Stan Ball's black mare did not want to go. The horse kept turn ing her head and edging off the trail. But she remembered that her master had given her orders to obey the slender girl so she made a half-hearted attempt to step along. The lumberjack who was acting as Dona's escort did not seem to mind riding slowly. He was cut of place in the saddle and his big rawboned frame jolted up and down when his horse trotted.

Torn between a wild eageness to be back with her father annifers that all was not well on the fack trail, Dona rode along. Dudley scarcely entered her thoughts. So many arrange things had happened in the past week, so many amazing twists of fate, that life had begun to seem unreal. Always a girl who made decisions rapidly and drove straight to a finish, she was surprised at her present state of uncertainty.

She could not understand Stanley. Ball with his clear gray eyes, his chivalry toward her and his fearlessness in the face of death itself. How douid a man like that be an outlaw and killer? Dona's lips went white "I'm going back to put a stop to it!" she pushed toward Stan. Swergin followed toward Stan. (Continued On Next Page)
