

Pep Rally Closes Howdy Week

"Howdy week" got off to a rousing start Monday with the traditional "howdy" greetings and a rash of "howdy" tags appearing on the campus.

The tags are signed by the wearers and by five people he has met this week. They were distributed around the campus Monday.

Freshmen will be expected to wear homemade cardboard placards around their necks starting today, Coffee Conner, head cheerleader said. The placards will be inscribed "Fracture The Frogs," Conner said.

Climaxing the week will be a pep rally at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the Gym. At the rally Chip Wadley, Tech Chamber of Commerce president, will outline the objectives of "Howdy week" and the importance of continuing the "howdy" spirit through the whole year to keep Tech "the friendliest school in Texas." The special "Howdy week" will end Saturday.

Tom Killough Elected To Society

Tom Killough was elected representative to the Engineering society at the first meeting of American Institute of Industrial Engineers Oct. 2.

Busse's Orchestra Scheduled At Rec

"Hot Lips" Henry Busse and his 14-piece orchestra will be featured at the Rec hall from 5-8:30 p.m. Wednesday. The admission price is $1.20 stag or drag.

The nickname "Hot Lips" is taken from the song by that name which Busse wrote. He also wrote "Wang Wang Blues."

Betty Taylor and Phil Gray are featured vocalists with the band.

Busse, who stands as a trumpet player in Paul Whiteman's band, helped to tone down jazz music by inventing the muted used in brass instruments.

Whether or not Tech can continue to get name bands to play here will depend to a large extent on the attendance at this first name band dance of the semester, James G. Allen, dean of student life, said.

Each club drew a year in Tech's 25 year history which the club will carry out in its float. Clubs not represented at the drawing are urged to obtain a year from the Ex-students office, Ad108. D. M. McElroy, secretary of the Ex-students association hopes to have two floats to represent each year.

Plans for the Homecoming parade will be furthered Thursday when the Board of Student organizations meets at 5 p.m. in the Aggie auditorium. The board is made up of the presidents of all campus clubs. 1,200 Tech Students Head For TCU Game, State Fair

Raiders Meet TCU Saturday As Tech Seeks First Win

Its first victory this year will be the objective of the Red Raiders when they journey to Fort Worth to battle with the TCU Horned Frogs, Saturday.

Thwarted in their first two attempts to upset teams from the Southwest conference, the Mataradors have gained power and much experience since their losses to Texas university and Texas A&M earlier in the season.

TCU has in the past furnished Tech with its easiest pickings from among Southwest conference teams. Tech has been able to win four of the 10 games played.

Able to win only one of the last five games played between the two teams, the Horned Frogs dropped their last encounter to the Mataradors by a 12-0 score.

Inexperience is the complaint of Coach Leo Meyer, who is in his 17th year as head coach of the Horned Frogs.

Meyer has had cause to cheer and complain this year as his, thus far, erratic youngsters have shown ability in spots.

Greenness which was not present in last year's edition of Frogs has caused some worry as in the Oklahoma A&M game which saw TCU go down to defeat to a supposedly weaker team.

Power in the backfield has brought some consolation to the old Dutchman. Two 200-pounders, Bobby Jack Floyd and John Morton, lend breakaway ability as well as power to the Frog attack.

Quarterbacking is a strong point. Here, Gil Bartosh and Dan Wilde, both of whom can pass and run, direct Meyer's radical winged T attack.

Speedsters Johnny Dunn and Bobby Harding uphold the climax

Auxiliary Offers Sewing Prizes

Tech women between 17 and 22 who sew have an opportunity to win at least $35 in local prizes and perhaps paid trips to Fort Worth and Casper, Wyo.

Miss Mable Edwin, head of the department of clothing and textiles, has announced that entry blanks for the Home Saving contest sponsored by the Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers' Women's auxiliary may be obtained at her office. The contest is to promote an interest in sewing virgin-wool and mohair fabrics. Deadline for entries is Oct. 15.

The contest is divided into three classes which are junior, ages 14-17; senior, ages 18-22; original design, ages 14-22. The age of the contestant of Dec. 1, 1950 determines the class in which she may enter. The junior and senior classes are for garments made from commercial patterns and the original design class for garments designed by the contestant.

Either a suit, dress or coat of 100 per cent virgin wool or 50 per cent mohair may be entered but may not be worn until after the state contest.

A contestant may enter a garment in as many as four different classes in the local contest but only one of these may be entered in the state and national contests.

Local winners will be contestants in the state contest during the annual convention in Fort Worth Nov. 20-22. The national contest will be held in Casper, Wyo. the first week in December.

Rally Rah! . . .

The attendance at the first pep rally of the year was large enough to warrant favorable comment. The attendance at the next two, however, was small enough to warrant comment.

Judging from the puny attendance at the last two rallies, the consensus around Tech campus seems to be that if one attends a single pep rally, he has done his bit for the promotion of school spirit for the year. Well, 'tain't so! To push that old Texas Tech spirit high and keep it there, every student has to work. And part of that work is to attend every last pep rally.

The football team probably feels that the spirit which was so high during the Tech-Texas game has dropped off to nothing because it lost three straight games. If the attendance at pep rallies is any indication, this is precisely what happened. Though the student body spirit may have dropped, the spirit of those football boys is still there.

What would happen to our team if the players decided to give their all in a single game and coast through the remainder of these games. You're right—we might win one game but lose the others. That is certainly no way to play football anymore than attending one pep rally is the way to keep spirit high.

So let's go out to the next pep rally Thursday night and show those Raiders we're behind them all the way. (B.Y.)

Fair Play . . .

Much unnecessary animosity is aroused between colleges by the action of a few members of the student body of the schools.

Similar things may have happened in Canyon Friday night, but more noticeable to students at Tech was the regrettable action of a few students from West Texas State college.

As Techsons we should not develop a spite for West Texas college just because of the painting of some of our buildings, for the few that splashed the paint are not representative of the majority of students on the neighboring campus.

But, we as Texans should regret that state funds are being spent so uselessly on students to infantile that they have no business in college.

We hope that there are no students on Tech campus with such a misplaced sense of values that they would do such things on some other campus.

Advancing as fast as possible in beauty, Tech campus must not be marred by the high-spirited but child-like pranks of students from other campuses. Our only assurance of keeping it so is to play fair and not mar other school campuses.

Eliminate The Negative . . .

Is there a need for an organization movement among non-social club women and men students on this campus?

Recent negative actions among a certain group of women "independents" indicate that some positive actions are called for. Low number of votes cast in the recent elections may be partly attributable to the lack of organization among sections of the student body. Several students not affiliated with social clubs, which seem to form the line of demarcation between so-called "independents" and "non-independents," have voiced a reason for their disinterest in campus politics. In essence they say, "Why should I go vote? The social clubs control the elections. The clubs nominate their candidates, then it is just a case of which social club has mustered the greatest number of their members to elect a candidate to office. My vote means nothing."

This disinterest in elections should be remedied. Roughly estimated, less than 20 per cent of the student body is connected with social clubs. That leaves about 4,500 students who could easily become the strongest group on the Tech campus. All independents are not disinterested persons. A few realize their rights and privileges and take part in campus affairs just as any normal member of a democratic group should do. But for the many students who feel that their efforts are defeated even before they try, something is definitely needed.

There is the problem that if independents become organized, no longer would they retain the status of independents. But history has shown that organization is the answer to proper representation.

If organization of "independents" is the answer, the organization must be well thought out and carefully executed. Agencies on the campus stand ready to hear the case out for organization. The deans of women, men and student life hold the answer, perhaps. In their offices are persons who have had experience with meeting student needs. They have seen how "independents" worked on other campuses. They are ready to alleviate the problem of disinterest among the majority of students. But if students are not interested enough to make the first move, these qualified persons cannot begin to go their half-way.

Among the 4,500 students mentioned above, and among the club members themselves, there are bound to be hundreds of sound opinions on this subject. The Toreador is asking for letters which voice constructive opinions. Only through individual effort will campus affairs become truly representative of all students.

Dean Twyman Asks Coed Response; "Eye For An Eye" Not Tech Policy

By SUE HOLMES
Toreador Editor

Coed Conclusions

Deans of women on most campuses, Tech's not excepted, seem to inherit ex-officio titles of "chief antagonist," "fun killer" or "women student's warden." Mrs. Margaret Twyman found out last week what attitude Tech coeds assume when notices from her office are posted in the women's dorms.

Dean Twyman was advised that many students who live in nearby towns go home practically every week-end, sometimes for good reasons and other times just to be going. The trouble academically comes in when these students, leaving on Friday night, fail to return for Saturday classes. Since Tech functions on the six-day class schedule, the council of deans asked that action be taken to help keep Saturday class attendance up to par; Dean Twyman's notice was the outgrowth of this.

But a great many women in dorms read the notice hastily, and some who live at far distances took the directive to mean that they could no longer save up cuts for that "special" weekend away from school. The last paragraphs of the notice clearly stated that the dean would be glad to discuss individual cases.

"I've never seen an intelligent group of girls yet who couldn't work out satisfactory disciplinary measures for themselves," the dean says. "I am surprised at the passivity of women on this campus." Perhaps this is the beginning of fair measures worked out by cooperation between women and administrators.

That leaves the way open to dormitory governing boards whose members have been elected to office to work out regulations and enforce them for all residents of the three women's dorms.

It would seem that our new dean of women expects Tech women to become more assertive. She feels that a great many need "kicks" the justified.

Unhospitable Hosts

Why is it that when we start to brag a little we find out something that makes us ashamed we ever thought of praising ourselves? The postgame tactics which occurred Saturday night are what spoiled our bragging.

After the Tech-West Texas game Saturday, the West Texas students held a victory parade which a group of Tech students tried to spoil. Band members from Canyon lost hats, plumes and had their flags damaged by some thoughtless Tech boys. Especially since we lost the game, it is unfortunate that a group had to employ the "eye for an eye" method. As the editorial to the left points out, college students can get pretty negligent.

Fall Showers

Have you ever been pursued by an ever-present stream of water? It can get maddening when the stream is emanating from the sprinkler system on the circle. The watering system seems to have been rigged up to hit pedestrians squarely in the face, no matter how fast they are walking. Just about every portion of sidewalk on the circle is in the line of a water sprayer.

Maybe watering the grass at night is the answer. Then the main targets for the spray ers would be the ground squirrels which inhabit the minute catacombs under the circle.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

At the risk of being rewarded with a fist in the face, I am about to expound on something Tech needs worse than a new Gym, believe it or not.

To be blunt, there are several morticians' schools in the state that show considerable more school spirit than this place. If you think I'm exaggerating, why is it that out of 5,500 students, the yell leaders consider it a real field-day if they have 800 or so out for a pep rally?

There has been some complaining on the part of upper classmen about the poor showing of school spirit by the freshmen at times this year. Well, I've got news for you, friend—about 1,400 of them wonder why you think they should do the whole job when you won't back the team with 30 minutes of your time a week.

A lot of us have backbones like wet noodles. When the Raiders are ahead, we cheer with gusto, but if they get even six points behind, it get's quiet as Aggie grove on Friday night. The Raiders need us when they are ahead, sure, but they need us even more when they are behind.

Pep rallies are our chance to boost school spirit. Think it over. LeRoi Ogden

* What can we say? The pep rally tomorrow night should give us upperclassmen a chance to redeem ourselves in the eyes of the football players, freshmen and hard-working cheerleaders.—Ed.

Dear Editor:

It probably came as a distinct surprise to some freshmen and also to some upper classmen to read in the Oct. 7 Toreador that Texas Tech was competing in a Border conference tennis meet.

Most tennis players and would-be tennis players on the campus did not know that the tennis team

jimmie henley's heap

Breaking a tradition of only three years standing is difficult sometimes, but West Texas State found a means Saturday of virtually assuring the breaking of the tradition in Border conference football.

That Tech could produce a champion year after year is somewhat ambitious, although a very pleasing thought. West Texas definitely has the team with which to win. What will it mean for Tech?

It might mean the prolonging of entrance into the hoped for berth in the Southwest conference. At the first of the season hope of transplanting of the school into the conference looked very bright. Tech, with a larger enrollment than five schools in the conference, held great promise as they played against the perhaps overrated Longhorns.

But the past two weeks have shattered hopes of quick entrance into the conference. If Tech can't win its own conference, can't produce basketball and track teams comparable to Southwest conference squads and doesn't have a baseball team, what outlook can be taken?

Doubtless the schools of the senior conference will frown upon Tech when the issue comes up again.

Meanwhile the Border conference holds promise of disintegrating. New Mexico has already arranged to move out, Hardin-Simmons and Tech both are trying.

Does Tech want out of the Border conference, or just into the Southwest conference?

University of Houston wanted to enter SWC but found it favorable to leave the loop they were in, going to the Missouri Valley conference, one which certainly was not the least bit logical geographically. Will Tech wait forever on the Southwest conference.

Border conference football seems to be approaching the status of Border conference basketball.*

(*West Texas and Tech do not play football on a home and home basis.)

Then there is the freshman who missed the bitter loss Saturday because an upperclassman made him give his activity ticket to a friend.

Some schools put pictures of the owners on their athletic tickets.

running department. Harding was Texas' class A high school sprint champion in 1948.

The Horned Frog line has been considered weaker than the 1949 version. But, good performances against Kansas and Arkansas have raised its prestige.

The TCU forward wall has been sparked, so far, by the work of tackles Willie Mathis and Norman Hughes.

Loss of Clarence Marable, counted on for stardom this season, has weakened the line considerably. Marable has not completely recovered from a knee injury sustained in mid-season of last year.

Expected to reach their peak later in the season, Tech's improving Red Raiders have been brought along slowly by Coach Dell Morgan this year.

Their backfield may be expected to score often against any Southwest conference team, as demonstrated in games with Texas U. and Texas A&M.

A key to the game may lie in the ability of the Raider line to cope with a new offensive formation of the Horned Frogs which involves characteristics of both the T and double wing formations.

The quarterback and fullback are positioned as in the regular T formation. Halfbacks are stationed directly behind the ends.

Both quick breaking plays and spinners can be run from the system allowing for many change-of-pace selections by the quarterback. Double wing and spread formations will be used along with the hybrid.

Game time and place is 8:00 p.m. in TCU stadium.

Led By Bob Cavazos And Norman Jones Whites Defeat Reds In Freshman Game

The Whites, led by the running of Bob Cavazos and Norman Jones, defeated the Reds 27-14 Friday evening in the second intra-squad freshman football game.

Bob Cavazos took the opening kick-off on his own four-yard line and raced 96 yards down the right sideline for the first touchdown of the game. Hodges kicked the extra point and the Whites led 7-0.

Charlie Williams received Hodges' kick-off on the goal line and advanced only five yards before being smothered by the Whites. Three plays later the Reds were forced to kick. James took Raybourn's punt on his own 40-yard marker and would have gone all the way had he not tripped over one of his own men on the Red's 25-yard line. On the first play from scrimmage James caught a pass from Moe Turner, quarterback, and ran 20 yards to score. Hodges converted and the Whites led 14-0 at the end of the first quarter.

In the third the Reds got back into the game when Don Douglass, left halfback, scored from the nine yard line. Raybourn converted.

James took the kickoff on his own 13 and ran 84 yards before being hauled down on the three by Whittaker. In two plays Cavazos advanced the ball to within five inches of the goal and James powered over center for the touchdown. Cavazos' kick was wide and the score remained 20-7.

Early in the fourth the Reds scored again when Paul Stuart caught a 20-yard pass behind the goal from Bobby Clark. Raybourn converted and the Whites' lead was cut to 20-14.

James took the kickoff again on his own three and raced 97 yards down the right sideline to cross the double stripe standing. Hodges kicked the extra point and the scoring ended with the Whites ahead 27-14.

West Texas Gains Edge On Border Crown, 28-13

By JIM HOLLEMAN
Toreador Sports Editor

A slugging last half that nearly resulted in a free-for-all was the feature of Tech's 13-28 loss to the West Texas State Buffaloes, Saturday night.

The victory for the Buffaloes puts them in the commanding spot for the Border conference championship. West Texas had defeated Arizona university, who last Saturday downed the Hardin-Simmons cowboys, 32-28.

Nearly 100 total yards in penalties were assessed and two players were ejected from the game during the half-hour slugfest.

Elbows, knees and sometimes fists were thrown by players on both sides. Such action was noticeable but not too extreme during the second quarter.

In the fourth quarter Tech end Dick Cavazos and West Texas center Bob Kelley were ordered off the field by officials when they exchanged unpleasanties near the Tech 12 yard-line.

In general, such activity was the only unusual exertion on the part of Tech players. Line play was sluggish and ineffective.

Buffalo backs Bill Cross and Charles Wright seemed able to gain at will. Cross rolled to 158 yards rushing to lead all ball carriers for the night. Wright followed closely with 135.

The bouncing Cross was star of the night. Seemingly impossible to tackle in an open field, the stocky fullback rolled to three of his team's touchdowns.

On his jaunt of 51 yards for West Texas' first score, Cross was hit by virtually every man in the Tech backfield, none of whom could make a tackle secure.

In the second quarter, Cross received a "basketball" pass from Mayfield in the right flat and sprinted to his second touchdown. A one yard plunge brought his third score.

Fullback Earl Jackson again starred for the Raiders on offense. Rolling up 137 yards, the husky speedster was spectacular in his line plunges.

Refusing to be wrestled down, Jackson carried several West Texas players with him during a 17-yard gain in the third quarter.

On the last play of the first quarter, Jackson took a pitch out from Edwards on his own 36 and broke away for a 48 yard gain before being downed by Airhart on the West Texas 16 yard line.

Earl J. Chisholm, 1950 Tech graduate, is with the Kewanee Oil company in Midland.

Actually the "varsity" tennis team is not under the jurisdiction of the Athletic council.

Glen Ivy, leader of the Tech netters, explains that while there is nothing official about the team as yet a deal is on the fire to correct that situation.

To anyone wishing to try out for the team Ivy suggests that they report to Tech varsity courts in the afternoon. They will be given every chance to make the team.

It is hoped that official status for the team can be obtained in the near future. Until that time, activities of the group will be conducted informally.

According to Ivy, he may be reached either at the tennis courts in the afternoon or at his office, Ad317—Sports Editor.

Boxing gloves will hereafter be standard equipment for Red Raider football teams.

Saturday's game with West Texas demonstrated the need for that extra equipment. Skinned knuckles can very easily be as uncomfortable as sprains and bruises.

Concern over this part of a player's trappings was expressed by many observers of last weekend's exhibition of skill and science by West Texas and Tech.

Certainly if such injuries are to occur, preventative treatment can not be done without. In as much as the boys are inclined to become a trifle over enthusiastic in carrying out their duties it seems only reasonable that the athletic department should provide additional padding to prevent any subsequent manual injuries.

It is hard to center a ball, hand it off or pass with bruised hands. This phase of the game cannot be ignored.

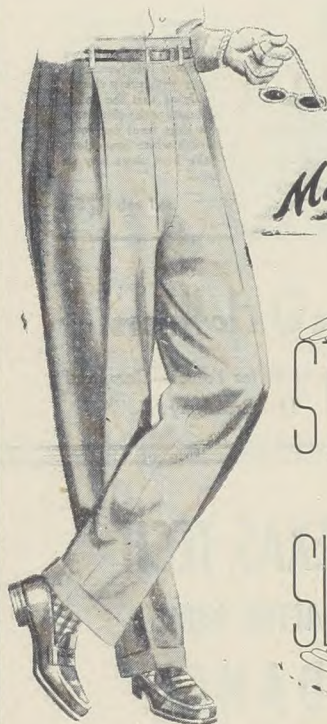

A requisition for the gloves should be turned in by the athletic officials immediately. There is an interesting game with TCU coming up this week and the Raiders should not be forced to face the Horned Frogs unprepared.

Tension should be greatly relieved after the West Texas game. Raiders need no longer worry about the Border conference championship.

West Texas should be able to take care of future opponents. The Arizona defeat of HSU has virtually eliminated the Cowboys from the picture.

However, playing their games one at a time, the Raiders should be able to improve their dismal score this season. They have now discovered that a "good showing" never equals a victory.

Success against Texas U. can be forgotten. Victories over the smaller schools will not now be held in such disdain as in previous years. The fact that football is also played in the Border conference is clearly impressed on the Matadors.

Tech Wool Champs Seek Third Title

Tech's wool judging team will leave Friday morning for the fourth annual Intercollegiate Wool Judging contest held in connection with the American Royal Livestock show at Kansas City, Kan. H. Ray Burkhardt, assistant professor of animal husbandry, said.

The judging is sponsored by the Mid-West Wool Market co-operative and will include both judging and grading of wool.

A challenge trophy will be presented to the winning team by the Kansas City Star. Tech won the contest in 1947 and 1949.

Three team members and one alternate were chosen Tuesday night from seven who worked out. Those working out were Jimmy Guseberry, Sonora; R. B. Miller, Friona; Alvin Nored, Fort Worth; Joe Reppetto, Fort Worth; R. I. Collingsworth, Abilene; Vestal Shipman, Lubbock; Paul Gross, Levelland.

The team, accompanied by Burkhardt will return to Lubbock Oct. 17.

Freshmen class has the largest enrollment with 1,626, second is the senior class with 1,329. Junior class numbers 1,075 while the sophomores have 973. Enrolled as graduate students are 469.

The figures show that arts and science division is the largest with 1,635 students and engineering is second with 1,159. Enrolled in business administration are 1,068, agricultural division 793 and home economics 348.
