

'Matador Song' Leads In Early Count

the Toreador

Vol. XXVI Texas Technological College, Lubbock, Tuesday, November 20, 1951 No. 18

Names Of All Winners Will Be Kept Secret

Election returns at 5 p.m. Monday showed voting about four to one in favor of changing the school song to the "Matador Song." Approximately 850 students had voted up to that time, according to Bob Schmidt, Student council president. Voting will close at 3 p.m. today.

Names of class favorites and Mr. and Miss Texas Tech will be given to Dick Brooks, La Ventana editor, and he will determine whether the news will be released before the yearbook comes out.

Senior Candidates

Running for senior class favorites are Mary Ruth Shannon, Joan Applebay, Erin Nevitt, Harriet Moltz and Lucille Seybold. The male candidate is Red Phillips.

Junior candidates are Shirley Schmidt, Clydene Whitaker, Dixie McGehee, Margie Wiggins, Patsy Scales, Doris Betenbough, and Carolyn Schaeffer. Male nominees are Jim McGraw and Harold Brannan.

Sophomore Hopetuls

Sophomore women favorites will be chosen from Marion Holton, Louise Whitaker, Katherine Williamson and Reta McIlroy. Men candidates will be Coy Orr, Hardy Clemons and Bobby Cavazos.

Running for freshmen favorites are Pat Abernethy, Phyllis Martin, Gay Jay, Harriet Henderson and Marcia Shafer. Bill Derrick and Elmer Wilson are the men candidates.

Eating Conditions Discussed Monday

Clarification of problems concerning eating conditions in Men's dorms III and IV was the subject of a meeting Monday night in the game room of Men's dorm III. The group met at the request of Pres. D. M. Wiggins.

Overcrowded tables in the dining rooms and a lack of milk were the problems discussed by representatives from the dorms, administration, student council and dorm dieticians, said Bob Schmidt, president of student council.

The purpose of the meeting was to exchange ideas and clear up misunderstandings which have arisen over the situation.

Area Cotton Maid Winner Is Named

De Rose Wittenburg, senior student from Eden, was chosen by a panel of seven judges to be the South Plains representative in the 1952 Maid of Cotton contest.

A photograph of Miss Wittenburg will be sent to the National Cotton Council. If she is chosen to be one of the 20 finalists, she will be sent to Memphis, Tenn., where the final judging will be held Jan. 2 and 3.

Deadline for entries in the national Maid of Cotton contest has been extended from Dec. 1 to Dec. 8, the National Cotton Council has announced.

Marian Holton, business administration sophomore from Lamesa, was selected first alternate and Juanita Underwood, secretarial administration major from San Angelo, was chosen second alternate.

Jean Walton, Betty Coffee and Dorothy Yates were runners-up. Other contestants were Marvel Gibner, Mary Lou Patton, Jan Dorn, Mary Ruth Sims, Rose Mary Bloodworth, Shirley Sears.

ROTC Delegates Go To Miami Meet

Representatives for the Tech Arnold Air society will leave early Thursday morning by plane for the annual national conclave at Miami, Fla.

Approximately 1,500 delegates are expected to meet in Miami where the organizational business will be discussed. The representative chosen by Tech's chapter and the alternate, respectively, are Cadet Maj. Jim Choate and Cadet S/Sgt. Joe Stoltz. Seven other students will also attend. They expect to return Sunday night.

PEP RALLY TONIGHT AT 10

There will be a pep rally at 10 p.m. tonight north of the girls' dormitories, according to Phil Thompson, head cheerleader.

SC Names Haynie Tech Sun Princess

Sue Haynie, Lubbock sophomore, was named Tech's 1951 Sun Princess in a Student Council called meeting at 7 p.m. Monday in Ad171, according to Bob Schmidt, president.

Miss Haynie was elected by council members over Pat Lindsay, Lubbock senior, and Pat Sibson, San Benito sophomore. She will represent Tech at the annual Sun Bowl game to be held at El Paso Jan. 1, 1952.

To enter, co-eds secured 250 signatures on petitions.

Women named as princesses compete for the title of Sun Queen at El Paso.

Other business at the meeting was discussion of tentative dates for class events during the 1952-53 school year. This was done so the social calendar could be planned leaving dates for class functions open without conflicting social events, such as dances.

Dates set were Freshman dance, first weekend after Homecoming; sophomore Hodge-Podge, last Saturday in April; Senior carnival, third Saturday in March; Junior-Senior prom, second Saturday in May, and Rodeo-Western days, first week in May.

Directories Here For Fall Semester

Student directories for the fall semester went on sale yesterday at the Bookstore, Conner Cole, Bookstore manager, said.

The 49-page book will retail for 50 cents per copy. Editions have been bought by the college purchasing service and will be distributed to heads of departments free of charge, he added.

Original date of release for the 2,000 copies was Oct. 20, but the books had been delayed in St. Louis, Mo., where they were printed, by heavy snowstorms.

Wiggins Is Dedication Speaker

President D. M. Wiggins will give the dedication speech at the new Littlefield High school tonight.

College Postpones Tech Blood Drive

Arrival of the Red Cross bloodmobile, originally scheduled to be on the campus tomorrow, has been postponed until a later date, James G. Allen, dean of student life, said.

Since most students will be leaving for home tomorrow, some driving hundreds of miles, it was thought advisable to cancel the campus campaign for the present, thereby protecting the health of students, he continued.

Sufficient advance notice will be given before the bloodmobile returns to the campus to insure the drive's success, he added.

Today Is Deadline For Class Pictures

Students are warned that today is the last day to have class pictures made for La Ventana, according to Dick Brooks, editor.

"Any organizations that have not made arrangements for their pages in the club section are urged to contact the yearbook office immediately," Brooks added.

Students who have snapshots they want in the yearbook this year are asked to bring them by La Ventana office anytime. Proper identification should be with each picture.

Chickens' Victory Ends Fowl Thanksgiving Dispute

By PAT EDWARDS
Toreador Society Editor

News Flash!

Nov. 18—Prospects for Thanksgiving enthusiasts looked bleak today as the dispute between the two unions, C.I.C. (Congress of Industrial Chickens) and A.F. of T. (American Federation of Turkeys) remained at a deadlock after four days of argument. Caught as he was leaving the latest futile session in the capitol building here in Washington, D.C., bushy combed John L. Chicken, head of the C.I.C., stated that his position in the dispute was the same as ever.

"We want justice," he shouted. "All year long we chickens bear the brunt of the livestock labor in this country. Think of the occupational hazard we live under, laying eggs day after day, being served in a dozen different ways—fried chicken, baked chicken, boiled chicken, chicken fricassee, chicken a la king, chicken in the basket, not to mention chicken pie, barbecued chicken, and chicken noodles. All year long we go in a mad rush from table to table and then Thanksgiving comes 'along and what happens—they call in skilled labor—turkeys! We want our rights. We want to take our place alongside the turkey on the Thanksgiving table!"

Philip Turkey, head of the A.F. of T., was unavailable for comment at this time.

A gloomy pall hangs over the city tonight as grim faced chickens continue, in spite of a cutting north wind, to march up and down in front of every retail grocer's in town bearing signs stating "Down with the A.F. of T.," "Thanksgiving turkey . . . why not, Thanksgiving chicken?"

Ultimatum Delivered

Nov. 19—John L. Chicken delivered his ultimatum at 4 p.m. today, EST. The C.I.C. is now engaged in a stand-up strike. "No more eggs until we are given equal representation on the Thanksgiving table," he told reporters. And, he added, the picket lines will not be withdrawn until after Thanksgiving.

Philip Turkey, contacted at his home late this afternoon, stated that the A.F. of T. is not prepared to back down an inch. "For years the Turkey has been trained to take his place on the Thanksgiving tables of this nation. No Chicken is going to usurp our position." His voice taut with worry and fatigue, the President of the United States spoke to a disheartened nation tonight on a special broadcast. He warned the people not to become discouraged. "If this difficulty is not straightened out by midnight tonight," he warned, "we may have to postpone Thanksgiving. But do not despair," he added, "everything possible is being done to solve this problem and, late or not, we will have a Thanksgiving."

Chickens Win

Nov. 20—Tired, but with the light of victory shining in his eyes, John L. Chicken posed for a picture with Philip Turkey today at the cessation of hostilities in the Chicken-Turkey ruckus. The final agreement involved somewhat of a compromise on the part of both unions.

The turkey will still remain king of the Thanksgiving feast but hereafter, eggs must be used in some capacity as part of the meal.

John L. Chicken beamed as he told reporters, "It isn't exactly what we had hoped for, of course, but I feel that this is a definite step forward for the C.I.C."

Philip Turkey, his arm still linked through Chicken's, spoke with only a slight trace of concession in his voice as he said, "We of the A.F. of T. feel that it is only fair for the C.I.C. to participate in some small way in the Thanksgiving festivities."

Grocers report here in Washington, D.C. that, as the picket clear away from in front of their stores, housewives, preparing for the biggest Thanksgiving in years, are pouring in.

Happy Thanksgiving, everyone!

Mills' Glass Collection Holds Many Historic, Unusual Items

By NANCY BROWDER
Toreador Staff Writer

Would you like to see a goblet George Washington drank from? Or one owned by the Duke of Marlborough? Or a whiskey glass that once belonged to a Pope?

These and hundreds of other interesting and beautiful goblets and tumblers are part of one of the world's largest private collections, owned by Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Mills, of 2627 22nd street. Mills, ex-professor of English at Tech, retired last year after serving on the faculty since 1926.

Housed In Attic

This impressive and unique collection is housed in the remodeled

Mills' attic which is 36 feet long. Shelves line the walls and all of the glassware is catalogued according to its place in history. Mrs. Mills began the collection in 1935 as a hobby, never dreaming it would reach its present proportions.

Upon entering this room one sees what appears to be endless yards of fragile glass, clear, opaque and opalescent, ranging in color from amber to emerald, the latter being most rare. After one curbs the ever-present fear of shattering some delicate collector's item, the individuality of each piece begins to emerge.

Unusual Items Described

There is the flute-footed tumbler unique in that its three stems were added after the tumbler was completed; a Rhine wine from a castle on the Danube; and the Hartford goblet, that has Greek figures frolicking around it.

Mills' prize piece and also the highest-priced item in the collection, is a goblet that has the face of Mephistopheles, the devil, in a raised design on the side.

Historic Glasses Seen

The most beautiful glasses to the uninitiated observer, are those tinted in gorgeous hues of red, blue, green and gold. The colors of the glasses and goblets give indications of their places in history, as well as their appeal to the eye. The more colorful and ornate pieces are products of the "elaborate years" in European and American history. These glasses bear out the theory that a "nation's history is reproduced in its art."

One goblet, made in 1866, the year of Lincoln's assassination, exhibits a frosted design of what is called Lincoln's drape. The design reminds one of the classical drape of old opera house curtains. Another very interesting piece is a goblet with a raised design of branches and leaves covering it. This glass is known as the "tree of life," a design which has no beginning and no end.

Rod Resembles Walking Cane

Perhaps one of the most fascinating items of the collection to young people is a long, slender, pale green glass rod, resembling a walking stick. This object is known as a glass "feather bed plumper" and was used in the olden days to plump and smooth feather beds to make them more comfortable.

When asked what her favorite piece is, Mrs. Mills replied that

Local Art Shown In Museum Display

The first exhibits of crafts and paintings done by South Plains professional and amateur artists will be displayed in the museum throughout the month of November.

The exhibit which is sponsored by the South Plains Arts and Crafts Guild includes paintings, drawings, pottery ceramics, sculpture, metal work, jewelry and textiles.

The guild, which was organized last summer, has 93 charter members. The officers serving this year are Knox F. Thomas, president, Mrs. Avery Fix, first vice-president, Miss Martye Poindexter, second vice-president, Mrs. William Wilbanks and Mrs. D. R. Hopkins, treasurer.

A reception was held Thursday night at a preview showing of the display. The executive officers and committee chairmen received guests at the opening of the reception.

ROTC Air Cadets Are Out For Blood

Ten cadets from the advanced and sophomore air arm of the ROTC, have voluntarily signed to give a pint of blood each when the Bloodmobile comes to Lubbock Wednesday.

James E. A. Kovach, cadet captain, pushed the drive for ROTC blood donors with a pledge that the blood donated be rushed to Korea "for the purpose of aiding our fallen comrades."

On the pledge list are Kenneth Leonard, Greer Garrett, E. L. Baker Jr., Tommy Boston, Robert Schmidt, Don Pass, Johnny Sims, Duayne Carter, James Kovach and Joel Read.

Other cadets may sign for blood donations. The list will be posted on the air force ROTC board until Tuesday.

PROF IS GUEST SPEAKER

Mary Jean Van Appledorn, Tech music instructor, spoke on "Creative Music for Public School Children" at a dinner meeting of the South Plains Music Teachers association Friday night.

The dinner was held at 7:45 p.m. in the Hilton hotel.

she had no favorites since each piece had its own appeal for her. It is easily understood that choosing a favorite from such a tremendous collection would indeed be a most difficult assignment.

WHENEVER SHEEDY gave a gal the glad ham she turned up her snoot. Poor Paul took pen and ink and wrote a litter home: "I'm sty-mied. All the gals think I'm a boar. To get a date is a pig's feat!" New Slant On Thanksgiving . . .

Every year about this time we hear inspiring little stories about this nation's pilgrim forefathers and the first Thanksgiving.

Seems that a bunch of Britons left Merrie Olde England due to a mix-up with the local clergy and pooled their coffee money to buy a vessel from a used-boat dealer. The "Mayflower" eventually landed them on the shores of new England, a raunchy region which appeals only to gloomy playwrights like Eugene O'Neill.

The pitiful party managed to weather the first year in spite of a lack of food and an abundance of understandable hostile Indians.

They gave thanks to their Creator with a feast which depleted the wild turkey population of the area considerably, and people have been commending them ever since for such a show of gratitude in the face of difficulties.

Surely the trials which the world of today faces put the pilgrims' inconveniences to shame—the A-bomb, taxes, Vishinsky, selective service and all the other crosses that succeeding generations have had to bear. Those primitives with the high-crowned hats and blunderbusses didn't realize it, but they never had it so good.

The tradition of Thanksgiving would have died out long before television reared its ugly head if it hadn't been for people who believed in the future.

Thanksgiving 1951 is a tribute to the durable, optimistic human spirit.—Ralph Shelton

Student Council SPEAKS

There are many situations existent on the Texas Tech campus, as on all campuses, where students are in conflict with present policy, attitudes and functions. The very nature of our growing school, and the continual rotation of students is a natural source from which these problems can arise. The question foremost in the minds of the students, however, is not as to the source of the problem but how to bring about its solution.

A ready source of opposition to situations which are undesirable for students is a very necessary thing to any campus, but just as important is the channeling of these ideas to sources where they will take effect. Herein lies the work of the student council; and unless the council meets this need, its program is of little value. But here also lies one of the largest responsibilities of each individual in the entire student body. If dormitory facilities, social activities, academic policies, or any other matter is undesirable, its correction certainly will not be brought about simply by idle complaints.

The administration on our campus has strongly shown its desire for any such matters to be brought before its attention, and the Student Council is anxious to help place these matters at their proper place.

Student government, student activities, and education itself will improve only as new ideas, problems, and solutions are introduced by the people themselves.

Most of our campus problems exist because they have not been effectively brought to the attention of those who are capable of remedying them.

The Student Council is very concerned in this work, and offers its facilities to any and all students who feel a need for channeling their ideas to either the student body or the administration.

Under The Breezeway

By SHIRLEY JOHNSON
Toreador Associate Editor

Although the dance was good, we understand, it still excited quite a bit of comment when the announcement was made in the Toreador of the Signal club dinner dance being held at Herbert's Drive-Inn.

First reaction was, "Where do they expect to dance—car hoods?"

Finally a staff member who belongs to the club explained that the place was reserved, and that the tables would be removed to make room for dancing.

Could get a little crowded, jittersbugging on a Crosley.

While going through the mail, (which it seems we're always doing), we found a letter which urged us to subscribe to a trade publication.

The price given for subscription was "write . . . (and be) put down for a year's subscription and send bill for 6 bucks, or if you're poor 6 months for maybe 3 bucks, or if you're destitute 1 buck for a couple back copies."

Evidently they know that people aren't making very much money this year.

It has been suggested that, if world-wide television should come people who drop in for an evening of viewing T-V in countries where nights last six months could very quickly outlast their welcome.

While it may not take six months, we've found a few people at Tech who also quickly outlasted their welcome.

At a recent club election, members were trying to decide who should be vice-president. The nomination committee had submitted one name, and no one could think of anyone else deserving the office.

One person moved the nominee be elected by acclamation. When the necessary parliamentary procedures had been followed, and the candidate found himself an officer, he turned to the person standing next to him and said, "That makes me a calamity by acclamation, doesn't it?"

In an English class the other day, the teacher was explaining the different schools of thought about flowers.

"The Romantic school felt that a primrose that they alone saw was wonderful; the classical poets felt sorry for the flower wasting its beauty, and being unseen. Frankly, I don't think the flower cares either way—that's just the way things are."

Cards Finally Arrive For Stunts At Games

By JOHN NORCROSS
Toreador Editor

Those students who donned white shirts and blouses for the card stunts at the Homecoming game can get them out again. Only, this time, they can be sure of getting to participate in the stunts. The cards have finally arrived and will be used at Tech-Hardin-Simmons game.

The same rules apply as we were previously listed. Cards are to be kept face down until the signal for the stunt is given. Then . . . oh well, you know the rules. Just be on hand at the game.

In Friday's column we issued a plea for blood donations in the one-day drive scheduled for Wednesday. However, since many Techsians will be driving home Wednesday for the Thanksgiving holidays, it will not be advisable for them to give blood. Mrs. Stiles of the Lubbock Red Cross center has assured college officials that the bloodmobiles will return to the campus at a later date.

Any student that does not have to drive home, however, is urged to contribute blood, which will be processed immediately and sent to Korea. Faculty members have been urged by President Wiggins to support the drive.

Last week marked the beginning of another newspaper publication on the campus.

Faculty and staff members received the first copy of "Tech Times," published by the public information department of the college. Aubrey Shouse is director of public information for the school.

The newspaper will be issued on the first and third Wednesdays of every month. Its purpose, as stated in the first edition will be to give "official notices, announcements, news items about members of the faculty and staff, and a schedule of events."

About The Campuses

Something new in the art of growing whiskers—A Whiskerino contest was conducted at the Arizona State college and prizes were awarded to the most pathetic beard, the bushiest outgrowth and a red beard with the letters ASC showing.

The Chase, the paper for Eastern New Mexico university, reports that the moon is 238,857 miles for the benefit of people who keep playing the record and never find out.

"Was it a case of honesty, as most people would probably agree, or was it a case of shrewd maneuvering, as the cynical would suppose," was asked by the Daily Texan. This question was asked after no Blanket Taxes were confiscated after a football game. It seems that a staff of University ticket collectors picked up 57 forged and transferred activity tickets a year ago.

South Dakota State college's homecoming is called "Hobo Day."

The name is said to have originated after the Civil war, when groups of farm workers went about the country seeking work. They carried hoes to show their willingness to work and so earned the name "Hoe Boys." Years of shortened this to Hoboes, but by this time "the men were not seeking work as much as they were handouts."

University of Texas students are unhappy because their Thanksgiving holidays have been scheduled a week later than the official holiday proclaimed by Gov. Allan Shivers and President Truman. Many students plan to cut classes Nov. 22 to celebrate Thanksgiving day with their families.

For 29 years the Oklahoma egg-laying contest has been held at Oklahoma A&M. This is not a time for old comedians to exchange jokes, but an honest to goodness chicken operated egg-laying contest. Last year an enterprising hen from Kentucky took top honors, but Oklahoma birds, which always rank high, are expected to finish at the top this year.

They're Really Cute Kid:

Temperamental Architects Mix Day, Nite Drink Coffee And Work--Occasionally

By DOUGLAS CRAIN
Toreador Staff Writer

If you should see a character wandering around the campus with a week's growth of beard, hair down to his ear lobes and clothes looking like a badly tailored potato sack, don't be alarmed. It's not Orson Welles. It's probably an architecture student going to or coming from the coffee shop.

During the daylight hours, these creatures haunt the cafes and drug stores of College avenue, if they aren't sacked out. At night, however, their work begins. Where a business major stays up 'til midnight, the architect doesn't hit the sack until the wee hours, trying to get the "design" that was assigned for last week.

Their only known diet consists of coffee and doughnuts consumed in amazing quantities throughout the day and night.

These beings even have their own choral group, a quintet composed of architects known as the "Four Roses and a Fifth," who have a novel price for performing at a social function. A fifth of legal moonshine is rumored to be sufficient incentive.

Like all artists, the architects are temperamental, wandering in and out of classrooms, griping continually and insulting decent folk. Their motto seems to be "Never do today what you can put off 'til tomorrow."

Notwithstanding, they turn out good work and lots of it. To check this, take a tour through the architecture department and witness their exhibits.

Washington ROTC Executive Calls Reserves 'Best Chance For Security'

Maj. Gen. Hugh M. Milton II, executive for reserve and ROTC affairs, Washington, D.C., visited Tech Wednesday.

Gen. Milton declared during a meeting with President D. M. Wiggins and Col. Willard White, professor of military science and tactics, that "our best chance of security lies in a terrific potential army of reserves."

Proposed ROTC programs and methods of improving the existing program were discussed by Gen. Milton. He stated that he is highly pleased with the accomplishments of Tech's corps.

Gen. Milton served in both World wars. He is the former president of New Mexico A&M and New Mexico Military Institute. During World War II he served as chief of staff to Lt. Gen. O. W. Griswold.

Accompanying Gen. Milton were Lt. Col. G. M. Bacharach, Lt. Col. James S. Pearsall, Lt. Col. Allen S. Wilder and Lt. Col. Corson L. Hilton jr., all of whom are with the Fourth Army. Dr. Elvis Stahr, special assistant to the secretary of the army was also with the group.

Anyone meeting these requirements is invited to attend the smoker.

Erwin Shows Color Slides At Home Ec Club Meeting

Color slides of a European tour were shown by Mabel Erwin, head of the clothing and textiles department, and Alice Qualia, Lubbock clothing and textiles major, to a meeting of the Home Economics club last Tuesday.

Their talk was preceded by a business meeting, in which Wanda Ramsey, Plainview home economics major, was elected to represent the club in the band sweetheart contest.

Tech's '51 Cotton Ready To Harvest

Tech's 1951 cotton crop is almost ready to harvest, according to Dr. Arthur Young, head of the plant industry department.

The crop consists of 60 acres of Storm Master cotton; 45 acres are irrigated and the rest, dry land.

This strain of cotton is especially good in West Texas because it will stay in the hull, even during high wind storms, Young stated.

Cotton is grown at Tech to give students practical experience and to furnish certified seed to farmers in the surrounding area.

Pulling will probably begin next week. All of the cotton will be gathered by machine and 45 to 50 bales are expected this year, Young concluded.

Insect Nets Whiz Around Campus

If a man with a butterfly net rushes by you on the campus, don't be alarmed. It's all part of getting a college education. In fact, they've armed a whole class with butterfly nets and told the members to wage war against cinderellidae, mutillidae, cantharidae, reduviidae, coenagrionidae or any harmless little insects they might run across.

The class is Entomology 334 and the members are three graduate students and two undergraduates. One aggie has found his way into the course.

After the poor, frightened insects are caught, they are mercilessly killed and stuck through the middle with a pin. Soon they are nothing more than another labelled specimen in a box, another contribution to science.

Incidentally, an incredible amount of work goes into the make-up of these boxes. After the insect is carefully mounted, a label is attached to it bearing its scientific name. The label looks like it has either been printed by a pygmy or typed on a miniature typewriter. Rows upon rows of beetles, dragonflies, grasshoppers, butterflies and other specimens line the boxes.

The class members did not say whether or not it was a terrible

Citizens Group Will Honor Rister

Dr. Carl Coke Rister, Tech's first "distinguished" professor, will be honored by a citizens committee at a gathering at 7:30 p.m., Nov. 30 in the Hilton hotel. Inaugural of the distinguished professorships at Tech will be explained at the meeting. Dr. D. M. Wiggins, college president, said. Rister's addition to the faculty is to aid in the preservation of the history of this area, dignified by its ranching, oil and farming activities, he added.

Raiders Slow Hurricane, Face Loboes

By JIMMIE HENLEY
Toreador Sports Editor

After losing a hard-fought battle to the Tulsa University Golden Hurricane, Tech's Red Raiders engage the University of New Mexico in their final road game of the season in Albuquerque at 3 p.m. (CST) Saturday.

Saturday Tech held the nation's leading offensive team to its smallest score of the season by repelling four Tulsa scoring threats.

Although the Tulsans gained a total of 302 yards in the first half, the Hurricane was stopped three times within the 20-yard line. One of those was on the eight yard line.

In the last half the Raiders held the powerful Hurricane in one of three scoring attempts, while matching them in scoring in those periods. TU gained a total of 427 yards.

Jim Turner crashed across for the first Raider score four and one-half minutes deep in the third period ending a 43 yard drive that opened on an eight yard pass from Junior Arterburn to Turner.

Later in the period and early in the fourth quarter Bill Parsons scored a pair of touchdowns for TU by crashing the middle of the line for five yards in the third period and for two yards some four minutes later.

With the same fire that sparked the Raiders to their first counter in the third period, they made a great comeback in the final period, following a blocked punt by Ken Kummer, freshman defensive end from Detroit, Mich.

The punt rolled dead on the Tulsa 16. An offside penalty and a one-yard loss on a pitchout put the Raiders on the 22 with 16 yards to go for a first. Sophomore Don "Skeeter" Lewis zipped around his left end and down the west sideline for the second Tech counter. Rick Spinks made his second conversion.

Later in the period another sophomore, John Thompson, intercepted one of Morris' passes, running it back from the 28 to the 15-yard line. A mixup of signals on fourth down, with four yards to go for a first; the Hurricane took over on the 15.

Tulsa's first t.d. in the initial period was scored by Jack Crocker who rounded his right end 40 yards out, then reversed his field to hit pay-dirt near the opposite side line. Tom Miner, who caught eight of 10 passes from quarterback Ronnie Morris for 72 aerial yards, converted three times for TU.

This week the Raiders face the big UNM Loboes.

A husband and wife were asleep. About 3 a.m. the wife dreamed of secretly meeting another man.

Then she dreamed she saw her husband coming. In her sleep she shrieked, "Heavens! My husband!"

Her husband, wakening suddenly, leaped out the window.

A drunk walked into on elevator shaft, fell four floors to the bottom, stood up, brushed himself off, and shouted loudly: "I said up."

An army cook was given a dishonorable discharge because according to the official report: "He cooks potatoes and peas in the same pot."

Judge: "What do you wish to charge against your husband?"

Wife: "Free love your honor; he hasn't supported me in ten years."

Keys Take Undisputed Lead in MCCC As Socii Loses

Silver Key took the commanding role in MCCC intramural football Sunday by steam-rolling the Wranglers, 20 to 6, while Socii was absorbing its first defeat of the year at the hands of the College Club, 7 to 0.

Silver Key came from behind in the second half as Jack Alderson passed to Ross Brown for three tallies to overcome a 6 to 0 deficit. Alderson added one extra point and Jim Farrell ran for the other. Blair Hankins scored for Wranglers.

Socii lost its chance for an unbeaten season when Bill Bales bloomed a Socii kick into the end zone for a College Club t.d. and Bryan Close kicked the extra point.

Kemas smashed winless Adelphi 20 to 0 with John Spellings, Bud Spellings and Hardy Clemons chalking the points. The Centaurs racked up the longest yardage to win over Los Cams in overtime of a 6 to 6 game.

In a scoreless tussle, the Wranglers outgained College Club in overtime last Thursday.
