with two out. He over-ran the ball and in trying to reverse and pick it up, fell and Brower rounded third and galloped home with the only run. Both clubs played heads-up baseball and both pitchers were backed by excellent support.

Reds Capture Double Bill

Chuck Klein's Best To Stave Off Defeat Is Not Enough

PHILADELPHIA—The Cincinnati Reds balanced their won and lost columns Wednesday as they batted out a double victory over the tail-end Phillies. The scores were 10 to 7 and 4 to 3.

Chuck Klein, slugging right fielder of the Phillies, did his best to stave off defeat, hitting three homers in the two games. He cracked out two of them in the curtain raiser to account for five runs and drove in two tallies in the nightcap with the other circuit hit. The three boosted his total for the season to six.
