Feed Test To End Friday

Feeders' Day Program Set At U. S. Farm

Results Expected To Help Farmers Of Surrounding Counties

Can feeding out of cattle be made a profitable enterprise? For 180 days the United States experiment farm north of here has been conducting tests to answer this question. Friday, annual Feeders Day, information gained will be made public when farmers from this and surrounding counties gather to inspect the sixty heaves.

Since being placed on rations of home grown feed six months ago, the cattle and hogs have shown remarkable growth. Whether there will be a marked margin of profit will depend largely on the price of beef. It was understood. The cattle will be valued Friday morning and shipped to Fort Worth.

Rations, such only as the average farmer could supply, has consisted of ground and unground milo heads, threshed and ground and unground milo, red top fodder, meal, and a bit of limestone flour.

Cattle were weighed in on three successive days beginning Tuesday, Fred Keating, in charge of the farm, said Thursday afternoon data was being prepared.

Opening at 10 a. m. Friday the program will consist of inspection and valuation during the morning. Lunch will be typically western, consisting of beans, pickles, bread, onions, black coffee, and "Gentleman from Odessa."

J. M. Jones, connected with the extension service at A. & M. College at College Station, will take a feeding part of the program. Last year more than 200 attended the affair.

Program Announced For Annual Baccalaureate Service To Be Held Sunday Evening At Baptist Church

Program of the baccalaureate service honoring the graduating class of Big Spring high school, to be held Sunday evening beginning at 8:15 o'clock was announced Thursday by Supt. W. C. Blankenship. Rev. R. E. Day, pastor of the First Baptist church, will preach the baccalaureate sermon. Miss Helen Duley will play as the processional Largo (Handel). The congregation and high school glee club will sing the Doxology. The invocation will be led by Rev. S. J. Shettleworth, pastor of the First Christian church. Prayer response will be by the choral club singing "Make Us Sure Of Thee." The choral club will then sing a hymn "Guide Me 'O Thou Great Jehovah." Announcements will be made by Supt. Blankenship. Truett Grant, a member of the class, will sing "The Ninety And Nine." Following the offertory and scripture reading Carrie B. Adams will sing the anthem, "Unto The Hills." The choral club will accompany Miss Modesta Good in a solo. Rev. Shettleworth will offer the benediction. Postlude will be the hymn "I'll We Meet Again." Miss Duley will play the recessional. Mrs. Bruce Frazer is director of the choral club which will have such an important part in the service.

Farm Woman Guilty Of Killing Laborer On Her Place

LA GRANGE (AP)—Mrs. Marie Dach, 36, farm woman, was given a death verdict Thursday by a Fayette county jury on a charge of murder in the killing of Henry Stoever, a farm hand, last February 24. The state alleged Mrs. Dach shot Stoever while he slept.

Pecora Thrust To Forefront By Morgan Probe

(By Associated Press) The first public story of the operations of J. P. Morgan & Company, now being told in Washington focuses attention on Ferdinand Pecora. This 51-year-old son of an Italian immigrant is chief counsel for the senate banking committee in its inquiry into the marketing of securities. J. P. Morgan was called as a witness.

Amazed At His Knowledge

Some of the bankers, brokers and industrialists who have faced him have been amazed at his intimate knowledge of their affairs. Since his work with the banking committee began in the last session of Congress, his witnesses have included such men as Charles G. Dawes, former vice-president, and Owen D. Young.

Bigger Targets the Easier

"The bigger the target the easier it is to hit," is one of Pecora's sayings. "He is a hard, but fair," was the tribute paid him by one of the financiers who went through the questioning process.

Pecora was Born in Italy, but was Brought to America while he was in Infancy. As a Youth he wanted to Study for the Episcopal Priesthood. But he Couldn't Finance His Studies so he Took a Job in a Law Office. Today his Son is heading for the legal profession also.

Communities To North Get Good Soaking

.36 At Airport, .94 At Government Farm Here; Little Rain To West

Rain, long delayed and very urgently needed, finally arrived for Big Spring and most of the surrounding farming country Wednesday afternoon and night, and early Thursday. While precipitation recorded at the government weather bureau at the airport west of town totaled only .36 inch rainfall was considerably heavier in other localities. Most nearby farmers can now begin planting it was indicated. At the government farm north of town .94 inch fell.

North of town a good rain was received, covering the Knott community and continuing southward and eastward to Fairview, and north of Coahoma, where more than an inch of precipitation was reported. Rainfall south of Coahoma was light.

Ackerly had only a light shower and a stretch from two miles north of Lamesa got no rain, it was reported here.

Lamesa had a good rain, which spread north, northwest and east of that town, but did not benefit the communities west of there.

The weather bureau here reported that Big Spring was practically at the western edge of a rain belt which extended across the state eastward and northward, and on to the Atlantic seaboard in New England.

Shifting

The administration's private ideas about this vast National Economic Planning have recently undergone an unannounced change. The course of action being mapped out on the inside is considerably more moderate than the relief bills you have been reading about.

Reasons for the change are obvious. At first the college professors got their heads together and planned ways to take the economic situation by the horns. They wrote bills which lodged the greatest powers in the executive. One bill came after another. They all fit into a unified purpose. That purpose is to bring about National Economic Planning never before attempted in a Republic.

Since then the beginnings of recovery have been accomplished. Also the theorists have run against practical objections on every side.

What has happened backstage on the farm bill is a good example of the situation. Agriculture Secretary Wallace and Prof. Tugwell with the other professors devised an omnibus farm relief bill. It had all theories in it. They want to experiment with these theories, particularly the allotment plan.

George Peek, the new Farm administrator, was pushed into the scene by no less practical a non-theorist than Bernard Baruch. Peek believes he can get along without the allotment plan. He wants to try something else first. The White House has shown signs of sympathy for that idea.

In the end they will probably compromise. At any rate the Wallace-Tugwell-Eskel idea will be toned down considerably.

Time to Act

One of the commonest arguments advanced by the opponents of controlled inflation has been that the real difficulty under which we have been laboring is not that prices had fallen more than other prices, thus destroying the balance of our economic system. In objecting to an inflationary policy it was frequently argued that a general rise in the price level would not correct this trouble since, so it was said, the disparity among particular prices would still remain.

We now have a little experience by which to test this argument. Although there have been no actual inflationary measures yet put into effect, ever since March fourth it has been evident to many persons that some inflation was necessary and inevitable. Since the middle of April, when the gold embargo was proclaimed, it has been evident to every one that some inflation would be practiced. As a result the markets have anticipated such speculation the effects of an inflation which would reduce the value of the dollar in gold by something between 10 and 20 per cent. As a result there has been a marked rise in the general price level, and this rise has brought about a distinct economic improvement.

But when we examine this rise in prices we find that the prophecies have not been vindicated which said that the disparity of prices would not be corrected. The evidence seems to show that the inflationary process has not merely raised the general average of prices but that it has tended powerfully to correct the disparity of prices. In other words, those commodities which were most deflated have tended to make the best gains, whereas those prices which had fallen little or not at all have tended to rise very little. If these tendencies persist, it would be justifiable to say that the monetary policy is producing a genuine restoration of balance.

Screen's New Adonis

Buster Crabbe, Olympic swimmer, selected for the role of The Lion Man in Paramount's "King of the Jungle," feature of a new road show program to play a 3-day engagement at the Ritz Saturday 11:30 p. m. Sunday and Monday, after a search that closely scrutinized almost every actor and athlete of prominence in America, came by reason of that selection he said to be the most perfectly built man in this country.

From the plaudits of feminine patrons who have seen him in "King of the Jungle" prophecy has been made that at last a new matinee idol looms over the horizon to fill a place vacant since the demise of Wallace Reid. Like the last Wally, Buster is a man's man, a virile individual who will win the admiration of the male along with the adulation of the female of the species.

What makes Buster Crabbe particularly attractive to women is the fact that atop a marvelous physique is a head of splendid form, with features that a sculptor would rave over. Brow, nose, mouth and chin, each individually seeming to have been chiseled by a master hand, form a harmonious composition. And under the brow are eyes that have a luminous quality in repose, but that may be hard and piercing on occasion. And the dome is covered by a thatch of waving raven hair.

After the premiere showing of "King of the Jungle" at the Palace in Dallas, a mixed group of theatergoers were overheard discussing the physical beauty of the swimming champion. Consensus of opinion was highly individual but that an apt description of his features might be that they were a composite of those of John Belter and Ramon Novarro's, an opinion confirmed by the likeness of Buster Crabbe presented herewith.

have shown a rise of more than 3 points. On the other hand, each of the five price groups which had suffered especially severe deflation through the long period of depression (paint materials non-ferrous metals, foods, textiles and grain) has shown advances ranging from about 8 to 22 points since early March. These are very reassuring symptoms, for they mark a restoration of the equilibrium rather than a mere raising of all prices. If these tendencies can be maintained, it is as ought to happen, the most deflated will be the most benefited, with fixed charges remaining stationary, whereas prices rising more than the cost of living, the policy will be an indubitable success.

Within the past week, it must be noted, however, that the advancing movement of prices has been arrested and has even become reactionary. This may with reasonable confidence be ascribed to two reports which have come out of Washington. One was that the Federal Reserve System was still hesitating about proceeding with the open market operation to expand credit; the other was that negotiations were under way to stabilize the dollar in relation to gold. The effect of these two reports has been to make the dollar "stronger," which at the present time is equivalent to making American prices weaker.

Now there is a good deal to be said for a tentative stabilization of the dollar at, say, twenty per cent depreciation, if that will facilitate the negotiations in London. But there is nothing to be said for a stabilization, even of a tentative kind, which would promote a rise in the dollar to its old parity. That would make prices down and renew the deflationary spiral. For any stabilization which merely prevents the dollar from falling will almost certainly cause the dollar to rise unless the administration and the Federal Reserve System give definite proof that they really mean to proceed with the policy of controlled inflation.

It follows that there ought to be no further delay about making it clear, through large purchases of government securities, that the Administration's monetary policy is seriously and resolutely to be carried out. It would, I believe, be a great mistake to consider any stabilization, however tentative, unless this is done, and in recommending, some days ago, in this column, that a tentative stabilization be effected, I assumed that the Federal Reserve System would not hesitate about open market operations any longer. Since then, it has been reported as hesitating, and if the Reserve Banks continued to hesitate, the administration would, I believe, make a desperate attempt to stabilize the dollar at this time.

The idea, frequently propounded in the past few days, that monetary measures need not be taken when such excellent economic recovery is under way, should be reconsidered. Business is now feeling the revivifying effect of higher prices, but these prices have not only to be sustained but advanced still further if there is to be any real assurance that the economic recovery will not be checked. Now monetary measures, especially the open market operation, are slow to take effect except in so far as they depress the dollar in relation to gold. It takes time for the new credit to find its way into industry. Therefore, credit now would probably not show results in general business for sixty to ninety days at best. It should, therefore, be created now, partly with a view to results in the summer and autumn, and partly to discourage an immediate rise in the dollar.

Every one who desires to avoid the perils of the cruder inflationary measures, the resort to greenbacks, the full remonetization of silver, or the arbitrary devaluation of the dollar, should see the importance of proceeding promptly with the more conservative and reliable methods of deflation. Thus far speculative anticipation has done great good, but that good will come to an end and be lost if the Administration and the banking system encourage a bear speculation based on the theory that they are not willing to act, and that the talk of "controlled inflation" was a mere gesture.

Hitler's Swan Song?

Possibly a great deal of the force expected in the address of Herr Hitler before the reichstag was taken out by the Roosevelt message, which preceded it some 24 hours; but the fact remains that the Hitler speech is a notably weak document, whether from design or necessity.

The chancellor merely reiterates the old German insistence at the Versailles treaty must be revised. In that position, he is merely restating a proposition that has been advanced in every conceivable way a hundred times before.

Informed opinion in most countries today considers the Versailles document an iniquitous and war breeding treaty. In it are represented the hatreds and fears of Europe, rather than the hopes and well wishes.

Hitler's misfortune was to have the ground cut from under him before he could make his speech. FDR's message saw to that. In the fact, that of terrific indictment of international discord, Hitler did not dare to make a swashbuckling pronouncement. He was hamstrung. All that remained for him was a speech along conventional lines, in which the Versailles treaty comes in for a fearful drubbing.

It may be Hitler's swan song. A leader who depends for his strength on popular support, whose appeal is peculiarly and almost exclusively

by MARIE McELROY

CHAPTER XX

"It's all—pretty unsatisfactory," Monnie murmured, planting the folds of her white scarf.

"I know that—I know that," Dan protested, eyeing her uneasily. They were seated on the bank of the river under the low hanging branches of the willows. The day was clear and hot. No haze dimmed the imperturbable blue of the sky. Monnie's white linen looked cool in the glimmer of the sun.

"It's uncomfortable for me," Monnie went on, speaking quickly, eagerly, as if to justify her complaint. "Mother wants to know where I'm going and I tell her she doesn't say anything—but of course I know what she feels."

"Well, what does she feel?" though he tried to keep a bantering note in it.

"That—that I oughtn't to go on like this, seeing you all the time being serious about it," the girl explained with difficulty. "I know we're engaged, Dan. That part of it's all right! But so long as you want to keep it in the dark, well, it makes it so much harder for me. You know as well as I do how tongues wag. And we've been going place together for a long time, Dan," she reminded him, trying to speak lightly.

"It's nobody else's business!" he declared. "You know—and I know. Whose affair is it, anyway? My mother'd raise the roof if she knew about it. All I want is to keep things dark until I come into Uncle Frank's money. That's in January, right after my birthday. Then we can walk off and tell them all to go to—!"

He reached over and drew her toward him, his tones muffled. "Monnie, sweets, let's forget all about them. We're wasting our time talking about things that don't matter. Let's talk about ourselves."

Inwardly the girl sighed. Their discussions always ended this way. Dan's kiss stopped her protests. While she was with him she, too, could believe that their affairs were distinctly their own. But when she left him, when she met curious, prying friends, she longed for the right to tell them her glorious secret. "Dan Cardigan and I are engaged."

The joyful comments, the pleased, envious, interested looks—all these would be part of being formally engaged. Notes, little presents, where with Dan, his acknowledged choice. Best of all her mother's sense of security. She sighed aloud now, thinking of all this.

Dan turned to look at her. "What's the matter now?" he demanded. "I thought we had it all thrashed out?" He was frowning. Monnie, anxious to keep him in good temper, flashed him a reassuring smile.

"Just happy," she lied. "It's been a wonderful day. Let's gather up the things now and go along. I want to pick some raspberries."

But all the rest of the long, golden afternoon her mind kept harking back to the conversation. Dan was perfectly right about the whole thing, she would assure herself. And yet—and yet she would be willing to give up everything, all the brilliant hopes of Uncle Frank's money and the rest, if Dan would say to her, joyously, some afternoon, "Let's dash over to High Springs and get married."

He had, once before, but he hadn't really meant it. He would have been terribly surprised if Monnie had taken him at his word. Now she would give anything in the world to hear him say those words. She would take the supreme chance, the chance of a battle with poverty, to be the acknowledged wife of Daniel Cardigan, junior. No more meeting Dan by stealth, so that the argus-eyed Mrs. Cardigan would not hear of their renewed devotion. No more eluding the subject, blushing and stammering, when people asked her about Dan. No inward rage and torment of jealousy when Sandra's name and his appeared, linked, in accounts of social activities.

"I know you love me, Dan," she would explain patiently. "I understand. Of course it's all right. In January—in January—"

It would not be long until January. They could wait. They were both young. But this high summer, the days and nights were achingly beautiful. Never did Monnie see the moon riding high but that she longed to share the sight with Dan. She wanted to share homely things with him, too. Breakfasts and casual rides in the country. All the sweet privileges of the young wife seemed marvelous to her. It was difficult, sometimes, to believe that all this would be theirs a little later.

Meantime she had to be patient.

Charles Eustace came to the house rather often these days. Monnie, resting, limp and relaxed, in the porch swing, would hear a light step on the walk, would look up to see Charles, handsome, dark, smiling, towering over her. She could be easy with this man. They could talk, simply, deeply for hours. Charles, she felt certain, was enormously attracted to Kay. Of course, it was absurd—Kay was not yet 17—10 years his junior. And yet, what a splendid thing it would be for her little sister if his man were to want her for his wife! He had everything—looks, family, money, what the world called "background." He had, too, character of a fine sort, apparent in every look, every stinging gesture.

"He's fascinating," Monnie acknowledged to herself when alone. "I like him so much. But love—no, I could never love Charles."

It was just as well, she reminded herself, that Charles was attracted to Kay. Kay was sparkling, animated. She made a splendid foil for his dark and slightly mysterious good looks.

"He" averred Kay one night, discussing him, "had some sort of heavy love affair in France last year."

"How do you know?"

Kay shrugged. "Lib Waterman told Risny. Risny doesn't know the details but part of it got into the papers."

Monnie couldn't have explained the queer little tug at her heart-strings. Charles involved in an affair with a woman—important enough to have got into the papers! Absurd! She didn't like it.

"I don't believe it," she said stoutly. "Risny talks such nonsense and so does Lib."

"Well, I don't know," Kay told her carelessly. "He always sheers away from the subject of his stay abroad, if you notice it."

Monnie had observed this. But she refused to credit Risny's gossip. It all sounded so—well, so shady. She just didn't believe it.

Kay gave her a sidelong glimmering look at the end of this discussion.

"Anybody'd think you were annoyed to find that Charles had ever looked at anyone else," she said in a small, child's voice. This Monnie found extremely irritating and said so.

"I think that's perfect nonsense," she said. "I never heard anything so silly." Her cheeks, she discovered, were hot—were blazing. She felt furious with Kay—

"I can't see what possible difference it makes to you," Kay giggled. "As far as Charles is concerned you're the original Ice Maiden."

Monnie stared at her. Was it true—was she completely indifferent to this distinguished young man who lent her books and walked with her under the trees in his lazy cultivated voice?

"He's been awfully nice to me," she said. "Naturally I hate to think he's not—not all I thought him."

She couldn't understand why Kay smiled so meaningfully.

It was odd how Charles' name cropped up in conversation these days. When she met Dan that night at the turn of the road where he waited for her in the summer dusk he said, "Doesn't that fellow hang around an awful lot nowadays?"

Monnie, thinking of other things frankly stared. "Who?"

Grimly Dan indicated Charles' car, at that very moment stopping at the O'Dares' gate some hundred rods away.

Monnie was glad of the darkness, hiding her flush.

"Dan, don't be a goose. He comes to see the family."

"Expect me to believe that?" But Dan's tone was milder.

"He's interested in Kay. He's been wonderful to her. Dr. Waterman has recommended her for a job in the library. She's starting next Monday and is wild with joy."

Dan said nothing but he seemed, for the moment mollified.

Later, lying awake in the little room under the hot roof, listening to Kay's even breathing, hearing Bill creak up the stairs, Monnie found herself thinking of Charles Eustace—of what Kay had said.

She turned and twisted from side to side. She could not seem to get to sleep. After all, what did it matter what Charles had been in the past, what adventures he had known? He was nothing to her. She was engaged to Dan Cardigan—although no one knew it.

Sports Parade

BY HENRY McLEMORE
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP)—After six months of trotting the globe in a most expansive manner, George Kirksey, United Press sports writer, has returned with some tall tales of sports in other corners of the world.

In exchange for a pair of seats to the Chocolate-Watson business, Kirksey gave us our pick of four stories. We could have elephant fighting at some Maharajah's palace outside Calcutta, cock-fighting in Manila, the sensation in Chinese wrestling circles when a mugg named "Dollar Tabor" introduced the flying tackle and Billy-goat butt, or hoo racing in Shanghai.

It's the Shanghai races we'll talk about today.

Those bettors who shriek and cuss and implore and tear their hair when the field comes pounding toward the finish line would be highly out of place at a Shanghai track. Such going-ons are trees gauche. (You oughta get yourself a French dictionary. They're more fun!) The Chinese just sit and take it in silence. Win or lose, their faces are just so many masks by Benda, and they never utter a sound.

The class of horseflesh in that part of the world is very, very sorry, we learned. Most of the runners are Mongolian ponies, not much for size and less for speed. The better ponies do a mile in something like 2:05, which means that our harness horses, with buggy attached, could give them a head start and still beat 'em home. With this sort of beetle for opposition, it might not be a bad idea to get yourself a selling piater and go over there and clean up.

Waco Reports Evidence Showing That Business Is On Up Grade

WACO (UP)—An order of between 25,000 and 30,000 cots to be delivered within a fortnight, full time employment for 300 men at the Katy Shops at Bellmead, nearby here, and stepping up of production in cotton mills in this area heralded the business recovery of Texas here this week.

The order for the cots was given by the Crawford-Austin company by the United States Quartermaster's department. They will be used in reforestation camps. Raymond Goddard, vice-president of the company, said the order will be delivered to Chicago and Philadelphia and probably other points.

The Bellmead shops of the Katy line are expected to be operated on a full time schedule for three months. Officials of the railway were here today to participate in an "open house" at which local business men will be guests.

With a payroll of 100 persons on hand at plant opening yesterday, officials of the Texas Textile Mills said they anticipated to step up production within two weeks, giving employment to 250 persons. At nearby Itasca, the Itasca Cotton Manufacturing company has reopened after 17 months' shutdown with a promise of employing 200 workers when operations are stepped up to the plant's capacity.

Oil Stored in State Down Five Millions

HOUSTON (UP)—Oil in storage in Texas declined 5,583,069 barrels between April 1 and April 30, and the drop had continued up to May 20, according to a report released here recently by Colonel Ernest O. Thompson, member of the state railroad commission.

On April 1, the report said, 37 companies in all fields had 49,640,532 barrels in storage. This had declined to 44,057,463 barrels on April 30 and a partially completed report up to May 20 indicated there had been a further decline to 36,927,316 barrels.

"Much of this decline," the report said, "may have been the result of an 15-day shutdown in East Texas, from April 6 to April 24."

The report also said there were 23,269,487 barrels of empty storage in Texas on May 20.

Thompson, Commissioner C. V. Terrell and R. D. Parker, chief oil and gas supervisor for the commission, were here for a hearing on conditions in the Conroe field of Montgomery county.

Rail Commission Orders Stricter Law Enforcement

HOUSTON (UP)—The Texas railroad commission ordered its employees to enforce "strictly" the new statute which makes production of oil in excess of proration rules a misdemeanor on the first offense and a felony on the second, and punishable as such.

"Proration has really begun now," remarked Colonel Ernest O. Thompson, commission in charge of the East Texas oil field. Governor Miriam A. Ferguson has signed House Bill 154, providing for the new law. It affects all Texas oil fields.

World's Fair Party Of Scouts Planned By A. C. Williamson

Area Executive A. C. Williamson of the Buffalo Trails Council is completing efforts to arrange a "world's fair" party of Boy Scouts from this section.

He has mailed letters to parents of several local boys asking a prompt reply if it is thought the boy will be able to make the trip. Response obtained will have an important bearing on whether the trip will be attempted.

It is estimated by Williamson that the trip will likely cost the boys approximately forty dollars, including transportation, fees, and food.

Trip would probably be made by train, possibly by bus.

Stanton Men Would Collect Robber Reward

MIDLAND—Suit for collection of $5,000 reward offered by the Texas Bankers' association for the killing of bank robbers has been filed here by George Dunaway, Midland attorney, in behalf of Sheriff Milt Yater, French Gray, Maurice Zimmerman and Less Thompson of Stanton.

The Stanton men claim that Clinton Hare, who allegedly attempted to rob a bank was shot to death in a gun battle June 2, 1932, following a holdup of the First National bank of Stanton. The plaintiffs recite that when the alleged bandit became frightened he fled in an automobile and was trying to escape in the car after fastening a ranch plank gate in the face of the sheriff and his posse, when the officers burst through the gate and engaged Hare in a gun battle.

Dunaway says in his complaint that the bankers association has repeatedly refused to pay the reward, ignoring the request of the Stanton men for payment of the $5,000. The complaint recites that Sheriff Yater and his men fulfilled all necessary requirements to receive the reward, notice of which hung in the Stanton bank at the time of the robbery.

Artist's Colony Opens Summer Camp Near Angelo Soon

SAN ANGELO—The Texas Artist's Colony will open its summer camp here June 1 for three weeks, with indications of increased enrollment over last season as a result of additions to the courses offered art students.

Among the new courses will be one in sculpture with Viola Blake Sajenni, San Antonio, as instructor. Miss Sajenni has received favorable criticism of her work by Laredo Taft, one of America's foremost sculptors.

Caution Taken In Hearing On Trust Law Change

AUSTIN (UP)—The judiciary committee of the house has decided to move cautiously in preparing its recommendation on the suggested suspension of the state's anti-trust laws to allow Texas industries broader latitude in their operations pending improved conditions.

The suggestion that Texas suspend its anti-trust laws was introduced by General Hugh S. Johnson, named by President Roosevelt to direct the industrial reconstruction.

Members of the judiciary committee objected to making any recommendation until additional data on need for the suspension has been submitted. The committee voted to request United States Senators Sheppard and Connally for more information regarding the president's program "to ascertain why, to what extent, and under what conditions it will be necessary to suspend the anti-trust laws."

No action will be taken on the proposition until replies have been received. Hubert Harrison, manager of the East Texas Chamber of Commerce, urged that expeditious action be taken to "place Texas in step with the national program." Harrison said that unless legislative action is taken to enable Texas industries to participate in the program, that Texas will not be in the national picture.

Harrison said the plan contemplated using governmental authority to prevent a small minority from interfering with the constructive progress of a majority of the persons engaged in a particular enterprise.

R. J. Potts, a director of the Waco Chamber of Commerce, concurred in the plan to suspend the anti-trust laws.

"It is like mobilizing the units of a regiment to seek a common goal," he said, predicting that unless unified action was made possible Texas industries would be placed in an unfavorable position.

The house Tuesday refused Representative Rolland Bradley of Houston permission to introduce a bill that would suspend the effectiveness of the anti-trust laws for two years. The vote was 44 ayes to 68 noes.

Bradley's bill would have allowed only those industries included in the president's program to take advantage of the proposed law and then only to the extent authorized by the president.

It was provided specifically that the bill would not affect a suit now pending in Travis county district court in which 15 oil companies and two petroleum associations are charged with violation of the Texas anti-trust laws.

Buy a Poppy

The Symbol of A Nation's Grateful Remembrance!

FIFTEEN years since the joyful news of the Armistice rang around the world. To most of us the time has passed quickly. It seems only yesterday that we reviewed our returning heroes marching home. The cheers and tears of joy are still vividly before us.

But what long years they have been to those mourning Gold Star Mothers. What long years they've been to those crippled, shell-shocked, blinded and maimed martyrs, many of whom are but merely marking time to the relief that will be theirs when taps are sounded. What price glory if they be denied on this day dedicated to remembrance.

There is no tribute that can recompense for what they have contributed. But we can manifest to them today that they are not forgotten. Our debt can only be expressed in the honor, reverence and admiration for their nobility. Their victory and sacrifices will stand as a national heritage to enrich the loyalty and patriotism of American posterity.

We've adopted the Poppy as a mute acknowledgement of the honor we accord them. As we wear it on our breasts may its red glow warm their hearts, cheer their spirits and temper their ills. May it convey to them the message of a nation's undying gratitude.

Each year, during the week of Memorial Day, The Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States conduct a sale of the Buddy Poppy, the entire proceeds of which are devoted to relief work. Each poppy is guaranteed by its copyrighted green label as having been made by disabled and needy ex-service men, the majority of whom are patients in government hospitals throughout the country. A portion of the proceeds go to the national home for widows and orphans of ex-service men.

Wayne Beats San Antonio

Indian Beat Panthers; Exporters, Steers Victorious

SAN ANTONIO—Rubber Arm Wayne, Houston hurler, got better as the innings went along Wednesday, holding San Antonio hitters after the third, with his mates overcoming a 5-1 handicap to win, 2-1. Wayne pitched three hits, including two doubles, for two runs in the third.

Houston got eight hits off Kowalk, scoring one in the second, fourth and eighth, each time with a pair of hits.

Bridges Again Nearly Hurls Perfect Game

Homer In Eighth Only Hit Allowed Washington Senators

WASHINGTON—The doors of baseball's hall of fame opened again Monday to Tommy Bridges, Detroit pitcher, but just as in a previous game with the Washington Senators his dream of a perfect contest was spoiled by a single Senator hit. The Tigers won 3 to 1.

Joe Kuhel, Washington first baseman, poked a homer over the right field fence in the eighth inning to ruin Bridges' no-hit, no-run game.

It was Dave Harris, substitute Senator outfielder, inserted as a pinch hitter in the ninth inning of a game last season, who pounded out a single against Bridges to keep him out of the no-hit no-run class.

Owen was the Detroit batting hero of the day. He slashed out three hits in four attempts, including a triple and a double.

ATHLETICS 7, BROWNS 4

PHILADELPHIA—Lightning combined with thunder and rain to break up the Philadelphia Athletics-St. Louis Browns ball game today with the A's victors 7 to 4, and then crashed into the right field foul line structure and started a fire in the stand.

The game ended abruptly in the middle of the sixth after a five-run fifth inning rally gave the A's their winning runs, making a clean away in the three game series with the Browns and boosting the Philadelphia winning streak to six straight.

Fans had swarmed for cover from the right field stand when the downpour stopped the contest. A few minutes later, a bolt of lightning struck the corrugated iron runway which serves as a ramp to the fence on which the foul line is painted, and splintered it. The flames began almost immediately but were almost as quickly extinguished.

One Athletics batter was out in the sixth when the downpour started.

will whisper in your ear that the government could not possibly use more than $750,000,000 in legitimate public construction during 1934. The bill authorizes two billions in loans to states and municipalities for construction. Everyone inside knows the actual expenditure will fall far short of that during the next two years.

What all these things boil down to is a rather conservative administration of rather radical ideas. That conservative administration will not mean government control of all business. It will mean the government will find away the power to control business and ask business to control itself. What you will ultimately get therefore is self-regulate itself when it knows the government can step in anytime with a big stick.

At least that is the new conception of the New Deal. It has not been publicly announced and therefore it can not be guaranteed.

But the chances are ten to one it will go through that way.

Press

Mr. Roosevelt's free press conference idea is working out well. He has been caught in one or two minor difficulties by submitting himself to bi-weekly cross examination at hands of the press. But by and large system has worked out well. The press is satisfied and so is Mr. Roosevelt.

At first the newspapermen thought it could not last. A President deals with such a wide variety of problems he can not know all of them. He is very likely to get into trouble by talking off-hand. Mr. Harding once did. He said the Island of Yap had a different classification than the American-Japanese treaty provided. And the Japanese made him retract.

Mr. Roosevelt gets along because he is adept at verbal sparring. He does not disclose his mind very freely but he preserves the appearance of answering all questions.

Method

One reason the Senate frittered away so much time on the Louderback impeachment case was the Senators were not anxious for early adjournment of congress.

Every day spent in trying the San Francisco judge added a day to the session. The Republicans were particularly glad to see the case tried fully. They do not relish the idea of departing and leaving Mr. Roosevelt with all the power he now has.

The case proved to everyone that some different impeachment method must be adopted. It cost somewhere around $40,000. The senate spent two weeks on it.

Power

There may be more behind these Muscle Shoals power theft charges than you have heard. Those pushing the investigation are supposed to have up their sleeves a confession from a certain gentleman who was on the inside. It was his tip which started the present ruction. His identity is being carefully guarded.

If his story is verified it will furnish a lively sensation. If not, the investigators will have a difficult time trying to prove conclusively that anything as intangible as power was stolen.

Diplomacy

These labor amendments to Mr. Roosevelt's railroad bill are certain to be adopted by congress. Certain labor senators have made an ultimatum that they must be adopted or the whole bill will fall. One in that group is Senator Dill of Washington.

The changes will be satisfactory to Mr. Roosevelt. They will not be to the railroad executives, but it is too late for them to do anything about it.

Labor

The new Polish ambassador strolled into the State Department the other day. State Secretary Hull gave him an oration on disarmament. Expert Patis spoke a piece on tariffs. The ambassador sat in repose. His face was a blank mask. When our officials concluded, he arose and said: "Gentlemen, I do not understand all that you are talking about, but my government will give it very serious consideration."

Hull was revived with a drink of water.

Notes

Mr. Roosevelt has a little way of patting his cabinet officers on the back when rumors that they may retire soon are floating around. He gave Treasury Secretary Woodin credit for settling the banking crisis when Woodin's morale was low and State Secretary Hull drew a boost on the world peace message when Hull was getting morose. The old law directories show that Interior Secretary Ickes was once a partner of Donald Richberg, railroad labor attorney and leading Liberal. Baruch only used the punitive power of the War Industries Board twice during the war. Once on copper and again on another industry he cannot recall.

Change

Private banks—aware that future limitation of their activities is certain are busy planning for the future. While no definite decision has been made yet, the weight of opinion in one of the most important houses favors sticking to deposit banking—under such government regulations as may be prescribed—and throwing the investment business overboard. This particular institution has a very pretty nucleus of deposits to start with.

The idea would be to build up commercial deposits of the highest quality and to give investment advice on the side. This investment advice angle would keep the door open for pleasant profits from non-banking activities without running afoul of the law. If the plan develops as indicated partners who do not fit into the new picture will be politely invited to find a new field for their talents.

Federal Reserve

The Federal Reserve's slowness in getting started on its credit expansion program is puzzling a lot of people. The answer is hooked up with the public works bond issue. Plenty of arguable details about that issue are still unsettled and the Federal Reserve wants to find out how much assistance it will have to give in that connection before it does any large scale buying of outstanding issues.

"KING KONG"

To an amazed civilization is exhibited a cowed brute whose origin can only be guessed at and whose story has even the news reporters thrilled. Ann, golden and glittering in a beautiful Paris gown, reluctantly agrees to Denham's wish that she appear on the stage. Even though he is tightly chained, she is afraid to go near "King Kong." Yes, "King Kong" knows fear, but it is for Ann. When photographers shove Ann about for pictures the Beast thinks his Beauty is in danger. Thunder rumbles from his throat. Chrome steel chains snap. Bars give away. Bedlam reigns in a great auditorium! Driscoll rushes Ann into the hotel just across the street and into a room on an upper floor. "King Kong" gets out of the theatre by breaking out a wall. He saw Ann disappear into the hotel and now he climbs up its walls as easily as a fly. He snatches one girl from her bed. Finding she is not Ann he drops her, shrieking, to the crowded street. Ann now knows that nowhere will she be safe as long as "King Kong" lives. He has found her. He carries her to the roof of the building, but when Denham and Driscoll pursue him there, he returns to the street. What is to be Ann's fate?

East Texas Oil Order Target In US Hearing

Three Judge Tribunal In Session At Fort Worth

PORT WORTH (UP).—Fairness of the state's present production order for the East Texas oil field, allowing an output of approximately 750,000 barrels daily, was to be examined by a three-judge federal court here Thursday. All attacks filed by operators since the order went into effect are to be heard by the tribunal, composed of Judges J. C. Hutcheson Jr., James C. Wilson and Randolph Bryant. State railroad commissioners who drafted the order believe the present allowable will stand the test of court fire. It was drafted along legal lines drawn by a federal court in the last major litigation over validity of the state's oil curb. Operators, however, are not satisfied with the order. Many believe that the huge output, credited with causing the recent debacle of East Texas crude prices, is robbing the field of its pressure. Already pumps are being ordered for many wells. Nearly the entire field will go on the beam unless the state's allowable is lowered, according to current predictions. Among the attacks on the current order are those of the Hunt Production company of Tyler, and Rowan & Nichols, independent operators of Fort Worth. The former seeks an injunction against perpetuating orders of the commission. The latter claims the order is unfair and discriminatory. The three-judge tribunal will hear all formal complaints this week. An immediate ruling, however, is doubtful.

Emergency Relief Administrator To Put Out Much Cash

By United Press. WASHINGTON (UP).—Harry L. Hopkins, the new federal emergency relief administrator who handed out more than $5,000,000 two hours after taking office, is an energetic, smiling man with big brown eyes who mixes slang with intellectual quips when he talks. His appointment and the way he started his job were in line with the Roosevelt "new deal" method of doing things. The president ordered him "drafted" for the task of supervising the $500,000,000 Wagner relief act. His nomination was sent to the senate Saturday and confirmed the same day. Monday early, Hopkins walked into his office. Two hours after he was sworn in more than $5,000,000 in grants went out to eight states. Hopkins "with great reluctance" resigned as a New York state relief administrator at Mr. Roosevelt's behest. His new job he considers "flattering to my ego," but "too soft snaz." Incidentally it will pay less by $1,500 than his previous employment. The administrative post carries a salary of $8,500. His idea is that federal relief aid for the destitute should be a mere makeshift pending enactment of a broad public works program so that "those now receiving aid can get real constructive jobs." He arranged for a "vacation" in now. Well up in the running should be Roy Farrell of Vernon, Jack Parr of Electra and Billy Holmes of Shamrock. Among the not-so-young candidates for Phillips' crown are "Báron" Bobby Burns of Wichita Falls and Charley Qualls, postmaster at Post.

the country Sunday with his wife and younger daughter. He expects to be so busy in his new job that the day off before he came here will be his sole "vacation" vacation. BANKERS INVITED TO TYLER TYLER (UP).—The Texas Bankers association has been invited to hold its 1933 convention in Tyler. The invitation was formerly presented while the bankers were holding their 49th convention in Mineral Wells.

PILES

Offer an immediate relief at last for all forms of Piles—Bleeding, Itching and Frustrating. Pain Diminutes as the tissue gradually returns to normal. First, it soothes—the soreness and inflammation, second, it repairs the torn tissue. Third, it absorbs—drives up excess mucus and reduces the swollen blood vessels which are Piles. In other words, Pile doesn't merely relieve—it tends to correct the condition of Piles as a whole. The method of application makes it doubly effective. Special Pile Pipe attached to the applicator enables you to apply ointment high up in the rectum where it will reach all affected parts. Thousands say Pile is the only thing that ever gave them real relief. Thousands say it saved them the need of an operation. Get Pile today and suffer no longer.

Juniors Entertains

The Juniors entertained the Seniors Saturday night with a banquet. It was one of the most delightful entertainments that has been given for the Seniors this year. The long banquet table was very artistically decorated with red and white. The color scheme of red and white was carried out in all the decorations and the menu.

Speeches during the evening consisted of toasts, jokes on several members of the class, and then more serious ones from the Seniors telling why they hate to leave.

The banquet of 1933 is one that will long be a pleasant memory to one who attended it—Juniors, Seniors and teachers.

Baccalaureate Sermon

Sunday night at the High School Auditorium the Rev. Dick O'Brien of Colorado preached the Baccalaureate sermon of the Senior class of 1933. He brought a wonderful message which was enjoyed by all who heard him. The professional was played by Mrs. Lee Brown. The music of the evening was furnished by the Colorado Music Club with Mrs. E. L. Latham at the piano. There was a large and appreciative audience present.

Earl Phillips of Big Spring brought his ball team over Sunday and played Westbrook and was defeated 14 to 9.

Joe Danner, Veteran Of Colorado Cattle Boom Of '80s Visitor

COLORADO (UP).—Joe Danner, who in the cattle boom days in the '80s was a room clerk in the old Hamilton Hotel in "Colorado City," recently returned here to visit old friends to reminiscence of ranching days.

His first employment when he came to this section from Brenham was on the Kip Elkins horse ranch near Lone Wolf Mountain. Later he came here as a beef buyer for a local butcher. He has been living in Dallas the past forty years, 28 of which he has been associated with the Dallas postoffice.

$2.95 For Poultry Feed Brings Profit Of $9.95

BEAUMONT (UP).—Mrs. T. O. Vernon of Port Neches home demonstration club, has made a good thing of poultry raising. With $2.95 worth of feed, consisting of 100 pounds of rice bran, 100 pounds of laying mash and 100 pounds of broken rice, enough for 45 days, she fed 45 hens, making a profit in April of $9.95.

Says Her Husband Lost 16 Pounds In 4 Weeks

"I have never found a medicine that 'peps' you up like Kruschen Salts and better still leaves you 'pepped up.' I take it two or three times a week—not to reduce but merely to feel good and clean. My husband took it to reduce, he lost 16 pounds in 4 weeks." Mrs. E. A. Ferris, Washington, D. C. (December 29, 1932.)

To lose fat and at the same time gain in physical attractiveness and feel spirited and youthful take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen in a glass of hot water before breakfast every morning.

A jar that lasts 4 weeks costs but a trifle at Collins Bros. or any drugstore in the world but be sure and get Kruschen Salts the SAFE way to reduce wide hips, prominent front and double chin and again feel the joy of living—money back if dissatisfied after the first jar.—adv.

University Has Continued Growth Of Enrollment

AUSTIN (UP).—The 1932-1933 school year saw continued growth for the University of Texas in graduation and enrollment numbers.

Enrollment statistics supplied by the university show, gained 317 over last year, advancing to 6,728 as against 6,421 for 1931-1932. Candidates for graduation exceeded by nearly 200 the number awarded degrees last spring and by more than 200 the number of graduates in the spring of 1933. This year's crop totals 866, of which 564 are boys and 302 are girls.

Included among the graduates who will receive their diplomas June 5 are eight foreign students representing Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Egypt and the Philippine Islands, and 58 students from 20 other states.

Also in the list of growing colleges in the state is West Texas State Teachers College, Canyon, with an enrollment of 917 as against 866 last year. The number last year was 80. These figures do not include summer graduates. Of the group slated to receive diplomas June 1, 57 are girls, 26 boys. "a very serious-minded, hard-working group," according to school authorities, "who seem to have the right perspective in regard to teaching, the thing they are reported to do."

Perhaps the most striking increase in enrollment among Texas schools was exhibited by Paul Quinn college, Waco. The number jumped from 80 last year to 208. Graduation figures, however, will not reflect the enrollment increase for some time to come, although steady advances have been manifested in that regard, too. The class this year numbered 27, as against 20 for 1931 and 21 last year.

Large Creep Feeding Experiment Starts West Of Midland

MIDLAND — One of the most comprehensive creep feeding experiments ever attempted in West Texas is under way, on the Roy Parks ranch, about fifteen miles west of Midland. Parks, who owns one of the best ranches and outstanding commercial herds of Hereford cattle in West Texas, is creep feeding 1,940 head of calves on cotton seed cake in self feeders. All of the calves which are of various ages, fall, winter and spring calves, were weighed about the first of May and the cows and steer calves separated from the cows and heifer calves and put into separate pastures ranging in number from 150 to 250 head in a pasture. Accurate record of gains and costs will be kept and checked against initial weights when the calves are sold this fall.

Creeps, in which self feeders 20 feet in length are used, have been placed at every watering and there are at least two of the creeps in each pasture. A check lot of cattle corresponding in weight and age to the cattle that are being fed cake, have been placed in separate pastures and will not be fed through the summer, but will be used to check against the fed cattle.

This test is being conducted in cooperation with the Texas Cotton Seed Crushers Association, of Dallas, and the Sweetwater Cotton Oil Co., of Sweetwater, Texas, from whom Mr. Parks is purchasing the cake used in this creep feeding project.
