Yard And Garden Contest Judges To Select First Month Winners; Prizes For Three Best Entrants

Judges this week will pick the winners of the first month yard and garden contest being sponsored by the civic committee of the chamber of commerce.

Prizes will be awarded the three outstanding yards, primarily from the standpoint of gains made during the past month.

C. T. Watson, chamber of commerce manager, Saturday urged citizens who wish to enter the contest in time to be considered in the November judging to do so at once.

He called attention to the fact that more Arizona cypress and Chinese elms must be ordered in order to obtain benefit of reduced rates.

"People are inclined to wait until spring when every thing turns green to get the planting fever," said Watson. "Trees should be set out during the winter when the root system will make gains."

Bullet Fired On Property Of Magnolia

Assistant To Chief Investigator Victim; Probe Promised

TYLER (AP)—Otis Ramsey, assistant to Homer Pierson, chief investigator of the Texas Railroad commission on proration enforcement in the East Texas oil field, was shot and slightly wounded Friday night by a man on the Magnolia Petroleum company lease. Pierson revealed here Saturday night after he received a report from Ramsey.

The report said Ramsey and two companions, P. Burford, Railroad Commission employe, and Privia Pierson of the 124th Cavalry, were fired on when they went to investigate a waste gas flare burning high on one Dick Wells lease in the Deason survey at 11:30 p. m. Friday.

AUSTIN (AP)—Determined to convene the Texas legislature in a retrograde session if necessary to insure orderly production in the East Texas oilfield, Governor Ross Sterling was hopeful Saturday night the situation could be adjusted without that action.

He exhibited a telegram from Col. L. S. Davidson, commanding militiamen in the oil area, apprising him the situation was quiet and all producers were holding their allowances within the Railroad commission's permissible allowance.

Uncertain status of the field resulted from a United States district court decision holding the commission's proration orders invalid because they apparently were based on consideration of the market demand.

AUSTIN (AP)—The Texas Railroad commission Saturday altered the marginal well order of October 10 affecting West Central Texas district.

Allowable there was raised from 21,500 barrels daily to 31,500 effective Nov. 1 and continuing until April 1 next.

The commission announced the Burket pool was not affected.

HOUSTON (AP)—Humble Oil and Refining company announced Saturday it would buy the forty per cent of oil production it has been storing for royalty owners in the field in which it operates. President W. S. Farish said this policy would continue until further notice.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Counsel for Governor Ross Sterling of Texas defended his use of troops to curtail oil production in East Texas through a lengthy brief filed in the supreme court Saturday.

The brief said he could not be restrained from using military to suppress insurrections. Attorneys argued that a state of insurrection did exist in the Texas oil fields.

the cast. Thought it is his first talking picture and his first venture into Hollywood, "The Phantom President" is not Cohan's first movie. Back in 1915, when films were still a more or less crude proposition, he made several in a New York studio.

During a career extending back more than three decades, Cohan has personally written and produced 40 plays, and collaborated in writing and acting ten others. His musical efforts have kept pace. "Yankee Doodle Dandy" and "Give My Regards to Broadway" written by him for a show of his own back in 1904, were his first hits; "Over There" to which American troops marched off to France in 1917 and 1918, was perhaps his greatest.

Making his talkie debut in "The Phantom President," Cohan plays two roles. His first is as a banker who is qualified for the presidency in every respect but one—he hasn't the personality to get votes. His second is as the banker's "double" in a media-show outer party box.

Miss Colbert is cast as the daughter of an ex-president, object of adoration of both Cohan's Durante, with his "schnozzle" and medicine-show Barker's pal.

SHADOWS OF THE POTROCK

By Paul Moss (The Southwest Press)

This story, written by an attorney in Odessa, deals with a Carolina setting. We have a hunch that it was a story of Mr. Moss' childhood. It sounds like one of those interesting tales that one remembers from childhood and has told to so many interested listeners that he has finally resolved to put it in book form.

On the Potrocks lived pioneers scattered many miles apart all of them under the fear of one family. To tell the plot and its outcome would ruin the story. It is a true account it is one of those rare tales of real whose climax is as surprising as anything in fiction. Mr. Moss dedicates his story to "Those Left in the Shadow of the Potrocks."

Hollywood Is Captured By Tracy's Work

Every once in a while, Hollywood sees a speechless beyond a picture which defies the inventive genius of the film capital to coin its well known flamboyant adjectives which would really do the picture justice.

In such a case, they literally and figuratively let the picture speak for itself, and according to all advance reports on "Blessed Event," the Warner Bros. picture which comes to the Ritz Theatre today and Monday, unburdens itself of a lot of the "real stuff."

When Broadway decided to tell tales on the talebearers, "Blessed Event" was hailed as the most entertaining vehicle in which snoopers and columnists were brought before the public gaze, including their methods of news gathering, their own love affairs, and their other less desirable traits.

This success story was hit by Manuel Seff and Forrest Wong was immediately purchased by Warner Bros. as a vehicle for Lee Tracy and an all star cast. It went into production with the screen adaptation written by Howard Green.

The applause of press and public which greeted the advance show of the film, pointed to it as being one of the outstanding productions of the year, because of the plot—its sustained fast-paced comedy, and consistent fine acting.

The pains with which Warner Bros. went about producing this picture is reflected in the cast which was chosen with great care. Lee Tracy, who will long be remembered by Broadway as the original Hildy Johnson of "The Front Page," is typically suited to the role of the columnist. Alien Jenkins, Milton Wallace and Isabel Jewel were transported from the original New York stage play to do their part in the picture.

The pace at which the picture moves, demanded and paid the highly capable acting which could keep up with its rapid tempo. It is claimed that "Blessed Event" contains more laughs and thrills per reel of film than any picture produced since talkies first came in.

New York life as seen by a gossiping columnist is no slow procession, and when things happen to him and around him in this picture, the audience is promised a breathless time, keeping up with its surge of events, lizzy chatter, and fast, wisecracking dialogue.

The direction of this production was given to Roy Del Ruth, ace Warner Bros. megaphonist, who proved his mettle last year by such knockout sensations as "Winner Take All," "Taxi," and "Blonde Crazy."

From the standpoint of entertainment, critics have hailed "Blessed Event" as one hundred percent, and good to the leg flicker.

is the pastor of a church in West Palm Beach, Fla., where people really play. Many of the stunts and original ideas had their initial performance in his own church. "The book is planned around a whole year's entertainment, beginning with a watch party and ending with a Christmas party. It includes all sorts of side lines, such as a minstrel show, a street carnival, a celebrities party, a masquerade party, an automobile race, an air-craft party. Some are costume affairs, most are not.

The author says the parties are planned for young people's conferences, company dinners, receptions, and gatherings of all size up to 200 invited people. The book is usually well indexed and the complexities seen in that regard are easily accessible.

Laughton In MidWeek Play At R-R Queen

'Payment Deferred' Cast Includes Maureen O'Sullivan, Hamilton

Technical research to reproduce an English middle-class home of today is more difficult than research to reproduce an European home. This was discovered during the filming of "Payment Deferred," the film version of the New York play by the same name, which heads the program at the Queen Theatre Wednesday and Thursday. "There are rooms written about European courts and historic castles," explains Lothar Mendes, who directed the picture, "but nobody pays any attention to modern life and homes. Therefore, we had to actually send men to England to photograph interiors. Imagine our surprise to find in one of them pictures of an American elk, a view of the Yellowstone and an American sewing machine."

However, there are dozens of details, such as kitchen utensils, chinaware and furniture which are distinctly different so that the home looks nothing like an American interior."

Charlie Laughton, as the murderer in "Payment Deferred," repeats the role in which he scored a sensation on the stage in London and New York, and the cast also features Nell Hamilton, Maureen O'Sullivan, Dorothy Peterson, Verree Teasdale and Ray Milland.

Flier Author Of 'Air Mail' Opens Friday

Injury In Fall Lead Navy Man To Write Screen Scenarios

It Lt. Commander Frank Weed had not tripped in the dark and fractured his neck in a fall down a flight of stairs, the screen would probably have been deprived of one of its finest aviation classics. The accident which turned the navy flier's talents to the pen instead of the controls was indirectly responsible for "Air Mail," Universal's great drama, of the government pilots coming to the Ritz Theatre next Friday and Saturday. The date was set last yesterday.

Weed is a native of Peoria, Ill., and a graduate of the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis. He saw extensive service—all over the world before his accident, providing the material for his vivid fiction and screen plays, and during the war had a barrage of mips in the South Sea Islands.

After his naval aviation career was ended with his injury, Weed contributed to many important magazines. He has written one book, "Wings for Men," and his screen plays include "Flying Fleet," "Disfranchise," "Shipmates," "Hell Divers," "Feet," "All American" and "Air Mail."

Day Van Every, co-author with Weed of the stirring air drama, was born in Leaning, Mich., and took his A. B. degree at Stanford University. After service in the ambulance corps of the French army during the war, Van Every returned to New York with the United Press. His newspaper experience fitted him for scenario work which he undertook later. "Telling the World," "The Duke Steps Out," "The Spirit of Notre Dame," "East of Borneo," are among his best remembered screen plays.

'Kongo' Opens Sunday With Fine Lineup

Walter Huston's Ways Are Tricky; Here Three Days

For dark and tricky ways the "heathen Chinese" is not nearly so peculiar as the ways of Walter Huston with the heathen black of Africa in "Kongo," the weird jungle melodrama which Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is sending to the screen of the Queen Theatre starting Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

In bringing to the screen his celebrated New York stage role of "Deadlies" Flint, Huston resorts to tricks of black magic in holding the rebellious savage tribes in subjection.

Once Lived in Africa According to William Cowen, who directed "Kongo" and who once lived in the part of Africa with which the story deals, black magic is nothing more than the tricks which white magicians play on their theatre audiences, but the black tribesmen believe they are supernatural. For this reason there is a governmental ban on such practice, but there are times, says Cowen, when it is necessary for self-preservation.

Among the tricks which Huston plays are feats of fire-eating, turning a man into a skeleton, and the chopping off of Lupe Velez's head in front of the astonished blacks. Needless to say the head is restored and Lupe goes on her grinning way.

Mrs. S. W. Hughes, of Brady, is visiting her sister, Mrs. B. Reagan for the week-end.

Mix Proves Marksmanship In New Film

'Destry Rides Again' On Queen Bill Friday And Saturday

There was breathless suspense behind the scenes of Universal's "Destry Rides Again" as well as within a single scene, when Tom Mix, the Western star, took his 38 rifle in hand to do a feat of amazing shooting. The scene called upon Mix to shoot continuously, six inches closed to the head of a fellow actor, Edward Peola, until he confessed to a dastardly crime of the story.

A renowned marksman, Mix concluded the last shot but one inch and a half from Peola's skull, by actual measure, and Director Ben Stoloff and his staff sighed with genuine relief at the finish. The picture will be shown Friday and Saturday at the Queen Theatre.

Bullington Says Ferguson Offered To Sell His Support To Republicans For $20,000

Republican Nominee Tells Abilene People Fellow Citizen Represented Ferguson's At Republican Convention

By HARRY MONTGOMERY

Associated Press Staff Writer ABILENE — Orville Bullington, republican nominee for governor, charged here Friday night that "Jim Ferguson offered to bolt the democratic ticket two years ago and throw their (the Ferguson's) support to the republicans for $20,000."

"The nominee (Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson), said in her address at Waco Thursday night that they (the Ferguson's) had never bolted," Bullington continued. "She said they always had taken their medicine and supported the choice of the democrats. Nothing could be further from the truth. As a matter of fact they have never supported a ticket if they could sell out."

"Two years ago the Ferguson's were defeated in the primaries by Governor R. S. Sterling. When we here by combined delegations of Republicans and anti-Ferguson league leaders, honored by friends at a dinner, and spoke to an audience that filled the downtown city auditorium to standing room.

In addition to his reference to the offer of the Ferguson's to bolt, Bullington answered only one other charge which his opposition hurled in the Waco address, and that was Ferguson's reference to his "ignorance."

"I am not as intelligent as I would like to be," Bullington said. "But I am smart enough to know right from wrong, and to tell my money from the state's."

The remainder of Bullington's address was largely that which he has been delivering throughout the campaign. He attacked the state ad valorem tax as an obsolete, spoke with favor of the home rule plan for counties, the reorganization of the state judiciary, and the consolidation of state departments in the interest of economy.

Hills Highway Program — He lashed the Ferguson three-point highway program as "a cheat, a fraud and a swindle," especially as it affects resident and farm tenants who he said do not benefit from the general tax fund to which the Ferguson play would convert one-third of the gasoline tax.

"Ferguson would give one-third of the tax, or one and one-third cents, to the schools," said Bullington. "That part of the plan is all right and I approve it, although Ferguson is obviously reflecting on the intelligence of the people when he talks about giving one-third of the tax to schools. The constitution guarantees the schools one-fourth of the tax."

He really adds but one-third of the tax to the schools, and snuff it off in his Levi Garrett fund."

"Jim promises he would put one-third of the tax in the general fund. That is where he begins his swindle of the farm tenant and other citizens. The money placed in the fund would go to reduce the taxes of the landlord and the farmer and city tenants who pay their four-cent gasoline tax while all others would get no return from the tax. I am a landlady myself, but I can not help calling attention to this plan of a man trying to deliberately discriminate against more than 800,000 families in Texas which do not own farms or homes."

Bullington said he was some time asked how he would make up for revenue that would be cut off by abolishment of the ad valorem tax.

Herald Carriers Take Game 18-8

Herald Carriers Saturday took a lead in their five-game series with the Scouts of Fort 2 by an 18-8 score.

Combining a brilliant passing attack with a potent running game, the Scouts could not fathom the Herald bunch had easier sailing than the score would indicate.

The carriers scored early in the first quarter on a pass E. Savage to B. Savage who was run out of bounds on the four yard line. B. Savage carried it across.

The Scouts scored when E. Savage tried to handle a punt over the goal line and fumbled, being tackled for a safety. A minute later the F. Savage to B. Savage combination was good for another touchdown.

The combination worked again to give the Herald the ball on the 3 line, from where Bill Savage skirted left end for the Herald's last score.

With seconds to go, J. C. Eudy passed to Ambrose Fitzgerald for the Scouts only touchdown.

Lineup—Herald ends, Hart and Crance; tackles, Hildreth and Moore; Johnson and E. Savage; center, M. Burleson; quarter, B. Savage; half, B. Burleson and F. Savage; full back, Smith.

Scouts—Ends, Wilson and Winslow; tackle, Gibson and Schultz; guards, J. Wilson and D. Wilson; center, Woods; quarterback, Fitzgerald; half, Cambron and Gibson; fullback, Eudy.

Beaumont Port Given Warning On Truck Laws Potential, As Well As Actual Competition Considered

Potential, As Well As Actual Competition Considered

AUSTIN—Beaumont port representatives have been given to understand by the railroad commission that potential truck competition, as well as actual competition, will be considered in granting low rates on cotton shipments to ports by rail.

The practical difference at Beaumont is that under this view, the business people there do not have to buy a fleet of trucks and set up a trucking business in order solely to get the rail rates to a point where cotton will flow to the port. Their objective is to handle the cotton legitimately due to go to that port from its natural traffic area.

The Beaumont interests are now pressing for early decision of its cotton rate case, heard back in August, and have pointed out that within a limited time the cotton-producing season will be over for a whole year.

Senator W. A. Williamson, San Antonio, insists that members of the legislature can't be sent for new terms until the beginning of the January regular session, since he believes that if the legislature is in session November 9, any newly-elected member against whom no election contest is pending, can present himself and claim his seat.

Another matter for the next session is discussed "long with waiting a new set of election laws that may be able to protect public and private rights better than the voluminous mass swept off the books by supreme court recently.

"I am convinced," Representative A. P. Johnson of Garzo, Springs commented at Austin, "that the next legislature will be one of the best in many years." He was discussing the ability and capacity for work of the membership.

"There have been some comments that many of the newcomers are young," he added. "But that is not a handicap, if they come with the purpose to work to take their responsibilities seriously. A man of that type advances more quickly than one whose mind is closed to new ideas."

There are two Texas officials not concerned with elections, whose terms run on—Former Lieutenant Governor Lynch Davidson, chairman, and J. A. Glen, member, of the board of managers of the Texas state railroad. This board years ago leased the railroad to the Southern Pacific Lines for operation.

Fifty Men Assigned To Marine Station

Captain Talbot stated that these men must have a high school education and must be able to pass a rigid physical examination. The minimum height requirement is five feet and six inches, and the age limit is 18 to 30.

and its functions are nominal until such time as it takes up for final sale or disposition the future control of the state-owned rail line.

Had it not been for the board of managers, the state railroad, running through towns laid out and sold by the state, would long since have been torn up and abandoned.

Shift Tax Burden

"I would collect a lot of it from some of Jim Ferguson's clients who have been paying him to lobby to keep them from paying taxes," he said. "If I become governor, I'm going to keep the legislature in session, until they grow whiskers to their knees, or I'm going to put part of this tax burden on the rich sulphur interests of the east and the chain stores."

He described Ferguson as a "front porch farmer." "All that he cultivates is the farmer. He could not milk a cow, but he has diluted the state of Texas and he will again every time he gets a chance," the speaker said.

Won't Fire Democrats

Bullington said that as governor he would not dismiss democratic appointees and replace them with republicans.

"In the first place, it takes two-thirds of the senate to confirm an appointment. Do you think they would do it? I wouldn't even try it on them," he said.

He commended the prison system management of Lee Simmons and said, "he can make the system self-supporting if the politicians will let him."

Dr. J. W. Hunt, president of McMurry college and leader in the League of Anti-Ferguson democrats, outlined the work of his organization in Bullington's behalf.

"We are just getting into the fight," he said. "Ferguson will not have a pin feather left when we get through with that bird."

"Ferguson is like a pole cat at an animal convention. Regardless of what is going on when he arrives, he is the only issue once he is on hand."

Dr. J. D. Sandifer, president of Simmons university and friend of Bullington's father, presided at the rally; and Dallas Scarborough, an Abilene attorney, former mayor of the city and class-mate and fraternity brother of Bullington at the University of Texas, introduced the candidate.

Preceding his address, Bullington was honored at a dinner given in the red room of the Hilton hotel.

His itinerary Saturday included Anson, Stamford, Haskell, Munday.

Rev. McGrath In Concluding Sermon Here

Meaning Of Mass Topic Of Service Of This Morning

The climatic sermon of the dramatic series that the Rev. Thomas J. McGrath, S. J., Jesuit missionary from Shreveport, La., has been giving at St. Thomas Catholic church, 506 North Main street, will be delivered this evening at 7:30 o'clock when he takes as his subject, "America's Sovereign Ruler."

"America's Sovereign Ruler," said to be the keystone discourse of his lecture series, was written for and delivered in the Immaculate Conception church, Jacksonville, five years ago. In the winter of 1930 this lecture, by popular request, was repeated in the same city and church and broadcast by remote control over the Jacksonville station.

The Rev. Theo Francis, O. M. I., pastor of St. Thomas church, extends a cordial invitation to the general public. "The closing exercises of the mission will be a solemn and impressive and I guarantee to every one who is present an intellectual and spiritual feast which Father McGrath delivers with masterly ease. America's Sovereign Ruler," this will be appreciated by any Christian American, regardless of denomination."

Mass Explained
This morning at 10 o'clock a very unique service will be held in the form of an explanation of the form of worship in the Catholic church, known as the "mass."

Promptly at 9 o'clock, Father McGrath will enter the sanctuary and give a brief exposition of the meaning of sacrifice in its relation to divine worship. He will then explain the altar and everything seen on it and a few things that are not seen. He will exhibit the altar stone and tell the congregation its meaning and why the church commands that mass be offered on stone. He will also exhibit the chalice, paten, purificator, corporal, burse, veil and everything else that the priest uses at the altar.

Why In Latin?
The visiting priest will show the congregation the "missal," or mass book, which is printed in the Latin language the official language of the Catholic church, and will tell them why the mass is said in the dead Latin tongue rather than in English or the vernacular of the country.

This over, he will explain the meaning of the different colors of the vestments—white, green, red, purple, black and gold.

The officiating priest will be Father Francis, pastor, who will don his sacerdotal robes not in the sacristy, as is the usual thing, but in the sanctuary where the congregation can easily see. As each vestment is put on, Father McGrath will hold it up before the congregation, give its name, and its liturgical and historical meaning.

As the officiating priest says the mass in the Latin language, the missionary will follow along word for word with an English translation. The latter will also be provided with chalice, paten, host, purificator, corporal, burse, etc., and will do, facing the congregation what the priest at the altar does with his back to the people, and will give the meaning of every movement and motion that the officiating priest makes.

Father McGrath said that this explanation of the Mass has, in many places, been regarded as the most interesting and most instructive of all his lectures. The general public is cordially invited, regardless of religious belief or affiliation. The missionary requests, however, that those first coming into the church occupy the front pews, in order to avoid distracting him and the people in the event of some coming in late and having to walk up toward the front to procure a seat.

Likes Big Spring
Asked how he had enjoyed his stay in Big Spring, Father McGrath said: "I have enjoyed every minute I have spent in Big Spring. I was met at the train by Father Francis who extended me a whole-hearted welcome and, although I was practically a stranger to him, he made me feel like I had known him all my life. He struck the keynote of the hospitality and whole-hearted welcome that the citizens of Big Spring extended me. The Rotarians and Kiwanians invited me as their guests and conferred upon me the honor of addressing them. The Lions, too, wanted me as their guest but I was tied up and could not accept. The welcome given me by the high school students, only a very small percentage of whom are Catholics, made me feel right at home."

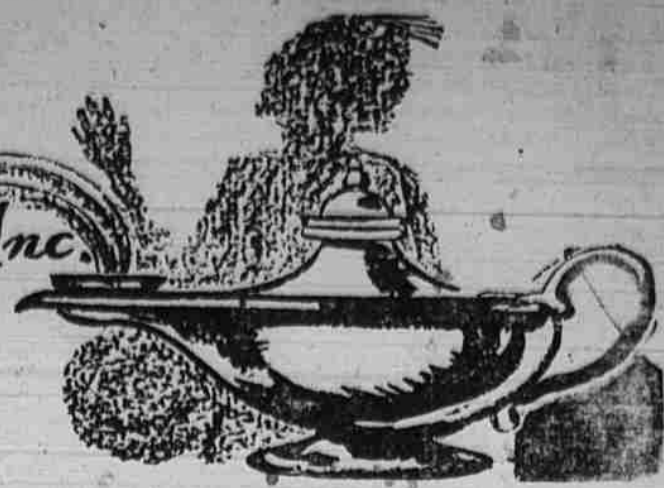

"As listeners, the people of Big Spring stand second to none. Although my sermon ran for an hour each evening, not one did any one pull a watch on me; and Friday night, after an hour's lecture, when I was about to quit, they spoke up and asked me to continue."

"I like the climate, the scenery and especially the people whom I have met. It is very evident that the citizens of Big Spring believe in harmony and good-fellowship and that they know how to pull together in the interest of their town. This, I believe, accounts for the fact that I have seen few signs of the depression here in Big Spring than I have in any other city or town that I have been to in the past two years, and my work has taken me from Miami to New York and from Jacksonville to West Texas. You have a good town and grand people living in it. It was a delight to have been in Big Spring and I hope to see more of it and of its wonderful people."

Miss E. J. Mary, M. K. House and Shine Phillips spent Saturday in Abilene. Betty and Marvin, Jr., accompanied them.

The Soviets Soften

FROM THIS distance it appears that the Russian communists have adopted more flexible and gentle methods in the disciplining of party recalcitrants.

More than twenty prominent members of the party were expelled this week by the central controlling committee of the Communist organization. One was Gregory S.
Zinovieff, former chairman of the executive committee of the Third Internationale. Another was Lee Kameneff, brother-in-law of Leon Trotsky. It was the second expulsion for both.

The expelled members were accused of carrying on anti-party propaganda and plotting a revolution.

The significant aspect of the affair is the mildness of the punishment. Only a year or two ago the plotters would have been executed.

They were listed as followers of the exiled Trotsky, and possibly the lack of a severe penalty was a reflection of weak evidence. It may be that the Communists merely want to get rid of prominent men suspected of sympathy with Trotsky, and look this means of doing so without arousing undue antagonism.

The incident, at any rate, is an interesting commentary on the gradual softening of the harsh rule of the Soviets. Great changes have taken place in Russia in recent years, not the least of which has been a disposition to shoot less and exile more.

'Equality' Topic For Big Spring Study Club

The members of the Big Spring Study Club met at the home of Mrs. J. P. Dodge Friday afternoon for a lesson on "Equality."

Mrs. F. W. Harding gave the main paper on "Colored Way of Dealing with the Mexican." The discussion was devoted to the subject of "Equality in America."

Mrs. Chas. Koberg, parliamentarian, ended the meeting with a parliamentary drill.

The club voted that the next meeting would be held on Nov. 13 at the home of Mrs. Koberg. This ings in November, both of which come on or near holidays.

Mrs. B. Fisher Given State Honor At Grand Meeting

The delegates to the grand chap-trict.

The other delegates came home earlier in a car.

They reported the largest and most successful state meeting ever held. More than 3,000 delegates were present. Mrs. Laura V. Hart, past most worthy grand matron, who has just returned from a trip to Panama told the local delegates that she was planning a visit to Big Spring. Mrs. Burnett, the new worthy grand matron, will be here some time this year.

This was one meeting in which the delegates were fetted as much as the officers, said the visitors.
They returned full of praise for F. Worth's hospitality.

MELLOWED 80 MILLION YEARS

While brutes grew coats of mail
in OKLAHOMA

MILLIONS of years ago Nature buried in Oklahoma certain priceless complex chemical compounds. Ages went by—long ages which saw the rise and fall of life in strange forms. And little by little, heat and pressure began to have its effect. Cambro-Ordovician crude oil was in the making!

Today the drills of Sinclair oil men have bitten deep into the soil of Oklahoma and tapped this treasure trove. Piped to the great Sinclair refineries and carefully refined and blended, Cambro-Ordovician crude oil becomes Sinclair Opaline Motor Oil, a product resulting from man's exhaustive care and Nature's 80 million years of priceless treatment.

Man's part in producing Opaline is all-important.
In order that you shall have full value for your money, Sinclair not only de-waxes Opaline—it goes one step further and removes the non-lubricating petroleum jelly by chilling the oil down to as low as 60° F. below zero. An extra step taken by few refiners besides Sinclair!

Have the nearest Sinclair dealer change your oil to Sinclair Opaline according to the Sinclair Law of Lubrication Index. Notice how quietly your engine runs. Then, at the next draining period examine the used Opaline. Observe how it still holds its rich lubricating body—how little oil has been used up!

REMEMBER: Sinclair offers you your choice—Sinclair Opaline, made from the oldest Mid-continent crudes, or Sinclair Pennsylvania, made from the costliest Pennsylvania grade crude.

and he stepped forward eagerly. "Sal, you're a sight for sore eyes, honey!" he exclaimed. Dona pressed his hand and smiled at him. She was thinking as she did so that Dudley was not really handsome. He lacked force and his face seemed immature and boyish.

"Are you strong enough to be around like this with the doctor's permission?" She spoke to her father.

"The old saw-bones says nothing could kill me!" Asper assured her. "I intend to horn in and eat with you two."

Dona slipped her arm through his and they all descended the steps together. Dudley had suddenly become reserved, apparently miffed at Dona's actions. He had expected a great deal of praise after riding all over the mountain looking for her and getting his clothes torn and dirt-covered.

"Let's walk down by the corral. I just see how the roan is getting along," Dona could not repress her high spirits.

"At the corral they found Malloy standing at the gate. He returned Dona's smile with a quizzical light in his eyes.

"How's the roan?" Dudley asked the question for her.

"He's just fine. Intent to be ridden," Malloy gave his answer directly to Dona.

"You say here, I must see him. Dona mentioned for Malloy to open the gate, before Dudley could push through after her she had slipped inside and closed the gate. She motioned for Malloy to come with her. The tall cowboy counted along while they walked to the second corral. When they were out of hearing of her father and Dudley, she whispered to Malloy: "Where is the black mare?"

Malloy did not miss a stride and his whistling barely slowed. "Over in the third corral."

"I must have her where I can get her!" Malloy's eyes shone on her. "Saddle up and bring some food packed. I'll slip away at night." Dona halted and called to the roan, standing at the

TODAY and TOMORROW

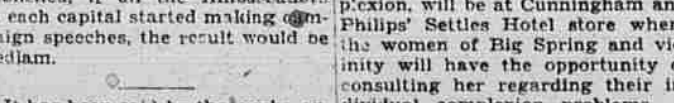

By WALTER DUNHAM

The Four Months' Interval

Our Ambassador at the Court of St. James has introduced an interesting innovation into the practice of diplomatic speeches. It is a Manchester-England, warning the people of England about the hazards of a change of administration in the United States and, to a certain extent, the world, will mark time for four months.

Before considering the substance of Mr. Mellon's remarks it is in order to inquire whether an Ambassador representing the American nation is well advised to make a partisan speech on foreign soil. Party politics is supposed to stop at the water's edge, and if Mr. Stimson were free to follow the promptings of his own conscience he would sharply remind Mr. Mellon that his office in Great Britain is to represent the American people as a whole and not merely the Republican party. For if this practice were allowed to become established, if all the Ambassadors in each capital started making campaign speeches, the result would be bedlam.

Beauty Specialist To Arrive Monday

Starting Monday, Miss Sara Freeland, personal consultant of Barbara Gould, internationally known authority on the care of the complexion, will be at Cunningham and Phillips' Settles Hotel store where the women of Big Spring and vicinity will have the opportunity of consulting her regarding their individual complexion problems.

Miss Freeland's advice is based on Miss Gould's miracle of prolonging modern youth. According to Miss Gould, the Four Ages of Beauty are the teens, the twenties, and thirties and the forties and beyond, and by meeting the changing needs of the skin throughout each of these ages, any woman can retain a youthful, normal appearance.

Tens of thousands of women have welcomed the Barbara Gould home treatments because they are so simple, so easy and so effective. Miss Freeland will gladly answer any question regarding complexion care and give individual advice on makeup and other matters pertaining to feminine loveliness while she is in Big Spring.

American Airways Operating Losses Greatly Lowered

A substantial reduction in the airline operating expenses of American Airways, Inc., the airline operating subsidiary of The Aviation Corporation of Delaware, coupled with increases in revenues from passengers and express, lowered airline operating losses in the third quarter of 1932, and $444,923 for the first three months of this year, according to Jesse Maxwell, local representative, who has just received a copy of President La Follette's report to the directors of the Aviation Corporation at its recent quarterly meeting.

"Mr. Coih was elected president of The Aviation Corporation, and its operating subsidiary, the American Airways, Inc. in March 1932, and immediately began his policy of economy and broadening of revenues producing operations which was reflected in this report," Mr. Maxwell said.

"In order to develop outside revenue American Airways has broadened the scope of its operation and increased its facilities under the direction of Mr. Coih. In September 1931 American Airways flew 8,678 miles of route. In September 1932 American Airways flew 9,562 miles of route, an increase of 6.5 per cent.

"On these routes in September 1931 American Airways flew 762,490 revenue miles, and in September 1932, 830,370 revenue miles, an increase in revenue miles flown of 8.78 per cent.

"These figures do not tell the whole story of the increase in facilities," Mr. Maxwell pointed out. In addition to the 167,880 miles of additional schedules flown, there have been over 90,000 miles per month of mail ship flying where the smaller mail ships have been replaced with larger passenger and express carrying transport planes at an increased flying cost.

Through these changes the number of seat miles flown has increased from 4,601,595 in September 1931 to 7,034,172 in 1932, or an increase of 52.2 per cent. By this increase in seat miles, an increase in passengers carried of 39 per cent is shown. September 1931, 7,004 passengers being carried as compared with 9,740 in 1932.

"Despite the increase in passenger facilities offered, and other increases since September 1931, American Airways has been able to reduce its operating expenses for September of this year with the same amount of the previous year," Mr. Maxwell said.

"Mr. Coih succeeded in getting the airline operating expenses for September of this year and by increasing efficiency through the discontinuance of the manufacturing operations of the Birmingham subsidiary of The Aviation Corporation, assuring the American Airways of the first reduction of the fast planes design in an enormous saving

Eastern Stars of El Paso Stranded in City Saturday

The El Paso delegation returning from the Eastern Star convention held at Fort Worth was stranded here for a short time Saturday evening when the driver of the bus in which they rode gave out of funds.

According to the women, an attempt was made by the driver to collect for the remainder of the trip from Big Spring to El Paso after each had previously paid for round-trip tickets.

Mrs. C. E. Westbrook, member of the delegation, summoned officers who rounded out the deficiency, furnished another bus driver, and sent the party on its way.

 Filled her heart with truth.

HOW TO POWDER

It Appears That Few Women Know How This Is Correctly Done

By ALICE REGINA CLAR

Even our broadest highways must have some warning signs to keep travelers from disaster and on the broad and busy highways of feminine charm I wish today to post a new warning.

"Powder face!" Up and down the avenue move sophisticated women of wealth and leisure. And among them you will glimpse signs of "powder face!"

The cause? In the cases of ten, the cause is improper selection of powder for those portions of the face where powder alone must be depended upon. Improper selection or improper application. Even if you use Vivanon, Daltroz, Meba, Djer Kiss, or others of the best talc powders, you must know how to apply them correctly or you will lose much of their benefits.

The correct way to fit a successful makeup, the kind that looks charmingly natural and reveals no tell-tale "behind-the-scenes" effects is this way: The wide ribbon or band of mullin around your head to keep powder and cream out of your hair. Then, after the very light film of cream has been applied, a large soft puff in your powder box to powder properly and effectively. Begin at the base of the throat (below where your blouse or dress top will begin) and place—do not rub—your powder upward over cheeks and nose and forehead. Be sure to powder the back and sides of your neck too and even down on your shoulders, since modish necklines are so revealing. Now smooth off all excess powder, using "gentle" touch. A soft powder brush is best for this.

The result is a smooth velvet, ready for the accents of rouge, lip stick and eye-shadow. Using these instructions with the better grades of powder will do much to eliminate the danger of what I have referred to as "powder face."
