Ionians Appear April 26 In Last Artist Number

Replacing the cancelled appearance of Mme. Matzner, contralto, members of the Ionian quartet will give a concert in the auditorium of the Lubbock High school the night of April 26 as the last number of Texas Tech's current artist course.

The quartet, composed of Harold Dearborn, first tenor, Albert Barber, second tenor, Baldwin Allan-Alen, baritone, and Eldredh Martin, bass, will begin their program at 8:15 next Thursday night.

High praise is given the singers in press clippings. Of them the New York Sun says: "A little perhaps more appropriate for the new ensemble would be that of the American Singers. The excellent taste and variety of their program is in part very similar to that of their English colleagues, an evident sympathy and understanding based on long and intricate rehearsal."

An anti-pan society has been organized by students at the Stevens Institute of Technology to deal with advocates of "the lowest form of humor."

Annual Show Of Engineers Sets A Record

An increased attendance of 613 people was the record set by the sixth annual Engineers' show this year despite the fact that the lights were out at 8:45 Friday night and that a sandstorm raged Saturday night.

Souvenirs from the show were small shields with Texas Technological college woven on them from the textile department, and letter openers and small gears from the mechanical engineering shops.

The Junior Engineering club from Amarillo, headed by its president, Richard Siebel, and sponsor, Waid S. Willis, spent two days in Lubbock for the express purpose of attending the show.

Texas Tech Mourns For Two Pneumonia Victims

Bodies of Hitchcock and Spalding Shipped To Homes For Final Interment After Services

Body of Matthew Hitchcock, 23-year old Matador athlete, was sent to his home in Lexington, Texas, for burial, last Thursday night. Final tribute was paid by Texas Tech students and Lubbock townspeople at services held in the First Presbyterian church at 7:30 p. m. Thursday.

Hitchcock, active in Tech athletics, was a second victim of pneumonia to die within twelve hours in a local sanitarium. Funeral for the star football player was held in Lexington Saturday morning.

Active pallbearers were: Preston Conner, George Townsend, Melvin Schumperl, Carl Schwalbe, T. H. Stewart, and Warren Butler. Honorary pallbearers were: A. Q. Evans, Eldon Rawlings, Tony Ulrich, Gordon Burton, Phil McKee and Henry Clark.

Funeral of Harold Spalding, 22-year-old student, was conducted at 5:30 p. m. Thursday in the First Methodist church by Rev. Marshall Rhew, assistant pastor. Burial was at the family home in Marshall, Texas.

After a brief illness of pneumonia, Spalding died at a Lubbock sanitarium Wednesday at 4:30 p. m. His mother, who had been called when he became sick, was at the bedside of her son at the time of his death.

Those surviving besides his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Spalding, are; a brother Carl, of Marshall, and two sisters, Ruth, of Weaver, N. C., and Mrs. Delong, Chicago.

Scribes From Three States Gather Here

Twelve Colleges Will Be Represented In Seventh Annual Meet Of Group

Visiting Delegates Will Be Entertained With Dance, Barbecue And Banquets

With registration with registration tomorrow morning at 8:30, delegates, college professors, and newspapermen from the Southwest will convene here for the two-day session of the seventh annual Southwestern Journalism congress.

From registration the journalists will go immediately to the convention program. With pauses for entertainment at lunch and in the evening, the delegates will spend both days attending addresses and round table discussions planned for them. Climaxing the conference will be a dinner-dance at the Hilton hotel Saturday evening.

With prominent journalists from six states scheduled to speak, the program has been worked out by Cecil Horne, head of Texas Journalism department and president for the congress. Twelve colleges in Texas, Oklahoma, and Louisiana will send representatives to the congress.

In addition, other institutions in this section of the country have been invited to send delegates. Entertainment for the visitors will include separate luncheons Friday for student delegates and faculty members, a faculty tea at 5 that afternoon in the home of Dr. C. L. Harnett, and a barbecue on the south lawn of the Administration building, a Mexican feast which will be the form taken by the dinner-dance finale Saturday evening.

Harben Will Speak Speakers on Friday morning's session will be Sam P. Harben, secretary of the Texas Press association, whose subject will be "If I Were Graduating from a School of Journalism"; Arthur L. Crossman, head of the University of Colorado department of journalism, speaking on "Freedom of the Press in a Critical Age"; and J. S. Smyth, editor of the Seary County Times-Snyder, discussing "Opportunities in Country Journalism."

In the afternoon, Harry Montgomery, Associated Press bureau man of Amarillo and first editor of the Toreador will speak on "The Associated Press Feature Service." Other speakers and their subjects will be Eugene Butler, editor of The Progressive Farmer, Dallas, "The Farm Magazine as an Educational Factor in Rural Life"; R. G. Spry and Young Jess Willard, One-Time Heavyweight Champ, Favors Baer Among Boxer Crop; Referees Here

By JIM LINDSEY Ass't. Sports Editor

Looking fully ten years younger than some men his own age who grouped around him and told him how they had followed his every move in days gone by—the Jack Johnson fight of the Dempsey-Jess Willard straddled the divan arm that miraculously failed to collapse under his huge bulk and chatted gaily, like an enthusiastic boy, with the large group of admirers who gathered in the Auditorium dressing room prior to Lubbock's rousing show Wednesday night.

country is not a disagreeable job to him after two weeks in this capacity.

They're Still Good Old Days "These wrestlers get tough sometimes, but tussling with them reminds me of the good old days when I swung the gloves," the man mountain grinned when questioned about his liking for the mat game.

And then the first thing I knew I caught a hard right on the chin. I was groggy and shaking my head did me no good. My right eye was closed and I couldn't go on. It was all over so quickly."

That is Honest Jess' own story of the fight that made Jack Dempsey the champion of the world. Jess doesn't think much of the man mountain from Italy and states that "if Baer doesn't get too cocky, he can beat Carnera. 'I could whip Carnera back when I was champion,' Willard said as the dark mop of hair on his big head shook with the emphasis of the words. 'He is just a big palooka who doesn't know anything about boxing.'"

Social Variety For Journalists; Club Girls Choose Sponsors

Styles Escape Consideration In Hair Dress; 'Suit To Your Head' Is Advice

This charming coiffure worn by Elizabeth Young, movie actress, would flatter any girl who has hair that is straight on top and curly at the ends

By LORENE CHILDERS
Society Editor

Styles are changing and conventions escape when the present day hair dress is considered. There was a time when the conventional question concerning hair dress was "Keep it long, or bob it?" Today, this question is never given consideration. Suit your hairdress to your head and to your personality. The present day trend is on the "up and up." Hair is worn off the nape of the neck in tight curls. The hair may be curled to the crown of the head if desired. Those girls whom straight hair flatters are becoming conscious of this and are beginning to wear their hair straight with only a slight wave on one side of the head, ending it in small curls. Others, more extreme, wear their hair brushed straight and done in a knot on the back of the head or braided and wrapped around the head. Miss Elizabeth Young, featured in the above picture, prescribes a charming coiffure to be worn before obtaining a new permanent. For this arrangement, the hair is parted in the middle and brushed backward from the face. Then, just above each ear, there is a wide, soft wave. The ends are curled around the ears and across the back of the neck. For evening a jeweled clip behind each ear or a fresh flower pinned in the center of the back vary such a coiffure.

Luncheons And Spanish Fiesta Are Scheduled

Judge And Mrs. Bledsoe Will Entertain Visitors At Barbecue

When newspaper people get together, they do something besides talk shop.

For the Southwestern Journalism congress which begins here tomorrow morning, heads of the various committees have worked out phases of entertainment to add variety to the program and give the newspaper guests, even though they are from the eleven leading colleges in the South, something worthwhile and entertaining to do.

Beginning tomorrow at noon, the student guests will attend a luncheon at the college bookstore lunchroom. The faculty guests will attend a luncheon and round table discussion in the Chimayo room of the Hilton hotel.

Judge and Mrs. W. H. Bledsoe are entertaining the congress with a chuck-wagon barbecue supper Friday evening. The meal, consisting of pinto beans, barbecued beef and pork, coffee, buns, and pickles will be eaten on the lawn south of the administration building. It will be served at six o'clock.

Saturday afternoon there will be a talk for visiting speakers, their wives, and members of the congress and their wives at the home of President and Mrs. Bradford Knapp.

Climaxing the two days of serious talk spiced with live entertainment will be a Spanish fiesta dinner-dance in the ballroom of the Hilton hotel. The ball room will be decorated in the Spanish theme. Spanish songs will be sung, and several Spanish dances will be featured. Plate favors will be Mexican pottery pieces and packages of Mexican cigarettes.

The fiesta concludes the congress.

Tech Home Ec Club Has Open House

Five hundred Home Economics club members from nearby towns visited the Home Economics building and Home Management house on the Tech campus when the Tech Home Economics club sponsored an open house Friday afternoon.

Many Lubbock people were visitors also, Dean Margaret Weeks said. Business and professional women toured the two buildings Saturday.

Miss Rhea Merle Boyles, home economics teacher at Quanah, Texas, also visited the campus Saturday. Miss Boyles received her B. S. degree in home economics at Tech in 1932.

Mrs. J. G. Allen Is Elected At Joint Meeting

Semi-Formal Buffet Supper For Social Clubs Is Held At Hilton For Organizing

Mrs. James G. Allen was nominated and elected by acclamation as sponsor of the organization of Inter-club girls last Wednesday evening when all members of the five girls social clubs on the campus met at a joint buffet supper in the ball room of the Hilton hotel. The affair was semi-formal.

This is the first time such an organization has been attempted, Miss Rosemary Leaverton, chairman of the general arrangements committee, stated. The purpose of such an organization is to bring members of the five clubs closer together and promote more intimate friendships among the members.

After the supper, which was eaten at card tables, Miss Pauline Yeager, chairman of the table committee, proposed that government of the council remain in the hands of the five presidents of the clubs next year.

This proposal was accepted and

Double Key Club Is To Honor Senior Home Ecs

Senior home economics students will be honored at a party to be given by the Double Key, home economics honor society, the night of April 25 at the Home Management house. Members of the home economics faculty will be guests. Double Key members are: Mary Leidigh, president; Evaughn Clack, secretary-treasurer; Eloise Lancaster, Maurine Havis, Gertrude Samson, Emily Davis, and Dean Margaret W. Weeks, Miss Mabel Erwin, Miss Harriet Tilden, and Miss Jonnie McCrery, of the home economics faculty.

It was decided to let the council of the five presidents decide on the number of social affairs to be had next year and who would preside as president of that affair. Mrs. Allen would be sponsor and chief advisor of this group. This organization is closely connected to the Inter-club council since its governing body is made up of the five presidents of the clubs and has club representatives to the council as assistants to the five presidents.

Ninety club girls attended the affair last Wednesday evening. It took the place of club meetings.

Success Tale Tells Origin Of Toreador

This is a success story. It recounts the professional rise of a newspaper man. But he's not just an ordinary member of the "fourth estate." Rather he is the first student ever to seek enrollment in Tech when it was being established nine years ago. And he was founder and first editor of the Toreador.

Harry Montgomery

When Texas Tech was still in its nebulous dream state, Montgomery was the first prospective student to accost the late P. W. Horn, first president of this college, for complete information concerning this college.

Broadened Toreador Plans
With John Forkner, now manager of the McCormick Advertising Bureau in Amarillo, the former Toreador editor broadened to Horn plans for publication of a weekly student newspaper, since a complete organization provided for filling the offices of editor and business manager of the paper. Both hailed from Memphis, where they had had several years experience in the newspaper game. Forkner later became first business manager of this paper.

Another first in this chronicle is Montgomery's first meeting with the former Miss Pauline Trippett. A transfer to Tech from Trinity university, Miss Trippett was also a member of this institution's first student body. She was likewise the first student here to complete work for award of a degree. Following a two-year stay at Tech, she became Mrs. Montgomery.

Outstanding As Scholar
But back to Mr. Montgomery. With the approval of the Tech president, he and Forkner prepared and issued the first edition of the Toreador. They continued to publish the paper during the college's first year. Meanwhile each enrolled for a full-time schedule of study.

At the same time Montgomery was outstanding in debate and other student activities. Registered most of the time for six or more full courses, he likewise stood out as a scholar. With the double majors of history and English, the newspaperman consistently had grades of "A" in all his studies.

Also as a part of his work Montgomery worked regularly for the Lubbock Avalanche and the Lubbock Journal. He was employed as a linotype operator on both newspapers and also was an advertising salesman for the Journal. And in his second year here, the founder of the Toreador served as publicity director for Tech, a post now held by Cecil Horne, head professor of journalism.

Following his two years in this college, Montgomery was employed by the Amarillo News and Globe. There, after several years he was chosen by Associated Press officials to conduct the news bureau which they were establishing. He fills that position capably today.

Days When Unusual Students Burned The Midnight Tallow Are Recalled By Home Ec Museum Collection

By RUTH HURMENCE

Days when unusual students burned the midnight tallow instead of the midnight oil or electricity are recalled by a museum collection started recently by the Home Economics division. Old pieces, used in house-keeping and dress-making, are on display in the first floor hall of the Home Economics building.

Crude candle molds of the late eighteenth century and a dipper for melting and pouring the tallow are among the oldest pieces. It used to be a regular task for the mother of the family to melt the tallow and pour it into the high molds, in which wicks had been suspended. Today someone just puts in a new light bulb when the light fails.

Flinting Irons Once Used
And most of the coeds who wear fluted collars nowadays don't even know that this type of pleating is called fluting. But their great-grandmothers did their own fluting with two corrugated metal irons! These were heated, the material was placed between them and the top iron pressed down.

And when there was any pinking to be done on the seams to keep them from raveling, these same great-grandmothers used pinking irons instead of a machine. This iron, notched at one end, was placed against the material on a wooden block. A blow of the hammer and the pinking was done.

"Sewing Bird"
A fluting iron and two pinking irons of the nineties are a part of the collection on display.

Those who have watched their mothers or grandmothers sew and have seen them pin the goods to their dresses at the knee to hold it tight will appreciate the "sewing bird," another of the museum pieces. This is a complex little instrument which old-fashioned ladies fastened to a convenient table to hold their hemming.

The collection also has a lovely spool-holder and pin cushions of spool-holder and pin cushion of carved and painted ivory. Shaped like salt shakers, they came from England and date back to the eighteenth century. A mother of pearl reel for winding embroidery thread looks old-fashioned but very practical.

Samplers Included
Book marks and samplers of long ago are also on display. Some of the samplers are designed quaintly with names, numbers, and inscriptions such as: "For My Dear Mother" and "Sweet Home Adieu."

Other pieces include volumes of Peterson's magazine, Godey's Lady book, old books, colored ribbons of 1850, and a satin flowered ribbon over 100 years old.

Six pieces of exquisite handmade lace, some of it Venetian needle point, have been loaned and are on exhibit in a separate show case.

The collection was started by Miss Mabel Erwin, head of the clothing department, who owns some of the pieces herself. The Home Economics division will appreciate any gifts or loans of similar museum pieces, Miss Erwin said.

Annual Play To Be May 5

Will Be Sponsored By WAA Organization; All Kinds Of Girls Sports Offered

At a WAA meeting held Monday night, April 16, Miss Johnnie Gilkerson discussed plans for the annual college play-day to be held May 5 this year. Sports of all kinds will be offered in which all college girls and Lubbock high school girls will be invited to participate. WAA members who are not in school will be invited to come and bring groups of girls to enter the games.

Plans for the event will be arranged by a committee composed of Lois Spraggins, Essie Lee Guthrie, Ponce Reeves, Doris Hopping, Lucille Hall, Miriam Tatum, Floyce Snodgrass, and Francis Parkinson, all active WAA members. The committee will be aided by Miss Gilkerson and Miss Zella Reigel, sponsors of the organization, Jimmie Hash and all WAA members in Tech.

Darkness Halts Tennis Contest

Darkness halted the intercollegiate tennis meet between the Matadors and McMurry last Thursday on the local court with the visiting team leading, three to two. The second doubles match would have decided the issue.

Larry Taylor, seeded no. 1 on the Matador team, lost a fast match to "Sloppy" Smith of the Indians in the initial contest, 8-10, 6-4, 7-5. Francis Smith, tricky racket wielder, defeated Sam Herget, 8-10, 6-4, 10-8.

Polk Robison, captain of the Tech netmen, took Mack Boyer of the Indians into camp, 6-3, 6-3, and Henry Roberts lost to Harless, of the invaders, 10-8, 5-7, 15-13.

Taylor and Herget teamed together in defeating the Smith brothers in the first double set, 10-8, 4-6, 12-10. The other doubles match was deuced at 8-8 in the first set when darkness settled on the Tech courts to stop the contest.

Captain Robison and his Matadors will journey to Abilene to conclude the matches this week. The local contestants will also encounter Simmons of Abilene Christian while in Abilene.

Home Ecs Have Musical Program Tuesday Night

"Music in the Home" was the subject of a program given at a meeting of the Home Economics club Tuesday night at 7 o'clock in the tearoom of the Home Economics building. Miss Myrtle Dunn was in charge of the program.

Following a talk by Miss Dunn on "Place of Music in the Home," Charles Fike played a piano solo. Verlena Stringer and Mila Eggleston sang "The Letter" duet by Mozart. Idell Bacon played a piano solo, and the string quartet played Haydn's Minuet.

Members of the quartet are: Woodrow Montgomery, first violin; Mary Wilson, second violin; Lyle Donaldson, viola; and Beulah Dunn, cello.

Campus Groups Elect Officers

New officers for the YWCA and YMCA, two young students Christian organizations of the campus, were elected at their regular meetings last week.

Officers for the YWCA are Elizabeth Conner, president; Inez Hensley, vice-president; May Tom Howell, secretary; and Elizabeth Montfort, treasurer. All are of Lubbock.

New officers for the YMCA are Melvin Schumpert, president; Portales; John C. Emmett, vice-president; Roswell; and R. E. Old, secretary, Bonham.

The new officers will be installed this week-end at an outdoor meeting at Buffalo Springs.

Tech Aggie Profs Return Today From Dairy Show

Ray C. Mowery, associate professor of animal husbandry, and K. M. Renner of the dairy manufacturing department, will return today from Plainview where they had active parts in the Panhandle-Plains Dairy show.

Mowery was general superintendent of the show and had charge of the vocational dairy cattle and 4-H contests. Under the direction of Mr. Renner, the Texas Tech Dairy club had an exhibit of an educational nature at the show.

Habits that come from jangled nerves are a warning

Perhaps you don't bite your nails — but if you aren't the stolid, phlegmatic type, you probably have other nervous habits.

You may drum on your desk — chew your pencils — These and countless other seemingly unimportant nervous habits are a warning of jangled nerves. Why not play safe? Protect your nerves. Get enough sleep — fresh air — recreation. And make Camels your cigarette.

For Camel's costlier tobaccos never jangle your nerves — no matter how steadily you smoke.

COSTLIER TOBACCOS
Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS than any other popular brand of cigarettes!

Journalists Gather Here For Sessions

Speakers Here From Six States; Twelve Colleges Send Delegates To Convention

Rufus P. Higgs, president of the Texas Press association, will discuss "Present Day Problems of Newspaper Publishing," to begin the Saturday morning program. Other speakers in the morning will be John H. McGinnis, editor of The Dallas News book section, "Courage in Criticism"; Mr. Baldwin, of the United Press, "The Training of a Typical United Press Man"; and Wesley S. Izzard, managing editor of The Amarillo Globe, "The Part Promotion Plays in the Operation of the Modern Newspaper."

Osborn To Preside Faculty members from member colleges of the congress will meet Saturday afternoon for group discussion and their annual business meeting. Marvin G. Osborn, conference vice-president, and head of Louisiana State university's department of journalism, will preside.

Students will have separate discussion session and their business meeting to wind up the program. Speakers will be Miss Helen Zane Wortman, director of journalism, Baylor College for Women, on "Problems of Student Newspapers"; and Mr. Montgomery, of the Associated Press, on "Training for Associated Press Service."

While in Lubbock, all delegates to the convention will be housed in local homes.

Students Excused All general meetings for the journalism conference will be held in the auditorium of the Chemistry building, and Tech journalism students will be excused from all classes Friday and Saturday to attend the convention. Special exhibits, prepared by Prof. Willard J. Ridings, Texas Christian university, and Prof. R. A. Mills, will be on display in the rotunda of the Administration building.

Member schools of the Southwestern Journalism congress are: Baylor College for Women, Belton; Baylor university, Waco; College of Industrial Arts, Denton; Louisiana State University, Baton Rouge; Southern Methodist University, Dallas; Texas A. and M. college, College Station; Texas Christian university, Fort Worth; Texas Tech; Tulane university, New Orleans; Texas university, Austin; Trinity university, Waxahachie; and University of Oklahoma, Norman.

Artist Course Quartet

Here are members of the Ionian quartet, who will appear in Lubbock the night of April 26 on the last number of Tech's Artist Course. Their concert will be in the Lubbock High school auditorium at 8:15. Tickets to the appearance of Mme. Matzenauer, contralto, which was cancelled because of illness, will be accepted for the Ionians' program. Pictured above, left to right, are: Harold Dearborn, first tenor; Albert Barber, second tenor; Baldwin Allan-Allen, baritone; and Hildreth Martin, basso.

Jess Towers Over Visitors Jess, "five feet, eighteen inches in height," as he expressed it, towered over the group that assembled in the dressing room to greet him. He made Promoter Sled Allen, a fair-sized man in any gathering, appear a small boy. Willard has a carefree disposition, laughs freely, and strangers who have been in his presence only a few minutes feel as if they have known the ex-champ for years.

Present day heavies couldn't stand the grind of those long fights for they do not train, opines the former champ. Training was carried on for months in preparation for fights in the days of Willard's reign, instead of a few weeks.

Jack Johnson 'Best' Schmeling is a fighter who can "dish it out" but cannot take it is the estimation of Willard. "Jack Johnson was the best fighter that I met during my career. He had the Dempsey that I fought, 'clashed,' he said when an inquisitive onlooker chimed in during the discussion concerning the negro fighter.

In speaking of how the fighting game has declined since the days of Tex Rickard, the former king of heavyweights of the world stated that the depression had played a major role in the downfall.

"People have looked forward to a fight for months and have been disappointed. There is no big money in the racket as there used to be and this keeps many men from entering the boxing ranks. With Maxie Baer looming as the next champ and Jack Dempsey taking on the role of promoter, the good old days are destined to return again," Jess remarked as a broad smile covered his face that is marked with the scars of pugil-class at a special desk in the east wing of the Administration building. Quinian urges that class members make their reservations as early as possible in order to negotiate with railroad officials for transportation.

"No students except freshmen will be entitled to attend this year's picnic," stated the freshman late Tuesday night. Sponsors of the class are J. W. Jackson, professor of government, and A. B. Cunningham, of the English department.

istic warfare. Mantell Recalls Fight As Dutch Mantell told of the battle between Gunboat Smith and the "White Hope" in San Francisco 49 years ago, the one time Kansas farmer laughed with the words: "I was reckless and tough in those early days in slinging the leathers." Explaining his style in the opening years of his climb to the championship, Willard fought much after the method employed by "Wop" Chairmonte, New Mexico boxer. He would get in one corner and take a wide swing at the opponent. Jess was the third man in the ring at Sled Allen's mid-week rascals' show. He was accompanied to Lubbock by Mrs. Willard after appearing in Lawton, Oklahoma, Tuesday night.
