Awards Made To Tech Coeds Tuesday Night

Girls With "B" Average During Enrollment In Tech Are Recognized In Ceremony

Sponsored By AWS

All Girls Are Dressed In White; Accompanied By Page With Bouquet

AWARDS were made to 71 outstanding coeds of Texas Tech in the third annual Recognition service Tuesday night on the south lawn of the Administration building.

Recognition was given for distinctive work in campus activities and for scholarship. All girls recognized had maintained at least a B average during their enrollment at Tech.

The procession began at the Home Economics building and advanced to the chairs facing the Double T bench south of the Administration building. Each girl to be recognized walked with her freshman page. All were dressed in white spectator sports dresses. As her name was called, each girl advanced to the platform and received a bouquet from her page.

The public was invited to a reception which followed the service. This Recognition service was sponsored by the Association of Women Students and the Quarterly club, a faculty women's organization. Miss Johnny Gilkerson was chairman of the general arrangements committee.

Girls recognized included: Florence Anderson, Mrs. Florence Ashmore, Jean Ayres, Coleta Baker, Anna Mary Bawson, Mary Etta Eason, Ruth Reed Bearden, Frances Ruth Benson, Fannie Bratcher, Pauline Buie, Novelle Dussey, Louise Campbell, Evaughn Clark, Dollie Clements, Dorothy Frank Clements, Geraldine Clewell, Irma Lynn Coleman, Allie Rae Collins, Mary Catherine Couch, Emily Davis, Ruth Douglas, Elizabeth Dryden, Irene Fletcher, Evelynne Garlington, Lela Gill, Evelyn Gullede, Virginia Hash, Mrs. G. Geologists In Summer Trip

Dr. Patton Heads Eighth Annual Field Course Given In New Mexico Mountains

Plans for the eighth annual geology field course which will be held from June 7 until July 19 in the Sangre de Cristo Mountains of New Mexico, 33 miles east of Santa Fe, have been announced by Dr. Leroy T. Patton, professor and head of the department of geology and geological engineering.

Expenses for the course include a deposit of $45 for each student; it will cover all necessary living expenses while in the field, transportation from Lubbock to the field and the return trip, and all transportation while in the field.

Credit Will Be Given

Students satisfactorily completing the course will be given credit for six semesters. Dr. Patton stated. All students are eligible to take advantage of the trip, but geology majors are especially urged to go.

While emphasis will be placed on academic work and students will be expected to devote themselves strenuously to this work, reasonable opportunity will be given for recreation. Dr. Patton declared. "The area," he adds, "is one of beautiful mountain scenery. The party will camp out during the entire six weeks. The camps will be located at elevations of 7,000 to 8,000 feet above sea level."

The field chosen contains igneous and metamorphic rocks of Precambrian, Permian, Triassic, Jurassic, and Cretaceous systems. Here are also illustrated many principles of physiography, and abundant problems of structural geology may be found.

Tech Archeologists Trek To Mexico City In July

Class Will Spend Four Weeks In Reading, Travelling And Inspection of Ruins, Museums, and Galleries

FROM semi-arid desert country through tropical forests and over high mountains will be the exciting road of Tech's archeologists this summer to Mexico City, where they will spend four weeks in reading, travelling, lectures, and inspection of ruins, museums, art galleries, libraries, palaces, and monuments.

The class will leave July 19 and return August 23 by way of Laredo, Monterrey, Victoria, Valles, and Tamazunchale to Mexico City. Official excursions will be made to Toluca, Cuernavaca, Cholula, Puebla, Xochimilco, Guadalupe, Teotihuacan, and Oaxaca.

One of the interesting features of the trip will be a trip across a

Club Officers Are Installed At Banquet

Block and Bridle Club Sponsors Annual Event When Thompson Gives Principal Speech

C. P. Thompson, Stillwater, Okla., national president of the Block and Bridle organization, was the principal speaker at the annual banquet of the Texas Tech unit at Hotel Lubbock Saturday night.

Mr. Thompson was in charge when the Tech club, the "embryo" club of the nation, was accepted into the national body last December.

Winners of the annual sophomore-junior and freshman livestock judging contests held Saturday were announced and new officers inducted into office at the meeting.

Holly, Toastmaster

Odis Holly, outgoing president, acted as toastmaster for the occasion.

Henry Elder, Cuero junior and high man of the judging contest, was presented with a silver plaque. As a freshman, the Cuero student won first in that contest. G. T. Henry, sixth man and ranking sophomore, won the first year contest in 1933.

Club trophies were used in decorating the room. Following the serving of the meal, Truman Burleson entertained with the guitar.

Guests were presented after President Holly gave his annual report. W. L. Stange, sponsor of the club, presented the visitors, including: Claude Tatum, president Economy Mills; C. Luker, vocational agricultural instructor; Don L. Jones, superintendent state experiment farm; R. C. Harvey, Armour and Company; and J. Sam Lewis, Avallanche-Journal.

Talks Made

Short talks were delivered by the visiting Oklahomans, A. E. Darlow and C. P. Thompson of Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanical college, Stillwater, who judged the contests. Participants were complimented on their work.

Members of the senior livestock judging team were presented medals by Jot Smyth. They were: Jesse Young, T. J. Leach, E. R. Steen, Bob L. Gregory, Odis Holly, and E. Barton, who was not present at the meeting.

Members of the junior team at Fort Worth were also introduced: Casey Fine, H. Davis, H. Elder, and L. H. Hargrave. W. C. Murray was absent.

New officers for the coming year are: Casey Fine, president; Billy Murray, vice-president; L. M. Hargrave, secretary; Henry Elder, treasurer and L. Shipman, marshal.

Brandt Gets Note In 'Textile World'

"Recent tests of Professor Carl D. Brandt, head of the Textile department of Texas Technological college, indicate that the familiar formula for cotton yarn twist is not flexible enough, but should be replaced by a new one explained by Brandt in a series of three articles in this magazine."

The above quotation was from the editor's note of one of a series of three articles written by Professor Brandt for the "Textile World," the largest textile magazine in the United States.

Brandt has been conducting experiments for a new formula for cotton twist, which may revolutionize the twist formula for cotton.

He has used stapled cotton in his experiment to make stronger yarn.

President of National Block and Bridle Club Assists in Saturday Tournament

TWO points separated the first and second men in the annual sophomore-junior livestock judging contest held Saturday in the pavilion. The affair was sponsored by the Block and Bridle club of the animal husbandry department.

A. E. Darlow of the animal husbandry department at Oklahoma A. and M., Stillwater, was judge of the contest. The Oklahoman was assisted by C. P. Thompson, head of the swine department and president of the National Block and Bridle organization.

Winners Announced

Winners were announced at the annual banquet of the Block and Bridle club Saturday night at Hotel Lubbock.

High men and points scored were H. Elder, 921; Casey Fine, 919; L. M. Hargrove, 904; L. Shipman, 902; H. Brunley, 897; G. T. Henry, 896; Sid Donnell, 893; Floyd Wilkes, 887; R. C. Mitchell, 886 and H. Davis, 886.

In judging contests, placings and points were: Hogs: L. Shipman, 233; H. Elder, 228; Casey Fine, 227; L. M. Hargrove and J. P. Smith, 226.

Calves: Floyd Wilkes, 23 with placing of 47; H. Elder, 89 with placing of 44; G. T. Henry, 88; H. Wills, 86; L. M. Hargrove, Sid Donnell, Casey Fine 85; and Roy Dunlap, 84.

Sheep: H. Brunley, 243; H. Elder, 240; G. T. Henry, 236; Casey Fine, 235; Sid Donnell, L. M. Hargrove and Floyd Wilkes, 230.

Dairy cattle: Fred Elliott, 146; Floyd Wilkes, 144; Casey Fine, 143; R. C. Mitchell, 140; H. Wills, H. Brunley, G. P. Smith and Paul Wilkins, 136.

Results in the Freshman contest were: L. Hudson, Wellington, high man in the entire contest; L. Hudson, high man in horse judging; W. McAlester, Floyd, N. M., high man in hog judging; Jack Reed, Ralls high man in beef cattle; W. McAlester, high man in dairy cattle; and Sam Hill, Nocona, high man in sheep.

DEBATE CLUB HAS MEETING

Debate club had its final meeting of the year last Wednesday in room 209 of the Administration building to elect an executive committee to have charge of the Debate club until officers are elected next year.

Members of the committee are: Fred Barron, chairman, Alton Hankins, and Clay Thompson.

Teachers, meet your friends at La Fonda for the recreation hour, 2406 Main street. Room and board $22.50.

"Death Takes A Holiday" Is Presented By Sock and Buskin Tuesday Night

UNUSUAL lighting effects created a supernatural atmosphere for "Death Takes A Holiday," a three act play presented by Alpha Pi Omega and Sock and Buskin, Tuesday night in the high school auditorium.

Lloyd Marr, who played the part of Death, in the guise of a mortal man, stirred his audience to excitement. Charles Maedgen as his host, unwilling and frightened, played his part well. Verlena Stringer, as one of the women who was fascinated by Death's strange charm, and Dorrae West, as the girl who loved him enough to follow him out of life, were both convincing. All other parts were executed satisfactorily.

Death Takes Holiday

The great hall of Duke Lambert (Maedgen), provided a beautiful setting for the unusual action of the play. Death decides to take a three-day holiday, during which nothing shall die, in the home of Duke Lambert. He learns that love is the one thing that makes men fear death. He makes two futile attempts, one on Rhoda Fenton (Marjorie St. John), a beautiful young girl, and the other on Alda,

La Ventana To Be Given Out May 30

Annual Has The Largest Feature Section In History

TWELVE hundred La Ventanas left Iowa City, Iowa, Tuesday at noon to arrive in Lubbock Saturday. They will be given out May 30.

There will be 320 pages in the annual with an index of the students appearing in the yearbook and the page number on which they appear.

The largest number of feature pages ever to appear in a La Ventana will be in the fifty-five page section of this year's annual.

There are subdivision sketches all through the book. Texas Under Six Flags is the theme of the annual in keeping with the Texas Centennial to be held in 1936.

Cover design of the annual is black and silver. Personality sketches accompany the eight beauties chosen by Penrhyn Stanlans, internationally known artist.

Sport section of the annual has been carefully prepared with every Tech sport covered completely.

Bruce Zorns, editor of the La Ventana, said that the dedication page would be unique and unusual in keeping with the theme of the annual. Sixteen staff members have worked on this year's annual.

Adams Speaks To Frosh Engineers In Annual Award

Dean O. V. Adams, head of the Engineering division was the principal speaker at a convocation of freshman engineering students last Saturday morning when certificates for the best work in free-hand lettering was awarded to four men.

The annual contest for freshman engineers is divided into four groups and the best card of lettering is selected from each by members of the department of engineering Drawing. Information on cards relates to a card hanging in room E 263, which has four parts. These cards have been framed and will hang beneath the hangings mentioned above.

This year's winners are: Robert E. Houston, Dysart Holcomb, H. A. Holcomb, and Jacob Sodd. Honorable mention went to Lyle Donaldson, William Davis, R. L. Read, Owen King, and Morrison Arnett.

As a reward, a certificate of proficiency in lettering was awarded each first place winner in his respective group and a pencil.

Cotton School Scheduled 3 Weeks This Summer

A Cotton school will be sponsored by the Textile department of Texas Tech some time this summer lasting three weeks. There will be a special staff to take care of the school, including ginners, cotton buyers, and perhaps special instructors from Washington. The school will last all day for the three-week term.

A special course in cotton grading and handweaving will be taught the first six weeks of the summer school, and a special three weeks course will be taught later on in the summer.

Other Parts

The parts in the play were: Cora, the maid, Eulalia Henderson; Fedale, the butler, Jimmy Roberts; Duchess Stephanie, Minnie Horton; Baron Cesare, Billy Crenshaw; Eric Fenton, Melvin Schumpert, and Major Whitbread, Charles O'Neill.

Miss Ruth Pirtie directed the play, assisted by Wynona Gilbreath. Miss Annah Jo Pendleton had charge of the lighting effects; Zona Siles and Harriette Roach, properties and costumes; Lloyd Marr, make-up; Calvin Hazlewood, publicity; John Gray, stage manager, and Dave Luttrall and Fred Barron, his assistants.

Orchestra music before the play and between the acts was under the direction of Harry LeMaire.

Commencement Exercises To Take Place In College Gym June 5; Program Announced

W. G. McMillian To Build Senior Gift

According to William Luce, senior engineer, W. G. McMillian, contractor of senior gift, has promised that the marker now being constructed at Broadway and College will be completed before commencement. The marker is being built of reinforced concrete with bronze lettering.

A list of seniors who have not paid for the gift has been posted on the bulletin board outside Dean J. M. Gordon's office. These are asked to pay senior officers or committee members immediately.

Tickets to the senior banquet may be bought today in the east rotunda of the Administration building.

Tech Men Are To Coach Here

Ross Ayers and Bennie McWilliams... Are Assigned Jobs With Lubbock High School

Two former members of the Matador football team from 1930 to 1933 are to be placed on the coaching staff of Lubbock High school, according to members of the local school board in a meeting last Tuesday night.

Ross Ayers, captain of the 1932 team and Bennie McWilliams, team guard for three years will be installed as assistant coach and physical director respectively.

Both boys will receive their B. A. degrees from Tech this spring during the summer session. Ayers has not attended school this year, but has been employed in this section during his absence from the classroom. McWilliams will be remembered for his work at tackle position during the three years that he played under P. W. Cawthon. He has recently returned from a six-week's expedition into the Yaqui sector of Old Mexico where he served in the capacity of interpreter for the Tech archaeological party.

Dairy Club Holds Annual Banquet

Ralph Doughtie, manager of the local Swift and Company plant, was the principal speaker at the second annual Dairy club banquet Friday night, May 18. Thirty-eight members and special guests attended the dinner, which was prepared by the Home Economics cooking class, and served in the Home Economics tea room.

Professor K. M. Renner, head of the dairy manufacturing department, was the toastmaster for the evening. Winners in the dairy judging contest were announced by Arthur Prichard, Tech creamery manager.

The winners are: first place, Joe Liles; second place, Curtis Scharnberg; and third place, Howard A. Price. The annual affair marked the last gathering of the organization for the current year.

Catering to the women students as well as the men is the La Fonda policy for the summer.

Olson rug manufacturers have offered to furnish a rug free of charge for use in a bedroom of the Home Management house in return for the privilege of using photographs of the room. Dean Margaret W. Weeks said Tuesday.

The bedroom is being furnished in the contemporary style by students in the applied arts department under the direction of Miss Harriet Tilden. The rug offered was on display at the World's fair last year.

Dean Weeks said the Home Economics division would probably accept the gift.

CO-OPERATION ASKED

Bob Phillips, foreman of the CWA paving on the campus has issued an appeal to the student body of the college to observe the traffic signs on the newly paved roads. Students who park in the driveways hinder the workmen from completing the last stages of the paving project.

One of the practices that the students must stop in driving over the curbing and over the newly planted grass, Phillips stated.

"Thirty"

WE have come to the end of the way. This, the last issue of The Toreador for this year, marks the thirty-fifth issue and last number of volume IX. The Staff has worked resolutely, trying to make the paper a live, worthy one for any college. It has been our ultimate purpose to make the stories of The Toreador so reflect college life, and to make the pages shine with such originality and freshness that the student in after years can point back to the issues with satisfaction, seeing his own college year reflected in its columns.

The Staff has seen remarkable changes and unmistakable signs of progress during the year. Above all, in respect to the paper's own development, is the installation of the printing plant. It has given impetus to the work, and it has enabled the Staff to print a more accurate paper with more timely news. It has given us the opportunity to see the practical side of newspaper work.

The year has been remarkable for its changes and advancement for Tech. The roads have been paved, and two dormitories are being built, due largely to the initiative of our President. We have seen one of the oldest Tech traditions be no more—that of the bonfire—but to the best interests of the college and student body. We have completed the first year on the semester basis. All student officers were elected by a different system. The year has been unusual and the Staff is glad to have been a part of it.

The Toreador has advocated and condemned many things in its editorial columns during the year, which the Staff considered pertinent to the betterment of the college; as dormitories, roads, ticket booth, gambling devices, better entertainment, college studio, and many others. There are many more problems to solve, and more changes to make to improve the present set-up.

The Toreador has made mistakes—reluctantly, unknowingly, humanly—but the Staff has done its best. We hand over The Toreador to next year's staff with hesitation and regrets, but with joy, because of the new problems, new situations, and a greater Tech, whose story must be chronicled again.

I REVIEW WITH ALARM

BY HERBERT R. SOUTHWORTH

THE reader, carried along by the exciting prose of The French Revolution, may yearn from his easy chair for the excitement of the Champ-de Mars. So may the reader of another Carlyle a hundred years from now wish himself recklessly into the past, into the exciting days of a world depression, when men starved for want of bread, and wheat spoiled for want of a buyer, and statesmen scratched their pates in vain to find a way to cut the circle, their every passage of escape blocked by the printed pages of some professor of economics, long gone to his holy rest. For is it not written that what has not been sold for a profit cannot justly be eaten?

These are stirring days, but it will be more pleasurable to read about them from the historical vantage point of a hundred years than it is to live through them on an empty stomach as many sterling patriots are doing. It has been some time since I have heard that expression "the land of opportunity," applied usually in such nauseating fashion to this great republic. But then I have not heard a commencement address for some years and I am not sanguine enough to believe that it will not soon be trotted out again on a hundred platforms along with all the other outworn phrases so useful to those beaming gentlemen who dispense sunshine, light and optimism; who tell the sweet girls and the earnest boys at graduation time that God is in his heaven, that the depression is over, that virtue is rewarded and that Mary had a little lamb.

AND yet, it is rather obvious to all but such speakers, that if these graduates have in the course of four years learned anything at all they know that the speaker is either a liar or a fool or both. For those who graduate this year will go out into a world very unfriendly and very inhospitable. It is a planless world and why should not these graduates, fortified by the wisdom of the ages, bulwarked by modern scholarship, be told in plain words of the problems that face them?

As they walk across the platform to receive their diplomas, they stand symbolically on the crumbling battlefields of an outworn, capitalistic economy; on the right yawns the fearful pit of fascism, capitalism by violence, patented by Mussolini and improved by Hitler; to the left is industrial democracy, a planned economy, an efficient organization for the distribution of social production. In the next ten years in all probability every one of those graduates still living will have to choose between the two economic schools. But the commencement speakers will say nothing of these matters; they will rather bluster about such dynamic subjects as "Honesty is the best policy."

MANY of these graduates will be faced with war. Some of them will grow rich through the sale of cannons and bullets. Others will die from these munitions. Some will cry out against the stupidity of an American worker's killing a Japanese worker for the glorified sake of trade and these unpatriotic rascals will be rewarded with the privilege of drawing caricatures with a button on the stone walls of Leavenworth. Some less scrupulous intellectuals will discover that the Japanese are rapists supreme and that they cut off babies' hands before breakfast every morning and these bright boys will receive the gratitude of a nation as did Lord Bryce, Sir Gilbert Parker and George Creel in the last great world fracas. But again we need not be disturbed. The question of war and nationalism, of munitions profiteers, of lying propagandists, of worker killing worker for the glory of God—that is not why the commencement speaker fumbles around for his glass of water. No, he has just started his famous discourse on "A stitch in time saves nine."

The graduate is going out into a world where we are all to be made prosperous by producing less. We shall clothe the naked by growing less cotton. We shall put a pig in every poke by the simple expedient of killing off the surplus hogs, raising the price on the remainder of the litter and selling it to the unemployed worker, who has borrowed five dollars from his brother to tide him over the strike for higher wages and union recognition, both of which objectives were guaranteed to him in the National Recovery Act of a year or so ago; but which the boss has not heard about because he has been so busy out making Blue Eagle whoop-em-up speeches, and framing with his former competitors on how to raise prices and cut the consumer's throat, that he has not had time to read the little code he signed.

BUT all that would be rather dull and uninspiring stuff for commencement. Why remind the young and eager that as production is curtailed the national wealth decreases? That it is sheer cowardice to attack the problem of distribution in the shoddy way in which it is being done? That such behavior tends further and further to contract the frontiers of the mythical land of opportunity? Perhaps because if there is any haven in the world for truth, it should be in the school.

But the commencement speaker bothers with no such trifles. With an expansive smile, despite the perspiration and the whiffles, he has pounded out his point: "We, the American people, have become great through our pioneers." It will never occur to him that there are new fields for the pioneers today, not though the plaster from the walls of his jerry-built palace of Pollyasa prosperity sprinkle down upon him as he pounds the table.

Ecclesiastes 12:8—Vanity of vanities, saith the Preacher; all is vanity.

When properly interpreted, the book of Ecclesiastes teaches vividly the immortality of the soul. Here was a man surrounded by everything this world offers—wealth, position, rank, and power—yet he declares all to be vanity. His soul would not be satisfied, because he had not found God.

Because of this fact four members decided that it was not healthy to eat peanut butter and crackers alone. The name of the fraternity has been dropped and more wholesome food is being eaten by the boys when their stomachs demand attention. Possibly they will rename the fraternity "Eta Beta Spinach Fraternity."

Via the DePaulia we learn that a college man is made up of the following "actions": Registration, contemplation, procrastination, examination, preparation, consternation and probation... and we might add, "inebriation."

According to H. C. Witwer, college-bred refers to something which is seldom self-raising, and usually proves to be nothing more or less than a four-year loaf.

CANDIDATE FOR County
Superintendent
LUBBOCK COUNTY,
TEXAS

TEACHER IN LUBBOCK COUNTY FOR PAST SIX YEARS

I want to be elected County Superintendent, but do not mean for it to be the climax of my teaching experience or a turning point from school work to a business career. The experience I will gain while serving as an efficient County Superintendent will help me to rise in my chosen profession of teacher and school administrator.

QUALIFICATIONS:

- Bachelor of Arts Degree from Texas Tech.
- Major study in school administration.
- Four years experience as head of rural schools.
- Four years teaching experience in city schools.
- A personal sympathy for teacher and patron.
- Enthusiasm.

IF ELECTED, I PLEDGE MYSELF TO:

- Co-operate with county board, trustees, teachers and patrons.
- Visit the Lubbock County schools regularly.
- Operate the office as economically as efficiency permits.
- Welcome all friends of public education to my office.
- Serve cheerfully and impartially.

JOSEPH R. GRIGGS.

Paragraphs
BY BRADFORD KNAPP

If this is the last issue of the Toreador for this college year, it should bring very definite memories, and it would be a great time to take stock of what we are doing. It has been a great year. The student body has been unusually fine. We backed the football team. We settled into harness last fall in fairly good shape. We have seen great changes take place. With the new printing plant established, the Toreador has taken on new hope and an expanding program for the new year.

We have seen the campus torn up and a part of the paving program completed. We have begun to see the new day dawning ahead of us when a fourth of our students at least can be housed on the campus itself. On Commencement day we are turning out a fine class of young men and young women to carry the banner of Tech with them into the active field of life. The new year lies ahead with new leaders, new plans, and new enthusiasm. Our hopes and aspirations lie with those who are going out with these new diplomas. What they do will have much influence on the good standing of this institution.

THE graduating exercises are important. I think those students who miss them until they become seniors and are up for graduation themselves are wrong and are apt to miss events which can be and will be an inspiration to them through the remainder of their college career. After all, the graduating exercises at commencement constitute the culminating event of college life. In grasping the hand of each graduate as he receives his diploma, I feel that I am personally, and as the representative of the entire college organization, placing our stamp of approval upon each individual and wishing him success in life.

May I convey to the entire student body my appreciation for the prompt and fine reaction of every one at the mass meeting of students held Friday morning, May 11. The reaction of the students in this matter, and the fine editorial in the Toreador of May 17, simply verified my own judgment that the vast majority of all students at this college want those things which are right and that they fully appreciate the real objectives of Texas Tech as an educational institution. I want to thank every one for their support of a creditable program.

I cannot close these comments which I have made from week to week without some expression of my own personal appreciation and confidence in the staff and faculty of the college. It is great to work with men and women of such intelligence and devotion. We may make our mistakes. I am conscious of my own, but when all is said and done, it is wonderfully reassuring to come to the close of a year during which sacrifices have been made and the rule has been the high ideal of service in the cause of a true education.

The other day I ran across this very interesting definition of an educated man written by Dr. Eliot of Harvard university: "An educated man is one who has formed the habit of doing with extraordinary excellence anything for the benefit of mankind." That definition is very close to the one I have always used myself: "Education is that training which fits one the better to perform the task in life which normally are going to become his or her tasks." In the new day, and in the reorganized social, economic, and political world which, it seems to me, is coming upon us, we shall think much more of service to our fellowmen than we shall of financial gain. A new standard of success in life is going to be set up with more unselfish service and much less emphasis on financial gain.

May I thank every one of you for your service and extend to every one, students and faculty
