Bristow And Quails Meet In Golf Finals

Herald Cooking School Announced

The opening gun in the West Texas Chamber of Commerce investigation into government costs for the purpose of forming a tax reduction is fired in the following editorial to appear in the next issue of West Texas Today, the monthly publication of the American Guild of Public Expenditures.

The American Guild of Public Expenditures is a rapidly growing organization. Analysis of the figures show simple grounds for such a claim. Since 1913, public expenditures for federal, state and local governmental purposes have increased from three billion to twelve and a half billion dollars per year. Governmental expenditures per capita have increased since 1913 from $20.24 to $99.23. One person out of twelve is now on the public payroll, while in 1913, it was one out of twenty-five. Fifteen percent of our national income now goes to support the Government, while in 1913, seven percent of our national income was consumed by taxation.

Approximately the same trend of increased expenditures appears in our own local and state government. State expenditures have increased from about $2 per capita in 1913 to over $12 per capita now—a six hundred per cent increase in population. Some of our cities have bonded and taxed themselves beyond their ability to pay, and have increased expenditures far beyond the increase in wealth and in population. It is estimated that taxes now consume 70 per cent of the net assets of individuals in related industries; 35 per cent of the mining and quarrying industries; 50 per cent of the public service industries, and so on for the entire category of business. Everybody knows instances where taxes were more than the returns from the property. There is a greater tax delinquency than at any time.

All of the above has occurred in face of the fact that expenditures in private business during the last few years have been greatly decreased. Salaries have been cut, services have been discontinued, conditions have been made, and everything possible has been done in private business to reduce costs. Increased public expenditures, however, go on and on while we are getting five cents for cotton as against thirteen cents in 1913.

WEST TEXAS TODAY believes that before business can return to normal, public expenditures and taxation will have to come down. WEST TEXAS TODAY also believes that the blame for the present situation should not be placed upon the shoulders of our public officials, but that the blame instead rests more upon the shoulders of our business men and taxpayers.

Our public officials, we think, do the most part fairly and honestly express and execute the will of their constituents. They have given us the kind of government we have demanded. It is true that we have been "howling" about taxes at each election for years, but it is also true that at the same time we have been demanding increased services from the government; we have been apathetic about bond elections and have shown very little interest in the expenditures for government. What interest we have shown has been in getting

Cattle Business Comes To Life In August; $2,330,000 Received By Stock Men, Angelo Survey Shows

SAN ANGELO, Tex., Sept. 7. (AP)—Usually a dull month for dollars, August found an estimated $2,330,000 flowing into the hands of cattlemen over that broad section of West Texas of which San Angelo is the trade territory leaders in various lines of the ranch and farm business. This is the estimate of the cattle industry, which came to life during the month to lead the field in receipts. In the McCulloch, Mason, San Saba and Llano countries and from Andrews county in the Big Bend and back to the territory surrounding Abilene cattle trades were fairly active.

It is estimated by San Angelo cattlemen that about 60,000 head of cattle either were bought or shipped to market during the month. Calves brought 66 1/2 cents a pound and weighed 350 to 400 pounds, going to the feed lots of the district. An average conservatively low price of $22 a head places the value of the shipments at $1,300,000, less their value in the feed lots of $1,000,000, and the net proceeds were $300,000. The hundred and fifty thousand head of sheep when sent to the markets were bought to be shipped, another $225,000, and sheep buyers are today making extensive inquiry for feeder purchases of lambs to be fed in the Panhandle or in the northern states. Ranchmen estimate the average price of sheep at $3.50 to $3.75 with the top some scattered sales of wool at around 20 cents a pound. There has been a movement of about 70,000 lbs. during August, boosting the total ranch receipts about $14,000. In addition, about 5,000 mutton and other goats went to market at an average of $2 a head for another $10,000.

Early sales of mohair amounting to about $6,500 from the movement of around 35,000 pounds of the clip at an average price of 18 cents for kid hair and 25 cents for kid hair. These mohair prices are early speculative purchases and are not considered the market.

Early sales of grain, which is extremely plentiful, have seen some additional oats and wheat brought for feed and a gradual of bundled grain bought.

In any direction from San Angelo and one sees ranchman after ranchman and farmer after farmer who is to feed livestock this year.

Watermelons, other garden produce, together with poultry, butter, eggs and milk have brought in an additional $25,000 to swell the purse of West Texas.

Cosden Routs Mexican Nine

Three Hurlers Slapped For Grand Total Of Twenty Runs

Viciously driving three hurlers from the mound and touching another at will, Cosden Refinery completely wrecked the Mexican Tigers here Sunday. Martin, going the round for the Cosden team, held the Tigers to a half dozen safeties while the big bats of his teammates clouted out a 20-3 win.

Cosden jumped into the lead at the beginning of the conflict and added to it at scattered intervals. They connected with the slants of Nevada Payne entirely too often and he had to be removed in favor of Lopez who solved the situation by yielding a double with two on base. He allowed a single scoring another run before retiring the Oiler.

It was late in the game before the Tigers ever crossed the plate for a score. They managed to eke out a 3-0 victory.

over a five run total before another inning. Cosden, who in turn sent a shower of baseballs to all corners of the park. Before the onslaught could be checked, Cosden had piled up an even score of tallies.

Tigers were connecting with everything that Martin threw up, but someone was always under the squarely hit balls. Very few of the balls the Tigers slugged out went for hits. They went, instead, straight into the gloves of waiting Cosden players. It was quite the opposite with Cosden at bat. Oiler bats always found the holes in the infield and pecked away at them. Errors by Tigers accounted for additional impetus for the Cosden attack.

Coahoma is scheduled to play the Tigers on the T&P grounds between the shops and the compress this afternoon at 4 o'clock. Cosden is negotiating for games with Midland here during the middle and latter part of the week.

Mrs. Bruce Frazier To Open Classes In Voice And Piano Soon

Mrs. Bruce Frazier plans to open a studio in piano and voice with classes to commence on Sept. 21. Need Old Hand Signal NO ONE can drive on American roads these days without reflecting on the decline of an extremely useful custom—the custom of signaling with the left hand to the driver behind you whenever you are going to stop or make a turn.

For a time this custom was widely observed, and it was very handy in the last few years it has been almost abandoned. Cars are equipped with stoplights these days, and the motorist probably depends on this flashing gadget to convey the information to the fellow behind him.

But the light can't do it all. It can't tell the next driver whether you are going to turn or stop or whether you simply put the brake on for a second because you saw a speed cop in a side-street. It helps, but it doesn't help quite enough.
 There ought to be a revival of the old hand signal. It would make traffic a good deal safer.

U. S. Intervention in Cuba ALTHOUGH the Cuban revolt has proved more serious than early reports indicated it would be, the United States government has no yet given any indication that American intervention in the island affair is even being seriously considered at Washington, and the is encouraging in that fact in-since who want to quote could feelings between the United States and Latin America.

The American government would have ample legal excuse for intervention, of course, but the act would create an abundance of in-feeling in Cuba and to the south no matter how good the United States' case was. It is far better to let the Cubans settle their own troubles, if necessary, by a new display of officious paternalism.

OPINIONS OF OTHERS
The Country Is Safe!

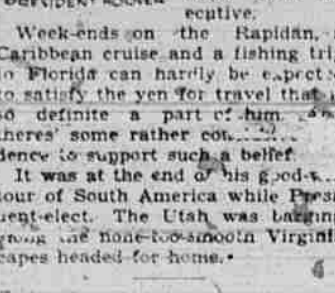

San Angelo Standard:
 IN these early days when charges of burning inefficiently are so freely hurled in the direction of the Washington administration, with urgent claims of corresponding waste in the payers' money, it is most refreshing to learn that in departments, at least, most of our standards prevail. Of at least the following news story from Washington sources should be cited:

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—In against submission of a voucher for only 4 cents by the Navy Department, Controller General McEl-has asked Secretary Adams to see that the time of the accounting office is not taken up in the future with such trifling matters.
 The controller's general rule is that he did not believe the submission of such small claims by officers or employees of your department has your official sanction.
 The two-cent voucher was submitted by C. W. Spencer, senior inspector of engineer material at Schenectady, N. Y., when he arrived by Commander J. S. Evans, and approved by the J. S. Evans, General.

WASHINGTON — Unless Presito satisfy the yen for travel that is so definite a part of him.

ACUTE APPENDICITIS

An exceedingly interesting survey of acute appendicitis in Philadelphia was recently made and reported by Dr. John O. Ewer.

The survey was made to discover the cause of the marked increase in the mortality of deaths resulting from this condition. An increase noted in Philadelphia and the United States as a whole.

Among the outstanding findings of this study was the influence of delay of operation on mortality.
 Thus the survey showed that among the patients operated upon within 24 hours after the onset of symptoms, one out of 23 died.
 When operation was longer delayed, say, to 48 hours, it was found that one in every 17 patients died, and when the delay was more than 72 hours, one in every nine died.
 It was found that with a patient with an acute appendix takes a tax-ative, he is much more liable to develop a general peritonitis, and when he suffers this complication, he has but one chance in seven to recover.

MOON OF DELIGHT
 by Margaret Bell Houston

SYNOPSIS. Juanita Basara is not engaged to a Spaniard, as the marquessa has told Madame Fitz-cher and Nelly Baines. But Nelly is surprised when her grandson, Kirk, tells her that he is to marry Juanita, whom they know as Senorita Flores—guest in Nelly's Biloxi home. It is no coincidence that thefts have taken place in the New Orleans homes where the marquessa and Juanita have visited, but the girl knows nothing of the marquessa's complicity.
 Nevertheless, Juanita has a confession to make to Kirk. He is awaiting her in the library when Adrian Fouche, another admirer, tells him she is engaged to a nobleman. Adrian's presence prevents her keeping the appointment, and as they start for Ad-rian's party, Kirk senses that she is dead of it.

Chapter 25
MOON OF DELIGHT
 Steve's place was on the road to New Orleans, at the end of a long pier. The supper which was to have been on the verandah was laid in the one great room because of the threatening clouds. It was a room of many windows and deep low window seats.

Almost filling one end was the chimney place where tonight a log fire blazed, lighting the room even without the lanterns that swung from the beams.
 The long table was ranged with bowls of crackers and condiments.
 Gumbo simmered in the tripod on the fire, and Steve in the corner was chopping up a salad of cabbage and red peppers. Outside the wind whirled and dashed silt spray against the windows. Inside it was glowing warm, and filled with the smell of the gumbo and the peppers and a surreptitious steamy smell of oysters and hot bread.

Most of the crowd was there when Adrian and his soon arrived table and opposite Adrian.
 Betty Byrnes and Rod Stevens, a pale girl in gold hoop earrings and crimson tulle. Ermy Jean they called her, Bobby Cranshaw and Dorven Larkin, a tall athletic girl in a blue sweater. Ermy Jean had come with a boy named Perry whom Juanita remembered from the Comus ball. Perry had been a cabin boy and for Juanita a noble he would always be.
 Phyllis Carver, a vivid blonde stood near the fire in a green riding suit, beside her a man with dark unsharpened eyes, while on the window seat alone Juanita saw the girl she had seen twice before—once beside Eric Ledbetter at Divilta's and again at the Comus ball. All in black tonight, Juanita knew that beneath her light little cloche was a red, wind-blown bob. She sat smoking, sleep-eyed, looking out on the gray sea.

"Naida, you know Juanita," Bettina Byrnes look it for granted that Naida's smile was sweet and sleepy.
 "I do now," she said, giving Juanita her little hand which crumpled up afterwards like a fern, and she went on gazing at the sea, wrapped in the midst of her own smoke. A lean chap with glasses whom everyone called Trigger, drifted over to Naida, being presented to Juanita on the way.
 Laurie Byrnes, twin to Bettina came in, a pale girl in a blue Fitzgerald's name was. Everybody received him with love. He had been a sultan that night at Comus and Juanita had danced with him and she had not since.
 Rod Stevens was a pirate. And Robby Cranshaw was a tom-cat with a bell. It was too bad. But this was the masquerade, not Comus.
 Fitz turned on the radio, eliciting thereby such static that a flock of banshees might have been passing over the house. "Radio's no good tonight," said Steve. "It's going to rain."
 Steve, fat and round, waited on his guests himself, assisted by a black boy in a white coat, who was now and then to look after the pot of drip coffee on the coals, and who brought them river shrimp and crab gumbo from the tripod, while Steve took from the great brickied-in ovens at the chimney sides long pans of pompano and sides baked in the shells.
 Fitz had left the radio on, static being, he said, so much more spectacular than ordinary programs.
 The guests were whooping themselves to be heard above it.
 "Turn it off," said the girl with the sleepy eyes to Steve, watching as he obeyed. She smoked nervously, jabbing out one cigarette to light another. Wines had appeared from somewhere and she began to drink, manifesting a gradual feverish sparkle.
 "Who is she?" Juanita asked Kirk, who sat on her right.
 "Naida Preston," he answered.
 "That's her husband, next to the marquessa."
 Next to the marquessa sat the dark man with the unhappy eyes.
 He lifted his glass as Juanita looked, and the marquessa lifted hers. Juanita had never seen the
 Fitz had started the phonograph, since he couldn't have the radio.
 "How's Eric?" somebody asked him as he took his seat.
 Fitz didn't know. Eric was to have been home by the tenth, but the tenth had come and gone.
 "Must find the Moon of Delight rather fascinating," remarked Phyllis Carver. The blonde girl in the green riding suit. She sat at the table and opposite Adrian.
 "Who says he's gone with the Moon?" asked Fritz.
 "Who says he's not?" demanded Phyllis. "Didn't I lose ten dollars on her?"
 "Still howling about your ten?" Fitz remarked. "That don't prove he's with her now."
 "Nothing proves anything. Fitz darling," the lady agreed amiably.
 "But given and a wild woman whom he's undoubtedly dipped over, given Eric gone and the wild woman gone."
 "Who's Moon of Delight?" Juanita asked.
 The question was low, but it came in a pause of the talk while Fitz was changing a record. Naida Preston heard it and answered, lighting a cigarette.
 "Moon of Delight is a horse. Just won the handicap." Everybody laughed. "Naida's came all right," Adrian said to Betty Byrnes on his left. To Juanita he replied, "Moon of Delight is the name Eric Ledbetter gave to the girl." Kirk spoke up. "Juanita has never been to Divilta's," he said.
 "That so?" from Adrian. "There's a Turkish girl there who has never told her name. So Eric christened her Moon of Delight. Suit her too. Wouldn't you say so, Rod?"
 "How do I know?" said Rod.
 "Turkish nothing," said Bettina.
 "That was the night I lost my ten," said Phyllis, who was drinking with Dick Preston now. "Eric was sitting there in French Town and she spoke to him in a mixture of Spanish and English."

News of the Day in Pictures

A new picture of J. Ramsay MacDonald, premier of Britain's new national government, taken following a recent audience with the king.

Paul Jackson, 21, of Kansas City, upset Johnny Lehman, co-medalist in the National Amateur golf tournament at Chicago, and shot his way into the quarter-finals.

Most of the favorites in the National Amateur golf tournament tumbled to defeat at the hands of youngsters as match play got under way at Beverly, Chicago. Here the gallery is shown watching Paul Jackson, Kansas City youth, putt on the ninth green. Jackson scored a sensational upset by eliminating Johnny Lehman, co-medalist.

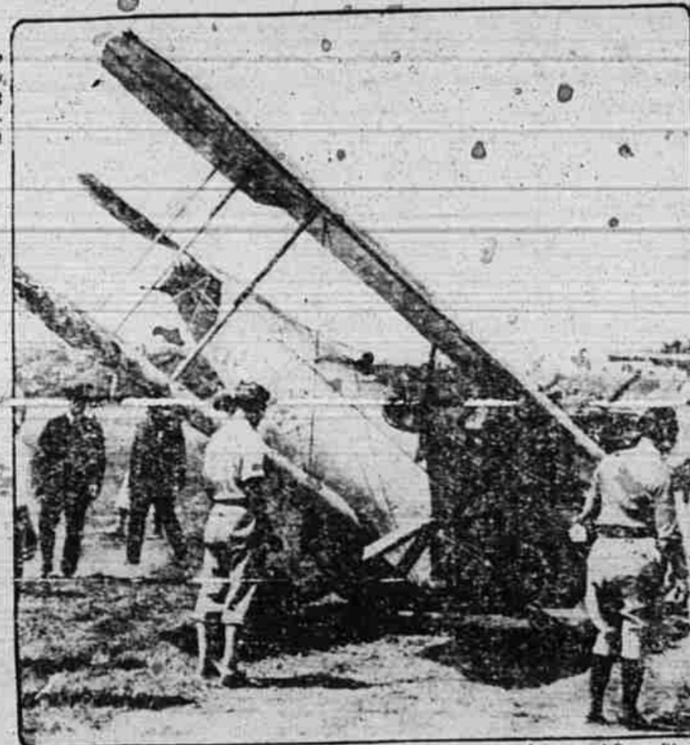

Maurice J. McCarthy Jr. of Harrison, N. Y., was one of two "seeded" stars who survived a day of many upsets through the first two match play rounds of the National Amateur golf tourney at Chicago.

Ernie Schaaf, Boston blond boy, knocked out Victorio Campolo in their heavyweight fight in New York and at the same time knocked in the head any titular plans the Argentine giant may have had. Here is Campolo out in the seventh.

HERE'S A "DEAD STICK" CRACKUP

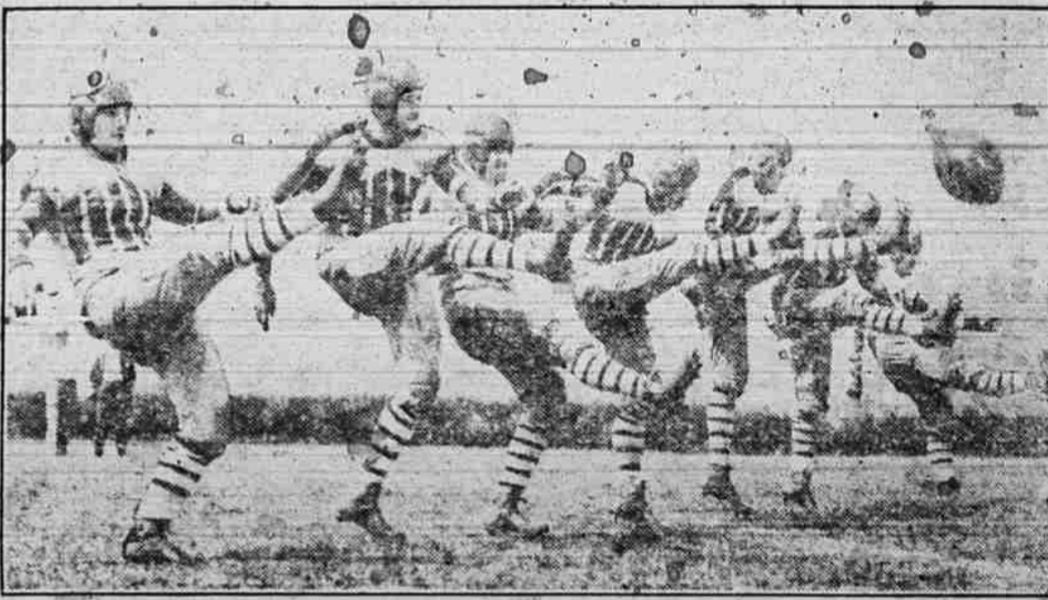

This is what happened when C. Shirley Reitzel of Akron, O., cracked up in the dead stick landing contest at the national air races at Cleveland. Although the plane was badly damaged, Reitzel suffered only minor injuries.

Questioned

Mrs. Olga Plater, who with her husband sponsored the American Friendship society through which Harry F. Powers, West Virginia bluebeard slayer, corresponded with fonesome women, was questioned by police and postal authorities regarding activities of the society.

KICKERS IN ACTION AT COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY

Here's some activity on the eastern football front—Columbia university backfield candidates limbering up their leg muscles and educating their toes in punting practice.

OUT GUNNING FOR GANGSTERS

CYCLONE WRECKS MISSOURI TOWN

Steady Nerves

On a 10 inch ledge, 142 feet from the ground, James Kemp, 33-year-old steeplejack, held this precarious perch for two hours in Rochester, N. Y. Bent forward by an outward pull in the stack, he held to a short rope which had broken from a scaffold and sent a fellow worker to the hospital.

First In Air Derby

Mrs. Phoebe Omlie of Memphis, Tenn., who was first to arrive in Cleveland, won the men's and women's air derby from Santa Monica, Cal.

OKLAHOMAN STEER-ROPING CHAMP

Ike Rude of Mangum, Okla., is shown with the $5,000 Sam Jackson trophy he won as the best all-around cowboy in the roundup at Pendleton, Ore. Rude's lariat also won for him the title of world's steer roping champion.

A HEALTHY TRIO FROM IOWA

Maude Ann Isaacs, 18 (left), of Iowa City and Kenneth Kesley, 19 (center), farm youth of Afton, Ia., were declared winners of the 1931 Iowa 4-H club health contest. Clarice Torkelson, 18 (right), scored highest in the rating, but she is barred from representing the state in the national contest in Chicago this winter because she competed in 1929.

Embezzled Bonds

Walter E. Wolf, employe of the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company of Chicago, confessed embezzling bonds and stock certificates to the estimated value of $2,000,000 so, he could speculate.

Questioned

Mrs. Olga Plater of Detroit, who with her husband sponsored the "American Friendship society" through which Harry E. Powers corresponded with two women he killed at Clarksburg, W. Va., was questioned about the society's activities.

A Good Start

Connie Mack, Jr., son of the Philadelphia Athletics manager, won four games and lost none for the Skytop, Pa., club in the Pocono mountains. He is spending the season at the club.
