

Britisher Blasts WABD

NEW YORK, March 7 (AP) — Randolph Churchill left for England after a verbal explosion in a television interview. But his trip home was prearranged and not the result of suggestions by some viewers.

The television station—WABD—received more than 600 telephone calls after Sir Winston Churchill's son blew up Thursday night on John Wingate's "Night Beat" program.

"AFTER his public performance last night," Wingate said, "I have no idea of what Sir Winston, for whom I have some respect, thinks of his son, and I don't give a damn."

The whole thing started when Wingate indirectly brought up Randolph's sister, actress Sarah Churchill, who was fined in California last Jan. 16 for public drunkenness.

WITHOUT mentioning the charge against her, Wingate asked: "Do you think the American press took unfair advantage of the Churchill name in obviously an unfortunate situation?"

"If you wish to discuss the press coverage with me, why didn't your hack you sent to see me at my hotel this morning bring it up? I don't know. Because you wished to spring it on me.

"I WOULDN'T think of asking you about your sisters. I don't bother to look up what your sisters had done or what your mother has done or what your father was. I don't even know if you had a father, or if you know who your father was. I don't know and I couldn't care less, but if I did know I wouldn't seek to drag that in.

"YOU'RE MAKING money out of this. I'm not getting a farthing out of it. Why the hell should I let myself be bullied around and kicked around by you. No, I won't allow it. I'm a citizen of a free country and we can do as we like and say as we like. We're not frightened of television. We do as we choose and we just don't take it lying down.

"If you choose to spring a thing on me like this, I don't mind. Do as you please. Your shame is on your head."

Churchill had been in this country on a lecture tour.

MORE PROPAGANDA

Ike Checks New Note

President Eisenhower was reported today to regard Soviet Premier Bulganin's new letter as a propaganda document which fails to ease the East-West deadlock on terms of a summit meeting.

The President reviewed a 16-page translation of the latest Kremlin message as top aides predicted it would be rejected swiftly and emphatically.

They denounced Bulganin's proposals, made public by Moscow today, as a rehash of previously rejected points clearly aimed at propaganda instead of serious negotiation.

Bulganin's goal, they said, appeared to be to picture the United States as sternly and unreasonably spurning a Soviet offer to end the cold war.

Secretary of State Dulles, in leaving for a 10-day visit to the Far East, declined to comment. But, he said the White House probably would make an initial reply soon.

Authorities who studied it said the nine proposals advanced by Bulganin were virtually a word-for-word reiteration of the seven the State Department turned down in a formal diplomatic note yesterday.

Navy Stalls

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla., March 7 (AP)—The Navy called off an attempt to launch its Vanguard satellite test vehicle today but indicated it would try again as soon as possible—in daylight hours.

"Minor technical difficulties" were blamed for today's postponement. The nature of the trouble was not disclosed, but the three-stage Vanguard is a sensitive, complex space machine and it has had to withstand some heavy rains—among other hazards—within the past two weeks.

Adverse weather or renewed mechanical or electrical difficulties, if they prevented a new try tomorrow, would push the launching date for the Baltimore-built Martin Co. vehicle over into next week.

Woo! Woo!

TWO RIVERS, Wis., March 7 (AP)—A runaway switch engine pulling nine freight cars thundered through two neighboring port cities and plunged into Lake Michigan today, but authorities still had not learned tonight whether anyone was at the controls.

The diesel went on its wild seven-mile dash through two cities Page 3, AP . . .

Ghost Leaves Calling Card

How would you like to find a tombstone in your "tub"? Recently a boy in one of the Tech dorms experienced mixed emotions upon making such a discovery.

He found what appeared to be a baby's tombstone complete with name and dates of birth and death in one of the dorm bath tubs.

Some practical joker had planted the tombstone, actually only a dealer's sample.

Jobless Figures Reach New Mark

WASHINGTON, March 7 (AP)—The highest unemployment figure in 16 years will be announced next week, officials said today.

The new figure of 5,100,000 jobless in February represents an increase of more than 600,000 over January.

DEMOCRATIC SENATE Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas announced the Defense Department is speeding up the spending of about 450 million dollars on Job-producing military construction projects in areas where people are looking for work.

Johnson, saying the nation's unemployed now number between five and six million, told a news conference he will press for Senate action on major measures in providing jobs.

In this connection he mentioned appropriations, housing, highway and education bills, and said:

"I think we can pick up some 200,000 to 500,000 jobs by government projects, it should have a good psychological effect upon the country."

Hidden Hippo Hunted

DELAND, Fla., (AP)—Otto the hippo was on the loose today. He was being hunted on foot, horseback and by plane in creeks, marshes and all up and down the wide St. Johns River — a very happy swimming ground because it reaches into the Atlantic. Otto broke out of a temporary wire corral early today at the Clyde Beatty circus winter quarters, almost overturning a house trailer as he ambled out of the lot to freedom.

LEE HICKLEY, boss trainer for the circus, was asleep in the trailer and said he thought a cyclone had hit. Otto weighs four tons. He's worth about $6,000. Floyd King, general agent for the circus, said he was bought from the Carl Hagenbeck circus which had obtained him from Africa.

FOR BETTER OR FOR WORSE

The first thought that comes into our minds upon entering college is, of course, marriage. But how many of us go about seeking mates, as I like to call them, in a truly scientific manner? Not many, you may be sure.

So let us today make a scientific survey of the two principal causes of marriage—personality need and propinquity.

Personality need means that we choose mates because they possess certain qualities that complete and fulfill our own personalities. Take, for example, the case of Alanson Duck.

As a freshman Alanson made a fine scholastic record, played varsity scrabble, and was president of his class. One would think that Alanson was a totally fulfilled man. But he was not. There was something lacking in his life, something vague and indefinable that was needed to make his personality complete.

Then one day Alanson discovered what it was. As he was walking out of his class in Flemish pottery, a fetching coed named Grace Ek offered him a handsome red and white pack and said, "Marlboro?"

"Yes!" he cried, for all at once he knew what he had been needing to round out his personality—the hearty fulfillment of Marlboro Cigarettes, the soul-repairing mildness of their fine tobacco, the easy draw of their unparalleled filter, the ease and convenience of their crushproof flip-top box. "Yes, I will take a Marlboro!" cried Alanson. "And I will also take you to wife if you will have me!"

"La!" she exclaimed, throwing her apron over her face. But after a while she removed it and they were married. Today they live happily in Baffin Land where Alanson is with an otter-glazing firm and Grace is a bookie.

Propinquity, the second principal cause of marriage, simply means closeness. Put a boy and a girl close together for a sustained period of time and their proximity will certainly ripen into love and their love into marriage. A perfect example is the case of Fafnir Sigafoss.

While a freshman at Louisiana State University, Fafnir was required to crawl through the Big Inch pipeline as part of his fraternity initiation. He entered the pipe at Baton Rouge and, alone and joyless, he proceeded to crawl north.

As he passed Lafayette, Indiana, he was agreeably surprised to be joined by a comely girl named Mary Alice Isinglass, a Purdue freshman, who, oddly enough, had to crawl through the Big Inch as part of her sorority initiation.

Chatting amiably as they crawled through Ohio, Pennsylvania, and New York State, Fafnir and Mary Alice discovered they had much in common—like a mutual affection for licorice, bobsledding, and the nonsense verse of Arnold Toynbee. When they reached the Vermont border they were going steady, and when they emerged from the pipe at Boothbay Harbor, Maine, they were engaged.

After a good hot bath they were married and today they live in Klamath Falls, Oregon, where Fafnir is in the weights and measures department and Mary Alice is in the roofing game. They have three children, all named Norman. © 1958, Max Shulman and innumerable grade crossings at 2 p.m., while its unsuspecting crew was at lunch.

Propinquity is sure to mean love when you put yourself close to a pack of Marlboros, made for your pleasure by the sponsors of this column.

One of the cars leap-frogged the 125-ton engine as the power unit soared over a concrete embankment into Two Rivers Harbor. Another fell on top of the engine as it sank in 30 feet of water. The other seven remained on the slope leading down from the end of a siding, one of them teetering over the water.

Chicago and North Western Railway officials don't expect to solve the riddle of the runaway for a day or two—if then.

Investigation Halts

AUSTIN, March 7 (AP)—The Empire Standard Life Insurance Co. investigation was shut down late today with Rep. Joe Chapman promising to keep out of the bitter fight for control of the Tyler firm.

Arlin Anderson, deposed president of Empire Standard, claimed earlier today that Chapman, a member of the House Investigation Committee, engineered his downfall and was using the probe in hopes of personal gain.

"I have removed myself from any connection with the proxy fight to avoid any insinuation being made against the committee," Chapman said in a statement handed reporters after he talked with House Speaker Waggoner Carr.

Climate Doesn't Stop Grapefruit Play

Widespread winter freezes may have made it a bad year for grapefruit but the Grapefruit League goes on forever.

Major league baseball teams, in training in Florida and Arizona, begin flexing their spring muscles today in a full schedule of exhibition games.

IN SOME PLACES there will be a "new look."

The one-time New York Giants and Brooklyn Dodgers will be wearing different uniforms, and four teams will have managers at the helm who weren't on the same job a year ago.

The Dodgers, now representing Los Angeles, meet the Philadelphia Phillies in a night game at Miami, the first in a two-game series before going against their old key National League rivals, Milwaukee, Monday.

Cleveland is one of the teams which has figured in a managerial shift since the start of the 1957 campaign. Brash Bobby Bragan, who was fired as skipper of the Pittsburgh Pirates last August will be barking orders for the Indians.

Bragan's place as manager of the Pirates was taken by Danny Murtaugh, who gets a full shot at the job this year. The Washington Senators start with a skipper who was just a coach this time a year ago, Harry "Cookie" Lavagetto. The Kansas City Athletics have a new head man in Harry Craft.

Lavagetto succeeded fiery Charley Dressen at the Washington helm last May 7. Craft became the Kansas City manager last August 6, replacing Lou Boudreau.
